c. If a device is equipped with a facial-recognition feature, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device through his or her face. For example, this feature is available on certain Android devices and is called "Trusted Face." During the Trusted Face registration process, the user holds the device in front of his or her face. The device's front-facing camera then analyzes and records data based on the user's facial characteristics. The device can then be unlocked if the front-facing camera detects a face with characteristics that match those of the registered face. Facial recognition features found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Trusted Face.

d. If a device is equipped with an iris-recognition feature, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device with his or her irises. For example, on certain Microsoft devices, this feature is called "Windows Hello." During the Windows Hello registration, a user registers his or her irises by holding the device in front of his or her face. The device then directs an infrared light toward the user's face and activates an infrared-sensitive camera to record data based on patterns within the user's irises. The device can then be unlocked if the infrared-sensitive camera detects the registered irises. Iris-recognition features found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Windows Hello.

e. In my training and experience, users of electronic devices often enable the aforementioned biometric features because they are considered to be a more convenient way to unlock a device than by entering a numeric or alphanumeric passcode or password. Moreover, in some instances, biometric features are considered to be a more secure way to protect a device's contents. This is particularly true when the users of a device are engaged in criminal activities and thus have a heightened concern about securing the contents of a device.

f. As discussed in this Affidavit, your Affiant has reason to believe that one or more digital devices will be found during the search. The passcode or password that would unlock the DEVICES subject to search under this warrant currently is not known to law enforcement. Thus, law enforcement personnel may not otherwise be able to access the data contained within the DEVICES, making the use of biometric features necessary to the execution of the search authorized by this warrant.

g. I also know from my training and experience, as well as from information found in publicly available materials including those published by device manufacturers, that biometric features will not unlock a device in some circumstances even if such features are enabled. This can occur when a device has been restarted, inactive, or has not been unlocked for a certain period of time. For example, Apple devices cannot be unlocked using Touch ID when: (1) more than 48 hours has elapsed since the device was last unlocked; or, (2) when the device has not been unlocked using a fingerprint for 8 hours and the passcode or password has not been entered in the last 6 days. Similarly, certain Android devices cannot be unlocked with Trusted Face if the device has remained inactive for four hours. Biometric features from other brands carry similar restrictions. Thus, in the event law enforcement personnel encounter a locked device equipped with biometric features, the opportunity to unlock the device through a biometric feature may exist for only a short time.

h. Due to the foregoing, if law enforcement personnel encounter any DEVICES that are subject to seizure pursuant to this warrant and may be unlocked using one of the aforementioned biometric features, this warrant permits law enforcement personnel to: (1) press or swipe the fingers (including thumbs) of COPELAND to the fingerprint scanner of the DEVICE; (2) hold the DEVICE in front of the face of COPELAND and activate the facial recognition feature; and/or (3) hold the DEVICE in front of the face of COPELAND and activate the iris recognition feature, for the purpose of attempting to unlock the DEVICE in order to search the contents as authorized by this warrant. In pressing or swiping a person's thumb or finger onto a device and in holding a device in front of a person's face, law enforcement may not use excessive force, as defined in Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386 (1989); specifically, law enforcement may use no more than objectively reasonable force in light of the facts and circumstances confronting them.

Further, law enforcement may compel the use of the biometric features described above if: (1) the procedure is carried out with dispatch and in the immediate vicinity of the premises to be searched, and if, at the time of compulsion, the government has (2) reasonable suspicion that the suspect has committed a criminal act that is the subject matter of the warrant; and (3) reasonable suspicion that the individual's biometric features will unlock the device, that is, for example, because there is a reasonable suspicion to believe that the individual is the user of the device. The proposed warrant does not authorize law enforcement to require that resident's state or otherwise provide the password or any other means that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICE. Moreover, the proposed warrant does not authorize law enforcement to ask residents to identify the specific biometric characteristics (including the unique finger(s) or other physical features) that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICE.

CONCLUSION

20. Based upon the information, your Affiant asserts there is probable cause to believe the cellphone belonging to COPELAND may constitute evidence of Article 86 (Absence without leave) and Article 107 (False Official Statements) of the UCMJ.

21. Your affiant respectfully requests a CASS be issued, authorizing NCIS Agents, forensic examiners tasked by NCIS, and other law enforcement entities and their forensic components to search and retain evidence as described above.

ATTACHMENT A: PLACES TO BE SEARCHED

This Command Authorized Search and Seizure (CASS) applies to the information associated with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND and his cellular telephone identified as an iPhone, dark in color, which was located on COPELAND's person when seized. Located at the Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) Norfolk Field Office Evidence Facility, 1650 Gilbert Street, Norfolk, VA 23511.

ATTACHMENT B: PARTICULAR ITEMS TO BE SEIZED

The following materials, which constitute evidence of the commission of a criminal offense, contraband, the fruits of crime, or property designed or intended for use or which is or has been used as the means of committing a criminal offense, namely violations of the Uniform Code of Military Justice Article 86 (Unauthorized Absence) and Article 107 (False Official Statement).

1. Cellular Telephone or storage media used as a means to commit the violations described above, to include the TARGET DEVICE(S).
2. The telephone number, ESN number, serial number, SIM card number, or any other device identification number associated with and or contained in the device (s).
3. Contextual information necessary to understand the evidence described in this CASS.
4. For any cellular telephone or storage medium whose seizure is otherwise authorized by this CASS, and any cellular telephone or storage medium that contains or in which are stored records or information that is otherwise called for by this warrant, to include the TARGET DEVICE(S) (hereinafter, "CELLULAR TELEPHONE"):
5. Evidence of who used, owned, or controlled the CELLULAR TELEPHONE at the time the things described in this CASS were created, edited, or deleted, such as logs, registry entries, configuration files, saved user names and passwords, documents, browsing history, user profiles, email, email contacts, "chat," instant messaging logs, photographs, and correspondence;

6. Evidence indicating how and when the cellular telephone was accessed or used to determine the chronological context of cellular telephone access, use, and events relating to the crime(s) under investigation and to the cellular telephone user;
7. Evidence indicating the cellular telephone user's knowledge and/or intent as it relates to the crime(s) under investigation;
8. Evidence of live and deleted historical navigation data tracks, routes, and waypoints, GPS fixes, favorites, past journeys, trip logs, and user entered data, Latitude, Longitude, and Altitude coordinates, and related dates and times pertaining to Subject Offense(s);
9. Evidence of live and deleted logs, records, documents, and other items that may constitute evidence, contraband, fruits, and/or instrumentalities of violations of crimes, pertaining to Subject Offense(s);
10. Evidence of live and deleted contact lists, call logs, text messages and multimedia messages (SMS and MMS messages), e-mails, chats, video conference communication data, contact information, installed application information including their content and any other information which can be used to identify potentially associated persons pertaining to Subject Offense(s);
11. Evidence of the attachment to the CELLULAR TELEPHONE of other storage devices or similar containers for electronic evidence;
12. Evidence of programs (and associated data) that are designed to eliminate data from the CELLULAR TELEPHONE;
13. Passwords, encryption keys, and other access devices that may be necessary to access the CELLULAR TELEPHONE;

14. Documentation and manuals that may be necessary to access the CELLULAR TELEPHONE or to conduct a forensic examination of the CELLULAR TELEPHONE;
15. Records of or information about Internet Protocol addresses used by the CELLULAR TELEPHONE;
16. Records of or information about the CELLULAR TELEPHONE's Internet activity, including firewall logs, caches, browser history and cookies, "bookmarked" or "favorite" web pages, search terms that the user entered into any Internet search engine, and records of user-typed web addresses; and
17. Contextual information necessary to understand the evidence described in this attachment.
18. The term "cellular telephone" includes all types of electronic, magnetic, optical, electrochemical, or other high speed data processing devices performing logical, arithmetic, or storage functions, including desktop cellular telephones, notebook cellular telephones, mobile phones, tablets, server cellular telephones, and network hardware.
19. This CASS does not authorize law enforcement personnel to compel any other individuals found at the SUBECT PREMISES to provide biometric features, as described in the preceding paragraph, to access or otherwise unlock any DEVICE. Further, this warrant does not authorize law enforcement personnel to require that resident's state or otherwise provide the password or any other means that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICES, including by identifying the specific biometric characteristics (including the unique finger(s) or other physical features) that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICES.

20. This CASS authorizes a review of electronic storage media and electronically stored information seized or copied pursuant to this CASS in order to locate evidence, fruits, and instrumentalities described in this warrant. The review of this electronic data may be conducted by any government personnel assisting in the investigation, who may include, in addition to law enforcement officers and agents, attorneys for the government, attorney support staff, and technical experts. Pursuant to this warrant, NCIS may deliver a complete copy of the seized or copied electronic data to the custody and control of attorneys for the government and their support staff for their independent review.

AFFIDAVIT

NAVAL CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

VS.

CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

1. I, Jessica Gokey, am a Special Agent with the Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) assigned to the NCIS Resident Agency Norfolk, VA and have been employed with NCIS since March 2022. During my tenure as a Special Agent, I have completed approximately 900 hours of instruction at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC) in Glynco, GA, where I attended the Special Agent Basic Training Integrated Program (SABTI). I was provided instruction on investigations, federal law, and other various practice issues for investigators. I am a member of the Military Criminal Investigative Organization Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force. I have attended the National Criminal Justice Training Center's Internet Crimes Against Children certification course and additional training through ICAC for an approximate total of 90 hours. I spent eight (8) years as an active duty member of the United States Navy, where I was a Master-at-Arms (MA). As a MA, I was a first responder to base incidents, misdemeanor crimes, and traffic accidents. During my tenure as a MA, I was employed with the Criminal Investigation Division (CID) where I worked various cases to include Domestic Violence cases, simple assaults, and other misdemeanor crimes. I have a Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice from Fort Hays State University, Hays, KS.

2. The following facts and information are known to your Affiant based upon information gained from the conduct of this investigation, witness observations, training and experience, and/or through information relayed through other law enforcement officers.

3. This affidavit is submitted in support of an application for a Command Authorization for Search and Seizure to review the iPhone 15 Pro Max, in NCIS custody, the Apple watch, and the additional iPhone located in the barracks room belonging to CSSN Jermiah COPELAND as annotated in Attachment A.

4. Since this affidavit is being submitted for the limited purpose of securing a Command Authorization for Search and Seizure, your Affiant has not included each and every fact known concerning this investigation. Your Affiant has set forth the facts believed necessary to establish probable cause to believe that evidence of violations of Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) Article 107 (False Statements), Article 118 (Homicide), and Article 134 (Obstruction).

FACTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES ESTABLISHING PROBABLE CAUSE

1. This United States is investigating violations of Article 107 (False Statements), Article 118 (Homicide), and Article 134 (Obstruction).

2. On May 28, 2025, CSSN V/A.R. was known to be in the barracks room located at PII located onboard Naval Station Norfolk, who is occupied by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND.

3. According to COPELAND, V/A.R. came to his barracks room to have dinner and have a couple drinks.

4. COPELAND stated V/A.R. called a "ex-boyfriend from Texas" and was confronting the person about returning personal items. COPELAND stated, V/A.R. became emotional and began to cry.

5. COPELAND stated the relationship with V/A.R. was platonic and he is a friend from work and no sexual acts have happened between them.

6. During an interview with PSSN Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, who is a roommate of COPELAND, at approximately 0645 on May 29, 2025, GORDILLOCRUZ stated he was leaving for work and saw his roommate, later clarified to be COPELAND and an unknown female on the floor naked.

7. GORDILLOCRUZ stated the female looked to have darker skin, and black curly hair. He could see V/A.R. breasts and could see COPELAND's head resting on V/A.R. stomach area. GORDILLOCRUZ stated he could not see if V/A.R. was wearing anything below COPELAND's head. GORDILLOCRUZ stated COPELAND was also naked but his back was facing upwards.

8. GORDILLOCRUZ stated he could tell V/A.R. was breathing by her chest moving up and down. GORDILLOCRUZ stated, he had never seen the female before and has not seen her since.

9. COPELAND stated, he was late for work on the morning of May 29, 2025 and FCC Brad PARKER knocked on his door to say COPELAND was going to be labeled as Unauthorized Absence (UA). FCC PARKER stated COPELAND answered the door in shorts and no shirt. FCC PARKER stated V/A.R. waved and rolled over into a blanket. FCC PARKER told COPELAND to report to work and left the barracks room.

10. COPELAND continued explaining, the two of them got dressed and a roommate took him and V/A.R. to V/A.R. residence located at Miller Hall onboard Naval Station Norfolk at approximately 1000.

11. COPELAND's movements after dropping V/A.R. off at Miller Hall are unknown. However, we know after speaking with Command, COPELAND was marked UA for the days of 29-31 May 2025 and on 01 June 2025.

12. On 02 June 2025, NCIS spoke to FCC PARKER to verify V/A.R. work schedule. FCC PARKER stated V/A.R. was scheduled to work day shift Friday,

May 30, 2025 - Sunday, June 1, 2025 with a report time of 0500-0530 hours. FCC PARKER stated V/A.R. failed to report all three (3) days.

13. NCIS interviewed all roommates of COPELAND, who stated they did not give a ride to COPELAND and V/A.R. on the morning of May 29, 2025.

14. V/A.R. cellphone last pinged on May 29, 2025, and the location was at the X-2 barracks.

15. On June 03, 2025, NCIS executed a Command Authorized Search and Seizure on the barracks room belonging to COPELAND. During the search, a pair of black rimmed glasses were located within the residence. V/A.R. was known to wear black rimmed glasses.

16. On June 04, 2025, NCIS executed a Command Authorized Search and Seizure (CASS) at the barracks room belonging to COPELAND. During the search, NCIS notated an Apple watch was located in COPELAND's belonging. During the interview of COPELAND, he stated, the Apple watch was no longer working and he did not use it.

17. On June 04, 2025, NCIS also located an older iPhone, which during the interview of COPELAND he stated the phone was broken and no longer working. When charged, the phone turned on and appeared to be working. The screen was also not cracked.

18. On June 09, 2025, NCIS determined the Apple watch was connected to the iPhone taken from COPELAND's person. The iPhone is currently in NCIS' possession and has since been forensically viewed to show the Apple watch last synched with the iPhone on May 29, 2025 at approximately 0256.

19. On June 08, 2025, NCIS received confirmation from USACIL that the swab taken from the inside of COPELAND's closet had tested positive for human blood. Further testing, will be conducted to determine whose blood is located in the closet. As such, NCIS is going to be removing the flooring in the closet and/or the baseboards surrounding the closet for further testing for DNA and/or trace evidence.

20. During the search of COPELAND's room on June 04, 2025, after being analyzed it was determined there was a potential blood trail leading from inside the closet onto the carpet of the room. NCIS will also be removing the carpet from COPELAND's room and the common room for further testing for DNA and/or trace evidence.

21. On June 09, 2025, while reviewing the iPhone belonging to COPELAND, NCIS was able to extract two image files, one of which appears to be a screenshot of a Google maps App with the street name Cary Ave visible. The device also appeared to be in Airplane mode at the time the screenshot was taken. The time on the screen shot is 05:15. After further examination, it appears the screenshot was taken on June 02, 2025 at 5:15AM.

22. NCIS was able to locate and extract heath data to include the Apple Health Floors, Apple Health Steps, and Apple Health Distance during the examination. Which shows the health data recorded on June 02, 2025, from 3:45AM to 5:57AM. Based off of the geolocation data located the approximately geolocation from the iPhone was in the approximately area of 2842 Cary Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23504.

23. On June 09, 2025, NCIS went to the location of the ping and began to search the area. Within the area of the ping, a suitcase was located near a tree. After partially opening the suitcase, a pair of human legs was observed to be inside the suitcase.

On June 10, 2025, NCIS attended the autopsy of the female located in the suitcase. Within the suitcase there was an E3 uniform patch located in the hair of the female.

BIOMETRIC ACCESS TO DEVICES

1. This warrant permits law enforcement to compel CSSN Jermiah COPELAND to unlock any DEVICES requiring biometric access subject to seizure pursuant to this warrant. The grounds for this request are as follows:

a. I know from my training and experience, as well as from information found in publicly available materials published by device manufacturers, that many electronic devices, particularly newer mobile devices and laptops, offer their users the ability to unlock the device through biometric features in lieu of a numeric or alphanumeric passcode or password. These biometric features include fingerprint scanners, facial recognition features and iris recognition features. Some devices offer a combination of these biometric features, and the user of such devices can select which features they would like to utilize.

b. If a device is equipped with a fingerprint scanner, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device through his or her fingerprints. For example, Apple offers a feature called "Touch ID," which allows a user to register up to five fingerprints that can unlock a device. Once a fingerprint is registered, a user can unlock the device by pressing the relevant finger to the device's Touch ID sensor, which is found in the round button (often referred to as the "home" button) located at the bottom center of the front of the device. The fingerprint sensors found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Touch ID.

c. If a device is equipped with a facial-recognition feature, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device through his or her face. For example, this feature is available on certain Android devices and is called "Trusted Face." During the Trusted Face registration process, the user holds the device in front of his or her face. The device's front-facing camera then analyzes and records data based on the user's facial characteristics. The device can then be unlocked if the front-facing camera detects a face with characteristics that match those of the registered face. Facial recognition features found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Trusted Face.

d. If a device is equipped with an iris-recognition feature, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device with his or her irises. For example, on certain Microsoft devices, this feature is called "Windows Hello." During the Windows Hello registration, a user registers his or her irises by holding the device in front of his or her face. The device then directs an infrared light toward the user's face and activates an infrared-sensitive camera to record data based on patterns within the user's irises. The device can then be unlocked if the infrared-sensitive camera detects the registered irises. Iris-recognition features found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Windows Hello.

e. In my training and experience, users of electronic devices often enable the aforementioned biometric features because they are considered to be a more convenient way to unlock a device than by entering a numeric or alphanumeric passcode or password. Moreover, in some instances, biometric features are considered to be a more secure way to protect a device's contents. This is particularly true when the users of a device are engaged in criminal activities and thus have a heightened concern about securing the contents of a device.

f. As discussed in this Affidavit, your Affiant has reason to believe that one or more digital devices will be found during the search. The passcode or password that would unlock the DEVICES subject to search under this warrant currently is not known to law enforcement. Thus, law enforcement personnel may not otherwise be able to access the data contained within the DEVICES, making the use of biometric features necessary to the execution of the search authorized by this warrant.

g. I also know from my training and experience, as well as from information found in publicly available materials including those published by device manufacturers, that biometric features will not unlock a device in some circumstances even if such features are enabled. This can occur when a device has been restarted, inactive, or has not been unlocked for a certain period of time. For example, Apple devices cannot be unlocked using Touch ID when: (1) more than 48 hours has elapsed since the device was last unlocked; or, (2) when the device has not been unlocked using a fingerprint for 8 hours and the passcode or password has not been entered in the last 6 days. Similarly, certain Android devices cannot be unlocked with Trusted Face if the device has remained inactive for four hours. Biometric features from other brands carry similar restrictions. Thus, in the event law enforcement personnel encounter a locked device equipped with biometric features, the opportunity to unlock the device through a biometric feature may exist for only a short time.

h. Due to the foregoing, if law enforcement personnel encounter any DEVICES that are subject to seizure pursuant to this warrant and may be unlocked using one of the aforementioned biometric features, this warrant permits law enforcement personnel to: (1) press or swipe the fingers (including thumbs) of COPELAND to the fingerprint scanner of the DEVICE; (2) hold the DEVICE in front of the face of COPELAND and activate the facial recognition feature; and/or (3) hold the DEVICE in front of the face of COPELAND and activate the iris recognition feature, for the purpose of attempting to unlock the DEVICE in order to search the contents as authorized by this warrant. In pressing or swiping a person's thumb or finger onto a device and in holding a device in front of a person's face, law enforcement may not use excessive force, as defined in Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386 (1989); specifically, law enforcement may use no more than objectively reasonable force in light of the facts and circumstances confronting them.

Further, law enforcement may compel the use of the biometric features described above if: (1) the procedure is carried out with dispatch and in the immediate vicinity of the premises to be searched, and if, at the time of compulsion, the government has (2) reasonable suspicion that the suspect has committed a criminal act that is the subject matter of the warrant; and (3) reasonable suspicion that the individual's biometric features will unlock the device, that is, for example, because there is a reasonable suspicion to believe that the individual is the user of the device. The proposed warrant does not authorize law enforcement to require that resident's state or otherwise provide the password or any other means that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICE. Moreover, the proposed warrant does not authorize law enforcement to ask residents to identify the specific biometric characteristics (including the unique finger(s) or other physical features) that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICE.

CONCLUSION

2. Based upon the information, your Affiant asserts there is probable cause to believe the cellphone belonging to COPELAND may constitute evidence of Article 107 (False Statements), Article 118 (Homicide), and Article 134 (Obstruction) of the UCMJ.

3. Your affiant respectfully requests a CASS be issued, authorizing NCIS Agents, forensic examiners tasked by NCIS, and other law enforcement entities and their forensic components to search and retain evidence asdescribed above.

ATTACHMENT A: PLACES TO BE SEARCHED

This Command Authorized Search and Seizure (CASS) applies to the information associated with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND and his cellular telephone identified as an iPhone 15 Pro Max, in NCIS' possession, the Apple watch and the additional cellular telephone (iPhone) which was located during the original CASS of COPELAND's barracks.

ATTACHMENT B: PARTICULAR ITEMS TO BE SEIZED

The following materials, which constitute evidence of the commission of a criminal offense, contraband, the fruits of crime, or property designed or intended for use or which is or has been used as the means of committing a criminal offense, namely violations of the Uniform Code of Military Justice Article 107 (False Statements), Article 118 (Homicide), and Article 134 (Obstruction).

1. Cellular Telephone or storage media used as a means to commit the violations described above, to include the TARGET DEVICES.
2. The telephone number, ESN number, serial number, SIM card number, or any other device identification number associated with and or contained in the devices.
3. Contextual information necessary to understand the evidence described in this CASS.
4. For any cellular telephone or storage medium whose seizure is otherwise authorized by this CASS, and any cellular telephone or storage medium that contains or in which are stored records or information that is otherwise called for by this warrant, to include the TARGET DEVICES:
5. Evidence of who used, owned, or controlled the TARGET DEVICES at the time the things described in this CASS were created, edited, or deleted, such as logs, registry entries, configuration files, saved user names and passwords, documents, browsing history, user profiles, email, email contacts, "chat," instant messaging logs, photographs, and correspondence;
6. Evidence indicating how and when the cellular telephone was accessed or used to determine the chronological context of cellular telephone access, use, and events relating to the crimes under investigation and to the cellular telephone user;

7. Evidence indicating the cellular telephone user's knowledge and/or intent as it relates to the crimes under investigation;
8. Evidence of live and deleted historical navigation data tracks, routes, and waypoints, GPS fixes, favorites, past journeys, trip logs, and user entered data, Latitude, Longitude, and Altitude coordinates, and related dates and times pertaining to Subject Offenses;
9. Evidence of live and deleted logs, records, documents, and other items that may constitute evidence, contraband, fruits, and/or instrumentalities of violations of crimes, pertaining to Subject Offenses;
10. Evidence of live and deleted contact lists, call logs, text messages and multimedia messages (SMS and MMS messages), e-mails, chats, video conference communication data, contact information, installed application information including their content and any other information which can be used to identify potentially associated persons pertaining to Subject Offenses;
11. Evidence of the attachment to the TARGET DEVICES of other storage devices or similar containers for electronic evidence;
12. Evidence of programs (and associated data) that are designed to eliminate data from the TARGET DEVICES;
13. Passwords, encryption keys, and other access devices that may be necessary to access the TARGET DEVICES;
14. Documentation and manuals that may be necessary to access the TARGET DEVICES or to conduct a forensic examination of the TARGET DEVICES;
15. Records of or information about Internet Protocol addresses used by the TARGET DEVICES;

16. Records of or information about the TARGET DEVICES's Internet activity, including firewall logs, caches, browser history and cookies, "bookmarked" or "favorite" web pages, search terms that the user entered into any Internet search engine, and records of user-typed web addresses; and

17. Contextual information necessary to understand the evidence described in this attachment.

18. The term "cellular telephone" includes all types of electronic, magnetic, optical, electrochemical, or other high speed data processing devices performing logical, arithmetic, or storage functions, including desktop cellular telephones, notebook cellular telephones, mobile phones, tablets, server cellular telephones, and network hardware.

19. This CASS does not authorize law enforcement personnel to compel any other individuals found at the SUBECT PREMISES to provide biometric features, as described in the preceding paragraph, to access or otherwise unlock any DEVICE. Further, this warrant does not authorize law enforcement personnel to require that resident's state or otherwise provide the password or any other means that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICES, including by identifying the specific biometric characteristics (including the unique fingers or other physical features) that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICES.

20. This CASS authorizes a review of electronic storage media and electronically stored information seized or copied pursuant to this CASS in order to locate evidence, fruits, and instrumentalities described in this warrant. The review of this electronic data may be conducted by any government personnel assisting in the investigation, who may include, in addition to law enforcement officers and agents, attorneys for the government, attorney support staff, and technical experts. Pursuant to this warrant, NCIS may deliver a complete copy of the seized or copied electronic data to the custody and control of attorneys for the government and their support staff for their independent review.

Search Authorization

COMMAND AUTHORIZATION FOR SEARCH AND SEIZURE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
VS.

CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

TO: Special Agent Jessica Gokey and other NCIS Agents

Affidavit(s) having been made before me by Special Agent Jessica Gokey

That there is reason to believe that on the person of and/or on the premises known as:
an Apple iPhone 15 Pro Max, in NCIS custody, an Apple watch, and additional cellphone (iPhone) located inside the barracks belonging to CSSN Jermiah COPELAND which is/are under my jurisdiction, there is now being concealed certain property, namely:

See attachment B

I am satisfied that there is probable cause to believe that the property so described is being concealed on the person and/or premises above described and that grounds for application for issuance of a command authorized search exist as stated in the supporting affidavit(s).

YOU ARE HEREBY AUTHORIZED TO SEARCH the person and/or place named for the property specified and if the property is found there to seize it, leaving a copy of this authorization and receipt for the property taken. You will provide a signed receipt to this command, containing a full description of every item seized.

Any assistance desired in conducting this search will be furnished by this command.

Dated this 10 day of June, 2025.

NAVAL CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE
PERMISSIVE AUTHORIZATION FOR SEARCH AND SEIZURE

Date : 04Jun25

I, CSSN Jermiah Copeland, after being advised by SA B.Duffy that the Naval Criminal Investigative Service is conducting an investigation into Articles 86 and 107, have been requested to permit a search of my backpack, barracks room, and electronic devices

I have been informed of my constitutional right to refuse to permit this search in the absence of a search warrant. In full understanding of this right, I have nevertheless decided to permit this search to be made.

This search may be conducted on 04Jun25 by NCIS, and I hereby give my permission to remove and retain any property or papers found during the search which are desired for investigative purposes.

I make this decision freely and voluntarily, and it is made with no threats having been made or promises extended to me.

RESULTS OF 18 USC 2703(D) COURT ORDER TO AT&T

1. On 04JUN25, LCDR Paul S. LAPLANTE, USN, Military Judge, signed a Court Order pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 2703(d) to AT&T for telephone number [redacted PII] for telephone records pertaining to CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95). Additionally, on 04JUN25, NCIS requested AT&T records pertaining to S/COPELAND under exigent circumstances.

2. On 04JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) served the Court Order to AT&T and received AT&T exigent reference number 4346012; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. On 04JUN25, AT&T provided the AT&T records pertaining to telephone number ([redacted PII]. A review of the AT&T subscriber information revealed the account belongs to S/COPELAND with an address of 300 A Avenue, Apt 1605, Fort Gregg Adams, VA 23801. The email provided is jermiahcopeland7@gmail.com. The account is currently active, and the service start date was listed as 23OCT23.

4. AT&T provided timing advances with device location, historical location information, mobility with cell location and wireline information. A review of the mobility records revealed S/COPELAND contacted CSSN [redacted V/A.R.] (V/[redacted V/A.R.] USN, DDG 95, on 01JUN25 a total of five (5) times between 1902 EST and 1904 EST hours. No other telephone calls between S/COPELAND and V/[redacted V/A.R.] were noted.

5. A copy of the results were placed on a CD-R and appended as Enclosure (B).

ORDER

The United States has submitted an application pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 2703(d), requesting that the Court issue an Order requiring AT&T Wireless, an electronic communications service provider and/or a remote computing service located in the United States, to disclose the records and other information described in Attachment A to this Order.

The Court finds that the United States has offered specific and articulable facts showing that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the records or other information sought are relevant and material to an ongoing criminal investigation.

The Court determines that there is reason to believe that notification of the existence of this Order will seriously jeopardize the ongoing investigation, including by giving targets an opportunity to flee or continue flight from prosecution, destroy or tamper with evidence, change patterns of behavior, or notify confederates. See 18 U.S.C. § 2705(b)(2), (3), (5).

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 2703(d), that AT&T Wireless shall, within ten days of the date of this Order, disclose to the United States the records and other information described in Attachment A to this Order.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that AT&T Wireless shall not disclose the existence of the application of the United States, or the existence of this Order of the Court, to the subscribers of the account(s) listed in Attachment A, or to any other person, for 180 days from the date of this Order, except that AT&T Wireless may disclose this Order to an attorney for AT&T Wireless for the purpose of receiving legal advice.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the application and this Order are sealed until otherwise ordered by the Court.

I. The Account(s)

The Order applies to certain records and information associated with the following email account:

[redacted] 4307 between 29MAY25 through 01JUN25

II. Records and Other Information to Be Disclosed

AT&T Wireless is required to disclose the following records and other information, if available, to the United States for each account or identifier listed in Part I of this Attachment ("Account"):

A. The following information about the customers or subscribers of the Account:

1. Names (including subscriber names, user names, and screen names);
2. Addresses (including mailing addresses, residential addresses, business addresses, and e-mail addresses);
3. Local and long-distance telephone connection records with location of cellular telephone at the time of the connection;
4. Location history and/or data pings for the cellular telephone;
5. Records of session times and durations, location of telephone during data sessions, and the temporarily assigned network addresses (such as Internet Protocol ("IP") addresses) associated with those sessions;
5. Length of service (including start date) and types of service utilized;
6. Telephone or instrument numbers (including MAC addresses);
7. Other subscriber numbers or identities (including temporarily assigned network addresses and registration Internet Protocol ("IP") addresses (including carrier grade natting addresses or ports)); and

B. All records and other information (not including the contents of communications) relating to the Account, including:

1. Records of user activity for each connection made to or from the Account, including log files; messaging logs; the date, time, length, and method of connections; data transfer volume; user names; and source and destination Internet Protocol addresses;

2. Information about each communication sent or received by the Account, including the date and time of the communication, the method of communication, and the source and destination of the communication (such as source and destination email addresses, IP addresses, and telephone numbers).

IN RE APPLICATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA FOR AN ORDER PURSUANT TO 18 U.S.C. § 2703(d)	) Case Identifier: 02JUN25-NFNF-00237-7MNA) Filed Under Seal

APPLICATION OF THE UNITED STATES

FOR AN ORDER PURSUANT TO 18 U.S.C. § 2703(d)

The United States of America, moving by and through its undersigned counsel, respectfully submits under seal this ex parte application for an Order pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 2703(d). The proposed Order would require AT&T Wireless, an Internet Service Provider located in the United States, to disclose certain records and other information pertaining to Telephone Number [redacted] annotated in Attachment A. The records and other information to be disclosed are described in Attachment A to the proposed Order. In support of this application, the United States asserts:

LEGAL BACKGROUND

1. AT&T Wireless is a provider of an electronic communications service, as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 2510(15), and/or a remote computing service, as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 2711(2). Accordingly, the United States may use a court order issued under § 2703(d) to require AT&T Wireless, to disclose the items described in Part II of Attachment A. See 18 U.S.C. § 2703(c)(2) and 10 U.S.C. 846(c)(3) (Part II.A of Attachment A); 18 U.S.C. § 2703(c)(1) (Part II.B of Attachment A).

2. This Court has jurisdiction to issue the proposed Order because it is "a court of competent jurisdiction," as defined in 18 U.S.C. § 2711. See 18 U.S.C. § 2703(d). Specifically, the Court is a court-martial or other proceeding under chapter 47 of title 10 (the Uniform Code of Military Justice), to which a military judge has been detailed. See 18 U.S.C. § 2711(3)(C).

3. A court order under § 2703(d) "shall issue only if the governmental entity offers specific and articulable facts showing that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the contents of a wire or electronic communication, or the records or other information sought, are relevant and material to an ongoing criminal investigation." 18 U.S.C. § 2703(d). Accordingly, the next section of this application sets forth specific and articulable facts showing that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the records and other information described in Part II of Attachment A are relevant and material to an ongoing criminal investigation.

THE RELEVANT FACTS

1. On May 28, 2025, CSSN V/A.R. was known to be in the barracks room located at X-2 room 335B Rack A located onboard Naval Station Norfolk, which is occupied by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND.

2. According to COPELAND, V/A.R. came to his barracks room to have dinner and have a couple drinks.

3. COPELAND stated V/A.R. called a "ex-boyfriend from Texas" and was confronting the person about returning personal items. COPELAND stated, V/A.R. became emotional and began to cry.

4. During an interview with PSSN Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, who is a roommate of COPELAND, at approximately 0645 on 29 May 2025, GORDILLOCRUZ stated he was leaving for work and saw his roommate, later clarified to be COPELAND and an unknown female on the floor naked.

5. GORDILLOCRUZ stated the female looked to have darker skin, and black curly hair. He could see V/A.R. breasts and could see COPELAND's head resting on V/A.R. stomach area. GORDILLOCRUZ stated he could not see if V/A.R. was wearing anything below COPELAND's head. GORDILLOCRUZ stated COPELAND was also naked but his back was facing upwards.

6. GORDILLOCRUZ stated he could tell V/A.R. was breathing by her chest moving up and down. GORDILLOCRUZ stated, he had never seen the female before and has not seen her since.

7. When interviewed by NCIS COPELAND stated, he was late for work on the morning of 29 May 2025 and FCC Brad PARKER knocked on his door to say COPELAND was going to be labeled as Unauthorized Absence (UA). FCC PARKER stated COPELAND and V/A.R. were in a state of undress and V/A.R. waved and rolled over into a blanket. FCC PARKER told COPELAND to report to work and left the barracks room.

8. COPELAND continued explaining, the two of them got dressed and a roommate took him and V/A.R. to V/A.R. residence located at Miller Hall onboard Naval Station Norfolk at approximately 1000.

9. COPELAND's movements after dropping V/A.R. off at Miller Hall. However, we know after speaking with Command, COPELAND was marked UA for the days of 29 May 2025, 30 May 2025, 31 May 2025 and on 01 June 2025, COPELAND was found by Base Police entering Naval Station Norfolk.

10. NCIS interview all remaining roommates of COPELAND who stated they did not give a ride to COPELAND and V/A.R. on the morning of 29 May 2025.

11. V/A.R. residence is located at Miller Hall, Unit 1083B. V/A.R. last entered her room, according to the door swipes, on 28 May 2025 at 1227 and at 2004 on 28 May 2025, into the common area only.

12. NCIS subpoenaed V/A.R. Navy Federal Credit Union banking records which show no activity since 28 May 2025.

13. V/A.R. cellphone has been pinged for last known location. The last known was approximately Latitude 36.896558 Longitude -76.435536, which appears to be located in Suffolk, VA

14. NCIS has been in contact with friends and family and as of today, there is no communication from V/A.R.

15. On June 3, 2025, NCIS interviewed COPELAND and he relayed his telephone number is PII 4307. Additionally, COPELAND's command advised COPELAND communicated with his command via telephone number [redacted]

16. Telephone number [redacted] is associated with New Cingular Wireless owned by AT&T Wireless.

REQUEST FOR ORDER

4. The facts set forth in the previous section show that there are reasonable grounds to believe that the records and other information described in Part II of Attachment A are relevant and material to an ongoing criminal investigation. Specifically, these items will help the United States to identify and locate the individual(s) who are responsible for the events described above, and to determine the nature and scope of their activities. Accordingly, the United States requests that AT&T Wireless be directed to produce all items described in Part II of Attachment A to the proposed Order.

5. The United States further requests that the Order require AT&T Wireless not to notify any person, including the subscribers or customers of the account(s) listed in Part I of Attachment A, of the existence of the Order for 180 days from the date of the Order. See 18 U.S.C. § 2705(b). This Court has authority under 18 U.S.C. § 2705(b) to issue "an order commanding a provider of electronic communications service or remote computing service to whom a warrant, subpoena, or court order is directed, for such period as the court deems appropriate, not to notify any other person of the existence of the warrant, subpoena, or court order." Id. In this case, such an order would be appropriate because the requested Order relates to an ongoing criminal investigation that is neither public nor known to all of the targets of the investigation, and its disclosure may alert the targets to the ongoing investigation. Accordingly, there is reason to believe that notification of the existence of the requested Order will seriously jeopardize the investigation, including by giving targets an opportunity to flee or continue flight from prosecution, destroy or tamper with evidence, change patterns of behavior, intimidate potential witnesses, or endanger the life or physical safety of an individual. See 18 U.S.C. § 2705(b)(2), (3), (5). Some of the evidence in this investigation is stored electronically. If alerted to the investigation, the subjects under investigation could destroy that evidence, including information saved to their personal computers.

6. The United States further requests that the Court order that this application and any resulting order be sealed until further order of the Court. As explained above, these documents discuss an ongoing criminal investigation that is neither public nor known to all of the targets of the investigation. Accordingly, there is good cause to seal these documents because their premature disclosure may seriously jeopardize that investigation.

Very Respectfully submitted,

RESULTS OF LICENSE PLATE READER NETWORK QUERIES

1. On 04Jun25, Investigative Analyst (IA) Mary OAKLEY coordinated with Newport News Police Department Criminal Intelligence Unit to conduct License Plate Reader (LPR) queries pertaining to the following vehicles of interest:

- Black 2015 Dodge Challenger 2 door- VA tags PII
- White 2014 Jeep 4 door- VA TEMP tags PII

Senior Law Enforcement Intelligence Analyst, Kristin MCMANUS, CIV, Newport News PD Intelligent Unit, produced LPR hit results on Wednesday, 28May25 between 0624-0758 HRS and Sunday, 01Jun25 between 1813-2121 HRS in the Norfolk and Suffolk areas only on VA tags PII. In relation to VA TEMP tags PII, hit results were 1937HRS on 27May25 at SB Granby Street and E Taussig Blvd, 1444 HRS on 01Jun25 at EB Admiral Taussig Blvd and Maryland Ave, and 0440 HRS on 02Jun25 at Hampton Blvd/W 25th Street.

2. On 07Jun25, additional queries were conducted in relation to a Blue 2004 Ford 2 door coupe with VA tags PII. Multiple hit results returned between Wednesday, 28May25 0613HRS and 05Jun25 2129 HRS. All hits were in the Norfolk and Portsmouth areas. At the request of Special Agent (SA) Jessica GOKEY, individual maps were created for each day by IA OAKLEY documenting the LPR hits to display time and direction of travel; Enclosure (A) pertains.

1. BACKGROUND: On 04Jun25, at approximately 1315 hours, Reporting Agent (RA) Alison FOX, NCISRA Yorktown, was notified by Supervisory Special Agent (SSA) Danielle ORTIZ, NCISRA Norfolk, suspected blood was observed in a stairwell of Willis Manor, Building X2, 9712 Virginia Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23511 located on board Naval Station Norfolk. NCIS conducted an area canvass of Building X2 as part of proactive investigative efforts to locate CSSN V/A.R. [redacted] (V/ V/A R USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95). NCIS visually inspected and focused on the hallway and stairwell closest in proximity to Room 335 located on the third floor, which was the known room of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, a person of interest at the time of the investigation. SSA ORTIZ requested RA FOX respond to the area to document the scene and collect the suspected blood.

2. ARRIVAL AND JURISDICTION: On 04Jun25, at 1330 hours, RA FOX, and Participating Agents (PA) Joy NAROWSKI, NCISRA Yorktown, Dara ELK, NCISRA Portsmouth, and Lauren WATKINS, NCISRA Portsmouth conducted an examination of the stairwell. Willis Manor, Building X2 is located on board Naval Station Norfolk and is located within concurrent jurisdiction with Norfolk Police Department (NPD); however, NCIS maintains primary investigative jurisdiction due to V/ V/A.R. and S/COPELAND both being active-duty Navy service members.

3. SCENE SECURITY AND SEARCH AUTHORIZATION: No scene security was present upon RA FOX's arrival. There is no reasonable expectation of privacy within the stairwell. Therefore, no search authorization was required.

4. EXTERIOR OBSERVATIONS: Willis Manor, Building X2, is a military barracks located on board Naval Station Norfolk. Willis Manor, Building X2, is a five-story building with a parking lot located in front and to the side. The building is located between Maryland Ave and Virginia Ave. Figure [1] is a Google Maps image of Willis Manor, Building X2, depicting its relationship and orientation to the surrounding buildings. The black arrow was added to the image to depict the exit location of stairwell examined.

7. SCENE PROCESSING: PA WATKINS completed photographic coverage of the area using a Nikon D7200 camera. A total of (73) digital images were captured, all of which were burned to a DVD-R and entered into the NCISRA Norfolk Consolidated Evidence Facility under Log EDAC7, Item RRDQ6. A copy of the DVD-R is appended as Enclosure (A). Forensic Consultant (FC) Morgan CURRIE completed 3D laser scans of the stairwell at a later date, the results of which will be reported under separate cover. RA FOX collected samples of the reddish brown stains. No presumptive testing was conducted during collection.

8. EVIDENCE SEIZURE: The following items were seized as evidence and entered into the NCISRA Norfolk Consolidated Evidence Facility under Log Number TKNM8:

Item GTRC2 - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, level 3, placard (A)

Item 3F1W2 - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (B)

Item 1L7PW - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (C)

Item JHXR7 - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (D)

Item D6QNN - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (E)

Item MXQ1N - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (F)

Item 5CA0T - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (G)

Item 1K3RH - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 1 and 2, placard (H)

Item 2KXCX - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, near door, level 2, placard (I)

Item 134B8 - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5 near door, level 2, placard (J)

Item 27UCQ - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5 near door, level 2, placard (K)

Item MEFC2 - One swabs of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, level 1, placard (L)

Item DRD3B - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, level 3, placard (A)

Item GCL7Y - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (D)

Item 9K1GU - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (E)

Item HNRF1 - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, between levels 1 and 2, placard (H)

Item NPRY1 - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, level 1, placard (L)

9. SCENE RELEASE: The scene examination concluded at approximately 1525 hours.

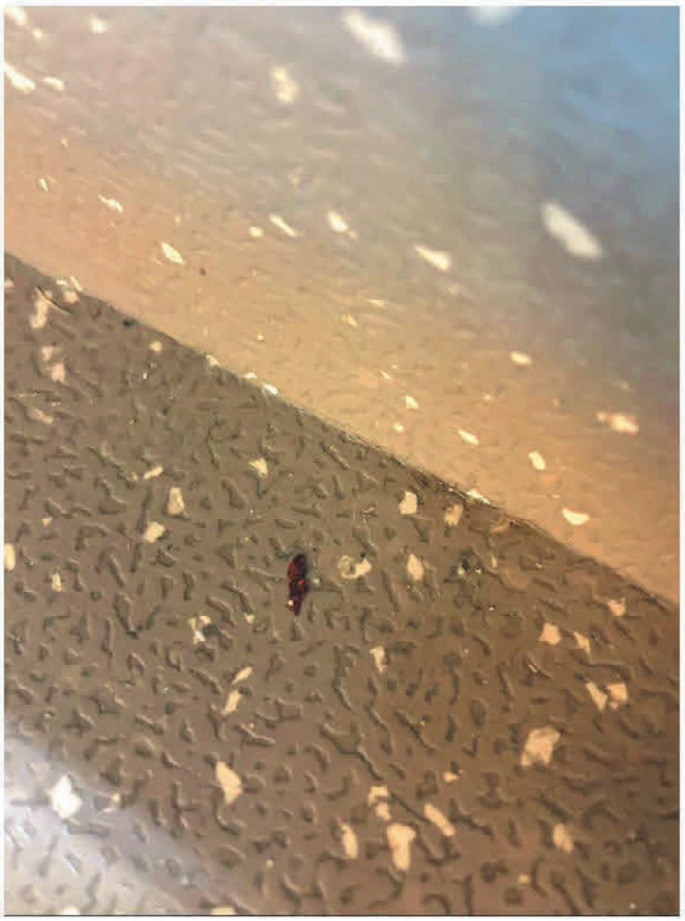
RESULTS OF AREA CANVASS OF BUILDING X2

1. On 04Jun25, Reporting Investigator (RI) conducted an area canvass of Willis Manor, Building X2, Naval Station Norfolk, as part of proactive investigative efforts to locate CSSN [redacted V/A.R.] (V/[redacted V/A.R.] USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95). RI and PI MORLANG visually inspected and focused on the hallway and stairwell closest in proximity to Room 335 located on the third floor, which was the known room of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).



2. RI and PI MORLANG determined Stairwell 5 in Corridor 3006 to be the closest stairwell to Room 335. RI and PI MORLANG observed, upon entry into the stairwell, on the cinderblock wall were stains which were reddish brown in color. RI and PI MORLANG observed, on various stairs going down towards the ground level, between the third and first floors in Stairwell 5, were additional droplets which were also reddish brown in color.

3. PI MORLANG contacted PI Brad CANNING to advise him of the visual findings located in Stairwell 5. PI CANNING advised the Major Case Response Team (MCRT) would be responding to process the location. The results of the MCRT documentation of Stairwell 5 will be provided under separate cover.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF ET3 DANIEL RICH, USN

1. On 07JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Devin RUIC conducted an interview of ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95), regarding the captioned investigation involving CSSN [redacted V/A.R.] (V/[redacted V/A.R.] USN, DDG-95, and CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG-95.

2. RA recorded the interview of ET3 RICH using an audio/visual recording system, and RA downloaded a digital copy onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. ET3 RICH stated he first met V/[redacted V/A.R.] circa SEP24 when he went "cranking" to assist the Culinary Specialists aboard DDG-95. The term "cranking" was used to describe a temporary duty unrelated to ET3 RICH's traditionally rated duties.

4. ET3 RICH stated V/[redacted V/A.R.] would have days where she had "little panic attacks" and would want to go for a drive to Virginia Beach or to the Norfolk Botanical Gardens. ET3 RICH recalled V/[redacted V/A.R.] would sometimes start having "panic attacks" when they would consume alcohol. V/[redacted V/A.R.] would talk about her father, who was in prison, and would become concerned for her own safety when discussing his future release from prison. ET3 RICH believed V/[redacted V/A.R.] father was in prison because V/[redacted V/A.R.] "reported him," and believed her father had forced her to take drugs and "forced himself" on her. ET3 RICH indicated V/[redacted V/A.R.] claimed her father intended to "find her" upon his release from prison.

5. ET3 RICH stated there are certain "cues" with V/[redacted V/A.R.] that resulted with "panic attacks" in the past. ET3 RICH clarified V/[redacted V/A.R.] often displayed these cues during the "build-up to sex." ET3 RICH stated if V/[redacted V/A.R.] was not "feeling it" and sexual contact continued, V/[redacted V/A.R.] would have a "meltdown." ET3 RICH stated he had an experience with V/[redacted V/A.R.] where she "pushed away" and locked herself in the bathroom. ET3 RICH explained that during this incident, both he and V/[redacted V/A.R.] had still been clothed, but had begun to engage in an intimate act. ET3 RICH recalled having to "talk her down" through a bathroom door in hopes of calming her down. ET3 RICH relayed another incident when they were talking about V/[redacted V/A.R.] father, wherein she ran out of his room, and he looked for her for 30 minutes until she came back.

6. ET3 RICH relayed V/ V/A.R. was in a relationship with HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG-95, until DEC24. ET3 RICH stated a lot of V/ V/A.R. belongings were in HT3 GILLESPIE's room while they were dating. After V/ V/A.R. and HT3 GILLESPIE broke up, ET3 RICH helped V/ V/A.R. move her stuff out of HT3 GILLESPIE's room. ET3 RICH relayed he started dating V/ V/A.R. circa DEC24 and believed they broke up circa MAY25. ET3 RICH stated while he was in a relationship with V/ V/A.R. they would primarily sleep in his room. ET3 RICH stated he and V/ V/A.R. broke up because she was "going through some stuff" and wanted to "work on herself."

7. ET3 RICH relayed on 29MAY25, he received a call from V/ V/A.R. at 0214 hours local time and she was "freaking out" and requested a "pick-up ASAP." ET3 RICH remembered V/ V/A.R. was crying and having a "meltdown." ET3 RICH recalled hearing "car noises" and believed V/ V/A.R. may have been outside. V/ V/A.R. passed the phone to another individual who ET3 RICH later "found out" was S/COPELAND. ET3 RICH relayed the person V/ V/A.R. passed the phone to asked how long it would take for ET3 RICH to arrive, to which ET3 RICH responded he was about ten to fifteen minutes away. ET3 RICH relayed he went through the gate to Norfolk Naval Station at 0228 hours and attempted to call V/ V/A.R. multiple times, but she did not pick up. ET3 RICH checked V/ V/A.R. location and saw that it was outside of the "X2 building" near the rounded driveway drop off area located in front of the building. As a note, the X2 building is also identifiable as Willis Manor, a barracks located onboard Norfolk Naval Station at 9712 Virginia Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23511. ET3 RICH stated V/ V/A.R. was not there, and her phone was not there, and he started "freaking out a little bit." ET3 RICH showed pictures of V/ V/A.R. to people working at the front desk of X2, not further identified by ET3 RICH, but they were unsure if they recognized seeing her. ET3 RICH checked the front area of X2 to see if he could see her phone in the grass and did not find it. ET3 RICH went back inside X2; the individuals working the front desk suggested he call his command and the local precinct on base to report his concerns.

8. ET3 RICH attempted to call the base police office, but did not receive a response. ET3 RICH drove to base police and notified them of the situation. ET3 RICH estimated he called HT3 GILLESPIE around 0300 hours while he was with base police and HT3 GILLESPIE joined him at X2 around 0430 hours to help look for V/ V/A.R. ET3 RICH added HT3 GILLESPIE called him earlier on 29MAY25 at 0120 and 0143 hours, but he was asleep and missed the calls. ET3 RICH did not know why HT3 GILLESPIE called him that morning, but presumed it had to do with HT3 GILLESPIE's own concern for V/ V/A.R. ET3 RICH stated HT3 GILLESPIE was coming off duty from the ship that morning. ET3 RICH remembered he had to end the call with HT3 GILLESPIE because his Command Duty Officer (CDO) was calling him back.

9. ET3 RICH believed V/ V/A.R. phone died around 0430 hours on 29MAY25 due to her phone's location no longer saying "Live" and instead showing "Last Location" in his iPhone's "Find My" application.

10. Around 0500 hours, HT3 GILLESPIE stayed at X2 to continue looking for V/ V/A.R. and ET3 RICH drove to V/ V/A.R. barracks at Miller Hall, accompanied by two Masters-at-Arms (MAs) and waited for the Resident Advisors (RA) to arrive and unlock her door. ET3 RICH relayed the MAs accessed V/ V/A.R. room around 0630 hours, but V/ V/A.R. was not there. ET3 RICH stated the MAs did not permit him to go into her room but he peeked his head in and noticed the room looked like a photo or video of a "Fit Check" V/ V/A.R. sent to her friend CSSN Gladys GARCIABARRERA, USN, DDG-95 on 28MAY25. ET3 RICH noticed the only thing that appeared missing was her backpack. ET3 RICH remembered HT3 GILLESPIE met him at Miller Hall to assist in searching. ET3 RICH remembered going back to X2 with HT3 GILLESPIE after searching Miller Hall. ET3 RICH estimated he concluded his search and left base to go to work around 0730 hours.

11. ET3 RICH stated HT3 GILLESPIE called him between 0800 and 0900 hours on 29MAY25 and told ET3 RICH he had checked S/COPELAND's room and did not see V/ V/A.R. and S/COPELAND in the room. ET3 RICH recalled hearing from HT3 GILLESPIE that "the bed was made" and nothing looked "messed up." ET3 RICH believed it was possible HT3 GILLESPIE found out V/ V/A.R. was with S/COPELAND from CSSN GARCIABARRERA.

12. ET3 RICH recalled there was an "All Hands Call" around 1000 hours on 29MAY25 and remembered a Chief pulled him aside and told him V/ V/A.R. was found with S/COPELAND in S/COPELAND's room and that he could "relax." ET3 RICH learned FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG-95, was the person who found S/COPELAND and V/ V/A.R. and messaged him via "GroupMe." FCC PARKER told him V/ V/A.R. was ok and safe" and affirmed he had seen V/ V/A.R. that day.

13. ET3 RICH stated he recently attempted to find V/ V/A.R. location on the morning of 07JUN25 as well as when he was at Naval Medical Center Portsmouth (NMCP) on 06JUN25. ET3 RICH stated ETC Donald ACKLEY, USN, DDG-95 escorted him to NMCP for a Command Referral to Behavioral Health. ET3 RICH relayed he attempted to sign into V/ V/A.R. Navy Federal Credit Union (NFCU) account and her email account a few times on 03JUN25 or 04JUN25 on his laptop and desktop while at his barracks; ET3 RICH explained he had attempted to login to V/ V/A.R. accounts using saved passwords, as V/ V/A.R. previously borrowed and used the laptop. ET3 RICH further explained he had attempted the logins on both the barracks-wide Wi-Fi network, and on his own Wi-Fi network later in his room.

14. ET3 RICH signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure for the collection of his DNA via buccal swabs; Enclosure (B) pertains. ET3 RICH signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure of his MSI brand

15. Subsequent to the completion of this interview, PA accompanied ET3 RICH to his barracks room to facilitate the execution of the signed PASS. During that search, NCIS personnel identified instructional paperwork associated with pregnancy tests in his room. ET3 RICH explained that in approximately MAR25, exact date not recalled, he and V/ V/A.R. had engaged in unprotected sex after consuming alcohol and afterward ET3 RICH could not recall whether he "pulled out" to avoid ejaculating in V/ V/A.R. ET3 RICH and V/ V/A.R. acquired multiple pregnancy tests from a local CVS, located in the vicinity of the Old Dominion University Campus, and waited approximately two weeks before conducting the tests. ET3 RICH reported that the test results were negative, indicating V/ V/A.R. had not become pregnant from the incident.

RESULTS OF AREA CANVASSING IN SUFFOLK, VA

1. On 05Jun25, NCIS, Suffolk Police Department, and Suffolk Fire and Rescue conducted a canvassing search of the area surrounding College Dr., in Suffolk, VA. Based on the last known location ping of the cell phone belonging to CSSN [redacted V/A.R.] (V/[redacted V/A.R.] USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95), and in coordination with NCIS Intelligence Analyst Wynter EDWARDS, the area surrounding College Dr. was determined to be an area of interest in searching for V/[redacted V/A.R.] and her cell phone.

2. The search was conducted utilizing drones, specialized canines, all-terrain vehicles (ATVs), and search teams on foot. Suffolk Police Department and Suffolk Fire and Rescue stated they will provide NCIS with the documentation of the search. The receipt and review of the documentation will be documented under separate cover.

3. Maps indicating the areas searched are appended as Enclosure (A). A list of NCIS, Suffolk Police Department, and Suffolk Fire and Rescue personnel present during the search is appended as Enclosure (B).

4. No items were found, and no additional leads were developed from this search.

RESULTS OF RAPID DNA ANALYSIS

1. On 05JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA), Forensic Consultant (FC) Morgan CURRIE, and Supervisory Special Agent (SSA) Danielle ORTIZ attended a preliminary rapid DNA test, operated by Special Agent Seymour LOPEZ, Virginia State Police (VSP).

2. Four (4) samples of DNA were provided for comparison to the ANDE Rapid DNA system, specifically:

Sample 1: A buccal swab provided by Esmeralda CASTLE, CIV (EMP Item 3N718).

Sample 2: A swab of suspected blood from X2 barracks stairwell 5, between levels 1 and 2 (EMP Item HNRF1).

Sample 4: A swab of suspected blood from X2 barracks stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3 (EMP Item GCL7Y).

3. The ANDE Rapid DNA system yielded the following results:

Sample 1, the anchor for all other samples to be compared to with familial DNA, was processed as "low" DNA detection which is unsuitable for comparison.

Samples 2 and 3 were determined to be a "mixture," meaning that at least two (2) human DNA profiles were detected (Note: The ANDE Rapid DNA system cannot parse and compare mixtures).

Sample 4 displayed an error code and no human DNA was detected.

4. In summary, the analysis was inconclusive because CASTLE's buccal swab did not contain sufficient DNA to compare other samples to and also because Samples 2 and 3 were mixtures which would not be able to be parsed and compared to Sample 1, even if it were to have sufficient DNA from CASTLE.

NCIS INTERVIEW ICO CSSN JEREMIAH COPELAND

SA GEREL: Today's date is 6 June 2025, at the NCIS Norfolk U-40 office. Approximate time is 0842. Polygraph and interview to be administered by Tyler Mann and David Gerel under session approval number 2025-2121 in regards to the missing person and or possible death of V/A.R. This interview is of Jeremiah Copeland, United States Navy, E-3.

[SA Mann, SA Gerel, and CSSN Copeland entered the room at timestamp 0:04:19.]

SA GEREL: All right, good morning. So, my name's David. I'm a part of the investigative team. I'm a special agent here at NCIS.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: This is my partner, Tyler Mann.

SA MANN: How are you?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm doing all right.

SA GEREL: We--we're part of the team, but also polygraph examiners.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: So, I'm going to check with you about the things that involving V/A.R. and her whereabouts and things like that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: So, we have been told that you had--had previously talked to and had been interested in taking a polygraph to confirm some of the stuff they asked you about.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, that's part of what we're here to do today. The--the main focus for the team, which includes us and--and I believe you as well, is to make sure that we can figure out where she's at and she's okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: All right. Do you have any questions about any of that so far?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. Very good. So, what they're doing, they've been working real hard, and--and they're trying to kind of take pieces of thoughts as to who might know as much as possible, and then, once they're done with it, put aside so they can focus on other stuff. So, you know, they talked to you--you still seem to be the last person that they can confirm actually had laid eyes on her.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: So, as you might imagine, you're pretty interesting to them as far as what, you know,

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: So, we want to go ahead and--and take some of those big questions off the table with the polygraph so that they can move from you and then handle some other stuff.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: How's that sound to you?

CSSN COPELAND: Do I have to take the polygraph?

SA GEREL: No, no, no, no. So, a couple things on that. And--and it's good for you to know this, and and--and involving yourself with--with NCIS for law enforcement, you never have to do anything. You're--you're--you're a grown man. You make decisions about your involvement. You definitely don't have to do this.

In fact, we need you to want to do this if you--if you want to be successful. It does not help us to offer you a test that you don't want to do or you feel uncomfortable with. So----

CSSN COPELAND: I want to--because I have stuff that I--I have to do today.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah. I gotcha. I would ask a favor for you, though.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Like, I--I'd like you to hear a bit about it before you make your full decision.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: And--and then, after you hear about it, kind of what we're interested in, what we're doing, then you can make a good decision about it. And--and, I can assure you that we can do pretty big things in terms of helping you with your day. So, if there's something in your day that you're concerned about, I'm pretty sure we can help you adjust that.

But I--I don't really know for sure. So, I'd want--want to hear what your--what your concern would be. So, does that make sense? So, I--I--you--you have the request that will you listen to us explain, kind of more about what the polygraph is and what we can do for you with it, before you make that decision.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: Is that cool? Okay. Cool. So, okay, good. So, call me David. This is Tyler. Feel free to be first name with us. All right. What do you like me to call you?

CSSN COPELAND: You can just call me Cope or Jay.

SA GEREL: Cope or Jay,. Okay. Got it. All right. Which do you prefer?

CSSN COPELAND: Jay.

SA GEREL: Jay. Okay. All right, Jay. All right. So, the decision to take the polygraph is--is, you know, it's a big one. So, it's not something people, like, just say, "Yeah, I can't wait to take a polygraph." It's something that sometimes people will,

you know, think about and--and even go into a little apprehensiveness.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: It's very normal. It's also very normal for--for a case like this to--to--for it to be used multiple times.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And--and that's because, like, we're--we're getting information, we're confirming information, and then, keep moving on because our goal is to--to find her safely.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, if they're spending time thinking about you and they don't need to be, let's let them help them not by thinking about something else.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: This is the concept. So, how a polygraph goes is we would go through a few forms. After we do the forms, we would, all the--the way through answering questions you have, we tell you what--what we know about the case, we share with you what you know about the case, make sure we're all on the same page with that.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: And maybe we'll often find more details that we can push back to the main investigative team, and can help, and say that was very helpful. And then, after that, we talk about the questions that we were considering asking you on polygraph.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: You would know what those questions are. You have a chance to talk about them, explain them, be comfortable with them. Once you're good and solidly comfortable with those questions, we explain how the test goes. We--we'd run the test and then, we would--we'd tell you how you did. And we'd tell the--the agents and the command how you did.

So, it gives people really quick information. And--and then, you know, if we--we'll talk all the--the way through. So, that's kind of the process.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: There's some significant talking upfront. I'd say probably at least an hour, sometimes a little bit more than that. That test itself is pretty quick. I mean, I say 15 minutes. After that, we talk through the results and see if there is any questions you have all the way through. We can--we treat you like you're a guest in our house, so if you need stuff like food, water, bathroom breaks, anything that would make you more comfortable, we'll do our best to accommodate that.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: We want you to be as comfortable as you can through the process. You're in full control of the whole thing, all the way through.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Does that make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: I gotcha.

SA GEREL: Is that something, hearing that, that you could be more interested in?

CSSN COPELAND: Not really. Like, I mean, I haven't even had, like, a normal time to even sleep.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, every day they came and raided my room. You know, I got the chain of command talking about I got to come in. I got fucking Captain's Mast today.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, there's a whole bunch of stuff. And it's, like, my mental health, honestly, like, my mental health----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----going downhill.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Because it's just so much, like, you know, I'm trying to pretty much, like, you know, comprehend what's happening.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: It's just every day it's something new. Something new. Something new.

SA GEREL: Okay. Well, your--your mental health is very important to us. So--so tell me--tell me more about that.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, it's just something new every day.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

SA GEREL: You know, it's not, even with this situation going on, I got family stuff going on. I got stuff in my life going on.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And it's--everything's just piling up. I'm getting--like, it's, like I'm getting stuck in a hole right now.

SA GEREL: I gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: So----

SA GEREL: All right. So, I hear you and--and what I'd like to do is the--the two forms that we typically do up front, where we will do the usual rights advisement, that you would get when anytime you talk to NCIS.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: I'm tempted--I'd like to--to offer you that, just to kind of make sure you kind of see the whole platform.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And--and then, that way we can talk, even a little bit more in-depth about how you're feeling and what we might be able to do to help you feel a little bit better about that. But I don't want to do too much with that until we--we cover that first form because, your--your understanding of what--who we are and what we do is very important to me.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: And it should be important to you.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: So, with your permission, I'd like to go through that form with you, the first one. Just the rights advisement.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: And so, it's the--and you--you've been through it before. It's basically where we read you your rights. Like you have the right to remain silent and stuff.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: I'd like to go through it with you. There's one that's a little--one piece of it's a little different on this form than what was talked about last time, and I want to have a chance to explain that to you. But, again, I--I--if you're telling me you don't want to do this, like, I'm not going to make you even do this part.

CSSN COPELAND: Because it's just like I haven't even had, like, a normal day where I can just try and rest.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: This whole week, the past week, it's just been hell for me.
SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: Like, let's say I do it, then it's going to be more.
SA GEREL: Maybe.
CSSN COPELAND: Sign more papers. I got to come in and keep doing more stuff.
SA GEREL: Yeah. Maybe.
CSSN COPELAND: Like, it's just too much stuff going on from there.
SA GEREL: So--so maybe, maybe not. And that's what I wanted to spend a little more time talking to you about, because some of the stress and pressure that you're feeling might get dramatically decreased once this is over. Okay? But again, I--I feel--I don't feel perfectly comfortable getting into those details without at least making sure you understand your rights.
CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]
SA GEREL: But I would love to share with you how I think that might help you, if you're cool with that.
CSSN COPELAND: That's fine.
SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. So, before I do, Tyler, you--you got anything you--you want to say?
SA MANN: I mean, so can I--Jay, if you don't mind. Just with this, I know you're, like, my world is just spiraled. Right? And I get

it. This is a whirlwind. But the only advocate portion I'm going to sort of pitch you is this. What this will theoretically do if it--if--if you're forthcoming with us and we get to talk about all these topics here momentarily and put that all behind you, that on paper is going to make a lot of this stop.

So, you're still going to have some command things to maybe deal with. Family stuff is family stuff. I feel you. We all got to deal with that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: But at least it'll get this--this piece. Like, the NCIS piece will more than likely go--minimize. I'm not going to make a promise that that's going to happen, but----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----if this goes well and they say, "Hey, like we don't have to worry about him anymore. He's not on our, you know, interesting list of people anymore, not the most interesting man in the world." Like, we can sort of put you on the back burner. That invasiveness will likely decrease a significant amount.

So, I know you're, like, I just want all this shit behind me, and I get it, dude. I would want the same, like, if I'm sitting in here seat, I'm, like, Jesus, just give me, like, a day to be myself. Like, I'm 20 years old. What in the world am I getting into? Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: So, that's why we're trying to do it is just to give you--you a little, hey, this--this can be an exit ramp for some of that baggage to go a separate way. And then, you can focus more on your family. You can focus more on you. Other things that are important.

And, you know, we can--whatever those are. If you're happy to share them, I'm happy to hear them. But, you know, I think that those are the things you should focus on, you know, family, obviously, first over everything. So, hopefully, we can take this off your plate by getting the polygraph out of the way. That's just my kind of piece from hearing what you're saying. And then, does that resonate? Am I on the right track with you?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Are we on the same page?

CSSN COPELAND: Gotcha. I appreciate you.

SA MANN: But yeah, I'll--I'll go back to that. That's kind of just the step we've got----

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

SA MANN: ----to go through.

SA GEREL: Cool. Are you--you comfortable just doing the first step and then talking a little bit more? We're not going to make you make a decision one way or the other.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I mean, what do you--what's the form?

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah.

So, it's the Military Rights Waiver form and you've--you've seen this one before, so the form itself isn't that different. The thing I wanted to make sure that I shared with you to get the chance I can explain it is--is this part right here.

Okay. So, this is the rights waiver form. We do this before every polygraph, also before we talk to people. That's me and my partner. This is where we're at. So--so we want to talk to you today about, again, I'll explain all this, but making a false official statement and knowledge of the possible death of CCSN V/A.R.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Okay. So, this--a couple things here. So, we don't really care about the things you've said so far. I--I know that we're telling you you're suspected of making some things--some statements that might not be accurate. I want to make sure you know, all the--the way from the beginning of the end, that is not our focus.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: You're suspected of it because, and that means we've got to let you know----

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: ----that we're going to talk about it. But nobody's been that worried about that. We--we--we are focusing on V/A.R. .

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: All right. So, Angie. So--so we don't know if she's dead or not.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Right. But do--do you agree that that's everybody's fear?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, yeah.

SA GEREL: Yeah. So, everybody's worried that she's been gone too long. She's usually pretty responsive. So, that's--that's what we're worried about. So, what we'd like to do is, although you're not specifically suspected of causing harm to her----

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: ----we'd like to make sure you didn't. So they're making it seem. Like, okay, Copeland, maybe he--he is not perfect, but he didn't do that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: That make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, that's the stuff we're going to talk about, and hopefully that polygraph help us figure out.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: All right. Does that make sense now?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: I just didn't want to drop this in your lap, and you're, like, what's that mean? I wanted to make sure I explained that. The rest of the form is exactly the same as the ones you've seen before. So, with knowing the topic that we're going to be focusing in on, here's some things to keep in mind.

You have the right to remain silent and make no statement at all. Any statement that you make can be used against you in--in--in trial or by court-martial or any other judicial administrative proceeding.

You have the right to consult with a lawyer prior to any questioning. This lawyer may be a civilian lawyer retained by you at no cost to the United States, a military lawyer appointed to act as your counsel at no cost to you, or both. So, you can have a lawyer, and in multiple capacities.

You have the right to have any retained lawyer and or appointed lawyer present during the interview. And you may terminate the interview at any time for any reason.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.
SA GEREL: These are all important. I like that. Really emphasize that last one because you are in full control of the conversation. You know, you can talk to us. You don't have to talk to us.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: As long as you're professional and--and polite to us, we'll be the same to you.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: All the way through. Any questions about any of this so far?
CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
SA GEREL: Are you cool to talk with us a little bit more?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, I'm going to read this part out loud.
CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]
SA GEREL: And--and just so you--you've heard it and--and make sure you agree with it. But what we'd like to make sure that you're cool with and understand is that you understand, or I'm going to read it out loud to you.

I understand my rights as related to me and as set forth above. With that understanding, I have described--I'm sorry, I have decided that I do not desire to remain silent, consult with a retained or appointed lawyer, or have a lawyer present at this time. I make this decision freely and voluntarily. No threats or promises have been made to me.

Does that make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Do you agree with that?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, if you--if you agree with it and want to talk to us, again, you're not deciding on the poly quite yet.
CSSN COPELAND: No.
SA GEREL: You--you just want to get to us, you--you could initial for me beside each of these numbers. Sign that paragraph and then, sign for me there, please.
CSSN COPELAND: So, for each question, is it before and after or just----
SA GEREL: Just beside the number is fine. Yeah. Sorry, these things [inaudible 0:17:55]. There you go.
And then, just beside that paragraph as well.
CSSN COPELAND: This one?
SA GEREL: Yes, please. And then a full signature, there. But you--do you understand this and want to talk to us? Is that right?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay. Thank you. All right, so the next thing we'll cover in a little bit more detail is the polygraph itself. The--the next form that we--that we may use is--is where we talk to you about what the polygraph is, and you say, "Okay. I'll start the process." So, that's where you can list, know definitively one or the other, but I'm not even going to get to that form quite yet.

So, let's--do--do--what questions do you have for us that will help you understand kind of why we're here and--and what we want to do today?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I don't have really no questions.

SA GEREL: Okay. All right, so--so let me just make sure you kind of see it from their perspective and--and our--and our perspective. You--you--you--I think you've already acknowledged this, but, so the big fear is that Angie may be--may be dead.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Okay. Did you do that?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. I know they already asked you that, and you said no.

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Do you--do you know where she's at?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Did you help anybody to abduct her or kill her or anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: That's the focus today.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: All right. What we'd like to do is take that off the table so they are not thinking Copeland could have had anything to do with that. Make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: And--and--and, if we're able to talk to you about that and you get confident--you're already confident. Whether you can even stay confident to the point where you take that test and show a--a positive result, then we're going to be able to take that back to the agents and to the Commander. Like, "Okay, good. Now let's find other ways to find, Angie." Make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Does that make you feel any different about doing this?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir. I mean, at the end of the day, like, this is just a lot of stuff for me to handle right now. At the end of the day, there's always something. On top of that, they still want me to come to work. They still want me to do this. They still want me to do that.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, it is just a lot. They keep coming to my room every day.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, it's just, like, I--I don't have a break.

SA GEREL: What are they--what's the mast for today? The Captain's Mast?
CSSN COPELAND: Going UA.
SA GEREL: Okay. Well, who do you think about that?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, at the end of the day, like--like he said, I'm a grown man and so, I'm going to take full accountability. At the end of day, it was me being irresponsible, not getting work when I'm supposed to. So, at the end of the day, I'm going to just take the consequence.
SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. Does it bother--does it scare you?
CSSN COPELAND: No, I mean, it's mast. I mean, at the end of the day.
SA GEREL: Okay. Does--have you been through that before?
CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay. And do you know, people have been?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: What usually happens on something like that?
CSSN COPELAND: They put you on a restriction. I mean, in my offense, I can already see they're probably going to take a reduction--reduction rate, half a month's pay, and probably put me on restriction. For how long? I don't know.
SA GEREL: Okay. And--and how--how does that make you feel to know that might be coming?

CSSN COPELAND: Not really much. I mean, I just got to go with the flow at the end of the day. Like I said, I take full accountability for my actions.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Not making it to work when I'm supposed to be, so---

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah. The military's different that way, right? Because I mean, in civilian, like, I don't show up, nobody, like, is going to punish me for it typically.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, they might, you know, talk to you about it or something. But in the military, like you said, it is different, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah. A little different. I--I--I--I like how you're kind of keeping that frame in your mind. I don't want to speak for you, but it feels like you kind of get the gravity of what that is. I mean, you should have been to work. You weren't. They're going to do something about it. Sounds like something you can take that lump and move right on.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: We kind of think that too. But I wanted to see how bad that was affecting your--your mental health because, we--we could ask for that to get pushed back. We--then I think it probably would. I can't speak for your command, but they might do that.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure. I mean, the CO, he's trying to push it to where I get it done today

SA GEREL: And then, maybe you want that. I don't know. You want it done sooner or later?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, sooner. I mean, because obviously I don't want to stay on the barge. Like, I fucking hate the barge.

SA GEREL: It sounds like it would be a not a fun place.

SA MANN: I don't think you're alone in that. I've talked to many people at the barge.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I don't know who lied and said the barge was, like, smooth, but being in the shipyard in general.

SA GEREL: Yeah. One of the things that we would do would be to press on is just get to know you a little bit. I know some things about you, but I don't know as much as I want to to give you a polygraph. So, we--we get to know more about you, to include things like that. Like what--what ships you've been on and what you've--what you've been experiencing. I mean, you're young, so I--I would imagine probably not that much in the Navy quite yet.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, a little bit. I mean, I was on a carrier before I was on a DDG, so.

SA GEREL: What--what carrier were you on?

CSSN COPELAND: The Truman.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. All right.

SA MANN: You guys had a hell of a deployment, huh?
SA GEREL: Did you just get back from the deployment?
CSSN COPELAND: No, I did half the deployment. I flew off during February. Like, the middle of February.
SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.] Okay. Tyler, you got any--any things you want to cover?
SA MANN: I mean, what can we do to help you today? Like what moves, what--what gives us some power to help you out? Because I don't know that we have it, but I'll sure as hell try.
CSSN COPELAND: Nothing really. I mean, at the end of the day, you guys are doing your job, so----
SA MANN: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: That's--then that's just nothing. It's nothing really to it. At the end of the day, I can't ask you guys to do something. Like, you guys are just trying to do your job, get down to the bottom of whatever you guys need to. At the end of the day. I'm just trying to live.
SA MANN: No. Yeah. Absolutely. But that's what I mean, like, if there's somewhere we can meet in the middle and you've got an existential issue right now that you're, like, "Hey, like, here's the biggest thing going on in my world. I need this handled." Maybe we can help out with that, and it'll help you feel a little more comfortable with what we'd like to do with you today.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, it's just everything that I got because I already know, like, with mast coming up, I also got a court date coming up.

SA MANN: So, what's that for?

CSSN COPELAND: Speeding.

SA MANN: Okay. Do you know when?

CSSN COPELAND: That's the 21st of July, so----

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: ----by the time I get off restriction, I'm going to have to prepare for that. On top of that, I've been trying to get--reach out to my lawyer. Don't got a phone. They took it, so----

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.] About that court? The speeding thing?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I got to talk to--the judge granted me a public defender. Can't even reach out to my public defender because I--I don't have a phone, so.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: At this point, it's just, like, I'm--I'm fried.

SA GEREL: Yeah. That's a lot going on. We definitely get that. How much sleep would you--you think you got last night?

CSSN COPELAND: None. I had to prep doing my uniform for mast today, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. Like, your--your dress uniform?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And then, how has that been over the last few days? How much sleep you getting?

CSSN COPELAND: None. Like, maybe an hour. I mean, the last time they came and got me, they didn't release me till, like, two, almost three o'clock. As soon as they released me, my Chief took me to my barracks. I had to get my uniform and go straight to work.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I had no sleep.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So

SA GEREL: So, how about food? How you--how are you eating?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't have, like, an appetite to really eat at all, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. Do you have some food this morning?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: You want some?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm good.

SA GEREL: How about some water? You want some water.

CSSN COPELAND: Water, yeah. I'll take some water.

SA GEREL: Okay. We'll go get that. We'll be back.

CSSN COPELAND: All right.

[SA Gerel departed the room at timestamp 0:25:30.]

SA MANN: So--so, I mean, I know you got a--a storm growing. Right? What's going on in the family world?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I just got shit with my mom. I mean, on top of that, she doesn't even know anything that's happened. I mean, I--I understand she realized I went UA. She called my command and called the--the base.

SA MANN: She was worried about?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. So, I mean, other than that, I--I haven't really talked to her ever--ever since that. My dad's been in the hospital, so.

SA MANN: How's he doing?

CSSN COPELAND: Not that well.

SA MANN: Oh. Do you mind if I ask what's happening?

CSSN COPELAND: So, he got an infection, and that was--I found out about that when I was on deployment, and I--I think it was, like, around December.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I tried to put in leave. Like, emergency leave.

SA MANN: Sure.

CSSN COPELAND: My chain of command denied it.

SA MANN: Yeah. I--I know the Truman was going through----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----some stuff out there, so I'm sure that was tough.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. And he's been in the hospital ever since. My mom said he's basically lost, like, his--like, he can't walk. He can barely talk.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: His vision's going bad, too. So, I know on their part. I know it's, like, hard, on that, so.

SA MANN: Yeah. No, that's tough.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: When's the last time you got to see him?

CSSN COPELAND: Hmm?

SA MANN: When was the last time you got to see him?

CSSN COPELAND: It's been almost a year since I last took leave.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, that's also another thing. It's, like, I haven't been home. I've been telling my chain of command for months now. Like I--I--I need to take leave.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Because with everything going on, it's fucking with my mental health.

SA MANN: I gotcha. That'd be tough. I know I'd be----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----feeling probably similar if I had a bunch of family that I wasn't getting to see that were sitting in the hospital with prior circumstances. So, no, I get it, man.

And again, I'm not--one way or another today. Like, what you decide to do, I want you--you to just be comfortable with your decision.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: You know, I know you said it. Like, I--I think, you know, spent some--some time I think with B on the ship. Obviously, she's the only agent that was there, but, that I know she has a pretty--I don't know how--what your interactions with her have--have been. But I know she's generally a pretty straight shooter. I don't think she sort of beats around the bush. She just says, "Hey, here's what we got to do. Let's do it." Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. She--she keeps it a hundred, but I don't like the way that she does it.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, everybody that I've talked to, dealt with, even with police officers, like--like, yeah, they got one job to be doing, but they kept it professional. When, like, I don't know what her problem is, but I feel like with me and her interactions, she--I feel like she antagonizes me.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And I don't--I don't really appreciate that, like, when I was talking to the first--first detective, little short one, you know, it was her and another agent that came to my room.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And, I talked to them. Cool. And then, when they had came and raided my room, she was there just in the background. I could see her staring at me. At first, I was, like, there's no way that's her until the agent had called her over there. And I was, like, fuck. All right, cool. But it's, like, the whole time we were in the interrogation room, it's just, like, she was, like, irritating me.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: It's, like, I--it's, like, some people I can stand, but it's just something about her I don't like.

SA MANN: No, that's fair. I--I, like, I don't like everybody I meet, too. Sometimes it's just people don't connect. It is what it is. What I would ask today, though, is if I make you feel that way, if David makes you feel that way----

CSSN COPELAND: No, you guys--you guys are totally, like, you know, respectful, and you guys are keeping it official.

SA MANN: Yep.

CSSN COPELAND: It's just the way that she carries herself, the way that the mentality she has.

SA MANN: Understood. But if--if you feel like that happens, I want you to stop and let us know. You can tell me I'm wrong. That's okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA MANN: I'm not, same with him. We're not above making a mistake. So, if you feel like a line is crossed, let us know. We don't want to do that. We'll course-correct for you.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay. Thank you.

SA MANN: Yeah, just again, if--if I'm going to be blunt with you--you can be blunt with me. Full--fully expect that. So--excuse me. Why I said that, and, you know, and I think David's sort of been kind of slowly talking through this with you is, again, everyone wants to know where Angie is. The longer she's gone, you know, I mean, you've probably seen an Netflix documentary. Right? Like, as time passes and these type of things, all you see on the news. Like, hey, the more time that somebody's missing, the higher the likelihood that the end result's not a good one. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: That's just--it's statistics, and we're hoping that by trying to expedite and move through these things, this takes a ton of resources. I mean, we've had people the second that we found out she was gone, people started coming from every office all around the country to try to serve and to give us bodies and manpower so we can dedicate more resources to trying to find her.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: You know, and I, again, unfortunately, you happen to be the last person that was with her----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: ----before either she went missing, she made the decision to do it, something bad happened to her, whatever that was. Whether it's fair or not, like, the fingers all kind of initially point at you just because you were that last one to be with her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And I hate to say it, but again, it's just like watching TV. If the last person that was with her was the last person that was with her, that's the easiest place to start. It's logical. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: Hey, you should at least have some semblance of an idea of what happened when she departed, where she went. You know, if she said anything to you about, "Hey, here's where I'm going to go, what I'm going to do."

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: If you have any idea what that is, that's information we definitely want. The reason we kind of bring polygraph in the room is so we can get that clear result from you. Because as much as I sit here and I want to believe everybody I work with----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----I'd be foolish to do that, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Because some people aren't going to be straight shooters.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: So, that's why we use polygraph as a tool to say, hey, if you knew something about, you know, let's hope not, but if she were to be dead at this point, if you had any knowledge of that, we'd want to know that. Because then we need to redirect resources elsewhere.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Also, if you have nothing to do with that, we want to prove that for you, too.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: Because then that allows us to take that spotlight that you feel is on you right now and shake it somewhere else.

CSSN COPELAND: It's not even about the spotlight. At the end of the day, it's life. Like, cool. But it is just more so, like, the shit I have going on now and then, this top on top of it. So, it's just, like, this right here is just a knocker.

SA MANN: Yeah. No, your--your glass is full.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: I feel you. So, what--what do you think we can accomplish today? What do you have the bandwidth for?
CSSN COPELAND: I just, like, if you guys got questions, cool. At the end of the day, I'm--I'm trying to--the biggest thing I'm trying to knock off is just seeing what the captain has to say. I just want to get one piece done. I'm just slowly trying to get things, you know. I'm just slowly trying to get things off of my plate. Because at the end of the day. Like, everything I have going on is going nowhere at this point.
SA GEREL: I gotcha. So, not to, I--I guess diminish what you're saying, like, that's important. And I think, you know, if I was sitting in your same shoes and I want that answer. Like, "Hey, just like--like you said, I'm going to own it. Tell me what I got to do to own it."

I think we're--we would miss an opportunity here to help get more off your plate if we didn't at least offer you this again. No one can sit here and say, "Hey, gun to your head, you got to sit down and do it." But I do think that this helps move some stuff off your plate. So, today, in theory, you could take this off your plate, and you can take the mast off your plate, and hopefully that's two things that help push you in a more positive direction.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. But at the end of the day, you guys are still going to come for questions.

SA GEREL: I don't know. I--I mean, I--I----

CSSN COPELAND: It's still going nowhere.

SA MANN: They may. But, you know, as Dave they've kind of mentioned earlier, the question that we want to know is really, and--and I think, you know, we'll give this more poly. Like, if I were to give you some sort of polygraph, if I was going to say, "Hey, like--like here's what we need answered it," it'd be what he asked you the other day. Did you cause her death? Or did, you know, is she dead? Like, do--do you have actual intimate knowledge of that?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Because then if you--if you're not a part of that, and you know, if--if maybe she is still alive out there somewhere, or if she is unfortunately deceased to this point, we know that you had nothing to do with it. So, then those questions about you, who you are, where you were, what you did, all of that. You know, it's an investigation like you said, people are going to look at everything thoroughly.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: But then there's other people that need to look at other things that they need to look at, you know. Was this, at some point, somebody else who did something malicious or foul? Did she just run away? Maybe she just had enough of it. Would it be an unfortunate case? Maybe it was a suicide. We don't know. But that's why we're trying to work through, and you're not--I know you feel. Like, "Hey, the spotlight's on you." You're not the only person that people are trying to highlight and get answers for.

So, I won't sit here and say that no one's going to come knocking on your door and asking you a question. But I would highly anticipate that this puts a lot of those questions at bay, because everyone's going to go, "Hey, Copeland's not the bad guy that did something bad to Angie. You know, Jay's not that guy."

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day--at the end of the day, it's, like, you still got people looking at you. It doesn't matter, regardless.

SA MANN: What makes you think that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, for instance, I walk into work, you got people looking at me crazy. The CO, for example.

SA MANN: I gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, it's just, like, it's not going to go anywhere. All right, cool. The situation gets done, and handled where people are still going to have their opinion not knowing the full facts and everything.

SA MANN: Yeah. The court of public opinion is damning, right? Like, unfortunately, we can't change that. What we will do. Like,

David said, is we'll give results to everybody that matters. And I--I mean, I think, you know what the--the E-3 underground is alive and well. So, once somebody finds out that, "Hey. Like, Jay didn't do bad things. This was all just false accusations." If that is the case, that's going to resonate. People are going to hear that.

So, you know, are you going to ever going to be able to stop people looking at you for something? No, that's reality. Somebody's always going to have their opinion of you. Someone may love you, someone may hate you. It is what it is.

But, and--and I know that this is kind of a foreign concept in the sense of polygraph. Most people are. Like, yeah, I mean, I think I know what it is. I think I'd be willing to do it. And--and it's not that we want to sit here and slam you with a bunch of questions. What we want to do is give you an opportunity to, in theory, and or minimize those questions that are going to come about you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: At least from us. Right? Like, I can't control what somebody's opinion of you is going to be. All I can do is tell that person, "Hey, Jay didn't do the thing that you're saying he thinks he did. He's proven that." And you know, if they just want to keep that opinion because they don't like you, or if they, you know, do like you enough and they go, "Oh, well that's great to know. Like, I'm glad I can trust this guy. Like, he's not somebody."

So, you know, I--I think there are two sides to that coin. I just want to make sure that you've seen both.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: I know in your world right now, the easy side to go to is, like, this is all bad, and I--I get it, especially considering your family situation. Not being able to see your dad, but hopefully putting this piece behind it means that all you got to worry about is get through that mast. You know, take whatever punishment they decide to give you. Then, if this is all gone away and you're part--you're--you're not a part of it anymore, hopefully then they can see the need for you to go take some leave, see your family, you know, check in on dad, and go from there.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: So.

SA GEREL: Yeah, investigations. Like, you know, there's--there's only a few things we can do to prove what we call proving a negative. Like, you can say all day long, I didn't do it. And people either have to believe that or not believe that. So, we're looking for evidence, but one thing that we can offer is, "I didn't do it, and I passed my polygraph."

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: You know what I--I mean? So, then like they've got something else to. Like, "Well, dang, maybe you didn't do it." So, it definitely adds a lot to--it's something you can proactively do to give credence to what you're telling folks. So, I--Tyler may have already said that, but. You follow about that later or not yet? Did--does it give you any other thought on trying it today?
CSSN COPELAND: I--I don't feel like I can take that shit today. Like, it's just, I'm telling you. Like, I got too much shit going on.
SA GEREL: I gotcha. I gotcha. And--and--and frankly, I am concerned about your sleep and your food and--and your mental health. Like, those are things that would, even as you said, I'll take it and then, I--I heard that stuff. I might not want to give it to you today, any because--because those things would be important for me to know that you have--that you're coming in with a good day.

So, two of the things that could consider with you. Thing number one, you may not feel like today's a good day for it, but are you seeing that maybe sometime in the future it could be?
CSSN COPELAND: Most definitely.
SA GEREL: Okay. Cool. Love that. Okay. Next thing, there are some details that we maybe could capture that might help. The--some things you know. Because you you--you--as I told you, you're probably the last person that we know of that saw her. So, when we reviewed that first interview or the one that they brought you here to talk about, we watched it, and--and--and I appreciate you doing that, but there's a couple things that we were kind of curious about that might help us help them.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Are you cool--can you cover some of the details with this? Good with that? Okay. Good.

So, what's your--what--what's your hard timeframe? When--when do you--you want to be done with this today?

CSSN COPELAND: As fast as possible. Like, do you you--do you--you guys know what time it is?

SA GEREL: Yeah. It's 9:20.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: Yeah. I--I will tell you that, like, we're what--do you have a scheduled time for your mast?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I don't know if it's before or after lunch. Lunch starts at eleven o'clock, so.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I guess it's probably going to be done after.

SA GEREL: Yeah. I--I think that's more likely. They--they'll likely have no trouble waiting on you. Like, if we get a little delayed, but I--I don't think we're going to have to delay you that long.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Anything that you needed to absolutely do before your mast?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't really think so.

SA GEREL: Okay. I just want to take care of your time. I appreciate you--you working with us. You've got a lot of stressors, and I--I understand. Do you feel like any of those stressors are more important than finding Angie?

CSSN COPELAND: Can you say that again?

SA GEREL: Yeah. I know you've got a lot of things that are stressing you. You've got the traffic court. You've got the--the--the other---we haven't talked about this yet, but we know about the other investigations. We--we know you got some things that are kind of stressing you, but are--are any of those things more important to you than helping to find Angie?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: Okay. I didn't think so. I mean, if it feels like you didn't know her. Like, super well, but I think you knew her enough where you'd probably be concerned about her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And that's the vibe I'm getting. So, it's good to hear that because--because that--that makes me feel very comfortable with--with, you know.

CSSN COPELAND: And then at the end of the day, I'm answering questions, like you said, everybody else asks. If I wanted to leave, I could left at any given moment.

SA GEREL: Yeah. [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day, I'm taking the time to talk to you guys, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. I--I figured, but I--I wanted to kind of check--check your thoughts on that. Okay. Good. All right. So, as--as--as best you can tell us about, like you--you, well, actually, let me even go before that. How did you meet Angie?

CSSN COPELAND: CSA school. We're the same rate?

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: We went to A-school together. When I checked into the command, it was her and another CS that I knew. Angie is, like, I didn't really go up and talk to her, but she is, like, you know, when you look at someone, they're, like, that person looks familiar, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: That's how I saw her. And then, my homeboy, JJ, walked up to me. I was, like, "Oh, shit." And from there, me and him were talking, and then, later down, it was, like, a couple days afterwards, that's when she came up to me and asked me if I--what class I was in in A-school.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, from there I was, like, "I knew you looked familiar," and then from there we were talking. I mean, there's been previous times before that where we've hungen out. We've gone out to eat. We've went to Dave and Busters. We've--yeah.

SA GEREL: So, how long ago was that A-school? When was that? Like, two year or so?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, almost two years ago.

SA GEREL: Two--two years ago. Okay. You've known her for a long time.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Were you all--where did--where did, after A-school, where did you--you serve with her at? Or were you on the same ship or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no. After A-school, I went--that's when I was on the Truman, so.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, A-school, the Truman for, and then, you--did you work in your rate. Like, as--as a CS?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Okay. And then how--how much did you keep in contact with, V/A.R.

CSSN COPELAND: I never had her contact until I got onto the--the DDG I'm on now.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, the barge.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: What did you feel about the barge? What's that like?

CSSN COPELAND: It's ass.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I'm not going to say, like, the ship is ass, but it--it's ass.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Because, it's, like, being. Like, I guess it's just transitioning from--from the carrier life to a DDG.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't like it.

SA GEREL: Yeah. I've heard that before. I've done investigations on the barge, and I'm. Like, this doesn't feel like a very comfortable place.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. No.

SA GEREL: Do--do they make y'all sleep on the barge sometimes?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. People, I mean, if somebody has duty, they have a berthing for that. Or there's some people that don't have barracks.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: That way you getting a ride so they stay--they stay on the barge.

SA GEREL: Okay. I gotcha. All right, so--so got on the barge, kind of met back up with--with--with Angie. Tell me about that, like, when you first kind of came back in contact with her. What--what, what--what was your relationship like?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, just work. That's about it. I know we would come in. Like, "Morning, how you doing?" type of thing.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: You know, same thing with the whole watch. Just, you know, saying good morning to everybody, just talking.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And one thing about me is, like, if I work with you, I'm going to have to be obligated to talk to you. So, it's either. Like, you can either hate me or not. Cool. If not, I'm going to just still say good morning.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: If you choose not to talk to me, you choose not to. But towards me and Angie, it was acquaintances. Like, we were--we were good. Cordial.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Everything was cool.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. That's very good. Fast forward just a--a smidge because I'm momentarily curious about this. So, where do you think she's at?

CSSN COPELAND: If I--I couldn't tell you. I know when she left, she left. I know she was saying she was mad at Gil. I mean, the night of you know, she was mad as fuck. That's all. Sorry for cussing, but----

SA GEREL: No, no, that, that's----

CSSN COPELAND: You know, she was on a--calling a lot of people. I know she had called her ex, that lived in Texas.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And she was saying, like, how he fucked up, how he can't do this, can't do that. She's always spending money on him. Always sending him money. And I'm just sitting there. Like, cool. And, I had talked to the dude. He was pretty chill, pretty cool. And then, from there, that's when she just started calling other people.

SA GEREL: Why was she so mad at Gil?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like I said, they got into an argument, so they got into an argument about a bike helmet that Gil had gave V/A.R.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And V/A.R. said that she saw some dude, or not some dude, but some female getting on his bike when she went on a walk.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And the--the day that he picked the female up, I'm guessing he was asking for the bike helmet back, and V/A.R. was asking, "Why specifically the bike helmet if you gave it to me?" And he was just, like, "Oh, it reminds me of all the times and all the places we could've gone together."

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: "And things we could've done." So--so it's, like, he was basically saying it's more of like a--like a memory.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And she was, like, she doesn't want to give--give him back the bike helmet. They was just going back and forth arguing, and that's when he said--he was just, like, "Fuck it, just keep the helmet." He's. Like, "You can just keep it. I don't want it anymore."

SA GEREL: Okay. So--so, what--what--what, I--I don't fully understand like why that made her so upset.
CSSN COPELAND: Because, obviously, she was--in her eyes, she thought that he was going to give it to another female to ride on his bike. Obviously, they've dated.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: And, you know.
SA GEREL: Sounds like jealousy. Is that the right word for how she was feeling?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, if that's how you want to put it. Yeah.
SA GEREL: Well, I don't know. I--I'm just trying to figure it out. But--but she--she was concerned with this other female and Gil.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: And. Like, whatever he was doing with her. But I don't want to put words in the--what--that's why I kind of want to know what your thoughts are as to why she was so mad.
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's what I would think, obviously. Or she's mad because, obviously, I don't know if they're trying to fix the relationship or if they're still talking.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I knew they dated, you know, and she talked to another dude.
SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day, that's not my business. That's totally their business. I mean, cool. Like, y'all can do what y'all want to do. But I'm not going to get myself involved in their situation.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. So, you don't know where--where she's at. Did you see or ever hear anything from her that makes you think that she would just not go to work and disappear? Anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: No. I mean, I don't really text her. Like, usually when I leave people, I just be. Like, "If you need something, just call or text me," and I just leave it like that.

SA GEREL: Okay. Now I know that all of us can be tempted at times to cover for friends and family. Like, if they do something and they're, like, "Oh man, I'm gonna--I got your back." I--I don't know if that's happening here, but I--I would hope that, if there's something that you know of, something she may have wanted to do, you would let us know. Is anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so. I mean, the only person that I know that talks to her on daily is Gillespie and Rich.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Those are the two main people that she talks to at work.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, if you want more, you probably have to ask them or talk to them.

SA GEREL: Sure.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: But those are the two people that she talks to. Like, pretty much on daily, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. And--and they have and they--they will. Like, keep talking to them. But there are times--this is my thinking. You--you--you, of course, make your own thoughts, but, even though we may feel tempted to help other people, sometimes it's more important to actually not. You know, so in this case, you've got tons of people looking for her, including her family.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: And worried sick about her. In this instance, I--I would suggest that it's more important to, if there's something that you could feel tempted to hide on her behalf, that you wouldn't do that with us right now, even if you have already.

CSSN COPELAND: Fuck no. I mean, you see the situation I'm in. I'm not--like, at the end of the day, if somebody fuck up, that's on them.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay. Okay. I appreciate you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: I--I got that vibe from you, but I wanted to make sure that we were seeing that in the same way. Because I mean, I definitely have been around some people, or maybe even myself sometimes been. Like, I'm not going to ever hurt that person, and--and I'm not going to tell. The--the police or anybody about something that person did. Because I care that much, like a loyalty thing.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, you see how big it's getting. At the end of the day, I mean, I've told both of you what I have going on in my life.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm--I'm at this point, I'm not helping nobody put something like that.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: If they leave, I'm snitching, like yeah. This person left. I'm sorry, but I'm telling.

SA GEREL: Well, and I thank you. And I wouldn't even call it that. It's just, like, you care enough----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: ----about the person. Let's go ahead and get this squared away so someone, you know, doesn't get any extra smoke. That's good.

All right, so let's unfortunately think about some possibilities for---well, let's--let's presume for a second that maybe something bad happened to her. Do you have, like, a list--we all have this list of angels and demons. People that are. Like, there's no way these people would've done anything bad to her. I'm not so sure about these people. The--the demons and I--we might want to be looking more at them.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Who--who--who is your angels and demons in terms of who could have--who--who--well, let's start with angels.

Who would you say, like, there's no way this person did anything bad to her?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I can't really determine that. I mean, I know there's people she talks to, but at the end of the day, I don't jurisdict everybody she hangs out with.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I don't--I couldn't honestly tell you that from a get go. I mean, I know the people that we work with, you know, she talks to, and the only two that I see her talk to when we're at work is Gillespie and Rich.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So.

SA GEREL: And--and they give you a little, grace on this. Oh, I'm not going to hold your feet to the fire and say, like, "Oh, he said that they couldn't have done it, so, there's no way they did it." I--I mean, you're not God. You don't know all the things.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, but I--but I would--but sometimes those instincts are pretty important. Right? So--so you may feel. Like, I know Gil, I mean, he's not perfect, but, like, I would be shocked if he did anything bad like that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Or you might say, like, Gil's suspicious. I mean, you might want to be looking at Gil.

W Yeah.

SA GEREL: You know what I mean? So, like, I'm not going to--we wouldn't let people know, like that Copeland said, "Look at Gil."

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Or whomever. But--but your--your--everyone's instincts can be pretty darn important. So, like, if you have any instincts, good or bad, towards the people that have been mentioned around her, we'd appreciate to hear about it.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, at the end of the day, I don't really know those two like that. I mean, I know JJ is somebody we work with.

There's Garcia and Miguel, Buco. Like, when we're at work, we work. Cool. You know, time to time we joke around and bullshit.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: That's, you know, that's just our way. Like, theoretically for CS's to, you know, get through our day.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day, we--we're the first people to walk on the ship, last people to leave, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: You know, that's just one way we get through work. As far as Gillespie and Mitch, I don't--Rich, I don't really know them like that, so.

SA GEREL: So, those dudes are CS's?

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no, no, no. I don't know what their rate is.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, going into a DDG and they got, you know. Like, STGs and stuff like that. I don't know what those rates are.

SA GEREL: Okay. Gotcha. So, they don't work with y'all.

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no, no. I know. Like, they, you know, they come in the galley and they talked back--they be in the back talking to V/A.R.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: You got. Like, CS1 or CS2 walk--walk in the galley, and they walk through and see them back there.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And then, obviously, they asked--asked them to get out the galley.

SA GEREL: What was V/A.R. first ship? I mean, is it the one that you all are on, or is it a different ship?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe it's the ship we're on now.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. All right. So, you mentioned JJ. Who--what--who's that? Say that full name again, please.

CSSN COPELAND: JJ?

SA GEREL: Yeah. Who's that?

CSSN COPELAND: He's somebody, a CS.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, all those names besides Rich and----

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: ----Gillespie, those are all CS's.

SA GEREL: Okay. I got you. You said a bunch names. I just want to make sure I'm understanding the--the same people or different people. So, do you know JJ's full name?

CSSN COPELAND: It's, like, Edison Jean Jaques or something like that.

SA GEREL: Jaques. Okay. All right. And who else did you mention?

CSSN COPELAND: Buco.

SA GEREL: Buco. Okay. And is Buco a CS?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GEREL: And----

CSSN COPELAND: Garcia and Miguel.

SA GEREL: Garcia and Miguel. So--so these folks are people around you all?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GEREL: Do you categorize them as suspicious or not suspicious?

CSSN COPELAND: They're not suspicious.

SA GEREL: Okay. All right. Just kind of people you work with?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: All right. Any suspicious people?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like I said, it's limited in. Like, from my point of view.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't really know anybody around V/A.R. you know, that's, like, aggressive or somebody that could hate V/A.R.

SA GEREL: Okay. The--the--the girl with--with the bike helmet, do you know her name?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: You know, even. Like, a nickname, or, like, do you know anything about her at all?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I believe she is a civilian.

SA GEREL: A civilian.

CSSN COPELAND: I--I don't know who she is, so.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, I remember Gillespie telling me, like, his little portion on it, and then, when V/A.R. came over and she was talking about it. That's--that's the only thing that I know about it.

SA GEREL: Okay. How does V/A.R. how--how does V/A.R. feel about that girl?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, she didn't really know the female, so she was just, like, categorizing her as a bitch?

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, she was, like, "Yeah, I can't believe he's trying to get my helmet for something. Like, for a bitch."

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: I was just, like, I mean, at the end of the day, that's how men are sometimes.

SA GEREL: Did--did--did you ever hear V/A.R. talk about getting. Like, pestered by anybody? Like, blown up or, like, tons of messages or anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so. Nah. She's never mentioned anything like that. I mean, as far as her phone, she was on the phone with her ex from Texas.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's the only person I talked to, and then, from there, she was, like, just calling.

SA GEREL: So, it brings another curiosity about the Texas ex. Like, what--what the world prompted her to call him that night?

CSSN COPELAND: She was basically saying, like, you know, like everybody has their person they go to.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And I guess that was her person that she goes to when things happen to her. You know, somebody she needs to talk to.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's what she said. She was, like, basically. Like, she's going to call--she was, like, "Copeland," she was, like, "This is my ex from Texas." And she was, like, basically. Like, that's her right-hand man.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, sounds like she wasn't mad at him.

CSSN COPELAND: No. No.

SA GEREL: Oh, okay. Cool. Okay. So, she was kind of calming down and talking through her frustrations.

CSSN COPELAND: Venting, venting to him, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. I got it. All right. Well, I appreciate it. I-- I got sidetracked on a bunch of specific questions, so sorry about that.

CSSN COPELAND: You're fine.

SA GEREL: All right, so I think I'm going to have him start kind of talking more about those--the--the the weekend. But before I do that, did you have any questions about the stuff we've covered so far?

SA MANN: Just with, I guess, V/A.R. like what was your guys, the extent of your--how would you. Like, describe your relationship? Like, what'd you guys?

CSSN COPELAND: We were just work people, like people that work together.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. That's literally what I would describe it.

SA MANN: Oh. Do you guys ever get into. Like, the maybe want to date, hookup, connect scene?

CSSN COPELAND: Not even--not even thought about that.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: All right. I was curious, kind of what--how you guys were inter-weaved. Like, friends, dating, relationship. Kind of just, we hook up because can. Whatever it is.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, she knows that, and I wouldn't do nothing with her. At the end of the day. Like, we work together.

SA MANN: Why's that?

CSSN COPELAND: Huh?

SA MANN: Why's that?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, me personally, I had a bad experience with a CS, and after that, like I--I told myself I can't get with a CS. Like, they're cool to hang out with, but physically dating with CS, I can't do that shit no more.

SA MANN: Can you tell me a little about that?

CSSN COPELAND: So, there was a female that was on the DDG that I'm on now.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And we were talking for a little bit, and we started taking it a little more serious. And there it came to a time where she had a seizure on the barge. So, as soon as I got off work, I went and picked her up. And I was on my way home, and my--my tire blew up on the highway, and my rim cracked.

So, I called my homeboy to come pick me up, and I took--I called the towing company to tow the car to the nearest shop where I can get--get my tire fixed.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, basically, I was asking, do they have a spare tire? And they were saying they don't have spare tires. And--and able, for me to get a tire for my rim, I would have to have, like, a good rim because my rim split.

SA MANN: Right.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I was, like, fuck. So, my homebody took me to the junk yard. We went to the junk yard. I picked up a spare tire from there, and I called the dealership, I got my car from, and--and he gave me a number for a welder, and he welded the rim together, and then, from there, I ended up buying a tire from there, and I got it all fixed, same day and everything. Cool. And she was with--she was with us the--the whole time.

So, I get home, and she came home with me, and I laid down on the couch, like I fell asleep. And, you know, she's. Like, she wants--obviously wants attention. She's. Like, "Can you talk to me for a little bit?" This, that, and the third? And I was, like--I was, like, "Can you give me, like, just, like, 15 minutes? Like I'm--I'm tired as fuck. Like, you've seen everything I just did today."

So, she was like--like, "All right, cool." And, so, she sat down. I wake up and she's talking shit on the phone with her sister about me. So, I was, like, "All right, cool. Like, you are--are just going to sit here and be disrespectful in my face. You can leave." She was, like, "All right, fuck you, then."

She left, realized she had nowhere to go, so she's sitting outside my door, banging on my door for, like, eight hours. I just told her, I was, like, "Goodnight. Like, you chose to leave. I'm not opening the door. And you left and did what you did. You blew up, projected, and did what you did. I'm not coming to open the door."

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, she's talking about she's going to go get the RA to come open my door. This, that, and the third. I'm just, like, I just kept saying, "Goodnight, goodnight, goodnight." And it came about. Like, five, six o'clock. My roommate was going to go get breakfast, and she pushed my roommate out the way and bombarded my room with a knife in her hand.

SA MANN: Jeez.

CSSN COPELAND: She broke everything. Like, all my electronics in my room. She fucking destroyed my room. She tried to stab me. There was a whole shit show. And then, from there. I think it was, like, almost a week straight, she slashed my tires every day, and every day I had to fucking fix that shit.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: On top of that, coming to work. So, on that part, it was a whole shit show. And after that, I'm. Like, I--I can't fuck with a CS no more.

SA GEREL: What's that girl's name?

CSSN COPELAND: Richardson.

SA GEREL: Richardson. Okay. She's on the barge?

CSSN COPELAND: No, not no more. They took her off the barge because she--she had a seizure, so.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: She's in some command on base.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. Yeah. It sounds. Like, yeah, it didn't sound good. Did she catch any charges from that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so.

SA GEREL: Did you tell anybody?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I mean, they had the MAs involved. I talked to NCIS on the, not this building, but it's a building, it was the precinct. That's what it was. They took me to the precinct.

SA GEREL: Oh, gotcha.

SA MANN: On base.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. And I talked to a detective from there.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. Did she pay you back or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: Not that I--not yet. I--I don't know how that----

SA MANN: How long ago was it?
CSSN COPELAND: This was a couple months ago.
SA MANN: Okay. Yeah.
SA GEREL: All right.
SA MANN: Yeah, I guess obviously that's a rough lesson to learn, but expensive one.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: But--but it is just kind of a, not, I guess for lack of better. Like, picking up things at work just didn't make sense anymore. Like, just try to keep work and life like that.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: Personal life a little separate from a relationship perspective.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. I mean, on top of that, you know, when I was on the carrier, I talked to people, and I also talked to. Like, you know. Like, the higher-ups, first classes, and they always said never date a CS. At the end of the day----
SA MANN: Okay. So, what--how would you describe then the relationship you have with V/A.R. Like, what would you guys say you are?
CSSN COPELAND: Just friends. I mean, we work together. Cool. You know, if we, you know, do something outside of work or, you know, like sometimes we go eat or just find something fun to do. Go bowling or something.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, that's what we did last time. Before this time, we hung out. It was me and two other CS's, but they weren't on our ship and----

SA MANN: This past weekend, or the----

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no. Not this past weekend. It was months ago.

SA MANN: Oh, okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, when I first--when I got back from deployment.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: And, she--we went out and, my homeboy picked--no, my homegirl picked me up and my homeboy that I previously met that--that day, we all went out and we went to Dirty Buffalo and then, we went to Dave and Buster's. And there's been another time I think we went out and we were watching a football game, too.

So, it's been a couple times we hung out previous to her coming over, so we just work together. I do the same with everybody I work with. Like, if y'all want to pop out, do something for the weekend or something, just go find something chill to do, we can always do that.

SA MANN: Okay. Did you guys ever hook up at any point?

CSSN COPELAND: Never. Not one point.
SA MANN: Oh, would you?
CSSN COPELAND: No. I mean, I already told you, fucking with a CS--
--
SA MANN: No, I mean, like, CS aside. Like, did you, like--she a pretty girl. You're, like, "Hey, this is----"
CSSN COPELAND: I don't really look at her like that.
SA MANN: No. Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: No.
SA GEREL: So, I think I said this at the beginning, but just to kind of reiterate it, when you're talked to by people like us, police or authorities. Like, there's always going to be a little temptation to make sure you're, like, "Oh shit, this is kind of rough. I--I feel like I need to make sure I do--do what I can to protect myself." That's very normal, very natural.

So, with that being said, though. Like, particularly Tyler and I as polygraph examiners, when we talk to you today, we--we may use a lot of what we talk about if--when you come back, right? I love that you want to come back because I think that's a good way you can help yourself to relieve some of this stress.

So, but it's really crucially important that we get. Like, the best truth. The truth is the truth. Right? It is what it is.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: But sometimes when you get talked to by multiple people. Like, it's very normal for you to remember different things, to have things you want to add some clarifications. That's just normal stuff.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: If you--I'd like to encourage you to do that with us today. So, if there's something that you know, you said before, and you're, like, "I know I said that, but I kind of wish I could have said it a little differently," you can. All right? You can say it differently.

We want--we want to help you the best way we can, and that's only we can do is working with the full truth.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, like, if there's something that might come in and feel like they may get mad about that, or it may come across as making me, like, dishonest, whatever, I don't want you to worry about that. It's--it's me asking you to be very strong and courageous to trust us like that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: But I'm only saying that because I'm an old dude and I talk to a lot of folks, and then--and that I'm also a human. So, like, I get that instinct to be cautious and careful with what you say. Because you--you don't want to get any further trouble. I get

it. You just have to trust us to know that we aren't worried about you, we're worried about her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, there might be some things that you could add more details to, and I just really encourage you to do that.

CSSN COPELAND: As far as what?

SA GEREL: Well, particularly about what we're going to get into, which is, like, I'd like you to walk us through. Like, the--the weekend. So, from--from the night that you all made arrangements to make the tacos and salsa----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: ----kind of start there and then, give us. Like, the best absolute account of--of what happened between then and when she went missing.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: So, because again, like we're seeing some things that we--we think could be important, but some of them may not even know it's important yet.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: But because you spent a lot of time with her around then you prob--you almost a hundred percent know things that will help us find her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, that's why we're--we're going through it multiple times. You did a good job last time, but I'd like you just to have that--that comfort. Like, if you need to add or change a few of those details, please do.

CSSN COPELAND: Because everything I said from the last time they talked to me is pretty much the same.

SA GEREL: Okay. And--and--and what--what I'd like--we--we have this thing that we do and--and we call it a timeline. And--and it comes in a little different, but it's very helpful because of the way the human brain works. It--it's part of a--a method that we call scientific interviewing. Sometimes it's helpful, sometimes it's not. But it--it, I think in this case you really might be able to find some more details that could help the case.

So, all it is--is we'll put a piece of paper right here. We'll get. Like, a beginning of the--the timeframe register and then the end of it. And we'd like you--did you bring sticky notes?

SA MANN: I think they're still in the car. We can find some here.

SA GEREL: Okay.

SA MANN: I'll see if I can. S

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. Thank you. I'll keep explaining it.

[SA Mann departed the room at timestamp 1:05:00.]

SA GEREL: And--and so, how we do it is you just get these little yellow sticky notes and--and on the paper. Like, we'd like you to write. Like, the memory you have and put it on the timeline. Like, where you think it goes in order.

And then, it doesn't have to be. Like, from, it doesn't have to be. Like, any particular way. Just as you think of stuff. Like, as you think of it, write it, put it down, and then go to the next thing. "Okay, I remember this." Write it down. Put it down where you think it goes in order, and--and just do that which will allow us to get the--a good picture of kind of how you remember the--the timeframe, with her that worked out.

CSSN COPELAND: So, like, I'm writing or, like, writing words.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: Or I'm drawing,

SA GEREL: No, not drawing. Just words.

CSSN COPELAND: Oh.

SA GEREL: So, like, you know, I don't want to give too many examples because it's actually good for you to--to--to use your own words and thoughts. But as an example. Like, if you want to have--like, if you have a memory about the grocery store. Like, Food Lion or whatever it is, and--and then, put a Food Lion. And then, you see what I mean? And--and then, you can get--be as descriptive as you want, or you can be as general like that as you want. You can put "grocery store."

And then, just kind of put it in the order of things are, and then, that'll help us to kind of probably develop some other questions that you can help us with.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: Is that cool?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: He'll back with that in a second. I'll go and your space ready.

[SA Mann entered the room at timestamp 1:06:22.]

SA MANN: All right. We got a few. We can probably find some more if we need to, for now.

SA GEREL: Nice. Good work.

SA MANN: I mean, it's not a ton, but we can hunt out some more. I'm sure that was just a quick ask.

You getting--you get a ride over here?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: You have a car? I know you said. Like, you had one, but you do you still got it.

CSSN COPELAND: Nah. It's fucked up.

SA MANN: Oh. What's wrong now?

CSSN COPELAND: The head gasket.

SA GEREL: Oh, so it's not just a fixed tire anymore, huh? Okay. So, how you been getting around normally now?

CSSN COPELAND: Either my roommate drops me off, and my home boy will text me home.

SA MANN: Okay. Have you been driving at all?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA MANN: No? Okay. Do you have access to a car you can even drive?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I mean, like, my roommate, you know, sometimes my roommate, he'll let me drive his car if I need to go grab something to eat, or sometimes he'll take me there.

SA MANN: What's he got?

CSSN COPELAND: He drives a Jeep.

SA MANN: Okay. I--I might have a marker. No, I don't. All right.

SA GEREL: All right. So, kind of already explained to him the general idea. Let's kind of consider this the beginning of our timeframe. And when--when did you have that evening? Do you know when you were preparing the salsa?

CSSN COPELAND: Can you say that again?

SA GEREL: Yeah. When--when did you--what day did you----

SA MANN: When you were making tacos.

SA GEREL: Yeah, when were you making tacos?
CSSN COPELAND: Thursday. I believe it was Wednesday transitioning to Thursday.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, Wednesday. I don't know if you think of it this way, but do you think of it in terms of. Like, calendar dates? Do you remember what date that was? If you don't, that's okay.
CSSN COPELAND: No.
SA GEREL: Okay. So--so, let's just go ahead and call that Wednesday. All right. And then, as many details as you can provide from Wednesday through----
SA MANN: Let's say the entirety of that week?
SA GEREL: Yeah. The entire weekend. So, we'll--we'll cut the weekend off, like----
SA MANN: Monday morning.
SA GEREL: ----Monday morning. All right. So, Wednesday through Monday.
SA MANN: You went to work Monday after?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I went to work Sunday as well, so.
SA MANN: Okay. Gotcha.
CSSN COPELAND: Well, I just--I didn't work Monday or Sunday, but I had to check in.
SA MANN: Right.
CSSN COPELAND: I was still being marked UA.

SA GEREL: Okay. And, if you need more space, we'll make it, and we'll get more of these if you need it, but you can go ahead and get started, and, to--have the thought, put down something that helps us know what that thought is and just place it wherever you feel like you can go send into the week. Okay?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like, for instance. Like, the whole weekend. Like, I ain't do shit.
SA GEREL: I know.
CSSN COPELAND: I just stayed home, so.
SA GEREL: So, I know this might feel like Why do they even care about all that? Every little detail is--is important. I mean, some stuff that we may don't know, stuff that you don't know.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: So--so again, as much as you can put in there.
SA MANN: Sometimes memory, too, like you--you and Angie could have had a thousand conversations that weekend and then, there'll be something that just by writing this down, you go, "Oh man, I remember she mentioned whatever." And that'll help us find some directionality. So, we're just--I know it seems kind of goofy. We're. Like, "Hey, do all this." But it--it is truly--the brain is a powerhouse. Right?
It's a machine doing all kinds of things. This will help maybe pull up some of those things that we just don't feel are pertinent.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: So, that's why we're asking. It's not--I know that you're probably. Like, what in the world are these guys doing? But we're trying to help that brain find those little things that could help us pivot to figure out where she's at.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like, for instance, me, like, I'm not, like, the type of person to--I don't know. Because. Like, when I talk----
SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]
CSSN COPELAND: ----that's what brings back memories. Like, me writing things down because I'm not, like, really the type of person--I don't like reading. I don't like books.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: I'm. Like, more about outgoing person. Like, outdoors, like doing all this, like, it is cool, but it's, like, I don't think that'll refresh my memory.
SA MANN: How about this? If you talk it and we write it, and then, we'll just figure out where it goes timewise? Does that work for you?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, that's fine. I mean, I don't have--have a problem writing either, but I'm just letting you know that.
SA GEREL: Yeah. Let's let him give it a go. I--I mean, I appreciate you sharing that----

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I'm willing to do it.
SA GEREL: ----and--and we--we've got no--we've got nothing to lose about trying this.
CSSN COPELAND: Okay.
SA GEREL: So--so it may--it may help with your memory, it may not, but--but it--it is a good attempt and we thank you for giving it a go.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah.
SA MANN: And if you want, if it's easier, we can stick this on the wall, and you can write it out. I don't know. Whatever you----
CSSN COPELAND: It's fine.
SA MANN: Okay. Whatever will help you.
SA GEREL: Yeah. I'll get out of your way. So, let me go run and try to find some more of this.
SA MANN: Yeah.
SA GEREL: Where is it at in the car, by the way, just in case it as a last ditch effort.
SA MANN: They probably just floating around the truck somewhere, but----
SA GEREL: Okay.
SA MANN: Then, we'll make that--I just tossed them in there, so I-- I don't even know if they--actually, let me see if I have a-- sometimes I throw a sticky pad in here. Or not that one. This one.

That'll work.

SA GEREL: Oh, that's good. Yeah. That's good. Perfect.

SA MANN: I forgot I had that in there. See, using it on me. Little memory keys. Right? We can even do it for this.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: A little big. But it's all right.

While you're doing this, too, is there something we can get you to eat? Snacks or something? Just kind of power. I know you brought some in your hat like that jerky.

CSSN COPELAND: No, I--I'm fine.

SA MANN: All right.

CSSN COPELAND: I didn't even know that was in my pocket.

SA MANN: Oh, well, there you go. Surprise.

SA GEREL: And, in this room, I can also offer you an apple and crackers, Captain's wafers.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm fine.

So, like, when you say, like, Wednesday through Monday. Like, this is what happened each day?

SA GEREL: Yeah. However, really want to kind of tackle it. But you--you can--yes, please. Just as you think through those several days, of--of your--of your memories, just put them down as you--as you recall. And it does not have to be in order. So, you can, if you think of something that happened Saturday, "Man, this happened right there."

SA MANN: So, it's easier. You can use these. They just--I don't know if that'll help, but I--I don't know if the stickers all messed up on those.

CSSN COPELAND: I--I just--yeah. Yeah. It is just, like, it's staggered weirdly.

SA MANN: Oh, okay. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

SA GEREL: I am sure that's not a rat.

SA MANN: Old buildings. If it makes you feel any better, this place probably isn't much better than a barge, and we're stuck here, so. SA GEREL: Hey, Copeland, you're doing a great job. We're going to give you the room for a minute, just to give you a little privacy. Here's your other pad if you if you run out the stickies. You can use these, too, okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Okay. Thank you.

SA GEREL: We'll come check on you in a few minutes. All right?

CSSN COPELAND: All right. Thank you. You mind if I--you mind just handing me the beef jerky stick?

SA GEREL: Of course, yeah. You--you want an apple or the Captain's wafers.

SA MANN: No, no. We can get you. Like, chips, crackers, whatever.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm good. Thank you.

[SA Mann and SA Gerel departed the room at timestamp 1:19:40.]

[SA Mann and SA Gerel entered the room at timestamp 1:45:20.]

SA GEREL: Hey Copeland. All right. Looks like you did some good work here. Work here. How you doing?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm doing all right.

SA GEREL: Okay. Good. I'm going to let you put your head down. How you feeling?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm tired.

SA GEREL: So, you said you didn't get any--you didn't get any sleep at all last night? Like, did--did you try?

CSSN COPELAND: I sleep--I mean, on top of that, I have a roommate, so he's the game screaming so.

SA GEREL: Oh, man.

CSSN COPELAND: He doesn't--he doesn't like--so his schedule is a lot easier.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: He literally stays up gaming the whole night.

SA MANN: And you have to listen to it.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. So, he usually gets off the game around. Like, when he has to go to work.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, he goes to work and then sleeps the entire day.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, he stays up all night screaming, and I don't think I closed my eyes--it was maybe around. Like, three, four o'clock.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: When I actually got into the bed, because I was setting up the whole entire time for my uniform.

SA GEREL: Yeah, uniform. Did you touch sleep at least and catch a few--few moments?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay. All right.

SA MANN: Yeah. So, good work. It looks like. Talk--talk us through. What do--do you--what do you got here?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, from the start to finish, is everything got correlated each day of?

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I believe the first through the third one is Wednesday.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, from the third to the fourth one is Thursday to Friday. And then, from there, each--I believe I have each day on.

SA GEREL: Okay. What's that one say? Cleanup and something Angie helped?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. She helped me clean up, and then she left.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, this is, do you--you remember about this, like what time or approximately?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't.

SA GEREL: Like, morning, midday, afternoon.

CSSN COPELAND: I think it was sometime in the morning.

SA GEREL: Okay. What day was that?

CSSN COPELAND: Thursday.

SA MANN: About--so it was the night after you guys had hung out?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Okay. Can you--do you need more paper or space or anything? I don't want to limit it.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's pretty much. Like, everything that I could. Like, just write down like that. I mean, I--I obviously. Like, I was just keeping it. Like, limited. But as long as you have questions, I'll answer them.

SA GEREL: Oh, okay. Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. So--so if you thank you for that, it's really good detail. I really appreciate you doing that. So, any other details you can add to the phone calls that she started having? Like, that--that Wednesday night, CSSN COPELAND: I think the first phone call started off with her calling her--her ex from Texas.

SA GEREL: When--when--when that happened, how was she--was she I--I--what was her--what was her emotional state. Like, when she started calling her?

CSSN COPELAND: She was fine. Like, before she even started talking. Like, she was, she was, like, checking in on him, seeing how he was doing, and then, from there, that's when she told me to come over and meet him, and she was basically saying, like, we kind of looked the same.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, we have, like, the same body build, complexion--like, skin complexion. And she was saying, like, if I--if I was to get to know him. Like, would be. Like, good friends or whatever.

SA GEREL: So, she said, come over and meet him. Like, was it FaceTime or something like that?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. They were----

SA GEREL: Okay. So, you saw him on the phone?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: All right.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, from there. Like, I was, like, "What's good bro?" And he was, like, "What's good?" And then, I just introduced myself, and she introduced me to him. And he kept--we kept it pretty cordial and then, from there, that's when they started talking.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, help me understand a little before that, you said that she uses her ex as kind of. Like, her--her main go to. I might have misunderstood, but I--I was kind of under the impression she--she was upset before that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. That's when we started talking about Gil.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like in his incident. Like, that's when we first started talking about it, and she was, like, "No fucking way." You know, and just talking. She was, like, "I got a call, so and so," whatever her ex's name is.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And then, that's when she was, like, "Oh, this is my ex from Texas." And then, she hopped on FaceTime, and then, from there, she was, like, "Come over so you can meet him." And that's when I met him.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, the--the Gil stuff, how--how long would that conversation with Gil happen before that FaceTime with the ex?

CSSN COPELAND: Probably. Like, seven minutes.

SA GEREL: Okay. Before that seven minutes, how was she acting?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, she was cool. Like, we were listening to music, and then, from there, she was teaching me how to make the tacos. Like, it was, like, corn--corn tacos.
SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]
CSSN COPELAND: Once she put oil in a pan.
SA GEREL: Nice.
CSSN COPELAND: And she would let the, like, the tortilla like--like when it started softening and then, I would fold it in half.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: And then, from there, I would put it on a plate, and then, I would put cheese in there, the taco meat, and then, whatever condiments I wanted, and then, the salsa.
SA GEREL: Okay. Were they good?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It was good. The salsa, that shit was spicy as fuck though. When you eat it. Like, it is good.
SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]
SA MANN: It hurts later. Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. And then, like--like a couple of minutes later, you start feeling in your stomach, and that shit--that shit will hurt.
SA GEREL: Did she make it. Like, from scratch?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Oh, nice. All right. So, before that, she was acting cool. Sometimes, when someone goes from cool to not cool, something triggered it. Do you--do you know what triggered the cool to not cool?

CSSN COPELAND: The bike helmet. Like, when she was talking about the bike helmet, that's what triggered it.

SA GEREL: So, she heard--did--well, tell me about that bike helmet. How did she--how did the bike helmet come up?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know. She was, I guess, texting Gil or some shit, and she had mentioned something, and she was, like, "You want to hear something crazy?" I was, like, "What's up?" And then, that's when she started talking about the Gil thing. And I was, like--I was, like--well, I was, like, "I'm not really going to get y'all situation, but that's crazy. Because he had told me today about such and such."

And that's when I told her about the--the conversation that I had with him on the mess decks about the female that had his bike or that drove on his bike. And she was, like, that's--that, like, she was, like, "That's fucking crazy."

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And she was, like, "Come look at this. And she was, like, showing me the text of when he was asking for the bike helmet back and shit. And then, from there, I'm guessing she just put two and two together.

SA GEREL: Oh. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's what caused her blow up about the bike helmet.

SA GEREL: Okay. Gotcha. All right. And so, after that phone call with the ex, what--how did the night go from there?

CSSN COPELAND: I was just cooling and I was just sitting on the couch, just listening to music while she's over there just calling everybody. Just left and right, just calling people. And then, I remember my roommate had walked in, and he walked in because he--I believe he came from the airport, from leave or some shit.

SA GEREL: Is it your actual roommate?

CSSN COPELAND: Oh, no, no, no. It's the people from across the room. So, inside the room, there's four people per room.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: But not four people per room, but it's four people in the room. SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: But two people per--per room.

SA GEREL: Gotcha. So, you can----

CSSN COPELAND: It was the dude that lives across.

SA GEREL: You know their names?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know his name. I think it's like--his name is, fuck, fuck, fuck. I think it's, like, something Cruz. I think his last name is Cruz.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And he's--he's Mexican. And. Like, he walked in, he is like--he's. Like, "Yo, everything good?" He's like--he looked at her, he is, like, "She good?" I was, like, "Bro, just--just let her have a moment." I'm just sitting on the couch, just cooling. And he was, like, "All right, bro." He's. Like, "if something pop off or you need me, just come knock on the door. I was, like, "All right, cool."

From there, she just kept making other phone calls and shit, and I told her, "I--I--I'm going to just go ahead to sleep. So, if you--if you want to go to sleep, then go ahead," and from there, that's when I went to sleep. By the time I woke up, she was in the bed, and that's when Chief was on the door.

So, I thought it was my roommate. Because sometimes when I close the door or if the door closes, my roommate either knocks or he fiddles with the handle.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: So, I thought it was him. So, I was, like, "Hold on." And I opened the door, and it's my Chief and he's. Like, "What's going on?" And I was, like, "Morning, Chief." And then, obviously, I see it's daylight, so I'm. Like, "Fuck." And he was, like, "Yeah." He was, like, "Having a late start, huh? I was, like, "Yes, Chief," and then, from there, he just told me to clean up and then, find a way to work. He's. Like, "Do I got a way to work?" I was, like, "Yeah. Obviously, when my roommate gets here, he can take me."

But by the time my roommate got home, they were off work. So, that's when the bullshit on my behalf started. And I thought we had a blind turnover because last week we had a--a 96, so I was working that weekend. And how it worked, I would--the processes is if I was working, then I would--I would have to come in at 4:30. And if I wasn't. Like, a regular turnover.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: Like, for instance, today I came in at 7:30 for turnover.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: So, I thought I didn't have to come in Friday. Cool. They didn't really say nothing. And then, Saturday hits, and they tell me I'm UA. I'm not, you know, me being a junior Sailor, not knowing the full details about being marked UA, so I'm not thinking it's a big deal. I was just, like, all right, cool. Like, they'll just see me Monday.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And I'll explain what the fuck happened over the weekend. And then, Sunday hits, that's when more bullshit happens. You know, they had the MAs come get me out of my--my room, and they're basically asking me, like, I'm being marked UA. My command is looking for me and so on. So, I was, like, "All right, cool."

Then, after they left, I called my Chief, and I was, like, "Yo, Chief." I was, like, "Obviously, this is getting out of hand. You know, you guys marking UA and whatnot, whatnot." And my Chief was basically--he, you know, I'm not going to say because you know it, it's him and it's me, but he was telling me, "Go in Monday, because it--it is not really going to make a difference or whatever." But he was, like, "If you want to go in today, you--you know, it's your choice."

So, I was, like, "Yeah, I already got my uniform and shit on, so--so I'll just go in and, you know, see whatever they--they can do. Like, you know. And he was, like, "All right." But he was basically telling me, like, I didn't have to go in. Like he said, I still could waited until Monday, but----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----it would've made shit worse from--from what they said. But, you know, I went in, checked in with the CDO. The CDO was, like, yeah, my parents had called, and she called the command and she called the base. She was worried because I didn't answer her call. So, so. I was, like, "Yeah, I talked to her." She wasn't-- you know, she put belt to ass on me, so.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: From there, they made me do a urinalysis, and then, from urinalysis, I went back home. Well, after I had left, I--I went to Chipotle. It was me and my two roommates that's across the room.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And they took me to Chick-fil-A. We went to Chick-fil-A. We all got something to eat, went back home, ate, and then, the morning comes, I wake up, you know, a little early, and I'm trying to book a Uber, trying to book a Z-trip. Nothing's popping up. Because obviously the--the Truman just got back. So----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----I'm guessing it's hella busy. So, I called--I called Chief Parker, and I was, like, "Morning, Chief." He's. Like, what's going on?" And I was, like, "Do you--you think it's possible--" I was, like, "Do you think, you know, you can give me a ride? Because I tried booking so, and so, and it's not working." But that's when I was, like, "I think it's just because the Truman's back."

So, he was, like, "Yeah." He was, like, "I'm almost at work." But he was, like, "You're fine, I'll come grab you." So, he came and grabbed me, and then, from there, I went to work. Chain of Command was just asking. Like, why was I UA, why I--I didn't answer calls and shit. And then, after that, finished work and then, I--I went home.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And then as the days went by, that's when everything started getting serious. Like NCIS, and everybody started talking to me.

SA GEREL: Yeah. When did you start thinking that--that--that Angie might be part of that? Like, when did you, when did--did you start ever thinking about her as far as the UA thing?

CSSN COPELAND: When I got to work and they basically told me that the both of us has been marked UA.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, is that the first time that that came to mind?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: All right. All right, so let's back up a little bit. On the--the night. So, you guys--Wednesday tonight, you guys are chilling. You watch her go through some stuff. You stayed calm. You--you room roommate comes in and--and says, "Everything cool?" And you're, like, "Yeah." He's. Like, "Let me know if you need help." Was that uncommon? Did he ever have that kind of comment to you before? Like, where he is asking you if, like, you know, the girl's okay or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I mean, at the end of the day. Like, he walked in and saw somebody crying.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like, if you were--I'm not saying like----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----you know, theoretically if you were, you know, my roommate and you walk in to see somebody, you know, just sitting there crying, you would ask is everything----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----okay?

SA GEREL: Is everything okay? No, I--I gotcha. All right. Was there--tell me about when she stopped crying. Was there a timeframe when she calmed down?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, yeah. Afterwards, when I told her. Like, "I'm about to. Like, go to sleep. I was, like, "It's getting late as fuck." I was, like, "I work." And--and she was, like, "Yeah, you're right." And from there, she had just sat down, and I was just, like, "If you need something, then I would just be in bed. Like, you come grab me."

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, around that time, like, she was still crying, but she was also, like, you know, I just told her. Like, "You--you got to chill. Because you know, I got people in the room."

SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: "And if you start making--like, you start getting louder and--and shit, obviously like they're going to wake up."
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: I was, like, "Just, like, if you need to go outside, go ahead." Cool. And I was, like, from there, "I'm go to sleep." And she was, like, "All right." And that's when I went to sleep.
SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. And what--what happened after you went to sleep with her? Or what else happened? Did she stay in the same place, or did she move, or what--what happened there?
CSSN COPELAND: She stayed--she went to bed and then, when I woke up, that's when Chief was knocking on the door.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: And then, from there, he was just asking. Like, I need to get to work and shit.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: That's when I told him. Like, "I'll get to work," but obviously, my roommate coming late as fuck, I couldn't, so.
SA GEREL: Gotcha. Gotcha. So--so we've heard, and read some accounts of like when--when you were first talked to by NCIS and kind of how you shared that stuff. And we watched the--the video of that--where the video, you talking to them this last time, which is more detailed.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]
SA GEREL: And then, this is very helpful too. So, a couple things, and this is normal, so don't worry, but there's a couple things that are just a little different in that. And so, we're trying to understand why. So--so one of the things that is a little different, and some of this is also compared to some of the people are saying that they saw. Some of your roommates and things like that.

But what--we have reason to think that somebody claims they saw you and her in the common room, at least in some portion of being unclothed. Help us understand that.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's what the female had said to me. She said my Chief walked in and saw both of us. Like, with no clothes on. And I was, like, that's not true because obviously my Chief knocked on the door.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And he was--he was, like, knocking on the door and shit and playing with the handle. I thought it was my roommate. I opened the door and I had a full conversation with him.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And--and like I was telling you, that's when the other detective. Like, that's when she, like--I felt like she was, like, antagonizing me. Like that's when she started playing her role, and she's sitting there. Like, basically trying to make it seem like I'm lying or some shit. "Oh, so you're just going to sit here and actually call your Chief a liar?"

SA GEREL: Okay.

SA MANN: Well, I think maybe that could have been a misconception, too. Like that could have come from a roommate, not Chief, like somebody that was seeing you guys. Because my understanding, the first time you talked to everybody, you said you--you guys had been drinking that night?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. She--she had, you know, a couple shots and then, I had about two shots of the buzz ball.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: From there, I was chilling.

SA MANN: Okay. What'd you guys do that night, though? Like, did you party hang out? Like, you're getting late into the hours?

CSSN COPELAND: We were just listening music and she was making her phone calls and shit and whoever she was on the phone with. As far as me, I told her. Like, "I'm--I'm chilling, I'm cooling. Because I--I got work," and she understood. I have work. Like, I mean, at the end of the day, we both work together. We're both CS's. Like, they know the fucking hours we work.

SA MANN: Well, why--I mean, I guess it's kind of. Like, that brings up what--a question of them. Like, why would somebody say that you two are partially or completely unclothed, laying on the floor in the living room area?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know who would've said that, but as far as when I woke up, when my Chief walked into the room, we were both----
SA MANN: I think you guys were in bed, obviously. Yeah. But, like, prior to that, any time throughout the night, were you guys out in the common area?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. We were in the common area the whole--pretty much the whole night until I basically told her I--I was going to sleep.
SA MANN: Did you guys ever take your clothes off?
CSSN COPELAND: I never did. I mean, I know----
SA MANN: Did she?
CSSN COPELAND: ---when I was in my room, I changed my clothes. I know she didn't either.
SA MANN: Okay. What was she--was she clothed when she was in bed with you, and no clothes?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. When she was in bed, she took her clothes off.
SA MANN: Okay. And. Like, what does that mean? Like everything? Did she have undergarments on. Like, bras and underwear?
CSSN COPELAND: No, she just took her top off, and she had her pants and everything on and her underwear. When I woke up, I just had my shirt--I just had my pants on, shirt off, because that's usually how I sleep. You can ask my roommate. It's either I sleep with--in my underwear, and just nothing. Well, just my underwear, or sometimes I'll sleep like with a tank top, shorts.

But for the respect of me having a female on my bed, I had shorts on, so.

SA GEREL: This might be a dumb question. It is a dumb question, but I'm going to ask it anyway. Was your roommate there? Like---

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: He was in the room that whole night?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Okay. His name's Sean. Is that right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, when she got in bed with you, did you know she got in bed with you?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah, I was dead asleep, and I didn't know until, obviously, I woke up and Chief was knocking on the door, and that's when I opened the door and, you know, we had our conversation.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. That's, I--I appreciate you sharing that. And then, that's you--you know--you you--you--you know probably why some of this might be suspicious to people.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: You--you have a bit of a reputation as far as being a ladies' man. Like you--you girls like you. I don't know if that's true or not, but----

CSSN COPELAND: I just be chilling, man.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: If something happens, you know, sometimes it happens, man.

SA GEREL: Well, you--you know, you live your life----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----and then, the--the best you can and--and no criticism or judgment, and then, even maybe a jealousy on that. But--but, this is kind of the reputation you have. So--so with that perspective and to have, like, a--an attractive female who hops in bed with you, I think some people would presume that if you had a chance to have sex with her, you might would do that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Most people probably would. If, you know, fully consensual and stuff like that.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: So, I don't know if that's something that you'd be comfortable talking about, or maybe you've been uncomfortable talking about that. I actually do feel like you or--or have a--a--a gentleman side of you too. So, you don't want to kiss and tell kind of stuff. And--and I respect that.

But again, it's a detail that if there's something like that that happened a bit more, it might make more sense. And--and if we have a--a person and not your Chief, but a person says that they saw you both unclothed in the common room and then, the Chief finds you unclothed in the bed, it kind of just becomes a little more understandable.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: It definitely doesn't mean anything more than you guys had consensual sex. You--you know, as far as that goes. But--but it would help us to understand that a little more. Is there--is there more you want to share about that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's as far as it went. I told her I was going to sleep and shit, and that's pretty much how it went. Obviously, when I woke up, Chief came in, told me, just make sure when I get to work, I--I get to work and shit. From there, I was, like, "All right, cool.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

SA MANN: Did Chief say anything to her?

CSSN COPELAND: He, obviously, he was, like, "Is V/A.R. in there?" And I moved out the way I was, like, "Yeah, she's right there." He saw her laying down and then, he was, like, "All right, cool. Just make sure, you know, she gets home and then you get to work." He was just mainly worried about. Like, for me, getting to work. Because, obviously, I was supposed to be there at a certain time.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And I'm not there. And then, obviously, I didn't go in the rest of the day, so now I'm being marked UA.

SA MANN: Gotcha. So, again, I know the--the sex piece is always a fun conversation. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Like, I surely want to go talk to NCIS about all my sexcapades.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: But, you know, it's not like we want to ask you, we have to. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: Like--like we're trying to let you have a private life, too. But it is important just to make sure, if something happened between you two sexually, that we're aware of that because that does explain things.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: So, and like I said, I know, you know, people have said you've got a little--little bit of game in the tank, so it sounds like you do all right, but----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: ----all that said, you know, if she happened to be one of them. Like, you know, it--it one way or another don't matter whether you did--didn't, but we just want to make sure we have the--
--
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: ----factual status of it. Aside from that, so I kind of want to start working, I think we both do, towards like what now. Right? So, Chief's there. You're, like, well, I guess, I'm just, like, at this point, like you said, not knowing what you don't know, you're, like, "Does it matter if I go to work today or the next day? I--trouble's trouble."

So, Chief leaves. Walk us through the rest of that morning.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Chief left, and then, after that, she woke up. I was, like, "You just want to help me clean, so obviously. Like, I can get to work." She was, like, "Yeah, cool." So, she started helping me clean, and then, from there, I cleaned up my room and shit.

Picked up. Like, my shoes and shit. Put them up--put them up, and then, from there, she left. I was, like, "If you need something, just call or text me." Cool. Got you. She left, and then I called my roommate and I'm asking him. Like, "What time are you getting off?" And he was telling me he doesn't know yet because my--with his squadron, their shit is, it's a little different. Like, they have a day schedule, night schedule. Like, day schedule comes in at a certain time, leaves at a certain time. Night schedule--I don't know what time, but night schedule, and I don't know what schedule he was on.

So, by the time he got home, I just called Chief around dinner time when he told me to come in, I was, like, "I'm--I'm still waiting on my roommate." And he was, like, "All right, cool." So, I just sat down and I went to sleep until he got there. By the--the time he got there, I looked at the time I was, like, "Fuck." I was just, like, well, I'll just go in Monday and obviously tell them what happened.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: I didn't know, like if you don't show up to work one day, you have to, you know, go the next day and be. Like, I'm here.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I just--I was just, like, fuck it. I went to sleep and then, the weekend proceeds, and then, obviously, Sunday or Saturday, they tell me I'm UA. And then, Sunday the MAs come through and shit, and then, from there I go to the--the barge and then--go to the CDO and shit. Tell him, "I'm--I'm here."

And then, Monday hits the next thing that we both were UA, and I was, like, bro, what the fuck? And then, now that's all this.

SA MANN: Yeah. How--how was she when you left, or I'm sorry, when she left, how--how was she acting?
CSSN COPELAND: She was good. Like, she was just like acting normal and shit. Like, how she usually does when she's at work or, like, you know, energetic and shit. And then, she--she was just, like, "Cool. If you need something, just call or text me, or some shit." And she was, like, "All right, bye." And then from there, I finished touching up. Like, putting the dishes in the dishwasher, and that's when I called my roommate asked him. Like, what time's he getting off and shit.
SA GEREL: Okay. How did she feel about the Chief seeing her in your bed?
CSSN COPELAND: At the time she was asleep, so--so I don't really think she cared that much. I mean, she--when she woke up and shit, I was, like, "Chief was in here," and she was, like, "All right." And I was, like, "Yeah. So, I got to start getting ready for work."
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, obviously, I don't think she cared that much.
SA GEREL: All right. I don't know the rules for your barracks. Is that something that's allowed?
CSSN COPELAND: What females?
SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. You can have females in your room.
SA GEREL: All right. So, the fact that she's in your bed is not just an instant problem, it's a, you know--it's allowed is what you're saying?
Did you think the Chief was upset by that or should have--have been upset? Not should have been. But was he upset?
CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so. He was just telling me, like, make sure I get to work and shit.
SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. And how did she feel, or did she make any comment at all about the fact that she--she was in bed with you?
CSSN COPELAND: No. She didn't say anything. She just woke up and shit. But by the time she woke up. Like, I was already up like--like cleaning my room and shit because Chief just walked in.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, did--did you ever feel like interested in asking her what that was about? Like, why she just climbed in bed with you?
CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, that's not--not the first time I slept with a female or had a female. Like, in my bed.
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: There's been times where I had hella people in my room and, you know.
SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, they want to sleep on the bed, all right, cool. And this was a female, she just want to sleep on it. Cool. Like, you go to sleep on the floor, you know. I--I usually sleep on the bed, I'll sleep on the floor, vice versa. Like, this is not the first female that I've had in my room.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I've had many people. Like, groups of people in my room, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay. Yeah. No, thank you for tolerating those questions. You--you--you, as I said, you know, kind of why they might be suspicious to some people.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And I know they're not easy question to answer, but it--it helped us to kind of get a better sense for that. All right. Now we're--we're also taking a little bit of a look at what--at least they thought they heard you say the first time they talked to you, which was not the time you came here, as far as when she left.

So--so, it feels. Like, I think you said, you drove her back to her barracks.

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no. I don't--I don't--I believe I could have said that too, but I was thinking I didn't obtain my roommate's car because my roommate always was at work, so,

SA GEREL: Okay. Help--help me understand that. So, like, we definitely seem to have, like a strong perspective of what it was now. So, help me understand the difference here. Like, why you said that, that first time versus what you're saying now.

CSSN COPELAND: After I actually. Like, taking the time to actually process what happened as things got more serious, obviously, I had to get my story and timeline straight. So, obviously, my roommate didn't have his car.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Or I didn't have my roommate's car because he was at work.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: Obviously, when I knocked on the door, he was not in his room. He was gone, so.

SA GEREL: All right. All right. Okay. Is there any part of you that feels like that could have happened?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, you--okay. Gotcha. So, you just had more time, and I don't want to put words in your mouth, but I'm just trying to make sure I'm understanding you right. So--so you're saying that you had time to think about it? Think about your story and timeline, and that's when you realized you didn't drive her?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Because my roommate wasn't home and I was, like, "Okay, why did I say I took her home? Obviously, if my roommate's not home."

SA GEREL: Okay. All right.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, obviously, when I come in, I switched it up and you guys are going to think it's switched, but at the same time----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I didn't have my roommate's car, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah. No, again. You're reasonable. And you can kind of see why that might seem suspicious, but you're answering it and you're talking about it, so I appreciate that. I mean, sometimes that happens right when we remember something a little differently.

So, it is--it is a very important detail, in terms of, because that is the last moments, right, that you remember from her.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: So--so that's always going to be an important topic when someone goes missing. What's the last thing we can figure out as far as someone sees her or talked to her? Like, that's why I keep asking how is she--how was she acting? All right.

SA MANN: I think kind of fast forwarding from that, so that--when's the last time you actually like eyes on her?

CSSN COPELAND: When she was leaving. Obviously, I was, like, "I'm getting ready for work and shit."
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: And she walked out the door. I was just telling her before she left. Like, "If you need something, just call, text, and shit."
SA GEREL: Did she say anything about what she was doing when she left? Was there a conversation at all?
CSSN COPELAND: No. It was just, "Have a good day and shit." Like, you guys, all the people I hang out with, too. Like, if I'm leaving and shit, like I--I said the same thing. In the case you my boy, if you need something, just call, text me. Safety and if you need something. Like, I got you.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, can you kind of, then--just so she leaves. Can we start just kind of walking through your day a little bit, then? Like, step by step? And if you mess something up, miss something, go back, rewind, and add it in there because this is a great start. Right?
But now we want to kind of start filling in just to see maybe there's something that you're going to recall, remember that'll help point us in the right direction. So, like, she departs, what comes next for you that day?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I finished cleaning, like I said. I was putting. Like, the rest of the dishes that was out into the dishwasher. Just wiping the counters and shit. Vacuuming, sweeping, and then, from there, I was waiting for my roommate.

SA GEREL: What'd you do while you waited?

CSSN COPELAND: I was just watching TV and then, from there, I laid down and then, by the time I woke up, I was, like, "Fuck." Because it was too fucking late. But I called my Chief around dinner time and I--I told him. Like, "I'm still waiting for my roommate." So, he was, like, all right, whenever he gets there, just let me know, whatever."

SA GEREL: What do--do you mean you say you. Like, woke up? Like, took a nap or?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, yeah.

SA GEREL: Not the--this isn't referring back to the morning. I just want to make sure I--I--I'm not confusing.

CSSN COPELAND: Oh, yeah. But yeah, I was just telling him. Like, I was waiting for my roommate----

SA GEREL: Just past time.

CSSN COPELAND: ----yeah. For the time waiting, I just went to sleep.

SA GEREL: Okay. And that was on the couch, you said?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. By the time--no, no, no. It was in my room. Like on my bed.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: By the time he got back, it was too late.

SA MANN: What time was that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know.

SA MANN: Just----

CSSN COPELAND: Like, by the time I woke up, it was--dinner was done.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And by the time, like, dinner starts. Like, our chain of command leaves, so I already knew before----

SA MANN: Are you talking about. Like, on the ship, like when you guys would be preparing dinner?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. Like, but the barge, so.

SA MANN: Or the barge, okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I called him to verify. I was telling him. Like, "I don't think I'm going to make it." I--I told him I was just waiting for my roommate, and he said, "Whenever he gets there, just show face."

SA MANN: What time does dinner room for you guys on the barge?

CSSN COPELAND: 15 and. Like, 1530. And it ends around 17. So, we usually get off around, depending on how fast we clean, like 1730, 1745.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. So, by the time I woke up, it was--it was--dinner was done.

SA GEREL: It was after that. Sometime after 5:30 that night. Conceivably?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Okay. Was your roommate back at that point?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure. I just woke up late.

SA GEREL: Gotcha.

W2: And then, from there, I was just, like, it's no need to argue or nothing, shit. And I was just, like, "Fuck it." And I was, like, when Monday comes, I'll just explain to. Like, what happened. But, obviously, I couldn't because I was freaking UA.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: They waited to tell me Saturday

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So----

SA MANN: So, what then. Like, you wake up, it's too late to go to work. What do you do with your Friday night?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I just stayed home, like in the building. I was, like, going to the--the lounge and shit. Just chilling on my phone, on TikTok and shit. Because I'm--I'm telling you. Like, my roommate is one--one hard person to deal with.

Like, it's--it's--it is like sad, like how certain people live, and he's just one of those people that is just like--like you worried for. It's, like, when I first checked into the room, I think. Like, that first week I slept on the couch.

SA GEREL: Why's that?

CSSN COPELAND: Because he just--the way he lives is filthy.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: He uses the bathroom, doesn't flush the toilet. He's never taken a shower ever since I've been there. The only time he's taken a shower was the first day that I entered the room, and I--I don't even think he took a shower. He just had the water running. He gets off work as soon as he gets off work, he takes off his clothes in the bathroom, and puts on the same pair of clothes he's been wearing for I don't even know how long.

He doesn't wash his clothes. He doesn't clean anything. He just keeps using. Like, for instance, I'll go to the store or some shit. I'll buy some food, or I'll buy like cups of shit. He doesn't ask to use it. All right. It's, like, you know, it's a couple things. A couple, you know, I'm not going to argue. You know? Cool. I'm going to just let him do him.

So, it's just, like, every day I walk in and it's, like, I go in the room and the room just fucking stinks. Like, every--someone I'm going to fucking Walmart getting hella Febreze, hella. Like, shit filter out the room and his fucking stink is overpowering that shit.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I was just, like, bro, I don't know what to do. So--so I just fucking sleep on the couch. Or sometimes I'll just go on the--the lounge or I'll have, like, my homeboys come pick me up and go out. Like, pretty much every weekend we're--we're outside or some shit.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Or they would just come over and we'll chill.

SA GEREL: So, do you go out that weekend as well then?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah, I stayed home. Like some days, like----

SA MANN: On Friday, Saturday, obviously Sunday, you went to work?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. But this weekend I stayed in. I wasn't trying to go outside. I--I remember last weekend I touched out for a little bit, but I mainly stayed inside at my homeboy's crib.

SA MANN: Where is that?

CSSN COPELAND: The PPV off base. So, we just stayed there pretty much the whole weekend, just chilling.
SA MANN: Is--when you say PPV, I know that's, like, the private, but is it, is he in like--like a legitimate house-house or is he in kind of an apartment set up? Like, what's his----
CSSN COPELAND: It's just like my barracks.
SA GEREL: Oh, same thing, just off base.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: Okay. And that's where you were, what, Saturday?
CSSN COPELAND: No, I'm saying, like, the--not this last week.
SA MANN: Oh, the weekend before. Okay. Well, what about that weekend? Like, that Saturday?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. That whole weekend, I stayed in the building. While I was just chilling. Like, in the lounge room or some shit, like on TikTok and Instagram, and then, when Sunday hit and I was taking a shit, that's when the MAs came and they basically told me, like, I'm UA and I need to report to my command. But the whole weekend I literally stayed home.
SA MANN: So, who can kind of help us account for that time? Seeing you in the building, talking to you, interacting with you?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, one, I mean, whatever MAs were there, I'm not sure what MAs were there.
SA MANN: I know Sunday, but I mean, like, Friday, Saturday.

CSSN COPELAND: You got Miss Mary, the front desk.
SA GEREL: Okay. She's there on the weekends as well.
CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure about the weekends. I--I mean, obviously, the Truman got back, so I'm guessing she had to come in because people needed barracks, but usually she's there Monday through Friday, and sometimes over the weekend. I don't know really how their schedule works.
SA MANN: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: Like, I remember Chief was saying, I know they have like--like eight hour shifts and shit. That's. Like, their duty days or whatever, so.
SA GEREL: Did she see you? Did you talk to her?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. We physically--we physically talked.
SA GEREL: When was that?
CSSN COPELAND: I believe it was, like, almost every day of the week. I remember she walked in, and I was sitting there, and she was, like--she was, like, "Are you in this building?" I was, like, I was, like, "Yes, ma'am." I started smiling and she was, like--she was, like, "What room are you in?" I was, like, "335." And she started laughing. She was, like, "Oh." She was, like, "What are you doing?" I was, like, "I--I'm just chilling." And she already knows my story about my roommate. So, she already knows. Like, I don't really associate. Like, how my roommate lives. So, like, if it gets to a certain point or too bad, I just leave the room or I just stay on the couch.

SA GEREL: You guys, when did you have that conversation with her? I believe that was Friday or Saturday. It was one of the two. And then, I remember when I was taking the shit, I remember she tried to open the door. I was out by the lounge, and she opened the--she tried to open the door, and I was, like, I'm--I'm here using the--the restroom. And she was like--like, "Who's that?" And I--I said, "Copeland." And she was, like, "Oh, okay." And she--she kept walking. I believe that was--that was Sunday. So, I'm pretty sure she can account for me--seeing me during the weekends.

SA MANN: Okay. And where did you. Like, did you not go out and get food? Anything?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I got hella food in the house.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I rarely go out to eat. I got hella food at the house.

SA MANN: Did anyone have a conversation with you about Angie at any point that weekend?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I don't think so. Rather than when Chief and them text me saying that I need to report to the ship. Rather than that, you know, I had other people text me, like asking if I was good. I answered my phone. Like most people know. Like, especially my chain of command, when I'm off, I'm off. I--I don't associate work and all that shit.

So, when I--especially, you know, you can talk to CS2 about that too. Like, because even with the incident with the female trying to stab me and shit, and when--when they were calling me and shit, I don't answer my phone for them. Like, I don't really, I don't really like my chain of command. Like, my second classes, they're cool, but when it comes to my first class, I don't fuck with my first class.

So, like, even when my first class texts, I don't text him. So, yeah.

SA MANN: Okay. So, Friday was just filled with TikTok and Instagram.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Same with Saturday and then Sunday as well. That's literally how my whole weekend was. I was just stayed at home in the barracks. And then, obviously, Sunday, that's when the MA's came. So, a little halfway through my day, I was----

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: ----getting ready to leave.

SA GEREL: So, what's something you think that you can tell us that's going to help us figure out where Angie's at?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I got no clue. I mean, obviously, you guys are, I've done everything you could so far. You've questioned me. You fucking destroyed my whole fucking room. Damn near three days consecutive. And you guys got all my shit and so it's, like, at this point I--I--I got nothing else to offer. I--I don't know.

SA MANN: I think the biggest, obviously, you know. Like, gap points are the ones that we got to fill in. Right? So, like--like I said, just logically speaking through this to you to try and give you the best idea of what we've got to accomplish, it's a lot of time, but you just being on your own. Right?

And I'm not saying that you're making that up. Maybe you we're just hanging out in the lounge the whole time, but it leaves a lot of open doors. Right? Because, you know, so maybe somebody could see you for a minute or an hour. You know, there's some other things I think that are maybe important to that conversation that we want to have.

But ultimately, as we sit here right now, so you know, you look at Thursday morning when you guys wake up and it's Chief's there. Like, "Hey man, get to work." There's the entirety of Thursday, entirety of Friday, entirety Saturday, and partial of it a Sunday where it's tough to account for where you are. Right?

Because there's nothing, maybe other than a person at some point, maybe seeing you. So, we really want you to kind of think and go back and say, "Hey, where was I? Who was there? What--what helps lock in your version of what's happened?" which we want to be the truthful one. And--and we want to be able to verify that that helps. Right?

When you tell us something and we can go bounce it off something else, we go, great. That's what happened.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like I'm saying, I mean, miss Mary obviously, try this lady, she saw me. I remember--I can't recall if this was Saturday or Sunday, but I remember when I was sitting in the lounge, there was a--there was a white male that walked in. He offered me a bag of chips. I was, like, "Oh, I'm good." But they made him come into the lounge because they were waxing the floor.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: So, he tried to leave a couple times and they kept telling to come back and tell they're done waxing the floor. So, I had another encounterment with another male inside the lounge.

SA MANN: What day was that?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I said it was either Saturday or Sunday.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: bI couldn't recall which--which day it was. They also had hella--hella workers up there as well. So, they were waxing the floor. They obviously saw me. They--they told the both of us that we can leave now and then, I was, like, cool. I just walked down to my room.

SA MANN: Okay. Walking this back a little bit, too, because you know, it's--it's not completely off the table. Right? But generally if somebody, and--and, you know, I'm not saying this happened, but if somebody were to harm themselves or just say, "Hey, I'm going to go off the radar, like I'm going to disappear," there's signs, right? It's hard to, especially for, you know, 20-year-old kid, 21-year-old girl, whatever she is at the--at this point, to really do all that without somebody kind of having some stamp. She's so, you know, just like you, it's that social media, you're always ingrained, you're on there.

So, it's--it's rare that somebody would just gone, right? Like without a trace. So, that's why we're asking a lot of these, probably to you, ambiguous, some kind of odd questions. It's because it's a, you know, there always a time for something to break from the norm, but more common is somebody ends up given some indicators, given some signs.

Something to provide a reason for, this is why I'm going to go do this, or this is why I'm going to disappear. This is why I feel like I need to go harm myself, or whatever it may be, if that's what happened. And I--I think at this point, you know, I know you have a special spot in your heart for family, and obviously that's what's eaten away at you a lot today.

But having now seen, you know, Angie's mom and just the--the--the immense amount of pain that she seems to be in, having no idea, if nothing else, I think we all owe her just the best time talking through this, so we can to try and make sure that we're not missing any small stone to turnover.

Because for that hope that she has. Right? Like--like we're going to sit here and--and say, we--we need to do everything we can to try and find this girl.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: And, you know, that may unfortunately come down to alive or not.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: But, it gives a sense of closure, and I think that family piece is really going to be the motivator. Because, especially, you know, I can imagine if that happened to you, your mom was worried, but it was just a--a simple baby UA, but they still know where you are. And you guys, you alluded to that conversation happened.

And so, think about her mom now and how long has it been, you know, we're talking over a week and not having a single word of your daughter. You used to talk to her every day. Like, that's--that's tough. So, I know that family thing hits, and that's why we're just probably, it feels like bludgeon in you with a lot of questions that seem repetitive or redundant, but we're just trying to spark something.

Maybe it comes out a different way. Maybe you've got some detail that was buried before that it circles back. You're, like, "Oh, you know what?" And that's what we really want to do with you. That's what these kind of tools are for. That's why we do it. Because it's bigger than you. Bigger than me, bigger than him. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: You know, like let's say this was nefarious. Crime piece aside, if you could say something or do something that matters at this point. Like, that matters, but finding her matters more, right? So, I think that's--that's everybody's goal here. And I know you sort of said earlier. You have your own aspirations for----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----what's with her. But, you know, if you were able to send her a message now and maybe move the--move the needle or get her back or figure out where she was, what--what do you think you could say in that area that would help?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, not much. I mean, shit. Like I said, when she left, I told her if she needs something, just call or text me. I mean, I text her after Chief had said--after Chief had notified me that we both were UA. And I text, I was, like, "Bro. Like, you good? Like they marked fricking, both of us UA."

And--and at first I was, like, mad because I was, like, what the fuck?

SA GEREL: What do you mean?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, I was mad because I was, like, "Why the fuck did like Chief Mark, both of us UA?" At that point, I was pissed. Honestly, I was more pissed at Chief. But at the end of the day. Like, I can't argue. At the end of the day, like----

SA GEREL: So, you sent her that text?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I was just, like, I--I text her. I was saying--I was, like, "Bro, is you good? Like, they're freaking marking us both UA."

SA MANN: What'd she say to that?

CSSN COPELAND: She didn't say anything.

SA MANN: Could you tell if she--she read it?

CSSN COPELAND: Hm?

SA MANN: You know, like you get the little things where it says hey, like if somebody read this or didn't read it?

CSSN COPELAND: No. Her shit was on Do Not Disturb.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I was just, like, all right, cool. And then, from there, that's when the days proceeded. And then, they ended up taking my phone and shit.

SA MANN: You say her hers was on Do Not Disturb. What do you mean? Like, the phone, the--like, entire. Like, you can see that on the message?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It says phone--her number was silenced.

SA MANN: Oh. So, you send somebody that text, it'll tell you. Like, they're not getting it.

CSSN COPELAND: No, it'll tell you. Like, for instance. Like, my phone stays on Do Not Disturb. And through the settings, you can either have it to allow you to have your phone. Like, show up. Like, on Do Not Disturb.

SA MANN: Right.

CSSN COPELAND: Or sometimes you could just receive the messages and it isn't. Like, you know, notify them back and your phone will not-

---

SA MANN: Oh, so you're saying her setting was set, so when you sent it----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----you immediately knew?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. When I sent on the message at the bottom, it was saying her--her shit was silences.

SA MANN: Okay. Did you ever go back and look and see if she read it?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I just texted. I mean, at the end of the day, if somebody sends me a text and if you reply, you reply. If you don't----

SA MANN: No, I got it. You can't follow up on everything.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: All right.

SA GEREL: In terms of those phone settings, how do you keep your phone settings? I think you just said a little bit. You--you have yours on Do Not Disturb?

CSSN COPELAND: My phone stays on Do Not Disturb 24-7.

SA GEREL: Do you share your location with your--with your people?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah, I mean, like the group of people I used to hang out with, I would turn my settings. Like, I would share my location just for like going out and shit. So, we know where each other are. Like--like, for instance. Like, we'll go somewhere and then, we'll regroup or like go to a party.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: We go here just seeing what--what options are happening or, like, what's going on tonight, and then, we regroup and shit.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, it sounds like that's a setting you turn on, turn off depending on the circumstances.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like, there's a female I talked to and my--my location stay on for her, but most of the--the time before that my location home was off.
SA MANN: Who's, who's that?
CSSN COPELAND: A female back at home.
SA MANN: Okay.
SA GEREL: Yeah. So, one of the things that we may have reason to understand is that your location settings turned off over the weekend, and it helps--help me understand that, like, why over the weekend you would've turned off your location sharing?
CSSN COPELAND: Because I mean, obviously, one thing about me is I don't like people getting in my business. I remember that somebody in the group chat said something of my location. Like, they stalked me and shit. I was, like, bro, so I turned that shit off.
SA MANN: When did they say that?
CSSN COPELAND: It was in a group chat, like, bro on the group chat.
SA MANN: Yeah. Yeah. But I mean, when did somebody say something about your location in the chat that made you turn it off?
CSSN COPELAND: During the weekend. Like, if I'm at home, why do they look at my location? Like, cool. I mean, it could have came to the crib or some shit or texted me, like, I'm on the way to the crib. All right, cool.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: But if you're just watching. Like, target watching where I'm at, that's--I find that a little suspect.

SA GEREL: Yeah. That's not--that's not comfortable.

SA MANN: Oh, yeah. So, do you remember doing that, though? This weekend?

Okay. All right.

CSSN COPELAND: Location was on for like one--one or two people.

SA MANN: The whole weekend.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It was, like, because we were out, so they had my location. It was, like, two people. Because we were hanging out with some people at my homeboy's crib, and I kept my location on. But that was not--not this previous weekend, but the weekend before that, like, when we were out and then, obviously, sometimes--usually I would turn it off. Or sometimes. Like, certain people, I share my location just for 24 hours, or sometimes I'll keep it indefinitely, or however you say that shit.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, eventually, I'll turn that shit off.

SA MANN: But the girl from back home always on.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like, ours is different. So, she has me on Life 360.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, on Snapchat. Like those--they just have my number. SA MANN: Do you still have Life 360 on there?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: And so, obviously that--you'd have to go and. Like, turn that off in the app separate to----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----kill it. So, would she--like, would that be on throughout that weekend? So, when they look at that phone data specifically, they're going to see. Like, here I am.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Yeah. That's why we're asking. It's very helpful. So, if we have people that can say, yeah, we saw Copeland here, here, here throughout the weekend. Of course, the helps a lot.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And we're working on that. The phone is great too because you know, if it--it'll show where it's at, so they'll able to see where the phone's at, which is also very helpful. That's why we're asking.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I gotcha.

SA GEREL: But we're--we're trying to help you the best we can on-- on those details. It sounds like sometimes you're not super good with names, so if you--if you could think of any other names like that. You said you--you ran into one white dude over the weekend who gave you a bag of chips. He--he offered.
CSSN COPELAND: He didn't give----
SA GEREL: Offered. Okay. Anything else you can tell us about that instance? That would be very helpful.
CSSN COPELAND: Shit, I've never seen the dude a day in my life, so.
SA GEREL: Okay. Did he seem like a young guy? Like a---- CSSN COPELAND: He looked like--yeah, he looked like he was young.
Like, anywhere from out of high school to, I'd say, like, 20 to 21.
SA GEREL: Like, a Sailor is what you----okay. So, you've never seen him before?
CSSN COPELAND: No.
SA GEREL: So, what prompted him to offer you chips? Did you say anything in conversation or?
CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, the--they told him to go in there and then he walked in there and he was, like, "What's up?" I said, "What's good?" And then he sat down. He was just on his phone.
And then he tried to leave, and he came back, and you could tell he was, like, catching an attitude. And I was, like, "You good?" He was, like, "Nah, they keep fucking turning me around," because he's trying to get to his room.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: But they keep turning him around. He was, like, "I almost slipped by, but he saw him in the corner."

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I was, like, "Oh shit, bro." I started laughing. He was, like, "You want a bag of chips?" I was, like, "What--what kind of chips do you have?" And he started naming all the shit he had in there. I was, like, "Nah, I'm good." I was, like, "I--I usually like to eat hot. Like, hot chips and shit."

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: He was, like, "Okay." I was, like, "Yeah." And from there, I think he tried to leave like one more time. They turned him around and then, after that, they allowed us to leave.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. In--in terms of your phone, and again, just to make sure you've, you've tested your memory as much as you can. If--if we were at see Ping in any other parts of Tidewater. Like, in another city over the weekend, any--any way we can--you can help us understand that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like I said, the location and shit has been on for, on Life 360, so I'm sure you can look through the app and see----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----where, what's been the whole weekend.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: As far as, like, my settings for Apple and shit, I don't know how that works for--I don't know how that shit works.

SA GEREL: But if it. Like, showed up like in Hampton or Suffolk or something, or downtown Norfolk. Like, did--did any--any chances you could remember. Like, being in a different place?

CSSN COPELAND: I've been home the whole weekend.

SA GEREL: Okay. I know you're trying hard to remember. I just wanted to give you a chance to give your thoughts on it.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not really thinking, I just know.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I was home the whole weekend.

SA GEREL: Okay.

SA MANN: Okay.

SA GEREL: Did you loan your phone to anybody?

CSSN COPELAND: Hmm.

SA GEREL: Did--did you loan your phone to anybody? Anybody have your phone but you?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I just had it.

SA GEREL: Okay.

SA MANN: Was there any time you were. Like, away from your phone for a period of time?
CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, usually my phone stays with me.
SA MANN: Was there any break of that usual, like, that weekend where you maybe left it in your room for a while? Like, had to go charge it because it died, or you went and did something else?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, I mean, sometimes if it dies, then it just die, and then, whenever I get to charge it, then I charge it. I'm not, like, the type of person that's, like, "Oh, I need my phone." You know, if I don't have it, I don't have it.

But, like, I mean, sometimes there's, like, people I need to call or some shit, and I'll text him and shit. And other than that, I'm not like a type of person that's, like, "Oh, I'm going to die if I don't have my phone, so."

SA GEREL: All right. Do you have--do you have more than one phone? Did they understand that right?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I told them I had another phone, but it's broke. That's why I had bought a--sold the phone that I have now. The black one?
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: That's my phone. I had one before that, and it broke. So, through my AT&T, I basically got another phone through my insurance.

SA GEREL: Okay. And they were basically saying, like, I got 31 days to turn it in or else, basically, I got to charge my next bill.
SA MANN: When--when did it break the other phone?
CSSN COPELAND: A couple months ago.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, a while ago?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. It was a while ago.
SA GEREL: What--what happened to it? How did it break?
CSSN COPELAND: I dropped it. I mean, obviously, I don't have a case on my phone, so I dropped it and that's it. The whole front and the back----
SA MANN: That's a bad day.
CSSN COPELAND: ----completely shattered.
SA GEREL: That is a bad day.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: All right. Do you have more before I do a quick little transition?
SA MANN: No, I'm good.
SA GEREL: I want to make sure that we do take good care of your time and respectful like we talked about. So, you've been super cooperative and helpful, and we appreciate that.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: How are are you feeling?
CSSN COPELAND: I'm fine.

SA GEREL: Okay. You need anything from us? You need more water or more food? You need a bathroom break?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Do you mind if I use the restroom?
SA GEREL: Of course. Let's take care of that. And then, we'll want to make sure it's cleared out? We have little game plan after that. And then, we'll get--we'll get you to the next thing. Any questions for me?
CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, you're doing okay. Now, as far as, like, I--I know you were a little low asleep and just kind of stressed out. Do you feel like you're able to hear things, make decisions, recall things properly? Do you do you feel like you're--in your--like able to be as you normally are?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. So, tell--tell me if that changes. Okay. I--I want to talk to Copeland, you know, who's fully attentive and remembering and thinking. I--I don't want any other version where you're just, like, ah, you know, I don't feel good enough to actually talk or think about this stuff. Your mental health important to me.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: Who do you talk to when you feel like you need a little talking to? Like, you need a boost.

CSSN COPELAND: My homeboy's name's JJ, like the CS I work with you.
SA GEREL: You talked to JJ?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, that's my--my dude to go to.
SA GEREL: How about family, friends, anything like that?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean----
SA GEREL: Well, yeah, JJ's your friend. But any family or, like, parents or?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, family wise I go to my mom.
SA GEREL: All right.
SA MANN: Yeah. You're good. The door's just locked on this.
SA GEREL: That's okay.
SA GEREL: Run around and get her her open.
[SA Mann, SA Gerel, and CSSN Copeland departed the room at timestamp 2:43:40.]
[SA Mann, SA Gerel, and CSSN Copeland entered the room at timestamp 2:45:17.]
SA MANN: Need anything?
CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
SA MANN: I know, you know, there's a lot that we're talking through and going through. Our best interest at this point is your best interest in that we want to try to give you a chance to rule some things out, too. So, I think we've got some other steps that we want to talk through here shortly about how we can get some things from you that'll help us do that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: So, we're going to walk you through what that entails, probably as well.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Yeah. For sure. And again, thank you for helping us as much as you can.

W Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: So, we're trying to get a couple of things, not that we need them right now, but we might need them pretty quickly in the future. One of those, when we start looking for, like DNA and things like that, we got to be able to exclude people that would naturally have DNA in certain places.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Do you mind giving us some of your DNA?

CSSN COPELAND: What do you--you mean by that?

SA GEREL: Just get a swab of your mouth. They have it on--on samples in case they need to compare anything.

CSSN COPELAND: When.

SA GEREL: Like, right now. Yeah. So, it is a simple process. So, if you said, "Yeah, I'm cool with that," the other agent would come in and take a little swab, get inside of your mouth, and then we have it for the case as it calls.

CSSN COPELAND: As far as my DNA for what?

SA MANN: So, it just rules you out. Right? Like, if so, if they find some DNA and they're, like, hey, we don't know whose this is. Like say there's a--a drop of blood, a tear or something, and we want to know, "Hey, was she here?" Well, if it's yours, we don't have your DNA that to run it against, right? So, we'll know it's yours. If it's hers, we--she's not here. Right? We can't get hers. So, we can at least say, "Hey, it isn't his, maybe it's hers," or something like that. So, it gives us just an idea of are we looking at the right places to try and find her?

CSSN COPELAND: All right.

SA GEREL: You cool with that?

SA MANN: That's sound good. I mean, it's just basically it's like--like a big Q-tip, but they just----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: It doesn't hurt anything.

SA MANN: No. It's just a cotton swab.

SA GEREL: It's even less intrusive than like the COVID test if you've had any of those.

SA MANN: Yeah. We're not shoving things into your brain to make sure you don't got COVID.

SA GEREL: So, okay. Well, here's that form. So, this is--it's called Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure. All it is is they're getting it for the main concept of it if they have to look or compare things, in the search for Angie. Okay?

So, the thing that you're actually getting is--is DNA, and it's in that swab. Feel free to review of it if you're good with that, just give me a good signature right here.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm signing where?

SA GEREL: Right here. You got any questions about it?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. I'll give this to the--the lady and then, she'll be here to go grab that.

SA MANN: So, she's coming in. She's going to wear a mask. She's going to be like up in your junk. So, not that she's sick or anything, but just to make sure you

CSSN COPELAND: You want me to sit or stand?

SA: No, you're fine. You can just sit--sit right there.

SA MANN: It's just a long Q-tip.

SA: Yeah. I'm just going to get your cheek cells in there. So, shouldn't hurt at all, but if I do, just let me know. I'm just going to do basically four swabs total. Just two and two.

Okay. This open mouth. I'm just going to get all the corners here.

SA MANN: Two down. Got a little cotton mouth like now.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Got water. Wash that down once you're done. Don't take a sip quite yet.

SA GEREL: Yeah, when she's done. Do you need more?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I got a little bit in there.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah, just get that cotton out of the mouth.

SA: But still not as bad as the dentist, I feel like.

SA MANN: Oh, no, it's not. We were talking COVID test like I disappears into your brain right there.

SA: Yep.

SA MANN: I--I think I literally----

SA: Perfect. Thank you.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

SA: Do you have the time--what time it is?

SA MANN: It is 1133.

SA: 1133. Thank you.

SA MANN: Yes, ma'am.

SA: Perfect. Thank you.

SA MANN: All right.

CSSN COPELAND: All good, sir?

SA GEREL: Hold tight.

SA MANN: You got water out? No, I--I mean, technically yes, whenever you want. You can always say no. But, if you're willing to hang out for a little bit, I think we're want talk through a couple things, or if your good with that.

CSSN COPELAND: That's fine.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. So, 1130 since you can't see time. So, what--what questions you got for us?

CSSN COPELAND: Nothing.

SA GEREL: Okay. We've covered some--some similar stuff you've already talked about, a couple of new things, and sometimes that will prompt a question or, like, if you--you want some clarification on what we know about what's happening? Anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: Not really.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. I appreciate that. I just want to, as I mentioned to you, make sure you--you know, that we're trying to be good hosts. So, I don't want to just bombard you with questions about giving you chance to talk a little bit, too. Free--free talk.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: What I think would be good if we have a few of the other agents that are involved in the case. It'd probably be good for Tyler and I to walk out and just kind of get our--our--our heads together as to make sure we've answered all the questions we can with you today.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: I--I think we getting real, real close. Do you have anything you want to ask him about before we do that?
SA MANN: No. I mean did were--were you hanging on to something there? Because I feel like there's kind of that pause, like, "Oh, maybe." Like you--you got anything that's sort of resonating?
CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.]
SA MANN: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: I--I was just thinking, like, do I got any questions for y'all? I don't--there's not really much. At the end of the day, y'all are doing your jobs, so.
SA MANN: Okay.
SA GEREL: Yeah. We appreciate it much.
SA MANN: Perfect.
SA GEREL: Well, no, just thank you for understanding that. I mean, I hope even though it is part of us doing our jobs, hopefully you--you believe and feel that we treated you good. Certainly tried to, and you certainly treated us good. So, thank you for that.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir. All right, well, give us a few minutes. You--you want some water while you're waiting on this?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, please.
SA GEREL: I don't think it'll be too long. I mean, I think it's probably going to be----

SA MANN: Yeah, we'll get you some water.
SA GEREL: Yeah. Fifteen minutes or so, we're moving on to----
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, please.
SA GEREL: You want a minute or more food? Did you eat your beef stick?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay.
[SA Mann and SA Gerel departed the room at timestamp 2:53:20.]
[SA Gerel entered the room at timestamp 2:55:18.]
SA GEREL: Okay. I got you another water. Yeah, we only have a couple more questions. And so, your car is jacked up. Is that right?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: Where's it at?
CSSN COPELAND: It's not my car, it's my homeboy's car, but I'm sure he has it now.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: It was the--the head gasket was fucked up, but my car is totaled and so----
SA GEREL: Okay. The one that you consider your car, the totaled one?
CSSN COPELAND: No, my car, like, my actual car is totaled, so.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, it's like just gone.

CSSN COPELAND: Gone, yeah.
SA GEREL: All right. How do you get around without your--your car?
CSSN COPELAND: Either my roommate takes me to work, and the days my roommate doesn't take me to work, then I have somebody within my ship come and pick me up.
SA GEREL: Yeah.
[SA Mann entered the room at timestamp 2:53:20.]
SA MANN: Come on in.
SA GEREL: So, Sean, your roommate takes you around?
CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no.
SA MANN: In case you want that.
CSSN COPELAND: Thank you. Not Sean. The African guy.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: With the car.
SA GEREL: Oh, okay. You ride with him a lot. Any other cars that you frequently use? Like, if you're just trying to go to the store or anything?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, whenever I need to go to the store or some shit, I--I use my roommate, like, I ask him. You know? Do you think you can take me to the store? Or can I use your car to go to the store?
SA GEREL: Okay. What kind of car does he drive?
CSSN COPELAND: A white Jeep.

SA GEREL: Okay. All right. And then any other cars that you've been driving, like, in the last couple months?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: All right. What, you mentioned the traffic thing? Is that right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: What--what kind of car were you involved with in the traffic thing?

CSSN COPELAND: A Dodge Challenger, and that was all the way back in February.

SA GEREL: Yeah. That is while back. What--what happened with that? I know I'm--it is nothing to do with what we're talking about, but I'm just curious what happened.

CSSN COPELAND: I was speeding.

SA GEREL: Okay. You got a--you got a public defender?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I mean, I clearly can't talk to her because I don't have my phone.

SA GEREL: So, now people don't normally get public defenders for, like, a speeding, like did, were you drinking or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I got what I got--it was a reckless driving.

SA GEREL: Oh, reckless.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I was going 118 in a 55.

SA GEREL: What?

SA MANN: Cruising.
SA GEREL: All right, well that's none of my business, but I hope that turns out okay for you. Well, can you borrow a friend's phone to call that attorney?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I don't, I--I, me personally, I don't know. Because I don't have--like, the attorney she called a couple of weeks ago.
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: And I told her, I was, like, "Yeah, I'm at work right now." And she was, like, "Oh, I'm sorry. And she was asking me, like, "What's a good time?" And I was, like, "You can call the next day because I'm off."
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: And she was, like, "All right." I've never heard from her again.
SA GEREL: Yeah. They can be hard to get a hold of. Well, I encourage you to keep trying. Again, none of my business, but yeah. Keep trying. Ship phone, base phone, barracks phone. Whatever you can find.
But what questions do you have for us?
CSSN COPELAND: Nothing as of right now.
SA GEREL: And thank you for--for talking to us today. I'm going to give you last thoughts. I hope that we can talk again. I hope that we can get--get a chance to interact with you a day that you're feeling better, maybe a little less stressed, and maybe consider the polygraph.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: It is one of the few things out there that can say, like, "I didn't do it, and let me help you prove it." Like, that's one of the few things that actually does that.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: So, again, like you're going to have people that are, you know, until--until we find her, you're going to have people that are speculating and saying stuff. You know the truth in your heart. You don't let them bother you anymore than it's going to bother you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: But you might be able to tell them one day, like, "I'm telling you, I--I didn't do it, plus I passed my polygraph." You know, that means a lot to some people. So, just kind of keep that in mind. And then, we are here for you. So, you can even, let--do you have contact information for NCIS? Do you have anybody's contact number from here?

CSSN COPELAND: I have the--the male that I talked to. Not the male, I think it was just the female.

SA GEREL: The shorter one.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. So, you can call her and you can say, whatever you want to say, but if you change your mind and say, like, "I'm ready, let them know that I'll take it." We will get to you soon as we can after you make that call, and we might check back in with you if it's okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: Just to see how you're feeling about whether you feel like you could be ready to do that. Obviously, if we find her, then--then that might not be--we may have to never do that. But if--while the--while the--the search is on, it could be very, you know, again, probably help you in people looking.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Any questions about that?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: All right. Thank you for thinking about it. I--I really appreciate that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Tyler, you got anything?

SA MANN: I--I don't think so. I mean, if you hear something, let somebody know.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: Like I--I guess, you know, I'd be remiss if I--I didn't ask, like, what would you--what--what do you want to, what do you think the perfect outcome here is?

CSSN COPELAND: Shit, I don't--I don't know. As much as you guys knows, that's as much as I know. So, I--I----

SA MANN: Oh no, but I mean, like, take all that off the table. How--how do you want to see this end?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, hopefully y'all find her and she's okay.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's the only thing that everybody's worried about right now. Because obviously nobody knows where her whereabouts are right now, so.

SA MANN: Sure. So, that's part of the--the reason we ask you to keep doing your part to make that happen. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: So, you know, if you hear something small, large, anywhere between, tell somebody, please.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: All right. Otherwise, I think you've got some things to tend this afternoon, unfortunately, but yeah. Good luck with that.

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

SA MANN: If you will give us some time to coordinate, you--somebody dropped you off here?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. My--I believe my lieutenant's out there.

SA MANN: Oh, is he still here?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I hope so, shit.

SA MANN: We have a phone, I think, if he's not. So we'll--let--give us a few minutes to get a hold of him. Are you good? Just hanging tight for a few minutes here?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Okay. I mean, if you want to put your head down, take a nap. Like, we can, I'll get this out of the way.

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

SA MANN: Put it up here. All right. So, feel free to jump over there if you want to put your head down or something, but catch up on some of that sleep you've been missing.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

SA MANN: We'll be right back. Thank you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, no problem.

[SA Mann and SA Gerel departed the room at timestamp 3:01:38.]

CSSN COPELAND: All right.

SA GEREL: That all right?

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

SA GEREL: No problem.

[SA Mann entered the room at timestamp 3:02:27.]
SA MANN: You're good, man. I'm just going to hang in here.
CSSN COPELAND: Is he out there or here, or is he on his way?
SA MANN: No, we just called him, though, so he should be on his way. I think they--we asked them to give him a ring before we came in, I know that. But we'll, I'm going to pull this so I can just make sure, because I need my phone. Hey man, what's happening? So, just give me a second.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA MANN: I'll be back with you here shortly. Okay?
CSSN COPELAND: Okay.
[SA Mann departed the room at timestamp 3:02:49.]
[SA Mann and SA Gerel entered the room at timestamp 3:04:16.]
SA GEREL: All right. Your lieutenant's here. All right, last--last--last call. Any questions? You got anything we can help you with?
CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
SA GEREL: How you feeling? I know other than what we already talked about. How you feeling?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I mean, I'm just going with the flow. Just trying---- SA GEREL: Okay. So, you seem like you're under a little bit of stress, but you seem like you got it together. You seem strong.

But I--I--I've been along before and I--I don't want to make any assumptions. So, you know, I--I care about your mental health.

Do you have any worries that you would--any worries about hurting yourself or anybody else?

CSSN COPELAND: Not nobody else. I mean, after that day, I feel like I'm straight. I mean, I'm holding it together, but----

SA GEREL: Okay. And you said you had no worries about anybody else. How about yourself?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I'm fine.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, you you--you may or may not know, but, like, your command's got access to resources, like, if you need to talk. Like, I was asking you earlier who you talked to when you get--need to get stuff off your mind. Don't keep stuff bottled in. You know, if you need to go talk to a chaplain or a counselor, there's nothing wrong with that.

You--you--you've been through some things that would cause anybody to feel a certain kind of way. So, like, don't--don't be hero. You can talk to people if you need to. Okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: But you good?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: You strong?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: All right. Let's go.

CSSN COPELAND: Huh?

SA MANN: I said, let's get you on out of here. Got that water?

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

SA MANN: So, cover with all your stuff should be there. Make sure it's all there before you walk out.

[SA Mann, SA Gerel, and CSSN Copeland departed the room at timestamp 3:05:58.]

SA MANN: Concluded at 1148. Command--member released to command.

[End of interview.]

1. BACKGROUND

1.1. On 31May25, NCIS initiated an investigation regarding a missing person report. The missing person was later identified as V/ A. R.), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). According to witnesses, V/ A. R. was last seen with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG-95 at his barracks located at Willis Manor (Building X-2), Room 335, 9712 Virginia Ave, Norfolk, VA on board Naval Station Norfolk. Reporting Forensic Consultant (RFC) responded to Building X-2, Room 335 to identify and document any suspected bloodstains and other items of potential forensic value on scene.

2. ARRIVAL, JURISDICTION, AND AUTHORIZATION

2.1. On 03Jun25 at approximately 2004 hours, Reporting Forensic Consultant (RFC), Participating Agents (PAs) Joy NAROWSKI, Alison FOX, Brandon MOORE, Ashley ULLOM, Lauren GODETTE and Supervisory Special Agent (SSA) Danielle ORTIZ arrived at Building X-2, see figure 1. NCIS maintains primary jurisdiction. NCIS conducted a search of S/COPELAND's residence pursuant to a Command Authorization for Search and Seizure (CASS).

3. SCENE OBSERVATIONS—BUILDING X-2, ROOM 335

3.1. Building X-2 is a Navy unaccompanied housing military barracks with five floors containing multiple residences, see figure 2. Building X-2 has a parking lot located to the south of the building. Building X-2 is positioned in between Virginia Avenue and Maryland Avenue. Room 335 is located in the east wing, on the third floor, along the south side of the building.

3.2. Upon entering Room 335, RFC observed a foyer which led into the kitchen. South of the kitchen was a living room. RFC observed a broken coffee table in the living room. The coffee table also contained two red plastic cups and an opened bottle of "Uptown Cocktails" Strawberry Margarita ready-to-drink cocktail. Parallel to the kitchen and living room were two suites containing two single beds running along the east and west end of the residence. S/COPELAND was assigned to Suite B. Suite B contained two single beds, two desks, two closets, two sink vanities, and a single half bathroom which contained a toilet and shower. S/COPELAND's bed and closet were identified with a placard labeled as "BA". S/COPELAND's bed and desk were located along the east wall of the suite. North of S/COPELAND's bedroom, RFC observed a foyer leading into the closet and bathroom. RFC created a digital sketch displaying the layout of Room 335, see figure 3.

4. SCENE OBSERVATIONS—ROOM 335, SUITE B

4.1. RFC entered Suite B, see figures 8-14, and observed two single beds, two desks, two closets, two sink vanities, and a single half bathroom which contained a toilet and shower shared by the assigned suitemates. According to SSA ORTIZ, YN3 Sean MONAGHAN (YN3 MONAGHAN), USN, Helicopter Mine Countermeasures Squadron (HM 12), is the sole suitemate with S/COPELAND. SSA ORTIZ relayed YN3 MONAGHAN's belongings are assigned to bed, sink and closet labeled "BB" while S/COPELAND's belongings are assigned to bed, sink and closet labeled "BA".

5. SCENE OBSERVATIONS—HALF BATHROOM INSIDE SUITE B

5.1. RFC entered the half bathroom within Suite B and did not identify any visible bloodstain evidence within this area of the residence.

6. BLUESTAR APPLICATION—SINK VANITY

6.1. RFC was notified by PA NAROWSKI that she observed a suspected bloodstain on the northeast wall above the vanity sink belonging to S/COPELAND, see figure 15. PA NAROWSKI and the NCISRA Norfolk, VA Major Case Response Team (MCRT) conducted a preliminary test for the presence of blood on the stain using a Hemastix blood reagent test strip, yielding positive results. PA NAROWSKI and the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT documented the suspected bloodstain and seized a swab from the area. These actions are documented under a separate report.

6.2. Listed on the Bluestar Forensics website, Bluestar is a chemical reagent which reveals the presence of blood in a large or minute/diluted quantity. The reaction occurs when Bluestar interacts with the heme component of blood producing a blue luminescence. False positives can occur when Bluestar comes in contact with household chemicals such as detergents, bleach or copper, per the Bluestar Forensic website, producing a white or faded blue luminescence. Prior to using Bluestar throughout the scene a control sample test was conducted producing a positive reaction.

6.3. RFC then conducted a preliminary test for the presence of blood using a Bluestar forensic kit along the sink vanity and sink bowl belonging to S/COPELAND, yielding positive results. RFC attempted to capture photographs of the Bluestar reaction on the sink bowl prior to the collection of items deemed as forensic value but was unsuccessful. RFC collected a swab from the stain within this area and entered it into the NCISRA Norfolk, VA Evidence Custody System under Evidence Custody Document Number JQNT4:

Item# NAH9K—One (1) swab taken from inside bathroom sink bowl containing suspected blood after Bluestar application

7. BLUESTAR APPLICATION—CLOSET BA

7.1. The NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT completed a scene documentation of Room 335 which included photographs, a scene sketch, and notes. Several items of evidence were identified and seized. These actions are documented under a separate report. During the scene documentation, the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT requested assistance from Virginia Department of Emergency Management K9 Kira and Handler Andrew PISKE to identify human remains and/or other items of potential forensic value in the captioned investigation. K9 Kira and Handler PISKE conducted a search of Room 335, Suite B. K9 Kira and Handler PISKE alerted to the closet area labeled “BA”. RFC did not observe biological matter or suspected bloodstains in the closet with the unaided eye and subsequently the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT effected photographic coverage, see figure 16. RFC and the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT conducted a visual search of the belongings inside the closet and did not observe biological matter or suspected bloodstains. The NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT removed all belongings from the closet, see figure 17.

7.2. RFC then conducted a preliminary test for the presence of blood using a BLUESTAR forensic kit, yielding positive results. RFC effected photographic coverage, see figure 18, and collected swabs from the stains within this area and entered it into the NCISRA Norfolk, VA Evidence Custody System under Evidence Custody Document Number JQNT4:

- Item# 0TXF0—Four (4) swabs taken from left rear corner of closet for suspected blood after Bluestar application

8. BLUESTAR APPLICATION—SUITE B BEDROOM

8.1. RFC conducted a preliminary test for the presence of blood using a BLUESTAR forensic kit along the carpet, adjacent to Closet "BA", into the doorway of Suite B, yielding positive results, see figures 19-21. Subsequently on 10Jun25, the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT collected several items deemed as forensic value to include the carpeted areas which tested positive for the presence of blood using the BLUESTAR forensic kit. These actions are documented under a separate report.

8.2. RFC observed a heavy concentration of Bluestar in the closet, forming a linear trail that gradually faded as it extended between Suite B and the living room. RFC attempted to capture photographs of the BLUESTAR reaction in the living room but was unsuccessful.

9. PHOTOGRAPHIC DOCUMENTATION

9.1. On 04Jun25, RFC took a series of photographs utilizing an NCIS issued a Nikon Z 6II camera (SN# 3068881) with a Nikon SB-5000 external flash. A total of eighteen (18) color photographs were exposed and subsequently downloaded onto one (1) Compact Disc-Recordable (CD-R); Enclosure (A) pertains. RFC entered the CD-R into the NCISRA Norfolk, VA Evidence Custody System under Evidence Custody Document Number 27C4G:

Item# 2UEEH: One (1) CD-R Containing (18) Photographs of Bluestar Reaction

INVESTIGATIVE ACTION 09JUN25

CONTROL: 01JUN25-NFNF-00237-7HNA

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
M/B/NEE3/[PII]

RESULTS OF SECONDARY INTERVIEW OF YN3 SEAN MONAGHAN, USN

1. On 09Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Investigator (PI) Tyler MANN conducted an interview of YN3 Sean MONAGHAN, USN, Helicopter Mine Countermeasures Squadron 12 (HM 12), pursuant to the missing person investigation involving CSSN [V/A.R.] (V/[V/A.R.] USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).

2. The interview of YN3 MONAGHAN was recorded using an audio/visual recording system, and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. As background, YN3 MONAGHAN is the roommate of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, who was the last known individual to see V/[V/A.R.] before she went missing. It is believed V/[V/A.R.] was last seen in the room shared by S/COPELAND and YN3 MONAGHAN.

4. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed on Wednesday, 28May25, he arrived at his barracks room around 1900 from traveling back home to New Jersey. YN3 MONAGHAN stated when he arrived, he did not see anyone in the room. YN3 MONAGHAN continued S/COPELAND got home that night around 2200; however, YN3 MONAGHAN stated he had watch early the next morning, so he was already half asleep. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed he does remember seeing a lighter-skinned female with short hair; however, he did not recognize her, nor did he know who she was. YN3 MONAGHAN stated on Thursday, 29May25, he woke up around 0500 to get ready for work, and he noticed no one was in his room. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he walked out into their common space at approximately 0640 and observed S/COPELAND asleep on the floor of the living room in his underwear with a girl he did not recognize. Of note, YN3 MONAGHAN was shown a picture of V/[V/A.R.] by PA; however, he relayed he did not get a good enough look at the individual on the floor to positively identify her as V/[V/A.R.] YN3 MONAGHAN stated he returned from work around 1300, and no one was in the room. YN3 MONAGHAN stated, around 2000, he saw S/COPELAND and asked him if him and the female from that morning had been naked, to which S/COPELAND relayed they had been in their underwear. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he saw S/COPELAND again that night in the common space around 2200 when he went to make food. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed S/COPELAND did sleep in their room that night.

5. YN3 MONAGHAN stated on Friday, 30May25, he woke up around 0600 when

S/COPELAND left and then woke up again around 0900 when a representative (NFI) from S/COPELAND's Command came looking for him; however, he was not in the room. YN3 MONAGHAN stated the next time he saw S/COPELAND was when he returned to the room around 2200-2300. YN3 MONAGHAN confirmed S/COPELAND slept in their room that night.

6. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed on Saturday, 31May25, he noticed S/COPELAND left early in the morning again, although he was not sure what time. YN3 MONAGHAN continued he was woken up at approximately 1200, when the Masters-at-Arms (MAs) came looking for S/COPELAND and again, he was not in the room. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed S/COPELAND returned to the room late at night again; however, he was not sure of the exact time.

7. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed on Sunday, 01Jun25, S/COPELAND received a call from his command around 1000, needing him to come in to work. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he was unsure how S/COPELAND got to work that day. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed S/COPELAND returned to the room at approximately 2200-2300.

8. YN3 MONAGHAN stated on Monday, 02Jun25, he was questioned by the "homicide unit" while at work and on Tuesday, 03Jun25, NCIS "raided" their barracks room and took S/COPELAND. YN3 MONAGHAN stated, following the "raid" by NCIS, he asked S/COPELAND what NCIS was looking for, to which S/COPELAND responded, "I don't know, they're tripping." YN3 MONAGHAN relayed on Monday he noticed S/COPELAND was very skittish. YN3 MONAGHAN explained he walked into their room and when he opened the door, S/COPELAND looked startled and stated, "Oh, you scared me."

9. YN3 MONAGHAN stated S/COPELAND does have a car; however, it gets repairs done to it a lot. YN3 MONAGHAN stated S/COPELAND's "crazy ex slashed the tires." YN3 MONAGHAN described the car as being small, rectangular, and black with four doors. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed he drives a 2011 Toyota Camry with a New Jersey license plate number PII . YN3 MONAGHAN stated he has never let S/COPELAND borrow his car nor has he ever given him permission to use his car for any reason. YN3 MONAGHAN revealed he does leave his keys in places S/COPELAND could access them, usually on his desk in their room. YN3 MONAGHAN stated on 03Jun25, he did believe his car had moved parking spots and was so suspicious about the incident he texted his mom.

10. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed he did see S/COPELAND with a rolling suitcase a couple months ago. YN3 MONAGHAN described the suitcase as one that came up to his thigh, black, and had a handle for wheeling around. YN3 MONAGHAN stated S/COPELAND usually kept this suitcase locked in his closet; however, stated he had not seen it in "awhile."

11. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed he has not noticed anything in their room being out of place. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he deep cleaned their room on Monday, 02Jun25, where he noticed the bathmat in front of the toilet had a stain in one corner, he believed to be blood. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed this was not unusual to him because S/COPELAND had female friends over who would often leave tampons in their bathroom, and blood sometimes got on the floor. YN3 MONAGHAN stated, because he thought nothing of this, he placed the bathmat in the washing machine to be cleaned. YN3 MONAGHAN provided a hand drawn sketch of the bathmat to depict where he observed the blood; Enclosure (B) pertains. YN3 MONAGHAN also provided a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) to enter his barracks room and collect the bathmat which will be documented under separate cover.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

Arrange and bind the record of trial with allied papers in the sequence indicated below. The court reporter is responsible for certifying the record of trial prior to transmittal for appellate review, in accordance with R.C.M. 1112 and JAG/CNLSCINST 5813.1G.

1. Pages 1 (Cover page) and 2 (Chronology Sheet) of DD Form 490 (enclosure 7).

2. Court reporter certification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

3. Military Judge verification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

4. DD Form 490 (pages 3-6 and any continuation pages if needed) (enclosure 7).

5. Completed Post-Trial Checklist from JAG/CNLSCINST 5814.1G (enclosure 2).

6. Completed Convening Authority's Action Checklist (enclosure 4).

7. Post-Trial Documents.

a. Certificates/Proof of Service of the Certified Record of Trial to the accused and victim, if applicable (enclosure 7).

b. Convening Authority's Action and Entry of Judgment (enclosure 6).

c. Any requests for copies of the court-martial record pursuant to R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A (attach written requests, and any certificates/proof of service, but do not attach the victim's post-trial rights advisement or DD Form 2704).

d. Matters submitted by the accused and/or victim under R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A, or any written waiver of the right to submit such matters. Include all responses to requests here as well.

e. Any deferment request and the action on it (including any request to waive automatic forfeitures under Article 58b).

f. Conditions of suspension and proof of service on probationer under R.C.M. 1107, if any.

g. All clemency recommendations by members or military judge, if any.

h. Statement of Trial Results (enclosure 1).

i. Crime Reporting Information.

j. Accused's request for appellate defense counsel, or waiver/withdrawal of appellate review under R.C.M. 1115, if applicable.

k. All transfer orders, confinement orders, and excess leave orders.

l. Briefs of counsel submitted after trial, if any.

8. Preliminary Hearing.

a. DD Form 457, Preliminary Hearing Officer's Report, pursuant to Article 32, if such hearing was conducted, followed by any other allied papers that accompanied the charges when referred for trial (including any matters submitted under R.C.M. 405(l), unless included elsewhere in the record of trial).*

b. Waiver of Article 32 Hearing (if applicable).

9. Pre-Trial Allied Papers.

a. Convening Order and all amending convening orders.

b. DD Form 458, Charge Sheet (unless included at the point of arraignment in the transcript).

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

c. Congressional inquiries and replies, if any.

d. Advice of staff judge advocate, when prepared pursuant to Article 34 or otherwise.

10. Record of Proceedings.

a. Substantially verbatim recording of court-martial proceedings. Segregate open and closed sessions of the court-martial in accordance with R.C.M. 1113 and the following guidance:*

b. Ensure that each closed session of the court-martial is recorded on a separate DVD marked CLOSED SESSION, placed in its own envelope marked CLOSED SESSION, and sealed.

c. Label all DVD(s) and envelopes with the information on page 1 of this template.

d. Mark all DVDs and envelopes with "1 of X." as necessary (for example, the second DVD of six DVDs and its envelope should be marked, 2 of 6). All DVDs of open sessions may be in one envelope.

e. Mark all DVDs with their beginning and ending timestamps. The timestamps for closed sessions should match those shown on the Index.

f. Verbatim transcript or summarized report prepared in accordance with JAGINST 5814.1G. Include the following:

I. A certificate of correction, if any (including any supplemental certification for additional proceedings).

II. Court reporter and transcriptionist certification of verbatim transcript.

g. Records of former proceedings (Article 30a) and/or trials, (e.g., electronic/digital record of former proceeding, including audio recording and any scanned documentation/transcripts, CD/DVD format).*

11. Prosecution exhibits admitted in evidence.

12. Defense Exhibits admitted in evidence.

13. Appellate Exhibits including but not limited to, proposed instructions, written offers of proof or preliminary evidence (real or documentary), briefs of counsel submitted at trial, request to be tried by military judge alone (if any), the accused election of members under R.C.M. 903 (if any), any statement by convening authority required under R.C.M. 503(a)(2), and the election for sentencing by members in lieu of sentencing by military judge under R.C.M. 1002(b).*

14. Redaction. The following information shall be redacted in accordance with JAGMAN 1059 from the record of trial prior to releasing it to any accused or victim (including any transcript made pursuant to R.C.M. 1114 and attached to the record of trial) unless the information establishes an element of an offense, or is otherwise required:

a. Any recordings of closed sessions, any transcripts of closed sessions, and any sealed exhibits.

b. Names of minor victims, and names of minor witnesses. If an identifier is used, use only the initials.

c. Social Security Numbers.

d. Financial account information.

e. Home addresses.

f. Telephone numbers.

g. Personal e-mail addresses.

h. Dates of birth.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

i. Any other information that could be used to identify a specific person other than the accused.

*If the report of preliminary hearing or record of trial contains exhibits, proceedings, or other materials ordered sealed by the preliminary hearing officer or military judge, counsel for the Government, the court reporter, or trial counsel shall cause such materials to be sealed to prevent unauthorized examination or disclosure, pursuant to R.C.M. 1113. Sealed material shall be properly marked, individually placed in separate envelopes with a copy of the preliminary hearing officer or military judge sealing order affixed to it, and inserted at the appropriate place in the record of trial. Do not duplicate sealed material to include it in any copy of the record of trial. Instead, insert a copy of the sealing order in lieu of any sealed material, in any copies of the record of trial.

DIVIDERS ARE NOT NECESSARY TO SEPARATE EACH SECTION. IF USED, THEY CAN BE PAPER RATHER THAN CARD STOCK. IF A PARTICULAR COMPONENT IS NOT APPLICABLE IN THE RECORD OF TRIAL, SUCH AS AN ARTICLE 32 HEARING, EXHIBITS NOT ADMITTED, POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND VACATION HEARINGS, DO NOT INSERT A DIVIDER OR PLACEHOLDER.

FRONT AND BACK COVER MUST BE ON BLUE CARDS STOCK AND LABELED WITH GUM LABELS.

Binding. Each volume of a record of trial should be no more than 1.5 inches thick and bound at the top with metal or plastic fasteners. DO NOT interlace or "piggy-back" prong fasteners to create an oversized volume. DO NOT place hole punches where it covers up the evidence or language in the transcript. When it becomes necessary to assemble the record of trial in more than one volume, the volumes will be numbered consecutively, on the front cover, as illustrated below:

Volume 1 of 4 (Pages 1-250)
Volume 2 of 4 (Pages 251-400)
Volume 3 of 4 (Pages 401-652)
Volume 4 of 4 (Pages 653-901 and Exhibits)

Make the first volume of a multi-volume record an inch thick or smaller to allow for inclusion of post-trial documents. Limit subsequent volumes to 1.5 inches, unless dividing them requires assembling an additional volume smaller than a half inch.

Label the upper right-hand corner or the Preparation and Certification of Record of Trial Form (enclosure (8)) to reflect which copy it is, i.e., "ORIGINAL," "ACCUSED," "REVIEW" etc.

BACKGROUND: On 31May25, NCIS was contacted by Norfolk Police Department (NPD) in reference to a missing person's report. NPD relayed ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95), was attempting to make a missing person's report regarding CSSN V/A.R. (V/ V/A.R. USN, DDG 95. NCIS subsequently contacted Command who advised V/ V/A.R. and CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, were in a status of Unauthorized Absence (UA) beginning on Thursday, 29May25. Command advised they believed V/ V/A.R. and S/COPELAND were involved romantically, but did not know to what extent. On 01Jun25, NCIS made contact with Naval Station Norfolk Base Police to conduct a welfare check on the rooms of S/COPELAND and V/ V/A.R. Base Police stated they found S/COPELAND in his barracks room; however, received no answer at V/ V/A.R. door when they knocked. NCIS responded to Naval Station Norfolk and was able to gain entry to V/ V/A.R. barracks room, in which she was not located. Subsequently, NCIS' Multiple Threat Alert Center (MTAC) initiated cell phone pings on V/ V/A.R. mobile phone, which yielded no location data due to the phone possibly being powered off. NCIS conducted an interview of S/COPELAND who stated V/ V/A.R. came over to his barracks on Wednesday, 28May25. S/COPELAND stated V/ V/A.R. stayed the night and the next day, 29May25, FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG 95, came to his barracks room because he failed to report for work. S/COPELAND stated he borrowed his roommate's vehicle and drove V/ V/A.R. back to her barracks around 1000 on 29May25. During the interview of S/COPELAND, he signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his cellular device which was provided to NCIS Digital Forensic Examiners (DFE) for review. The DFE observed a screenshot on the device of S/COPELAND of a saved marked location near Cary Avenue in Norfolk, VA. During the course of this investigation, NCIS would launch search teams near known phone pings and last locations of both V/ V/A.R. and S/COPELAND. On 09Jun25, subsequent to receiving the screenshot from the DFE, NCIS conducted a foot search of the area near the marked location and discovered a black duffel bag containing human remains, later identified through DNA as V/ V/A.R.

JURISDICTION AND ARRIVAL: At approximately 1700, NCIS arrived to the location of Cary Avenue in Norfolk, VA, and conducted a foot search around the Broad Creek neighborhood and Richard Bowling Elementary School. Figure [1] is the screenshot of the marked location utilized by NCIS. At 1735, Reporting Agent (RA) received a phone call from Participating Agent (PA) Tiffany MARTINEZ stating a bag had been located off of a brush covered path behind a row of townhomes. Due to the location of the bag, at 1740, NCIS initiated contact with the Norfolk Police Department (NPD) who responded to the scene to assist. A copy of the NPD incident report detailing their response is appended as Enclosure (A).

SCENE SECURITY: Upon arrival to the scene, no other persons were present in the area but residents going about their daily routine. The area which was searched was not secured prior to arrival and was an open, wooded area, behind a school and residential community. NCIS participants divided into groups and ultimately located the bag by following the smell. Once the duffel bag was located, Andrew PISKE, CIV, K9 Handler, Virginia Department of Emergency Management (VDEM), and K9 Kyra, Certified Human Remains Detection Dog, approached the bag where she presented a positive alert to PISKE. An aerial topography image of the area searched by PISKE and K9 Kyra is appended as Enclosure (B). NCIS partially unzipped the bag to verify its contents to which human remains were observed. NPD was immediately contacted, and all searching immediately ceased. Due to rain, at approximately 1755, to protect the duffel bag, PISKE placed a black tarp over the bag. Figure [2] is a photo of the overall brush area where the remains were located. Figure [3] is a photo of the duffel bag in place. Figure [4] is the approximate GPS location of the duffel bag after conducting the foot search with the assistance of CalTopo. Figure [5] is the confirmation of the human remains inside the bag.

RESULTS OF EXAMINATION

The following results are opinions and interpretations formed using accepted scientific and professional practices. Only those exhibits below were examined for this report. Selection of the item(s) and the examination(s) conducted were based on the information available at the time of the request. If the investigative needs change, please contact USACIL at USACILCM@army.mil or 404-469-5150.

1. Blood was identified on Exhibit 6 (closet swabs/SCENE-COPELAND BARRACKS) and Exhibit 9 (swabs placard D/SCENE-stairwell).

2. No blood was identified on the following Exhibits:

Exhibit 5 (swabs placard L/SCENE-stairwell)
Exhibit 7 (swabs placard A/SCENE-stairwell)
Exhibit 8 (swabs placard E/SCENE-stairwell)
Exhibit 10 (swabs placard H/SCENE-stairwell).

3. DNA extraction procedures were performed on the following:

Exhibit 2 (buccal swabs/MANAGBON)
Exhibit 6 (closet swabs/SCENE-COPELAND BARRACKS)
Exhibit 9 (swabs placard D/SCENE-stairwell)
Exhibit 11 (buccal swabs/WILLIAMS)
Exhibit 12 (buccal swabs/COPELAND)
Exhibit 13 (buccal swabs/GORDILLOCRUZ)
Exhibit 14 (buccal swabs/CALISSE)
Exhibit 15.1 (swab of tongue scraper/SCENE - V/A.R. RESIDENCE)
Exhibit 16 (toothbrush/SCENE - V/A.R. Z RESIDENCE)
Exhibit 17.1 (swab of water bottle/SCENE- V/A.R. RESIDENCE).

4. Based on DNA results from other exhibits/circumstances of the case, no further testing was performed on the swab of tongue scraper/SCENE - V/A.R. RESIDENCE.

5. The DNA profile from the swab of water bottle believed to be from V/A.R. originates from an unknown individual that genetically types as female.

6. A DNA mixture was detected from the closet swabs/SCENE-COPELAND BARRACKS.

a. The DNA mixture is interpreted as originating from two individuals.

b. The DNA profile from the swab of water bottle believed to be from RESENDIZ and COPELAND are included as contributors to this mixture.

c. MANAGBON, WILLIAMS, GORDILLOCRUZ and CALISSE are excluded as contributors to this mixture.

7. The DNA profile detected from swabs placard D/SCENE-stairwell matches the DNA profile from the swab of water bottle believed to be from RESENDIZ. COPELAND, MANAGBON, WILLIAMS, GORDILLOCRUZ and CALISSE are excluded as contributors to this DNA profile.

8. The DNA profile from the toothbrush/SCENE - V/A.R. RESIDENCE will not be used for comparison purposes due to the results from other exhibits and/or case circumstances.

9. If necessary, these DNA results may be compared to other potential DNA contributors when suitable standards for comparison and/or elimination are submitted to the laboratory.

10. No DNA profiles were eligible for submission to CODIS (Combined DNA Index System).

TECHNICAL NOTES

1. DNA profiles were detected using PCR (polymerase chain reaction) technology on twenty-one autosomal STR (short tandem repeat) loci, two Y-chromosome loci (DYS391, Y-indel) and a gender identification locus from the Applied Biosystems GlobalFiler kit.

2. Match will be used when complete genotypes are obtained at all loci included in the amplification kit, and all of the detected alleles are the same as those in the reference being compared.

Consistent with will be used when genetic information is missing at one or more loci included in the amplification kit (a partial profile), but all of the detected alleles are the same as those in the reference being compared.

DISPOSITION OF EVIDENCE

RESPONSE

1. The evidence detailed in the Government's 5 November 2025 Military Rule of Evidence (M.R.E.) 404(b) and 413 notice[1] is admissible under those rules. The Accused is alleged to have committed various offenses over the course of several months in the Navy. These include sex-related offenses, assaults (including strangulations), false official statements, obstruction of justice, and murder.

2. The noticed evidence encompasses this misconduct as well as some pre-service misconduct and is admissible under M.R.E. 404(b) and 413 to support the Government's case in prosecuting the charged offenses. While much of this evidence is already admissible as relating to charged offenses, the Government seeks to argue its connections at trial under these rules.

BURDEN

3. The proponent of the evidence bears the burden of proving its admissibility.[2] The Government bears that burden here.

FACTS

4. The Accused is charged with several similar offenses across five separate victims within eleven months.[3]

5. For ABHAN C.R., the Accused is charged with aggravated and abusive sexual contact[4] as well as strangulation under Articles 120 and 128, UCMJ.[5]

a. On 23 June 2024, ABHAN C.R. was with her boyfriend on the mess decks of USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN 75). After he left to go to bed, the Accused sent Snapchat messages to ABHAN C.R. seeking to speak with her about her relationship with her boyfriend. ABHAN C.R. agreed. The two went to the fantail and the Accused told ABHAN C.R. that her boyfriend was not treating her properly and that she should date him instead. ABHAN C.R. declined.[6]

b. After a short period of time passed while discussing her relationship, the Accused began to pretend to arrest her.[7] The Accused forced ABHAN C.R.'s hands behind her back and grabbed her vulva over the clothing.[8] ABHAN C.R. punched the Accused in the stomach.[9] In response, the Accused stated he heard that ABHAN C.R. liked to be choked and applied pressure to her neck with a hand, restricting her breathing. ABHAN C.R. pushed the Accused's hand away, but he kept replacing it and applying pressure.[10] The Accused simultaneously kissed her on the lips and grabbed her breasts, buttocks, and vulva over the clothing.[11] After about a minute, the Accused stopped.[12] ABHAN C.R. advised she was going to bed and left the Accused on the fantail.[13] ABHAN C.R. reported the incident to her boyfriend and filed a formal report on 26 July 2024.[14] ABHAN C.R.'s boyfriend described observing bruising on ABHAN C.R's after the incident.[15]

6. For CSSN S.S., the Accused is charged with sexual assault, indecent recording, indecent broadcasting, and obstruction of justice under Articles 120, 120c, and 131b, UCMJ.[16]

a. On the evening of 4 November 2024, the Accused arrived at a bar and began to hang out with CSSN S.S. and others during a liberty call in Oslo, Norway.[17] CSSN S.S. was extremely intoxicated and could not recall the events of the evening.[18] The next day, several individuals approached her and told her that the Accused had shown them a video he recorded on his phone of him having sex with her in the bathroom of the bar the night prior.[19] CSSN S.S. was described as bent over and the Accused was penetrating her vagina from behind with his penis.[20] It was not clear if CSSN S.S. was conscious.[21] CSSN S.S. did not recall this occurring and confronted the Accused over the phone, who denied having sex with her or recording the encounter.[22]

b. After he was accused of sexual assault by CSSN S.S., the Accused became inconsolable.[23] He stated his "life was over," refused to return to the ship, and repeatedly tried to kill himself.[24] Specifically, he walked in front of approximately three trains to do so.[25] Security from the ship had to retrieve him.[26]

c. After a report was made on 6 November 2024 by CSSN S.S., a search of the Accused was conducted to obtain his cell phone.[27] The Accused advised he did not have the phone and had given it to CSSN Kaulise Cousins, USN.[28] A search of the Accused's person did not return the device.[29] CSSN Cousins was questioned about the phone immediately after and he denied that the Accused had provided him with his phone at any point.[30] A search of CSSN Cousin's person was conducted and the Accused's phone was not found.[31] A search was then conducted of the Accused's berthing, rack, and locker spaces.[32] No cell phone was found.[33] CSSN Cousins advised he believed the Accused got rid of the phone in the bathroom on the liberty boat back to the ship after he was accused of sexual assault by CSSN S.S.[34]

d. On 18 November 2024, the Accused admitted to having consensual sex with CSSN S.S. in an interview with NCIS.[35] In this interview, the Accused repeated that he had given his phone to CSSN Cousins before stating his phone had fallen out of pocket, shattered, and was lost.[36]

e. On 20 December 2024, the Accused was interviewed by NCIS again.[37] The Accused advised he obtained a new phone while in a port call in Marseille, France and provided NCIS

7. For CSSN S.R., the Accused is charged with domestic violence for strangulation and a violent offense under Article 128b, UCMJ.[40]

a. On 11 April 2025, CSSN S.R., was dating the Accused and was on his barracks room couch with him while he was asleep.[41] While on the couch, she learned that the Accused was also dating someone else.[42] She then woke the Accused up and confronted him.[43] When she sought to leave, the Accused pushed her down on the couch and strangled her with both hands for about ten seconds while "smiling."[44] CSSN S.R. felt like this was a completely different version of the Accused and described him as "just anger."[45]

8. For Y.J., the Accused is charged with sexual assault under Article 120, UCMJ.[46]

a. Y.J. was at the Accused's barracks room with two other Sailors on 25 May 2024.[47] When the Accused arrived, the Accused pulled Y.J. into his barracks room and asked Y.J. to perform oral sex.[48] She refused because she was tired.[49] The Accused then penetrated her vagina without her consent[50]. She asked him to "stop."[51] The other two Sailors could hear him telling her to stop and entered the room to break them up.[52] One Sailor then took Y.J. home.[53]

9. For CS3 A.R., the Accused is charged with murder, false official statement, and obstruction of justice.[54]

Accused's barracks room on the evening of 28 May 2025 onboard Naval Station Norfolk.[56]

b. At 2322 on 29 May 2025, CS3 A.R. uncharacteristically sent a text message to an ex-boyfriend (who was also a co-worker that she remained friends with), HT3 Michael Gillispie, USN that read "Fuck you."[57] CS3 A.R. was non-responsive to HT3 Gillispie after that message, despite numerous attempts by HT3 Gillispie to contact her.[58]

c. At 0214 on 29 May 2025, CS3 A.R. called an ex-boyfriend, ET3 Daniel Rich, USN. ET3 Rich explained that CS3 A.R. was "freaking out" and requesting to be picked up "ASAP."[59] She was frantic and crying and just kept repeating that she needed to be picked up as soon as possible.[60] It was like she was having a panic attack.[61] A frantic male voice came on the phone and asked how far away he was, to which ET3 Rich replied he was 10-15 minutes away.[62] The phone was handed back to CS3 A.R., ET3 Rich told her he was on his way, and the call ended.[63] CS3 A.R. always shared her location with ET3 Rich, but ET3 Rich did not know who she was with or what room she was in exactly.[64] ET3 Rich had explained she has had panic attacks in his presence before and that an unwanted sexual advance could be a trigger.[65]

d. When ET3 Rich passed through the gate at approximately 0228, he called CS3 A.R. repeatedly, but she did not answer her phone.[66] ET3 Rich then notified base police of the situation and connected with HT3 Gillispie to help search for her.[67] Despite hours of searching, CS3 A.R. was not located.[68] Her phone stopped pinging at 0456 on 29 May 2025, indicating it was dead or turned off.[69]

e. At 0201 on 29 May 2025, the Accused opened a recipe on his phone for tacos he had just made in his notes application at 0146 and engaged briefly with a couple of other apps.[70] His phone was then placed in a locked state from 0202 on 29 May until 0243 on 29 May.[71] Beginning shortly after he created the recipe for tacos, his heart rate increased from 61 bpm to 125 bpm at 0152.[72] It remained increased until approximately 0237, when it decreased to 69

bpm before spiking again to 130 bpm at 0307.[73] From 0211 until 0719, the Accused received several phone calls and text messages, as well as communications from Instagram, Snapchat, Facebook, Telegram, and Gmail.[74] He responded only to a single Snapchat message at 0329.[75]

f. The Accused's barracks room comprised of a common area flanked on either side by two bedrooms.[76] Each bedroom contained two roommates.[77] The Accused shared a room with YN3 Sean Monoghan, USN.[78] The other bedroom was occupied by PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz, USN, and AR John Calisse, USN.[79] AR Calisse reported hearing karaoke between the Accused and an unknown female around 0200 on 29 May 2025, but did not investigate.[80]

g. PSSN Gordillocruz arrived back to the barracks room at approximately 0400.[81] He advised that all of the lights were off and he did not see anyone at that time.[82] At around 0500, YN3 Monoghan got up to go to work and he realized that no one was in the Accused's bed.[83] He departed his bedroom at approximately 0640 and saw the Accused on the floor of the living room asleep with a girl he did not recognize, both in a state of undress.[84] Between 0530 and 0645, both PSSN Gordillocruz and AR Calisse departed their room.[85] They observed a female laying nearly fully naked with her breasts exposed on the floor of the common area with CSSN Copeland laying naked face up with his head on her torso or thigh.[86] AR Calisse was surprised they did not wake up when they entered the room.[87] Later that morning, AR Calisse asked PSSN Gordillocruz if they were breathing and neither were sure as neither looked too closely.[88] YN3 Monoghan "couldn't tell."[89] YN3 Monoghan asked the Accused later if they were naked.[90] The Accused laughed it off and said they were in underwear.[91]

h. The Accused's phone was in a prolonged locked state from 0329 until 0728 and was in regular use from 0728 until approximately 1150, primarily viewing pornography.[92] The Accused read incoming messages and received incoming calls during that time, but he did not respond.[93] The Accused did several actions on his device in this window.[94] Most notably, at 0753, the Accused takes two photographs from the perspective of his roommates bed[95] and at approximately 0825-0901, the Accused received calls, including from "Brad Parker," but did not answer or respond.[96] At 0854, the Accused got up and moved around before placing his phone into a locked state from 0858-0901.[97]

i. At 0852, FCC Bradley Parker, USN, arrived at the barracks room of the Accused to determine why he was not at work on the ship.[98] At the time, FCC Parker was aware the CS3 A.R. was also missing and was seeking help the night prior.[99] He had learned this from ET3 Rich and HT3 Gillispie.[100] FCC Parker said that the Accused "took a good minute" to answer the door and appeared to have just woken up when he answered the door.[101] He told the Accused to come to work, but the Accused told FCC Parker he was not alone and provided he was with CS3 A.R.[102] FCC Parker then observed CS3 A.R. on the Accused's bed wrapped in a blanket with her feet exposed.[103] FCC Parker provided inconsistent accounts about how CS3 A.R. acknowledged him in that moment and went back to sleep.[104] But of note, the room was extremely dark with the lights off and FCC Parker's view to the bed would have been obstructed by the Accused in the doorway.[105] FCC Parker and the Accused then spoke in the common area and he told him to ensure that CS3 A.R. was taken care of and to come to work.[106] FCC Parker left after only being present for a few minutes.[107]

j. The Accused told FCC Parker that CS3 A.R. had come over after calling him looking for someone to talk to, but she forgot her phone when he picked her up.[108] He told FCC Parker they fell asleep watching movies.[109] The Accused also advised his alarm did not go off because his phone had died overnight and he overslept and that he had a ride to work.[110]

k. The Accused's phone then recorded physical activity, including steps, from 0923-

0933 while in a locked state.[111] At 0934, the Accused flipped back and forth between his Snapchat application and his messages, but did not respond to anything previously received.[112] The Accused was on and off of his phone the remainder of the day and repeatedly ignored nearly all incoming communications.[113] YN3 Monoghan returned to the barracks room at approximately 1300 and did not see CS3 A.R. or the Accused.[114] When he saw the Accused later that night, he asked him if he and the female from that morning had been naked.[115] The Accused responded that they had been in their underwear.[116]

l. The Accused spoke with FCC Parker at 1241 and he advised he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks.[117] But no one said that they permitted the Accused to borrow their car, particularly AR Calisse who the Accused ordinarily borrows a vehicle from.[118] At 1310, the Accused searched for directions to "Bermuda."[119] The Accused did not come into work and advised FCC Parker at 1636 "I had to wait for my roommate."[120]

m. Despite repeated notifications to come to the ship over the weekend, the Accused did not do so.[121] Although it is possible that the Accused was in Hampton, VA, based on cell tower data at some points over the next few days, geolocation information from his iPhone suggests the Accused did not leave his barracks or the immediate vicinity until the afternoon of 1 June 2025.[122] YN3 Monoghan described the Accused's actions as unusual that weekend, with him leaving very early and returning very late.[123]

n. On the afternoon of 1 June 2025, base police searched the barracks for the Accused and located the Accused in a bathroom near a lounge in the barracks and advised him to report to work.[124] The Accused did so before returning to his barracks around 2100.[125] After he checked into work, the Accused texted CS3 A.R. "Yoo are you okay???" and "They marked us both UA" at 0701 on 1 June 2025.[126]

o. The Accused then asked to borrow AR Calisse's car, a white Jeep, and AR Calisse agreed that was okay and gave him the keys that night.[127] At approximately 0418 on 2 June 2025, the Accused left the base and traveled south down Hampton boulevard.[128] As he traveled, he searched for 'Parks" and "Trails."[129] The Accused then pulled into a parking lot near a wooded area from 0436-0440 before turning around.[130] AR Calisse's Jeep was photographed on a street camera at 0440 at the same time geolocation data marked the Accused at that point.[131] At 0447, the Accused marked a location on Apple Maps and looked for directions to that location.[132] He then put his phone in Airplane mode at 0448.[133] At approximately 0500, the Accused stopped behind 2852 Cary Avenue in Norfolk, VA and moved within a wooded area near the location that he had just marked on Apple Maps.[134] He departed at approximately 0515 and contemporaneously took a screenshot of the pinned location in the wooded area.[135] He took his phone off of airplane mode at 0516.[136] The Accused then went to McDonald's near base at approximately 0533 before returning to his barracks.[137]

p. AR Calisse's car keys were not on the counter that morning when AR Calisse sought to drive to work.[138] AR Calisse called the Accused and the Accused told him he had run out to get food.[139] AR Calisse ultimately met him in the barracks parking lot as he drove AR Calisse's Jeep back to him at approximately 0630 with food in hand.[140]

q. On 9 June 2025, investigators went to the location that the Accused had marked in his phone on 2 June 2025 and discovered the decomposed remains of CS3 A.R. in a black suitcase.[141] The bag matches a bag that the Accused was known to own and had been photographed with.[142] A search of the Accused's barracks found a small amount of CS3 A.R.'s blood in the Accused's closet and in the stairwell near the Accused's barracks room down the stairs leading to the parking lot of the barracks.[143] BlueStar indicated wheel tracks consistent with that bag from the Accused's closet leading to his barracks room front door.[144]

r. The Accused spoke with NCIS on 1 June, 3 June and 6 June 2025.[145] On 1 June, he advised he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks room.[146] On 3 June, the Accused told investigators he never said that, and that CS3 A.R. had left under her own power.[147] He also denied knowing that CS3 A.R. had made a call for help.[148] The Accused advised repeatedly he did not know where CS3 A.R. was.[149] The Accused made additional, significant and material false statements detailed below.

s. During the interview on 3 June, a contemporaneous search of the Accused's barracks room discovered an iPhone and an Apple watch.[150] The Accused advised that the phone in his barracks room did not work.[151] The items were not seized or collected at that time.[152] On 8 June 2025, the Accused took a photo of himself in the mirror with the phone he claimed did not work.[153] When he was taken into custody on 9 June, the phone was nowhere to be found (but the Apple watch was located).[154]

t. Just before going into custody on 9 June 2025, the Accused told another Sailor, CS2 Rezan Taylor, USN, that CS3 A.R. and he were making out and she wanted to go further, but he declined.[155] CS2 Taylor was under the impression that the Accused was describing these events as if they were in his bed together and doubted that the Accused was being truthful.[156]

u. Two autopsies were conducted in this case.[157] Neither reached a conclusive cause of death.[158] While both autopsies were somewhat limited by the decomposition of CS3 A.R.'s remains, the second autopsy was extremely limited due the remains having decomposed further, having already been subjected to an autopsy, and having been embalmed.[159] Based on their observations, blunt force trauma, stabbing, shooting, death by natural causes, and overdose could effectively be ruled out, although the second pathologist stated that evidence of blunt force trauma may have simply decomposed.[160] Both medical examiners opined that death by asphyxiation, such as by strangulation or suffocation, was possible.[161] CS3 A.R.'s blood alcohol concentration was .083 and was potentially inflated due to insect activity.[162] No drugs were in CS3 A.R.'s system.[163] One medical examiner also opined that it was not unusual for people to mistake dead bodies for living people.[164]

10. The Accused was also accused of misconduct on two separate occasions just prior to joining the Navy. The relevant portions of those allegations are as follows:

a. In May 2022, when the Accused was in high school, a fellow student accused him of unlawfully recording a sexual encounter between them with his phone.[165] Investigators obtained a warrant for the Accused's phone after he admitted to recording it, but the Accused advised his mother had taken his phone away preventing him from giving it to investigators.[166] The Accused's mother advised that she told the Accused to put his phone on her dresser, but found out he had only put the case for his phone there instead.[167] The Accused then advised he had misplaced the phone.[168] The phone was never recovered.[169]

b. In June 2022, L.L. alleged that the Accused was at her home and they were sitting on the couch together.[170] The Accused touched her vulva with his hand without her consent, despite her continually moving his hand away and telling him "no."[171] She described him as having an "evil grin" while he did so.[172] He also pressured her to hug and kissed her without her consent.[173] The Accused told investigators that he was with L.L. on the couch but denied touching her inappropriately and denied kissing L.L. without consent, only that he attempted to kiss her.[174] The Accused also told investigators that L.L. had sent him nude photographs and messages asking to be "fucked," but when asked, the Accused advised he did not have those messages.[175] character."[176] But, "[t]his evidence may be admissible for another purpose, such as proving motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, knowledge, identity, absence of mistake, or lack of accident."[177] "This Court has consistently stated that evidence of uncharged bad acts may not be introduced solely to show that an accused has a propensity to commit crimes of the type charged."[178] Moreover, "evidence . . . intrinsic to the charged offense . . . is not barred by Mil. R. Evid. 404(b)."[179]

13. In United Sates v. Reynolds, the Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) articulated a three-part test for determining when charged or uncharged misconduct can be admitted under this rule:

1. Does the evidence reasonably support a finding by the court members that [the accused] committed prior crimes, wrongs or acts?

2. What fact of consequence is made more or less probable by the existence of this evidence?

3. Is the probative value substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice?[180]

14. All three prongs must be satisfied for evidence to be admissible.[181] Evidence cannot be admissible when it poses an unfair risk that the fact finder could convict the accused on an improper basis.[182]

15. In evaluating the first prong, "[t]he task for the military judge is to determine whether there is sufficient evidence for a reasonable court member to believe that the accused in fact committed the extrinsic [act]."[183] "The standard for meeting this factor is quite low."[184]

16. Prong two is met if evidence is being admitted for a basis other than propensity under M.R.E. 404(b)(2). This includes evidence offered to prove motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, knowledge, identity, absence of mistake, or lack of accident, among others.[185] Some grounds, such as intent, are "always at issue in a criminal case—even when the defense chooses not to contest it."[186]

17. As the Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) articulated in United States v. Greene-Watson, an analysis of prong two is twofold: (1) is a fact of consequence (such as an element of an offense) more likely with this evidence and (2) does it fall under a proper basis under M.R.E. 404(b).[187]

18. Prong three requires this Court to utilize the M.R.E. 403 balancing test.[188] This includes weighing (a) the strength of proof for the uncharged misconduct; (b) the probative weight of the evidence; (c) the potential for less prejudicial evidence; (d) distraction to the factfinder; (e) the time needed to prove the prior conduct; (f) temporal proximity; (g) the frequency of the misconduct and (h) the presence or lack of intervening circumstances; and (i) relationship between the parties.[189]

19. Notably, res gestae evidence is separate from evidence offered under M.R.E. 404(b). Res gestae evidence is admissible as long as it does not fail the M.R.E. 403 balancing test or other rule of evidence.[190] "Res gestae" is defined as "[t]he events at issue, or other events contemporaneous with them."[191] The CAAF has explained, "[r]es gestae evidence is vitally important in many trials. It enables the factfinder to see the full picture so that the evidence will not be confusing and prevents gaps in a narrative of occurrences which might induce unwarranted speculation."[192]

20. M.R.E. 404(b) not only permits the factfinder to consider uncharged misconduct for the purposes specified in the rule, but also allows the factfinder to consider charged criminal tendencies, and that therefore (he) (she) committed the offense(s) of (_____).[194]

21. In contrast to M.R.E. 404(b), "M.R.E. 413 is an exception to the ordinary rule that evidence of uncharged misconduct or prior convictions is generally inadmissible and may not be used to show an accused's propensity or predisposition to commit charged misconduct."[195] This means, for example, that "evidence of either a prior sexual assault conviction or uncharged sexual assaults can be used to prove than an accused has a propensity to commit sexual assault."[196] Under M.R.E. 413, "members are permitted to consider testimony of past victims alleging that an accused perpetrated a sex offense upon them in order to infer that an accused has the propensity to commit the charged sex offense."[197]

22. Admission under M.R.E. 413 is predicated on three threshold findings:

l. The accused is charged with a sexual offense;

2. The evidence proffered is evidence of the defendant's commission of another offense sexual offense; and

3. The evidence is relevant under Rules 401 and 402.[198]

23. The second prong requires proof that the other offense occurred by a preponderance of the evidence.[199]

24. A "sexual offense" means an offense punishable under the UCMJ, or a crime under federal or state law, involving: (1) any conduct prohibited by Article 120; (2) any conduct prohibited by 18 U.S.C. chapter 109A; (3) contact, without consent, between any part of the accused's body, or an object held or controlled by the accused, and another person's genitals or anus; (4) contact, without consent, between the accused's genitals or anus and any part of another person's body; (5) contact with the aim of deriving sexual pleasure or gratification from inflicting death, bodily injury, or physical pain on another person; or (6) an attempt or conspiracy to engage in conduct described above.[200]

25. The Court must also apply the Military Rule of Evidence 403 balancing test to evidence seeking admission under M.R.E. 413.[201] Some of the factors to be examined when conducting a

26. In United States v. Wright, CAAF noted, "Mr. David J. Karp, a drafter of the Rules, has stated: 'It is not expected, however, that evidence admissible pursuant to proposed Rules 413-15 would often be excluded on the basis of Rule 403. Rather, the effect of the new rules is to put evidence of uncharged offenses in sexual assault … cases on the same footing as other types of evidence that are not subject to a special exclusionary rule. The presumption is in favor of admission.'"[203]

ARGUMENT - M.R.E. 404(b) EVIDENCE

27. It is not clear from the Defense's motion on this issue if they are challenging the admission of all evidence noticed under M.R.E. 404(b), or only the Accused's history of strangulation, his history of routinely manipulating investigators by telling "half-truths," and evidence that he smiles when he assaults women. Regardless, the Government will address each set of noticed evidence in turn below.

28. Overall, each noticed set of evidence is admissible for a purpose other than propensity and therefore can be properly argued under M.R.E. 404(b). The Defense's repeated fears of the violent effect arguing this evidence under proper M.R.E. 404(b) bases would have on the case only underscores its extremely high probative value. Any danger of unfair prejudice would not substantially outweigh the heavy probative value of this evidence. And finally, an instruction can be given in the format cited above. The Defense's motion should be denied.

A. The Accused's history of strangulation.

29. The Accused's history of strangulation as it relates to his actions toward ABHAN C.R. in the sole Specification of Charge II and CSSN S.R. in Specification 1 of Charge V, as well as the Accused's strangulation of CS3 A.R. in the sole Specification of Charge VII is highly probative of common scheme, motive, and intent for the sole Specification of Charge II (Strangulation), Specification 1 of Charge V (Domestic Violence – Strangulation), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder). These facts incorporate charged misconduct and are supported by the evidence, are offered for a valid basis under M.R.E. 404(b), and have an extremely high probative value that is not outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice.

a. As to prong one of the Reynolds test, these other acts occurred. Both the strangulation of ABHAN C.R. and the strangulation of CSSN S.R. were reported separately by each victim and neither had knowledge of the other. Both described being strangled by the Accused. And while a conclusive cause of death has not been pathologically identified for CS3 A.R., all the evidence taken together strongly supports that the Accused strangled CS3 A.R. to death on 29 May 2025. The Government, as outlined in our bill of particulars, intends to argue that this was the act that caused CS3 A.R.'s death as follows:[204]

(1) Circumstantial evidence supports that the Accused murdered CS3 A.R. on 29 May. This includes that the Accused was the last to be seen with her alive, repeatedly lied to investigators, considered escaping, largely ignored incoming messages and calls for days, kept her body in his suitcase in his closet, hid evidence, and later hid her body in a wooded area.

(2) Forensic and other evidence supports that CS3 A.R. was killed in a manner that would not result in blood-producing injuries or other obvious superficial trauma, such as strangulation. CS3 A.R. was spending time with the Accused on the evening of 28 May 2025 into the early hours of 29 May 2025. CS3 A.R. made a panicked call for help at 0214 to ET3 Daniel Rich, USN, on 29 May 2025 while she was with the Accused. The Accused took the phone and asked ET3 Rich how far away he was. CS3 A.R. was never heard from by her loved ones again. Between 0152-0230, the Accused's heart rate rapidly increased and stayed between 125-128 bpm, spiking again at 130 bpm at 0307. The Accused's suitemate reported hearing what he believed to be karaoke in the common room around that time but did not investigate. The blood found at the scene was limited to the closet area where the Accused stored the body, suggesting no blood-producing injury occurred and eyewitnesses did not observe any obvious wounds on CS3 A.R.'s body just hours after she was murdered. In fact, they believed she was asleep. Strangulation left little trace and also prevented CS3 A.R. from calling out for help from the Accused's roommates.

(3) Pathological evidence also supports that strangulation was the cause of death. The remains of CS3 A.R. were recovered outdoors approximately 10 days after she was murdered. CS3 A.R's remains were heavily decomposed. CS3 A.R.'s remains underwent two autopsies. Blunt force trauma was ruled out by the first autopsy and both ruled out shooting or stabbing. The second autopsy, when CS3 A.R.'s remains were further decomposed, noted that any evidence of blunt force trauma would have decomposed. After toxicological testing, each autopsy determined there was no evidence of death resulting from the use of a controlled substance or other medication/alcohol. In light of these findings, the most likely cause of CS3 A.R.s death is asphyxiation (strangulation or suffocation). However, absent affirmative evidence of asphyxiation, neither pathologist was able to state that was the cause of death and both ruled the cause of death was undetermined. The forensic and other evidence provided above provides all of the affirmative evidence needed to bridge that gap.

(4) As discussed in Section C below, the Accused also had a strong motive to murder CS3 A.R. at the time he did so.

b. This evidence satisfies the second Reynolds prong as it is relevant for a basis other than 204. See Gov. Resp. to Def. Mot. to Dismiss for Failure to State an Offense (5 Dec 2025).

just propensity. The Accused's history of strangulation is offered to establish common scheme, motive, and intent for the sole Specification of Charge II (Strangulation), Specification 1 of Charge V (Domestic Violence – Strangulation), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of common scheme for the sole Specification of Charge II, Specification 1 of Charge V, and the sole Specification of Charge VII.

i. The Accused has a demonstrated history of using strangulation to exert control over women to get them to comply. The Accused strangled ABHAN C.R. when she resisted his sexual advances. In that case, the Accused used strangulation to exert control over ABHAN C.R. and obtain his desired sexual gratification. The Accused similarly strangled CSSN S.R., his intimate partner, when she confronted him about his infidelity. The Accused did so again to gain control of his victim, in this case to stop her from arguing with him. As evidenced by these two occasions, the Accused is quick to use strangulation to assert control over a situation to get what he wants.

ii. The Accused applied this common scheme and again exerted control over CS3 A.R.. He did so, because when she called ET3 Rich, the Accused realized that she was going to report him for another Article 120, UCMJ offense on top of the two that he already knew NCIS was investigating (as discussed in Section C below). He then strangled her, just as he did with ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.R. But this time, he strangled CS3 A.R. to the point of death to control her and prevent her from reporting misconduct to either ET3 Rich or the Accused's suitemates.

iii. The Accused's strangulation of CS3 A.R. was approximately one month after his strangulation of CSSN S.R. All three strangulation events occurred within a year of each other and reflect a common scheme of controlling women to get them to comply.

(2) Reasoning in support of motive for the sole Specification of Charge II, Specification 1 of Charge V, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. As noted above, the Accused sought control over both ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.R. The Accused's strangulation of CS3 A.R. was motivated by the same desire for control.

(3) Reasoning in support of intent for the sole Specification of Charge II, Specification 1 of Charge V, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. As noted in above, the Accused used strangulation as a method to assert control over his victims. Specific to CS3 A.R., the Accused intended to control CS3 A.R. by strangling her to death, for the reasons discussed in Section C below.

(4) Reasoning in support of lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII. This evidence of the Accused's common scheme of strangulation of female victims will also be offered to show that CS3 A.R.'s death was not an accident. While there is no evidence to suggest CS3 A.R. died of natural causes, committed suicide, or otherwise unintentionally overdosed as suggested by the Defense in many of their filings, this evidence of strangulation establishes her death was not an accident but an intentional action of the Accused. Moreover, the Accused demonstrated with ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.R. that he could strangle someone and stop short of killing them. That the Accused was capable of this demonstrates he did not unintentionally strangle CS3 A.R. for too long and accidentally murder her.

c. Looking at the third prong of the Reynolds test for this set of evidence, the evidence's probative value is not substantially outweighed by any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. The time needed to prove it is limited as the Government intends to admit all of this evidence at trial regardless. These acts occurred within a year of eachother. There were limited intervening circumstances as the evidence abuts in time. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as it is based on the charged misconduct. And using charged misconduct to prove charged misconduct under M.R.E. 404(b) in this manner does not affect the presumption of innocence or burden of proof. As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and does not substantially outweigh the high probative value this evidence provides the Government in proving the charged misconduct.

30. Thus, this evidence satisfies all three prongs of the Reynolds test and should be admitted.

B. That a bystander would have heard a louder method of murder than strangulation or other asphyxiation.

31. Evidence that two friends in the common area of the Accused's barracks room heard Y.J. telling the Accused to "stop" penetrating her vagina and entered the room to stop the Accused from continuing as it relates to knowledge and motive for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder). These facts incorporate charged misconduct and are supported by the evidence, are offered for a valid basis under M.R.E. 404(b), and have an extremely high probative value that is not outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice.

a. As to prong one of the Reynolds test, this other act occurred. These events were reported by Y.J. and are corroborated by a witness who responded to her request for the Accused to "stop."

b. This evidence satisfies the second Reynolds prong as it is relevant for a basis other than just propensity. That others heard a victim ask the Accused to "stop" from another room within the Accused's barracks room is offered to establish knowledge and motive for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of knowledge and motive for the sole Specification of Charge VII. The above-described interaction with Y.J. occurred only 4 days prior to the night CS3 A.R. was murdered and both events took place in the same barracks room. For the reasons detailed in Section C, the Accused had a motive to murder CS3 A.R. This event with Y.J. was fresh on his mind and the Accused knew that his suitemates would be able to hear CS3 A.R. cry for help. The Accused also knew that his suitemates may be able to hear him murder CS3 A.R. if he chose a loud mechanism for doing so. As a result, the Accused was motivated to murder CS3 A.R. before his suitemates responded and he did so by strangulation because he knew it would be quiet.

c. Looking at the third prong of the Reynolds test for this set of evidence, the evidence's probative value outweighs any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. The time needed to prove it is limited as the Government intends to admit all of this evidence at trial regardless. These acts occurred within days of each other. There were limited intervening circumstances as the evidence was merely days apart. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as it is based on the charged misconduct. And using charged misconduct to prove charged misconduct under M.R.E. 404(b) in this manner does not affect the presumption of innocence or burden of proof. As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and not overcome by the high probative value this evidence provides the Government in proving the charged misconduct.

32. Thus, this evidence satisfies all three prongs of the Reynolds test and should be admitted.

C. The Accused's extreme reaction to an allegation of sexual assault.

33. In July of 2024, the Accused was accused of sexual misconduct by ABHAN A.R. and was aware he was under investigation by NCIS for that accusation. He stated that ABHAN A.R. "put a case on" him.[205] In November of 2024, the Accused was accused by CSSN S.S. of a separate sexual assault and other offenses. The Accused reported that he "caught a case"[206] and told her that his life was ruined. Nearly immediately after this accusation, he became inconsolable, threatened to kill himself, and repeatedly attempted to genuinely kill himself by walking in front of approximately three trains before being recovered by ship security and brought back to the ship. This evidence is offered to establish motive, intent, and lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as consciousness of guilt for Specification 3 of Charge I (Sexual Assault) and both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting). These facts incorporate charged misconduct and are supported by the evidence, are offered for a valid basis under M.R.E. 404(b), and have an extremely high probative value that is not outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice.

a. As to prong one of the Reynolds test, these other acts occurred. The Accused's actions after being confronted by CSSN S.S. were observed by eyewitnesses and members of the ship had to recover him and return him to the ship to stop his attempted self-harm. The Accused statements to CSSN S.S. about his desire to kill himself are recorded in text messages.

b. This evidence satisfies the second Reynolds prong as it is relevant for a basis other than just propensity. The Accused's reaction to an allegation of sexual assault is offered to establish motive, intent, and lack of accident with respect to the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) and consciousness of guilt for the for Specification 3 of Charge I (Sexual Assault) and both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Broadcasting and Recording):

(1) Reasoning in support of motive for the sole Specification of Charge VII.

i. When CSSN S.S. made accusations against the Accused in November 2024, the Accused immediately demonstrated he was willing to take extreme and violent measures by attempting to kill himself.

ii. CS3 A.R. made a panicked call to ET3 Rich for help at 0214 on 29 May and the Accused took the phone to ask how far ET3 Rich was; a call the Accused denies occurred despite call records to the contrary.[207] It is evident from that call that the Accused had done something to CS3 A.R. to cause distress. The Accused murdered CS3 A.R. shortly after that call.

iii. That call was prompted by an unwanted sexual advance and the Accused murdered her to prevent her from making a report. After CS3 A.R. went missing, the Accused self-servingly told investigators that nothing sexual occurred that night between the two of them and laughed off his roommates suggestion that they were naked.[208] Comparatively, the Accused advised another Sailor, CS2 Taylor, that CS3 A.R. and he were making out, but that he had turned her down after she wanted to go further and this upset her. Both of these statements conflict with the accounts of the Accused's roommates, who described the Accused and CS3 A.R. as nearly-fully naked on top of each other on the floor of the common area later on the morning of 29 May. Consistent with their nudity and illuminated by the Accused's self-serving false and half-true statements (a common scheme detailed below) to CS2 Taylor, his roommate, and investigators, sexual conduct occurred between the Accused and CS3 A.R. Given the nature of CS3 A.R.'s plea for help to ET3 Rich and the noise heard by AR Calisse, that sexual conduct was unwanted.

v. Motivated to prevent another report being made against him, the Accused made a decision to murder CS3 A.R. after his unwelcome advance. On the call, the Accused asked ET3 Rich how far away he was to determine how long he had to prevent another case against him from being reported. CS3 A.R. was never heard from again despite significant search efforts from interested parties immediately following the call.

vi. Just as he had an extreme and violent response to a second reported allegation against him from CSSN S.S., here he formed the premeditated intent to murder CS3 A.R. before she could make a third report, as discussed above. The Accused's lies about that evening combined with CS3 A.R.'s call for help and their state of undress that morning are strong evidence that CS3 A.R. was the victim of sexual non-consensual sexual advances. Her demonstrating that she was going to reach out for help by calling ET3 Rich provided a motive for the Accused to control her, ensure she did not report him, and to commit premeditated murder.

207. Encl. 59.
208. Encls. 32, 43.

(2) Reasoning in support of intent for the sole Specification of Charge VII. As noted above, the Accused formed the premeditated intent to murder CS3 A.R. because he did not believe he could overcome a third reported allegation. He was willing to kill himself after CSSN S.S.'s allegation, underscoring the extreme intent he is capable of. Anything less than murder would have been insufficient as it would have left her as a witness against him.

(3) Reasoning in support of lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII. As noted above, this evidence of the Accused's extreme desire to avoid an allegation even if by suicide establishes that CS3 A.R.'s death was not an accident, but the result of an intentional action of the Accused.

(4) Reasoning in support of consciousness of guilt for the for Specification 3 of Charge I and both Specifications of Charge III. The Accused's instant and extreme response by attempting suicide after he was accused of this charged misconduct by CSSN S.S. demonstrates a consciousness of guilt as to his actions towards her.

c. Looking at the third prong of the Reynolds test for this set of evidence, the evidence's probative value outweighs any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. The time needed to prove it is limited as the Government intends to admit all of this evidence at trial regardless. These acts occurred within months of each other. There were limited intervening circumstances as the evidence abuts in time. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as it is based on the charged misconduct. And using charged misconduct to prove charged misconduct under M.R.E. 404(b) in this manner does not affect the presumption of innocence or burden of proof. As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and not overcome by the high probative value this evidence provides the Government in proving the charged misconduct.

34. Thus, this evidence satisfies all three prongs of the Reynolds test and should be admitted.

D. The Accused's history of telling half-truths to mislead investigators.

35. Evidence of the Accused's history of telling half-truths to mislead investigators. The Accused has described himself as a "king manipulator"[209] and applies that manipulating behavior to the criminal investigations pending against him. These lies, while nearly entirely res gestae[210] are individually offered as consciousness of guilt, but this is not merely lying. When put together it can be seen that over the course of five separate investigations and several more interviews with investigators, the Accused demonstrated a calculated pattern of manipulative, intentional deceit. This evidence, discussed below, is offered to establish common scheme and consciousness of guilt for Specifications 1-3 of Charge I (Sexual Contact and Sexual Assault),

209. Encl. 60 at 15:01.
210. The Government contends that only the pre-service conduct is not res gestae.

the sole Specification of Charge II (Strangulation), both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as intent for both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement). These facts incorporate both uncharged and charged misconduct and are supported by the evidence, are offered for a valid basis under M.R.E. 404(b), and have an extremely high probative value that is not outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice.

(1) During two separate investigations into pre-service misconduct, the Accused made misleading statements as follows:

i. In May 2022, when the Accused was in high school, a fellow student accused him of unlawfully recording a sexual encounter between them with his phone. Investigators obtained a warrant for the Accused's phone after he admitted to recording it, but the Accused advised his mother had taken his phone away preventing him from giving it to investigators. The Accused's mother advised that she told the Accused to put his phone on her dresser, but found out he had only put the case for his phone there instead. The Accused then advised he had misplaced the phone. The phone was never recovered. This was an incontrovertible lie to investigators, contrary to the Defense's argument otherwise. Indeed, the Accused took an additional step to mislead his mother as well as investigators.

ii. In June 2022, L.L. alleged that the Accused was at her home and they were sitting on the couch together. The Accused touched her vulva with his hand without her consent, despite her continually moving his hand away and telling him "no." He also pressured her to hug and kissed her without her consent. The Accused gave a half-true statement to investigators, agreeing that he was with L.L. on the couch but denied touching her inappropriately and denied kissing L.L. without consent, only that he attempted to kiss her. The Accused also told investigators that L.L. had sent him nude photographs and messages asking to be "fucked," but when asked the Accused advised he did not have those messages.

(2) The accused made misleading statements during investigations into ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.S. as follows:

i. The Accused made half-true statements about strangling ABHAN C.R. and his sexual interest in her. ABHAN C.R. told investigators that after talking with the Accused, the Accused strangled her, touched her intimate areas, and attempted to kiss her. The Accused downplayed the sexual nature of his interaction with ABHAN C.R. and that he strangled her, only admitting that he lightly choked her.[211] Specifically, when asked by NCIS about this misconduct, he told investigators:

A. That they were "flirting," but he also denied being romantically or sexually

211. Encl. 61.

interested in her.[212]

B. When asked if he strangled ABHAN C.R., he stated "oh okay yeah I have but it wasn't like a weird way," and stated he put one hand around her neck without applying any pressure after she pinched his arm.[213] The Accused also admitted that he told ABHAN C.R. that he heard she liked to be choked.[214] Nonetheless, the Accused denied any sexual touching or attempted sexual touching took place.[215]

ii. The Accused made half-true statements by admitting to recording and broadcasting a sexual encounter with CSSN S.S. but conveniently lied about the whereabouts of his phone and later "lost" the recording of that encounter when he got a "new" phone.

iii. The Accused also denied any misconduct when initially confronted by CSSN S.S. (who had no memory of the event) and told CSSN S.S. that they did not have sex, despite later admitting they did once it became clear that others were reporting they had seen the video.

(3) After an investigation into CS3 A.R.'s disappearance, the Accused made several half-true statements to mislead during the early days of CS3 A.R.'s disappearance and follow-on investigation. Most notably:

i. On 29 May 2025:

A. The Accused told FCC Parker that early on the morning of her disappearance, CS3 A.R. was having personal issues and was seeking help, so he picked her up and brought her to his barracks room to discuss them. But this is not why or how they were together. CS3 A.R. came to the Accused's barracks room to make tacos and hang out on the evening of 28 May 2025. CS3 A.R. only made a call for help at 0214 on 29 May 2025 to ET3 Rich, discussed above, and no one else. FCC Parker was aware CS3 A.R. was seeking help that night because he had spoken to ET3 Rich. The Accused advised him that CS3 A.R. had called several people and he was the first to get to her. The Accused turned CS3 A.R.'s call for help to ET3 Rich into a narrative to make himself look better and more trusted while he concealed her dead body on his bed. This was all done in an effort to manipulate FCC Parker.

B. According to FCC Parker, the Accused was acting like he had just woken up and took a significant amount of time to answer the door, further indicating he had been sleeping. But the Accused had been awake since at least 0728, as

212. Encl. 61.
213. Encl. 61.
214. Encl. 61.
215. Encl. 61.

demonstrated by his record of watching pornography nearly constantly from 0728-1150 that morning. Instead, he was concealing CS3 A.R.'s body and concocting a narrative. Relatedly, the Accused told FCC Parker his phone died and his alarm did not go off which is why he was not at work. But his phone was on and charged.

C. The Accused told FCC Parker he had a ride to work to get him to leave. He did not and he did not check in to work until 1 June 2025.

ii. On 1 June 2025:

A. The Accused told investigators that while CS3 A.R. was at his barracks room on 29 May 2025, PSSN Gordillocruz came into the common area to ask if CS3 A.R. was okay as she was upset.[216] But PSSN Gordillocruz did not say this occurred.[217] He stated he arrived to the unit around 0400 but the lights were off and he did not see anyone in the dark common area.

B. The Accused maintained his lie that FCC Parker woke him and CS3 A.R. up on 29 May 2025 when he came to the room around 0900.[218] CS3 A.R. was already dead and the Accused was already awake, as noted above.

C. The Accused told investigators he borrowed his roommate's car and dropped CS3 A.R. back at her barracks around 1000 on 29 May 2025. The Accused provided later that CS3 A.R. left of her own accord. None of the Accused's roommates allowed him to borrow a vehicle at that time. And, perhaps most notably, CS3 A.R. was already dead. There is no evidence to suggest she left the barracks room while alive.

iii. On 3 June 2025:

A. During this interview of the Accused, an iPhone was found during a contemporaneous search in his barracks room. The Accused told investigators the phone did not work, but investigative efforts later determined that it did work and this had been a lie.

B. As discussed above, the Accused provided his encounter with CS3 A.R. was not a sexual encounter, but CS3 A.R. was described as partially naked by the Accused's roommates and he told CS3 Taylor that CS3 A.R. and he had begun making out in his bed and she wanted to go further sexually, but the Accused stopped it. As detailed above, this is not true.

C. The Accused told investigators that CS3 A.R. did not make a call for help or to be picked up. But she called ET3 Rich in a panic at 0214 asking to be picked up and the Accused took the phone to speak with him.

216. Encl. 42.
217. Encl. 31.
218. Encl. 42.

D. The Accused told investigators CS3 A.R. spent a significant amount of time on the phone with an ex-boyfriend from Texas, but there is no evidence to suggest that occurred.[219]

E. The Accused re-iterated his lie about PSSN Gordillocruz checking on CS3 A.R. to ensure she was okay.[220]

F. The Accused stated he slept in his bed with CS3 A.R. and denied being naked on the floor of the common area. But they were found on the common area floor by all three roommates in a state of undress before being seen in the Accused's bed by FCC Parker later that morning.

G. The Accused stated his unauthorized absence (UA) status was a big misunderstanding and he did not know he was UA because he was not scheduled to work.[221] But FCC Parker repeatedly told him to check in over the weekend.

H. The Accused denied telling investigators he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks room on 29 May 2025, in contrast with her previous statement.

I. The Accused denied knowing where CS3 A.R. was.

iii. On 6 June 2025:

A. The Accused re-iterated several of his 3 June lies, including that CS3 A.R. called an ex-boyfriend from Texas, that nothing sexual occurred, that FCC Parker woke him up, and that he did not know CS3 A.R. was.[222]

B. The Accused also acknowledged he did not drop CS3 A.R. off as stated previously.[223]

a. As to prong one of the Reynolds test, these other acts occurred. These statements were made by the Accused to investigators or other witnesses and are often corroborated by other investigative actions.

b. This evidence satisfies the second Reynolds prong as it is relevant for a basis other than just propensity. The Accused's history of telling half-truths as a "king manipulator" is offered to establish common scheme and consciousness of guilt for Specifications 1-3 of Charge I (Sexual Contact and Sexual Assault), the sole Specification of Charge II (Strangulation), both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as intent for both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement). Contrary to the Defense's repeated assertions, this evidence is not being offered to show intent for premeditated murder (and never was).

(1) Reasoning in support of common scheme for Specifications 1-3 of Charge I, the sole Specification of Charge II, both Specifications of Charge III, Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV, both Specifications of Charge VI, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. The Accused's common scheme of providing half-true information in a calculated manner demonstrates a pattern with the goal of misleading investigators after he "get[s his] story and timeline straight."[224] The sheer number of half-truths across various investigations demonstrates he is a deliberate liar—a "king manipulator"[225]—and he uses this scheme of different types of lies as noted above to delay and obfuscate investigations. This is a very particular method of lying. That he consistently gives enough information to admit to an event without inculpating himself of the most serious misconduct, fabricates accounts where he believes he will not be challenged, and misleads investigators as to the state of the evidence demonstrates a willful scheme to mislead that becomes more probative the more it is replicated. That these lies often contain some level of the truth makes his lies about what happened between himself and CS3 A.R. particularly illuminating, as he is the only witness still alive. And because this is a common scheme, these lies are more easily distilled down to what actually occurred, as described above, such as the fact that the Accused made the unwanted sexual advance on CS3 A.R. and not the other way around as he described to CS2 Taylor.

(2) Reasoning in support of consciousness of guilt for Specifications 1-3 of Charge I, the sole Specification of Charge II, both Specifications of Charge III, Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV, both Specifications of Charge VI, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. For the reasons outlined above, the Accused's history of half-truths demonstrates an intentional pattern of misleading investigators to exculpate himself, demonstrating a consciousness of guilt for his misconduct for whichever offense was then under investigation.

(3) Reasoning in support of intent for both Specifications of Charge VI. The Accused's repeated history of half-truths to mislead investigators and others demonstrates that his false statements to investigators in these Specifications are intentional.

c. Looking at the third prong of the Reynolds test for this set of evidence, the evidence's

224. Encl. 46 at 105.
225. Encl. 60 at 15:01.

probative value outweighs any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. The time needed to prove it is limited as, aside from the preservice misconduct, the Government intends to admit all of this evidence to support the charged offenses at trial regardless. The pre-service misconduct will be simple to prove through a handful of witnesses and will be limited only to the relevant conduct described here and as outlined in our notice under M.R.E. 413 discussed below. The pre-service misconduct also occurred within just over two years of the charged misconduct's beginning. All acts occurred within merely three years of each other. There were limited intervening circumstances as the evidence demonstrates a consistent path over three years. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as it is primarily based on the charged misconduct. And using charged misconduct to prove charged misconduct under M.R.E. 404(b) in this manner does not affect the presumption of innocence or burden of proof. As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and not overcome by the high probative value this evidence provides the Government in proving the charged misconduct.

36. Thus, this evidence satisfies all three prongs of the Reynolds test and should be admitted.

E. The Accused's history of hiding his phone from investigators when under criminal investigation.

37. As discussed below, the Accused has a demonstrated history of hiding his phone when placed under investigation and this history is offered to establish common scheme and lack of accident for Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice) and consciousness of guilt for Specification 3 of Charge I (Sexual Assault), both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), all Specifications of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Murder). These facts primarily incorporate charged misconduct, are supported by the evidence, are offered for a valid basis under M.R.E. 404(b), and have an extremely high probative value that is not outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice.

a. The Accused has a history of hiding his phone from investigators when under criminal investigation.

i. In May 2022, when the Accused was in high school, a fellow student accused the Accused of unlawfully recording a sexual encounter between them with his phone. Investigators obtained a warrant for the Accused's phone, but the Accused advised his mother had taken his phone away, preventing him from giving it to them. The Accused's mother advised that she told the Accused to put his phone on her dresser, but found out he had only put the case for his phone there instead. The Accused then advised he had misplaced his phone. His phone was never recovered.

ii. In November 2024, after CSSN S.S. accused the Accused of misconduct, he hid his cell phone from investigators and lied and said he had given it to a friend before saying it was lost. When he later provided digital evidence to investigators, he advised he had gotten a "new" phone that contained digital evidence from the time of the allegation, but apparently no longer had the video in question.

iii. On 3June 2025, when questioned about the disappearance of CS3 A.R., the Accused advised that the cell phone found in his barracks room would not turn on. However, investigative steps later determined that the phone was operational at the time. When investigators sought to seize that phone on 9 June 2025, the phone was missing from the Accused's belongings and never recovered. [226]

iv. The Accused has also conducted online research on what a phone search can return, including queries such as: on 25 May 2025 (1) "can police fet [ph.] infirmation [ph.] from reset phone;" (2) "ncis took my phone;" and (3) "can ncis take your phone off allegations."[227] He intentionally hides his phones because he knows they are of high evidentiary value.

a. As to prong one of the Reynolds test, these other acts occurred. These facts are supported by the accounts of criminal investigators and the Accused's own statements, as well as a digital extraction of one of the Accused's phones.

b. This evidence satisfies the second Reynolds prong as it is relevant for a basis other than just propensity. This evidence of the Accused hiding his phone when placed under investigation is offered to establish common scheme for Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice) and consciousness of guilt for Specification 3 of Charge I (Sexual Assault), both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), all Specifications of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of common scheme and lack of accident for Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV. The Accused has demonstrated a common scheme of lying and hiding his phone when under investigation for an offense that he perceives may result in his phone being seized. He did this with the pre-service allegations against him in May 2022, he did it again with the allegations of CSSN S.S. in November of 2024, and he did it most recently when being investigated for crimes related to the disappearance of CS3 A.R. This evidence also supports that him misplacing his phone is not an accident, but an intentional effort to obstruct justice (as charged).

(2) Reasoning in support of consciousness of guilt for Specification 3 of Charge I, both Specifications of Charge III, all Specifications of Charge IV, both Specifications of Charge VI the sole Specification of Charge VII. The Accused hides his phone intuitively because it contains incriminating information on it. The Accused's online search history supports that belief. That he lied and hid his phone repeatedly from investigators indicates a consciousness of guilt for all offenses related to both CSSN S.S. and CS3 A.R. Moreover, his Google search history supports that he did so with the specific intent to limit an investigation into misconduct.

226. The Accused also told investigators on 6 June that the phone was broken. Encl. 46 at 132.
227. Encl. 62.

c. Looking at the third prong of the Reynolds test for this set of evidence, the evidence's probative value is not substantially outweighed by any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. The time needed to prove it is limited as the Government intends to admit most of this evidence at trial regardless. The pre-service misconduct will be simple to prove through a limited number of brief witnesses. The pre-service misconduct occurred within two and a half years of the relevant charged misconduct's beginning. All acts occurred within merely three years of each other. There were limited intervening circumstances as the evidence demonstrates a consistent plan over three years. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as it is primarily based on the charged misconduct. And using charged misconduct to prove charged misconduct under M.R.E. 404(b) in this manner does not affect the presumption of innocence or burden of proof. As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and not overcome by the high probative value this evidence provides the Government in proving the charged misconduct.

38. Thus, this evidence satisfies all three prongs of the Reynolds test and should be admitted.

F. The Accused's history of recording and broadcasting sexual encounters without consent.

39. The Accused recorded and broadcast a sexual encounter with a female victim in high school in May of 2022 without her consent, as detailed above. This evidence is offered to establish common scheme, knowledge, and intent for both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting). These facts are supported by the evidence, are offered for a valid basis under M.R.E. 404(b), and have an extremely high probative value that is not outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice.

a. As to prong one of the Reynolds test, these other acts occurred. These facts are supported by the accounts of witnesses and the Accused's own statements.

b. This evidence satisfies the second Reynolds prong as it is relevant for a basis other than just propensity. This evidence of the Accused recording and broadcasting sexual encounters is offered to establish common scheme, knowledge, and intent for both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting):

(1) Reasoning in support of common scheme, knowledge, and intent for both Specifications of Charge III. The Accused has demonstrated a common scheme of recording and broadcasting sexual encounters without consent, just as he did with CSSN S.S. This evidence also supports that the Accused knew when he recorded and broadcast his encounter with CSSN S.S. that this conduct was wrongful absent her consent and that doing so without her consent was intentional.

c. Looking at the third prong of the Reynolds test for this set of evidence, the evidence's probative value outweighs any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. This misconduct will be simple to prove through a limited number of brief witnesses. The pre-service misconduct occurred within two and a half years of the relevant charged misconduct. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as its presentation will be brief. As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and not overcome by the high probative value this evidence provides the Government in proving the charged misconduct.

40. Thus, this evidence satisfies all three prongs of the Reynolds test and should be admitted.

G. The Accused makes an "evil" grin when assaulting women.

41. The Accused makes an "evil" grin when assaulting women. The Government seeks to introduce this evidence to establish motive and intent for Specification 1 of Charge V (Domestic Violence – Strangulation). These facts are supported by the evidence, are offered for a valid basis under M.R.E. 404(b), and have an extremely high probative value that is not outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice.

a. As to prong one of the Reynolds test, these other acts occurred. This account is from a victim of the Accused's pre-service misconduct, L.L. She alleges that while he touched her vulva without consent, he had an "evil" grin.

b. This evidence satisfies the second Reynolds prong as it is relevant for a basis other than just propensity. This "evil" grin by the Accused is offered to prove motive, intent, and identity with respect to Specification 1 of Charge V.

(1) Reasoning in support of motive and intent for Specification 1 of Charge V. CSSN S.R. described the Accused as smiling while he strangled her. This description mirrors the "evil" grin described by L.L., establishing further that the Accused intends to exercise control and enjoys and intends nonconsensual touching of women.

c. Looking at the third prong of the Reynolds test for this set of evidence, the evidence's probative value outweighs any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. This misconduct will be simple to prove through a limited number of brief witnesses. The pre-service misconduct occurred within three years of the relevant charged misconduct. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as its presentation will be brief and we are seeking to introduce it under M.R.E. 413 as well, discussed below. As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and not overcome by the high probative value this evidence provides the Government in proving the charged misconduct.

42. Thus, this evidence satisfies all three prongs of the Reynolds test and should be admitted.

H. The Accused's various actions after murdering CS3 A.R.

43. The Government believes the below evidence outlining various actions of the Accused related to CS3 A.R.'s murder are res gestae, but offers them here in an abundance of caution. The Government intends to introduce the below evidence to establish consciousness of guilt for Specification 2 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Murder). These facts are supported by the evidence, are offered for a valid basis under M.R.E. 404(b), and have an extremely high probative value that is not outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice.

a. This includes:

(1) The Accused hid in various barracks lounges from 29 May 2025-1 June 2025 after he murdered CS3 A.R. When security from the ship came to find him on 1 June 2025, he hid in the bathroom on the fifth floor of his barracks. The Accused's roommate also stated that the Accused was leaving very early and returning very late over that weekend, which was highly unusual for him.

(2) During the period of 29 May 2025 to 1 June 2025, the Accused was in an unauthorized absence status and was repeatedly notified that he needed to check-in, but he ignored those requests. Indeed, despite dozens of inquiries as to his whereabouts from both his ship and his friends that the Accused viewed on his phone, the Accused generally did not answer his phone or respond to text messages from 29 May 2025 until 1 June 2025.[228]

(3) The Accused encouraged his roommate to leave the room, which was an unusual request.[229]

(4) The Accused disposed of CS3 A.R.'s body in a wooded area on 2 June 2025. The Accused turned his phone on Airplane mode after he decided where to place the body and turned it off of Airplane mode when he was done placing her in the woods. Specifically, he placed his phone on Airplane mode at 0448 on 2 June 2025 when he drove to a pinned location (where the body was found) and turned it off at 0516 when he left the site.

(5) At 1311 the day he murdered CS3 A.R., the Accused searched for a trip to "Bermuda."[230] In the days following his murder of CS3 A.R., the Accused searched online for "virginia airport" on 3 and 10 June 2025 and "norfolk airport" on 3 June 2025.[231]

(6) As discussed in detail above, during the investigation into CS3 A.R.'s disappearance, the Accused lied about various things, including: (1) that he dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks on 29 May 2025, (2) that he did not know where CS3 A.R. was, (3) that the iPhone found in his room on 3 June 2025 did not work, (4) that CS3 A.R. did not call anyone for a ride from his barracks room on 29 May 2025, (5) that CS3 A.R. was on the phone with her ex-boyfriend from Texas on 29 May 2025, (6) that CS3 A.R. had wanted to go further sexually when they were together on 29 May 2025, but he declined, and (7) that he slept with CS3 A.R.

228. Encl. 30.

in his bed that night and not on the floor.[232]

(7) The Accused laughed off that he was naked to his roommate, in contrast to what he told CS3 Taylor and despite them being seen naked together on the floor of the common area that morning.

(8) The Accused hid and/or destroyed his second iPhone prior to going to the brig on 9 June 2025, as discussed above.

(9) The Accused called and texted CS3 A.R. on 1 June 2025 asking where she was and notifying her of her UA status despite knowing she was deceased and her body was in his closet.[233]

b. As to prong one of the Reynolds test, these other acts occurred. It is either from data extracted from the Accused's phone, from the Accused's own statements, or from statements of eyewitnesses.

c. This evidence satisfies the second Reynolds prong as it is relevant for a basis other than just propensity. These actions by the Accused in the hours and days following the murder of CS3 A.R. are offered to show consciousness of guilt for Specification 2 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of consciousness of guilt for Specification 2 of Charge IV, both Specifications of Charge VI, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. These actions include an intent to flee, an attempt to mislead, and an attempt to hide from investigators and others. They were taken close in time to the disappearance of CS3 A.R. and are those taken by someone with a guilty conscience.

d. Looking at the third prong of the Reynolds test for this set of evidence, the evidence's probative value is not substantially outweighed by any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. The time needed to prove it is limited as the Government intends to admit all of this evidence at trial regardless. These acts occurred within days of eachother. There were no limited intervening circumstances as the evidence abuts in time. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as it is based on the charged misconduct. And using charged misconduct to prove charged misconduct under M.R.E. 404(b) in this manner does not affect the presumption of innocence or burden of proof. As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and not overcome by the high probative value this evidence provides the Government in proving the charged misconduct.

44. Thus, this evidence satisfies all three prongs of the Reynolds test and should be admitted.

ARGUMENT AS TO M.R.E. 413 EVIDENCE

45. The Government intends to introduce the following propensity evidence as relevant to the charged sexual misconduct in Specifications 1 and 4 of Charge I (Aggravated Sexual Contact and Sexual Assault).

a. In June 2022, the Accused touched L.L.'s vulva without consent despite her repeatedly removing his hand and telling him "stop" and "no." This account is from a victim of the Accused's pre-service misconduct, L.L., and depicts an aggravated (or abusive) sexual contact.[234] The Government withdraws its notice to introduce kissing L.L. without consent as direct evidence under M.R.E. 413, but it is res gestae of the aggravated sexual contact that occurred.

b. The evidence establishes that this offense occurred by more than a preponderance of the evidence.[235] L.L., at 15 years old, immediately reported a detailed sexual offense to her parents and later to police. The event occurred without eyewitnesses. And her brother, who did not witness the contact itself, provided that just prior to the alleged contact that L.L. was with the Accused on the couch and she seemed "slightly uncomfortable," had "worried eyebrows," and was "scooching" away from the Accused.[236] There was also no motive to fabricate as surmised by the Defense—L.L.'s brother invited the Accused over, not her. The Accused also provided misleading statements to investigators, such as advising she had sent messages to him that he no longer had as discussed above.

c. This propensity evidence is relevant to Specification 1 of Charge I. Specifically, the Accused's actions towards ABHAN C.R. in these charged offenses nearly mirror the Accused undeterred approach to sexual gratification with L.L. In both cases, the Accused ignored the victim's request to stop and his hands being repeatedly removed and continued with his unwanted sexual contact (including non-consensual kissing).

d. This propensity evidence is also offered as relevant to Specification 4 of Charge I. Specifically, the Accused refused to take no for an answer from Y.J., just as he did with L.L. In both cases, he continued with his sexual goals despite that objection.

234. The Defense notes that they do not have all of the discovery for this event. The Government is in the process of producing it. The Defense's tactical decision to file this motion without production having occurred.

235. The Defense suggests that the prosecution needs to independently verify the accounts of the Oak Harbor Police Department's detectives. There is no basis in law for that suggestion, particularly this early in litigation and absent any discrediting information about those officers being present. The police provided a thorough report with a detailed account of L.L.'s statement. There is no basis to doubt it's veracity. Moreover, the Government is endeavoring to meet the speedy trial demands of the Accused by leaning forward and providing discovery and evidence as it becomes available.

236. Encl. 57 at 7.

e. And finally, the evidence's probative value outweighs any risk of unfair prejudice. The proof of this evidence is strong and highly probative of the charged misconduct for the reasons outlined above. Despite the dichotomy repeatedly presented by the Defense about this being an event long in the Accused's past when he was just a minor, these acts overlapped within just about two years (26 months) of each other. The probative value of an event does not change on someone's 18th birthday. Indeed, in the case cited by the Defense on this point, United States v. Berry, eight years passed from the offense the Government sought to admit and the charged offense (13 years old versus 21) and even that time range was not alone enough to find error.[237] Moreover, the time needed to prove this offense is limited and can be done with a limited number of witnesses (two). There was no ongoing dating relationship between any of these victims and all three events were one-time events with each victim. This evidence will also not distract the factfinder as its usage will be limited to the relevant bases described above and as explained in the M.R.E. 404(b) section above. It will also not be the crux of the Government's case, as occurred in Berry.[238] As such, any danger of unfair prejudice is extremely limited and not overcome by the high probative value this evidence provides the Government's case.

U N I T E D S T A T E S v. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN / E-3 USN	NOTICE UNDER M.R.E. 404(b) AND 413 5 NOV 25

1. Pursuant to Military Rule of Evidence 404(b), the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following evidence to establish common scheme, motive, and intent for the sole Specification of Charge II (Strangulation), Specification 1 of Charge V (Domestic Violence – Strangulation), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder):

a. The Accused's history of strangulation as it relates to his actions toward ABHAN C.R. in the sole Specification of Charge II and CSSN S.R. in Specification 1 of Charge V, as well as the evidence consistent with the Accused's strangulation of CS3 A.R. in the sole Specification of Charge VII discussed in detail below.

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that these other acts occurred. Both the strangulation of ABHAN C.R. and the strangulation of CSSN S.R. were reported separately by each victim and neither had knowledge of the other. Both described being strangled by the Accused. The evidence supports that the Accused strangled CS3 A.R. as well. The medical examiner determined that CS3 A.R.'s death was consistent with strangulation. The medical examiner also ruled out blunt force trauma, stabbing, or shooting as potential causes of death and there were no findings to suggest suicide, overdose, or death by natural causes. CS3 A.R. made a panicked call for help at 0214 to ET3 Daniel Rich, USN, on 29 May 2025 while she was with the Accused. The Accused took the phone and asked ET3 Rich how far away he was. CS3 A.R. was never heard from by her loved ones again. Between 01:52:58-2:30:23, the Accused's heart rate rapidly increased and stayed between 125-128 bpm, spiking again at 130 bpm at 03:07:06. The Accused's suitemate reported hearing what he believed to be karaoke in the common room around that time, but did not investigate. The blood found at the scene was limited to the closet area where the Accused stored the body, suggesting no blood-producing injury occurred and eyewitnesses did not observe any obvious wounds on CS3 A.R.'s body just hours after she was murdered. In fact, they believed she was asleep. As discussed in paragraph 3.c.(1) below, the Accused also had a strong motive to murder CS3 A.R. at the time he did so.

c. The Accused's history of strangulation is offered to establish common scheme, motive, and intent for the sole Specification of Charge II (Strangulation), Specification 1 of Charge V

(Domestic Violence – Strangulation), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of common scheme for the sole Specification of Charge II, Specification 1 of Charge V, and the sole Specification of Charge VII.

i. The Accused has a demonstrated history of using strangulation to exert control over women to get them to comply. The Accused strangled ABHAN C.R. when she resisted his sexual advances. In that case, the Accused used strangulation to exert control over ABHAN C.R. and obtain his desired sexual gratification. The Accused similarly strangled CSSN S.R., his intimate partner, when she confronted him about his infidelity. The Accused did so again to gain control of his victim, in this case to stop her from arguing with him. As evidenced by these two occasions, the Accused is quick to use strangulation to assert control over a situation to get what he wants.

ii. The Accused applied this common scheme and again exerted control over CS3 A.R. by strangling her, just as he did with ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.R. In the case of CS3 A.R., the Accused decided to strangle her to control her and prevent her from reporting misconduct to either ET3 Rich or the Accused's suitemates, as discussed in paragraph 2(c)(1) below.

iii. The Accused's strangulation of CS3 A.R. was approximately one month after his strangulation of CSSN S.R. All three strangulation events occurred within a year of each other and reflect a common scheme of controlling women to get them to comply.

(2) Reasoning in support of motive for the sole Specification of Charge II, Specification 1 of Charge V, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. As noted in 1.c.(1) above, the Accused sought control over both ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.R. The Accused's strangulation of CS3 A.R. was motivated by the same desire for control.

(3) Reasoning in support of intent for the sole Specification of Charge II, Specification 1 of Charge V, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. As noted in 1.c.(1) above, the Accused used strangulation as a method to assert control over his victims. Specific to CS3 A.R., the Accused intended to control CS3 A.R. by strangling her to death, for the reasons discussed in paragraph 2.c.(1) below.

(4) Reasoning in support of lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII. This evidence of the Accused's common scheme of strangulation of female victims will also be offered to show that CS3 A.R.'s death was not an accident. While there is no evidence to suggest CS3 A.R. died of natural causes, committed suicide, or otherwise unintentionally overdosed, this evidence of strangulation establishes her death was not an accident but an intentional action of the Accused. Moreover, the Accused demonstrated with ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.R. that he could strangle someone and stop short of killing them. That the Accused was capable of this demonstrates he did not unintentionally strangle CS3 A.R. for too long and accidentally murder her.

2. Pursuant to Military Rule of Evidence 404(b), the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following evidence to establish knowledge and motive for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder):

a. On 25 May 2025, Y.J. was in the Accused's barracks room. Two friends in the common area heard her telling the Accused to "stop" penetrating her vagina and entered the room to stop the Accused from continuing.

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that these other acts occurred. These events were reported by Y.J. and are corroborated by the witnesses who responded to her request for the Accused to "stop."

c. That others heard a victim ask the Accused to "stop" from another room within the Accused's barracks room is offered to establish knowledge and motive for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of knowledge and motive for the sole Specification of Charge VII. The above-described interaction with Y.J. occurred only 4 days prior to the night CS3 A.R. was murdered and both events took place in the same barracks room. For the reasons detailed in paragraph 3.c.(1) below, the Accused had a motive to murder CS3 A.R. This event with Y.J. was fresh on his mind and the Accused knew that his suitemates would be able to hear CS3 A.R. cry for help. The Accused also knew that his suitemates may be able to hear him murder CS3 A.R. if he chose a loud mechanism for doing so. As a result, the Accused was motivated to murder CS3 A.R. before his suitemates responded and he did so by strangulation because he knew it would be quiet.

3. Pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b), the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following evidence to establish motive, intent, and lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as consciousness of guilt for Specification 3 of Charge I (Sexual Assault) and both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting):

a. In July of 2024, the Accused was accused of sexual misconduct by ABHAN A.R. and was aware he was under investigation by NCIS for that accusation. He stated that ABHAN A.R. "put a case on him." In November of 2024, the Accused was accused by CSSN S.S. of a separate sexual assault and other offenses. The Accused reported that CSSN S.S. "put a charge" on him and that he "caught a case." He told her that his life was ruined. Nearly immediately after this accusation, he became inconsolable, threatened to kill himself, and repeatedly attempted to genuinely kill himself by walking in front of approximately three trains before being recovered by ship security and brought back to the ship.

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that these other acts occurred. The Accused's actions after being confronted by CSSN S.S. were observed by eyewitnesses and members of the ship had to recover him and return him to the ship to stop his attempted self-harm. The Accused statements to CSSN S.S. about his desire to kill himself are recorded in text messages.

c. The Accused's reaction to an allegation of sexual assault is offered to establish motive, intent, and lack of accident with respect to the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of motive for the sole Specification of Charge VII.

i. When CSSN S.S. made accusations against the Accused in November 2024, the Accused immediately demonstrated he was willing to take extreme and violent measures by attempting to kill himself.

ii. CS3 A.R. made a panicked call to ET3 Rich for help at 0214; a call the Accused denies occurred despite call records to the contrary. It is evident from that call that the Accused had done something to CS3 A.R. to cause distress. The Accused murdered CS3 A.R. shortly after that call.

iii. That call was prompted by an unwanted sexual advance and the Accused murdered her to prevent her from making a report. After CS3 A.R. went missing, the Accused self-servingly told investigators and his roommate that nothing sexual occurred that night between the two of them. Comparatively, the Accused advised another Sailor, CS2 Rezan Taylor, USN, that CS3 A.R. and he were making out, but that he had turned her down after she wanted to go further and this upset her. Both of these statements conflict with the accounts of the Accused's roommates, who described the Accused and CS3 A.R. as partially naked on top of each other on the floor of the common area later on the morning of 29 May. Consistent with their nudity and illuminated by the Accused's self-serving false and half-true statements (a common scheme detailed below) to CS2 Taylor, his roommate, and investigators, sexual conduct occurred between the Accused and CS3 A.R. Given the nature of CS3 A.R.'s plea for help, that sexual conduct was unwanted.

v. Motivated to prevent another report being made against him, the Accused made a decision to murder CS3 A.R. after his unwelcome advance. On the call, the Accused asked ET3 Rich how far away he was to determine how long he had to prevent another case against him from being reported. CS3 A.R. was never heard from again despite significant search efforts from interested parties immediately following the call.

vi. Just as he had an extreme and violent response to a second reported allegation against him from CSSN S.S., here he formed the premeditated intent to murder CS3 A.R. before she could make a third report, as discussed in paragraph 1.b. While the Government cannot say specifically what that unwanted sexual advance was, the Accused's lies about that evening combined with CS3 A.R.'s cry for help and their state of undress that morning indicate that something inappropriate occurred and provided a motive for him to commit premeditated murder.

(2) Reasoning in support of intent for the sole Specification of Charge VII. As noted in 2.c.(1) above, the Accused formed the premeditated intent to murder CS3 A.R. because he did not believe he could overcome a third reported allegation. He was willing to kill himself after CSSN S.S.'s allegation, underscoring the extreme intent he is capable of. Anything less than murder would have been insufficient as it would have left her as a witness against him.

(3) Reasoning in support of lack of accident for the sole Specification of Charge VII. As noted in 2.c.(1) above, this evidence of the Accused's extreme desire to avoid an allegation even if by suicide establishes that CS3 A.R.'s death was not an accident, but the result of an intentional action of the Accused.

(4) Reasoning in support of consciousness of guilt for the for Specification 3 of Charge I and both Specifications of Charge III. The Accused's instant and extreme response by attempting suicide after he was accused of this charged misconduct by CSSN S.S. demonstrates a consciousness of guilt as to his actions towards her.

4. Pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b), the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following evidence to establish common scheme and consciousness of guilt for Specifications 1-3 of Charge I (Sexual Contact and Sexual Assault), the sole Specification of Charge II (Strangulation), both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as intent for both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement):

a. The Government believes the below evidence is res gestae, but offers it here in an abundance of caution. Evidence of the Accused's history of telling half-truths to mislead investigators. The Accused has described himself as a "king manipulator" and acknowledged an intent to "get [his] story straight" and applies that manipulating behavior to the criminal investigations pending against him. This is not merely lying. Over the course of five separate investigations and several more interviews with investigators, the Accused has demonstrated a calculated pattern of (1) admitting only uncontroverted facts, (2) shifting when he realizes he is challenged with credible evidence or investigative steps, (3) fabricating favorable events where possible, and (4) never admitting to the most serious misconduct for which there is only one witness (the victim).

(1) During two separate investigations into pre-service misconduct, the Accused made misleading statements as follows:

i. In May 2022, when the Accused was in high school, a fellow student accused him of unlawfully recording a sexual encounter between them with his phone. Investigators obtained a warrant for the Accused's phone after he admitted to recording it, but the Accused advised his mother had taken his phone away preventing him from giving it to investigators. The Accused's mother advised that she told the Accused to put his phone on her dresser, but found out he had only put the case for his phone there instead. The Accused then advised he had misplaced the phone. The phone was never recovered. This evidence meets categories (1) and (2).

ii. In June 2022, L.L. alleged that the Accused was at her home and they were sitting on the couch together. The Accused touched her vulva with his hand without her consent, despite her continually moving his hand away and telling him "no." He also pressured her to hug and kissed her without her consent. The Accused gave a half-true statement to investigators, agreeing that he was with L.L. on the couch but denied touching her inappropriately and denied kissing L.L. without consent, only that he attempted to kiss her. The Accused also told investigators that L.L. had sent him nude photographs and messages asking to be "fucked," but when asked the Accused advised he did not have those messages. This evidence meets categories (1)-(4).

(2) The accused made misleading statements during investigations into ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.S. as follows:

i. The Accused made half-true statements about strangling ABHAN C.R. and his sexual interest in her. ABHAN C.R. told investigators that after talking with the Accused, the Accused strangled her, touched her intimate areas, and attempted to kiss her. The Accused downplayed the sexual nature of his interaction with ABHAN C.R. and that he strangled her, only admitting that he lightly choked her. Specifically, when asked by NCIS about this misconduct, he told investigators:

A. That they were "flirting," but he also denied being romantically or sexually interested in her. This evidence meets category (1).

B. When asked if he strangled ABHAN C.R., he stated "oh okay yeah I have but it wasn't like a weird way," and stated he put one hand around her neck without applying any pressure after she pinched his arm. The Accused also admitted that he told ABHAN C.R. that he heard she liked to be choked. Nonetheless, the Accused denied any sexual touching or attempted sexual touching took place. This evidence meets categories (1), (3), and (4).

ii. The Accused made half-true statements by admitting to recording and broadcasting a sexual encounter with CSSN S.S. but conveniently lied about the whereabouts of his phone and later "lost" the recording of that encounter when he got a "new" phone. CSSN S.S. alleged she was sexually assaulted while incapable of consenting and that the Accused recorded and broadcast the sexual assault to others without her consent. The Accused admitted to sex with CSSN S.S. but said it was consensual, said that the interaction seemed "too good to be true," told investigators he did not know if CSSN S.S. was aware he was recording, and admitted to showing others the recording. When asked about his phone, the Accused lied to investigators about its whereabouts. Specifically, he told NCIS another Sailor had the phone, but that Sailor denied ever having it and investigators were unable to locate it after searching. When the Accused acquired a "new" phone, he recovered digital evidence for investigators, but no longer had the video of his sexual encounter with CSSN S.S. This evidence meets categories (1)-(4).

iii. The Accused also denied any misconduct when initially confronted by CSSN S.S. (who had no memory of the event) and told CSSN S.S. that they did not have sex, despite later admitting they did once it became clear that others were reporting they had seen the video. This evidence meets categories (2) and (3).

(3) After an investigation into CS3 A.R.'s disappearance, the Accused made several half-true statements to mislead during the early days of CS3 A.R.'s disappearance and follow-on investigation. Most notably:

i. On 29 May 2025:

A. The Accused told FCC Bradley Parker, USN, that early on the morning of her disappearance, CS3 A.R. was having personal issues and was seeking help, so he picked her up and brought her to his barracks room to discuss them. But this is not why or how they were together. CS3 A.R. came to the Accused's barracks room to make tacos and hang out on the evening of 28 May 2025. CS3 A.R. only made a call for help at 0214 on 29 May 2025 to ET3 Rich, discussed above, and no one else. FCC Parker was aware CS3 A.R. was seeking help that night because he had spoken to ET3 Rich. The Accused advised him that CS3 A.R. had called several people and he was the first to get to her. The Accused turned CS3 A.R.'s call for help to ET3 Rich into a narrative to make himself look better and more trusted while he concealed her dead body on his bed. This evidence meets categories (1), (3), and (4).

B. According to FCC Parker, the Accused was acting like he had just woken up and took a significant amount of time to answer the door, further indicating he had been sleeping. But the Accused had been awake since at least 0728, as demonstrated by his record of watching pornography nearly constantly from 0728-1150 that morning. Instead, he was concealing CS3 A.R.'s body and concocting a narrative. Relatedly, the Accused told FCC Parker his phone died and his alarm did not go off which is why he was not at work. But his phone was on and charged. This evidence meets categories (1), (3), and (4).

C. The Accused told FCC Parker he had a ride to work to get him to leave. He did not and he did not check in to work until 1 June 2025. This evidence meets category (3).

ii. On 1 June 2025:

A. The Accused told investigators that while CS3 A.R. was at his barracks room on 29 May 2025, PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz, USN, a suitemate of the Accused, came into the common area to ask if CS3 A.R. was okay as she was upset.

But PSSN Gordillocruz denied this occurred. He states he arrived to the unit around 0400 but the lights were off and he did not see anyone in the dark common area. This evidence meets categories (1) and (3).

B. The Accused maintained his lie that FCC Parker woke him and CS3 A.R. up on 29 May 2025 when he came to the room around 0900. CS3 A.R. was already dead and the Accused was already awake, as noted above. This evidence meets categories (1), (3), and (4).

C. The Accused told investigators he borrowed his roommate's car and dropped CS3 A.R. back at her barracks around 1000 on 29 May 2025. The Accused provided later that CS3 A.R. left of her own accord. None of the Accused's roommates allowed him to borrow a vehicle at that time. And, perhaps most notably, CS3 A.R. was already dead. There is no evidence to suggest she left the barracks room while alive. This evidence meets categories (1) and (3).

iii. On 2 June 2025:

A. During this interview of the Accused, an iPhone was found during a contemporaneous search in his barracks room. The Accused told investigators the phone did not work, but investigative efforts later determined that it did work and this had been a lie. This evidence meets category (3).

B. As discussed above, the Accused provided his encounter with CS3 A.R. was not a sexual encounter, but CS3 A.R. was described as partially naked by the Accused's roommates and he told CS3 Taylor that CS3 A.R. and he had begun making out in his bed and she wanted to go further sexually, but the Accused stopped it. As detailed above, this is not true. This evidence meets category (3) and (4).

C. The Accused told investigators that CS3 A.R. did not make a call for help or to be picked up. But she called ET3 Rich in a panic at 0214 asking to be picked up and the Accused took the phone to speak with him. This evidence meets category (3).

D. The Accused told investigators CS3 A.R. spent a significant amount of time on the phone with an ex-boyfriend from Texas, but there is no evidence to suggest that occurred. This evidence meets category (3).

E. The Accused re-iterated his lie about PSSN Gordillocruz checking on CS3 A.R. to ensure she was okay. This evidence meets category (3).

F. The Accused stated he slept in his bed with CS3 A.R. and denied being naked on the floor of the common area. But they were found on the common area floor by all three roommates in a state of undress before being seen in the Accused's bed by FCC Parker later that morning. This evidence meets category (3).

G. The Accused stated his unauthorized absence (UA) status was a big misunderstanding and he did not know he was UA because he was not scheduled to work. But FCC Parker repeatedly told him to check in over the weekend. This evidence meets category (3).

H. The Accused denied telling investigators he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks room on 29 May 2025, in contrast with her previous statement. This evidence meets category (3) and (4).

I. The Accused denied knowing where CS3 A.R. was. This evidences meets categories (3) and (4).

iii. On 6 June 2025:

A. The Accused re-iterated several of his 2 June lies, including that CS3 A.R. called an ex-boyfriend from Texas, that nothing sexual occurred, that FCC Parker woke him up, and that he did not know CS3 A.R. was. This evidence meets categories (3) and (4).

B. The Accused also acknowledged he did not drop CS3 A.R. off as stated previously. This evidence meets category (2).

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that these other acts occurred. These statements were made by the Accused to investigators or other witnesses and are often corroborated by other investigative actions.

c. The Accused's history of telling half-truths as a "king manipulator" is offered to establish common scheme and consciousness of guilt for Specifications 1-3 of Charge I (Sexual Contact and Sexual Assault), the sole Specification of Charge II (Strangulation), both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Premeditated Murder) as well as intent for both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement):

(1) Reasoning in support of common scheme for Specifications 1-3 of Charge I, the sole Specification of Charge II, both Specifications of Charge III, Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV, both Specifications of Charge VI, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. The Accused's common scheme of providing half-true information in a calculated manner demonstrates a pattern with the goal of misleading investigators after he "get[s his] story straight." The sheer number of half-truths across various investigations demonstrates he is a deliberate liar—a "king manipulator"—and he uses this scheme of different types of lies as noted above to delay and obfuscate investigations. This is a very particular method of lying. That he consistently gives enough information to admit to an event without inculpating himself of the most serious misconduct, fabricates accounts where he believes he will not be challenged, and misleads investigators as to the state of the evidence demonstrates a willful scheme to mislead that becomes more probative the more it is replicated. That these lies often contain some level of the truth makes his lies about what happened between himself and CS3 A.R. particularly illuminating, as he is the only witness still alive. And because this is a common scheme, these lies are more easily distilled down to what actually occurred, as described in paragraph 2.c.(1).ii, such as the fact that the Accused made the unwanted sexual advance on CS3 A.R. and not the other way around as he described to CS2 Taylor.

(2) Reasoning in support of consciousness of guilt for Specifications 1-3 of Charge I, the sole Specification of Charge II, both Specifications of Charge III, Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV, both Specifications of Charge VI, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. For the reasons outlined in paragraph 3.c.(1) above, the Accused's history of half-truths demonstrates an intentional pattern of misleading investigators to exculpate himself, demonstrating a consciousness of guilt for his misconduct.

(3) Reasoning in support of intent for both Specifications of Charge VI. The Accused's repeated history of half-truths to mislead investigators and others demonstrates that his false statements to investigators in these Specifications are intentional.

5. Pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b), the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following evidence to establish common scheme and lack of accident for Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice) and consciousness of guilt for Specification 3 of Charge I (Sexual Assault), both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), all Specifications of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Murder):

a. The Accused has a history of hiding his phone from investigators when under criminal investigation.

i. In May 2022, when the Accused was in high school, a fellow student accused the Accused of unlawfully recording a sexual encounter between them with his phone. Investigators obtained a warrant for the Accused's phone, but the Accused advised his mother had taken his phone away, preventing him from giving it to them. The Accused's mother advised that she told the Accused to put his phone on her dresser, but found out he had only put the case for his phone there instead. The Accused then advised he had misplaced his phone. His phone was never recovered.

ii. In November 2024, after CSSN S.S. accused the Accused of misconduct, he hid his cell phone from investigators and lied and said he had given it to a friend before saying it was lost. When he later provided digital evidence to investigators, he advised he had gotten a "new" phone and no longer had the video in question.

iii. On 2 June 2025, when questioned about the disappearance of CS3 A.R., the Accused advised that the cell phone found in his barracks room would not turn on. However, investigative steps later determined that the phone was operational at the time. When investigators sought to seize that phone on 9 June 2025, the phone was missing from the Accused's belongings and never recovered.

iv. The Accused has also conducted online research on what a phone search can return, including queries such as: (1) "can police fet [ph.] infirmation [ph.] from reset phone;" (2) "ncis co cosign my phone;" and (2) "what do police do when they seuze [ph.] your phone;" (4) "ncis took my phone;" and (5) "can ncis take your phone off allegations."

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that these other acts occurred. These facts are supported by the accounts of criminal investigators and the Accused's own statements, as well as a digital extraction of one of the Accused's phones.

c. This evidence of the Accused hiding his phone when placed under investigation is offered to establish common scheme for Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice) and consciousness of guilt for Specification 3 of Charge I (Sexual Assault), both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), all Specifications of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of common scheme and lack of accident for Specifications 1 and 3 of Charge IV. The Accused has demonstrated a common scheme of lying and hiding his phone when under investigation for an offense that he perceives may result in his phone being seized. He did this with the pre-service allegations against him in May 2022, he did it again with the allegations of CSSN S.S. in November of 2024, and he did it most recently when being investigated for crimes related to the disappearance of CS3 A.R. This evidence also supports that him misplacing his phone is not an accident, but an intentional effort to obstruct justice.

(2) Reasoning in support of consciousness of guilt for Specification 3 of Charge I, both Specifications of Charge III, all Specifications of Charge IV, both Specifications of Charge VI the sole Specification of Charge VII. The Accused hides his phone intuitively because it contains incriminating information on it. The Accused's online search history supports that belief. That he lied and hid his phone repeatedly from investigators indicates a consciousness of guilt for all offenses related to both CSSN S.S. and CS3 A.R. Moreover, his Google search history supports that he did so with the specific intent to limit an investigation into misconduct.

6. Pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b), the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following evidence to establish common scheme, knowledge, and intent for both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting):

a. The Accused recorded and broadcast a sexual encounter with a female victim in high school in May of 2022 without her consent.

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that these other acts occurred. These facts are supported by the accounts of witnesses and the Accused's own statements.

c. This evidence of the Accused recording and broadcasting sexual encounters is offered to establish common scheme, knowledge, and intent for both Specifications of Charge III (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting):

(1) Reasoning in support of common scheme, knowledge, and intent for both Specifications of Charge III. The Accused has demonstrated a common scheme of recording and broadcasting sexual encounters without consent, just as he did with CSSN S.S. This evidence also supports that the Accused knew when he recorded and broadcast his encounter with CSSN S.S. that this conduct was wrongful absent her consent and that doing so without her consent was intentional.

7. Pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b), the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following evidence to establish motive and intent for Specification 1 of Charge V (Domestic Violence – Strangulation):

a. The Accused makes an "evil" grin when assaulting women.

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that these other acts occurred. This account is from a victim of the Accused's pre-service misconduct, L.L. She alleges that while he touched her vulva without consent, he had an "evil" grin.

c. This "evil" grin by the Accused is offered to prove motive, intent, and identity with respect to Specification 1 of Charge V.

(1) Reasoning in support of motive and intent for Specification 1 of Charge V. CSSN S.R. described the Accused as smiling while he strangled her. This description mirrors the "evil" grin described by L.L., identifying the Accused as the perpetrator and establishing further that the Accused enjoys and intends nonconsensual touching of women.

8. Pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b), the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following evidence to establish consciousness of guilt for Specification 2 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Murder):

a. The Government believes the below evidence outlining various actions of the Accused related to CS3 A.R.'s murder are res gestae, but offer them here in an abundance of caution. The Government provides notice of the following evidence:

(1) The Accused hid in various barracks lounges from 29 May 2025-1 June 2025 after he murdered CS3 A.R. When security from the ship came to find him on 1 June 2025, he hid in the bathroom on the fifth floor of his barracks. The Accused's roommate also stated that the Accused was leaving very early and returning very late over that weekend, which was highly unusual for him.

(2) During the period of 29 May 2025 to 1 June 2025, the Accused was in an unauthorized absence status and was repeatedly notified that he needed to check-in, but he ignored those requests. Indeed, despite dozens of inquiries as to his whereabouts from both his ship and his friends that the Accused viewed on his phone, the Accused generally did not answer his phone or respond to text messages from 29 May 2025 until 1 June 2025.

(3) The Accused encouraged his roommate to leave the room, which was an unusual request.

(4) The Accused disposed of CS3 A.R.'s body in a wooded area on 2 June 2025. The Accused turned his phone on Airplane mode after he decided where to place the body and turned it off of Airplane mode when he was done placing her in the woods. Specifically, he placed his phone on Airplane mode at 04:48:08 on 2 June 2025 when he drove to a pinned location (where the body was found) and turned it off at 05:16:13 when he left the site.

(5) At 1311 the day he murdered CS3 A.R., the Accused searched for a trip to "Bermuda." In the days following his murder of CS3 A.R., the Accused searched online for "virginia airport" on 3 and 10 June 2025 and "norfolk airport" on 3 June 2025.

(6) As discussed in detail above, during the investigation into CS3 A.R.'s disappearance, the Accused lied about various things, including: (1) that he dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks on 29 May 2025, (2) that he did not know where CS3 A.R. was, (3) that the iPhone found in his room on 3 June 2025 did not work, (4) that CS3 A.R. did not call anyone for a ride from his barracks room on 29 May 2025, (5) that CS3 A.R. was on the phone with her ex-boyfriend from Texas on 29 May 2025, (6) that CS3 A.R. had wanted to go further sexually when they were together on 29 May 2025, but he declined, and (7) that he slept with CS3 A.R. in his bed that night and not on the floor.

(7) The Accused told his roommate nothing sexual occurred between himself and CS3 A.R. on 29 May 2025, in contrast to what he told CS3 Taylor and despite them being in a state of undress together on the floor of the common area that morning.

(8) The Accused hid and/or destroyed his second iPhone prior to going to the brig on 9 June 2025, as discussed above.

(9) The Accused turned off location services on his phone on 29 May 2025, including Life360 which had been on constantly for approximately one year and shared with another person.

(10) The Accused called and texted CS3 A.R. on 1 June 2025 asking where she was and notifying her of her UA status despite knowing she was deceased and her body was in his closet.

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that these other acts occurred. It is either from data extracted from the Accused's phone, from the Accused's own statements, or from statements of eyewitnesses.

c. These actions by the Accused in the hours and days following the murder of CS3 A.R. are offered to show consciousness of guilt for Specification 2 of Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), both Specifications of Charge VI (False Official Statement), and the sole Specification of Charge VII (Murder):

(1) Reasoning in support of consciousness of guilt for Specification 2 of Charge IV, both Specifications of Charge VI, and the sole Specification of Charge VII. These actions include an intent to flee, an attempt to mislead, and an attempt to hide from investigators and others. They were taken close in time to the disappearance of CS3 A.R. and are those taken by someone with a guilty conscience.

9. Pursuant to M.R.E. 413, the Government provides notice that it seeks to introduce the following propensity evidence as relevant to the charged sexual misconduct in Specifications 1, 2, and 4 of Charge I (Abusive and Aggravated Sexual Contact and Sexual Assault).

a. In June 2022, the Accused touched L.L.'s vulva and kissed her without consent despite her repeatedly removing his hand and telling him "stop" and "no."

b. The above-cited evidence provides good faith that this other sexual misconduct occurred. This account is from a victim of the Accused's pre-service misconduct, L.L.

c. This propensity evidence is offered as relevant to Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge I. Specifically, the Accused's actions towards ABHAN C.R. in these charged offenses nearly mirror the Accused undeterred approach to sexual gratification with L.L. In both cases, the Accused ignored the victim's request to stop and his hands being repeatedly removed and continued with his unwanted sexual contact.

d. This propensity evidence is also offered as relevant to Specification 4 of Charge I. Specifically, the Accused refused to take no for an answer from Y.J., just as he did with L.L. In both cases, he continued with his sexual goals despite that objection.

INVESTIGATIVE ACTION 06AUG24

CONTROL: 26JUL24-NFXQ-00015-8CNA

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
[redacted]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF [redacted]

1. As background, on 26Jul24 NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75) was notified by MA1 Ronald CORTESELLI, USN, CVN 75, of an unrestricted reported of sexual assault aboard the ship that occurred on 23Jul24 at approximately 0200 hours. MA1 CORTESELLI reported [redacted]), USN, CVN 75, reported CSSN Jermiah Taylor COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, grabbed her vulva, breasts, and buttocks over the clothing while applying pressure to her neck so that it was difficult for her to breathe.

2. On 06Aug24 at approximately 2030 hours, [redacted] was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) aboard CVN 75, while at sea in compartment 02-88-4-Q. IT2 Morgan RODRIGUEZ, USN, Uniform Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, was present for the entirety of the interview.

3. The interview was audio and video recorded in its entirety utilizing the CaseCracker system. This report serves as a synopsis of the interview and does not necessarily describe the information in the order in which it was discussed. For a verbatim account, please refer to the digital recording; Enclosure (A) pertains.

4. [redacted] related she is in a relationship with CSSN Fernando CUESTABRAVO, USN, CVN 75, and was in the mess decks with him in the early morning hours of 23Jul24 when he stated he was going to sleep. [redacted] stated after CSSN CUESTABRAVO left, she began receiving SnapChat snaps from S/COPELAND, who stated he was headed to the ship and expressed he wanted to talk to her about CSSN CUESTABRAVO. [redacted] agreed, and stated S/COPELAND arrived and requested the pair go somewhere private to talk.

5. After arriving to the area of the fantail, S/COPELAND told [redacted] that CSSN CUESTABRAVO was talking to other women and asserted CSSN CUESTABRAVO was not treating [redacted] the way she should be treated. [redacted] related S/COPELAND suggested SHE engage in a relationship with him (S/COPELAND) to "get back at" CSSN CUESTABRAVO. [redacted] stated she told S/COPELAND she did not "do those types of things." [redacted] recalled discussing her relationship with S/COPELAND for a short period of time before S/COPELAND began to play a "game" with her wherein he pretended to arrest her. [redacted] stated S/COPELAND forced her hands behind her back and grabbed her vulva over the clothing.

6. [redacted] related she turned around and punched S/COPELAND in the stomach.

V/C.R. related S/COPLEAND told her he heard she liked to be choked, at which time S/COPELAND applied pressure to her neck with one hand so that it was difficult for V/C.R. to breathe. V/C.R. recalled pushing S/COPELAND's hand away from her throat but that he would immediately replace it and keep applying pressure. While applying pressure to her neck, V/C.R. recalled S/COPELAND kissed her on the lips and grabbed her breasts, buttocks, and vulva over the clothing. V/C.R. related the physical contact lasted approximately a minute before S/COPELAND stopped of his own accord. V/C.R. stated she told S/COPELAND she was going to bed and left the fantail.

7. V/C.R. recalled being unsure if she should tell CSSN CUESTABRAVO because she was worried about his reaction, but texted him about what happened. V/C.R. stated CSSN CUESTABRAVO encouraged her to report the incident. V/C.R. stated she called the Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) phone number she found on a poster aboard the ship, and was informed to get in touch with shipboard SAPR personnel. V/C.R. stated she did not know how, so CSSN CUESTABRAVO reported the incident to Security. V/C.R. stated she had bruising on her neck that CSSN CUESTABRAVO observed, but that it was now gone.

8. V/C.R. stated she told her Chief, CSC Gregory SIMMONS, USN, CVN 75, about the incident. V/C.R. related CSSN Jalen OWENS, USN, CVN 75, told CSSN CUESTABRAVO that S/COPELAND told her (CSSN OWENS) that V/C.R. had reported him.

9. V/C.R. provided RA screen shots of the texts she sent to CSSN CUESTABRAVA via Air Drop, and signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) denoting her consent; Enclosure (B) pertains. The screen shots were subsequently placed on an NCIS Photographic Template for inclusion into the case file; Enclosure (C) pertains.

11. At the conclusion of the interview, V/C.R. was provided a DD Form 2701 Victim Witness Assistance Pamphlet (VWAP).

V/C.R.: Yeah. And then, so after that, he was, like, "Oh yeah, you know, you should like, get back at him." And I was, like, "Oh, I don't do this. I don't do stuff like that."

SA DUFFY: [Affirmative response.]

V/C.R.: And he's, like, "Well, you should." And he's, like, "Well, I know the perfect person you can get back at him with." And he's, like, "Me." And I was, like, "Like for what?" I was, like, I don't do stuff like that.

And after that, then, like, a little later, like, after we was talking, he started, like--he got in my face. He got close to me----

SA DUFFY: [Affirmative response.]

V/C.R.: ----or whatever. And I, like, I pushed him because I don't like people in my face, like, close up to me.

003444_COPELAND

So, I, like, pushed him away. And he was, like, "Push me again. Push me again. [Inaudible 0:10:00]." And then, like, after that, he grabbed me or whatever. And then, like, he put his hand, like--he asked me, he's, like, "Do you like being choked out?" I was, like, "Who told you, like, something like that?" He was, like, nobody." I was, like, "Whatever."

And then, like, after that, like, he put his hand around my neck. And then, like, I tried to get his hand off my neck, and he, like, kept going and, like, I go to push him. And he was, like, "Keep pushing me, then I'm going to keep going harder." So, then he kept squeezing it, and he, like--he started, like, touching my, like, areas too.

SA DUFFY: Okay. So, we don't have to use any words you're uncomfortable with, but I'm just trying to establish. So, when you say "your areas" and you're showing me your breasts.

[redacted]: [Affirmative response.]

SA DUFFY: Okay. Over the clothes. Under the clothes. Something else?

[redacted]: Over.

SA DUFFY: Over the clothes?

[redacted]: [Nods head in the affirmative.]

SA DUFFY: Anywhere besides your breasts?

[redacted]: [Affirmative response.]

SA DUFFY: Where?

V/C.R.: Like, my front and back.

SA DUFFY: Oh, okay. So, was he, like, touching your vulva? Like, over the clothes?

V/C.R.: [Affirmative response.]

SA DUFFY: And then also your buttocks as well?

V/C.R.: [Affirmative response.]

SA DUFFY: Okay. Like, running his hands over? Is he grabbing? Can you describe that to me?

V/C.R.: He was, like, just, like, grabbing me.

SA DUFFY: Grabbing. And then, you were talking about the fact that he had grabbed you by the neck.

V/C.R.: [Affirmative response.]

SA DUFFY: And tell me about that. How that felt.

V/C.R.: Okay. So, when he grabbed me, like, he grabbed me and then, like--so when I kept pushing him, like, he just kept, like, going, squeezing and then, like--like--like this. And it pushed up and pushed pressure and, like, I had bruises around my neck at first.

And then, I had, like, like, it was hurting right here. But it went away.

SA DUFFY: Do you--did you happen to take any pictures of your bruise?

V/C.R.: No, I didn't even notice it was there, and my boyfriend told me. He was, like, "Oh, I see, like, a little bruise, like, right here.

SA DUFFY: And what's your boyfriend's name?

V/C.R.: Jeffrey R-N-A-N-D-O C-U-E-S-T-A-B.

SA DUFFY: You said V or B?

V/C.R.: B.

SA DUFFY: [Affirmative response.]

V/C.R.: R-A-B-O.

SA DUFFY: Okay, what's his rate and rank?

V/C.R.: CSSN.

SA DUFFY: Okay. So, you said that he had his hands. It really hurt. Sounds like he was applying a lot of pressure. Was it just one hand? Two hands?

V/C.R.: One.

SA DUFFY: One hand? Okay. And were you able to breathe during that period of time?

V/C.R.: Not, like, a lot. But just a little.

SA DUFFY: Okay. This is going to sound like a strange question, but what does your body feel like at that time?

V/C.R.: I feel like I couldn't, like--my nose hurt. It felt like I was suffocating.

SA DUFFY: Okay. Did you experience anything like anything, like, tingling in your hands and your feet or anything else like that?

V/C.R.: [Shakes head in the negative.]

SA DUFFY: Any stars in your vision?

V/C.R.: [Shakes head in the negative.]

SA DUFFY: Okay. How long--and I know it's hard to estimate time in situations like this, but how long do you think that you felt pressure on your neck for?

V/C.R.: Probably, like, a minute. But, like, he kept, like, putting his hands around my neck. Like, it wasn't just, like, he just kept it there. Like, he did like that and then, like, when I, like, pushed his hand away, like, he put it right back.

SA DUFFY: Okay. And, while he was applying pressure to your neck, you're saying that he was touching your--your breast area, your vulva, your buttocks all over the place.

V/C.R.: [Affirmative response.]

SA DUFFY: Okay. What--was he doing anything else, like that body-wise?

V/C.R.: Oh, well, he did, like, he, like, after he, like, grabbed me, like, when he was grabbing my neck, he, like, kissed me.

SA DUFFY: Okay. This is going to sound like a weird question, but he kissed you where?

V/C.R.: Right here on my lips.

SA DUFFY: On your lips. Okay. And what happened next?

V/C.R.: Well, like, after I just kept, like, you know, pushing him away or whatever, then, like, he tried to, like, talk to me after that. And then, I was, like, "I got to go to sleep." So, like, I just left.

And then, after that, like, as soon as I left, I, like, texted my boyfriend and told him, like, "I got to tell you something tomorrow." Like, I was--I didn't want to, like, really tell him but, like, I was, like, "Oh, he might do something." Like, you know.

And then, like, I told him, he was, like, about to go and, like, handle it. I was, like, "No." He was, like, "Well, like, you need to report this then." So, that's when I called the girl. The thing on the poster.

SA DUFFY: The SAPR number?

V/C.R.: Yeah. [redacted]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN FERNANDO CUESTABRAVO, USN

1. As background, on 26Jul24 NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75) was notified by MA1 Ronald CORTESELLI, USN, CVN 75, of an unrestricted reported of sexual assault aboard the ship that occurred on 23Jul24 at approximately 0200 hours. MA1 CORTESELLI reported [redacted] V/C.R. [redacted], USN, CVN 75, reported CSSN Jermiah Taylor COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, grabbed her vulva, breasts, and buttocks over the clothing while applying pressure to her neck so that it was difficult for her to breathe. During the course of the investigation, CSSN Fernando CUESTABRAVO, USN, USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was identified as having information in reference to the investigation.

2. On 16Aug24 at approximately 2000 hours, CSSN CUESTABRAVO was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) and MAC Adam NORMAN, USN, CVN 75 aboard CVN 75, while at sea in compartment 02-88-4-Q.

3. CSSN CUESTABRAVO stated he and V/C.R. have been dating and the two consider themselves to be boyfriend and girlfriend. CSSN CUESTABRAVO recalled at approximately 0200 hours on 24Jul24, he received text messages from V/C.R. indicating something bad had happened. Later that morning, CSSN CUESTABRAVO stated V/C.R. disclosed S/COPELAND had strangled her, grabbed her, and "touched her everywhere." CSSN CUESTABRAVO related V/C.R. never mentioned S/COPELAND being creepy or weird prior to the incident. CSSN CUESTABRAVO recalled observing bruises on one side of V/C.R.'s neck related to the strangulation. CSSN CUESTABRAVO stated neither he nor V/C.R. took pictures of the bruises.

4. CSSN CUESTABRAVO stated he encouraged V/C.R. to report the incident. When V/C.R. was unable to contact Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR), CSSN CUESTABRAVO stated he went to the Security Department on 26Jul24 to report the offense.

5. CSSN CUESTABRAVO related he tries to avoid S/COPELAND, but S/COPELAND has made several attempts to talk to CSSN CUESTABRAVO about the incident. CSSN CUESTABRAVO recalled telling S/COPELAND he would not speak about it.

6. CSSN CUESTABRAVO stated CSSA Deontae WILLIAMS, USN, USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75) approached him after the incident and asked him if it was true S/COPELAND "fucked his girl." CSSN CUESTABRAVO opined S/COPELAND told CSSA WILLIAMS what had happened.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSA JACQUELINE BITA, USN

1. As background, on 06Nov24, NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was notified by ET2 Courtney EFF, USN, Uniformed Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, of a sexual assault wherein [redacted], USN, CVN 75, reported she was sexually assaulted by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, in a bathroom at a bar in Oslo, Norway, during a port call on 04Nov24 at approximately 2200 hours. During the course of the investigation, CSSA Jacqueline BITA, USN, CVN 75, was indicated as having information in reference to the offense.

2. On 06Nov24 at approximately 1030 hours, CSSA BITA was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) in the NCIS Office aboard the ship located at 02-88-4-Q. The interview was not recorded.

3. CSSA BITA recalled leaving the ship with a group of sailors including [redacted] for liberty in the evening hours of 04Nov24. CSSA BITA stated she did not plan to drink alcohol that evening and was more focused on finding a place to eat. CSSA BITA recalled arriving at an unknown club and stated [redacted] began to drink alcohol with other sailors. Later in the evening, CSSA BITA recalled S/COPELAND arrived to the bar though he was not part of the original group. CSSA BITA stated [redacted] was intoxicated and CSSA BITA observed S/COPELAND assisting [redacted] to the bathroom. CSSA BITA stated she did not observe [redacted] acting flirtatious with S/COPELAND at that time or any point in the evening.

4. Later, CSSA BITA stated she was talking to SR Jada KNIGHT, USN, VAW 126, in the bar and S/COPELAND approached them and said something to the effect of "you'll never believe what happened, if I show you you can't tell anyone." CSSA BITA recalled S/COPELAND then showed the two women a video on his cellular telephone of S/COPELAND having sexual intercourse with [redacted]. CSSA BITA described the video as showing S/COPELAND's face before capturing [redacted] bent over. CSSA BITA stated [redacted]'s face was not in the video, but she was easily identified by her hair and the gray sweatshirt she was wearing that actually belonged to CSSA BITA. CSSA BITA related [redacted] had borrowed her sweatshirt before leaving the ship. CSSA BITA stated she observed [redacted]'s bare buttocks in the video and though she could not see S/COPELAND's penis it was clear by the motion of S/COPELAND he was having sexual intercourse with [redacted]. CSSA BITA opined she could not tell if [redacted] was conscious in the video and stated she did not look very closely because she did not want to see a video of someone else engaging in sexual intercourse.

5. CSSA BITA stated she and SR KNIGHT were "shocked" by the video and stated S/COPELAND seemed happy and was laughing. At the time, CSSA BITA assumed the sexual encounter was consensual and had no information to the contrary.

6. CSSA BITA stated V/S.S. had to be carried back to Fleet Landing due to intoxication. CSSA BITA stated V/S.S. was speaking very slowly and had trouble walking. CSSA BITA opined it was clear V/S.S. was intoxicated and theorized V/S.S. did not remember any events from the evening. CSSA BITA stated she was on a different liberty boat back to the ship than V/S.S. but stated she knew V/S.S. threw up when she returned back to the ship.

7. CSSA BITA stated the following day, V/S.S. approached her and stated she did not remember any events from the evening prior due to intoxication and also told CSSA BITA that V/S.S. had confronted S/COPELAND about the sexual intercourse and video via telephone. CSSA BITA related V/S.S. stated S/COPELAND denied the accusations. CSSA BITA opined S/COPELAND "knew he messed up and was trying to save himself." CSSA BITA further opined it was clear from interacting with both parties S/COPELAND was "in his right mind" that evening and V/S.S. was not.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF [redacted]V/S.S.

1. As background, on 06Nov24, NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was notified by ET2 Courtney EFF, USN, Uniformed Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, of a sexual assault wherein [redacted]V/S.S., USN, CVN 75, reported she was sexually assaulted by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, in a bathroom at a bar in Oslo, Norway, during a port call on 04Nov24 at approximately 2200 hours.

2. On 07Nov24 at approximately 1115 hours, [redacted]V/S.S. was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) in the NCIS Office aboard the ship located at 02-88-4-Q. ET2 Courtney EFF, USN, Uniformed Victim Advocate (UVA), USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was present for the entirety of the interview.

3. The interview was audio and video recorded in its entirety utilizing the CaseCracker system. This report serves as a synopsis of the interview and does not necessarily describe the information in the order in which it was discussed. For a verbatim account, please refer to the digital recording; Enclosure (A) pertains.

4. [redacted]V/S.S. stated she knew S/COPELAND well prior to the assault and stated they became "really good friends" after he got to the ship. [redacted]V/S.S. stated he never expressed a romantic or sexual interest in her prior. [redacted]V/S.S. explained she and S/COPELAND work different shifts and stated she is on day shift in the galley and he is on night shift.

5. [redacted]V/S.S. stated she left the ship on 04Nov24 with a group of other Culinary Specialists and her liberty buddy was CSSN Alexis RODGERS, USN, CVN 75. [redacted]V/S.S. recalled they left the ship at approximately 1900 hours and walked to a mall, which was closed. At that time [redacted]V/S.S. stated the group moved to another bar but the group felt there were too many drunk sailors there so they eventually walked to Heidi's Bier Bar in Oslo, Norway. [redacted]V/S.S. stated the group began to drink alcohol and she estimated she had three (3) shots of tequila before "blacking out."

6. [redacted]V/S.S. stated others speculated she had been drugged, but [redacted]V/S.S. did not think that was likely. [redacted]V/S.S. stated she ate a normal dinner before leaving the ship at approximately 1900 hours. [redacted]V/S.S. stated she took the shots with a period of time between them and could not explain why she blacked out.

7. [redacted]V/S.S. stated she has some memories of the evening to include

S/COPELAND dancing with her and her friends. V/S.S. recalled after the evening, CSSN McKenzie SAUNDERS, USN, CVN 75, told CSSN Shamel EADDY, USN, CVN 75, she found V/S.S. in the bathroom following the assault. V/S.S. stated she did not remember how she got back to the ship but recalled throwing up upon her return.

8. The following morning, V/S.S. stated she woke up for work and did not feel well. When she used the bathroom, V/S.S. recalled she had vaginal pain and swelling and addition to cramps that felt similar to menstrual cramps. V/S.S. recalled at the time, she was not concerned because she was unaware of the incident with S/COPELAND. Later, V/S.S. stated she began to hear rumors that S/COPELAND was claiming he had sex with her in a bathroom at the bar and recorded the intercourse and was showing other people.

9. V/S.S. stated she and her boyfriend, CSSN EADDY, were discussing the rumors in the evening hours with CSSA Nicholas SPIVEY, USN, CVN 75. V/S.S. related she decided to call S/COPELAND and confront him about the rumors and CSSA SPIVEY provided her S/COPELAND's phone number. V/S.S. stated CSSA SPIVEY left before she called S/COPELAND but CSSN EADDY remained with her while she called S/COPELAND from the first class mess. V/S.S. stated CSSN EADDY attempted to record the entirety of the conversation but his phone died approximately one (1) minute in.

10. V/S.S. related she called S/COPELAND and confronted him about the rumors, which he emphatically denied. V/S.S. recalled after the phone call, he continued to text her and threatened to kill himself. V/S.S. agreed to provide RA with screen shots of the text messages via Air Drop, and signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) denoting her intentions; Enclosure (B) pertains. Six (6) screen shots of the text messages were subsequently placed on an NCIS Photograph Template for their inclusion into the case file; Enclosure (C) pertains.

11. At the conclusion of the interview, V/S.S. was provided a DD Form 2701 Initial Information for Victims and Witnesses of Crime.

2. On 08Nov24 at approximately 1630 hours, CSSN RODGERS was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) in the NCIS Office aboard the ship located at 02-88-4-Q. The interview was not recorded.

3. CSSN RODGERS stated she was liberty buddies with [redacted] V/S.S. on 04Nov24. CSSN RODGERS explained she and [redacted] V/S.S. were coworkers but not particularly close. CSSN RODGERS recalled she and a group of other sailors including [redacted] V/S.S. left the ship at approximately 2000 hours and went to a bar called Heidi's. CSSN RODGERS recalled [redacted] V/S.S. began drinking alcohol; CSSN RODGERS recalled she had approximately three (3) shots of liquor and stated [redacted] V/S.S. had more than that. CSSN RODGERS related she did not know exactly how much [redacted] V/S.S. drank but recalled she was drunk.

4. CSSN RODGERS recalled seeing S/COPELAND arrive with another group of sailors but could not recall what time. CSSN RODGERS stated she did not see any interaction between S/COPELAND and [redacted] V/S.S.. CSSN RODGERS recalled when it was time to leave the bar before liberty expiration, she and SR Jada KNIGHT, USN, CVN 75, and CSSA Jacqueline BITA, USN, CVN 75, had to assist [redacted] V/S.S. back to the ship due to her level of intoxication. CSSN RODGERS stated [redacted] V/S.S. did not seem to recall where she was.

5. CSSN RODGERS stated she did not hear about a video concerning [redacted] V/S.S. and S/COPELAND, but [redacted] V/S.S. told CSSN RODGERS the next day she did not have sex with S/COPELAND. CSSN RODGERS stated the group took an Uber to Fleet Landing, but could not recall who had paid for it.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN JADA KNIGHT, USN

1. As background, on 06Nov24, NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was notified by ET2 Courtney EFF, USN, Uniformed Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, of a sexual assault wherein [redacted] V/S.S., USN, CVN 75, reported she was sexually assaulted by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, in a bathroom at a bar in Oslo, Norway, during a port call on 04Nov24 at approximately 2200 hours. During the course of the investigation, CSSN Jada KNIGHT, USN, VAW 126, was indicated as having information in reference to the offense.

2. On 18Nov24 at approximately 2100 hours, CSSN KNIGHT was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) in the NCIS Office aboard the ship located at 02-88-4-Q. The interview was not recorded.

3. CSSN KNIGHT stated on the evening of 04Nov24, her liberty buddy was CSSA Jacqueline BITA, USN, CVN 75. CSSN KNIGHT stated she and CSSA BITA went to a different bar before eventually ending up at Heidi's. CSSN KNIGHT related [redacted] V/S.S. was already present at the bar and observed her dancing. CSSN KNIGHT observed [redacted] V/S.S. did not appear to be "that drunk."

4. Approximately thirty (30) minutes after arriving at the bar, CSSN KNIGHT recalled she was approached by S/COPELAND who told her not to tell anyone about what he was going to show her. CSSN KNIGHT recalled S/COPELAND showed her a video of him having sexual intercourse with [redacted] V/S.S. in a bathroom stall. CSSN KNIGHT stated [redacted] V/S.S.'s face was not present in the video but S/COPELAND indicated she was depicted. CSSN KNIGHT opined she would have been able to identify [redacted] V/S.S. regardless due to [redacted] V/S.S.'s "big butt." CSSN KNIGHT recalled the video depicted S/COPELAND's smiling face in the camera before panning to [redacted] V/S.S.'s buttocks and back while his penis thrusted in and out of her vagina. CSSN KNIGHT also recognized the gray sweatpants and sweatshirt [redacted] V/S.S. was wearing.

5. The next day, CSSN KNIGHT stated [redacted] V/S.S. brought the video up to CSSN KNIGHT and she stated she had seen it. CSSN KNIGHT stated she did not tell [redacted] V/S.S. about the video earlier because she assumed [redacted] V/S.S. remembered having sexual intercourse with S/COPELAND. CSSN KNIGHT stated [redacted] V/S.S. did not appear to be drunk enough to have not remembered the incident, and CSSN KNIGHT related she would have said something earlier if she had known [redacted] V/S.S. did not remember.

6. CSSN KNIGHT related she had photographs and videos from the night of the

During the course of the investigation, CSSA Jakobie GANT, USN, CVN 75 was indicated as having information in reference to the offense.

2. On 08Nov24 at approximately 1930 hours, CSSA GANT was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) in the NCIS Office aboard the ship located at 02-88-4-Q. The interview was not recorded.

3. CSSA GANT recalled he was not out with the group of sailors including S/COPELAND and [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted] on 04Nov24. CSSA GANT stated the next day on 05Nov24, he was approached by S/COPELAND, who stated he had sexual intercourse with [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted] and seemed excited about it. CSSA GANT related S/COPELAND stated [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted] kissed S/COPELAND's neck and had sexual intercourse. CSSA GANT stated he was happy because S/COPELAND seemed happy, but conflicted because he knew [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted] was dating their mutual friend CSSN Shamel EADDY, USN, CVN 75.

4. CSSA GANT recalled S/COPELAND showed him a video depicting S/COPELAND having sexual intercourse with [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted]. CSSA GANT described the video as from S/COPELAND's point of view, initially pointing the camera at himself before panning over [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted]. CSSA GANT related [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted]'s face was not visible but her buttocks and back were. CSSA GANT recalled feeling very uncomfortable after watching the video because [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted] did not appear conscious or in a comfortable position. CSSA GANT stated in the video [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted] was face down against a toilet.

5. CSSA GANT stated after [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted] reported the offense, S/COPELAND came to him and told him [redacted]V/S.S.[redacted] had "put a case on" S/COPELAND and asked CSSA GANT for advice. CSSA GANT related he told S/COPELAND to tell the truth. CSSA GANT had not seen S/COPELAND with his cellular telephone since S/COPELAND first showed CSSA GANT the video on 05Nov24.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CDR BRETT BALLARD, USN

1. As background, on 06Nov24, NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was notified by ET2 Courtney EFF, USN, Uniformed Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, of a sexual assault wherein [redacted] V/S.S. , USN, CVN 75, reported she was sexually assaulted by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, in a bathroom at a bar in Oslo, Norway, during a port call on 04Nov24 at approximately 2200 hours. During the course of the investigation, CDR Brett BALLARD, USN, Executive Officer (XO), Helecopter Sea Combat Squadron 11 (HSC 11), was indicated as having information in reference to the offense.

2. On 06Nov24 at approximately 1130 hours, CDR BALLARD was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) in the NCIS Office aboard the ship located at 02-88-4-Q. The interview was not recorded.

3. CDR BALLARD stated he was functioning as the Senior Shore Patrol representative on 05Nov24 when he was notified of a sailor, later identified as S/COPELAND, refusing to return back to the ship. CDR BALLARD notified Reporting Agent (RA) of the incident at approximately 2141 hours and Security Personnel responded with CDR BALLARD to bring S/COPELAND back to the ship. At the time of the incident, it was unknown S/COPELAND had been accused of sexual assault.

4. Upon arrival, CDR BALLARD stated CSC Jonathan GEORGE, USN, CVN 75, and S/COPELAND's liberty buddy CSSN Kaulise COUSINS, USN, CVN 75, were following S/COPELAND and attempting to convince him to come back to the ship. CDR BALLARD stated Security Personnel brought S/COPELAND back to the duty van and S/COPELAND was driven to Fleet Landing with no further issues.

5. CDR BALLARD stated CSSN COUSINS related S/COPELAND was drinking at a bar and left to take a phone call. When S/COPELAND returned, he told CSSN COUSINS his "life was over" because he "caught a case" and would not come back to the ship. According to CDR BALLARD, CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND had a sexual encounter the night prior with an unknown individual. CDR BALLARD could provide no further details.

6. CDR BALLARD opined S/COPELAND had been drinking but was able to walk. CDR BALLARD could not recall seeing S/COPELAND in possession of a cellular telephone during the interaction.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN KAULISE COUSINS, USN

1. As background, on 06Nov24, NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was notified by ET2 Courtney EFF, USN, Uniformed Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, of a sexual assault wherein [redacted]V/S.S., USN, CVN 75, reported she was sexually assaulted by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, in a bathroom at a bar in Oslo, Norway, during a port call on 04Nov24 at approximately 2200 hours. During the course of the investigation, CSSN KAULISE COUSINS, USN, CVN 75, was indicated as having information in reference to the offense.

2. On 06Nov24 at approximately 1400 hours, CSSN COUSINS was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) in the NCIS Office aboard the ship located at 02-88-4-Q. The interview was not recorded.

3. CSSN COUSINS stated he and S/COPELAND are friends, and met in approximately September 2024 when CSSN COUSINS arrived to the ship. CSSN COUSINS stated he was liberty buddies with S/COPELAND on 05Sep24 but not on 04Sep24. CSSN COUSINS recalled he and S/COPELAND were at a bar in Oslo, Norway in the evening hours and recalled S/COPELAND was in a good mood. CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND stated he had sexual intercourse with [redacted]V/S.S. the night prior and seemed happy about the interaction. CSSN COUSINS recalled S/COPELAND stated [redacted]V/S.S. had been "kissing on him" and stated he had sex with her in a bathroom at a bar. CSSN COUSINS recalled being happy for his friend, but stated he personally felt badly about it because he knew [redacted]V/S.S. had a boyfriend on the ship.

4. CSSN COUSINS recalled S/COPELAND left the bar to take a phone call, and when he returned he was very upset saying [redacted]V/S.S. "put a charge on" him and that his life was ruined. CSSN COUSINS related S/COPELAND felt that because he is black, the Command would "fuck him over" and it was going to "fuck up his whole career." CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND stated he was going to kill himself in Oslo because there was no point in living. CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND refused to come back to the ship and left the bar.

5. CSSN COUSINS stated CSC Jonathan GEORGE saw CSSN COUSINS attempting to have S/COPELAND come back to the ship and attempted to help. CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND walked in front of approximately three (3) trains and opined S/COPELAND was attempting to kill himself. CSSN COUSINS recalled Shore Patrol and Security arrived and escorted S/COPELAND back to the ship.

6. When asked directly, CSSN COUSINS stated he never had S/COPELAND's cellular telephone and could not speculate as to why S/COPELAND indicated he did. CSSN COUSINS emphatically denied ever taking S/COPELAND's cellular telephone. CSSN COUSINS stated he last saw S/COPELAND on his phone at approximately 2200 hours speaking to his parents. CSSN COUSINS recalled on the liberty boat, S/COPELAND attempted to go outside and CSSN COUSINS refused to let him. CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND went to the bathroom aboard the ferry and was there the entire ride back to the ship. CSSN COUSINS speculated S/COPELAND got rid of the phone in the bathroom on the liberty boat.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF S/COPELAND

1. As background, on 06Nov24, NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was notified by ET2 Courtney EFF, USN, Uniformed Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, of a sexual assault wherein [redacted] V/S.S., USN, CVN 75, reported she was sexually assaulted by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, in a bathroom at a bar in Oslo, Norway, during a port call on 04Nov24 at approximately 2200 hours.

2. On 18Nov24 at approximately 2230 hours, S/COPELAND was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) aboard the USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), while at sea in compartment 02-88-4-Q.

3. The interview was audio and video recorded in its entirety utilizing the CaseCracker system. This report serves as a synopsis of the interview and does not necessarily describe the information in the order in which it was discussed. For a verbatim account, please refer to the digital recording; Enclosure (A) pertains.

4. Prior to being interviewed, S/COPELAND was advised of, and waived, his Article 31b Rights utilizing a Military Rights Waiver form; Enclosure (B) pertains.

5. S/COPELAND related on 04Nov24 while in port in Oslo, Norway, he went to an unknown bar with other Culinary Specialists in the evening hours before liberty expiration. S/COPELAND stated approximately an hour in to the evening, he had approximately two (2) drinks and would not consider himself intoxicated when [redacted] V/S.S. came up to him at a table he was sitting at and kissed his ear and his neck. S/COPELAND opined [redacted] V/S.S. was acting completely normal though he could not estimate how drunk she was. S/COPELAND recalled he was sitting at the table with CSSR Deontae WILLIAMS, USN, CVN 75, and CSSN Kaulise COUSINS, USN, CVN 75. S/COPELAND recalled [redacted] V/S.S. took S/COPELAND by the hand and requested he accompany her to the bathroom. S/COPELAND stated he walked to the bathroom with her and attempted to wait outside, but [redacted] V/S.S. took him by the hand and pulled him into a bathroom stall in the women's restroom.

6. S/COPELAND stated [redacted] V/S.S. faced away from him in the stall and pulled her pants down before bending over. S/COPELAND stated he pushed his penis into her vagina and opined [redacted] V/S.S. was consenting to the contact. S/COPELAND stated he took his phone out and began to record a video of the sexual interaction. S/COPELAND stated he did not know if [redacted] V/S.S. was aware of him recording as she was facing away from him. S/COPELAND stated the intercourse lasted approximately twenty (20) minutes and that he did not ejaculate because the interaction seemed to be "too good to be true." When asked to explain, S/COPELAND stated he viewed V/S.S. as a sister and that she had never shown any interest in him sexually. S/COPELAND stated he did not use a condom. Following the interaction, S/COPELAND stated he and V/S.S. exited the bathroom and everything was "normal" between the two.

7. S/COPELAND recalled showing the video to CSSN COUSINS and CSSN Jada KNIGHT, USN, USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), without V/S.S.'s knowledge. S/COPELAND stated he showed the video to others because he was excited. After the group left the bar, S/COPELAND recalled V/S.S. threw up on the liberty boat on the way back to the ship.

8. The day following the sexual intercourse, S/COPELAND stated he was out in Oslo, Norway, with CSSN COUSINS when he received a phone call and text messages from V/S.S.. S/COPELAND related V/S.S. told him "if you want to run your mouth I'm going to put you on report." S/COPELAND opined CSSN Shamel EADDY, USN, CVN 75, found out about the sexual encounter and became upset which spurred V/S.S. to report the sexual encounter as a sexual assault. S/COPELAND recalled this made him very upset and he told CSSN COUSINS he would not return to the ship. S/COPELAND initially denied efforts to harm himself, but then admitted to walking in front of motor vehicles intentionally.

9. S/COPELAND stated he gave his cellular telephone to CSSN COUSINS and did not know what CSSN COUSINS did with it. S/COPELAND denied throwing it away on purpose and stated it was lost after his phone fell out of his pocket and the screen shattered. S/COPELAND stated he lost his Air Pod during the same incident and showed RA his Air Pod case with one Air Pod to verify the story.

10. S/COPELAND agreed to provide a sample of his DNA via a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS); Enclosure (C) pertains. RA swabbed the inside of S/COPELAND's mouth and placed the swabs into the NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75) evidence locker under log number 0012-24.

11. At the conclusion of the interview, S/COPELAND was turned over to command representative CSC Shayquan JONES, USN, CVN 75, at approximately 2342 hours.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN SHAKYRA RICHARDSON, USN

1. On 07JUL25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Jessica GOKEY conducted an interview of [redacted] V/S.R., USN, Naval Station Norfolk (NAVSTA NORFOLK), VA, at NCISRA Norfolk, VA, regarding her prior relationship with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95).

2. As background, [redacted] V/S.R. was identified as a prior girlfriend of S/COPELAND who may possess information relevant to the investigation.

3. The interview of [redacted] V/S.R. was recorded using an audio/video recording system, and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

4. [redacted] V/S.R. stated she and S/COPELAND began dating circa MAR25, and the relationship lasted for approximately one (1) month. [redacted] V/S.R. stated she met S/COPELAND while assigned to DDG-95, and worked together. According to [redacted] V/S.R., the relationship began as a friendship and developed into a romantic relationship. [redacted] V/S.R. described S/COPELAND initially as "a cool person." [redacted] V/S.R. stated most of their interactions occurred while under the influence of alcohol, as S/COPELAND regularly encouraged drinking. [redacted] V/S.R. reported the relationship ended due to S/COPELAND becoming violent and dishonest about his involvement with his ex-girlfriend, identified as "Dess" (NFI).

5. [redacted] V/S.R. stated on 11APR25, while in S/COPELAND's barracks room, located at Willis Manor building X-2, Room 335, Naval Station Norfolk, VA, she accessed S/COPELAND's phone and discovered messages which indicated S/COPELAND was still in a relationship with his ex-girlfriend. Upon confronting S/COPELAND, [redacted] V/S.R. stated he became "visibly upset". According to [redacted] V/S.R., S/COPELAND pushed her onto the couch and placed both hands around her neck for approximately four to five (4-5) seconds. [redacted] V/S.R. stated while she was being strangled, S/COPELAND smiled and appeared "extremely angry", stated, "it was like he was someone else." [redacted] V/S.R. reported after S/COPELAND released her, she broke his PlayStation 5 out of anger and exited the room. [redacted] V/S.R. stated she attempted to retrieve her belongings but was denied reentry by S/COPELAND. According to [redacted] V/S.R., her personal items were never recovered.

UNOFFICIAL TRANSCRIPT EXERPT
CSSN [redacted] V/S.R. [redacted] USN INTERVIEW DATED 7 JULY 2025

00:05:37: Special Agent: All right, so like I said, whenever you walked in, you are not in trouble. I'm conducting an investigation into Jermiah Copeland. You know who that is? OK, um I don't know. If you you've heard. I know there's a lot of there's a lot of news coverage of it, but it's involving the death around [redacted] V/ A. R. [redacted]. As such, I went into his background and I noticed that there was a police report involving you two. Now, I don't care what you did. I'm going to flat out say it right now. I don't care what you did. I don't care after effect what happened to you. I want to know what led up to that, if there's anything to tell, involving Jermiah and, like, his background and what you know of him, if that's OK? OK.

00:06:27: [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] : I didn't really, like, know too much of him. Like, it basically started after I went to his phone and found out he had my girlfriend and a son.

00:06:34: Special Agent: you said then a son?

00:06:37 [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] : Yeah

00:06:38: Special Agent: Ok

00:06:39: [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] : He didn't like that I went to his phone. So he was like, oh, you invading my privacy, this that and the third. I tried to leave him. He literally like pushed me on the couch and put his hands around my neck and started choking me and he started laughing afterwards at me. I like out of anger, I picked up his Xbox and I broke it and it went from there. He also got his roommate to try and lie on me and was like oh she tried to stab me this that and the third. Basically the MAs searched me and searched my room and they didn't find anything. They didn't find me guilty about the night. But yeah I did break his Xbox. Only thing he did was put his hands around my neck and choke me.

00:07:14: Special Agent: OK, do you remember when this was?

00:07:17: [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] April 11th?

00:07:18: Special Agent: April 11th of this year,

00:07:19 [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] : Yes.

00:07:21: Special Agent: OK. How long had y'all been dating?

00:07:25: [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] : Since March.

00:07:27: Special Agent: OK, so not too long.

00:07:28: [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] : (shakes head no)

00:07:34: Special Agent: OK.

00:07:38: Special Agent: When you went through his phone and saw that he had another girlfriend, do you recall her name?

00:07:43: [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] : No, he just called her Dess.

00:07:45: Special Agent: Des?

00:07:45: [redacted] V/ S. R. [redacted] : Des DESS.

00:07:47: Special Agent: OK.

00:07:48: Special Agent: Des.

00.07:50: Special Agent: OK.

00:07:50: Special Agent: Do you know anything about her? Where she went from?

00:07:52: [redacted] : Yeah, they had a couple conversations. We have each other up right now.

00:07:55: Special Agent: OK.

00:07:58: [redacted] : She just one of those. She's going to stay regardless, so 00:08:02: Special Agent: I got you. OK. Is she from around here? You know where she's from?

00:08:07: [redacted] : His hometown, where he lives.

00:08:09: Special Agent: OK. Is the son with Dess?

00:08:15: [redacted] : No.

00:08:15: Special Agent: OK.

00:08:15: [redacted] : That's just his girlfriend.

00:08:17: Special Agent: I've got it. My man's got a lot of girlfriends. Got it.

00:08:20: [redacted] : I know.

00:08:22: Special Agent: OK.

00:08:24: Special Agent: Do you know the mother of his son. by chance?

00:08:27: [redacted] : No.

00:08:28: Special Agent: OK. Do you know how old he is?

00:08:29: [redacted] : I think he's 2 or 4. I forgot. It's one of those.

00:08:32: Special Agent: All right. OK. Do you know his name?

00:08:37: [redacted] : No.

00:08:38: Special Agent: OK. No worries. OK. So, you and Copeland started dating in March. How did you guys meet?

00:08:46: [redacted] : The ship.

00:08:47: Special Agent: The ship? OK. Which ship?

00:08:48: [redacted] : JAMES E. WILLIAMS.

00:08:49: Special Agent: The WILLIAMS. OK. All right. Can you tell me - And so you're CS and so is he. You guys, were you guys on the same shift or separate?

00:09:03: [redacted] : I was daily duty. So I was working Monday through Friday, from 7 to 12. We just got close because he was the only person I was like, really comfortable with in the galley at the time.

00:09:17: Special Agent: OK, so how did this, how did your dating relationship start? Did you guys like go out or just came over or whatever?

00:09:28: [redacted] : He texted me. No, he didn't text me, actually. He asked me if I went to hang out after work. And I was like, sure. We went to his place. Um, we ended up getting drunk and it went from there.

00:09:42: Special Agent: OK, OK, all right, so you - March you guys started dating then April 11th was whenever you went through his phone and what did he - what all did he say to you? And like, how did he say it after he found you going through his phone?

00:09:59: V/ S. R. : Like before I went through his phone, I was like asking him, do you still talk to her? Do you still talk to her? He's telling me no, you don't talk to her. So he's basically like going back and forth between both of us, telling each other he don't talk to us. So she's constantly texting me like, hey, are you with Jermiah? Hey, Jermiah been texting me. So I'm like, why she's still worried about you? I was just curious. That's what made me go through his phone. And after that he's like, OK, so why are you touching my phone? It's not your phone. It's not your business dot dot dot [sic] of he's basically avoiding why he was with her and me at the same time. So.

00:10:29: Special Agent: So I gotcha. OK, When he was saying this, was he yelling at you? Or is it like how we're talking right now?

00:10:36: V/ S. R. : He was talking in a calm voice.

00:10:37: Special Agent: OK.

00:10:40: Special Agent: What transpired right before he pushed you?

00:10:43: V/ S. R. : Me trying to get up and we...

00:10:45: Special Agent: OK, so you're trying to get up off the couch and just leave?

00:10:50: V/ S. R. : Mmhmm..

00:10:52: Special Agent: How did he push you?

00:10:56: V/ S. R. : Both hands?

00:10:57: Special Agent: OK, like on your chest?

00:10:58: V/ S. R. : It wasn't a hard push.

00:11:00: Special Agent: It was enough to knock you off your feet.

00:11:03: V/ S. R. : Yeah.

00:11:03: Special Agent: OK. Did you have any bruises from that?

00:11:07: V/ S. R. : (Shakes head no). I just had a hickey on my neck.

00: 11:09: Special Agent: OK.

00:11:10: Special Agent: Was the Hickey from an actual Hickey or was it from the strangulation?

00:11:14: V/ S. R. : (Shakes head yes,) It was a hickey.

00:11:16: Special Agent: OK, cool. Just checking. Um, so when he strangled you, did he use both hands?

00:11:23: V/ S. R. (Shakes head yes) Yeah, It was both hands.

00:11:25: Special Agent: OK. Can you kind of explain to me what, like what you were thinking at that moment?

00:11:31: V/ S. R. : I don't know. It wasn't him. Like I I never seen this side of him.

00:11:34: Special Agent: OK.

00:11:36: V/ S. R. : He was always there for me when I had seizures or whenever after the hospital. So for him to do that, it didn't seem right to me.

00:11:43: V/ S. R. : OK, OK.

00:11:46: Special Agent: OK, OK. At any point did you lose consciousness?

00:11:51: V/ S. R. : (Indicates no)

00:11:52: Special Agent: Can you describe to me what, like, you were seeing him?

00:11:56: V/ S. R.: Him. He was smiling.

00:11:59: Special Agent: OK. Did your vision start to like, come in? Like, were you losing peripheral vision at all?

00:12:05: V/ S. R.: (Shakes head no)

00:12:05: Special Agent: OK, good. I'm glad to hear that at least. About how long do you think he did that?

00:12:12: V/ S. R.: Probably like 10 seconds, it wasn't that long.

00:12:17: Special Agent: Could you still breathe a little bit or were you completely - could not breathe at all?

00:12:20: V/ S. R.: (Indicates No, Shakes head no).

00:12:29: Special Agent: Are you OK?

00:12:29: V/ S. R.: I just don't want to be talking about him.

00:12:33: Special Agent: Is it because of this situation or just everything that's happened since?

00:12:36: V/ S. R.: Because of this situation.

00:12:41: Special Agent: OK. Do you need a minute? You good? OK.

00:12:53: Special Agent: Did you feel at any point that your life was in danger?

00:12:56: V/ S. R.: I don't know. It just wasn't him.

00:13:00: Special Agent: Ok, just like a different like a different personality, or?

00:13:10: V/ S. R.: I don't want to like be one of those girls that's like, oh, that's not him, but it didn't seem like him, I feel like it was just anger. I'm not sure. I don't know what it was.

00:13:26: Special Agent: And you've never seen him that angry before?

00:13:27: V/ S. R.: (Shakes head no).

00:13:30 V/ S. R.: OK. When he was strangling you, you said that he was smiling? Was he saying anything to you?

00:13:37: V/ S. R.: He was smiling.

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
M/B/NEE3/[redacted PII]

INTERVIEW OF [redacted V/Y.J.], CIV

1. On 24JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) conducted a cold call in an attempt to identify the owner of the phone number "[redacted PII]-7057", who was thought to be a minor child engaged in sexual activity with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95).

2. [redacted V/Y.J.], CIV, was identified as being a 19-year-old who was sexually assaulted by S/COPELAND. This interview was not recorded due to the circumstances surrounding the cold call. RA did ask [redacted V/Y.J.] if she would come in for a formal interview however, she declined but proceeded to explain the sexual assault over the phone.

3. During the phone call, [redacted V/Y.J.] stated she knew S/COPELAND and had a one-night stand with him sometime in the beginning of the summer in 2025. [redacted V/Y.J.] described S/COPELAND as giving off "weird vibes" and he would constantly ask her to come over.

4. [redacted V/Y.J.] explained on the night of the sexual assault, she had been picked up by two other males, Omar (NFI) and Jaden (NFI). After being picked up by them, [redacted V/Y.J.] said they drove her back to S/COPELAND's barracks room located on Naval Station Norfolk and they engaged in a consensual 3-way. [redacted V/Y.J.] explained S/COPELAND was not present however, he did return to his barracks room sometime between 0500-0600. [redacted V/Y.J.] stated the 3-way was over and she was very tired. However, when S/COPELAND arrived at his barracks room, [redacted V/Y.J.] said he grabbed her by the arm and pulled her into his room. [redacted V/Y.J.] stated S/COPELAND wanted her to give him "head" or oral sex, and [redacted V/Y.J.] said she told S/COPELAND "no" and that she was "tired." [redacted V/Y.J.] explained S/COPELAND then attempted to penetrate her vagina and she stated it was painful and hurt when S/COPELAND penetrated her. [redacted V/Y.J.] said she told S/COPELAND to "stop." [redacted V/Y.J.] explained Omar was at the door and could hear her telling S/COPELAND to stop. [redacted V/Y.J.] further explained Omar entered the room and was able to get [redacted V/Y.J.] out of the situation. [redacted V/Y.J.] said she told Omar "Thankyou" and left the barracks room.

5. V/Y.J. stated she had not spoken to S/COPELAND since the sexual assault occurred but when the "sailor girl" further clarified as V/A.R. V/A.R.), USN, DDG-95, went missing she spoke to Omar and Jaden in person, and they had discussed the circumstances around her disappearance. V/Y.J. could not give details as to what they exactly talked about, however, V/Y.J. explained both Omar and Jaden stopped being friends with S/COPELAND due to V/A.R. missing.

6. At the conclusion of the interview, RA asked V/Y.J. if she would be willing to participate in the investigation. V/Y.J. stated she was not sure if she wanted to participate.
RA did open a separate investigation into S/COPELAND, which is documented under CCN: 24JUL25-NFNF-00344-8SNA.

INTERIVEW OF AEAN JDYN BRADFORD, USN

1. On 05AUG25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Lisa CARROLL conducted an interview of AEAN Jdyn BRADFORD, USN, USS DWIGHT D EISENHOWER (CVN-69) in regard to the captioned investigation.

2. This interview was audio and video recorded utilizing Case Cracker. A copy of the recording was subsequently saved to an optical disc and maintained with the case file. This report should not be treated as a verbatim or comprehensive representation of the interview; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. AEAN BRADFORD stated LSSA Omeri SMOOT, USN, CVN-69, and [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted], CIV were all hanging out in CSSN Jermiah COPELAND's (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG-95) barracks room on 25MAY25. AEAN BRADFORD explained S/COPELAND was not in the barracks room but returned around 0300-0400. AEAN BRADFORD stated when S/COPELAND entered the barracks room he went right to [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted] and gave her a hug. AEAN BRADFORD stated the next thing he realized, as he was on a phone call, S/COPELAND and [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted] were in S/COPELAND's bedroom and the door was locked. AEAN BRADFORD stated he could hear [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted] say "no" and that she was "tired". AEAN BRADFORD explained he and LSSA SMOOT kept telling S/COPELAND to stop, and eventually S/COPELAND opened the door. AEAN BRADFORD observed [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted] on the floor of S/COPELAND's room in what was described as someone who may have "rag dolled" onto the floor. AEAN BRADFORD explained [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted] did not have a shirt on but did have a bra and pants on. AEAN BRADFORD stated S/COPELAND told everyone to get out of the barracks room due to him having to go to work. AEAN BRADFORD explained he took [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted] home and on the way home [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted] told him S/COPELAND attempted to make her perform oral sex on S/COPELAND.

4. AEAN BRADFORD expressed his concerns for [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted]. AEAN BRADFORD further clarified he was not going to let [redacted] V/Y.J. [redacted] stay there as he was concerned what S/COPELAND might do to her if left alone with her. AEAN BRADFORD stated he never confronted S/COPELAND about the assault and did not speak to him

M/B/NEE3/S/[PII]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA, USN

1. On 02JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Carrie JOHNSON interviewed CSSN Gladis GARCIA-BARRERA, USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95) regarding the whereabouts of [V/A.R.], USN, DDG-95. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA was identified as a friend of [V/A.R.].

2. The interview was conducted inside a government vehicle outside of CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA's barracks building, SP-29, onboard Naval Station Norfolk (NAVSTA Norfolk). RA and PA JOHNSON identified themselves via credentials.

3. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised that she only became close with [V/A.R.] over the last month or so, and that they hung out together for the first time outside of work on 24MAY25. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that she mostly communicates with [V/A.R.] on text message or Instagram. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA said the last time she received any communication from [V/A.R.] was via Instagram at 2244 hours on Wednesday night, 28MAY25.

4. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA recalled that on 28MAY25, she and [V/A.R.] ended their shift at 0815 and upon being released from the ship, took an Uber to Target together. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised that [V/A.R.] ordered the Uber on her phone. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA could not recall which Target they went to, but remembered there was a Food Lion next to it. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that she and [V/A.R.] both purchased yoga mats and weights because they both wanted to exercise more. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised they purchased other things, such as grocery items, etc. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that [V/A.R.] purchased her Target items with a tap-to-pay feature on her phone, which CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA believed to be linked to [V/A.R.]'s "Navy cash card."

5. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that when she and [V/A.R.] left target, CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA ordered a Z-Trip ride which was supposed to arrive at 1141; however, the vehicle was late, so they took another Z-Trip ride at 1202 hours. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised the Z-Trip took them through Gate 22 of Naval Station Norfolk, dropped off CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA, then dropped [V/A.R.] off. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated she requested that [V/A.R.] let her know when she was back safely, which [V/A.R.] did. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised that later in the afternoon, [V/A.R.] mentioned going to the barracks room of Jermiah Taylor COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG-95 to cook tacos and sent her a couple of pictures of food. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA was unsure of the relationship between S/COPELAND and V/A.R., and did not know S/COPELAND very well. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised that she heard S/COPELAND "had a case" from the USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) involving V/S.R." (NFI) and heard that S/COPELAND was supposed to go to jail for speeding and evading. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA did not know any other details regarding S/COPELAND's previous case.

6. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised that on the morning of Thursday, 29MAY25, HT3 Michael Davontae GILLESPIE, USN, DDG-95 messaged her around 0454 am requesting her to call him. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that she did call HT3 GILLESPIE, who was V/A.R.'s ex-boyfriend, and HT3 GILLEPSIE expressed his concerns for V/A.R. because the previous evening V/A.R. sporadically texted him "fuck you."

7. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA was asked about V/A.R.'s mental health. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised she had heard V/A.R. had mental health issues and had been admitted to the "5th floor" before (the "5th floor" is a term referring to the psychiatric unit at Naval Medical Center Portsmouth (NMCP)). CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA did not know of any suicide attempts by V/A.R. and denied that V/A.R. communicated any suicidal ideations. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that there were times when V/A.R. would stop talking to people, but only in person and not for this long. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised that V/A.R. had recently suggested the two of them take a trip to New York to go shopping. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that V/A.R. had a friend in New York referred to as "Flacko" (NFI) which CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA advised was the term for "skinny" in the Spanish language. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA did not know anything more about "Flacko." CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that she did hear that V/A.R. made comments to HT3 GILLESPIE regarding going AWOL and mentioned New York.

8. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA also advised that V/A.R. was closest to CSSN Junrojel MIGUEL, USN, DDG-95. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA stated that V/A.R. texted CSSN MIGUEL a concerning text message. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA had a screenshot of part of the text message and showed RA. RA observed the partial text message (from V/A.R. to CSSN MIGUEL) which stated that V/A.R. was scared of men and indicated that she felt uncomfortable around several people on the ship who V/A.R. referred to as "CS1" who V/A.R. alleged would grab her phone out of her hands and look through her gallery; "RS2" who told V/A.R. he loved her and wanted a hug; and "BM1" who wanted a secret relationship with V/A.R. after finding out she and HT3 GILLESPIE broke up. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA identified CS1 as CS1 Darrell HOWELLEL (NFI) and RS2 HART (NFI). CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA did not recall BM1's name but knew he was on DDG-95 along with CS1 and RS2.

9. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA listed other relevant individuals: ET3 RICH (NFI) is an ex-boyfriend of V/A.R.. CSSN Jean JAQUAEZ ("JJ") (NFI) was identified as a friend of V V/A.R.

10. CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA provided the following contact information for V/ A. R. :
Phone number: PII
Instagram: 19itsyafavoritegirl

11. At the conclusion of the interview, CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) to view her iPhone 12, specifically any communications with V/ A. R. . The PASS form and review of the extraction of CSSN GARCIA-BARRERA's iPhone will be documented in a subsequent Investigative Action.

INVESTIGATIVE ACTION 08JUN25

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
M/B/NEE3/S/[redacted PII]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF HT3 MICHAEL GILLESPIE, USN

1. On 08Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Investigator (PI) Tyler B. MANN conducted a follow-up interview of HT3 Michael Davontae GILLESPIE, USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95) at NCISRA Norfolk, VA to develop additional information pertaining to the captioned investigation. Prior to initiating the interview, RA and PI identified themselves to HT3 GILLESPIE as a Special Agent and Investigator, respectively.

2. RA recorded this interview using an audio and video recording tool. This report serves as a summary of the interview and should not be treated as a verbatim account of the information discussed. A digital copy of the recorded interview is available on the optical disc appended to this report as Enclosure (A).

3. HT3 GILLESPIE identified himself as a former romantic partner and friend to [redacted V/A.R.]. HT3 GILLESPIE and [redacted V/A.R.] dated for approximately five months in 2024, with their relationship ending in approximately Nov24. HT3 GILLESPIE identified ET3 Daniel David RICH Jr., USN, DDG 95, as the individual who dated [redacted V/A.R.] after him. HT3 RICH could not provide information regarding precisely how much time elapsed between the end of his romantic relationship with [redacted V/A.R.] and the beginning of her romantic relationship with ET3 RICH but noted that their relationship had also ended prior to [redacted V/A.R.]'s disappearance. HT3 GILLESPIE reported that despite [redacted V/A.R.]'s romantic entanglement with ET3 RICH, he had engaged in intimate acts with her on at least two occasions since the end of their relationship, in or around Feb25 and in May25.

4. HT3 GILLESPIE last interacted with [redacted V/A.R.] in person on Wednesday morning, 28May25, at work aboard DDG 95. HT3 GILLESPIE admitted that the conversation with [redacted V/A.R.] became contentious, as he raised the topic of [redacted V/A.R.] returning a motorcycle helmet he previously gave to her. HT3 GILLESPIE noted there were specific care instructions for motorcycle helmets, and [redacted V/A.R.] did not ride independent of their rides together, nor did she own a motorcycle herself. [redacted V/A.R.] expressed frustration with HT3 GILLESPIE's request, and HT3 GILLESPIE withdrew the specific request for the helmet but continued to discuss the logistics of retrieving other items belonging to him from [redacted V/A.R.]'s barracks.

5. HT3 GILLESPIE next interacted with [redacted V/A.R.] during the late afternoon or evening of Wednesday, 28May25, via telephone. HT3 GILLESPIE reported [redacted V/A.R.] called him, and they spoke cordially about how the remainder of her day went. According to HT3 GILLESPIE, V/A.R. informed him that she had a very good day, and that she had gone to Target with CSSN Gladis GARCIABARRERA, USN, DDG 95 for a shopping trip after work. HT3 GILLESPIE noted that V/A.R. had communicated with him in this manner while they dated, as she enjoyed having someone to discuss her activities with.

6. HT3 GILLESPIE reported he had duty onboard DDG 95 during the night of 28-29May25, including a specific watch shift in the later hours of the night and early morning. HT3 GILLESPIE reported receiving a text message reading "Fuck you" from V/A.R. sometime within the 2300-0000 hours timeframe. HT3 GILLESPIE was unsure of the specific time V/A.R. sent the message, as he only received it upon returning to the upper decks of DDG 95 from conducting watch on the lower levels of the ship where he did not receive cell signal.

7. Upon receiving the message, HT3 GILLESPIE became confused and subsequently concerned about V/A.R.'s well-being. The discrepancy between their earlier telephonic conversation and the text message was jarring, and HT3 GILLESPIE became concerned V/A.R. may be experiencing what he referred to as "an episode." HT3 GILLESPIE elaborated that V/A.R. suffered from Post-Traumatic Stress (PTS), associated with sexual abuse she suffered from a relative. HT3 GILLESPIE explained obliquely that he and V/A.R. had dealt with similar traumatic events in the past, and their shared experiences drew them together and helped them support one another. HT3 GILLESPIE began attempting to call and text V/A.R. multiple times, without success. HT3 GILLESPIE reported that at some point, exact time not recalled, he noticed an iPhone notification indicating V/A.R. had placed her phone on "Do Not Disturb" mode.

8. Between 0100-0200 hours on 29May25, HT3 GILLESPIE attempted to call ET3 RICH to enlist his assistance in reaching out to V/A.R. and ensure her safety. HT3 GILLESPIE explained that ET3 RICH would also be aware of the occasional severity of V/A.R.'s "episodes" and could take appropriate action while HT3 GILLESPIE was stuck on duty aboard the ship; however, ET3 RICH did not answer HT3 GILLESPIE's phone calls.

9. HT3 GILLESPIE reported that sometime around after 0300 hours, exact time not recalled, he was able to depart duty to begin looking for V/A.R. himself. HT3 GILLESPIE had historically shared his own location with V/A.R. via the iPhone's "Find My" application and been able to observe V/A.R.'s location, as well. After receiving V/A.R.'s text message, HT3 GILLESPIE had opened the "Find My" application, and noted V/A.R.'s cell phone was in vicinity of "X2." As a note, X2 is also identifiable as Willis Manor, a barracks located onboard Norfolk Naval Station at 9712 Virginia Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23511. By the time HT3 GILLESPIE departed the ship, he no longer had access to V/A.R.'s location but traveled to X2 as her last known location.

10. Upon arriving to the X2 barracks, HT3 GILLESPIE learned from the front desk workers that he was not the only individual who had recently asked about V/A.R. ; ET3 RICH had been at X2 earlier. HT3 GILLESPIE and ET3 RICH met at the X2 barracks shortly thereafter to search together. ET3 RICH had enlisted the assistance of Masters-at-Arms (MAs) from base police, and accompanied them to Miller Hall, V/A.R. 's assigned barracks, to look for her in her room. HT3 GILLESPIE stayed at X2 and was joined by other MAs to continue searching for V/A.R. there.

11. HT3 GILLESPIE learned from CSSN GARCIABARRERA, at a time not specifically recalled or reported, that V/A.R. had intended to spend the evening of 28May25 hanging out with S/COPELAND, a fellow culinary specialist from DDG95. HT3 GILLESPIE indicated that he reported this information to the MAs, who attempted to locate V/A.R. and S/COPELAND in a room identified by a Resident Assistant (RA), not further identified, as assigned to S/COPELAND. HT3 GILLESPIE accompanied the MAs and an RA to a barracks room located on the second deck of X2 but did not find V/A.R. or S/COPELAND. HT3 GILLESPIE noted the barracks suite inspected by the MAs and RA was empty, clean, and seemed largely uninhabited. As a note, S/COPELAND's actual barracks room was located on the third deck of the X2 building.

12. HT3 GILLESPIE noted his calls and texts to V/A.R. 's cell phone stopped being delivered at approximately 0430 hours on 29May25. HT3 GILLESPIE believed V/A.R. 's cell phone battery may have died, or the phone was turned off, at this time. HT3 GILLESPIE had to suspend his search for V/A.R. sometime between 0600 and 0700 hours, as he had a scheduled dental appointment at approximately 0800 hours. HT3 GILLESPIE provided information to ET3 RICH indicating MAs had entered S/COPELAND's barracks room and failed to find either S/COPELAND or V/A.R. .

13.HT3 GILLESPIE reported having no further contact with V/A.R. after her phone died. HT3 GILLESPIE, ET3 RICH, and CSSN GARCIABARRERA continued to communicate with one another about her disappearance and were unconvinced by the DDG 95 Command report indicating that V/A.R. had been found and was safe on 29May25. HT3 GILLESPIE noted that S/COPELAND was the last person seen with V/A.R. and was therefore the individual that most likely knew what happened to V/A.R. .

14. On Sunday, 01Jun25, HT3 GILLESPIE confronted S/COPELAND aboard DDG 95 and surreptitiously recorded the interaction with his iPhone. HT3 GILLESPIE showed RA and PI the video and provided a copy to PI. In that recorded interaction, S/COPELAND appeared to identify himself as the individual who asked ET3 RICH how long it would take for him to arrive when V/A.R. called ET3 RICH at 0214 hours on 29May25. S/COPELAND claimed that V/A.R. stayed with him after that phone call before leaving later that morning. HT3 GILLESPIE challenged S/COPELAND, informing him that he'd entered a room believed to be S/COPELAND's looking for V/A.R. at which point it becomes clear that HT3 GILLESPIE and the MAs entered a room on the incorrect floor. S/COPELAND then claimed that following a visit to his room by an unidentified "Chief" he had "dropped her off" outside her building. S/COPELAND told HT3 GILLESPIE that she, V/A.R., "was tripping" and crying while they were together. S/COPELAND also claimed that V/A.R. had begun consuming alcohol before he arrived, and that all he consumed was a "Buzzball or two."

15. HT3 GILLESPIE signed Permissive Authorizations for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his cell phone, an iPhone XR with serial number DX3FJFRQKXKN, his car, a blue 2004 Ford Mustang with Virginia license plate PII, his motorcycle, a Kawasaki Z650 with North Carolina license plate PII. The signed PASS forms for the execution of those searches are documented in separate reports. HT3 GILLESPIE noted that he had a fellow USN member friend staying with him at his barracks and therefore declined to immediately provide a PASS for his barracks. HT3 GILLESPIE noted he remained willing to permit a search of his barracks at a later time.

16. HT3 GILLESPIE signed a PASS for his Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA), via buccal swap, which was executed following his interview; Enclosure (B) pertains. The DNA swabs were collected and placed into evidence under ECD #HA9UT and item #455TC.

RESULTS OF PERMISSIVE AUTHORIZATION FOR SEARCH AND SEIZURE REGARDING HT3 MICHAEL GILLESPIE'S IPHONE

1. On 03JUN25, HT3 Micheal GILLESPIE, USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95) authorized the search of his personally owned Apple iPhone XR, Serial Number # DX3FJFRQKXKN, by signing a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS); Enclosure (A) pertains. Subsequently, on 03JUN25, HT3 GILLISPIE's cellular device was manually reviewed and revealed the following pertinent information:

2. Text Messages:
-Numerous text messages between HT3 GILLESPIE and contact [redacted V/A.R.] with telephone number [redacted PII] 0672. The messages beginning on 27MAY25 appear to show plans of HT3 GILLESPIE responding to the residence of [redacted V/A.R.] and retrieving clothing and a helmet. The last message sent from [redacted V/A.R.] is on "Wednesday" at 23:22 hours. HT3 GILLESPIE continues to send numerous texts but receives no response.

3. Phone Calls:
-HT3 GILLESPIE appears to miss a Facetime Audio call from [redacted V/A.R.] on "Wednesday". HT3 GILLESPIE makes numerous calls to [redacted V/A.R.] following the missed call.

4. Video Recorded Interaction
-HT3 GILLESPIE sent a video recorded interaction between him and CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95. HT3 GILLESPIE reported this interaction was recorded without S/COPELAND's knowledge. The video's metadata indicates it was created on 01JUL25 at approximately 2004 hours. In the video, you can see S/COPELAND's nametag. S/COPELAND indicates [redacted V/A.R.] [redacted V/A.R.], USN, DDG 95 stayed overnight in his room and left the following morning. S/COPELAND stated "chief" walked in his room and instructed S/COPELAND to drop [redacted V/A.R.] off at her room. S/COPELAND advised he dropped her off at her building at approximately 1300 hours, however, she walked towards the front or side of the building. S/COPELAND advised while [redacted V/A.R.] was in his room the night prior, she was "tripping" and described a moment wherein [redacted V/A.R.] called someone she used to talk to in Texas and indicated he did "things" to her and questioned why he did those "things". S/COPELAND stated his roommates were also home in their rooms at the time and he and [redacted V/A.R.] were in the living room. S/COPELAND stated [redacted V/A.R.] consumed alcohol prior to them meeting and he only consumed approximately two (2) cups of "Buzzball". S/COPELAND stated when [redacted V/A.R.] was crying, one of the aforenoted roommates came in and asked if everything was ok.

M/B/NEE3/S/[redacted PII]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF ET3 DANIEL RICH, USN

1. On 07JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Devin RUIC conducted an interview of ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95), regarding the captioned investigation involving [redacted V/A.R.], USN, DDG-95, and CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG-95.

2. RA recorded the interview of ET3 RICH using an audio/visual recording system, and RA downloaded a digital copy onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. ET3 RICH stated he first met [redacted V/A.R.] circa SEP24 when he went "cranking" to assist the Culinary Specialists aboard DDG-95. The term "cranking" was used to describe a temporary duty unrelated to ET3 RICH's traditionally rated duties.

4. ET3 RICH stated [redacted V/A.R.] would have days where she had "little panic attacks" and would want to go for a drive to Virginia Beach or to the Norfolk Botanical Gardens. ET3 RICH recalled [redacted V/A.R.] would sometimes start having "panic attacks" when they would consume alcohol. [redacted V/A.R.] would talk about her father, who was in prison, and would become concerned for her own safety when discussing his future release from prison. ET3 RICH believed [redacted V/A.R.]'s father was in prison because [redacted V/A.R.] "reported him," and believed her father had forced her to take drugs and "forced himself" on her. ET3 RICH indicated [redacted V/A.R.] claimed her father intended to "find her" upon his release from prison.

5. ET3 RICH stated there are certain "cues" with [redacted V/A.R.] that resulted with "panic attacks" in the past. ET3 RICH clarified [redacted V/A.R.] often displayed these cues during the "build-up to sex." ET3 RICH stated if [redacted V/A.R.] was not "feeling it" and sexual contact continued, [redacted V/A.R.] would have a "meltdown." ET3 RICH stated he had an experience with [redacted V/A.R.] where she "pushed away" and locked herself in the bathroom. ET3 RICH explained that during this incident, both he and [redacted V/A.R.] had still been clothed, but had begun to engage in an intimate act. ET3 RICH recalled having to "talk her down" through a bathroom door in hopes of calming her down. ET3 RICH relayed another incident when they were talking about [redacted V/A.R.]'s father, wherein she ran out of his room, and he looked for her for 30 minutes until she came back.

6. ET3 RICH relayed V/A.R. was in a relationship with HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG-95, until DEC24. ET3 RICH stated a lot of V/A.R. 's belongings were in HT3 GILLESPIE's room while they were dating. After V/A.R. and HT3 GILLESPIE broke up, ET3 RICH helped V/A.R. move her stuff out of HT3 GILLESPIE's room. ET3 RICH relayed he started dating V/A.R. circa DEC24 and believed they broke up circa MAY25. ET3 RICH stated while he was in a relationship with V/A.R., they would primarily sleep in his room. ET3 RICH stated he and V/A.R. broke up because she was "going through some stuff" and wanted to "work on herself."

7. ET3 RICH relayed on 29MAY25, he received a call from V/A.R. at 0214 hours local time and she was "freaking out" and requested a "pick-up ASAP." ET3 RICH remembered V/A.R. was crying and having a "meltdown." ET3 RICH recalled hearing "car noises" and believed V/A.R. may have been outside. V/A.R. passed the phone to another individual who ET3 RICH later "found out" was S/COPELAND. ET3 RICH relayed the person V/A.R. passed the phone to asked how long it would take for ET3 RICH to arrive, to which ET3 RICH responded he was about ten to fifteen minutes away. ET3 RICH relayed he went through the gate to Norfolk Naval Station at 0228 hours and attempted to call V/ V/A.R. multiple times, but she did not pick up. ET3 RICH checked V/A.R. 's location and saw that it was outside of the "X2 building" near the rounded driveway drop off area located in front of the building. As a note, the X2 building is also identifiable as Willis Manor, a barracks located onboard Norfolk Naval Station at 9712 Virginia Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23511. ET3 RICH stated V/A.R. was not there, and her phone was not there, and he started "freaking out a little bit." ET3 RICH showed pictures of V/A.R. to people working at the front desk of X2, not further identified by ET3 RICH, but they were unsure if they recognized seeing her. ET3 RICH checked the front area of X2 to see if he could see her phone in the grass and did not find it. ET3 RICH went back inside X2; the individuals working the front desk suggested he call his command and the local precinct on base to report his concerns.

8. ET3 RICH attempted to call the base police office, but did not receive a response. ET3 RICH drove to base police and notified them of the situation. ET3 RICH estimated he called HT3 GILLESPIE around 0300 hours while he was with base police and HT3 GILLESPIE joined him at X2 around 0430 hours to help look for V/A.R. . ET3 RICH added HT3 GILLESPIE called him earlier on 29MAY25 at 0120 and 0143 hours, but he was asleep and missed the calls. ET3 RICH did not know why HT3 GILLESPIE called him that morning, but presumed it had to do with HT3 GILLESPIE's own concern for V/A.R. . ET3 RICH stated HT3 GILLESPIE was coming off duty from the ship that morning. ET3 RICH remembered he had to end the call with HT3 GILLESPIE because his Command Duty Officer (CDO) was calling him back.

9. ET3 RICH believed V/A.R. 's phone died around 0430 hours on 29MAY25 due to her phone's location no longer saying "Live" and instead showing "Last Location" in his iPhone's "Find My" application.

10. Around 0500 hours, HT3 GILLESPIE stayed at X2 to continue looking for V/A.R. and ET3 RICH drove to V/A.R.'s barracks at Miller Hall, accompanied by two Masters-at-Arms (MAs) and waited for the Resident Advisors (RA) to arrive and unlock her door. ET3 RICH relayed the MAs accessed V/A.R.'s room around 0630 hours, but V/A.R. was not there. ET3 RICH stated the MAs did not permit him to go into her room but he peeked his head in and noticed the room looked like a photo or video of a "Fit Check" V/A.R. sent to her friend CSSN Gladys GARCIABARRERA, USN, DDG-95 on 28MAY25. ET3 RICH noticed the only thing that appeared missing was her backpack. ET3 RICH remembered HT3 GILLESPIE met him at Miller Hall to assist in searching. ET3 RICH remembered going back to X2 with HT3 GILLESPIE after searching Miller Hall. ET3 RICH estimated he concluded his search and left base to go to work around 0730 hours.

11. ET3 RICH stated HT3 GILLESPIE called him between 0800 and 0900 hours on 29MAY25 and told ET3 RICH he had checked S/COPELAND's room and did not see V/A.R. and S/COPELAND in the room. ET3 RICH recalled hearing from HT3 GILLESPIE that "the bed was made" and nothing looked "messed up." ET3 RICH believed it was possible HT3 GILLESPIE found out V/A.R. was with S/COPELAND from CSSN GARCIABARRERA.

12. ET3 RICH recalled there was an "All Hands Call" around 1000 hours on 29MAY25 and remembered a Chief pulled him aside and told him V/A.R. was found with S/COPELAND in S/COPELAND's room and that he could "relax." ET3 RICH learned FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG-95, was the person who found S/COPELAND and V/A.R. and messaged him via "GroupMe." FCC PARKER told him V/A.R. was "ok and safe" and affirmed he had seen V/A.R. that day.

13. ET3 RICH stated he recently attempted to find V/A.R.'s location on the morning of 07JUN25 as well as when he was at Naval Medical Center Portsmouth (NMCP) on 06JUN25. ET3 RICH stated ETC Donald ACKLEY, USN, DDG-95 escorted him to NMCP for a Command Referral to Behavioral Health. ET3 RICH relayed he attempted to sign into V/A.R.'s Navy Federal Credit Union (NFCU) account and her email account a few times on 03JUN25 or 04JUN25 on his laptop and desktop while at his barracks; ET3 RICH explained he had attempted to login to V/A.R.'s accounts using saved passwords, as V/A.R. previously borrowed and used the laptop. ET3 RICH further explained he had attempted the logins on both the barracks-wide Wi-Fi network, and on his own Wi-Fi network later in his room.

14. ET3 RICH signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure for the collection of his DNA via buccal swabs; Enclosure (B) pertains. ET3 RICH signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure of his MSI brand

15. Subsequent to the completion of this interview, PA accompanied ET3 RICH to his barracks room to facilitate the execution of the signed PASS. During that search, NCIS personnel identified instructional paperwork associated with pregnancy tests in his room. ET3 RICH explained that in approximately MAR25, exact date not recalled, he and V/A.R. had engaged in unprotected sex after consuming alcohol and afterward ET3 RICH could not recall whether he "pulled out" to avoid ejaculating in V/A.R.. ET3 RICH and V/A.R. acquired multiple pregnancy tests from a local CVS, located in the vicinity of the Old Dominion University Campus, and waited approximately two weeks before conducting the tests. ET3 RICH reported that the test results were negative, indicating V/A.R. had not become pregnant from the incident.

On 5 September 2025, CDR Lauren Mayo and LT Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, interviewed ET3 Daniel Rich, USN, in the presence of Ms. Marie Rendell and Special Agent Jessica Gokey, NCIS, at RLSO MIDLANT. The following is a summary of the interaction and is not intended to be verbatim:

ET3 Rich received a call from CS3 A.R. at 0214 on 29 May 2025 that woke him up. He stated she sounded was like she was having a panic attack. She was frantic and crying. She kept repeatedly stating that she needed to be picked up as soon as possible. At some point, a male who he later assumed to be CSSN Copeland, took the phone and asked how far away he was. It was not clear if the phone was passed to him or taken from her. ET3 Rich told the male that he would be there in about 10 minutes. The male replied "all right" and CS3 A.R. was then put back on the phone. She continued to be frantic and repeatedly stated she needed to be picked up. She also told ET3 Rich that she loved him. ET3 Rich hung up after telling her he was on the way.

While the male was on the phone with ET3 Rich, his tone was frantic as well, although not as frantic as CS3 A.R.

CS3 A.R. has had panic attacks in ET3 Rich's presence before. ET3 Rich opined that one possible trigger for her panic attacks would be a sexual advance.

ET3 Rich stated he had previously speculated that CS3 A.R. was outside based solely on the location of her phone according to her shared location. He advised he only believed that he heard car noises in the background because of that belief and that the background noise he heard could very well have been something else.

ET3 Rich also advised he had learned only after speaking with CS3 A.R.'s roommate later on that CS3 A.R. had lost her room key. He did not recall CS3 A.R. mentioning anything to him about having lost her room key or being locked out of her room on the phone call. He only recalled her repeatedly stating that she needed to be picked up.

A separate investigative action of this conversation will not be documented by NCIS.

EVIDENCE

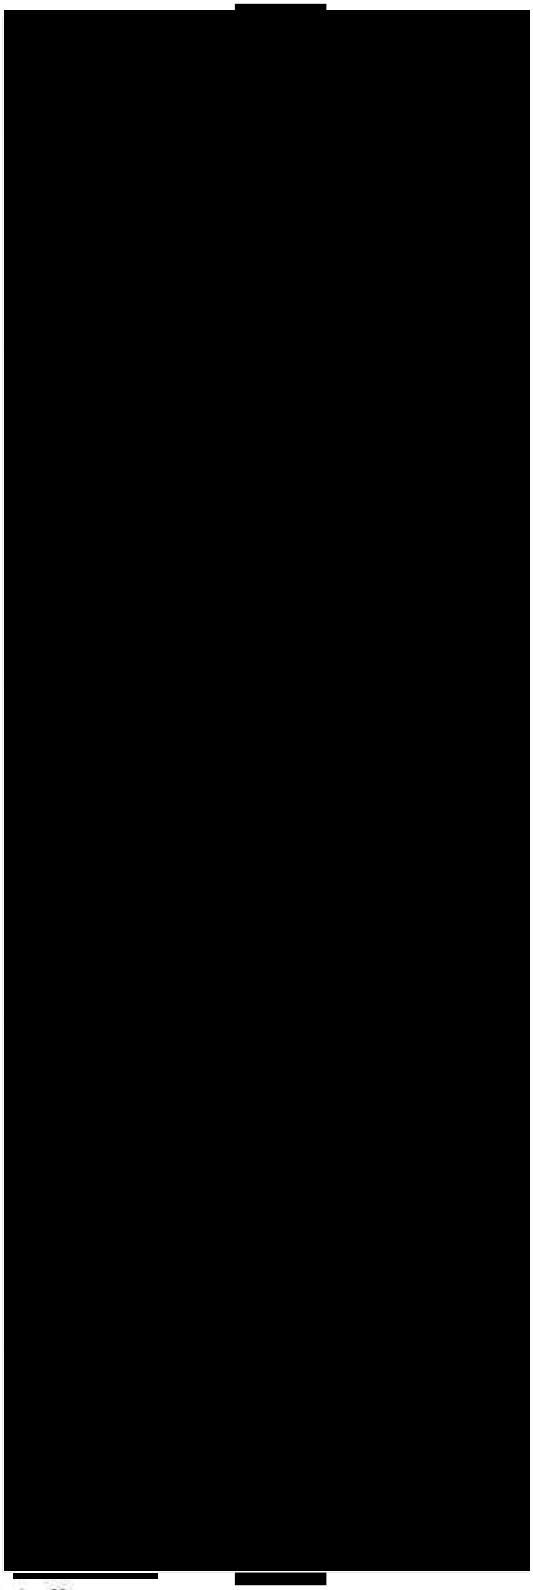
1. On 04Jun25, DFE BUSH obtained the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND maintained on NCIS evidence custody log number NFFO 13Y9L Item XUQP3 for examination from SA Caroline ROBINSON, NCISRA Norfolk, VA.

2. DFE BUSH copied the GrayKey extraction of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND to a Seagate hard drive with serial number Z9A4RSFN. On 12Jun25, DFE BUSH enter the hard drive into evidence under NCIS evidence custody log number NFFO K8J9D Item 8JY7H to the Temporary Evidence Locker, NCISRA Norfolk, VA.

FORENSIC ACQUISITION AND VERIFICATION

1. On 04Jun25, DFE BUSH obtained a full file system extraction of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND using the Graykey Extraction Tool OS version 1.26.3.31482045, App Bundle: 6.3.1.31921520. SA ROBINSON provided DFE BUSH the Personal Identification Number (PIN) 980377 to access the device. The device was isolated from network connectivity via airplane mode and could not be write-protected due to established forensic processes. The digital forensic extraction was verified through established forensic processes.

WORKING COPY



1. On 05Jun25, SDFE DAVISON obtained a working copy of the Graykey extraction of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND from DFE BUSH for examination.

EXAMINATION DETAILS

1. Between 05Jun25 and 08Aug25, SDFE DAVISON conducted a digital forensic examination of an iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND using Magnet Axiom Version 9.2.1.44383, Magnet Axiom Version 9.4.1.45125, Cellebrite Inseyets Physical Analyzer version 10.5.0.1027, and ILEAPP version 2.2.0. The Apple ID associated with the iPhone 15 Pro Max listed as [redacted]and the Directory Services Identifier (DSID) listed as 17163425203. A DSID is a unique numerical value associated with an Apple ID account to ensure each account has a unique number in case a user changes an email address associated with an Apple account. The phone number associated with device is [redacted]PII-4307 and the device phone name is listed as "Jermiah's iPhone." SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshot from the device information displayed in Axiom and took a screenshot of the Graykey Extraction report.

COMMUNICATIONS WITH V/ A. R. CELLULAR PHONE

1. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted the entire text history between the user of iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND and phone number PII -0672 identified as belonging V/ A. R. The text history starts on 24Feb25 with the last text sent by the user of iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND on 01Jun25, at 7:01:42 PM. The text messages sent by iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND on 01Jun25, were not received nor read by the user of the cellular phone belonging V/ A. R. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots displayed in Axiom that are excerpts from the entire text history.

2. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted the entire call log history between the user of iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND and phone number [redacted] dentified as belonging V/ A. R. The last successful phone call occurred on 28May25, at 8:56:42 PM, with a call duration of 11 minutes and 15 seconds. The two outgoing phone calls on 01Jun25, at 07:02 AM, are listed as answered for 5 and 6 seconds. SDFE DAVISON also noted this anomaly on other devices examined attempting to communicate to V/ A. R. cellular phone. However, T-Mobile cellular records confirmed V/ A. R. cellular phone was not connected to the carrier's network at this time. Record number 7 and 8 should reflect unanswered. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots as displayed in Axiom.

MARKED LOCATION IMAGE FILES

1. ON 09Jun25, SDFE DAVISON located and extract two image files during the examination of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The image files named IMG_2621.PNG and IMG_2622.PNG are located in the \private\var\mobile\Media\DCIM\132APPLE directory of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The image file named IMG_2621.PNG appears to be a screenshot of an Apple maps App with the street name Cary Ave visible in the image. The device also appears to be in Airplane mode and time of day is 05:15 according to the visible image. The blue circle appears to be the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND and appears to be facing towards the house on Cary Ave. The following are the image files containing the screenshots named IMG_2621.PNG and IMG_2622.PNG in order.

2. The examination revealed the image files named IMG_2621.PNG and IMG_2622.PNG are located in the \private\var\mobile\Media\DCIM\132APPLE directory of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The directory \private\var\mobile\Media\DCIM\ and its subdirectories are the default location where all user created images and videos are stored on an Apple iPhone. The DCIM folder is also the default location for screenshots taken and saved by an iPhone user. The user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND either purposely or accidentally took the screenshot named IMG_2621.PNG on 02Jun25, at 5:15:21 AM. The user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND either purposely or accidentally took the screenshot named IMG_2622.PNG on 02Jun25, at 5:15:25 AM. SCREENSHOT SERVICES

1. SDFE DAVISON recovered and extracted four Adobe Acrobat files and one plist file during the examination of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The examination revealed the iPhone's operating system (iOS) created four temporary Adobe Acrobat files in the directory \private\var\mobile\Containers\Data\Application\563F7D58-5717-4071-9581-1E918177BF20\tmp\ during the creation of the image files IMG_2621.PNG and IMG_2622.PNG identified above. The device's iOS created the files on 02Jun25, at 5:15:21 AM, and 5:15:25. AM, as a result of the screenshot services for iOS. Axiom recovered the files as a result of carving which in this case is a result of a deleted temporary file. The file names and date/time stamps are the original data associated with the files. Axiom carved and recovered the actual data contained within the file which in this case consists of images used to create the screenshots named IMG_2621.PNG and IMG_2622.PNG. Apple uses plist files to store structured data for App configuration settings, user preference settings, data serialization, and system settings. The plist file named, “com.apple.mobile_container_manager.metadata.plist” in the directory zip\private\var\mobile\Containers\Data\Application \563F7D58-5717-4071-9581-1E918177BF20\ contains data for screenshot services. HEALTH DATA FOCUS 02JUN25

1. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted health data to include Apple Health Floors, Apple Health Steps, Apple Heart Rate, Apple Resting Heart Rate, Apple Watch Worn hours, and Apple Health Distance during the examination of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. SDFE Davison saved the data for Apple Health Floors, Apple Health Steps, and Apple Health Distance from 28May25, at approximately 9:00PM, until 02Jun25, at approximately 6:00AM. SDFE DAVISON also saved the Apple Heart Rate from 28May25, at approximately 8:00PM, until the last entry on 29May25, at 12:29:33 PM. SDFE DAVISON saved the Apple Resting Heart Rate history from 13May25 to 29May25 at 12:29:33 PM. SDFE DAVISON saved the health data to the folder named "(a) Health Data" on the FINDINGS MEDIA. The folder contains a Microsoft Excel spreadsheet named "Health Data.xlsx" which contains the report. The examination revealed the Apple Watch SE (2nd generation) Cellular - 40mm was paired with the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND while the last recorded data was on 29May25, at 12:29:33 PM. The Apple Watch SE (2nd generation) Cellular - 40mm appears not to be worn by a user associated with the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND after this date/time. SDFE DAVISON created a timeline analysis of the heath data recorded on 02Jun25 from 3:45:10 AM to 5:57:20 AM. The user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND walked 365 steps for a distance of 78.85 meters or 258 feet and 8.3307 inches on 02Jun25, between 05:02:25 AM and 05:12:14AM. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the health data.

EXAMINER'S NOTE: The date/time stamps recorded on Apple iPhones health data like steps and distance are generally accurate. However, the date/time stamps may not always be precise as delays and discrepancies can occur. Therefore, the specific date/time stamps below may not accurately reflect the precise date/time of a specific activity due to the way Apple iPhones record health data.

GEOLOCATION DATA 02JUN25 0400-0600

1. On 09Jun25, SDFE DAVISON located geolocation data during the examination of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The examination revealed a cached location recorded on the device on 02Jun25, at 5:14:51 AM, with a latitude of 36.8586915425567 and a longitude of -76.2544464206239. SDFE DAVISON visited the website https://www.gps-coordinates.net/ to determine an approximate address of the latitude and longitude coordinates. The website resolved the coordinates near the address 2842 Cary Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23504. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom and the data displayed in the website https://www.gps-coordinates.net/.

2. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted 4982 location and travel artifacts during the examination of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The location and travel artifacts consist of Apple Map Searches, Apple Map Trips, Cached Locations, Significant Locations, and Significant Location Visits with a time filtered for 02Jun25, between 04:00 AM and 06:00 AM. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom.

3. The examination of the 4982 location and travel artifacts revealed a route the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND traveled on 02Jun25, between 04:00 AM and 06:00 AM. SDFE DAVISON created three route videos using Axiom Route View. SDFE DAVISON exported and saved the three videos to a folder named "(b) Geolocations" on the FINDINGS MEDIA. The video file named "route_export_part1.mp4" represents the first portion of the route traveled by the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The first portion of the route starts on 02Jun25, at 04:00 AM and ends at 04:32 AM. Between 4:18 AM (end of red route) and 4:29 AM (start of pink route), the precise location and route traveled by the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND is unknown since the device did not record enough geolocation data during this timeframe. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom.

4. The video file named "route_export_part2.mp4" represents the second portion of the route traveled by the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The second portion of the route starts on 02Jun25, at 04:32 AM, and ends at 05:16 AM. While the device was traveling, the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND conducting a search for Parks in Norfolk and Trails in Norfolk. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom.

5. The examination of the second portion revealed the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND traveled on West 27th Street, Norfolk, by the Langley Federal Credit Union, 2701 Hampton Blvd, Norfolk, VA, on 02Jun25, at approximately 04:36 AM. The device continued to travel on Bowdens Ferry Road, Norfolk, VA, then onto West 25th Street, Norfolk, VA. The device started to travel South again on Hampton Blvd starting at approximately 04:40 AM. The fluctuations in the blue lines are location and travel artifacts with varying geolocation accuracy. An examiner must rely on all of the available data to rebuild an accurate picture of a route traveled. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom.

6. On 13Jun25, Investigative Analyst (IA) Mary OAKLEY, NCISRA Yorktown, VA, provided SDFE DAVSION an image from the Vigilant Database System, which she received from the Newport News Police Department, VA. The image shows a white vehicle with temporary Virginia License plate number PII taken on 02Jun25, at 04:40:44AM. The picture was taken near West 25th street and Hampton Blvd, Norfolk, VA. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the image file.

7. The examination of the second portion also revealed the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND traveled on Granby Street, Norfolk, on 02Jun25, at approximately 04:45 AM. The device continued to travel on College Place, Norfolk, VA, then onto Boush Street, Norfolk, VA. The device started to travel East again on West Brambleton Ave, Norfolk, starting approximately 04:48 AM. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom.

8. The examination of the second portion also revealed the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND entered Merrimac Ave, Norfolk, VA, near the Broad Creek Apartments on 02Jun25, at approximately 04:56 AM. The device traveled around the residential area until appearing to stop behind 2852 Cary Ave, Norfolk, VA, on 02Jun25, at approximately 05:00 AM. According to the health data reported above, the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND began to record health data steps and distance on 02Jun25, at approximately 05:02:25 AM. The light blue circles with the white numbers in the images below represent the number of location and travel artifacts records in the area. The lower the number of artifacts represents the lower confidence in the data to place a device in a specific area. Conversely, the higher the number of artifacts represents the higher confidence in the data to place a device in a specific area. The examination revealed the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND recorded 635 location and travel artifacts on 02Jun25, between 5:00:11 AM and 5:15:42 AM, near the area of 2852 Cary Ave, Norfolk, VA. Based on the extremely high number of 635 location and travel artifacts, the examination revealed with extremely high confidence the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND was in this location on 02Jun25, between 5:00:11 AM and 5:15:42 AM. SDFE DAVISON took screenshots of the data as displayed in Axiom and the video.

9. The examination revealed the first artifact recorded in the area was a cached location recorded on the device on 02Jun25, at 5:00:11 AM, with a latitude of 36.8586565668269 and a longitude of -76.2542549822841. SDFE DAVISON visited the website https://www.gps-coordinates.net/ to determine an approximate address of the latitude and longitude coordinates. The website resolved the coordinates near the address 2852 Cary Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23504. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom and the data displayed in the website https://www.gps-coordinates.net/.

SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom.

15. The examination of the third portion revealed the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND traveled and entered Gate 2 NAS Norfolk, VA, on 02Jun25, at approximately 05:42 AM. SDFE DAVISON took a screenshot of the data as displayed in Axiom.

MARKED LOCATION TIMELINE

1. SDFE DAVISON located and exported timeline data concerning when the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND tagged the geolocation coordinates with the longitude 36.858536 and latitude -76.256816. The coordinates are displayed in the screenshot in the image file named IMG_2621.PNG identified above although the screenshot was not captured until later. The geolocation coordinates resolve to the wooded area in the vicinity of 2852 Cary Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23504. SDFE DAVISON saved all timeline location data to a folder named (c) Tagged Location Data on the FINDINGS MEDIA. The folder contains a Microsoft Excel file named, "Marked location Timeline Analysis.xlsx" which consists of the timeline report. The examination revealed that on 02Jun25, at 4:47:13 AM, the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND was located approximately near the corner of College Place and Boush Street, Norfolk, VA. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots as display in Axiom.

LOCKED AND UNLOCKED STATES

1. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted all locked and unlocked events logged on the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND between 28May25, at 8:56:20 PM, and 02Jun25, at 6:54:32 AM. SDFE DAVISON color coded all events in the file named "Biome Keybag Lock States 28May_2Jun25.xlsx" for viewing purposes of this report. SDFE DAVISON created the color legend below to represent locked and unlocked states. The examination disclosed the phone was in a locked state for more than one hour for a total of 24 hours, 34 minutes and, 56 seconds between 28May25, at 8:56:20 PM, to 02Jun25, at 6:54:32 AM. SDFE DAVISON also filtered the times in a Microsoft Excel spreadsheet and took the following screenshot.

TIMELINE ANALYSIS 29MAY25

1. SDFE DAVISON conducted a timeline analysis of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND for all events occurring on 29May25, between 1:50:16 AM and 1:12:01 PM. A timeline analysis of all device events is an extremely complex process, and a digital forensic examiner must report all pertinent data and user activity. However, a digital forensic examiner cannot report all data which occurs on the device since a report will not be represented in a clear and concise manner. The iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND recorded over 15,000 pieces of data for all events occurring on the device on 29May25, between 1:50:16 AM and 1:12:01 PM. All 15,000 pieces of data are available upon request. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted 1,371 pieces of data during the timeline analysis of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. SDFE DAVISON saved the data to a folder named "(d) 29May25 Timeline" on the FINDINGS MEDIA. The folder contains a Microsoft Excel spreadsheet named "29May25 Timeline Items.xlsx" and an Adobe Acrobat file named "report.pdf." Axiom created the Adobe Acrobat file and the Microsoft Excel spreadsheet based on items tagged by SDFE DAVISON. SDFE DAVISON edited the Microsoft Excel to assist in viewing purposes of this report. SDFE DAVISON also created a color legend to assist in identifying different types of data in the report. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshot as display in the Excel spreadsheet.

2. The examination of all timeline events for 29May25, revealed the device was located near Willis Manor X-2, Norfolk, VA, based on Geolocation data. The device appeared to remain in the area of Willis Manor X-2 until the completion of the timeline analysis at approximately 1:15PM. SDFE DAVISON tagged four geolocation points between 1:59:12 AM, and 11:00:08 AM, as a part of the timeline analysis; however, the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND recorded 4,021 geolocation points with the overwhelming majority near Willis Manor X-2. The examination revealed the 3921 Cached Locations recorded on the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND were near Willis Manor X-2. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots as displayed in Axiom.

5. Between 7:41:56 AM and 7:52:55 AM, the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND was using the Twitter App. While the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND was using twitter, the device received two incoming FaceTime audio calls and one cellular phone call from the phone number [redacted] The user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND did not answer the phone calls while on the Twitter app. At 7:53:04 AM, the user then switched to the Snapchat App and appears to switch between the use of the iPhone's back camera to the front camera in the Snapchat App at 7:53:17 AM. The examination revealed the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND appears to take two pictures while using Snapchat based on the camera being active and the .jpg file extension. Snapchat saved the images named A4FF562B-4659-4E70-83E4-F07433AF8A8C.jpg and A5BD5969-9F93-4394-BD12-5A4FB27937C3.jpg. The user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND then replied to Snapchat user nam [redacted] at 7:53:55 AM. This reply was the last communication send by the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND until 12:44:35 PM when the user called the phone numbe [redacted]. The user then switched back to the Twitter App between 7:54:14 AM and 7:55:10 AM. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots as displayed in Axiom and the 29May25 Timeline Excel spreadsheet.

8. The examination revealed the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND unlocked the device using either the phone's facial biometrics or the PIN on 29May25, between 9:33:44 AM and 11:31:56 AM. The device remained in an unlocked state for 1 hour, 58 minutes, and 12 seconds. At 9:33:56 AM, the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND started using the Apple Photos App to view pornography for three seconds until putting the App in the background at 9:33:59 AM. Between 9:34:00 AM and 9:34:18 AM, the user then briefly switched to the Snapchat App for six seconds, then switched briefly to the Apple iMessage app for seven seconds, then switched again back to Snapchat App for two seconds, then switched back again to the Apple iMessage app for three seconds. The user did not respond to any previously received messages. The user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND did access two pictures in the Snapchat App at 9:34:01AM. The image file named 64A9B299-1EEB-7C3C-AE7F-21A6884B13F0.png is a thumbnail image created on the device at 9:34:01 AM. The file is located in the private\var\mobile\Library\Intents\Images\ directory. The purpose of the directory and this thumbnail appears to enable apps like Snapchat to integrate with iOS system features like Siri, shortcuts, and Spotlight. Specifically, this directory holds images associated with intent-related actions, such as group chat display thumbnails, or other visual assets that apps donate to the system for use in contextual suggestions. The original image appeared to be previously uploaded to the Snapchat app as the device's camera was not turned on for use with the Snapchat app until 9:34:13AM, and the file is saved as a .png file extension. The file named ba84c31cd6397c15534c237a861d177d was accessed on the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND at 9:34:01 AM, which appears to indicate the user accessed the Snapchat message from the user name "angelina244506." The snapchat message history was not recovered during the examination. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots displayed in Axiom in chronological order.

9. Between 9:34:18 AM and 11:31:47 AM, the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND used the Apple Photos App to view adult pornography. The user viewed both pornographic images and videos during this timeframe and previously viewed adult pornography between 7:55:12 AM until 9:33:56 AM except for interruptions identified above. The user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND viewed pornography primarily from videos and images saved to the device by the user in the \private\var\mobile\Media\DCIM\ subdirectories and from the iCloud account for the Apple ID listed as [redacted] The user also watched a small number of adult pornographic videos on Twitter and Tiktok. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted the adult pornographic images and videos to the folder named "(e) Pornography" on the FINDINGS MEDIA. The folder contains a file name "report.pdf" which consists of the main page of the report. The examination also revealed the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND started charging the phone at 11:08:17 AM until 12:12:27 PM. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshot as displayed in Axiom.

10. The examination revealed the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND viewed pornographic videos related to the iCloud account for the Apple ID listed as [redacted]. The iCloud videos cannot be viewed when exported from Axiom as iOS appears to store the files as a compound file or concatenated file. A compound file or concatenated file is a single file that actually contains two or more different types of files inside. A compound file or concatenated file is not intended for an individual to interact with the file and is usually used for internal use or system integration. iOS in this case appears to use the compound file or concatenated file to allow Apple Photos App to view videos stored in an iCloud account. The compound files or concatenated files in this case contain a plist file followed by a video file. As identified above, Apple uses plist files to store structured data for App configuration settings, user preference settings, data serialization, and system settings. The user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND watched 35 pornographic videos from the iCloud account. The file names all start with naming convention "CachedMedia-" followed by numbers and/or letters. The files are all stored in the directory \private\var\mobile\Media\PhotoData\PhotoCloudSharingData\Caches\CachedMedia. A small number of the CacheMedia files were corrupt and could not be recovered. However, the file name associated with those files in the plist file resolves back to image files on the system associated with adult pornography. SDFE DAVSION manually carved 12 files to provide a representative sample of the pornography viewed by the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. SDFE DAVISON also provided two files which were corrupt and could not be carved; however, SDFE DAVISON provided the image files resident on the device which resolved back to the files named in the plist file. SDFE DAVISON saved the files to a folder named "(f) Compound Files" on the FINDINGS MEDIA. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots as displayed in Axiom to show the manual carving process.

GEOLOCATION DATA

1. The examination revealed the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND did not contain any geolocation data other than locations near Willis Manor X-2 between 29-31May25. The geolocation data does not include cell tower data identified below. The Cached locations being considered for this assessment are based on accuracy measurements of 2 to 4 meters. The examination revealed two geolocations recorded in the device near the Vista Point Center, NSA Norfolk, on 30May25. However, the accuracy for each logged Cached location had an accuracy of over 2774 meters and are not considered accurate visited locations. The examination also disclosed a significant number of the 2316 Cached locations on 30May25 are over 800 meters and are not considered accurate visited locations. The examination also revealed a significant number of Cached Locations on 31May25 had large accuracy measurements and are not considered accurate visited locations. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots as displayed in Axiom.

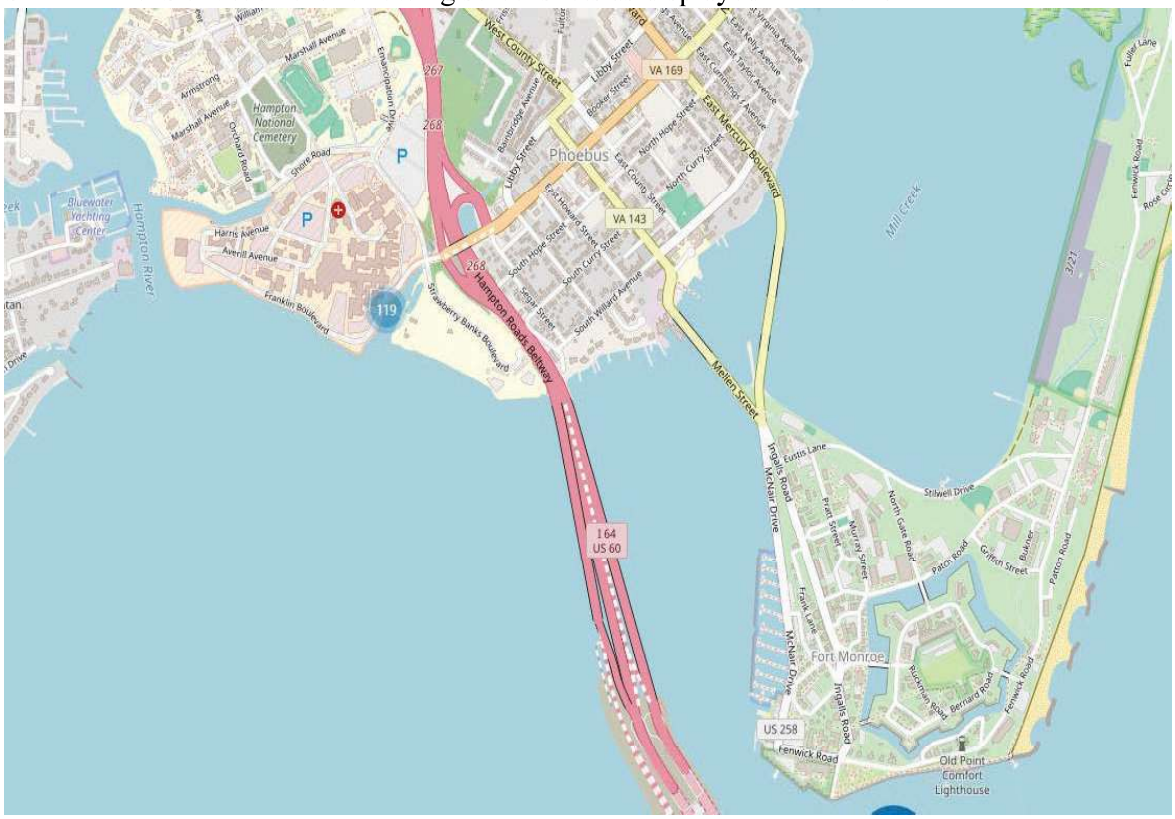
30May25 Geolocations



31May25 Geolocations

2. The examination revealed the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND recorded 119 Cached locations near Hampton, VA, on 01Jun25, between 12:12:31 PM and 12:21:23 PM. The exact location in Hampton cannot be determined as the accuracy of the Cached locations are between 2205 and 2206 meters which is approximately 1.3 miles. Based on the I-64 Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel being 3.5-mile corridor according to Wikipedia.org, the geolocations appear to be somewhere in Hampton, VA. The geolocation data for this timeframe did not contain enough data to determine routes and specific locations. Additionally, the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND recorded cached locations near Willis Manor X-2 within several milliseconds and seconds of the cached locations recorded in Hampton, VA. The examination revealed the Apple Watch SE (2nd generation) Cellular - 40mm identified above appears to record the geolocations near Willis Manor X-2 during this timeframe. The examination revealed the Apple Watch SE (2nd generation) Cellular - 40mm appears to be turned on and kept on a charger between 30May25, at 5:57:36 PM and 04Jun25, at 3:46:25 PM. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots as displayed in Axiom.

CELL TOWER DATA

1. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted 467 cell tower connections during the examination of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The examination revealed the cell tower date/time stamps are inaccurate as iOS appears to write cell tower connections to the database file named "cache_encryptedB.db" in a batch operation. The examination revealed the system does not write at any specific time during the day; however, the iOS appears to write the cell tower data to the database when determined by a process in the location services. If exact date/time stamps are needed for cell tower data, the data should be obtained through AT+T which appears to be the service carrier for this device. The examination revealed the only cell tower connection data still resident on the device is between 31May25, at 6:27:40 AM until 03Jun25, at 6:06:04 PM. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshot as displayed in Axiom.

2. The examination revealed the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND logged cell tower connections in a batch operation two times on 31May25, at 6:27:40 AM and at 8:03:11PM. The examination revealed the device maintained one cell tower connection record at 6:27:40 AM. The cell tower for this time was recorded in Norfolk Naval Base. The examination revealed the device maintained 100 cell tower connection records at 8:03:11PM. The cell tower connections for all 100 entries were recorded in Hampton, VA. SDFE DAVISON uploaded the latitude and longitude coordinates into google maps for the 8:03:11PM entries. The examination of cached locations identified above did not disclose any locations other than locations near Willis Manor X-2. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshots as displayed in Physical Analyzer and as displayed in Google Maps.

LUGGAGE IMAGE FILES

1. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted three thumbnail images during the examination of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The iPhone appears to name all the thumbnail images with the same of name of "5005.jpg." Each thumbnail image is located in the corresponding subdirectories of the \private\var\mobile\Media\PhotoData\Thumbnails\V2\DCIM\101APPLE\ directory. The specific directory in which the thumbnail file named "5005.jpg" resides contains the original file name of the image, movie, or Apple's live files. The three original file names from each thumbnail image resolves back to IMG_1111.HEIC, IMG_1114.HEIC, and IMG_1112.mov. SDFE DAVISON conducted a search for each original file, however, the examination did not recover the original files. SDFE DAVISON inserted the thumbnail files directly into this document.

2. The thumbnail files for IMG_1111.HEIC and IMG_1114.HEIC were created on 29Dec23. The thumbnail file for IMG_1112.mov was created on 08Jun24. The examination revealed the thumbnail file for IMG_1112.mov appears to be created due to the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND accessing and downloaded the original file in an iCloud account since the image is visually similar to the file IMG_1111.HEIC and the file is consecutively named to IMG_1112. All three thumbnails were last accessed on 05Jun25, at exactly 8:46:21 AM. All of 627 thumbnails in the \private\var\mobile\Media\PhotoData\Thumbnails\V2\DCIM\101APPLE\ directory and its subdirectories were accessed on 05Jun25, between 8:46:21 AM and 8:46:23 AM. The examination revealed an automated process accessed the files and is most likely contributed to an iCloud backup. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshot as displayed in Axiom.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

Arrange and bind the record of trial with allied papers in the sequence indicated below. The court reporter is responsible for certifying the record of trial prior to transmittal for appellate review, in accordance with R.C.M. 1112 and JAG/CNLSCINST 5813.1G.

1. Pages 1 (Cover page) and 2 (Chronology Sheet) of DD Form 490 (enclosure 7).

2. Court reporter certification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

3. Military Judge verification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

4. DD Form 490 (pages 3-6 and any continuation pages if needed) (enclosure 7).

5. Completed Post-Trial Checklist from JAG/CNLSCINST 5814.1G (enclosure 2).

6. Completed Convening Authority's Action Checklist (enclosure 4).

7. Post-Trial Documents.

a. Certificates/Proof of Service of the Certified Record of Trial to the accused and victim, if applicable (enclosure 7).

b. Convening Authority's Action and Entry of Judgment (enclosure 6).

c. Any requests for copies of the court-martial record pursuant to R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A (attach written requests, and any certificates/proof of service, but do not attach the victim's post-trial rights advisement or DD Form 2704).

d. Matters submitted by the accused and/or victim under R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A, or any written waiver of the right to submit such matters. Include all responses to requests here as well.

e. Any deferment request and the action on it (including any request to waive automatic forfeitures under Article 58b).

f. Conditions of suspension and proof of service on probationer under R.C.M. 1107, if any.

g. All clemency recommendations by members or military judge, if any.

h. Statement of Trial Results (enclosure 1).

i. Crime Reporting Information.

j. Accused's request for appellate defense counsel, or waiver/withdrawal of appellate review under R.C.M. 1115, if applicable.

k. All transfer orders, confinement orders, and excess leave orders.

l. Briefs of counsel submitted after trial, if any.

8. Preliminary Hearing.

a. DD Form 457, Preliminary Hearing Officer's Report, pursuant to Article 32, if such hearing was conducted, followed by any other allied papers that accompanied the charges when referred for trial (including any matters submitted under R.C.M. 405(l), unless included elsewhere in the record of trial).*

b. Waiver of Article 32 Hearing (if applicable).

9. Pre-Trial Allied Papers.

a. Convening Order and all amending convening orders.

b. DD Form 458, Charge Sheet (unless included at the point of arraignment in the transcript).

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

c. Congressional inquiries and replies, if any.

d. Advice of staff judge advocate, when prepared pursuant to Article 34 or otherwise.

10. Record of Proceedings.

a. Substantially verbatim recording of court-martial proceedings. Segregate open and closed sessions of the court-martial in accordance with R.C.M. 1113 and the following guidance:*

b. Ensure that each closed session of the court-martial is recorded on a separate DVD marked CLOSED SESSION, placed in its own envelope marked CLOSED SESSION, and sealed.

c. Label all DVD(s) and envelopes with the information on page 1 of this template.

d. Mark all DVDs and envelopes with "1 of X." as necessary (for example, the second DVD of six DVDs and its envelope should be marked, 2 of 6). All DVDs of open sessions may be in one envelope.

e. Mark all DVDs with their beginning and ending timestamps. The timestamps for closed sessions should match those shown on the Index.

f. Verbatim transcript or summarized report prepared in accordance with JAGINST 5814.1G. Include the following:

I. A certificate of correction, if any (including any supplemental certification for additional proceedings).

II. Court reporter and transcriptionist certification of verbatim transcript.

g. Records of former proceedings (Article 30a) and/or trials, (e.g., electronic/digital record of former proceeding, including audio recording and any scanned documentation/transcripts, CD/DVD format).*

11. Prosecution exhibits admitted in evidence.

12. Defense Exhibits admitted in evidence.

13. Appellate Exhibits including but not limited to, proposed instructions, written offers of proof or preliminary evidence (real or documentary), briefs of counsel submitted at trial, request to be tried by military judge alone (if any), the accused election of members under R.C.M. 903 (if any), any statement by convening authority required under R.C.M. 503(a)(2), and the election for sentencing by members in lieu of sentencing by military judge under R.C.M. 1002(b).*

14. Redaction. The following information shall be redacted in accordance with JAGMAN 1059 from the record of trial prior to releasing it to any accused or victim (including any transcript made pursuant to R.C.M. 1114 and attached to the record of trial) unless the information establishes an element of an offense, or is otherwise required:

a. Any recordings of closed sessions, any transcripts of closed sessions, and any sealed exhibits.

b. Names of minor victims, and names of minor witnesses. If an identifier is used, use only the initials.

c. Social Security Numbers.

d. Financial account information.

e. Home addresses.

f. Telephone numbers.

g. Personal e-mail addresses.

h. Dates of birth.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

i. Any other information that could be used to identify a specific person other than the accused.

*If the report of preliminary hearing or record of trial contains exhibits, proceedings, or other materials ordered sealed by the preliminary hearing officer or military judge, counsel for the Government, the court reporter, or trial counsel shall cause such materials to be sealed to prevent unauthorized examination or disclosure, pursuant to R.C.M. 1113. Sealed material shall be properly marked, individually placed in separate envelopes with a copy of the preliminary hearing officer or military judge sealing order affixed to it, and inserted at the appropriate place in the record of trial. Do not duplicate sealed material to include it in any copy of the record of trial. Instead, insert a copy of the sealing order in lieu of any sealed material, in any copies of the record of trial.

DIVIDERS ARE NOT NECESSARY TO SEPARATE EACH SECTION. IF USED, THEY CAN BE PAPER RATHER THAN CARD STOCK. IF A PARTICULAR COMPONENT IS NOT APPLICABLE IN THE RECORD OF TRIAL, SUCH AS AN ARTICLE 32 HEARING, EXHIBITS NOT ADMITTED, POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND VACATION HEARINGS, DO NOT INSERT A DIVIDER OR PLACEHOLDER.

FRONT AND BACK COVER MUST BE ON BLUE CARDS STOCK AND LABELED WITH GUM LABELS.

Binding. Each volume of a record of trial should be no more than 1.5 inches thick and bound at the top with metal or plastic fasteners. DO NOT interlace or "piggy-back" prong fasteners to create an oversized volume. DO NOT place hole punches where it covers up the evidence or language in the transcript. When it becomes necessary to assemble the record of trial in more than one volume, the volumes will be numbered consecutively, on the front cover, as illustrated below:

Volume 1 of 4 (Pages 1-250)
Volume 2 of 4 (Pages 251-400)
Volume 3 of 4 (Pages 401-652)
Volume 4 of 4 (Pages 653-901 and Exhibits)

Make the first volume of a multi-volume record an inch thick or smaller to allow for inclusion of post-trial documents. Limit subsequent volumes to 1.5 inches, unless dividing them requires assembling an additional volume smaller than a half inch.

Label the upper right-hand corner or the Preparation and Certification of Record of Trial Form (enclosure (8)) to reflect which copy it is, i.e., "ORIGINAL," "ACCUSED," "REVIEW" etc.

[redacted] PII

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF PSSN IRBIN GORDILLOCRUZ, USN

1. On 03JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (RA) Fritzner PHILEMON conducted an interview of PSSN Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, USN, Airborne Command and Control Squadron 124 (VAW-124) in regards to his knowledge of this investigation. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ is one of 4 roommates of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95).

3. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated he returned to his barracks room at approximately 0400 on 28JUN25. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ had been on leave and flew back to Norfolk at approximately 0300. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated upon his return he walked into the common area of the room and noticed all the lights were off. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated he did not see or notice anyone on the couch or the floor of the common room area. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ admitted he was exhausted and was really only focused on going to sleep.

4. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated he woke up for work at approximately 0620 and exited his room at approximately 0645 with his roommate, AR John CALISSE, and they both noticed two individuals laying on the ground near the couch opposite their room. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated the female was laying on her back with her breasts exposed and her chest was rising and falling. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ further described the female as dark skin and having curly hair. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated he had never seen this female but did believe she was in the Navy. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ described his roommate, S/COPELAND, was naked and was laying with his head on the females stomach. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated he and CALISSE had to maneuver around the two laying on the ground to get to the front door.

5. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated on Saturday, 31MAY25, and Sunday, 01JUN25, he had been woken up in the morning by base security trying to locate S/COPELAND. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated on 01JUN25, base security had arrived and told S/COPELAND he had to check in with his Command due to him being UA. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated S/COPELAND, CALISSE, and himself went to DDG-95, utilizing CALISSE's vehicle. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ continued saying, S/COPELAND had to check into the Command and do a urinalysis test. Afterwards, they all went to Chipotle for food and returned to the barracks. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated it was around sunset when they all went to DDG-95.

6. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated after returning from Chipotle, S/COPELAND asked to borrow CALISSE's vehicle to "go get food". PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated that was strange because they had all just eaten. PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ stated he did not see S/COPELAND again until approximately 0630 on 02JUN25, when he and CALISSE were attempting to go to work and S/COPELAND had not come back with the vehicle.

7. No further information was obtained.

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
M/B/NEE3/[redacted PII]

RESULTS OF SECONDARY INTERVIEW OF YN3 SEAN MONAGHAN, USN

1. On 09Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Investigator (PI) Tyler MANN conducted an interview of YN3 Sean MONAGHAN, USN, Helicopter Mine Countermeasures Squadron 12 (HM 12), pursuant to the missing person investigation involving [redacted V/A.R.] [redacted V/A.R.] USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).

2. The interview of YN3 MONAGHAN was recorded using an audio/visual recording system, and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. As background, YN3 MONAGHAN is the roommate of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, who was the last known individual to see [redacted V/A.R.] before she went missing. It is believed [redacted V/A.R.] was last seen in the room shared by S/COPELAND and YN3 MONAGHAN.

4. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed on Wednesday, 28May25, he arrived at his barracks room around 1900 from traveling back home to New Jersey. YN3 MONAGHAN stated when he arrived, he did not see anyone in the room. YN3 MONAGHAN continued S/COPELAND got home that night around 2200; however, YN3 MONAGHAN stated he had watch early the next morning, so he was already half asleep. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed he does remember seeing a lighter-skinned female with short hair; however, he did not recognize her, nor did he know who she was. YN3 MONAGHAN stated on Thursday, 29May25, he woke up around 0500 to get ready for work, and he noticed no one was in his room. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he walked out into their common space at approximately 0640 and observed S/COPELAND asleep on the floor of the living room in his underwear with a girl he did not recognize. Of note, YN3 MONAGHAN was shown a picture of [redacted V/A.R.] by PA; however, he relayed he did not get a good enough look at the individual on the floor to positively identify her as [redacted V/A.R.] YN3 MONAGHAN stated he returned from work around 1300, and no one was in the room. YN3 MONAGHAN stated, around 2000, he saw S/COPELAND and asked him if him and the female from that morning had been naked, to which S/COPELAND relayed they had been in their underwear. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he saw S/COPELAND again that night in the common space around 2200 when he went to make food. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed S/COPELAND did sleep in their room that night.

5. YN3 MONAGHAN stated on Friday, 30May25, he woke up around 0600 when

S/COPELAND left and then woke up again around 0900 when a representative (NFI) from S/COPELAND's Command came looking for him; however, he was not in the room. YN3 MONAGHAN stated the next time he saw S/COPELAND was when he returned to the room around 2200-2300. YN3 MONAGHAN confirmed S/COPELAND slept in their room that night.

6. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed on Saturday, 31May25, he noticed S/COPELAND left early in the morning again, although he was not sure what time. YN3 MONAGHAN continued he was woken up at approximately 1200, when the Masters-at-Arms (MAs) came looking for S/COPELAND and again, he was not in the room. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed S/COPELAND returned to the room late at night again; however, he was not sure of the exact time.

7. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed on Sunday, 01Jun25, S/COPELAND received a call from his command around 1000, needing him to come in to work. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he was unsure how S/COPELAND got to work that day. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed S/COPELAND returned to the room at approximately 2200-2300.

8. YN3 MONAGHAN stated on Monday, 02Jun25, he was questioned by the "homicide unit" while at work and on Tuesday, 03Jun25, NCIS "raided" their barracks room and took S/COPELAND. YN3 MONAGHAN stated, following the "raid" by NCIS, he asked S/COPELAND what NCIS was looking for, to which S/COPELAND responded, "I don't know, they're tripping." YN3 MONAGHAN relayed on Monday he noticed S/COPELAND was very skittish. YN3 MONAGHAN explained he walked into their room and when he opened the door, S/COPELAND looked startled and stated, "Oh, you scared me."

9. YN3 MONAGHAN stated S/COPELAND does have a car; however, it gets repairs done to it a lot. YN3 MONAGHAN stated S/COPELAND's "crazy ex slashed the tires." YN3 MONAGHAN described the car as being small, rectangular, and black with four doors. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed he drives a 2011 Toyota Camry with a New Jersey license plate number PII. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he has never let S/COPELAND borrow his car nor has he ever given him permission to use his car for any reason. YN3 MONAGHAN revealed he does leave his keys in places S/COPELAND could access them, usually on his desk in their room. YN3 MONAGHAN stated on 03Jun25, he did believe his car had moved parking spots and was so suspicious about the incident he texted his mom.

10. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed he did see S/COPELAND with a rolling suitcase a couple months ago. YN3 MONAGHAN described the suitcase as one that came up to his thigh, black, and had a handle for wheeling around. YN3 MONAGHAN stated S/COPELAND usually kept this suitcase locked in his closet; however, stated he had not seen it in "awhile."

11. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed he has not noticed anything in their room being out of place. YN3 MONAGHAN stated he deep cleaned their room on Monday, 02Jun25, where he noticed the bathmat in front of the toilet had a stain in one corner, he believed to be blood. YN3 MONAGHAN relayed this was not unusual to him because S/COPELAND had female friends over who would often leave tampons in their bathroom, and blood sometimes got on the floor. YN3 MONAGHAN stated, because he thought nothing of this, he placed the bathmat in the washing machine to be cleaned. YN3 MONAGHAN provided a hand drawn sketch of the bathmat to depict where he observed the blood; Enclosure (B) pertains. YN3 MONAGHAN also provided a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) to enter his barracks room and collect the bathmat which will be documented under separate cover.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And he was kind of, like--kind of, like, brushed it off, like, "Oh my bad."

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Sort of.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Well, he--he caught him off guard, where he was kind of laughing quite loud about it. It was more like he--he found it really funny.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Did he say that they had sex that night or fooled around or anything like that?

YN3 MONOGHAN: No.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: He didn't really say anything about her.

SA GOKEY: About her at all?

YN3 MONOGHAN: No.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. What happened then after that conversation?

YN3 MONOGHAN: After--I mean, nothing. We just went back to doing our thing.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you playing video games or going to sleep?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Which one?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Oh, video games.

suspicious and all that." I was, like, "I did not say any of that."

SA GOKEY: Okay. What day did they find him?

YN3 MONOGHAN: I think the same day.

SA GOKEY: Was it Saturday or Sunday?

YN3 MONOGHAN: I want to say Saturday.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. But he would come back at night and sleep in the room, or?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Every night he would, in that weekend, he was asleep in the room.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, he'd leave, give or take, roughly pretty early--early in the morning, presumably go up to level five, and then he'd come back to sleep.

YN3 MONOGHAN: [Nods head in the affirmative.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. Is that normal for him to do that?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Not, just, like, he would never leave early in the morning, especially not in the same outfit twice. He would always change his outfit.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Did you notice, and I know this might sound weird, but it's kind of more so for--I want to kind of get to know what he was thinking. Did he take showers?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yes.

SA GOKEY: During that weekend?

YN3 MONOGHAN: From what I know, yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. But he would--he put on that hoodie, and he'd just go somewhere else.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Come home--about what time at night did--would he come back?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Late--ish, around 10. It seemed about his normal working time, so I didn't question him much. But it was, like, 10, 11 o'clock, quite late.

SA GOKEY: Okay. He'd sleep, get up----

YN3 MONOGHAN: Leave.

SA GOKEY: ----leave, come back. That's whenever the command was there. The MAs were showing up, and held--the next night we showed up.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. All right. So, let's talk about Sunday then. So, I'm assuming you didn't go to work on Sunday?

YN3 MONOGHAN: I did not.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Were you in the room predominantly?

YN3 MONOGHAN: I was.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Solid. How was his--how was his demeanor that day?

YN3 MONOGHAN: I mean, I didn't notice much of a change in his demeanor. He wasn't really acting any differently towards me.
SA GOKEY: Okay.
YN3 MONOGHAN: I mean, if I really think about it, I could say he's a little more quiet, but at the same time, I didn't elicit any conversation.
SA GOKEY: Okay.
YN3 MONOGHAN: I think it was either--I don't want to say this because I--I can't confirm, but he did strike up conversation with me about leaving the room, suggesting for me to go out. But I don't know if that was that weekend or not.
SA GOKEY: Okay.
YN3 MONOGHAN: I know at some point he kind of suggested of me leaving the room, which was abnormal for him. Because he knows I don't do that at all.
SA GOKEY: That's fair. Okay. So, not sure exactly what day it was, or if even that it was that weekend, but it's abnormal for him to be, like, "Hey--" how--what did he suggest you go do?
YN3 MONOGHAN: The--go to the beach or just do something outside, like, be social. But he knows for a fact that I've told him multiple times I don't like going out anywhere. I don't like being, like, you know, going to social places or being, like, you know, extroverted.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. Those are the same ones I have. [Gives back phone.]

SA FRITZ: ----that's when he is that the same day he acts, like, "Hey, can I get a ride to the gate?" Or are there two different days?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Think, like, I--I think it might've been two different----

SA FRITZ: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: ----I think it might've been, I think, two different days.

SA FRITZ: Two different days. So, one day he is, like, "Hey man, you should go to the beach."

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah.

SA FRITZ: And then----

YN3 MONOGHAN: He was basically suggesting I go out somewhere.

SA FRITZ: Yeah. And then it didn't happen. You're, like, "No, I'm fucking playing my video game. You know? You know, I'm, like, fucking talking to people. Why the hell are you--that's weird.".

The next day, like, "Hey, can I get a gate--can I get a ride to the gate?" You're, like, "We walk there. What are you talking about?"

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah.

SA FRITZ: And that's when he goes to the roommates, he's, like, "Hey, can I get a ride?" and that's when you hear him leave?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah.

SA FRITZ: And then maybe he opens the closet, you hear him run--you don't--you're, like, half asleep, so, you don't really, like----

YN3 MONOGHAN: Oh, I'm awake at that time.

SA FRITZ: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: But I know for a fact that he opens his closet every morning.

SA FRITZ: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: And I just don't know what he goes in there for.

SA FRITZ: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Because I'm not, like, you know, "What are you doing?"

SA FRITZ: Yeah. All right.

SA GOKEY: When he left or after, like, he asked you and everything, did you hear anything--I'll just flat out say it. Did you hear any wheels on the carpet or on your guys' tile or anything?

SA FRITZ: Yeah, a struggle to--like, like, a grunt? Like, "Ungh," you know. Like when you lifting anything?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Not that I can remember.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: I--actually, I might have it.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: I think I have her name and her phone number, actually.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Solid.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Let me see. Mary Benson.

SA GOKEY: Okay, so that's Ms. Mary?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you guys--she's the one that helped you guys get your shit out of the room and move to another room?

YN3 MONOGHAN: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. And she told you what again? I'm sorry.

YN3 MONOGHAN: She told me that when Copeland was, like, missing over the weekend, she told me she saw him in the level five common area with his hood up and, like, hiding his face.

SA GOKEY: [Affirmative response.]

YN3 MONOGHAN: He said hi to her. And then she told me that the next day when the cops came, he was hiding again, but this time he was in the bathroom, and she pointed the him out to the cops.

SA GOKEY: Gotcha. Okay. And you said that Copeland was mad about that or upset?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Not that I remember.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Can you describe either of those?

YN3 MONOGHAN: I think the blanket was black and the pillow, I can't really--I don't remember.

SA GOKEY: Okay. No.

YN3 MONOGHAN: I think it was just--I remember white.

SA GOKEY: Okay. That's fair.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah, I didn't even--I did not look at them for, even, like, a--a minute, I just took a glance at them, saw them almost naked, and then was just, like, nah.

SA GOKEY: I don't. [Negative response.] Not my problem. I'll deal with this later.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Yeah. Literally.

SA GOKEY: Nope. I got you. Did Copeland ever sit on your bed or use your bed for any reason?

YN3 MONOGHAN: Not that I know of.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

YN3 MONOGHAN: Better not.

SA GOKEY: That's fair. That would be my reaction too. Better not. Okay. And then when you walked out and took that quick glance at them, did you notice that if either of them were breathing?

YN3 MONOGHAN: You know, I'm pretty--I--I don't--I mean, I couldn't tell.

SA GOKEY: That's fair.

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN [redacted]
[redacted] PII

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF AR JOHN CALISSE, USN

1. On 03Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Investigator (PI) John KOWALSKI conducted an interview of AR John CALISSE, USN, Airborne Command & Control Squadron (VAW) 124 regarding his knowledge related to the whereabouts of [redacted] V/A.R. [redacted]Z), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).

2. The interview of AR CALISSE was recorded using an audio/visual recording system, and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. AR CALISSE reported on 29May25, while at his barracks Willis Manor, Building X-2, Room 335, on Naval Station Norfolk, at approximately 0200, he heard his suitemate CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, and an unknown female singing karaoke in S/COPELAND's room. AR CALISSE stated he always heard loud music coming from S/COPELAND's room at all times of the night. AR CALISSE did not recall seeing any signs that S/COPELAND was consuming alcohol in the common area. AR CALISSE stated at approximately 1900 on 28May25, S/COPELAND requested to use his white 2014 Jeep Compass to which he obliged. AR CALISSE reported S/COPELAND returned at approximately 2000, knocked on his barracks door, and when he opened the door to obtain the keys, he observed a female in the kitchen area cooking, who he later identified as [redacted] V/A.R. [redacted]Z.

4. AR CALISSE recalled waking up the morning of 29May25, at approximately 0500, to report to work on time. At approximately 0530, AR CALISSE stated he exited his room and upon walking into the common area observed S/COPELAND and an unknown female laying naked in the middle of the common room floor. AR CALISSE stated he observed them on their backs, face up, with their eyes closed. AR CALISSE stated he observed S/COPELAND laying on the thigh of the unknown female. AR CALISSE stated he did not see any clothing belonging to S/COPELAND. AR CALISSE stated he observed the female wearing red pajama pants with flowers, with one pant leg slightly on at the ankle, and her bra pulled down exposing her breast. AR CALISSE reported walking past them in order to leave the room and believed both S/COPELAND and the female to be breathing. AR CALISSE stated when he returned from work at approximately 1700, S/COPELAND and the female were not in the barracks room.

5. AR CALISSE described the female as brown skinned, long brown hair, and with what he believed to be a possible nose piercing. AR CALISSE stated this was his first time seeing the female; however, confirmed it was V/A.R. wh[redacted]

6. AR CALISSE stated he did not see S/COPELAND again until Sunday 01Jun25, at approximately 1400, when he asked him for a ride to report to DDG 95. AR CALISSE agreed to provide transportation to S/COPELAND after returning from Walmart. AR CALISSE stated he transported S/COPELAND along with ISSA Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, USN, VAW 124, at approximately 1700. AR CALISSE stated S/COPELAND was on DDG 95 for approximately one hour while ISSA GORDILLACRUZ and AR CALISSE[redacted] to return. AR CALISSE stated when S/COPELAND returned to the vehicle he informed him he was required to do a urinalysis for not reporting to work on 30May25. AR CALISSE stated while driving from DDG 95 back to the barracks they stopped at Chipotle located at 4712 Hampton Blvd, Norfolk, VA 23508, at approximately 1900.

7. AR CALISSE stated when they returned to the barracks, S/COPELAND asked if he could use his car to get something to eat. AR CALISSE allowed S/COPELAND to use his vehicle giving him the key at approximately 2000. AR CALISSE stated when he woke up the next morning and proceeded to go to work, he noticed his car key was not on the kitchen counter where S/COPELAND normally leaves it after borrowing his car. AR CALISSE stated he called S/COPELAND to find out his location and was angry because he caused him to be late for work. AR CALISSE reported meeting S/COPELAND in the X-2 parking lot at approximately 0630 and watched him drive the vehicle into the parking lot. AR CALISSE stated he was unaware of the locations S/COPELAND traveled to while he had his vehicle.

8. During his interview, AR CALISSE signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Sei[redacted]) for his Jeep Compass which will be documented under separate cover.

9. At the conclusion of the interview, while returning AR CALISSE to VAW-124, he located EZ Pass transactions and provided screenshots of the charges from 27May25 to 02Jun25 without being requested; Enclosure (B) pertains. AR CALISSE stated the charge on 01Jun25 was his return from the ship; however, all other charges were believed to be accrued by S/COPELAND.

SA JONES: Hey, man. Sorry about that.

INVESTIGATOR: Sorry, man.

SA JONES: Yeah.

INVESTIGATOR: I know we're getting close to lunch.

SA JONES: Trying to get you out of here.

INVESTIGATOR: I know I'm hungry. I can tell you that.

SA JONES: All right. So, the only--only other things, right? I mean, again, just recapping everything that you said----

AR CALISSE: [Affirmative response.]

SA JONES: ----and just let you have a minute to think it over and all of that stuff. So, maybe something else pop up about those, I want to say four days, right? Wednesday to Sunday, or Wednesday or Monday.

You saw Copeland and the girl when you walked out. You heard them, they was doing karaoke and everything Wednesday, Wednesday evening, Wednesday night.

AR CALISSE: It was--they were, like, I don't--I don't even, like, remember the time she was there, but she was, like, early.

SA JONES: Okay. When--when, I know you didn't really look at them because you was trying to be respectful, right?

AR CALISSE: Yeah.

SA JONES: I'm assuming. Did it--did it look like though she was breathing and he was breathing at least? Could you tell that they was I'm--I'm going to say alive, or----

AR CALISSE: You see, that's the first question I asked my roommate.

INVESTIGATOR: Okay.

SA JONES: What did he say when you asked him?

AR CALISSE: He didn't pay it really attention.

SA JONES: Didn't, okay.

AR CALISSE: Because when--when I woke up and then, it is when I opened the door, I saw them.

SA JONES: [Affirmative response.]

AR CALISSE: Then I walked around. But that's the first question I asked him. See, how can I open the door, they don't wake up. Didn't make noise, like.

SA JONES: Around what time did you and your roommate talk about it? You and Cruz. So, you get to work around six, seven?

AR CALISSE: No, no.

SA JONES: Oh.

AR CALISSE: Like, ten.

SA JONES: Ten o'clock. Okay.

AR CALISSE: Because he's upstairs and I'm the line shack.

SA JONES: Who brought it--who brought it up first?

AR CALISSE: Me. I went upstairs and I--I said, "Yo, did you see that shit?"

SA JONES: Okay.

AR CALISSE: And he said--he said, "What?" And it was like, "Man." I said, "At least do you see them? They were still there when you wake--wake up." So, they were still there.

INVESTIGATOR: [Affirmative response.]

AR CALISSE: Because I was, like, "Bro."

INVESTIGATOR: That's why I was asking if they--if they had been drinking. Because you would think, if people drink a little too much, they kind of sleep a little sounder. Right? And they won't hear doors open and stuff like that. That's why I was----

AR CALISSE: Yeah. But I can say that about my roommate. Every time I came back from work, as soon as I open the door, he always look up. He's always up to see what's coming. The same thing to me.

INVESTIGATOR: Gotcha. Yeah.

AR CALISSE: Yeah, but if I open the door, like, I know some people sleep like that, but not me. Me, no.

SA JONES: Gotcha. Okay, cool. So, you couldn't tell, though. And then you go to work. You and your roommate y'all--ya'll both at work, y'all talk about it. You get back off work, you don't see either one of them.

AR CALISSE: No.

SA JONES: Living room still a mess, or did they----

AR CALISSE: The living room was always a mess.

SA JONES: Okay. Did they have blankets or anything when they was on the floor?
AR CALISSE: No, nothing.
SA JONES: Just nothing.
AR CALISSE: Just--just naked. The carpet like that.
SA JONES: No clothes or nothing? No clothes around? Scattered around?
AR CALISSE: Yeah. The clothes were--were, like, close.
SA JONES: Okay.
AR CALISSE: Close to them. But they were naked.
SA JONES: You remember, like, a color, possibly of the clothes that you saw?
AR CALISSE: I think she had some--not--both of them, it's, like, a pajama, like. So, I think she has--if remove my pants--
--
SA JONES: [Affirmative response.]
AR CALISSE: ----and I can--I can get in one leg. She was like that. And I think it was, like, dark or--dark red.
INVESTIGATOR: Dark red?
AR CALISSE: And some flowers--flowers, I think.
INVESTIGATOR: Okay.
SA JONES: [Affirmative response.]
AR CALISSE: It was, like----

INVESTIGATOR: And that was the pants? Like, it was, like, pajama pants. AR CALISSE: Yeah.

SA JONES: Only on one leg.

AR CALISSE: And then I don't what's on the top, the thing on the top, there was something--I don't know if it was--how do you call the thing----

SA JONES: A bra.

INVESTIGATOR: A bra.

AR CALISSE: Yeah. I don't know if it was a bra, but there was something, like----

SA JONES: But it was pulled down?

AR CALISSE: Yeah.

SA JONES: So her--her breast was exposed?

AR CALISSE: Everything.

SA JONES: Everything. Okay.

AR CALISSE: That's why I didn't, like, staring at her.

SA JONES: [Affirmative response.]

AR CALISSE: Everything. See, that's why I was, like, I told my roommate, I should have take a picture. Sorry about that.

INVESTIGATOR: No, don't do that.

SA JONES: Don't--don't do that.

AR CALISSE: No, of course.

SA JONES: Yeah. Yeah.

AR CALISSE: I told my roommate----

SA JONES: Because that's--that gets Sailors in trouble.
INVESTIGATOR: Oh, yeah, it does.
SA JONES: We don't want you getting in trouble. But everything you giving us is good stuff. We appreciate it.
INVESTIGATOR: When--when you came home and like my partner was asking about, how messy the room was, did it look like everything had been cleaned up and put away or no? When you got home from work?
AR CALISSE: So, I can't really tell. But the only--the room was clean. It was--it wasn't him that cleaned it.
INVESTIGATOR: [Affirmative response.]
AR CALISSE: It was the other guy. Because I think he had some visit--command was visiting him. So, he had to clean.
INVESTIGATOR: Okay.
AR CALISSE: But, I barely, like, use--even when I put my drinks in the fridge, like, when I come back, I don't find it. So, I don't--I barely use it.
SA JONES: Gotcha. Can't put nothing in there.
AR CALISSE: Yeah. I barely use it.
SA JONES: That's messed up. I gotcha.
AR CALISSE: So, the same as my roommate. Like, he never go outside. Only if he's talking on the phone and I'm sleeping, that's the only way. And we only, like, go to work, come back. So, the living room, I just walk through.

INVESTIGATOR: Oh, no, no. I was just going to ask--ask, where did he leave the keys? You said the next morning, the keys were there. Where were the keys?

AR CALISSE: On the counter. He told me that's where he leave the keys.

INVESTIGATOR: Where.

AR CALISSE: On the counter. Like the kitchen.

INVESTIGATOR: Okay. Okay.

AR CALISSE: And then he didn't even leave it there. Wait, he didn't leave in there in the morning. Wait, when I have to pick up, so, there's a new check-in, like, and so, there's a new check-in and the same level with me.

SA JONES: [Affirmative response.]

AR CALISSE: And then I have to take another one. So, he wasn't there. He went to get food in the--to--in the morning. That's what he told me. He went to get food in the morning. I catch him outside. So, I was sitting and I catch him outside. Yeah.

SA JONES: Oh, you caught him outside.

AR CALISSE: Yeah.

SA JONES: With the keys?

AR CALISSE: Yeah, with the car and everything.

SA JONES: Around what time?

AR CALISSE: I don't know about the time, but I can ask----

INVESTIGATOR: If you had to estimate, was it four, five, six, seven, eight?
AR CALISSE: I--I was late this--to--because I waiting on him. Yeah. I remember that. I was--I was pissed off and say I will never, like, borrow him my car any more.
SA JONES: Good.
AR CALISSE: He went to get food this morning because he had food.
SA JONES: But he took the keys----
AR CALISSE: Yeah.
SA JONES: ----that night and then you caught him the next morning----
AR CALISSE: Yeah.
SA JONES: ----because you got up to get ready----
AR CALISSE: When I go by there, I didn't see the key. I didn't find the key. And then I called him. Be, like, "Where you at?" Like, "Oh, I'm getting some food and coming back." I said, "I'm going to be late because I have to pick up two people."
SA JONES: [Affirmative response.]
AR CALISSE: And then slow is the traffic at the gate. And I went outside, and I was downstairs waiting for him. And he had, like, the drink, and I don't what type of food, but.
SA JONES: Oh, he had drink and food in his hands?
AR CALISSE: Yeah.

SA JONES: But ultimately, he had your keys from----

AR CALISSE:

SA JONES: ----eight o'clock until you saw him that next morning outside.

AR CALISSE: Yeah.

SA JONES: Okay. Did you see him pulling the parking lot with the car or?

AR CALISSE: Yeah.

SA JONES: You--you saw him pulling in?

AR CALISSE: Yeah.

SA JONES: Okay.

AR CALISSE: Because I was waiting.

INVESTIGATOR: Was the outside of the car--was it dirty or muddy or anything like that, or--or did it look normal?

AR CALISSE: I didn't pay attention.

INVESTIGATOR: Did, like, look at it and go "Where--where the hell did you go with my car?"

AR CALISSE: No.

INVESTIGATOR: Never did it. Just---

AR CALISSE: I didn't pay attention to that.

SA JONES: Okay. Have you washed your car since?

AR CALISSE: No.

SA JONES: No.

AR CALISSE: Since I got it, they detail it to me.

RESULTS OF INITIAL CONTACT WITH FCC BRAD PARKER, USN

1. On 01un25, Reporting Agent (RA) made contact with FCC Brad PARKER, USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95), to glean information pertaining to both CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95 and [redacted] V/A.R. s [redacted] V/A.R., USN, DDG 95 Unauthorized Absence (UA) status. As background, [redacted] V/A.R., USN, DDG 95 and S/COPELAND, were placed into an UA status subsequent to 29May25, after failing to report to work. On 01Jun25, after speaking with S/COPELAND's mother, Rochell BROWN, CIV, NCIS and BROWN contacted Naval Station Norfolk (NOB) Base Police to conduct a follow-up health and welfare check on both S/COPELAND and [redacted] V/A.R.. The Naval Station Norfolk Watch Commander advised NOB Security Forces located S/COPELAND in his barracks rooms on NOB, Willis Manor, Room 335. NCIS was advised that Security Forces received no answer at [redacted] V/A.R. door when they knocked on her barracks room located on NOB, Miller Hall, Room 1083.

2. FCC PARKER was identified as being [redacted] V/A.R. and S/COPELAND's supervisor on DDG 95 and making positive contact with both S/COPELAND and [redacted] V/A.R. on Thursday, 29May25 at approximately 0900 hours.

3. FCC PARKER recalled that on 29May25, he went to S/COPELAND's barracks room, Naval Station Norfolk, Willis Manor, and woke him up because he did not show for work in the morning. FCC PARKER recalled it was obvious he had woke S/COPELAND and [redacted] V/A.R. up due to their grogginess. FCC PARKER stated he physically observed [redacted] V/A.R. in S/COPELAND's barracks, she acknowledged his presence, rolled over, and appeared to go back to sleep. FCC PARKER said he instructed S/COPELAND to report to work after he tended to [redacted] V/A.R. and took her home. FCC PARKER said S/COPELAND told him [redacted] V/A.R. was having some personal issues and came to his barracks room Wednesday, 28May25 to discuss.

4. FCC PARKER said S/COPELAND was supposed to only work Thursday and have the weekend off.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF FCC BRAD PARKER, USN

1. On 03JUN25, Reporting Investigator (RI) and Participating Agent (PA) Caroline ROBINSON interviewed FCC Brad PARKER (FCC PARKER), USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95), regarding his knowledge of the disappearance of CSSN [redacted], USN, DDG 95.

2. The interview of FCC PARKER was recorded using an audio/visual recording system and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. The interview of FCC PARKER was recorded using an audio recorder and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (B) pertains.

4. On 03JUN25, FCC PARKER signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) to allow NCIS to obtain screenshots of messages pertaining to the disappearance of [redacted]. Results of PASS will be documented in a separate investigative action.

5. FCC PARKER described the incident as it was reported to him. FCC PARKER stated on 29MAY25 at 0700, he was advised [redacted] was not doing well and began calling friends on the ship. FCC PARKER identified the friends as co-worker, CSSN COPELAND, later identified as CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, ET3 RICH, later identified as ET3 Daniel RICH (ET3 RICH), USN, DDG 95, and "Gillespie", later identified as HT3 Michael GILLESPIE (HT3 GILLESPIE), USN, DDG 95. FCC PARKER clarified S/COPELAND, ET3 RICH, and HT3 GILLESPIE all stated she was seeking help that evening. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND relayed ET3 RICH went to her barracks room, Miller Hall BLDG U-16, she was not there and did not answer her cell phone. FCC PARKER stated he learned S/COPELAND did not show up for the "breakfast shift" at his schedule time (NFI).

6. FCC PARKER stated on the morning of 29MAY25, he went to locate S/COPELAND at his barracks room, Willis Manor, X-2, RM 335B, Bed A, on board Naval Station Norfolk, Norfolk, VA. According to FCC PARKER, S/COPELAND answered the door with groggy eyes, a pair of basketball shorts and the lights in his room were off as if he just woken up. FCC PARKER stated he did not notice any indications of alcohol use. FCC PARKER indicated he told S/COPELAND they needed to go to work, to which S/COPELAND stated he was not alone. FCC PARKER stated he asked S/COPELAND if it was V/A.R. and S/COPELAND confirmed. FCC PARKER stated he recognized V/A.R. in S/COPELAND's bed. FCC PARKER clarified V/A.R. looked up, dismissively waved, rolled over and went back to sleep. FCC PARKER relayed V/A.R. was wrapped in a blanket with only her feet being exposed. FCC PARKER relayed at 0854, he texted LSC Rob JANSON (LSC JANSON), USN, DDG 95, confirming S/COPELAND and V/A.R. were in S/COPELAND's room.

7. FCC PARKER stated he told S/COPELAND to step out of the room and into the common area. FCC PARKER relayed he asked if they were ok and if V/A.R. was in any imminent danger to which S/COPELAND replied "I do not think so." FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND relayed he went to pick V/A.R. up, who was having problems with her boyfriend (NFI) in Texas, and they watched movies. FCC PARKER said he asked S/COPELAND if he had a ride to work, to which S/COPELAND said he did. FCC PARKER stated he departed after he advised S/COPELAND to ensure V/A.R. was returned to her room and to get to work. FCC PARKER drew a sketch depicting the layout of S/COPELAND's room; Enclosure (C) pertains.

8. FCC PARKER relayed he was there for approximately five (5) to ten (10) minutes. Additionally, FCC PARKER indicated there was a logbook in the lobby where he signed in and out from. FCC PARKER stated at 1241, S/COPELAND called him stating he dropped off V/A.R. at her barracks room and was waiting for his ride. FCC PARKER stated at 1523, he texted S/COPELAND asking why he was still not at work. FCC PARKER relayed at 1636, S/COPELAND texted him saying he was still waiting on a ride to work. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND never showed up at work and he did not hear from him until 01JUN25.

9. FCC PARKER stated on the morning of 30MAY25, V/A.R. and S/COPELAND did not show up to work. FCC PARKER conveyed he attempted to locate both of them in their respective rooms but was unsuccessful. FCC PARKER relayed he attempted to call and text V/A.R. and S/COPELAND but they did not answer. FCC PARKER stated he spoke with V/A.R. roommate (NFI) who stated she had not seen V/A.R. since the night of 28MAY25. FCC PARKER relayed at 0950, he called LSC JANSON advising V/A.R. was not in her room. FCC PARKER advised at 1017, he called and texted S/COPELAND from his barracks room, but he did not answer. FCC PARKER stated he spoke with S/COPELAND's roommate (NFI) who related he was in the room earlier that morning but did not know when S/COPELAND left.

10. FCC PARKER stated on 31MAY25, ET3 RICH filed a missing person report for V/A.R. FCC PARKER did not identify the filing agency. FCC PARKER advised S/COPELAND called him on the afternoon of 01JUN25 about his unauthorized absence (UA) status. FCC PARKER relayed the command called and texted him, to which S/COPELAND stated he does not normally answer his phone when he is not on duty. FCC PARKER relayed he asked S/COPELAND if he had heard from V/A.R. According to FCC PARKER, S/COPELAND stated he had not seen her since he dropped her off the afternoon of 29MAY25.

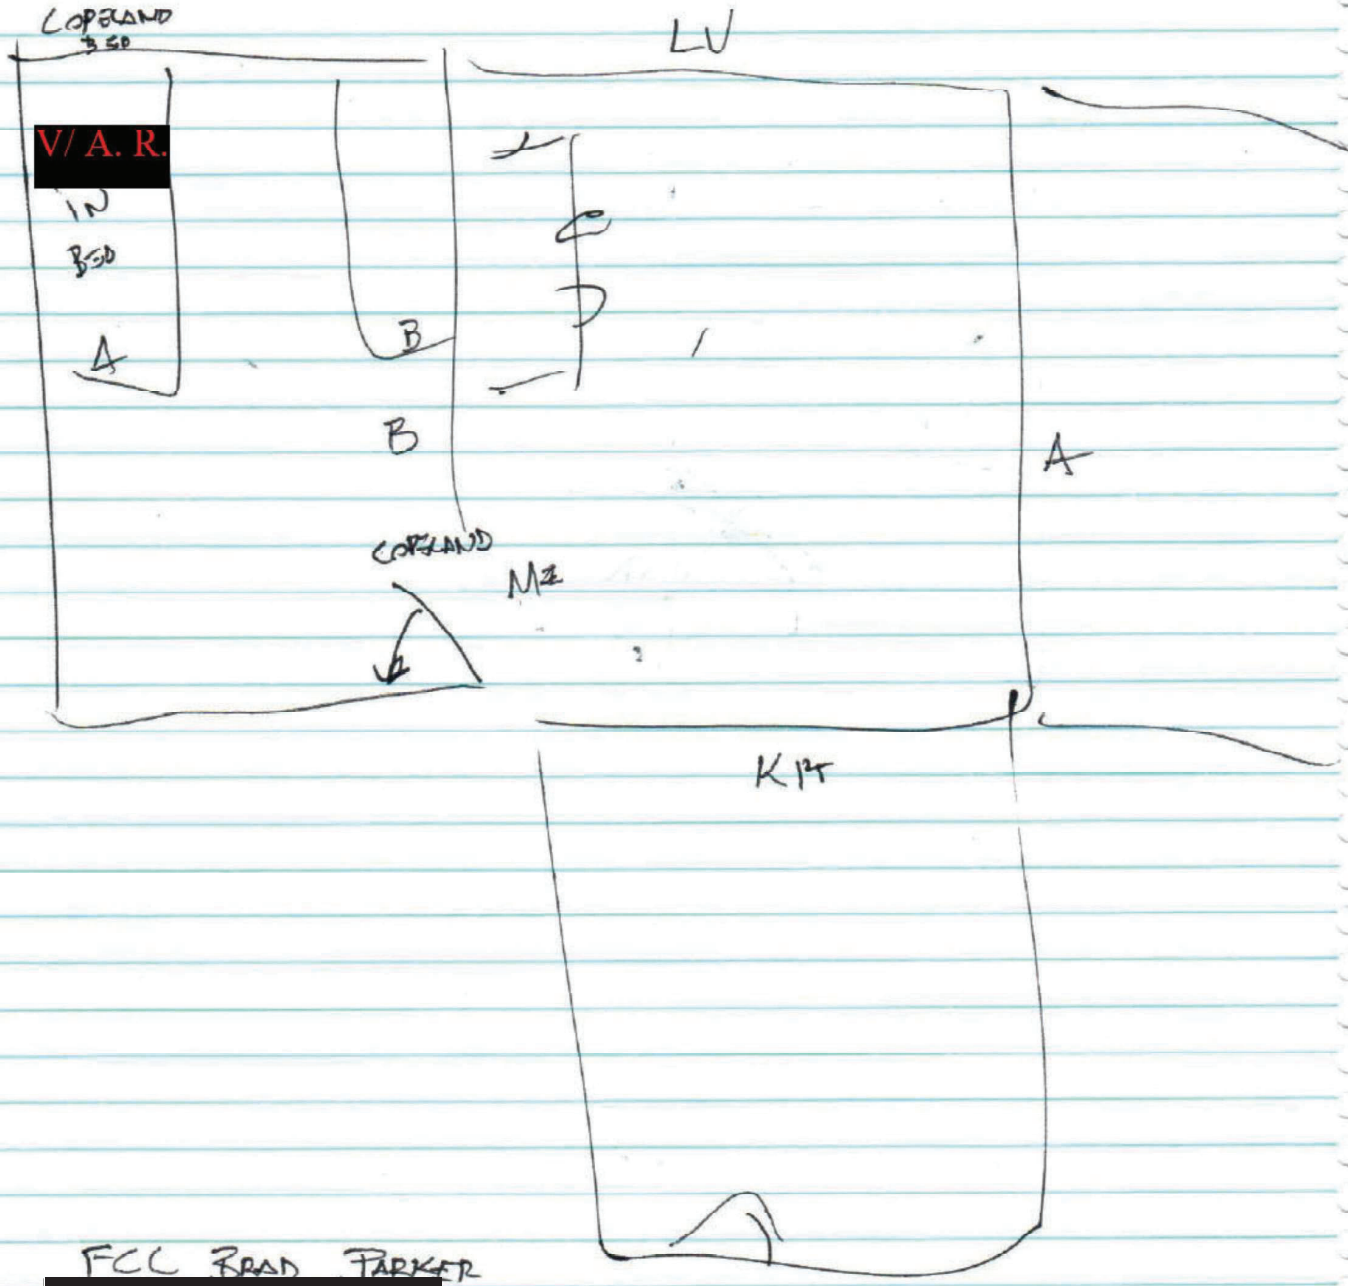
11. FCC PARKER conveyed on the morning of 29MAY25, V/A.R. 's LPO, CS1 HOWELLEL, later identified as CS1 Daryl HOWELLEL, USN, DDG 95, began sending daily texts to her. FCC PARKER stated on 01JUN25, the Commanding Officer, later identified to be CDR Timothy WINTERS, USN, DDG 95, mandated daily checks on V/A.R. 's room until she was found. FCC PARKER relayed on the same day, CS2 BRYANT, later identified as CS2 Joshua BRYANT, USN, DDG 95, went to her barracks room and she was not there.



12. FCC PARKER advised on 02JUN25, he went to V/A.R. s barracks room because he was advised she left her phone in her room but was unable to locate it. FCC PARKER relayed the building manager (NFI) let him into the room and he "visually" looked for the her phone. FCC PARKER clarified he did not touch anything in the room. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND did not have a driver's license and is pending reckless driving charges with Virginia Beach Police Department.

13. No further information was obtained.

I also got word that CSSN Copeland did not report to work that morning. He was supposed to start the breakfast shift, and he had--wasn't there when I got there at seven.

So, I had to go up, do the morning--the morning routine, do the quarters. When I got a chance, I decided I would go up to--to the base to find Copeland first because he was--wasn't--didn't report to work.

SA ROBINSON: [Affirmative response.]

FCC PARKER: V/A.R. was off. I did go to his--his room first. Really, because it was right there. But I got there around 9 a.m. I could--I consult my--but around 9 a.m., I got to his room. It's--it's one of those common areas with two bedrooms on the side, and there's two people in each room.

SA ROBINSON: [Affirmative response.]

FCC PARKER: I got in there, got into his room. His bedroom portion was deadbolt locked, so I was knocking on the door. I was knocking on the door for a minute--for, I don't know, a good--a good minute. By the time he did eventually answer, I clearly had just woken him up. I--I, you know, asked him, you know, "Where you at? Where you been?"

SA ROBINSON: [Affirmative response.]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF MARY BENSON, CIV, AND CSSN CARMESHA SAUNDERS, USN

1. On 06Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent Cheyenne SIMMONS interviewed Mary B. BENSON, CIV, X2 Barracks Manager, Naval Station (NAVSTA) Norfolk, VA, and CSSN Carmesha SAUNDERS, USN, NAVSSTA, regarding their interaction with CCSN Jeremiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95) during the weekend from 30May25 to 01Jun25 at Barracks X2, NAVSTA.

2. BENSON advised she worked both Friday, 30May25 and Sunday, 01Jun25, at Barracks X2. BENSON stated she worked the day shift from 0600 to either 1530 or 1600. BENSON stated she is familiar with S/COPEPLAND as being a resident of the barracks and living on the third floor. BENSON stated she saw S/COPELAND on 30May25 "early part of the morning" in the fifth-floor lounge of Barracks X2. S/COPELAND was on his cellular telephone and wearing a dark hoodie shirt, with the hood pulled up over his head. BENSON stated at first, she did not recognize him because he had the hood over his head; however, once she spoke with him, she recognized him as he identified himself. BENSON came back to the lounge a little while later and asked what S/COPELAND was doing, to which he responded his roommate was "getting on his nerves". BENSON offered to move his room, and S/COPELAND denied the request. Looking at the lounge from outside of the door, S/COPELAND was sitting in the far-right chair in the far-right corner of the room. BENSON stated she did not see him the rest of the day.

3. BENSON stated on Sunday, 01Jun25, she was working at Barracks X2 and she received a call from the "ROC", which BENSON believed stood for Regional Operations Center. The ROC was checking on the whereabouts of S/COPELAND. BENSON stated base police also arrived to check on S/COPELAND, but they could not find S/COPELAND. BENSON said she went to the fifth floor and found S/COPELAND in a bathroom. BENSON knocked on the door to the bathroom and S/COPELAND responded that he was in the bathroom. BENSON stated she did not see S/COPELAND; she just spoke with him through the door. BENSON stated Base police then went up to the fifth floor and spoke with S/COPELAND.

4. BENSON further advised the company who cleans the floors in the barracks is Titan, and BENSON believed they started cleaning the floors either on 28May25 or 29May25. The supervisor for Titan is Antonio (NFI) and his number is 757-910-6405.

5. CSSN Carmesha SAUNDERS, USN, Naval Station Norfolk, advised she worked the front desk of X-2 on Friday and also saw S/COPELAND in the fifth-floor lounge between 1100 and 1200; however, did not know it was him until BENSON told her. SAUNDERS stated she saw a male with a dark hoodie on his telephone sitting in the lounge in the same chair BENSON described above. SAUNDERS stated she worked the rest of the weekend; however, she did not see S/COPELAND after Friday.

6. RA was provided a photocopy of the Contractor Sign-In Log for Barracks X2, which identifies who from Titan signed in to clean the floors from 23May25 to 06Jun25; Enclosure (A) pertains.

BACKGROUND: On 31May25, NCIS was contacted by Norfolk Police Department (NPD) in reference to a missing person's report. NPD relayed ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95), was attempting to make a missing person's report regarding V/ A. R.), USN, DDG 95. NCIS subsequently contacted Command who advised V/ A. R. and CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, were in a status of Unauthorized Absence (UA) beginning on Thursday, 29May25. Command advised they believed V/ A. R. and S/COPELAND were involved romantically, but did not know to what extent. On 01Jun25, NCIS made contact with Naval Station Norfolk Base Police to conduct a welfare check on the rooms of S/COPELAND and V/ A. R. Base Police stated they found S/COPELAND in his barracks room; however, received no answer at V/ A. R. door when they knocked. NCIS responded to Naval Station Norfolk and was able to gain entry to V/ A. R. barracks room, in which she was not located. Subsequently, NCIS' Multiple Threat Alert Center (MTAC) initiated cell phone pings on V/ A. R. mobile phone, which yielded no location data due to the phone possibly being powered off. NCIS conducted an interview of S/COPELAND who stated V/ A. R. came over to his barracks on Wednesday, 28May25. S/COPELAND stated V/ A. R. stayed the night and the next day, 29May25, FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG 95, came to his barracks room because he failed to report for work. S/COPELAND stated he borrowed his roommate's vehicle and drove V/ A. R. back to her barracks around 1000 on 29May25. During the interview of S/COPELAND, he signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his cellular device which was provided to NCIS Digital Forensic Examiners (DFE) for review. The DFE observed a screenshot on the device of S/COPELAND of a saved marked location near Cary Avenue in Norfolk, VA. During the course of this investigation, NCIS would launch search teams near known phone pings and last locations of both V/ A. R. and S/COPELAND. On 09Jun25, subsequent to receiving the screenshot from the DFE, NCIS conducted a foot search of the area near the marked location and discovered a black duffel bag containing human remains, later identified through DNA as V/ A. R.

JURISDICTION AND ARRIVAL: At approximately 1700, NCIS arrived to the location of Cary Avenue in Norfolk, VA, and conducted a foot search around the Broad Creek neighborhood and Richard Bowling Elementary School. Figure [1] is the screenshot of the marked location utilized by NCIS. At 1735, Reporting Agent (RA) received a phone call from Participating Agent (PA) Tiffany MARTINEZ stating a bag had been located off of a brush covered path behind a row of townhomes. Due to the location of the bag, at 1740, NCIS initiated contact with the Norfolk Police Department (NPD) who responded to the scene to assist. A copy of the NPD incident report detailing their response is appended as Enclosure (A).

SCENE SECURITY: Upon arrival to the scene, no other persons were present in the area but residents going about their daily routine. The area which was searched was not secured prior to arrival and was an open, wooded area, behind a school and residential community. NCIS participants divided into groups and ultimately located the bag by following the smell. Once the duffel bag was located, Andrew PISKE, CIV, K9 Handler, Virginia Department of Emergency Management (VDEM), and K9 Kyra, Certified Human Remains Detection Dog, approached the bag where she presented a positive alert to PISKE. An aerial topography image of the area searched by PISKE and K9 Kyra is appended as Enclosure (B). NCIS partially unzipped the bag to verify its contents to which human remains were observed. NPD was immediately contacted, and all searching immediately ceased. Due to rain, at approximately 1755, to protect the duffel bag, PISKE placed a black tarp over the bag. Figure [2] is a photo of the overall brush area where the remains were located. Figure [3] is a photo of the duffel bag in place. Figure [4] is the approximate GPS location of the duffel bag after conducting the foot search with the assistance of CalTopo. Figure [5] is the confirmation of the human remains inside the bag.

Military Judge

[1] See Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 1113(a), Discussion, "Upon request or otherwise for good cause shown, a military judge may seal matters at his or her discretion."

SCENE DOCUMENTATION: NPD assisted in maintaining the scene by providing a tent for protection from the rain while waiting for the Medical Examiner. At approximately 1900, Sarah CARNEY, CIV, Medicolegal Death Investigator, Tidewater Office of the Chief Medical Examiner (OCME) viewed the bag and remains inside. CARNEY captured several photos for her file and stated based off the condition of the remains it was recommended to not remove the contents and transport the bag as is to be opened in a controlled environment at autopsy. At 1905, CARNEY approved a search of the exterior pockets of the bag which was conducted by RA with no findings. At 2019, Price Removal Service arrived on scene to transport the remains to OCME for autopsy. Figure [6] is a photo of the transport tag. Once the duffel bag was removed, additional photography was conducted of the ground underneath. Figure [7] is a photo of the dumpsite with no bag present.

WEATHER AND LIGHTING: On 09Jun25, at approximately 1700, the weather in the area was approximately 80 degrees Fahrenheit, according to the Apple Weather App accessed via RA's NCIS-issued cellular phone. It was windy, hot and humid with low, dense, cloud cover and thunderstorms were predicted. Between 1850 and 2000, there was a range of weather from light rain to heavy thunderstorms and lightening.

EVIDENCE SEIZURE: No physical items of evidence were collected at the scene. PA Alison FOX completed photographic coverage of the scene utilizing a Nikon digital camera. A total of 113 digital photographs were captured, all of which were burned to a DVD-R and are appended as Enclosure (B). A disc was also placed into the Norfolk Consolidated Evidence Facility. FC Morgan CURRIE conducted FARO scans of the area which will be documented under separate cover and also placed into the Norfolk Consolidated Evidence Facility. A traditional hand drawn sketch was not completed due to the administering of the FARO device.

SEARCH PARTICIPANTS: SA Ashley ULLOM; SA Caroline ROBINSON; SA Salvatore MURGOLO; INV Nick BURROWES; SA Alison FOX; SSA Danielle ORTIZ; SA Joy NAROWSKI; SA Victoria PADILLA-MARTINEZ; SA John KEMP; SA Lauryn GODETTE; FC Morgan CURRIE; SA Morgan JOHNS; SA Tiffany MARTINEZ; SA Brandon MOORE; SA Cheyenne SIMMONS; INV Jesse CLAAR; SA Seza KYSER; SA Anthony JONES; SA Fritzner PHILEMON; SA Devin RUIC; SSA Elly UFFORD; SA Jessica GOKEY; Sean LACY & K9 PIXEL (Isle of Wight Sheriff's Office), and Andrew PISKE & K9 KYRA (VDEM).

SCENE RELEASE: NCIS left the scene at approximately 2100 and NPD was still present maintaining perimeter.

LUGGAGE IMAGE FILES

1. SDFE DAVISON located and extracted three thumbnail images during the examination of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND. The iPhone appears to name all the thumbnail images with the same of name of "5005.jpg." Each thumbnail image is located in the corresponding subdirectories of the \private\var\mobile\Media\PhotoData\Thumbnails\V2\DCIM\101APPLE\ directory. The specific directory in which the thumbnail file named "5005.jpg" resides contains the original file name of the image, movie, or Apple's live files. The three original file names from each thumbnail image resolves back to IMG_1111.HEIC, IMG_1114.HEIC, and IMG_1112.mov. SDFE DAVISON conducted a search for each original file, however, the examination did not recover the original files. SDFE DAVISON inserted the thumbnail files directly into this document.

2. The thumbnail files for IMG_1111.HEIC and IMG_1114.HEIC were created on 29Dec23. The thumbnail file for IMG_1112.mov was created on 08Jun24. The examination revealed the thumbnail file for IMG_1112.mov appears to be created due to the user of the iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND accessing and downloaded the original file in an iCloud account since the image is visually similar to the file IMG_1111.HEIC and the file is consecutively named to IMG_1112. All three thumbnails were last accessed on 05Jun25, at exactly 8:46:21 AM. All of 627 thumbnails in the \private\var\mobile\Media\PhotoData\Thumbnails\V2\DCIM\101APPLE\ directory and its subdirectories were accessed on 05Jun25, between 8:46:21 AM and 8:46:23 AM. The examination revealed an automated process accessed the files and is most likely contributed to an iCloud backup. SDFE DAVISON took the following screenshot as displayed in Axiom.

1. BACKGROUND: On 04Jun25, at approximately 1315 hours, Reporting Agent (RA) Alison FOX, NCISRA Yorktown, was notified by Supervisory Special Agent (SSA) Danielle ORTIZ, NCISRA Norfolk, suspected blood was observed in a stairwell of Willis Manor, Building X2, 9712 Virginia Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23511 located on board Naval Station Norfolk. NCIS conducted an area canvass of Building X2 as part of proactive investigative efforts to locate V/ A. R. [redacted], USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95). NCIS visually inspected and focused on the hallway and stairwell closest in proximity to Room 335 located on the third floor, which was the known room of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, a person of interest at the time of the investigation. SSA ORTIZ requested RA FOX respond to the area to document the scene and collect the suspected blood.

2. ARRIVAL AND JURISDICTION: On 04Jun25, at 1330 hours, RA FOX, and Participating Agents (PA) Joy NAROWSKI, NCISRA Yorktown, Dara ELK, NCISRA Portsmouth, and Lauren WATKINS, NCISRA Portsmouth conducted an examination of the stairwell. Willis Manor, Building X2 is located on board Naval Station Norfolk and is located within concurrent jurisdiction with Norfolk Police Department (NPD); however, NCIS maintains primary investigative jurisdiction due to V/ A. R. and S/COPELAND both being active-duty Navy service members.

3. SCENE SECURITY AND SEARCH AUTHORIZATION: No scene security was present upon RA FOX's arrival. There is no reasonable expectation of privacy within the stairwell. Therefore, no search authorization was required.

4. EXTERIOR OBSERVATIONS: Willis Manor, Building X2, is a military barracks located on board Naval Station Norfolk. Willis Manor, Building X2, is a five-story building with a parking lot located in front and to the side. The building is located between Maryland Ave and Virginia Ave. Figure [1] is a Google Maps image of Willis Manor, Building X2, depicting its relationship and orientation to the surrounding buildings. The black arrow was added to the image to depict the exit location of stairwell examined.

5. INTERIOR OBSERVATIONS: RA FOX responded to Corridor 3006, which is located on the third floor. Barracks Room 335 is located in this corridor, within the same hallway as Stairwell 5. Figures [2], [3], [4], [5], [6], and [7] depict the entry way into Corridor 3006, the door to S/COPELAND's room, and the stairwell entrance point from the third floor, which can be identified by the last exit sign in the corridor. The black arrow was added to Figure [6], which shows the last exit sign in the corridor.

6. STAIRWELL OBSERVATIONS: Multiple areas of reddish brown staining were observed in the stairwell between levels 1 and 3. These areas were marked with evidence placards and photographed. Figures [8], [9], and [10] depict overall photographs of the stairwell levels as they were found. Figures [11], [12], [13], [14], [15], and [16] depict midrange photographs of reddish brown stains observed in the stairwell. 7. SCENE PROCESSING: PA WATKINS completed photographic coverage of the area using a Nikon D7200 camera. A total of (73) digital images were captured, all of which were burned to a DVD-R and entered into the NCISRA Norfolk Consolidated Evidence Facility under Log EDAC7, Item RRDQ6. A copy of the DVD-R is appended as Enclosure (A). Forensic Consultant (FC) Morgan CURRIE completed 3D laser scans of the stairwell at a later date, the results of which will be reported under separate cover. RA FOX collected samples of the reddish brown stains. No presumptive testing was conducted during collection.

8. EVIDENCE SEIZURE: The following items were seized as evidence and entered into the NCISRA Norfolk Consolidated Evidence Facility under Log Number TKNM8:

Item GTRC2 - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, level 3, placard (A)

Item 3F1W2 - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (B)

Item 1L7PW - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (C)

Item JHXR7 - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (D)

Item D6QNN - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (E)

Item MXQ1N - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (F)

Item 5CA0T - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (G)

Item 1K3RH - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, between levels 1 and 2, placard (H)

Item 2KXCX - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, near door, level 2, placard (I)

Item 134B8 - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5 near door, level 2, placard (J)

Item 27UCQ - One swab of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5 near door, level 2, placard (K)

Item MEFC2 - One swabs of reddish/brown stain collected from Stairwell 5, level 1, placard (L)

Item DRD3B - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, level 3, placard (A)

Item GCL7Y - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (D)

Item 9K1GU - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, between levels 2 and 3, placard (E)

Item HNRF1 - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, between levels 1 and 2, placard (H)

Item NPRY1 - Two swabs of reddish/brown stain from Stairwell 5, level 1, placard (L)

9. SCENE RELEASE: The scene examination concluded at approximately 1525 hours.

1. BACKGROUND

1.1. On 31May25, NCIS initiated an investigation regarding a missing person report. The missing person was later identified as V/ A. R.), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). According to witnesses, V/ A. R. was last seen with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG-95 at his barracks located at Willis Manor (Building X-2), Room 335, 9712 Virginia Ave, Norfolk, VA on board Naval Station Norfolk. Reporting Forensic Consultant (RFC) responded to Building X-2, Room 335 to identify and document any suspected bloodstains and other items of potential forensic value on scene.

2. ARRIVAL, JURISDICTION, AND AUTHORIZATION

3. SCENE OBSERVATIONS—BUILDING X-2, ROOM 335

3.1. Building X-2 is a Navy unaccompanied housing military barracks with five floors containing multiple residences, see figure 2. Building X-2 has a parking lot located to the south of the building. Building X-2 is positioned in between Virginia Avenue and Maryland Avenue. Room 335 is located in the east wing, on the third floor, along the south side of the building.

3.2. Upon entering Room 335, RFC observed a foyer which led into the kitchen. South of the kitchen was a living room. RFC observed a broken coffee table in the living room. The coffee table also contained two red plastic cups and an opened bottle of "Uptown Cocktails" Strawberry Margarita ready-to-drink cocktail. Parallel to the kitchen and living room were two suites containing two single beds running along the east and west end of the residence. S/COPELAND was assigned to Suite B. Suite B contained two single beds, two desks, two closets, two sink vanities, and a single half bathroom which contained a toilet and shower. S/COPELAND's bed and closet were identified with a placard labeled as "BA". S/COPELAND's bed and desk were located along the east wall of the suite. North of S/COPELAND's bedroom, RFC observed a foyer leading into the closet and bathroom. RFC created a digital sketch displaying the layout of Room 335, see figure 3.

4. SCENE OBSERVATIONS—ROOM 335, SUITE B

4.1. RFC entered Suite B, see figures 8-14, and observed two single beds, two desks, two closets, two sink vanities, and a single half bathroom which contained a toilet and shower shared by the assigned suitemates. According to SSA ORTIZ, YN3 Sean MONAGHAN (YN3 MONAGHAN), USN, Helicopter Mine Countermeasures Squadron (HM 12), is the sole suitemate with S/COPELAND. SSA ORTIZ relayed YN3 MONAGHAN's belongings are assigned to bed, sink and closet labeled "BB" while S/COPELAND's belongings are assigned to bed, sink and closet labeled "BA".

5. SCENE OBSERVATIONS—HALF BATHROOM INSIDE SUITE B

5.1. RFC entered the half bathroom within Suite B and did not identify any visible bloodstain evidence within this area of the residence.

6. BLUESTAR APPLICATION—SINK VANITY

6.1. RFC was notified by PA NAROWSKI that she observed a suspected bloodstain on the northeast wall above the vanity sink belonging to S/COPELAND, see figure 15. PA NAROWSKI and the NCISRA Norfolk, VA Major Case Response Team (MCRT) conducted a preliminary test for the presence of blood on the stain using a Hemastix blood reagent test strip, yielding positive results. PA NAROWSKI and the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT documented the suspected bloodstain and seized a swab from the area. These actions are documented under a separate report.

6.2. Listed on the Bluestar Forensics website, Bluestar is a chemical reagent which reveals the presence of blood in a large or minute/diluted quantity. The reaction occurs when Bluestar interacts with the heme component of blood producing a blue luminescence. False positives can occur when Bluestar comes in contact with household chemicals such as detergents, bleach or copper, per the Bluestar Forensic website, producing a white or faded blue luminescence. Prior to using Bluestar throughout the scene a control sample test was conducted producing a positive reaction.

6.3. RFC then conducted a preliminary test for the presence of blood using a Bluestar forensic kit along the sink vanity and sink bowl belonging to S/COPELAND, yielding positive results. RFC attempted to capture photographs of the Bluestar reaction on the sink bowl prior to the collection of items deemed as forensic value but was unsuccessful. RFC collected a swab from the stain within this area and entered it into the NCISRA Norfolk, VA Evidence Custody System under Evidence Custody Document Number JQNT4:

Item# NAH9K—One (1) swab taken from inside bathroom sink bowl containing suspected blood after Bluestar application

7. BLUESTAR APPLICATION—CLOSET BA

7.1. The NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT completed a scene documentation of Room 335 which included photographs, a scene sketch, and notes. Several items of evidence were identified and seized. These actions are documented under a separate report. During the scene documentation, the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT requested assistance from Virginia Department of Emergency Management K9 Kira and Handler Andrew PISKE to identify human remains and/or other items of potential forensic value in the captioned investigation. K9 Kira and Handler PISKE conducted a search of Room 335, Suite B. K9 Kira and Handler PISKE alerted to the closet area labeled “BA”. RFC did not observe biological matter or suspected bloodstains in the closet with the unaided eye and subsequently the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT effected photographic coverage, see figure 16. RFC and the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT conducted a visual search of the belongings inside the closet and did not observe biological matter or suspected bloodstains. The NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT removed all belongings from the closet, see figure 17.

7.2. RFC then conducted a preliminary test for the presence of blood using a BLUESTAR forensic kit, yielding positive results. RFC effected photographic coverage, see figure 18, and collected swabs from the stains within this area and entered it into the NCISRA Norfolk, VA Evidence Custody System under Evidence Custody Document Number JQNT4:

8. BLUESTAR APPLICATION—SUITE B BEDROOM

8.1. RFC conducted a preliminary test for the presence of blood using a BLUESTAR forensic kit along the carpet, adjacent to Closet "BA", into the doorway of Suite B, yielding positive results, see figures 19-21. Subsequently on 10Jun25, the NCISRA Norfolk, VA MCRT collected several items deemed as forensic value to include the carpeted areas which tested positive for the presence of blood using the BLUESTAR forensic kit. These actions are documented under a separate report.

8.2. RFC observed a heavy concentration of Bluestar in the closet, forming a linear trail that gradually faded as it extended between Suite B and the living room. RFC attempted to capture photographs of the BLUESTAR reaction in the living room but was unsuccessful.

9. PHOTOGRAPHIC DOCUMENTATION

9.1. On 04Jun25, RFC took a series of photographs utilizing an NCIS issued a Nikon Z 6II camera (SN# 3068881) with a Nikon SB-5000 external flash. A total of eighteen (18) color photographs were exposed and subsequently downloaded onto one (1) Compact Disc-Recordable (CD-R); Enclosure (A) pertains. REVIEW OF USACIL DNA REPORT

1. On 10Jun25, the US Army Criminal Investigation Laboratory (USACIL) completed a Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA) Report pertaining to items of evidence submitted for examination; Enclosure (A) pertains.

2. The results of examination revealed blood was identified on Exhibit 6 (closet swabs/SCENE-COPELAND BARRACKS) and Exhibit 9 (swabs placard D/SCENE-stairwell). Additionally, a female DNA profile was obtained from Exhibit 17.1 (swab of water bottle/SCENE-[redacted V/A.R.] RESIDENCE), which is believed to be from [redacted V/A.R.]), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).

3. Regarding Exhibit 6 (closet swabs), the report revealed a DNA mixture interpreted as originating from two individuals was detected. The female DNA profile obtained from Exhibit 17.1 (swab of water bottle), believed to be from [redacted V/A.R.], and the DNA profile obtained from CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, are included as contributors to the mixture.

4. Regarding Exhibit 9 (swabs placard D), the report showed the DNA profile obtained matches the DNA profile from Exhibit 17.1 (swab of water bottle), which is believed to be from [redacted V/A.R.].

RESULTS OF INITIAL INTERVIEW OF CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

1. On 01Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Jessica GOKEY interviewed CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95) regarding his knowledge of the whereabouts of [redacted]. The interview took place in the lounge area on third floor of building X2, Willis Manor, located on Naval Station Norfolk (NOB), and was not recorded.

2. As background, [redacted] and S/COPELAND were placed into a Unauthorized Absence (UA) status subsequent to 29May25, after failing to report to work. On 01Jun25, after speaking with S/COPELAND's mother, NCIS and S/COPELAND's mother contacted Naval Station Norfolk (NOB) Base Police to conduct a follow-up health and welfare check on both S/COPELAND and [redacted]. The Naval Station Norfolk Watch Commander advised NOB Security Forces located S/COPELAND in his barracks rooms in Willis Manor, Room 335. NCIS was advised that Security Forces received no answer at [redacted] 's door when they knocked on her barracks room located on NOB, Miller Hall, Room 1083.

3. During his interview, S/COPELAND described his relationship with [redacted] as co-workers. S/COPELAND stated he texted with [redacted] on Wednesday, 28May25 to discuss recipes and ingredients for tacos. S/COPELAND stated [redacted] came over to his barracks room, made tacos and they both consumed alcohol. S/COPELAND explained [redacted] gradually became more upset as the night progressed and they spoke about her current and past romantic relationships. S/COPELAND stated [redacted] spoke on the phone to two (2) ex-boyfriends, both of which were confrontational calls. One call was with an ex-boyfriend he still believed was located in Texas (NFI) and the other call was with HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG 95.

4. S/COPELAND explained [redacted] and HT3 GILLESPIE argued over returning a motorcycle helmet and that HT3 GILLESPIE wanted it back. S/COPELAND said [redacted] explained her relationship with HT3 GILLESPIE was toxic and described her most recent ex-boyfriend, ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, DDG 95, as at first being a sweetheart and then he wasn't. S/COPELAND said ET3 RICH and HT3 GILLESPIE do not get along, that they have issues with each other, and opined it was due to their relationships with [redacted] S/COPELAND said HT3 GILLESPIE has come to the galley on the ship a lot, which sometimes caused issues. S/COPELAND said he did not know of any instances of HT3 GILLESPIE being violent toward [redacted] and that HT3 GILLESPIE was more of a topic of conversation than ET3 RICH was during their evening together.

S/COPELAND described his role during the evening as a sounding board for V/A.R. .

5. S/COPELAND recalled one of his roommates walked into the barracks suite (common area) and asked if V/A.R. was okay as she was upset, which he (S/COPELAND) responded yes.

6. S/COPELAND explained V/A.R. spent the night in his barracks room and they did not have sexual intercourse. S/COPELAND said he was supposed to work on Thursday 29May25, however, he woke up late as FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG 95, came to his barracks room at approximately 0900 and woke he and V/A.R.. S/COPELAND said he misunderstood FCC PARKER and did not report to work. S/COPELAND said he borrow his roommate's vehicle and drove V/A.R. back to her barracks at approximately 1000 hours. S/COPELAND said this was the last time he saw V/A.R..

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

1. On 03JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Bernadette DUFFY conducted an interview of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95) in regard to the Unauthorized Absence of V/A.R. [redacted], USN, DDG-95 and himself.

2. This interview was audio and video recorded utilizing Case Cracker. A copy of the recording was subsequently saved to an optical disc and maintained with the case file. This report should not be treated as a verbatim or comprehensive representation of the interview; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. Prior to being interviewed, S/COPELAND was advised of his Article 31(b) Rights by use of Military Suspect's Acknowledgement and Waiver of Rights form for an alleged violation of Article 86 (Absence without Leave) and Article 107 (False Official Statements). S/COPELAND, with full understanding of his rights, elected to waive his right to remain silent; Enclosure (B) pertains.

4. S/COPELAND was asked to recall the events on the night of 28JUN25 and what transpired the following days. S/COPELAND stated he and V/A.R. [redacted]Z were talking about food and making tacos. S/COPELAND continued saying, V/RESENDIZ was going to come over to his barracks, located at Building X-2, Willis Manor, Room 335, to make salsa and eat dinner. S/COPELAND explained he went to the Food Lion and bought the ingredients to make tacos and then he went back to X-2. S/COPELAND stated he then went and picked V/A.R. [redacted]Z up from her barracks, Miller Hall, and brought her back to his room. COPELAND explained later he utilized his roommates vehicle, later identified as a belonging to AR John CALISSE, USN, VAW-124 and being a white Jeep Compass, to pick up V/A.R. [redacted]Z. S/COPELAND stated V/A.R. [redacted]Z was wearing a black shirt, black pants, slip on Uggs, a bracelet, and a hair clip. S/COPELAND stated V/A.R. [redacted]Z was also carrying her purple backpack. S/COPELAND stated he could not recall what time he picked V/A.R. [redacted] up but after returning to the room they began to make tacos.

5. S/COPELAND stated after eating, him and V/A.R. [redacted]Z started listening to music and started talking. S/COPELAND explained V/A.R. [redacted] began talking about HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG-95, and how she saw him with another girl on his motorcycle and how it had really upse V/A.R. [redacted]. S/COPELAND stated V/A.R. 6. S/COPELAND explained he did not know much about the relationship between HT3 GILLESPIE and [V/A.R.]Z, but S/COPELAND did recall [V/A.R.]Z was mad about the amount of money she would spend on HT3 GILLESPIE. S/COPELAND provided the example of HT3 GILLESPIE needed a lawyer and [V/A.R.]Z gave him $500.00 to hire one even though HT3 GILLESPIE could have received a public defender. S/COPELAND did not believe HT3 GILLESPIE and [V/A.R.]Z were in any physical altercations or abusive relationship. S/COPELAND stated [V/A.R.]Z went on a "rampage" and was becoming "agitated." S/COPELAND stated after completing the phone calls [V/A.R.]Z was becoming "emotional" and "crying."

7. S/COPELAND stated one of the roommates, "the Mexican" later identified as PSSN Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, USN, Airborne Command and Control Squadron 124 (VAW-124), walked into the common area of the room and asked i [V/A.R.] was okay. S/COPELAND stated he told PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ, [V/A.R.]Z was fine and PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ proceeded to his room. S/COPELAND stated the night ended and they both went to sleep together in S/COPELAND's bed. S/COPELAND stated they did not have sexual intercourse. After going to sleep, S/COPELAND was awoken by FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG-95, knocking on the door of his bedroom. S/COPELAND said he could not remember what time it was but knew the sun was up. S/COPELAND stated FCC PARKER asked if the person in his bed wa [V/A.R.], which S/COPELAND replied it wa [V/A.R.] S/COPELAND explained FCC PARKER told him to get to work and asked if he had a ride, which S/COPELAND stated he told FCC PARKER one of his roommates could give him a ride to work. S/COPELAND admitted though he did not go to work due to "one of his roommates" not coming home. S/COPELAND further explained, him being UA was a big misunderstanding because he had the weekend off and he did not realize if you are marked UA for one day, you are marked UA for the days you remain away from work.

8. S/COPELAND stated he was marked UA Thursday, 29JUN25 until Sunday, 01MAY25 when base security located him within his barracks room. When asked his whereabouts for Friday and Saturday, S/COPELAND responded, he stayed in the barracks both days but would move from lounge to lounge. S/COPELAND stated he mostly hung out in the 5th floor lounge and Ms. Mary (NFI) could vouch for his whereabouts during the time frame.

9. RA asked S/COPELAND about the morning of 29JUN25 and what had transpired after FCC PARKER left the room. S/COPELAND recalled him an [V/A.R.] woke up and cleaned the kitchen and [V/A.R.]Z left in an Uber, later clarified to be a Z-Trip.

10. RA asked S/COPELAND if he would sign a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his cellphone, S/COPELAND agreed to signing a PASS and provided his passcode, 980377. Prior to signing the PASS, S/COPELAND requested to call his mother, and would not sign the PASS; Enclosure (C) pertains. PA asked S/COPELAND if he would be fine with answering further questions and call his mother later, S/COPELAND agreed.

11. RA had previously informed S/COPELAND NCIS was conducting a Command Authorized Search and Seizure (CASS) in his barracks room and the common area and began to ask questions about S/COPELAND's barracks room and his electronics. S/COPELAND stated he had an iPhone15 in his room and a PlayStation 5 in the common room.

12. RA inquired about V/A.R.'s electronics to include her iPhone. S/COPELAND stated the only electronic V/A.R. had with her was her iPhone15. S/COPELAND confirmed the Apple iWatch was also his, which was located in his barracks room.

13. RA asked S/COPELAND if the statement he gave was true and accurate to the best of his knowledge, which S/COPELAND stated this statement was the correct statement. RA then confronted S/COPELAND on the discretions between his previous statement, given on 01JUN25 and the statement he gave during this interview.

14. RA asked S/COPELAND about him and V/A.R. being naked on the floor by the couch, S/COPELAND denied being on the floor naked with V/A.R. . S/COPELAND stated he and V/A.R. fell asleep in his bed, clothed.

15. RA asked S/COPELAND about him changing his story about dropping V/A.R. off at her barracks, to V/A.R. leaving on her own after cleaning, to which S/COPELAND stated he did not remember saying he had previously dropped V/A.R. off at her barracks. RA asked S/COPELAND about how he knew V/A.R. was taking a Z-Trip from his barracks versus walking from his barracks, and S/COPELAND stated he just assumed V/A.R. had taken a Z-Trip back to her barracks.

16. RA inquired about S/COPELAND telling FCC PARKER he would wait for his roommate to get home to take S/COPELAND to work. RA asked about S/COPELAND's roommate's work schedule and why he would tell FCC PARKER the roommate would take him to work knowing his roommate does not get home until approximately 1600-1700. S/COPELAND stated he would not ask anyone else to take him to work. S/COPELAND stated he did not know when his roommate would be home due to a squadron's working hours being different from the ships work schedule.

17. PA conducted another PASS for a backpack, barracks room, and

1_Copeland Interview_3Jun25

MS. BEA: Okay. I didn't know what you prefer, so you all that.

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

MS. BEA: Yeah, no problem. I'll be right back with you. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: All right. Thank you.

[Ms. Bea departed the room.]

MS. BEA: Sorry, Jeremiah, for that delay. You good?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I'm fine.

MS. BEA: Did you eat?

CSSN COPELAND: I ate a little.

MS. BEA: Do you want more and CheezIts?

CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.]

MS. BEA: Okay. If you change your mind, let me know, okay?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: Jess introduced herself, right? You know Justin?

Yeah.

SA GOKEY: I'll do it again. Oh, just for, you know.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Special Agent Jessica Gokey.

MS. BEA: I'm still Bea.

CSSN COPELAND: [Inaudible 00:07:49.]

SA GOKEY: Your CAC is it in your wallet?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. [Hands wallet to CSSN Copeland.]

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am. [Did as directed.]

SA GOKEY: All righty. I'll put that back out here with your stuff. All right.

Okay. So, I know we talked Sunday a little bit about what's going on, but that was more like super informal. Now, we're in like the more formal setting, so I'm just going to get some information from you, okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am. All right.

Just need--okay. What day did you report to the ship, roughly?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe like February 21st.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Of this year, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okey-dokey. What--you're CSSN, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Branch? U.S.

Sex?

CSSN COPELAND: Male.

SA GOKEY: Race?

CSSN COPELAND: Black. African American.

SA GOKEY: Okay. U.S. citizen?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Do you have a clearance?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What's your full social?

CSSN COPELAND: [Redacted.]

SA GOKEY: [Redacted.]

CSSN COPELAND: [Redacted.]

SA GOKEY: Just kidding.

CSSN COPELAND: [Redacted.]

SA GOKEY: [Redacted.]

CSSN COPELAND: [Redacted.]

SA GOKEY: [Redacted.]

CSSN COPELAND: [Redacted.]

SA GOKEY: [Redacted.]

All right. Date of birth?

CSSN COPELAND: PII

SA GOKEY: Got another '05.

MS. BEA: It just makes us feel old.

SA GOKEY: It makes me feel old. I was a junior in high school.

How tall are you?

CSSN COPELAND: Like five-ten. Five-nine and a half.

SA GOKEY: I'll give you five-ten.

Weight?

CSSN COPELAND: Like 157.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Hair color?

CSSN COPELAND: Black.

SA GOKEY: Place of birth?

CSSN COPELAND: [redacted].

SA GOKEY: [redacted]. Was that [redacted]?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Is it [redacted]?

CSSN COPELAND: [redacted].

SA GOKEY: All right. Eye color?

CSSN COPELAND: Brown.

SA GOKEY: Brown. Okay. When are you set to rotate?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't even know.

SA GOKEY: No? Okay.

Is this your first enlistment?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: So, when did you enlist?

CSSN COPELAND: I joined the Navy July 13th, 2023.

SA GOKEY: 13th, July 23. Okay. I see you got tattoos. What's your favorite?

SA GOKEY: Okay. What's it say?

CSSN COPELAND: In life, we all suffer, but I'll find my way through the darkness.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Is that from the Bible?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: What's it from?

CSSN COPELAND: Just a quote.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And that's your left arm?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: All right. And you currently reside at PII?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Room number?

CSSN COPELAND: PII.

SA GOKEY: Are you Alpha Bravo?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe--I don't even know.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Bravo.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And then in the room, do you know if you're---

CSSN COPELAND: I believe I'm Alpha.

SA GOKEY: You're Alpha in the room. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What's a good note--a good phone number for you?

CSSN COPELAND: PII.

SA GOKEY: PII.

CSSN COPELAND: PII.

SA GOKEY: PII.

CSSN COPELAND: PII.

SA GOKEY: PII Okay. Good email?

CSSN COPELAND: [redacted]

SA GOKEY: Seven at Gmail. Okay. Do you have a vehicle?

CSSN COPELAND: No, no ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What is your home address of record?

CSSN COPELAND: [redacted]

SA GOKEY: Upland?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Is that Durham?

CSSN COPELAND: No, that's in [redacted].

SA GOKEY: Oh, [redacted].

Okay. Do you know the zip code?

CSSN COPELAND: [redacted].

SA GOKEY: [redacted].

Okay. Highest level of education?

CSSN COPELAND: High school diploma.

SA GOKEY: High school. Okay.

You married?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: All right. Who's your next to kin?

CSSN COPELAND: My mom.

SA GOKEY: Mom. What's Mama's name?

CSSN COPELAND: Rochelle Brown. R-O-C-H-E-L-L. And like--like the color brown.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do you know Mom's phone number by chance?

CSSN COPELAND: [redacted]

SA GOKEY: All right. Most--most people don't know their parents' number or they're next to kin.

Do you have a civilian occupation? Like, do you Uber Eats or anything on the side?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

Do you want to see that?

MS. BEA: No.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I figured. We'll just have--have you hold onto that.

Okay. So, I know from past experience you've been down this road before with Ms. Bea here, and kind of like what--why we were at your room today. So, we're executing a CASS, which is a Command Authorized Search and Seizure because [redacted] that was the last place, you know, we--you--somebody saw her, me being you?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: So, that's why we're doing that. Right? So, right now we're classifying her as UA.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: And I would like to talk to you about the time that you were also UA and some other inconsist--inconsistencies I've gotten from the previous statement that we had in order to protect you. I want to read you your rights.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: And then, we can discuss further if you want to, okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. If you don't mind, I'm going to scoot a little closer.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, I am going to read this to you. All right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: And then, whenever I say like, "One," and then I read it, I'm going to ask you if you understand.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: You're going to say yes or no. If you understand. Yes. If you don't know, and then I'll explain further for you. Okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: All right. So, the place is in NCIS U-40. That is this building. The date is 03 June 25. You, Jeremiah Copeland, have been advised by me, Special Agent Jessica Gokey, that you were suspected of Article 86, unauthorized absence, and Article 107, false official.

You have also been advised that:

One, you have the right to remain silent and make no statement at all.

Do you understand this right?

CSSN COPELAND: I understand the right, but what is Article 107 for false official?

SA GOKEY: So, it's the false official statement. So, I'm going to ask you questions that could be incriminating.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: About, you know, the story that we talked about on Sunday.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: So, because you're military, you guys get----

CSSN COPELAND: Articles.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. You guys and you also get to get told what we're talking about it, so there's no surprises. So I am--I'm going to ask you questions that could be incriminating. So, therefore, I have to read you that right? Or excuse me, that article.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Does that make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, I'll read number one again. All right. You have the right to remain silent and make no statement at all.

Do you understand this right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I'm going to ask you to initial it, it is not that you're waiving your right at that time.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I understand.

SA GOKEY: Okay, perfect. Just saying that you understand.

All right, and so I'll read number two. Any statement you make can be used against you in a trial by court-martial or other judicial or administrative proceedings.

Do you understand this right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay, go ahead for me.

Three. You have the right to consult with a lawyer prior to any questioning. This lawyer may be a civilian lawyer retained by you at no cost to the United States, a military lawyer appointed to act as your counsel at no cost to you, or both.

Do you understand this right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay, go ahead.

CSSN COPELAND: [Did as directed.]

SA GOKEY: Four. You have the right to have your retained lawyer and or appointed military lawyer present during this interview.

Do you understand this right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And five, you may terminate this interview at any time for any reason.

Do you understand this right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay, go ahead.

CSSN COPELAND: [Did as directed.]

SA GOKEY: All right. So, one through five. Do you have any questions about that at all?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay, perfect.

So, at this time, Jeremiah, do you want to continue this conversation?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Go ahead and read that paragraph out loud for me.

CSSN COPELAND: I understand my rights as relative to me and--to me and as set forth above. With that understanding, I have decided that I do not desire to remain silent, consult with a retained or appoint lawyer, or have a lawyer present at this time. I make this decision freely and voluntarily. No threats or promises have been made with me--or been made to me.

SA GOKEY: Perfect. Have I threatened you today?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Has any other agent threatened you?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Have we made any promises to you?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. If you would just initial before and after that paragraph for me.

CSSN COPELAND: [Did as directed.]

SA GOKEY: And then, I'll have you sign and date.

CSSN COPELAND: [Did as directed.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. And then, I will sign it, and I'll have Ms. Bea sign it as well.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Ms. Bea. [Hands document to Ms. Bea.]

Thank you. All right.

Okay. All right, Jeremiah. Okay. So, if you need a break, if you need to use the restroom, or you need more snackies, let me know. Okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: All right. So, we know we're talking about V/ A. R.

Can you go ahead and tell me, you know, the events leading up to why we're here right now?

CSSN COPELAND: So, I mean, I--what is it? We were at work, and she gave me a recipe to make salsa, and I was like, "I'm probably going to make it by tonight, or some shit." So, she was like, "Cool." And she was like, "If you do end up making tacos, then just call me." I was like, "All right. Bet. Cool."

So, I got home. By the time I got off work and everything, I called her and I was like, "I'm finna make tacos." And she was like, "All right." So, I told her I was just going to go to the store just to grab the rest of the stuff that was on the--like on the menu that she gave me. And then from there I went to the store, got everything, and then I came and picked her up, and we came back home. From there, we cooked--well, she made the salsa. We made tacos. She taught me how to make these, like, little tortillas, like out of the corn tortillas.

From there everything was cool, and we were just chilling, playing music, listening music. From there, she--it took a left turn when I told her something about one of the dudes that she messes with on the boat. And then, from there she was just, she got on the floor and she called one of her ex-boyfriends from Texas. We were sitting there talking for about maybe like 15, 20 minutes, maybe 25, just talking about the situation. Everything.

After that, she hung up, and she was just going on a call spree, calling hella people. And then from there, I guess she just broke down, whatever, saying how he did this. He did that. Cool. And then, from there, my roommate walked--walked in the room, and he asked if everything was good. I was like, "Just let her have a moment." because she's just sitting there crying. I'm not going to sit there and entertain that. So, we went to sleep. The morning comes, and obviously, I had to be at work, so I didn't show up. My Chief came in the room and he asked, "What's going on?" I was just saying, "I'm just having a late start." And he was like, "All right. Cool." He told me, "Do I have a ride to work?" And I said, "I, at the current moment, I was like, my roommate can take me, but I have--I have to wait until he gets off work." So, my Chief was like, "All right. Cool."

And so, my roommate got off late, so by the time my roommate got home, like they were already gone. So, I was just like, "Fuck it." And I was just like, I wasn't going to go in. So, I didn't go in. And then Friday comes, Saturday goes by, and then CS1 and my chief text me saying that I'm being marked UA. And from there, I was just like, all right.

And Sunday comes, the MAs come because my mom called because I haven't contacted my mom. So, I guess that part it was a well welfare check.

So, Sunday, I ended up going to the ship. And from there, I did urinalysis. And after urinalysis, they released me, and I went back home.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. All right. So, you went to--so, let's go back to when--what day did she come over?

CSSN COPELAND: Thursday.

SA GOKEY: Okay. You're positive it was Thursday?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am. I believe it was Thursday.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, you were going to make tacos, and you were going to go to the store to get the ingredients?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And you did go to the store?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: How did you get to the store?

CSSN COPELAND: My roommate took me to the store.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Which roommate?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't specifically know his name, but he's across the room from me. He's the black African dude.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, the--the black guy in the other room?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What kind of car does he drive?

CSSN COPELAND: White Jeep.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, he took you, or you just took his keys?

CSSN COPELAND: No, he took me.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What store did you go to?

CSSN COPELAND: We went to Food Lion.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Was that--which one?

CSSN COPELAND: I have no clue. There's like a lot of Food Lions.

SA GOKEY: That's fair. That's fair.

Do you know about what time you guys went?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. You said you called her right, though?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I FaceTimed her.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you FaceTimed her, and then did you go to the store right after you FaceTimed her?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I hung up, and then after that, I was just telling him. I said, "Cool. Can we go to the store?" And he was like, "Yeah, let's go."

SA GOKEY: Okay.

MS. BEA: Did he go in with you?

CSSN COPELAND: Hmm?

MS. BEA: Did he go in with you? Like, y'all were both doing some shopping?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, he went in with me.

MS. BEA: Okay.

SA GOKEY: Okay. All right. And then, what'd you do after you left the store?

CSSN COPELAND: We went back home.

SA GOKEY: Back to your building?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, how did V/ A. R. get there?

CSSN COPELAND: I came and picked her up.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And did--in what car?

CSSN COPELAND: My roommate's car.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did he go with you on that one?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I came and picked her up.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

MS. BEA: Same Jeep you said?

CSSN COPELAND: Huh?

MS. BEA: Same Jeep?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Same roommate. Okay.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you guys went--or excuse me, you went and picked her up.

What was she wearing?

CSSN COPELAND: I can't recall. I remember she was wearing a black shirt and I believe black pants.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did she have anything with her?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe she had a--she had a purple backpack that she always carries with her.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I think that was it.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Any--anything more descriptive about what she was wearing? Was like--again, like you may be one of the last people to here before she went UA.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: And I'm really trying to find her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: because she's UA and she needs to be at work, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: So, anything more descriptive that I can start looking for?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah, like, I can't really remember that. All I remember is her wearing a black shirt. I believe it was black pants and she had some Uggs.

SA GOKEY: Uggs. What kind of Uggs?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know the brand of--I--I just know of Uggs.

SA GOKEY: But--so, were they like slip-ons or were they boots or?

CSSN COPELAND: They were slip-ons.

SA GOKEY: They were the slip-ons. Okay. Okay. So, slip-on Uggs. Okay. Anything else?

CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.]

SA GOKEY: Did you notice any jewelry that she was wearing?

CSSN COPELAND: I know she had a bracelet and I think a hair clip.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And a hair clip. Like one of the big ones to pull up a bunch of hair, or like a little big one.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It was like a--a clip. Like an actual clip? Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. But like, big one, little one.

CSSN COPELAND: It was like a medium-sized one.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know how females justify their hair clips, so.

SA GOKEY: No, that's fine.

MS. BEA: I never met V/ A. R. Is she Hispanic? Is she black? Is she white?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe she's Hispanic.

MS. BEA: Okay. Does she wear, like, any kind of braids or anything like that? Or like, just kind of like, where's it long?

CSSN COPELAND: Military--military style, like in a bun.

MS. BEA: When you picked her up, was it in a bun?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Okay. Was it in a bun the whole time?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. She always keeps her hair in a bun.

MS. BEA: Got it.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Does she have her nose pierced?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Do you recall about what time you picked her up?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't remember.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. All right. So, you picked her up, and then what did you do?

CSSN COPELAND: After that, we came home and we started making tacos.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did she--did you say something about salsa on Sunday?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I mean, that shit is in the sink right now.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: In my room, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So did she--did she make it there or did you guys----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, she made it. I don't know if it was--it was like a guacamole or a salsa. It was one of the two. She made it in the room, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: She made everything, put it in the blender. The shit is still sitting in the sink right now, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Was it good?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, it was good, but it--it was her and my stomach. I have a weak stomach, so.

SA GOKEY: That's fair. That's fair. Did she bring any of the ingredients with her?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I bought everything at the store.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay.

So, you bought all the ingredients, and then she just made it?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. All right. So, you guys made tacos. She made the salsa. Y'all ate. Then what happened?

CSSN COPELAND: From there, we started listening to music on my game on Apple Music and Spotify. It was going back and forth because too many people was on the internet at the time. So, obviously, it's going to start lagging. And then from there we just started talking. And she mentioned something about Gillespie, which is the dude that she talks to on the boat, and all this other stuff. And then, that's when I had brought up the fact that, like, something about he said something about him picking up a female. And she was like, that's crazy, because she went on a walk, so and so, and she basically saw him pick up a female that looked like it was on his bike because he wears all black. So, she said it looked like it was his. And from there, I'm pretty sure she knew that it was him. So, she texted him and she was like, "Fuck you."

Sorry for my language.

SA GOKEY: No, but we're all adults. So, you cuss, you say whatever you--you need to say to----

CSSN COPELAND: But it--it is just me out of respect. I don't--you know.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. But from there she said that. And from there, that's when she called her ex-boyfriend, that lived in Texas. And I was sitting on the couch. She was--she was sitting on the floor, and then she told me to come over to meet him. And then from there I was like, "What's good, Brody?" And he was like, "What's good?" And from there, they were talking, and I would just put my feedback in or just like, say like little things, because at the end of the day, it's not really my conversation, it's theirs. They're having a conversation, so. They were talking whatever. And then, from there they hung up and she was just calling other people, talking about how Gillespie's not shit, this, that, the third, and just going on a rabbit spree, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, what is Gillespie and her's relationship?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't really know. It's not really my part to really say, because I don't know much about Gillespie. I mean, I know that he works on our boat. She did mention they previously dated. I don't know how, for how long.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did she tell you anything about if there was any, like, emotional abuse or physical abuse or anything like that between the two of them?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so. I know she was basically saying, like, how much money she spent basically on him paying for all his shit. He never done shit for her and so on. I know she mentioned--I think the thing that really like blew her over is how she said that she recently paid him $500 for a lawyer.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And from there I was like, that's crazy because I told him that he could have got a public defender for the--the--he was going to court for speeding.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And I remember previously talking to him that week about that, because I said he could have got a public defender, and I guess that blew her because she basically told him the same thing, and I guess he didn't listen to her and got a lawyer anyway. So, she spent $500 helping him pay for a lawyer.

SA GOKEY: Damn. She seems nice. I wouldn't do that.

CSSN COPELAND: Right.

SA GOKEY: Absolutely not. Sorry. Okay.

Anything else you know about the relationship?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't really know much about Gil. So, that's as far as--that's----

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: ----everything that I know.

SA GOKEY: Okay. From your own perception, do--what do you think of Gil?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like I said, I don't really know him that much.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, it's like, I can't really say what I know about him.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I've had a couple conversations to him, but I don't know him as a person, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you couldn't say if, like, he's mean or nice or anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, from the conversations I had with him, he's--he's cool. Like, that's all I can say. I don't know him as a person, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Just asking mainly because you know, she--he's an ex-boyfriend, so.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I don't really know what they get into for their relationship, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. All right. Okay. What about this ex-boyfriend from Texas? Do you know anything about that person?

CSSN COPELAND: That was my first time ever meeting, talking to him, seeing him, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What'd he look like?

CSSN COPELAND: He was kind of like my complexion.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Pretty much the same color. Same like, build. I believe he had dreads.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did--did you hear like a nickname or his name by chance?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. And you saw him, so was she FaceTiming him?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, they were FaceTiming. Okay. All right. Okay.

So, then what happened?

CSSN COPELAND: After what?

SA GOKEY: I guess, after you guys got off the phone with the ex-boyfriend from Texas.

CSSN COPELAND: She went on a, like, rampage calling other people and just talking about how Gilispe's not shit.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And when you say, rampage, I'm asking just because I want to--I want to understand like her mindset right then, like her--her mental capacity at that point.

Like, can you describe to me what that means to you?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, she was just calling other people.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And just talking about how Gil's not shit.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Was she pissed off and cussing, or was she crying? Was she just like, you know, just kind of flailing around? Anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, she was like, she was cooling, but she--at the same time, you could tell that she's getting like agitated.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like I said, like, after we were talking, she mentioned that she spent $500. That's what blew her because she was, like, not only did I mention that, but she also told him, and on top of him telling her that, or, like, her telling him that, somebody else told her the same thing about getting a public defender, so.

It's just like she felt like he lied to him, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: All right. So, I mean, in your opinion--I know you might not know him--do you think he was using her for money?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't--I'm not--it's not my part. I don't know him, so.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. No. That's fine.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: So, I was, like, in your opinion--if you don't know, you don't know, okay? So, do you know who all she was calling?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am. The only person that I saw, or that I knew, was her ex-boyfriend, which she introduced me to.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, just the Texas guy?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you didn't know who else she called?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So. All right. So, then, what else happened?

CSSN COPELAND: From there, after she started making phone calls, like, she started getting emotional, started crying, and shit. From there, I just sat on the couch, you know, I was just like, all right, bro. Like, you just had her moment.

SA GOKEY: Okay. You were sitting on the couch. Where was she sitting?

CSSN COPELAND: She was sitting on the floor, like right in front of the table.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, then what happened?

CSSN COPELAND: From there, she was still crying, and then my other roommate, the Mexican one that's also across the room, he walked in, and he was just asking, is everything cool? And I was like, yeah, bro. I was like, she's just having her moment. And I was like--I was like, she's--she's going to be good. And then he was like, all right. Cool. And he walked in the room, and I guess, I don't know. He just walked in the room and just kept it pushing.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, he didn't really get involved?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Nah. He was just making sure if everything was good, and I told him, yeah, she's fine. Like, she just had some shit happen, so. She's just having her moment right now.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And he was like, all right. Cool. And he was like, if y'all need something, just come, let me know. I was like, all right. Back at cha.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Then what happened?

CSSN COPELAND: And from there, that's when the night started ending. Like, I was like, cool. I'm going to go to sleep. And she was like, all right. Cool. So, she came and went to sleep with me.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Where did you guys go to sleep?

CSSN COPELAND: My bed.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, then your bed. Okay. And she slept with you?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Did you guys have sex?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. And then what happened? What was the next thing you remember?

CSSN COPELAND: I went to sleep.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And then from there, that's when my chief came and knocked on the door the next day.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And what chief was that, again?

CSSN COPELAND: FCC Parker.

SA GOKEY: Parker. Okay. Do you remember about what time he knocked on the door?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Was the sun out or was it still dark?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. The sun was out.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. And then walk me through what happened next?

CSSN COPELAND: He knocked on the door, and then I could hear somebody fidgeting with the doorknob. So, I thought it was my roommate because usually if I lock the door, if I close the door, he would just knock on the door until I wake up. So, I was like, hold on.

So, I woke up, and chief was there, and I was like, oh. I was like, good morning chief. And he was like, you having a late morning, like a late start? I was like, yeah. And he was like, is V/ A. R. here? I was, like, yeah, she's right there. He saw her. He was like, all right. Cool. And that's when he was asking like, do I got a ride to work and everything? And I was like, at the moment, like, my roommate, he can take me whenever he gets off work. And he was like, all right. Cool.

He was like, just make sure you call CS1 or whatever and let him know, like, you're heading to work and everything. I was like, all right. Cool.

So, my roommate, he still never came through like when he was supposed to get off. So, I--I didn't go to work and I was just like, fuck it. I didn't go to work.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's when everything processed through, all the way up to Saturday, when CS1 and chief told me I was marked UA.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: But I feel like it was all a misunderstanding because obviously, I had the weekend off, but I guess that's how the military is. If you are marked UA or whatever the day I wasn't present, it still builds up until I actually go in and basically----

SA GOKEY: And show face.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, how many days did you get marked UA then?

CSSN COPELAND: Thursday, Friday, I think it was four. Thursday, Friday, Saturday, Sunday. Yeah. Sunday, around like the evening time, I came and I went to the CDO, and from there the CO is--was like, yeah, your mom called and she was worried [inaudible 00:39:26]. I didn't know about that part either, so.

I was like, yeah, I was like, I'm here. So, he told me I just got to standby until, until they can get somebody to basically do a urinalysis on me.

So, I waited, and then they ended up calling my MA1 because they couldn't find whatever they needed to find for her to get my sample. So, I waited until she got to the ship.

She got there. She got my information, and then after that, I did urinalysis. And then from there, they said I was good to leave.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. All right. So, then, you said you were marked UA Thursday through Sunday?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, then what were you doing Friday?

CSSN COPELAND: I was at home.

SA GOKEY: At the barracks?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What were you doing?

CSSN COPELAND: In the lounge.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did you go anywhere?

CSSN COPELAND: I never left the building.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. What about Saturday?

CSSN COPELAND: I was also in the lounge. I was just in the barracks.

SA GOKEY: In your lounge? In your bedroom or in your----

CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, in the building.

SA GOKEY: Oh, gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, I think my roommate knows by now, I don't really fuck with him. Like, ever since I've been in the barracks, I either sleep on the couch or whenever he is not in the room, that's when I'm in the room.

Obviously, when he goes to the room, I go into the living room or outside the room.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, the one that you share a space with?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. You--you guys don't get along?

CSSN COPELAND: No. He's just fucking filthy.

SA GOKEY: I gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, it--it fucking irritates me every day that I have to go into a room with another grown man--you don't shower, you don't maintain yourself.

SA GOKEY: Gross.

CSSN COPELAND: And it came up until, I believe, yesterday morning, when his CO came to inspect the room and basically saw how shitty and fucked up his side was, that he had to fully deep clean the entire room.

It just annoys and irritates me that I have to live with someone like that, so.

SA GOKEY: No.

CSSN COPELAND: I go to the front desk every day. Like, they can't really move him because he's in a squadron. All right. Cool.

They offered if I wanted to move, but I told them, yeah, and--with just with me working my hours, I couldn't move because obviously when I had work, I wouldn't been able to move out within the timeframe they gave me, so.

They gave me like a timeframe. It was like three days or something. So, I couldn't switch rooms. So, it was what it was, but it just irritates me.

I think my roommate should know by now, like, whenever he's up or in the room, I'm outside the room or I'm in the living room. Whenever I go to sleep, I either go to my homeboy's room, or I go somewhere else, or I sleep on the couch.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Sometimes I sleep in the room because I'm--I'm just exhausted and tired, and--yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I don't blame you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It is--it annoys me, and he's older than I am.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. How old is he? Do you know?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe he's like, 21.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Or 22, something like that.

MS. BEA: Yeah. It's just gross.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. I would not be able to handle living in a situation like that. I would lose my mind.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, it is what it is. At the end of the day, I mean, deployment is the same way.

SA GOKEY: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: The fact that you're on land, you have all the time in the world to take a shower, clean up, do what you need to do, but he just chooses not to.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know why. It's----

SA GOKEY: Some people weren't raised right. Okay.

So, that Saturday, you were in a lounge in the barracks. Do you know which lounge?

CSSN COPELAND: I was like, on the third floor--fifth floor.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you were on both of them, or, you know----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Cool. Were you with anybody in there?

CSSN COPELAND: No. I was by myself.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do they have TVs in there or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I gotcha. Okay.

So, then Sunday, what were you doing?

CSSN COPELAND: I was also in the lounge.

SA GOKEY: Of the barracks?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's when I went to go take a shit, and I went to--I was taking a shit, and I heard somebody knock on the door, and I believe it was Ms. Mary's voice, and she asked who was in here, and I said, Copeland. And she was like, okay.

A couple minutes later, I heard somebody else like, trying to get in. I was like, I'm taking a shit. But he asked if he could come in here. I was like, bro, I'm taking a shit. He was like, all right. Cool.

And I believe like three, five minutes after that, that's when I believe the MAs came knocking on the door, asking--telling me to basically come out. From there, I was just like, what the fuck?

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: After that, I told him, just lemme wipe my ass. I got up, washed my hands, and everything. Cool. Walked out, and he was basically asking, do you know why I'm here?

I was like, yeah, because my chief texted me this morning saying basically--or the morning before that I was marked UA. And they were like, all right.

And from there, they weren't really saying much, but I guess, they were just asking me questions, like, more about myself, like, who--like, where I'm from and shit. Like, what school I graduated from, what sports and stuff do I play.

And then from there, the MA that was talking to me had left, went downstairs to go find his chief. And then from there, I was just upstairs talking to the two--the other MAs that were there.

After that, we walked down there. And from there, they basically talked to their chief, whatever. And he basically told me, just go check in to my command because obviously, I'm marked UA and to not make things worse on myself than what it already is, so.

I was like, all right. Cool. And I was like, I'll go do that. So, after that, I called my chief, and I was like--I [inaudible 00:46:15] asking my chief like, should I go basically to the barge right now with the time that it is right now? Or should I just wait till Monday when I have work?

And my chief was basically saying, it doesn't really make a difference. He said it would be--it could be better if I just go now, so it can be up and out the way. And he was like--he was saying, it's not really going to make a difference though because even if I do go Monday, it's going to be the same thing.

So, I was like, all right. Cool. And I hung up, and I put on my uniform, and I went to the barge. And then from there, that's when they did urinalysis and everything.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay.

So, your chief texted you Saturday and told you you were UA?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Why didn't you go in then?

CSSN COPELAND: because I was off. I already--I already told him. He asked the same thing. I was just like, if I'm off, then I'm off.

I mean, I read that you marked me UA. Cool. But if I'm off, like, they already know I'm not going to answer my phone. Like, even my CS2s, when they call, if I'm off, I'm not answering the phone.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you thought you were just off and not being marked as UA for the days you originally had off?

CSSN COPELAND: I--yeah. I didn't know what UA fully was, obviously, up until now. And they basically told me, cool.

So, if I'm marked UA, I'm just thinking, all right. When I go in Monday, they're just going to ask me basically what happened over the weekend, or why didn't I come in?

I didn't know that it keeps continuously going every day until I go and check in.

SA GOKEY: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: Until the MAs basically came in and told me that, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did command or the MAs ever come knocking on the door, like, Thursday or Friday, or Saturday?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know. I was--I wasn't home at the time if they did come in.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So.

SA GOKEY: So, then where were you?

CSSN COPELAND: In the lounge.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I gotcha. Okay. But you were in the building somewhere?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

Is there anybody that I can talk to to verify that you were in the lounges? Did anybody see you? Any friends, any passerby?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, shit if--whoever was there. I mean, you could talk to Ms. Mary.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: She walked in the lounge. I was on the fifth floor. She asked if I was good. I told her, yes, ma'am. I just told her--she walked by again and asked if everything was good. I told her, yeah. I just told her I didn't want to be in my room.

She obviously knows the state of my roommate.

SA GOKEY: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: because she was literally the only person that I went to every time I had an issue with my roommate. So, she can vouch and say the same thing, because I honestly do not like my roommate.

SA GOKEY: That's fair.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, he's a cool person. Like, he's a--he's a caring person, but it's just the way that he lives. I don't--I--I can't--like, I can't accept that.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: It's just filthy. Like, I respect him as a person, everything you do, cool. It's just the way that he lives as a person, it's filthy.

SA GOKEY: That's fair. That's fair. Okay.

So, Ms. Mary saw you the whole weekend in one of the lounges?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not going to say the whole weekend.

SA GOKEY: Well, I'm sorry. Like, one of the days or one of the times of these?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Anybody else?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

I mean, there was another dude that was in the lounge with us at the time, but I don't know him.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I'm sorry. I'm just picking up. You say with us. Were--was it just you and that other person, or were there like multiple people?

CSSN COPELAND: So, when I say us, it's like, it was me and another dude. We were inside the lounge, and at the time, they made him come into the lounge because they were people, like the workers there. They were cleaning the floor. They were waxing the floor. So, they made him come inside the lounge until they were done waxing the floor.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: But you don't know who that person is?

CSSN COPELAND: I've never seen him a day in my life.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Okay.

And then--so, then you guys go--do you go do your analysis? Who took you to do that?

CSSN COPELAND: So, when I walked in, one of my homeboys was--he was on watch and I was like, what's good, bro? He was like, what's good? And I was like, can you call the CDO for me? And he didn't know how to call the CDO. So, he walked into one of the--he walked into like, this little area. It's like when you first walk into the barge and he asked for one of the chiefs.

And he was like, chief, do you think you could help me call for the CDO? And that's when one of the chiefs walked out, and he was like, you can't call for the CDO, like on the radio----

SA GOKEY: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: ----so, because it goes straight to the ship. And he was like, what do you need the CDO for? And then that's when I walked up and I was like, I need the CDO. And he was like, oh, okay.

And he picked up on his radio. He was like, CDO--he was like, CSSN Copeland here. And I guess like, basically, just telling him that I'm here to check in. So, he was like, give him a minute, he's going to head down.

From there, the CDO came down, it was a--it was, I believe, a lieutenant. And from there, he was talking to me, and he was basically saying that my mom said she hasn't heard from me. So, she called the base, and then she also called my command.

And from there, that's when they did the welfare check and everything. So, the lieutenant was basically telling me, my mom, and everything was worried. And I was like, yeah. I was like, she was, because obviously when I called her she was.

SA GOKEY: Your momma was mad at you?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. So, I was--I was just letting him know that she was irritated.

Well, she wasn't irritated. She was just worried and mad, so. Yeah. So, then from there, he was basically saying, he's going to get somebody to go do your analysis.

So, he told me just to hang tight, and I was like, all right. So, he left to go basically find the urinalysis, and that's when me and the chief was talking. We were just talking about how he used to be a CS.

And then from there, I was just telling him how I wanted to cross rate because me personally, I don't like being a CS, and I don't think I can do like a full--like, my whole entire life is just being a CS.

So, I was talking to him about cross rating--being another rate, and he pulled me into like his little office and he pulled up like my ASVAB score. And he was basically saying, if I study whoopie woo, I can cross rate and become something else, like a yeoman.

We were also talking about like CBs. And then from there, the officer was basically saying, MA1 one was on the way because they couldn't find where the sample holder was for me to take urinalysis.

So, from there, I was just waiting for MA1 to come. Eventually, MA1 showed up and she told me to go downstairs with her. It was the same class that was there. And the lieutenant--the CDO walked into the office where we first were. And I believe the chief followed down. He went downstairs with us, and from there, everyone asked for my CAC, and she was just taking notes down and everything, jotting everything down from my CAC.

And from there, she waited. I guess she was like filling out a piece of paper, and from there she took my chief. Or not my chief, but the chief basically walked me upstairs to go pee. I went pee. Went back downstairs, gave her the bottle, and from there she gave me back my CAC and said I was good to go.

And then, with chief and the CDO, I both verified--they both made me verify, when I had to come back to work, and I was basically saying, chief told me Monday.

So, I called chief to verify when I left. And he was just saying, just come Monday, 7:30. And I was like, yes, chief.

SA GOKEY: Okay. How did you get to the ship?

CSSN COPELAND: My roommate drove me.

SA GOKEY: Okay. The same roommate?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Was anybody else with you?

CSSN COPELAND: Our other roommate, that was in the room with him. We went to get--he took me to the ship, and then afterwards we went to his Chipotle.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. And then what happened?

CSSN COPELAND: We went home after.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And you guys--you stayed at the room the rest of the night then?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay.

So, you didn't leave at all after you guys had gone to the ship, Chipotle came back. Nobody--or excuse me. Not nobody leaves.

You never left again?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And then, presumably, you went up--got up and went to work the next morning?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Who took you to work?

CSSN COPELAND: My roommate.

SA GOKEY: Your roommate.

Is he on the same ship as you?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GOKEY: Whew. That man is a nice human. Where's he work? Do you know?

CSSN COPELAND: He works on base.

SA GOKEY: On this base?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay.

MS. BEA: I'm sorry. Is this the stinky roommate?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

MS. BEA: Different roommate?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Which one are we talking about?

CSSN COPELAND: The black African dude across.

MS. BEA: Black African dude. And your stinky roommate is which guy?

CSSN COPELAND: Sean.

MS. BEA: Sean. And what does he look like?

CSSN COPELAND: He's white.

MS. BEA: White dude. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Just want to make sure I'm keeping everybody straight. Okay. And the person that drove you around pretty much every time we talked about is your African dude, roommate?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Okay. Perfect. Thank you.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do you have anything else right now?

MS. BEA: Yeah. I'm sorry. I know you got a ton of questions. I'm going to go back.

So, I know that you probably discussed a lot of this with Jess, like prior to me getting involved, right? So, I just wanted to make sure I understood.

So, what was your relationship with V/ A. R. So, like, I know you said y'all didn't have sex that night, right? But I mean, like, were y'all talking, were you like getting to the point where you're going to be talking?

CSSN COPELAND: We just worked together.

MS. BEA: How long did you know her, like prior to her coming over?

CSSN COPELAND: Ever since I checked into the James E. Williams. On top of that, we went to A School together.

MS. BEA: Oh. Okay. So, you guys go way back?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, she's a CS as well?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it.

So, did you guys like hang out in A School? Like, essentially, what I'm asking is like, it sounds like you guys were pretty tight.

CSSN COPELAND: Nah. I mean, at A School, we just knew of each other. When I checked into the James E. Williams, we hung out a couple times, and yeah.

We hung out with a couple other people. I remember we would go out sometimes. We would go to--we went to Dave and Buster's. We went to Dirty Buffalo.

So, there's been previous times where we've hung out before. We hung out when she came over.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, would you say you guys are just like platonic friends, or was there like a romantic interest there?

CSSN COPELAND: There was never a romantic interest.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it. So, that's like way out of left field type scenario. You're just friends.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Understood. Okay.

So, you've known her for--for a while. So, you said that, you know, we already beat the whole salsa thing to death for certain. But you said that you guys were talking after you ate, and you mentioned something about--what's his name, Gilispe, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, I got confused. So, you said you saw him picking up a girl on his motorcycle. Tell me more about that.

CSSN COPELAND: He told me, like, that he was at work, and I was sitting down, and obviously, we were talking. The ship's not big, so.

MS. BEA: It is not.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. We were sitting there talking, and he was basically saying how we picked up a female in his car and so on. Like, he was basically saying like, he didn't really say much. He picked her up.

Like, she was--well, she was in her car. It was two females, and a female asked him in the passenger seat, how fast did your bike go? And he basically nodded and said, come find out yourself.

So, she hopped on his bike and she drove down the street, or not she, but he drove down the street with her, and then from there he picked up her number and they've been talking ever since.

But V/ A. R. she initially got mad because--I'm guess--I'm guessing, the day that he was with the female, he was asking for his--his--helmet back that he bought V/ A. R. And V/ A. R. was basically asking him like, why do you want the helmet? And he was basically saying like, because it brings back all the times, like, all the places they've could have gone together, this, that, the third.

And she basically just went off about the helmet, like, what does he specifically need the helmet for? And they were going on back and forth.

And then from there, he was just like, he cut it, and he was like, fuck it. Like, you could just keep the helmet.

MS. BEA: Did this all happen on Thursday night, did you say----

CSSN COPELAND: No.

MS. BEA: ----or this is Wednesday?

CSSN COPELAND: No. That--no. That was like the night that she came over. Like, she was basically telling me about that.

MS. BEA: Oh. Okay. So, she started talking to you about that whole shit?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. But I'm saying, like with Gillespie and the female driving.

MS. BEA: Got it.

CSSN COPELAND: That was--that was when he told me when I was at work, the same day that she came over.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it. So, let me make sure I have it right. So, when she came over, at some point, she started talking about Gillespie. Was she just like talking about her relationship, and were they still dating at the time, or they had already broken up?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know. I----

MS. BEA: It's messy. Okay. And then, she was like telling you about an argument that she had with Gillespie about this motorcycle helmet, and you were like, oh, well, Gillespie told me----

CSSN COPELAND: No. So, she was talking about Gillespie, and she had mentioned something about him and a female, and I was like, that's crazy because so and so, and that's when I started talking about when you told me at work about the female.

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And she was like, no fucking way you said that because he basically texted me the day that basically, I told him about her--told her about it.

She was--basically, put two and two together. And the same day that he was talking to the female was the same day that he was asking for the bike helmet back.

MS. BEA: Oh. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: I get it now. All right. And that really pissed her off, and it sounds like she--yeah. Flipped out about that. Okay.

So, she texted Gillespie, and she was like, fuck off or wherever--whatever, something like that?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: And then you said that she called her--oh, I'm sorry. Did she call her boyfriend in--ex-boyfriend in Texas before or after that?

CSSN COPELAND: After that.

MS. BEA: After that. Okay. And so, it sounds like--I mean, she was probably--was she talking to her ex-boyfriend about stuff with Gillespie?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: Okay. When did she like lose it, lose it? Because you said that she was like on the ground, crying. Everything else.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like, after she got done calling everyone. Like, after she got off the phone with her ex-boyfriend. Cool. Then she just started calling other people, and I guess she just lost it. Like, she was just done calling people, and she was just like, she was done.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I was just like, cool. And that's when I sat there and just let her have her moment, and I was like, all right, bro.

MS. BEA: Was she drinking?

CSSN COPELAND: No. She had like a shot or two of buzz ball. But then again, Buzz Ball's not strong. So, I don't----

MS. BEA: I don't know what buzz ball is.

SA GOKEY: You don't know what buzz ball is?

MS. BEA: I'm so sorry. Oh, is that like the balls you see at the liquor store? Okay, my bag. Sorry. As we've talked about multiple times in the past, I'm pretty old. Okay.

So, she had like a shot or two out of the buzz ball?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Would you consider her to be drunk? I mean, have you seen her drunk before?

CSSN COPELAND: No. She was--I've never seen her drunk, but I don't think she was drunk because she was totally impaired of everything that she was doing, so.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it.

CSSN COPELAND: She was aware of everything she was doing.

MS. BEA: Okay. What do you mean when you say that?

CSSN COPELAND: Say what?

MS. BEA: Like, that she was aware of everything that she was doing.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, obviously, if somebody's drunk, you can tell if somebody's drunk because like, obviously, if they're having like a speech impediment or----

MS. BEA: Can't walk.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, like, when I say, she was visible and aware of everything she was doing, like she was obviously, like, you can tell there were no symptoms, that she was drunk.

MS. BEA: Got it. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: And let me see here. I have a bunch of questions written down. Okay. I just want to make sure I understood the timeline a little bit.

So, you were like, all right. Well, I'm going to go to sleep, and she came into the room with you. Was your roommate in there at the time?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe so. Shit. I dunno because by the time I woke up, everybody was gone.

MS. BEA: Was this Wednesday night into Thursday morning?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe so.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, you said, when you woke up, everybody was gone? Where--I never figured out where was she?

CSSN COPELAND: She was in my bed.

MS. BEA: She was in your bed? She hadn't left yet?

CSSN COPELAND: No. My chief was there.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: When he walked in, he saw her. Cool. And he told me, all right. When I'm obviously done and everything, he told me, just get ready for work and head to work.

MS. BEA: Here's what I'm confused about, too. Why didn't Chief just drive you to work? You didn't go back there anyway, right? Did he offered----

CSSN COPELAND: No. That's--no. He should have. That's why I was pissed off because they fucking marked me UA.

MS. BEA: Right.

CSSN COPELAND: That's the thing that, like, I don't know, because he--I feel like he set me for failure. I told--I fucking told him that, bro.

MS. BEA: Did you ask him for a ride? And he was like, no.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I--I feel like I should have offered, like, I should have been like, can I get a ride to work?

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: But then again, like, I feel like, he knows, obviously, I don't have a car, so.

MS. BEA: Right. Yeah. That doesn't make any sense. Okay. So, it just doesn't make sense, period.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: It's not just to me, it doesn't make sense. It just doesn't sense.

CSSN COPELAND: But like, he--like, he was also saying when he called me, he was just saying it was just a big miscommunication about me being UA.

So, I was like, all right. Cool. But I still was like a little irritated with the fact that it just--like, they marked me UA and like they made it this big fucking deal, this issue. I'm like, cool. I just left how it was.

I'm not finna argue. I'm not finna start a hissy fit or nothing. At the end of the day, I was UA. Cool. I'm going to own up to it. So.

MS. BEA: Okay. And V/ A. R. was also UA with you, right? Like, essentially--because you know, are you both on the same schedule?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

MS. BEA: Was she supposed to be at work on Thursday as well?

CSSN COPELAND: No. She worked Friday and the weekend.

MS. BEA: Oh, I see.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: So, she was off.

CSSN COPELAND: We were opposite watch bill. So, when I'm working, she's not working. When she's working, I'm not working.

MS. BEA: And can you help me understand, are you on days all the time, or do you still have to work nights on the barge? Do you know what I mean?

You know how the carrier's like 24 hours?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah, but no.

MS. BEA: No. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, our schedule's like, obviously, you come in on a turnover day, 7:30.

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And you work 7:30 and we get off around 17, which is like what, 5, 6, 7, 5:30, 5:40.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, it's pretty much 7:30 to five in the evening?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Okay. And then--so, she was supposed to be off. Was she at work on Wednesday? The day y'all had the conversation about the salsa?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It was a turnover day.

MS. BEA: That was turnover. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: So, you came in and was she there as well?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes. Every turnover day, both watch supposed to be there.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it. And then she was supposed to be off, I would assume, like, you know, from Wednesday until Thursday, and she was supposed to go back to work on Friday?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

MS. BEA: Okay. Thank you for helping me understand that.

And, so, after chief woke y'all up--I mean, how did she seem that morning?

CSSN COPELAND: She was fine.

MS. BEA: She was fine. When did she leave?

CSSN COPELAND: After Chief had left. Like, an hour or two later. I was just--she was just helping me clean, and then from there we left. And then that's when I called Chief, or I didn't call him, but I was just telling him--I texted him.

I was like, when my roommate gets here, I'll go to work. He never showed up. He got there by the time I got off work. So, from there, I didn't think to call or text. At the end of the day, I didn't show up. All right. Cool.

MS. BEA: Where did V/ A. R. go?

CSSN COPELAND: She went back home.

MS. BEA: Where did she live at?

CSSN COPELAND: On base.

MS. BEA: Same place or somewhere different?

CSSN COPELAND: No. Somewhere different. I think it is like, from this building, it's down the street.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I believe so.

MS. BEA: Did she walk? Did somebody come pick her up? Did she mention anything about how she was going to get back?

CSSN COPELAND: Getting a Uber.

MS. BEA: A Uber. On base?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. They got a zTrip.

MS. BEA: Oh, yeah. Not that they can't get on base, it's just kind of like she didn't want to walk.

CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, the zTrip. It's on base teleportation. It's an Uber.

MS. BEA: I see. Okay. Got it.

Do you remember what time that was that you saw her last?

CSSN COPELAND: After chief left, and then after she got ready and everything and she helped me clean up my room.

MS. BEA: This might be a dumb question, but cleaning up how?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, the mess that was left in the living room.

MS. BEA: From what?

CSSN COPELAND: The food.

MS. BEA: From the food?

CSSN COPELAND: Cleaning up.

MS. BEA: Okay. Well, I just didn't--I don't know what type of mess y'all make. So, like, the messy kitchen type scenario?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: The food--there was food left out. We didn't throw none of the food away. So, everything was sitting on the countertop, on the stove, the pans and pots, and everything. There was dishes in the sink.

So, he was like, y'all need to get that cleaned up because obviously, if he's coming to inspect, that's unsat. If you have trash into the trash can, it's unsat. You have to take the trash out every day.

MS. BEA: Who's coming to inspect? I'm sorry.

CSSN COPELAND: My chief.

MS. BEA: I didn't know that part. Keep in mind, I didn't talk to you to begin with, right. So----

CSSN COPELAND: I believe I said that already. When he came into the room, he said like, he was coming to inspect.

MS. BEA: I didn't know that part. Okay.

So, he was coming into inspect, because why?

CSSN COPELAND: Monthly inspection.

MS. BEA: Oh. I've never lived in the barracks, and I've never been in the Navy. You know that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: I'm just trying to ask questions. Okay.

So, he was coming in to inspect.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: Did he tell you that?

CSSN COPELAND: No. He didn't text, call, nothing. He just came in. But like I said, I was asleep, and when I heard like the fidget on the door, I thought it was my roommate. So, I said, hold up. I got up, opened the door, it's my chief.

MS. BEA: Okay. And this is the same time he came and woke y'all up when you like, were supposed to be at work, and he was like, late day. You got a late start or something like that?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, he was supposed to come by anyway to inspect. He just didn't tell you he was going to do that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't--I don't know. I don't know if it was because either I was late or if he actually was coming to do a room inspection.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day, that's above my pay grade. Chief is the chief. I'm not going to argue with the chief. So.

MS. BEA: Okay. Did he say he was--okay.

Like, I wasn't there. Right. So, keep in mind, when I'm asking these questions, just because I wasn't there.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Did he say like, I'm going to come back and inspect? Did he say--did he walk in and he was like, this room's a mess. You got to clean up before you come to work. Like, how did that go? How did you know that this was like an inspection?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, when he woke up, he was just like, is it a late start? I was like, yeah. Cool.

I mean, obviously, on top of that, if you're supposed to be at work, you're supposed to have the room clean if you leave. So, regardless, you're supposed to have everything clean. But he was basically saying, I need to clean up, and when I'm done cleaning head--head to work.

So, I was like, all right. Cool. And then he was like, do you have a way of getting to work? And that's when I went to--I mentioned my roommate. I was like, my roommate, when he gets off work, he could probably take me. And he was like, all right. Cool.

When you get off work--when he gets off work, then just head to work. Make sure you call CS1 and somebody and notify them.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's when I was like, all right. Cool. I got you.

MS. BEA: Got it. So, she helped clean. And then did you like--did she just like leave straight out of your room? Did you like walk her down to the front? Like, how did that go?

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Obviously, I had to start getting ready for work, and I called my roommate, and he didn't answer. All right. Cool. So, I just waited until he got to the room. By the time he got there, I was just like, fuck it. I'm not--I'm not going because by the time he got there, we were--they were already off work.

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not finna go into work, like, who am I supposed to check into? So, I was just like, all right. Cool. And I left it. I let the days pass by until Saturday hit and they texted me saying, I'm UA.

At that point, I'm not finna argue. I was just like, fuck it bro. I'll just go in Monday. And then, obviously, all that shit happened Sunday. So, I had to go in, and that's when I went in.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, to be really clear with you, like normally, you know, being UA is not a crime that NCIS investigates, right? We're really worried about V/ A. R. which is, you know, why we want to talk to you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: So, you know, like all of the background is appreciated. I just, you know, I really want to know more about V/ A. R. as far as, like, what was her mental state when she left.

Like, do you have any information that would be helpful for us to find her? Like, did she say that she was like not doing well? Did she say she was sad she was going to go somewhere?

CSSN COPELAND: She was fine. If you want to know more about her mental health, I'd probably say go to Mitch or Gillespie because, obviously, Gillespie had all the answers when he talked to me the other day, so.

MS. BEA: What do you mean by that?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm just saying, like he had everything, like, he was just saying, like, he was saying she liked to go on walks, saying that she wanted to buy plane tickets, this, that, the third.

He was basically stating how, when he would talk to her, he'd be like, randomly, what do you want to do? She would be like, I want to buy a plane ticket to so and so. Cool.

So, out of anything, I don't really know what V/ A. R. does. Cool. I just wanted to hang out. Cool. Obviously, it went bad because she had an attitude with Gillespie. They're not on good terms, or they got into an argument. Cool.

But out of anything, Mitch and Gillespie knows more than what I do about V/ A. R. because, obviously, they've been in relationships with her.

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And they know her as a person. I don't fully know her as a person.

MS. BEA: Okay. And, you know, I'm getting that you're saying that you don't know her as well as a person.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Like, fully understand that. It's just that I think, you know, be like, you might have been the last person to see her that we've talked to. Unless there's somebody else that saw her after you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Like, that's why I'm asking you. Did she say she had plans to go meet somebody else? Was she like, I'm just going to go back to my room and sleep?

Like, anything you have would be helpful for us.

CSSN COPELAND: It was just like, I'll see you later. All right. Cool. If you need something, just call or text me. All right. I got you.

MS. BEA: Okay. Was she still crying when she left, or she seemed like she was fine?

CSSN COPELAND: No. She was cool.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Obviously, like, if you go to sleep after having a bad night, usually if you go to sleep and you wake up, you're fine.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Well, that's just how I see it. I'm not going to speak for her.

MS. BEA: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, if you're holding your emotions, you can hold your emotions. Cool. But from the talk that I had and when I--when she woke up and shit before she left, she said, I was just like, have a good day. If you need something, just call her, text me. And she was like, all right. And she left.

MS. BEA: And then did you hear from her again after she left?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah. Until I got back, and then my chief was basically saying we're both marked UA.

And then from there, that's when I texted her and I was like, yo, like are you good? I was like, they just barked--they marked me and you, UA. And then I was just like--I think I asked her to call or text me if she get the text or whatever. She never responded.

And then, I was talking to Gillespie when I went to the ship, fucking--the day that I went Sunday. And he was basically asking if I heard anything from her after that. I was like, nah. But I was just telling him like, if--like, when she left, like, if she needed something, just to call or text me, and he was like, all right. Cool.

After that, like, we just left it as that until, obviously, I went to work the next day, and he was just like talking about it and shit. I was just like, all right, bro.

MS. BEA: What kind of stuff was he saying?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, obviously, the stuff I was talking about, how she liked to go on walks, and she wanted to put plane--like, plane tickets and shit.

Like, he was asking me basically what you guys are asking me, like if she, like, said anything, like she wanted to go anywhere. I was like, nah.

Like, she was--I was like, I don't know what you did, but she was mainly just talking about how you fucked up, bro. I was like, I don't know what the fuck you did, like what the hell you told her, what you guys [inaudible 01:16:37] head up into? But I was like, "Bro, I was like, bro, you had her crying and shit. She was just mad as fuck at you." He was like, "Yeah, she text me so on." And I was like, "All right, bro." I was like, "I don't know what you did, but that's between y'all, bro."

Like--and people--like, most people already know, like, I don't like getting involved in other people's bullshit--like, what ya'll got going on is what ya'll got going on. I'm not fin'to get myself involved. As you already know, I like to [inaudible 01:17:04]. I don't roll with that shit. After that situation, I just been chilling obviously until shit like this happens. They asked if they want to come over. I'm being a nice guy. Cool. And shit like that happens.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. I mean, you seem like, you feel like a certain type of way because shit like you--you're involved even though you don't want to be.

I mean, you got any type of feelings about that?

CSSN COPELAND: No. I mean, it's like I can't do shit about it. Like, obviously, if I'm pulled into the bullshit, I'm pulled into the bullshit. There's no way I can get myself out of it. And once you're in, you're in.

I'm not going to sit here, nick and nag about it. At the end of the day, I allowed her to come over. She did what she did. That's just me being the nice guy, and now I'm involved in the bullshit. It's not shit I can do to get myself out of it. Cool.

SA GOKEY: Did you--that like, she ever mention if she had any type of like mental health struggles or anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GOKEY: She didn't mention it, or she did like----

CSSN COPELAND: She never said anything about that.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Got it.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, another thing that you mentioned that I wanted to chat about is you said that your roommate, Skipper, came by--the CO came by, and like, had him clean the room, and like it was nasty.

Did I mishear that?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

MS. BEA: Your nasty roommate?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Did you say his CO came and inspected it? The room?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: When did that happen?

CSSN COPELAND: I think yesterday. Yeah. I think it was yesterday.

MS. BEA: Okay. And if you don't know, it's okay. Do you know what command he's with?

CSSN COPELAND: No. He is in a squadron.

MS. BEA: Squadron. You know what type of squadron? Are we talking helicopters, jets?

CSSN COPELAND: No. I don't--I dunno.

MS. BEA: That's okay if you don't know.

CSSN COPELAND: Because his--his command is decommissioning soon. So--yeah. When his command decommissions, he's going on the deployment with the new squadron that's attached to the FORD. So, that's the only thing that I know about his squadron.

MS. BEA: That's kind of positive. Right. They'll be gone.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, cool. But eventually, it's--somebody going to replace them.

MS. BEA: Hopefully, they're cleaner.

CSSN COPELAND: Hopefully.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, yesterday is when--if we think, the Squadron CO came by and, like, made him clean everything. Like, clean the room really well and everything else.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It was like mainly just his side and shit.

MS. BEA: Okay. Okay. And then the other thing--I know I already asked you. I just wanted to clarify. When you said that your roommate drove you to the barge on Sunday, right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: Did he wait around with you until you were done doing your urinalysis and everything, and then that's when y'all went to Chipotle? Or like----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: ----did he come back?

CSSN COPELAND: He stayed there, but he can't--obviously, he can't go on to the ship. So, he stayed in the car. So, like, where I walk is like I need to--my chip is like a reader to a CAC scan for me to enter.

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And then from there I walked on, and he stayed, and then I texted him. I was like, just wait like 25 minutes because I got to wait for my MA1 to come. And when she gets here, they're going to make me fucking do urinalysis. And after that, they said, I'm good to go.

So, he was like, okay, bro.

MS. BEA: Okay. And this is the same African dude with the white Jeep?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Okay. Okay. So, we spent a ton of time asking you questions. What do you think is relevant, as far as like, do you have any information that would help us or other people that we should talk to?

I know that they've been doing a lot of investigation and, you know, the name Gillispie and Mitch, sure is not unusual to them, but is there anything else you can think of, because we're really worried?

CSSN COPELAND: That'd be the only two.

I mean, obviously, they go back and forth, and they're so in love with her, so. Obviously, the only two people I would think that actually know V/ A. R. is Mitch and Gillespie, so.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it. Did she--so, sometimes people like mention things and you don't think it's going to be important at the time, but then like, when you think back, you're like, oh, okay.

Is there anything that she might have mentioned to you in the amount of time that she was with you about, you know, like what she wanted to go do, or like, anything that was like indicative of her mental state, anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Even if you don't think it's important.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so.

MS. BEA: Okay.

Anything else, Jess, because I think we--we'll take a break real quick.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. Let's take a break.

MS. BEA: Okay.

SA GOKEY: Do you need anything?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: You need to use restroom [inaudible 01:22:18] good?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. We'll be right back with you. All right.

CSSN COPELAND: All right.

[SA Gokey and Ms. Bea departed the room at timestamp 01:22:31.]

[SA Gokey and Ms. Bea returned to the room at timestamp 02:05:19.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Sorry about that. Are you good?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. You don't need to use the restroom or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, just a couple more things. So, with you going UA, what do you think--do you think the command's going to get pissed off at you? And like anything--like, do you think you're in trouble with them?

CSSN COPELAND: What you mean?

SA GOKEY: Like, do you think they're going to--you're going to---

MS. BEA: Yeah. You're going to----

SA GOKEY: ----put you on restriction or, you know, anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, with me going UA? Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. Okay. So, one thing I wanted to pitch is--so, you said with--you told us that you were in the barracks the whole weekend, right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: So, it's not like you were out, you know, in another state doing whatever God knows what, right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: And a lot of times when Sailors go UA, that's what we're worried about, is you guys are out doing dumb shit, getting arrested, doing dumb things.

Hell, some of them, the defect to frigging North Korea. So, I would like then to look at your phone and place you in the room, and that could potentially maybe help you with your command.

Like, we could pitch it to him like, 'Hey, man, he didn't go to work, but it's not like he was fucking missing or gone or whatever.' Right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: You would be cool with that?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Cool. What's your passcode?

CSSN COPELAND: 982--wait. 980377.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, 9803----

CSSN COPELAND: 377.

SA GOKEY: ----77. Okay. All right. I'm just going to fill this out real quick. It's June, oh, Lord, have mercy on my soul.

And I spell your name wrong. I'm tired too. J-E-R-M-I-A-H, right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: And then Copeland. What kind of phone you got?

CSSN COPELAND: iPhone 15.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Working--86 and 107. So, you said iPhone. I'm sorry, what?

CSSN COPELAND: 15.

SA GOKEY: iPhone 15. Okay. Conducting on June 25, by NCIS. Okey-dokey. All right.

So, I'm going to scoot back over to you and we're going to go over this. All right. So, did I spell your name correct that time?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, I'll read this to you.

So you, Jeremiah Copeland, after being advised by me, Special Agent Jessica Gokey, that the Naval Criminal Investigative Service is conducting an investigation into the Article 86 and 107, which was the two we discussed earlier.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: You have been--have--excuse me. Our goal 86 and 107 have been requested to permit a search of my iPhone 15.

You have been informed of count--of your constitutional right to refuse to permit this search in the absence of a search warrant.

So, what that means is, again, I don't have a search warrant to go into it----

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: ----but you're just giving me permission to go ahead and go into that, okay?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay.

In full understanding of this right, you have nevertheless decided to permit this search to be made. This search may be conducted on 03 June 25 by NCIS, and you hereby give your permission to remove and retain any property or papers found during the search, which are desired for investigative purposes.

You make this decision freely and voluntarily, and is made with no threats having been made or promises extended to you?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. I'll say it again.

Do you--did I--have I threatened you today?

CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.]

SA GOKEY: Have I made you any promises?

CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do you agree with this statement?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm going to be able to get my phone back. Like, I got to call my mom.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: It's too much shit going on.

SA GOKEY: No. That's fair. Are you good with signing this?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. But is it cool if I can call my mom?

SA GOKEY: Yeah. You want to call your mom?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do you want to call her right now?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. All right. Do you want to go ahead and sign that, and then I will----

CSSN COPELAND: Can I wait first?

SA GOKEY: Yeah. Sure. Absolutely.

MS. BEA: Let me--so, just to make sure that everything on the phone is like essentially, pristine, no problem with you calling your mom. I'll give you my phone to do it. You know her number by heart, right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: Okay. Do you mind if we ask you a couple more questions before we do that, or do you want to just call her right now?

CSSN COPELAND: Go ahead and ask the questions.

MS. BEA: Okay.

SA GOKEY: Okey-dokey. Okay. So, like I told you earlier, we're conducting a cast in your room, and you do have that roommate that lives in there.

Can you tell me what electronics are his?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, everything that's on his side.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, nothing would be on--nothing on his side would be yours and vice versa?

CSSN COPELAND: No. Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do you have any other additional electronics in that room?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I have another phone. That's my phone that I have to go turn into AT&T.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I got my PS5, and that should be it.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Out in the common room, are there any electronics that stay out there?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, my PS5 is what I was saying. It's also in the living room.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, your PS5's out there. Okay.

Is there anything else out there that's yours or anybody else's that you know of?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm mean, the TV.

SA GOKEY: Okay. But the TV's the barracks, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, the PS5 out in the common area is yours, and then you have another phone in your room.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: What kind of phone is that?

CSSN COPELAND: It's an iPhone 15 as well.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do you know what color it is?

CSSN COPELAND: It's gray.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Is it broken?

CSSN COPELAND: No. It's not broke, but I fucked it up, so I broke it, but I got it fixed. They replaced the front, so I have to go turn it in.

So, they basically gave me like 31 days in order for me to turn it in, or else they're going to charge me for that phone---

SA GOKEY: Oh.

CSSN COPELAND: ----with the one I'm already purchasing, so.

SA GOKEY: I gotcha. Okay. So, it's like a trade thing, so you get to keep----

CSSN COPELAND: It was part of my insurance.

SA GOKEY: I gotcha. Oh, that's nice. Okay. Do you have any, like iPads or laptops?

CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. What about any--nope. There wasn't a desktop in there. Right? That desktop's his, right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.] Yeah. It's an Xbox.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Oh, it's a Xbox. It's just--okay. I got you. Okay. All right. I want to kind of talk about--go back to V/A.R. Can I just call her [inaudible 02:13:05]--yeah, V/A.R. Just a couple more questions. Okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: I know you're tired.

When she came over to your house, did she--she had her phone, right? What kind of phone does she have?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe it was the same as mine. It was a black iPhone 15.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did she have any other electronics?

CSSN COPELAND: She just had her phone.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And she was just wearing that bracelet, right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Does she have an Apple watch that you know of?

CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.] I don't think she's ever had one.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Have you ever had an Apple Watch?

CSSN COPELAND: I do have an Apple Watch.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Where's that at?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe it's in my desk.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. When V/ A. R. was on the phone with whoever, when she was--I'll use your word on like a rampage, did she--when she was on the phone, did she ever ask anybody to come pick her up or anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so. I mean, like I said, I was on the couch. I know she did call Rich. And she was on the phone with her ex, but from what I recall, I don't think so.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

So, you don't recall hearing her tell somebody like, yo, come get me, come pick me up, I want to leave, or anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Who--what roommate was it again that walked in and was like, yo, is she good?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know his name, but it is--it's the other one that's across the room. Not the African one, but the other---

SA GOKEY: The other guy?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Cool. Not stinky white boy?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. And then you guys--when you went to bed, you guys went to bed in your bed?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, I just wanted to clarify that.

So, this--this statement is the true statement, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. True and accurate to the best of your knowledge, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. It says, on--and I might've heard you wrong on Sunday. So, I'm not trying to come at you sideways. Okay. I just want to make sure everything I got it right.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Because on Sunday, I thought you told me that either you had slept on the couch and she slept in the bed, or vice versa.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I must have misspoke or misheard. I apologize. But you guys did sleep together in the bed?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. But you guys didn't have sex?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What did you guys wear whenever you went to sleep?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe I had the same thing on. It was just blue shorts and a black shirt.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Is it the same black shirt you got on right now?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, what was she wearing?

CSSN COPELAND: The same thing she had on the whole night.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And what was that again?

CSSN COPELAND: Black shirt, black pants.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, the--another reason why I'm bringing that up, so FCC, we talked to him, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: He has a bit of a different story, right? He said that when he walked into the common space----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: ----that you two were on the ground in front of the couch completely naked.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Is that true?

CSSN COPELAND: When chief walked in, he knocked on the door. So, obviously, when he knocked, I was in my room.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you weren't on the floor naked with her?

CSSN COPELAND: No. I was in my room.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And she was also in the room with you, though?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes. When I opened the door, she was there.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And he watched her when she was in the bed, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did she say anything to him?

CSSN COPELAND: No. She was asleep.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, FCC's not telling the truth?

CSSN COPELAND: No. He is not.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: When he--when I opened my door when he knocked on it, she was asleep. I opened the door, and he's standing right there.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: He asked me was it a late start, and I said, "Yes, Chief."

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. I'm just going back through my notes real quick. Okay.

So, just to reiterate, so, Thursday--Thursday was the day that FCC got to your barracks?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And then Friday, Saturday, you sat in the barracks all day?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And went from various lounges?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And then Sunday, the MAs got there, knocked on the door, and was like, yo, bro, you're UA?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. All right.

So then, the Jeep, so you went to go pick V/ A. R. up, right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. Did you ask permission to take the Jeep at that time?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. He let me.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay. I wasn't sure if, like, maybe he had left the keys on the counter, and he's just like, yo bro, you can use my car whenever, as long as I get to work, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, you did ask permission to take those keys?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: To go get her, to bring her back?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. And then, the next morning, whenever you guys were up--so, you added a couple more details. So, I just want to make sure.

So, you guys got up after FCC was there, and y'all cleaned the room?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. And then, can you give me an about what time she may have left?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know because I don't even know what time she had came into the room, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. So, the reason again, I'm asking is because on Sunday you told me that you, your roommate, and her got in the car and y'all dropped her off at Miller Hall.

CSSN COPELAND: I didn't say that Sunday.

SA GOKEY: You sure?

CSSN COPELAND: I said, "It--it was me, my roommate that--like, two roommates.

SA GOKEY: Oh, I'm sorry. Not Sunday. I do apologize. When you guys took her home Thursday morning. I'm sorry. You--you're right. You didn't say that Sunday.

So, Thursday, you told me that you, the roommate, and her got in the car car and then y'all dropped her off at Miller Hall.

CSSN COPELAND: Miller Hall is my barracks.

SA GOKEY: And you're at X2?

CSSN COPELAND: Which is Miller Hall, isn't it?

SA GOKEY: That's Willis Hall. Miller Hall is the one right down the road. Her barracks.

CSSN COPELAND: Now, I'm confused. Miller Hall is my barracks.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, then, let's just say it this way, then. Sunday, you told me--on Sunday when we talked, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Right.

SA GOKEY: That you, roommate, her got in the car and y'all together dropped her off at her barracks.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't remember saying that.

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, what--so, she got in an Uber then now?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do you know it was Uber or zTrip?

CSSN COPELAND: Probably a zTrip.

I mean, obviously, most Ubers, you have to be like on base or base access.

SA GOKEY: Right.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: I was just asking if you knew either way, because again, she's still UA, right?

CSSN COPELAND: When I say Uber, it's like, zTrip.

SA GOKEY: You're talking interchangeably?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Okay. That's fine. I just wanted to clarify. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GOKEY: Did she tell you she was taking a zTrip?

CSSN COPELAND: No. That's what suspected. She was like, she's trying to go----

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: ----back to her room.

SA GOKEY: Okay. But she didn't tell you she was taking it? She just----

CSSN COPELAND: No. I assumed it was a zTrip.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Why did you assume it was a zTrip and her not just not walking home like she normally walks?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know. I mean----

SA GOKEY: I'm just asking.

CSSN COPELAND: I never said she likes walking, so why would I assume she walks?

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, she left the room sometime that morning. You guys--you never got in a car with her and took her anywhere?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. What time--so, the roommate that you gets rides from mostly, do you know his work schedule?

Is he on days or nights?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know what his schedule is.

SA GOKEY: Okay. But Thursday morning, he had already gone to work then?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay. So, presumably, he would be at work for the entire day.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: But you told FCC you're going to wait until he gets home to go to work.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Which would've been 16, 1700.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GOKEY: Did you have anybody else to call or anything like that to get you a ride to work?

CSSN COPELAND: That's the only person. I'm not fin'to go out my day and ask other--somebody else to come pick me up.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Obviously, everybody works on a daily. I mean, I know my schedule's a little bit different with me being a CS.

SA GOKEY: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: So, theoretically, everybody's like daily duty and they have to report every day, Monday through Friday.

SA GOKEY: Yeah. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And theoretically get the weekends off, so.

SA GOKEY: Fair.

CSSN COPELAND: He would be the only person I call. Sometimes I call my homeboy, or I'll call my CS2, but they're already at work, so there's only to call them because I know they're not going to come pick me up.

SA GOKEY: Okay. I gotcha. It just seems like you presumably should have known he was going to be at work all afternoon.

CSSN COPELAND: I didn't know, because usually I'll tell him or sometimes I'll wait. Sometimes he comes home early, sometimes he doesn't. Same with my roommate.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Because obviously, Squadron, they're--they're so much different from being--working on the ship.

SA GOKEY: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, Squadron is honestly love, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. You brought up this homeboy a couple times.

So, you guys--you go sleep in his room sometimes because of the stinky boy?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What's his name?

CSSN COPELAND: It's a lot of them. It just depends on who--like, where we're going.

SA GOKEY: I gotcha. Who would you consider like your best friend out here?

CSSN COPELAND: Probably my homeboy on the Truman, but they just got back, so.

SA GOKEY: Okay. What's his name?

CSSN COPELAND: His name's Devonte Williams.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

Well, since they got back, that's not one that you sleep in his room?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Who do you mostly--whose room do you mostly sleep in?

CSSN COPELAND: So, my homeboy's name is Dee Dee?

SA GOKEY: Dee Dee?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GOKEY: Is that a nickname?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe that's his name.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Do you know the last name?

CSSN COPELAND: Williams.

SA GOKEY: Williams. What command's he with?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe he's on the Ike.

SA GOKEY: Okay.

Anybody else that you sleep in the room?

CSSN COPELAND: No. Just his.

SA GOKEY: Okay. Okay. Let's see.

Do you have anything?

MS. BEA: Not right now. You know, because of our interactions in the past, you know, that like I shoot straight and I'm not trying to bullshit you or anything else.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: You know that we're just trying to find V/ A. R. right?

So, do you know where she is?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Did you have anything to do with her disappearance?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

MS. BEA: If you were to take a polygraph and we asked you those questions, would you pass?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Okay. So, you got nothing to hide?

CSSN COPELAND: No, ma'am.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I've been straight up, everything you've been asking, I've been responded to.

MS. BEA: Okay. Yeah. I think a lot, you know--I know you're tired. I know you're frustrated. I know that this--it sucks being in this situation.

I know that, like, you know, we're asking questions like a 5-year-old would ask, but most of that is because we want to make sure that we understand you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: And you know, kind of like we've been through this before, right? So, we talk to everybody, and everybody's got something different to say, usually.

So, sometimes people say pretty much the same thing, and sometimes there's wild shit differences. And what FCC told NCIS is just like real different. So, that's why, like, we really want to talk more about that, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Like, why--would this man lie on you?

CSSN COPELAND: I wouldn't say he would. I mean, he hasn't given me a reason to, but he literally walked in, and he knocked on my door. I opened--physically opened my room door and saw him.

MS. BEA: Yeah. Just want to make sure we're talking about the same thing. He knocked on the door to your suite, like with those two bunks in it, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

MS. BEA: Not to the main door, into the main living area. He knocked on your door?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

MS. BEA: Okay. And--I mean, that's--because FCC told NCIS that y'all were naked.

CSSN COPELAND: I wasn't naked. I had shorts on.

MS. BEA: Oh, were you like not wearing a shirt?

Is that maybe why he got confused?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I didn't have a shirt on when I opened the door.

MS. BEA: Okay. What about V/ A. R.

CSSN COPELAND: She was laying in the bed.

MS. BEA: And what about her clothes?

CSSN COPELAND: She had on a black top.

MS. BEA: When we're talking top, what kind of top were we talking? Like, a t-shirt. We talking a crop top bra?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes. The same t-shirt she's been wearing the whole night.

MS. BEA: Okay. Yeah. I guess that's kind of where I'm at. Right. Is like, he said that he saw her like nude up top, and he saw her breasts.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Do you know, like, what's the deal with that? It's hard for you to speculate you're not him, right? But do you know, like, why he would think that?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

I mean, I don't know why he's saying that. He walked in, and we were both butt naked on the floor when he specifically knocked on my door.

MS. BEA: Were any of your roommates home at this time----

CSSN COPELAND: No.

MS. BEA: ----that you know of?

CSSN COPELAND: No. They were all at work.

MS. BEA: Okay. Tell me what Ms. Mary's schedule is. Like, does--do you think she would've been working at the time? Because it seems like y'all get along pretty well.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure. I mean, she works pretty much every day.

MS. BEA: Okay. Does she usually work during the day or at night?

CSSN COPELAND: During the day.

MS. BEA: During the day. Okay.

Is there anybody else we could talk to who would know--like, did you maybe talk to somebody at work about, like, V/A.R. spending the night? Anything else? Anybody come at you sideways about that?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

MS. BEA: Did Gilispe talk to you about it?

CSSN COPELAND: I've already stated, "he did."

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.] You said that it was like-- was it twice afterwards?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Okay. And help me remember when that was.

CSSN COPELAND: Sunday, when I went to do urinalysis, and then the day after that, when I had work on Monday.

MS. BEA: Did you get the vibe he was being accusatory?

CSSN COPELAND: No. He was just asking me questions about V/ A. R. or where she would be. That was Sunday.

Like, he was just like asking where she would be. And then Monday, he was just asking the same shit, and then was just saying like, was she being weird or anything? I was like, no. And then that was it.

MS. BEA: Okay. I'm going to do a hard left question, but it's mostly because I'm concerned about you----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: ----because, you know, we've--we've talked about your mental health struggles in the past and not feeling so great and everything else.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Is that why your mom was worried when she couldn't get in touch with you?

CSSN COPELAND: About what?

MS. BEA: Your mental health.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know. Like, at the end of the day, I don't answer my phone sometimes, and she knows that. Cool.

There was a female that I'm talking to, like she was calling, I didn't answer either. It just comes to times I would just want a break. My mom knows this, and I don't talk to nobody for days.

MS. BEA: Why?

CSSN COPELAND: Just because. I mean, at the end of the day, that's my life. If I don't want to pick up the phone, I don't got to pick up the phone.

MS. BEA: I mean, that's true. I have no problem with that. Sometimes I don't want to talk to my fucking family, but like, usually that coincides with times in my life where I'm having a hard time.

So, that's why I'm asking. You know, Jeremiah, you might not believe me, but I do care about you. I've always cared about you.

Are you doing okay?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm fine.

MS. BEA: Okay. If you weren't--I mean, I know that, you know, on the ship, you have mental health resources. I don't know what it's like on the--on the James E. Williams.

Do you--do you have somebody you can talk to?

CSSN COPELAND: Always.

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, on top of that, I have my homeboy that's on the ship. Whenever I'm down or something, I'll go talk to him, or whenever I'm frustrated, I need somebody to talk to, he's like the only person I really talk to on the ship, so.

MS. BEA: Which one's that? I'm sorry. I don't know any----

CSSN COPELAND: J.J. He is a CS as well.

MS. BEA: That's J.J. Okay.

So--so, you're feeling okay right now? You--you just didn't answer the phone because you just didn't feel like--it's not because you're not feeling good mentally?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I mean, on top of that, I--it's the weekend. My CS2s--especially everybody within that I work with, they know I'm not going to answer if I'm not at work.

Like, my CS2s told me multiple times--even like, they've been serious situations--like, for instance, when I said the female tried to stab me, where--when I was chilling at home, they were calling me. I wouldn't answer my phone. Or it will be like, I'll call them and they don't answer, and they call me back because they saw that, you know, they missed my call and I don't answer.

So, they get mad because my phone stays on do not disturb. So, they'd be like, you need to take your phone off or do not disturb. If you see, obviously, I'm trying to call you. And I'd be like, okay. I just leave it at that.

If I'm in the mood to call them, then I'll call them. If not, I'll just be like, all right. If I see them at work, then I'll just talk to them at work.

MS. BEA: Okay. I mean--and another reason I ask too is like, sometimes when we have Sailors go UA, it's because like they have like, personal problems.

Have you--have you been UA before? Is this the first time?

CSSN COPELAND: No. It's my first time.

MS. BEA: Okay. What made it--so, what got you to the point that when they were like, you know, come into work or--or chief came by and was like, Hey, you got to come into work, that you were just like--you said fuck it, right?

What--what got you to that point? because I know you talked about not being happy there.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm saying like, my roommate didn't come. So, by the time he got home, they were off work.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it. So, it was like, this isn't worth it, essentially?

CSSN COPELAND: It--it is not really about----

MS. BEA: Not a shitty thing.

CSSN COPELAND: ----not worth it, but I'm just like, fuck. Like, there--there ain't shit I could do about it.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

Arrange and bind the record of trial with allied papers in the sequence indicated below. The court reporter is responsible for certifying the record of trial prior to transmittal for appellate review, in accordance with R.C.M. 1112 and JAG/CNLSCINST 5813.1G.

1. Pages 1 (Cover page) and 2 (Chronology Sheet) of DD Form 490 (enclosure 7).

2. Court reporter certification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

3. Military Judge verification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

4. DD Form 490 (pages 3-6 and any continuation pages if needed) (enclosure 7).

5. Completed Post-Trial Checklist from JAG/CNLSCINST 5814.1G (enclosure 2).

6. Completed Convening Authority's Action Checklist (enclosure 4).

c. Any requests for copies of the court-martial record pursuant to R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A (attach written requests, and any certificates/proof of service, but do not attach the victim's post-trial rights advisement or DD Form 2704).

d. Matters submitted by the accused and/or victim under R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A, or any written waiver of the right to submit such matters. Include all responses to requests here as well.

e. Any deferment request and the action on it (including any request to waive automatic forfeitures under Article 58b).

f. Conditions of suspension and proof of service on probationer under R.C.M. 1107, if any.

g. All clemency recommendations by members or military judge, if any.

h. Statement of Trial Results (enclosure 1).

i. Crime Reporting Information.

j. Accused's request for appellate defense counsel, or waiver/withdrawal of appellate review under R.C.M. 1115, if applicable.

k. All transfer orders, confinement orders, and excess leave orders.

l. Briefs of counsel submitted after trial, if any.

8. Preliminary Hearing.

a. DD Form 457, Preliminary Hearing Officer's Report, pursuant to Article 32, if such hearing was conducted, followed by any other allied papers that accompanied the charges when referred for trial (including any matters submitted under R.C.M. 405(l), unless included elsewhere in the record of trial).*

b. Waiver of Article 32 Hearing (if applicable).

9. Pre-Trial Allied Papers.

a. Convening Order and all amending convening orders.

b. DD Form 458, Charge Sheet (unless included at the point of arraignment in the transcript).

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

c. Congressional inquiries and replies, if any.

d. Advice of staff judge advocate, when prepared pursuant to Article 34 or otherwise.

10. Record of Proceedings.

a. Substantially verbatim recording of court-martial proceedings. Segregate open and closed sessions of the court-martial in accordance with R.C.M. 1113 and the following guidance:*

b. Ensure that each closed session of the court-martial is recorded on a separate DVD marked CLOSED SESSION, placed in its own envelope marked CLOSED SESSION, and sealed.

c. Label all DVD(s) and envelopes with the information on page 1 of this template.

d. Mark all DVDs and envelopes with "1 of X." as necessary (for example, the second DVD of six DVDs and its envelope should be marked, 2 of 6). All DVDs of open sessions may be in one envelope.

e. Mark all DVDs with their beginning and ending timestamps. The timestamps for closed sessions should match those shown on the Index.

f. Verbatim transcript or summarized report prepared in accordance with JAGINST 5814.1G. Include the following:

I. A certificate of correction, if any (including any supplemental certification for additional proceedings).

II. Court reporter and transcriptionist certification of verbatim transcript.

g. Records of former proceedings (Article 30a) and/or trials, (e.g., electronic/digital record of former proceeding, including audio recording and any scanned documentation/transcripts, CD/DVD format).*

11. Prosecution exhibits admitted in evidence.

13. Appellate Exhibits including but not limited to, proposed instructions, written offers of proof or preliminary evidence (real or documentary), briefs of counsel submitted at trial, request to be tried by military judge alone (if any), the accused election of members under R.C.M. 903 (if any), any statement by convening authority required under R.C.M. 503(a)(2), and the election for sentencing by members in lieu of sentencing by military judge under R.C.M. 1002(b).*

14. Redaction. The following information shall be redacted in accordance with JAGMAN 1059 from the record of trial prior to releasing it to any accused or victim (including any transcript made pursuant to R.C.M. 1114 and attached to the record of trial) unless the information establishes an element of an offense, or is otherwise required:

a. Any recordings of closed sessions, any transcripts of closed sessions, and any sealed exhibits.

b. Names of minor victims, and names of minor witnesses. If an identifier is used, use only the initials.

c. Social Security Numbers.

d. Financial account information.

e. Home addresses.

f. Telephone numbers.

g. Personal e-mail addresses.

h. Dates of birth.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

i. Any other information that could be used to identify a specific person other than the accused.

*If the report of preliminary hearing or record of trial contains exhibits, proceedings, or other materials ordered sealed by the preliminary hearing officer or military judge, counsel for the Government, the court reporter, or trial counsel shall cause such materials to be sealed to prevent unauthorized examination or disclosure, pursuant to R.C.M. 1113. Sealed material shall be properly marked, individually placed in separate envelopes with a copy of the preliminary hearing officer or military judge sealing order affixed to it, and inserted at the appropriate place in the record of trial. Do not duplicate sealed material to include it in any copy of the record of trial. Instead, insert a copy of the sealing order in lieu of any sealed material, in any copies of the record of trial.

DIVIDERS ARE NOT NECESSARY TO SEPARATE EACH SECTION. IF USED, THEY CAN BE PAPER RATHER THAN CARD STOCK. IF A PARTICULAR COMPONENT IS NOT APPLICABLE IN THE RECORD OF TRIAL, SUCH AS AN ARTICLE 32 HEARING, EXHIBITS NOT ADMITTED, POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND VACATION HEARINGS, DO NOT INSERT A DIVIDER OR PLACEHOLDER.

FRONT AND BACK COVER MUST BE ON BLUE CARDS STOCK AND LABELED WITH GUM LABELS.

Binding. Each volume of a record of trial should be no more than 1.5 inches thick and bound at the top with metal or plastic fasteners. DO NOT interlace or "piggy-back" prong fasteners to create an oversized volume. DO NOT place hole punches where it covers up the evidence or language in the transcript. When it becomes necessary to assemble the record of trial in more than one volume, the volumes will be numbered consecutively, on the front cover, as illustrated below:

Volume 1 of 4 (Pages 1-250)
Volume 2 of 4 (Pages 251-400)
Volume 3 of 4 (Pages 401-652)
Volume 4 of 4 (Pages 653-901 and Exhibits)

Make the first volume of a multi-volume record an inch thick or smaller to allow for inclusion of post-trial documents. Limit subsequent volumes to 1.5 inches, unless dividing them requires assembling an additional volume smaller than a half inch.

Label the upper right-hand corner or the Preparation and Certification of Record of Trial Form (enclosure (8)) to reflect which copy it is, i.e., "ORIGINAL," "ACCUSED," "REVIEW" etc.

APPELLATE EXHIBITS

MS. BEA: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: They're off work. So, who am I reporting to? Cool.

So, from there I was just like--when I got work on Monday, I'm going to just go to work and tell them what happened, which I told them this whole time. Whole time, my chief kept saying it was a misunderstanding or miscommunication. All right. Cool. I'm not finna argue.

MS. BEA: Yeah. I don't blame you. Okay.

And then--just for my own curiosity, right. Don't they have shuttles that take you to the different bases?

CSSN COPELAND: No. They don't.

MS. BEA: because like, how the fuck are you supposed to get--there's--how are you supposed to get where you're going?

CSSN COPELAND: They don't have shuttles. They have a shuttle--

--

MS. BEA: They just expect you to figure it out?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. They have shuttles on base that take you different parts on base.

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: But they don't have a shuttle that goes different places off base.

MS. BEA: Okay. because I remember----

CSSN COPELAND: They used to.

MS. BEA: ----the Truman was in Portsmouth, they had--yeah. because like, a lot of people were up at Little Creek, and then they just had duty drivers take people down. Nothing----

CSSN COPELAND: They had a shuttle bus that went from Little Creek to Norfolk Base when I first checked on board, which was after A School, and then months down the road, they ended up closing it down.

So, it was there for a minute, and then they ended up shutting that shuttle down.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it.

CSSN COPELAND: But I don't think I was on the Truman when they were in--in wherever you just said.

MS. BEA: Yeah. Portsmouth. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Okay. Got it. And, you know, has your mom ever had to call the police before to see if you were okay?

Is this the first time?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure.

I mean, there's been times where, like, she called other people to make sure I'm fine, but it's due to the fact that I--I think somebody texted her and they were asking, like, have they heard from me? And she was like, no.

So, from there, obviously, she called me a couple times and then text me, and I didn't respond. So, then, that's what made her call my command or whatever.

MS. BEA: Do you know who texted her and asked if she could get in touch with you? Was it the command?

CSSN COPELAND: No. It was a female that I talked to.

MS. BEA: Okay. Is she a Sailor as well?

CSSN COPELAND: No. She's a civilian.

MS. BEA: Okay.

Does she live around here, or is she back in----

CSSN COPELAND: No. She's back home.

MS. BEA: Back home. Home, Whidbey, or home Carolina?

CSSN COPELAND: Whidbey.

MS. BEA: Whidbey. Okay. Got it.

So, she got in touch with your mom because she hadn't heard from you either? I'm understanding now. That's why you mentioned her to begin with. Okay. Got it. Okay.

So--I mean, you kind of had--you kind of know how we work at this point, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: All we're really interested in is finding V/A.R. Everybody we talked to is going to get the same questions that you just answered for me about having anything to do with her disappearance or knowing where she's at.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: You know, and at the end of the day, what I really want you to know is that is all we are interested in.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: So, if we could like--theoretically coordinate a polygraph for you tomorrow, is that something you'd be willing to do?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Fuck it.

MS. BEA: Fuck it. Yeah. I feel you. Okay. We're going to take another quick break. Unless you--I'm sorry.

SA GOKEY: No.

MS. BEA: Didn't mean to speak for you.

SA GOKEY: No. You're fine.

MS. BEA: Okay. We're going to take another quick break, and then we'll be back. All right.

CSSN COPELAND: All right.

MS. BEA: Do you need to use the bathroom?

CSSN COPELAND: Naw.

MS. BEA: You want more CheezIt?

CSSN COPELAND: Naw.

MS. BEA: Okay.

SA GOKEY: Oh, I'm sorry. I just kicked you.

MS. BEA: No. You're good. You're good.

[SA Gokey and Ms. Bea departed the room at timestamp 02:36:41 and returned to the room at timestamp 02:58:21.]

SA GOKEY: Okay-dokey. Sorry, Jeremiah.

MS. BEA: You okay? I know you're tired. We're about done. Okay. I just had a couple more things that we wanted to ask you about. As always, it is your choice.

Like we talked about, we are really, really interested in finding V/ A. R. and we don't know what's going to be important when we start investigating. We just got to try to get as much as we can. Okay?

So, I wanted to ask you if it's okay--we're, you know, we're searching the barracks and everything else. Specifically, we wanted to go into spaces, like, you know, any kind of backpacks you have or anything else like that. You can be present for that as well. It's no problem either way.

And then, you know, I know we already talked about your phone and you were okay with us, you know, looking through that. And I wanted to ask you about the other iPhone that you have in your room. Is that something you would also be okay with us going through?

CSSN COPELAND: It's broke.

MS. BEA: Will it turn on?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

MS. BEA: Won't even turn on?

CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, it's broke.

MS. BEA: Okay. And then other electronic devices we talked about that was your PS5.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: And then the watch. Does the watch work?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Okay. And what does that one look like? Like, what kind of band do you have? Do you have like a----

CSSN COPELAND: It's a white band.

MS. BEA: A white band. Okay. So, if you'd be okay with us looking through that stuff, that would be cool, but again, it is completely up to you. It is always your decision.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Is that something you're all right with?

CSSN COPELAND: That's fine. Go ahead.

MS. BEA: Okay.

So, I have the--the same kind of verbiage of the--I can read this over to you again. You want me to?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: Yeah. Okay.

So, I, CSSN, Jeremiah Copeland, after being advised by me, that the Naval Criminal Investigative Service is conducting an investigation into Articles 86 and 107, have been requested to permitt a search of my backpack, barracks room, and electronic devices that we talked about.

And you telling us--essentially, like, you tell us what's okay for us to search and what's not.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

MS. BEA: Okay. I have been informed of my constitutional right to refuse to permit this search in the absence of a search warrant. In full understanding of this right, I have nevertheless decided to permit this search to be made. This search may be conducted on today's date by NCIS, and I here grant my permission to remove any--and retain any property or papers found during the search which are desired for investigative purposes. I make this decision freely and voluntarily is made no--with no threats having been made or promises extended to me. All sound good? Okay.

So, if you could sign where it says sign.

CSSN COPELAND: When you say like, sign, like you say backpack, bedroom, and electronic devices.

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: When is that going to be?

MS. BEA: Tonight. Like, right now. I'm tired too.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm just trying to go home.

MS. BEA: Yeah. No. I feel you. I'm tired too.

CSSN COPELAND: And you say--what'd you say? When you said, whenever I choose, right?

MS. BEA: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: But if I'm putting this on paper for--you saying all three of those, then you have by--what by choice do you have? You're obligated to go through all three with me, sign that, right?

MS. BEA: I--yeah. If you want to be present for when we go through those things, you're welcome to be there because we're also trying to go.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. But I'm just saying, like, let's say I don't want you going through a certain backpack, but I already signed you--you're obligated to go through my backpack.

MS. BEA: So, this means consent. So, if at any point you say, "No, I don't want you to search this specific thing," we cannot search in there.

Does that make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

MS. BEA: Answer that question well enough?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

MS. BEA: Okay. Okay. And then, I wanted to revisit the one we talked about with your phone. Are you still okay with that?

CSSN COPELAND: No. I just--can we just--I'm just trying to go home.

MS. BEA: Understood. Okay. All right. So, let's make some moves to do that and we will make those coordination and we will get right back. Okay.

[SA Gokey and Ms. Bea departed the room at timestamp 03:02:09 and Ms. Bea returned to the room at timestamp 03:03:35.]

MS. BEA: Hey, Jeremiah. I'm just realizing that I didn't give you my phone in order to call your mom. You want to do that?

CSSN COPELAND: I'll just wait.

MS. BEA: You just wait. Okay. Cool. I don't want to deprive you that opportunity.

CSSN COPELAND: How--how long is this going to take?

MS. BEA: How long until we leave this office----

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, ma'am.

MS. BEA: ----to get back to you? 10 minutes.

[Ms. Bea departed the room at timestamp 03:03:56.]

[SA Gokey returned to the room at timestamp 03:16:21.]

SA GOKEY: Okay, Jeremiah. You ready to go? Got your stuff.

INVESTIGATIVE ACTION 06JUN25

CONTROL: 01JUN25-NFNF-00237-7HNA

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
M/B/NEE3/S/[redacted PII]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF S/COPELAND

1. On 06Jun25, Reporting Investigator (RA) Tyler Mann and Participating Agent (PA) David JARRELL, conducted a second interview of S/COPELAND. As background, S/COPELAND was identified as a person of interest in the disappearance and possible death of [redacted V/A.R.] as he was the last person known to have seen her prior to her disappearance.

2. On 06Jun25 at 0850, subsequent to the execution of a Military Rights Waiver, appended as Enclosure (A), CCSN Jermiah Taylor COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, was interviewed regarding his knowledge of the possible death of [redacted V/A.R.] ([redacted V/A.R.] USN, DDG 95, and previously providing false statements regarding the captioned investigation. Upon waiving his Military Rights, the interview commenced. Additionally, during the interview S/COPELAND provided a handwritten timeline of events from 28May25 through 02Jun25, detailing his whereabouts for that time frame, along with his interactions with [redacted V/A.R.] Enclosure (B) pertains.

3. On 28May25, S/COPELAND invited [redacted V/A.R.] to his barracks room to cook dinner. Most of the evening she was communicating on her phone back and forth with a person referred to as Gil (possibly referring to Gillespie), a former boyfriend, whom had given her a bike helmet that he was now asking to be returned. This started an argument between [redacted V/A.R.] and Gil which made her appear upset according to S/COPELAND. S/COPELAND asked her what the matter was, she provided the story about how Gil was trying to get the helmet back for another girl possibly, and she did not want to give it back. This led to [redacted V/A.R.] calling another ex-boyfriend, who resides in Texas, to vent to him. [redacted V/A.R.] made additional phone calls to other friends and family to talk. S/COPELAND was unaware of who all she spoke to that evening. After listening to her story, hanging out and listening to music; S/COPELAND stated he was tired and told [redacted V/A.R.] he was going to sleep; no exact time was provided for this series of events. He proceeded to go to bed and then awoke the next morning to his Chief, FCC Brad PARKER (FCC PARKER), USN, DDG 95, knocking on his door and [redacted V/A.R.] in his bed with him. S/COPELAND had on shorts and noted [redacted V/A.R.] was wearing her pants, but had removed her top to sleep, he further stated they did not engage in any form of sexual activity. Upon opening the door, S/COPELAND was informed he was UA (Unauthorized Absence) and needed to report to work as soon as possible. FCC PARKER then departed and S/COPELAND started cleaning up his room and getting ready to go to work while waiting on his roommate to return to give him a ride. At some point, S/COPELAND noticed [redacted V/A.R.] woke up and he informed her FCC PARKER had stopped by and he needed to go to work. She began helping him clean up the room and upon finishing, exited the barracks on her own sometime that morning, while S/COPELAND sat on the couch watching TV and eventually fell asleep.

4. As background, during S/COPELAND's initial interview he previously stated he borrowed his roommate's vehicle to drive V/A.R. to her barracks. When questioned regarding his previous statement of borrowing his roommate's vehicle to drive V/A.R. he said he was mistaken before and he could not have done so as his other roommate who owned the Jeep was not home, nor was his vehicle. At this time, S/COPELAND uttered a statement in which he said, "I needed to get my story straight." S/COPELAND related he woke up at around dinner time on 29May25 and realized his roommate was not home and could not take him to work. S/COPELAND stated dinner time on the ship was between approximately 15:00 and 17:30, which he was using as his time of reference. He then called FCC PARKER and told him he would not be at work because he did not have a ride or vehicle available. In addition to FCC PARKER coming to the barracks room the next morning, S/COPELAND stated his roommate, YN3 Sean MONAGHAN (YN3 MONAGHAN), USN, Helicopter Marine Squadron 12 (HM-12), was present during the night when he and V/A.R. were sleeping.

5. S/COPELAND then stated he spent the remainder of the weekend in the barracks going between his room and one of the various lounges in the building. He did not like to remain in his room due to his roommate being unclean and emanating an unpleasant odor. S/COPELAND related the Barracks Manager, Ms. Mary (NFI) saw him in the lounge at various times over the course of the weekend, along with another white male (NFI), who was instructed along with S/COPELAND to stay in the lounge by a crew in the building cleaning or polishing the floors. The white male, who S/COPELAND could not further identify, attempted to leave and return to his room multiple times, but was met by the crew and told to return until they advised he could walk down the hallway. This led to a conversation between S/COPELAND and the unidentified male that ended with S/COPELAND being offered and declining a bag of chips from the man before he left. Ms. Mary interacted with S/COPELAND both in the lounge and while he was using one of the public restrooms, she knocked on the door and he stated he was currently in the facilities using the toilet. These interactions may have happened between Friday and Saturday according to S/COPELAND.

6. In addition to interacting with the above captioned individuals, S/COPELAND stated he did in fact turn off his location services on his cellphone to his friends as one of them had apparently been spying on him via the Apple location services and he did not want to be bothered or hang out with anyone. S/COPELAND did confirm he used the phone application Life 360 and has his location constantly shared, for approximately the past year, with a female (NFI) from back home, who would often check the app to see where S/COPELAND was currently located. S/COPELAND denied leaving the barracks until Sunday. 01Jun25 in the morning when he reported to the shop

Command Duty Officer after being informed by the base Military Police that he was UA. Upon a Master at Arms (MA) knocking on S/COPELAND's door that morning, he reported to the barge where he was order to undergo a urinalysis and was informed that he had officially been marked UA since the past Thursday morning, 28May25. After concluding all required tasks at the barge, S/COPELAND returned to his barracks until the next morning, 02JUN25, when he was ordered to report to work.

7. During the interview, S/COPELAND was questioned as to whether or not he knew V/A.R.'s current location and if he had any part in causing her disappearance or possible death to which he replied in the negative. When further questioned about what S/COPELAND would like the outcome of the investigation to be he made a statement hoping she was found. S/COPELAND expressed concerns with his own mental health at the time of the interview. Prior to the conclusion of the interview, S/COPELAND signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA). Upon signing the PASS, the document was given to SA Lisa CARROLL, NCIS, and DNA samples were obtained from S/COPELAND by SA CARROLL which will be documented in a separate investigative action. Prior to ending the interview S/COPELAND was asked about access to vehicles regarding which, if any vehicles, he had access to use over the past week. S/COPELAND related he did not have access to a vehicle, other than on occasion his roommates Jeep when they were both home from work at the same time. S/COPELAND did not specify the roommate who owns the Jeep other than previously stating they reside in the same room.

8. At 1148 on 06Jun25, S/COPELAND was released to FCC PARKER. An audio recording of this interview was captured and the original SD card containing the interview along with a copy of the audio on a CD/DVD were provided to the case agent for safekeeping with the file.

NCIS INTERVIEW ICO CSSN JEREMIAH COPELAND

SA GEREL: Today's date is 6 June 2025, at the NCIS Norfolk U-40 office. Approximate time is 0842. Polygraph and interview to be administered by Tyler Mann and David Gerel under session approval number 2025-2121 in regards to the missing person and or possible death of V/ A. R. . This interview is of Jeremiah Copeland, United States Navy, E-3.

[SA Mann, SA Gerel, and CSSN Copeland entered the room at timestamp 0:04:19.]

SA GEREL: All right, good morning. So, my name's David. I'm a part of the investigative team. I'm a special agent here at NCIS.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: This is my partner, Tyler Mann.

SA MANN: How are you?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm doing all right.

SA GEREL: We--we're part of the team, but also polygraph examiners.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: So, I'm going to check with you about the things that involving V/ A. R. and her whereabouts and things like that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: So, we have been told that you had--had previously talked to and had been interested in taking a polygraph to confirm some of the stuff they asked you about.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, that's part of what we're here to do today. The--the main focus for the team, which includes us and--and I believe you as well, is to make sure that we can figure out where she's at and she's okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: All right. Do you have any questions about any of that so far?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. Very good. So, what they're doing, they've been working real hard, and--and they're trying to kind of take pieces of thoughts as to who might know as much as possible, and then, once they're done with it, put aside so they can focus on other stuff. So, you know, they talked to you--you still seem to be the last person that they can confirm actually had laid eyes on her.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: So, as you might imagine, you're pretty interesting to them as far as what, you know,

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: So, we want to go ahead and--and take some of those big questions off the table with the polygraph so that they can move from you and then handle some other stuff.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: How's that sound to you?

CSSN COPELAND: Do I have to take the polygraph?

SA GEREL: No, no, no, no. So, a couple things on that. And--and it's good for you to know this, and and--and involving yourself with--with NCIS for law enforcement, you never have to do anything. You're--you're--you're a grown man. You make decisions about your involvement. You definitely don't have to do this.

In fact, we need you to want to do this if you--if you want to be successful. It does not help us to offer you a test that you don't want to do or you feel uncomfortable with. So----

CSSN COPELAND: I want to--because I have stuff that I--I have to do today.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah. I gotcha. I would ask a favor for you, though.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Like, I--I'd like you to hear a bit about it before you make your full decision.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: And--and then, after you hear about it, kind of what we're interested in, what we're doing, then you can make a good decision about it. And--and, I can assure you that we can do pretty big things in terms of helping you with your day. So, if there's something in your day that you're concerned about, I'm pretty sure we can help you adjust that.

But I--I don't really know for sure. So, I'd want--want to hear what your--what your concern would be. So, does that make sense? So, I--I--you--you have the request that will you listen to us explain, kind of more about what the polygraph is and what we can do for you with it, before you make that decision.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: Is that cool? Okay. Cool. So, okay, good. So, call me David. This is Tyler. Feel free to be first name with us. All right. What do you like me to call you?

CSSN COPELAND: You can just call me Cope or Jay.

SA GEREL: Cope or Jay,. Okay. Got it. All right. Which do you prefer?

CSSN COPELAND: Jay.

SA GEREL: Jay. Okay. All right, Jay. All right. So, the decision to take the polygraph is--is, you know, it's a big one. So, it's not something people, like, just say, "Yeah, I can't wait to take a polygraph." It's something that sometimes people will,

you know, think about and--and even go into a little apprehensiveness.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: It's very normal. It's also very normal for--for a case like this to--to--for it to be used multiple times.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And--and that's because, like, we're--we're getting information, we're confirming information, and then, keep moving on because our goal is to--to find her safely.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, if they're spending time thinking about you and they don't need to be, let's let them help them not by thinking about something else.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: This is the concept. So, how a polygraph goes is we would go through a few forms. After we do the forms, we would, all the--the way through answering questions you have, we tell you what--what we know about the case, we share with you what you know about the case, make sure we're all on the same page with that.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: And maybe we'll often find more details that we can push back to the main investigative team, and can help, and say that was very helpful. And then, after that, we talk about the questions that we were considering asking you on polygraph.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: You would know what those questions are. You have a chance to talk about them, explain them, be comfortable with them. Once you're good and solidly comfortable with those questions, we explain how the test goes. We--we'd run the test and then, we would--we'd tell you how you did. And we'd tell the--the agents and the command how you did.

So, it gives people really quick information. And--and then, you know, if we--we'll talk all the--the way through. So, that's kind of the process.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: There's some significant talking upfront. I'd say probably at least an hour, sometimes a little bit more than that. That test itself is pretty quick. I mean, I say 15 minutes. After that, we talk through the results and see if there is any questions you have all the way through. We can--we treat you like you're a guest in our house, so if you need stuff like food, water, bathroom breaks, anything that would make you more comfortable, we'll do our best to accommodate that.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: We want you to be as comfortable as you can through the process. You're in full control of the whole thing, all the way through.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Does that make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: I gotcha.

SA GEREL: Is that something, hearing that, that you could be more interested in?

CSSN COPELAND: Not really. Like, I mean, I haven't even had, like, a normal time to even sleep.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, every day they came and raided my room. You know, I got the chain of command talking about I got to come in. I got fucking Captain's Mast today.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, there's a whole bunch of stuff. And it's, like, my mental health, honestly, like, my mental health----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----going downhill.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Because it's just so much, like, you know, I'm trying to pretty much, like, you know, comprehend what's happening.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: It's just every day it's something new. Something new. Something new.

SA GEREL: Okay. Well, your--your mental health is very important to us. So--so tell me--tell me more about that.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, it's just something new every day.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

SA GEREL: You know, it's not, even with this situation going on, I got family stuff going on. I got stuff in my life going on.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And it's--everything's just piling up. I'm getting--like, it's, like I'm getting stuck in a hole right now.

SA GEREL: I gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: So----

SA GEREL: All right. So, I hear you and--and what I'd like to do is the--the two forms that we typically do up front, where we will do the usual rights advisement, that you would get when anytime you talk to NCIS.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: I'm tempted--I'd like to--to offer you that, just to kind of make sure you kind of see the whole platform.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And--and then, that way we can talk, even a little bit more in-depth about how you're feeling and what we might be able to do to help you feel a little bit better about that. But I don't want to do too much with that until we--we cover that first form because, your--your understanding of what--who we are and what we do is very important to me.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: And it should be important to you.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: So, with your permission, I'd like to go through that form with you, the first one. Just the rights advisement.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: And so, it's the--and you--you've been through it before. It's basically where we read you your rights. Like you have the right to remain silent and stuff.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: I'd like to go through it with you. There's one that's a little--one piece of it's a little different on this form than what was talked about last time, and I want to have a chance to explain that to you. But, again, I--I--if you're telling me you don't want to do this, like, I'm not going to make you even do this part.

CSSN COPELAND: Because it's just like I haven't even had, like, a normal day where I can just try and rest.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: This whole week, the past week, it's just been hell for me.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, let's say I do it, then it's going to be more.

SA GEREL: Maybe.

CSSN COPELAND: Sign more papers. I got to come in and keep doing more stuff.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Maybe.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, it's just too much stuff going on from there.

SA GEREL: So--so maybe, maybe not. And that's what I wanted to spend a little more time talking to you about, because some of the stress and pressure that you're feeling might get dramatically decreased once this is over. Okay? But again, I--I feel--I don't feel perfectly comfortable getting into those details without at least making sure you understand your rights.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: But I would love to share with you how I think that might help you, if you're cool with that.

CSSN COPELAND: That's fine.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. So, before I do, Tyler, you--you got anything you--you want to say?

SA MANN: I mean, so can I--Jay, if you don't mind. Just with this, I know you're, like, my world is just spiraled. Right? And I get

it. This is a whirlwind. But the only advocate portion I'm going to sort of pitch you is this. What this will theoretically do if it--if--if you're forthcoming with us and we get to talk about all these topics here momentarily and put that all behind you, that on paper is going to make a lot of this stop.

So, you're still going to have some command things to maybe deal with. Family stuff is family stuff. I feel you. We all got to deal with that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: But at least it'll get this--this piece. Like, the NCIS piece will more than likely go--minimize. I'm not going to make a promise that that's going to happen, but----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----if this goes well and they say, "Hey, like we don't have to worry about him anymore. He's not on our, you know, interesting list of people anymore, not the most interesting man in the world." Like, we can sort of put you on the back burner. That invasiveness will likely decrease a significant amount.

So, I know you're, like, I just want all this shit behind me, and I get it, dude. I would want the same, like, if I'm sitting in here seat, I'm, like, Jesus, just give me, like, a day to be myself. Like, I'm 20 years old. What in the world am I getting into? Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: So, that's why we're trying to do it is just to give you--you a little, hey, this--this can be an exit ramp for some of that baggage to go a separate way. And then, you can focus more on your family. You can focus more on you. Other things that are important.

And, you know, we can--whatever those are. If you're happy to share them, I'm happy to hear them. But, you know, I think that those are the things you should focus on, you know, family, obviously, first over everything. So, hopefully, we can take this off your plate by getting the polygraph out of the way. That's just my kind of piece from hearing what you're saying. And then, does that resonate? Am I on the right track with you?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Are we on the same page?

CSSN COPELAND: Gotcha. I appreciate you.

SA MANN: But yeah, I'll--I'll go back to that. That's kind of just the step we've got----

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

SA MANN: ----to go through.

SA GEREL: Cool. Are you--you comfortable just doing the first step and then talking a little bit more? We're not going to make you make a decision one way or the other.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I mean, what do you--what's the form?

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah.

So, it's the Military Rights Waiver form and you've--you've seen this one before, so the form itself isn't that different. The thing I wanted to make sure that I shared with you to get the chance I can explain it is--is this part right here.

Okay. So, this is the rights waiver form. We do this before every polygraph, also before we talk to people. That's me and my partner. This is where we're at. So--so we want to talk to you today about, again, I'll explain all this, but making a false official statement and knowledge of the possible death of CCSN V/ A. R. .

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Okay. So, this--a couple things here. So, we don't really care about the things you've said so far. I--I know that we're telling you you're suspected of making some things--some statements that might not be accurate. I want to make sure you know, all the--the way from the beginning of the end, that is not our focus.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: You're suspected of it because, and that means we've got to let you know----

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: ----that we're going to talk about it. But nobody's been that worried about that. We--we--we are focusing on V/A.R.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: All right. So, V/A.R.. So--so we don't know if she's dead or not.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Right. But do--do you agree that that's everybody's fear?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, yeah.

SA GEREL: Yeah. So, everybody's worried that she's been gone too long. She's usually pretty responsive. So, that's--that's what we're worried about. So, what we'd like to do is, although you're not specifically suspected of causing harm to her----

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: ----we'd like to make sure you didn't. So they're making it seem. Like, okay, Copeland, maybe he--he is not perfect, but he didn't do that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: That make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, that's the stuff we're going to talk about, and hopefully that polygraph help us figure out.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: All right. Does that make sense now?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: I just didn't want to drop this in your lap, and you're, like, what's that mean? I wanted to make sure I explained that. The rest of the form is exactly the same as the ones you've seen before. So, with knowing the topic that we're going to be focusing in on, here's some things to keep in mind.

You have the right to remain silent and make no statement at all. Any statement that you make can be used against you in--in--in trial or by court-martial or any other judicial administrative proceeding.

You have the right to consult with a lawyer prior to any questioning. This lawyer may be a civilian lawyer retained by you at no cost to the United States, a military lawyer appointed to act as your counsel at no cost to you, or both. So, you can have a lawyer, and in multiple capacities.

You have the right to have any retained lawyer and or appointed lawyer present during the interview. And you may terminate the interview at any time for any reason.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.
SA GEREL: These are all important. I like that. Really emphasize that last one because you are in full control of the conversation. You know, you can talk to us. You don't have to talk to us.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: As long as you're professional and--and polite to us, we'll be the same to you.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: All the way through. Any questions about any of this so far?
CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
SA GEREL: Are you cool to talk with us a little bit more?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, I'm going to read this part out loud.
CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]
SA GEREL: And--and just so you--you've heard it and--and make sure you agree with it. But what we'd like to make sure that you're cool with and understand is that you understand, or I'm going to read it out loud to you.

I understand my rights as related to me and as set forth above. With that understanding, I have described--I'm sorry, I have decided that I do not desire to remain silent, consult with a retained or appointed lawyer, or have a lawyer present at this time. I make this decision freely and voluntarily. No threats or promises have been made to me.

Does that make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Do you agree with that?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, if you--if you agree with it and want to talk to us, again, you're not deciding on the poly quite yet.
CSSN COPELAND: No.
SA GEREL: You--you just want to get to us, you--you could initial for me beside each of these numbers. Sign that paragraph and then, sign for me there, please.
CSSN COPELAND: So, for each question, is it before and after or just----
SA GEREL: Just beside the number is fine. Yeah. Sorry, these things [inaudible 0:17:55]. There you go.
And then, just beside that paragraph as well.
CSSN COPELAND: This one?
SA GEREL: Yes, please. And then a full signature, there. But you--do you understand this and want to talk to us? Is that right?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: Okay. Thank you. All right, so the next thing we'll cover in a little bit more detail is the polygraph itself. The--the next form that we--that we may use is--is where we talk to you about what the polygraph is, and you say, "Okay. I'll start the process." So, that's where you can list, know definitively one or the other, but I'm not even going to get to that form quite yet.

So, let's--do--do--what questions do you have for us that will help you understand kind of why we're here and--and what we want to do today?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I don't have really no questions.

SA GEREL: Okay. All right, so--so let me just make sure you kind of see it from their perspective and--and our--and our perspective. You--you--you--I think you've already acknowledged this, but, so the big fear is that V/A.R. may be--may be dead.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Okay. Did you do that?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. I know they already asked you that, and you said no.

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Do you--do you know where she's at?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Did you help anybody to abduct her or kill her or anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: That's the focus today.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: All right. What we'd like to do is take that off the table so they are not thinking Copeland could have had anything to do with that. Make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: And--and--and, if we're able to talk to you about that and you get confident--you're already confident. Whether you can even stay confident to the point where you take that test and show a--a positive result, then we're going to be able to take that back to the agents and to the Commander. Like, "Okay, good. Now let's find other ways to find, V/A.R." Make sense?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Does that make you feel any different about doing this?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir. I mean, at the end of the day, like, this is just a lot of stuff for me to handle right now. At the end of the day, there's always something. On top of that, they still want me to come to work. They still want me to do this. They still want me to do that.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, it is just a lot. They keep coming to my room every day.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, it's just, like, I--I don't have a break.

SA GEREL: What are they--what's the mast for today? The Captain's Mast?

CSSN COPELAND: Going UA.

SA GEREL: Okay. Well, who do you think about that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, at the end of the day, like--like he said, I'm a grown man and so, I'm going to take full accountability. At the end of day, it was me being irresponsible, not getting work when I'm supposed to. So, at the end of the day, I'm going to just take the consequence.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. Does it bother--does it scare you?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I mean, it's mast. I mean, at the end of the day.

SA GEREL: Okay. Does--have you been through that before?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. And do you know, people have been?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: What usually happens on something like that?

CSSN COPELAND: They put you on a restriction. I mean, in my offense, I can already see they're probably going to take a reduction--reduction rate, half a month's pay, and probably put me on restriction. For how long? I don't know.

SA GEREL: Okay. And--and how--how does that make you feel to know that might be coming?

CSSN COPELAND: Not really much. I mean, I just got to go with the flow at the end of the day. Like I said, I take full accountability for my actions.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Not making it to work when I'm supposed to be, so---

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah. The military's different that way, right? Because I mean, in civilian, like, I don't show up, nobody, like, is going to punish me for it typically.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, they might, you know, talk to you about it or something. But in the military, like you said, it is different, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah. A little different. I--I--I--I like how you're kind of keeping that frame in your mind. I don't want to speak for you, but it feels like you kind of get the gravity of what that is. I mean, you should have been to work. You weren't. They're going to do something about it. Sounds like something you can take that lump and move right on.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: We kind of think that too. But I wanted to see how bad that was affecting your--your mental health because, we--we could ask for that to get pushed back. We--then I think it probably would. I can't speak for your command, but they might do that.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure. I mean, the CO, he's trying to push it to where I get it done today

SA GEREL: And then, maybe you want that. I don't know. You want it done sooner or later?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, sooner. I mean, because obviously I don't want to stay on the barge. Like, I fucking hate the barge.

SA GEREL: It sounds like it would be a not a fun place.

SA MANN: I don't think you're alone in that. I've talked to many people at the barge.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I don't know who lied and said the barge was, like, smooth, but being in the shipyard in general.

SA GEREL: Yeah. One of the things that we would do would be to press on is just get to know you a little bit. I know some things about you, but I don't know as much as I want to to give you a polygraph. So, we--we get to know more about you, to include things like that. Like what--what ships you've been on and what you've--what you've been experiencing. I mean, you're young, so I--I would imagine probably not that much in the Navy quite yet.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, a little bit. I mean, I was on a carrier before I was on a DDG, so.

SA GEREL: What--what carrier were you on?

CSSN COPELAND: The Truman.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. All right.

SA MANN: You guys had a hell of a deployment, huh?
SA GEREL: Did you just get back from the deployment?
CSSN COPELAND: No, I did half the deployment. I flew off during February. Like, the middle of February.
SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.] Okay. Tyler, you got any--any things you want to cover?
SA MANN: I mean, what can we do to help you today? Like what moves, what--what gives us some power to help you out? Because I don't know that we have it, but I'll sure as hell try.
CSSN COPELAND: Nothing really. I mean, at the end of the day, you guys are doing your job, so----
SA MANN: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: That's--then that's just nothing. It's nothing really to it. At the end of the day, I can't ask you guys to do something. Like, you guys are just trying to do your job, get down to the bottom of whatever you guys need to. At the end of the day. I'm just trying to live.
SA MANN: No. Yeah. Absolutely. But that's what I mean, like, if there's somewhere we can meet in the middle and you've got an existential issue right now that you're, like, "Hey, like, here's the biggest thing going on in my world. I need this handled." Maybe we can help out with that, and it'll help you feel a little more comfortable with what we'd like to do with you today.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, it's just everything that I got because I already know, like, with mast coming up, I also got a court date coming up.

SA MANN: So, what's that for?

CSSN COPELAND: Speeding.

SA MANN: Okay. Do you know when?

CSSN COPELAND: That's the 21st of July, so----

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: ----by the time I get off restriction, I'm going to have to prepare for that. On top of that, I've been trying to get--reach out to my lawyer. Don't got a phone. They took it, so----

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.] About that court? The speeding thing?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I got to talk to--the judge granted me a public defender. Can't even reach out to my public defender because I--I don't have a phone, so.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: At this point, it's just, like, I'm--I'm fried.

SA GEREL: Yeah. That's a lot going on. We definitely get that. How much sleep would you--you think you got last night?

CSSN COPELAND: None. I had to prep doing my uniform for mast today, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. Like, your--your dress uniform?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And then, how has that been over the last few days? How much sleep you getting?

CSSN COPELAND: None. Like, maybe an hour. I mean, the last time they came and got me, they didn't release me till, like, two, almost three o'clock. As soon as they released me, my Chief took me to my barracks. I had to get my uniform and go straight to work.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I had no sleep.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So

SA GEREL: So, how about food? How you--how are you eating?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't have, like, an appetite to really eat at all, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. Do you have some food this morning?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: You want some?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm good.

SA GEREL: How about some water? You want some water.

CSSN COPELAND: Water, yeah. I'll take some water.

SA GEREL: Okay. We'll go get that. We'll be back.

CSSN COPELAND: All right.

[SA Gerel departed the room at timestamp 0:25:30.]

SA MANN: So--so, I mean, I know you got a--a storm growing. Right? What's going on in the family world?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I just got shit with my mom. I mean, on top of that, she doesn't even know anything that's happened. I mean, I--I understand she realized I went UA. She called my command and called the--the base.

SA MANN: She was worried about?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. So, I mean, other than that, I--I haven't really talked to her ever--ever since that. My dad's been in the hospital, so.

SA MANN: How's he doing?

CSSN COPELAND: Not that well.

SA MANN: Oh. Do you mind if I ask what's happening?

CSSN COPELAND: So, he got an infection, and that was--I found out about that when I was on deployment, and I--I think it was, like, around December.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I tried to put in leave. Like, emergency leave.

SA MANN: Sure.

CSSN COPELAND: My chain of command denied it.

SA MANN: Yeah. I--I know the Truman was going through----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----some stuff out there, so I'm sure that was tough.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. And he's been in the hospital ever since. My mom said he's basically lost, like, his--like, he can't walk. He can barely talk.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: His vision's going bad, too. So, I know on their part. I know it's, like, hard, on that, so.

SA MANN: Yeah. No, that's tough.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: When's the last time you got to see him?

CSSN COPELAND: Hmm?

SA MANN: When was the last time you got to see him?

CSSN COPELAND: It's been almost a year since I last took leave.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, that's also another thing. It's, like, I haven't been home. I've been telling my chain of command for months now. Like I--I--I need to take leave.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Because with everything going on, it's fucking with my mental health.

SA MANN: I gotcha. That'd be tough. I know I'd be----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----feeling probably similar if I had a bunch of family that I wasn't getting to see that were sitting in the hospital with prior circumstances. So, no, I get it, man.

And again, I'm not--one way or another today. Like, what you decide to do, I want you--you to just be comfortable with your decision.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: You know, I know you said it. Like, I--I think, you know, spent some--some time I think with B on the ship. Obviously, she's the only agent that was there, but, that I know she has a pretty--I don't know how--what your interactions with her have--have been. But I know she's generally a pretty straight shooter. I don't think she sort of beats around the bush. She just says, "Hey, here's what we got to do. Let's do it." Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. She--she keeps it a hundred, but I don't like the way that she does it.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, everybody that I've talked to, dealt with, even with police officers, like--like, yeah, they got one job to be doing, but they kept it professional. When, like, I don't know what her problem is, but I feel like with me and her interactions, she--I feel like she antagonizes me.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And I don't--I don't really appreciate that, like, when I was talking to the first--first detective, little short one, you know, it was her and another agent that came to my room.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And, I talked to them. Cool. And then, when they had came and raided my room, she was there just in the background. I could see her staring at me. At first, I was, like, there's no way that's her until the agent had called her over there. And I was, like, fuck. All right, cool. But it's, like, the whole time we were in the interrogation room, it's just, like, she was, like, irritating me.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: It's, like, I--it's, like, some people I can stand, but it's just something about her I don't like.

SA MANN: No, that's fair. I--I, like, I don't like everybody I meet, too. Sometimes it's just people don't connect. It is what it is. What I would ask today, though, is if I make you feel that way, if David makes you feel that way----

CSSN COPELAND: No, you guys--you guys are totally, like, you know, respectful, and you guys are keeping it official.

SA MANN: Yep.

CSSN COPELAND: It's just the way that she carries herself, the way that the mentality she has.

SA MANN: Understood. But if--if you feel like that happens, I want you to stop and let us know. You can tell me I'm wrong. That's okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA MANN: I'm not, same with him. We're not above making a mistake. So, if you feel like a line is crossed, let us know. We don't want to do that. We'll course-correct for you.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay. Thank you.

SA MANN: Yeah, just again, if--if I'm going to be blunt with you--you can be blunt with me. Full--fully expect that. So--excuse me. Why I said that, and, you know, and I think David's sort of been kind of slowly talking through this with you is, again, everyone wants to know where V/A.R. is. The longer she's gone, you know, I mean, you've probably seen an Netflix documentary. Right? Like, as time passes and these type of things, all you see on the news. Like, hey, the more time that somebody's missing, the higher the likelihood that the end result's not a good one. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: That's just--it's statistics, and we're hoping that by trying to expedite and move through these things, this takes a ton of resources. I mean, we've had people the second that we found out she was gone, people started coming from every office all around the country to try to serve and to give us bodies and manpower so we can dedicate more resources to trying to find her.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: You know, and I, again, unfortunately, you happen to be the last person that was with her----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: ----before either she went missing, she made the decision to do it, something bad happened to her, whatever that was. Whether it's fair or not, like, the fingers all kind of initially point at you just because you were that last one to be with her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And I hate to say it, but again, it's just like watching TV. If the last person that was with her was the last person that was with her, that's the easiest place to start. It's logical. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: Hey, you should at least have some semblance of an idea of what happened when she departed, where she went. You know, if she said anything to you about, "Hey, here's where I'm going to go, what I'm going to do."

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: If you have any idea what that is, that's information we definitely want. The reason we kind of bring polygraph in the room is so we can get that clear result from you. Because as much as I sit here and I want to believe everybody I work with----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----I'd be foolish to do that, right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Because some people aren't going to be straight shooters.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: So, that's why we use polygraph as a tool to say, hey, if you knew something about, you know, let's hope not, but if she were to be dead at this point, if you had any knowledge of that, we'd want to know that. Because then we need to redirect resources elsewhere.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Also, if you have nothing to do with that, we want to prove that for you, too.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: Because then that allows us to take that spotlight that you feel is on you right now and shake it somewhere else.

CSSN COPELAND: It's not even about the spotlight. At the end of the day, it's life. Like, cool. But it is just more so, like, the shit I have going on now and then, this top on top of it. So, it's just, like, this right here is just a knocker.

SA MANN: Yeah. No, your--your glass is full.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: I feel you. So, what--what do you think we can accomplish today? What do you have the bandwidth for?
CSSN COPELAND: I just, like, if you guys got questions, cool. At the end of the day, I'm--I'm trying to--the biggest thing I'm trying to knock off is just seeing what the captain has to say. I just want to get one piece done. I'm just slowly trying to get things, you know. I'm just slowly trying to get things off of my plate. Because at the end of the day. Like, everything I have going on is going nowhere at this point.
SA GEREL: I gotcha. So, not to, I--I guess diminish what you're saying, like, that's important. And I think, you know, if I was sitting in your same shoes and I want that answer. Like, "Hey, just like--like you said, I'm going to own it. Tell me what I got to do to own it."

I think we're--we would miss an opportunity here to help get more off your plate if we didn't at least offer you this again. No one can sit here and say, "Hey, gun to your head, you got to sit down and do it." But I do think that this helps move some stuff off your plate. So, today, in theory, you could take this off your plate, and you can take the mast off your plate, and hopefully that's two things that help push you in a more positive direction.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. But at the end of the day, you guys are still going to come for questions.

SA GEREL: I don't know. I--I mean, I--I----

CSSN COPELAND: It's still going nowhere.

SA MANN: They may. But, you know, as Dave they've kind of mentioned earlier, the question that we want to know is really, and--and I think, you know, we'll give this more poly. Like, if I were to give you some sort of polygraph, if I was going to say, "Hey, like--like here's what we need answered it," it'd be what he asked you the other day. Did you cause her death? Or did, you know, is she dead? Like, do--do you have actual intimate knowledge of that?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Because then if you--if you're not a part of that, and you know, if--if maybe she is still alive out there somewhere, or if she is unfortunately deceased to this point, we know that you had nothing to do with it. So, then those questions about you, who you are, where you were, what you did, all of that. You know, it's an investigation like you said, people are going to look at everything thoroughly.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: But then there's other people that need to look at other things that they need to look at, you know. Was this, at some point, somebody else who did something malicious or foul? Did she just run away? Maybe she just had enough of it. Would it be an unfortunate case? Maybe it was a suicide. We don't know. But that's why we're trying to work through, and you're not--I know you feel. Like, "Hey, the spotlight's on you." You're not the only person that people are trying to highlight and get answers for.

So, I won't sit here and say that no one's going to come knocking on your door and asking you a question. But I would highly anticipate that this puts a lot of those questions at bay, because everyone's going to go, "Hey, Copeland's not the bad guy that did something bad to V/A.R.. You know, Jay's not that guy."

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day--at the end of the day, it's, like, you still got people looking at you. It doesn't matter, regardless.

SA MANN: What makes you think that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, for instance, I walk into work, you got people looking at me crazy. The CO, for example.

SA MANN: I gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, it's just, like, it's not going to go anywhere. All right, cool. The situation gets done, and handled where people are still going to have their opinion not knowing the full facts and everything.

SA MANN: Yeah. The court of public opinion is damning, right? Like, unfortunately, we can't change that. What we will do. Like,

David said, is we'll give results to everybody that matters. And I--I mean, I think, you know what the--the E-3 underground is alive and well. So, once somebody finds out that, "Hey. Like, Jay didn't do bad things. This was all just false accusations." If that is the case, that's going to resonate. People are going to hear that.

So, you know, are you going to ever going to be able to stop people looking at you for something? No, that's reality. Somebody's always going to have their opinion of you. Someone may love you, someone may hate you. It is what it is.

But, and--and I know that this is kind of a foreign concept in the sense of polygraph. Most people are. Like, yeah, I mean, I think I know what it is. I think I'd be willing to do it. And--and it's not that we want to sit here and slam you with a bunch of questions. What we want to do is give you an opportunity to, in theory, and or minimize those questions that are going to come about you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: At least from us. Right? Like, I can't control what somebody's opinion of you is going to be. All I can do is tell that person, "Hey, Jay didn't do the thing that you're saying he thinks he did. He's proven that." And you know, if they just want to keep that opinion because they don't like you, or if they, you know, do like you enough and they go, "Oh, well that's great to know. Like, I'm glad I can trust this guy. Like, he's not somebody."

So, you know, I--I think there are two sides to that coin. I just want to make sure that you've seen both.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: I know in your world right now, the easy side to go to is, like, this is all bad, and I--I get it, especially considering your family situation. Not being able to see your dad, but hopefully putting this piece behind it means that all you got to worry about is get through that mast. You know, take whatever punishment they decide to give you. Then, if this is all gone away and you're part--you're--you're not a part of it anymore, hopefully then they can see the need for you to go take some leave, see your family, you know, check in on dad, and go from there.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: So.

SA GEREL: Yeah, investigations. Like, you know, there's--there's only a few things we can do to prove what we call proving a negative. Like, you can say all day long, I didn't do it. And people either have to believe that or not believe that. So, we're looking for evidence, but one thing that we can offer is, "I didn't do it, and I passed my polygraph."

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: You know what I--I mean? So, then like they've got something else to. Like, "Well, dang, maybe you didn't do it." So, it definitely adds a lot to--it's something you can proactively do to give credence to what you're telling folks. So, I--Tyler may have already said that, but. You follow about that later or not yet? Did--does it give you any other thought on trying it today?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I don't feel like I can take that shit today. Like, it's just, I'm telling you. Like, I got too much shit going on.

SA GEREL: I gotcha. I gotcha. And--and--and frankly, I am concerned about your sleep and your food and--and your mental health. Like, those are things that would, even as you said, I'll take it and then, I--I heard that stuff. I might not want to give it to you today, any because--because those things would be important for me to know that you have--that you're coming in with a good day.

So, two of the things that could consider with you. Thing number one, you may not feel like today's a good day for it, but are you seeing that maybe sometime in the future it could be?

CSSN COPELAND: Most definitely.

SA GEREL: Okay. Cool. Love that. Okay. Next thing, there are some details that we maybe could capture that might help. The--some things you know. Because you you--you--as I told you, you're probably the last person that we know of that saw her. So, when we reviewed that first interview or the one that they brought you here to talk about, we watched it, and--and--and I appreciate you doing that, but there's a couple things that we were kind of curious about that might help us help them.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Are you cool--can you cover some of the details with this? Good with that? Okay. Good.

So, what's your--what--what's your hard timeframe? When--when do you--you want to be done with this today?

CSSN COPELAND: As fast as possible. Like, do you you--do you--you guys know what time it is?

SA GEREL: Yeah. It's 9:20.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: Yeah. I--I will tell you that, like, we're what--do you have a scheduled time for your mast?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I don't know if it's before or after lunch. Lunch starts at eleven o'clock, so.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I guess it's probably going to be done after.

SA GEREL: Yeah. I--I think that's more likely. They--they'll likely have no trouble waiting on you. Like, if we get a little delayed, but I--I don't think we're going to have to delay you that long.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Anything that you needed to absolutely do before your mast?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't really think so.

SA GEREL: Okay. I just want to take care of your time. I appreciate you--you working with us. You've got a lot of stressors, and I--I understand. Do you feel like any of those stressors are more important than finding V/A.R.?

CSSN COPELAND: Can you say that again?

SA GEREL: Yeah. I know you've got a lot of things that are stressing you. You've got the traffic court. You've got the--the--the other---we haven't talked about this yet, but we know about the other investigations. We--we know you got some things that are kind of stressing you, but are--are any of those things more important to you than helping to find V/A.R.?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: Okay. I didn't think so. I mean, if it feels like you didn't know her. Like, super well, but I think you knew her enough where you'd probably be concerned about her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And that's the vibe I'm getting. So, it's good to hear that because--because that--that makes me feel very comfortable with--with, you know.

CSSN COPELAND: And then at the end of the day, I'm answering questions, like you said, everybody else asks. If I wanted to leave, I could left at any given moment.

SA GEREL: Yeah. [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day, I'm taking the time to talk to you guys, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. I--I figured, but I--I wanted to kind of check--check your thoughts on that. Okay. Good. All right. So, as--as--as best you can tell us about, like you--you, well, actually, let me even go before that. How did you meet V/ A. R.?

CSSN COPELAND: CSA school. We're the same rate?

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: We went to A-school together. When I checked into the command, it was her and another CS that I knew. V/ A. R. is, like, I didn't really go up and talk to her, but she is, like, you know, when you look at someone, they're, like, that person looks familiar, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: That's how I saw her. And then, my homeboy, JJ, walked up to me. I was, like, "Oh, shit." And from there, me and him were talking, and then, later down, it was, like, a couple days afterwards, that's when she came up to me and asked me if I--what class I was in in A-school.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, from there I was, like, "I knew you looked familiar," and then from there we were talking. I mean, there's been previous times before that where we've hungen out. We've gone out to eat. We've went to Dave and Busters. We've--yeah.

SA GEREL: So, how long ago was that A-school? When was that? Like, two year or so?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, almost two years ago.

SA GEREL: Two--two years ago. Okay. You've known her for a long time.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Were you all--where did--where did, after A-school, where did you--you serve with her at? Or were you on the same ship or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no. After A-school, I went--that's when I was on the Truman, so.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, A-school, the Truman for, and then, you--did you work in your rate. Like, as--as a CS?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Okay. And then how--how much did you keep in contact with, V/ A. R.?

CSSN COPELAND: I never had her contact until I got onto the--the DDG I'm on now.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, the barge.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: What did you feel about the barge? What's that like?

CSSN COPELAND: It's ass.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I'm not going to say, like, the ship is ass, but it--it's ass.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Because, it's, like, being. Like, I guess it's just transitioning from--from the carrier life to a DDG.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't like it.

SA GEREL: Yeah. I've heard that before. I've done investigations on the barge, and I'm. Like, this doesn't feel like a very comfortable place.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. No.

SA GEREL: Do--do they make y'all sleep on the barge sometimes?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. People, I mean, if somebody has duty, they have a berthing for that. Or there's some people that don't have barracks.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: That way you getting a ride so they stay--they stay on the barge.

SA GEREL: Okay. I gotcha. All right, so--so got on the barge, kind of met back up with--with--with V/A.R.. Tell me about that, like, when you first kind of came back in contact with her. What--what, what--what was your relationship like?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, just work. That's about it. I know we would come in. Like, "Morning, how you doing?" type of thing.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: You know, same thing with the whole watch. Just, you know, saying good morning to everybody, just talking.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And one thing about me is, like, if I work with you, I'm going to have to be obligated to talk to you. So, it's either. Like, you can either hate me or not. Cool. If not, I'm going to just still say good morning.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: If you choose not to talk to me, you choose not to. But towards me and V/ A. R., it was acquaintances. Like, we were--we were good. Cordial.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Everything was cool.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. That's very good. Fast forward just a--a smidge because I'm momentarily curious about this. So, where do you think she's at?

CSSN COPELAND: If I--I couldn't tell you. I know when she left, she left. I know she was saying she was mad at Gil. I mean, the night of you know, she was mad as fuck. That's all. Sorry for cussing, but----

SA GEREL: No, no, that, that's----

CSSN COPELAND: You know, she was on a--calling a lot of people. I know she had called her ex, that lived in Texas.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And she was saying, like, how he fucked up, how he can't do this, can't do that. She's always spending money on him. Always sending him money. And I'm just sitting there. Like, cool. And, I had talked to the dude. He was pretty chill, pretty cool. And then, from there, that's when she just started calling other people.

SA GEREL: Why was she so mad at Gil?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like I said, they got into an argument, so they got into an argument about a bike helmet that Gil had gave V/ A. R..

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And V/ A. R. said that she saw some dude, or not some dude, but some female getting on his bike when she went on a walk.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And the--the day that he picked the female up, I'm guessing he was asking for the bike helmet back, and V/ A. R. was asking, "Why specifically the bike helmet if you gave it to me?" And he was just, like, "Oh, it reminds me of all the times and all the places we could've gone together."

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: "And things we could've done." So--so it's, like, he was basically saying it's more of like a--like a memory.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And she was, like, she doesn't want to give--give him back the bike helmet. They was just going back and forth arguing, and that's when he said--he was just, like, "Fuck it, just keep the helmet." He's. Like, "You can just keep it. I don't want it anymore."

SA GEREL: Okay. So--so, what--what--what, I--I don't fully understand like why that made her so upset.

CSSN COPELAND: Because, obviously, she was--in her eyes, she thought that he was going to give it to another female to ride on his bike. Obviously, they've dated.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And, you know.

SA GEREL: Sounds like jealousy. Is that the right word for how she was feeling?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, if that's how you want to put it. Yeah.

SA GEREL: Well, I don't know. I--I'm just trying to figure it out. But--but she--she was concerned with this other female and Gil.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And. Like, whatever he was doing with her. But I don't want to put words in the--what--that's why I kind of want to know what your thoughts are as to why she was so mad.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's what I would think, obviously. Or she's mad because, obviously, I don't know if they're trying to fix the relationship or if they're still talking.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I knew they dated, you know, and she talked to another dude.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day, that's not my business. That's totally their business. I mean, cool. Like, y'all can do what y'all want to do. But I'm not going to get myself involved in their situation.
SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. So, you don't know where--where she's at. Did you see or ever hear anything from her that makes you think that she would just not go to work and disappear? Anything like that?
CSSN COPELAND: No. I mean, I don't really text her. Like, usually when I leave people, I just be. Like, "If you need something, just call or text me," and I just leave it like that.
SA GEREL: Okay. Now I know that all of us can be tempted at times to cover for friends and family. Like, if they do something and they're, like, "Oh man, I'm gonna--I got your back." I--I don't know if that's happening here, but I--I would hope that, if there's something that you know of, something she may have wanted to do, you would let us know. Is anything like that?
CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so. I mean, the only person that I know that talks to her on daily is Gillespie and Rich.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: Those are the two main people that she talks to at work.
SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, if you want more, you probably have to ask them or talk to them.

SA GEREL: Sure.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: But those are the two people that she talks to. Like, pretty much on daily, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. And--and they have and they--they will. Like, keep talking to them. But there are times--this is my thinking. You--you--you, of course, make your own thoughts, but, even though we may feel tempted to help other people, sometimes it's more important to actually not. You know, so in this case, you've got tons of people looking for her, including her family.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: And worried sick about her. In this instance, I--I would suggest that it's more important to, if there's something that you could feel tempted to hide on her behalf, that you wouldn't do that with us right now, even if you have already.

CSSN COPELAND: Fuck no. I mean, you see the situation I'm in. I'm not--like, at the end of the day, if somebody fuck up, that's on them.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay. Okay. I appreciate you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: I--I got that vibe from you, but I wanted to make sure that we were seeing that in the same way. Because I mean, I definitely have been around some people, or maybe even myself sometimes been. Like, I'm not going to ever hurt that person, and-- and I'm not going to tell. The--the police or anybody about something that person did. Because I care that much, like a loyalty thing.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, you see how big it's getting. At the end of the day, I mean, I've told both of you what I have going on in my life.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm--I'm at this point, I'm not helping nobody put something like that.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: If they leave, I'm snitching, like yeah. This person left. I'm sorry, but I'm telling.

SA GEREL: Well, and I thank you. And I wouldn't even call it that. It's just, like, you care enough----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: ----about the person. Let's go ahead and get this squared away so someone, you know, doesn't get any extra smoke. That's good.

All right, so let's unfortunately think about some possibilities for---well, let's--let's presume for a second that maybe something bad happened to her. Do you have, like, a list--we all have this list of angels and demons. People that are. Like, there's no way these people would've done anything bad to her. I'm not so sure about these people. The--the demons and I--we might want to be looking more at them.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Who--who--who is your angels and demons in terms of who could have--who--who--well, let's start with angels.

Who would you say, like, there's no way this person did anything bad to her?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I can't really determine that. I mean, I know there's people she talks to, but at the end of the day, I don't jurisdict everybody she hangs out with.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I don't--I couldn't honestly tell you that from a get go. I mean, I know the people that we work with, you know, she talks to, and the only two that I see her talk to when we're at work is Gillespie and Rich.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So.

SA GEREL: And--and they give you a little, grace on this. Oh, I'm not going to hold your feet to the fire and say, like, "Oh, he said that they couldn't have done it, so, there's no way they did it." I--I mean, you're not God. You don't know all the things.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, but I--but I would--but sometimes those instincts are pretty important. Right? So--so you may feel. Like, I know Gil, I mean, he's not perfect, but, like, I would be shocked if he did anything bad like that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Or you might say, like, Gil's suspicious. I mean, you might want to be looking at Gil.

W Yeah.

SA GEREL: You know what I mean? So, like, I'm not going to--we wouldn't let people know, like that Copeland said, "Look at Gil."

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Or whomever. But--but your--your--everyone's instincts can be pretty darn important. So, like, if you have any instincts, good or bad, towards the people that have been mentioned around her, we'd appreciate to hear about it.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, at the end of the day, I don't really know those two like that. I mean, I know JJ is somebody we work with.

There's Garcia and Miguel, Buco. Like, when we're at work, we work. Cool. You know, time to time we joke around and bullshit.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: That's, you know, that's just our way. Like, theoretically for CS's to, you know, get through our day.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: At the end of the day, we--we're the first people to walk on the ship, last people to leave, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: You know, that's just one way we get through work. As far as Gillespie and Mitch, I don't--Rich, I don't really know them like that, so.

SA GEREL: So, those dudes are CS's?

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no, no, no. I don't know what their rate is.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, going into a DDG and they got, you know. Like, STGs and stuff like that. I don't know what those rates are.

SA GEREL: Okay. Gotcha. So, they don't work with y'all.

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no, no. I know. Like, they, you know, they come in the galley and they talked back--they be in the back talking to V/ A. R..

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: You got. Like, CS1 or CS2 walk--walk in the galley, and they walk through and see them back there.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And then, obviously, they asked--asked them to get out the galley.

SA GEREL: What was V/ A. R.'s first ship? I mean, is it the one that you all are on, or is it a different ship?

CSSN COPELAND: I believe it's the ship we're on now.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. All right. So, you mentioned JJ. Who--what--who's that? Say that full name again, please.

CSSN COPELAND: JJ?

SA GEREL: Yeah. Who's that?

CSSN COPELAND: He's somebody, a CS.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, all those names besides Rich and----

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: ----Gillespie, those are all CS's.

SA GEREL: Okay. I got you. You said a bunch names. I just want to make sure I'm understanding the--the same people or different people. So, do you know JJ's full name?

CSSN COPELAND: It's, like, Edison Jean Jaques or something like that.

SA GEREL: Jaques. Okay. All right. And who else did you mention?

CSSN COPELAND: Buco.

SA GEREL: Buco. Okay. And is Buco a CS?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GEREL: And----

CSSN COPELAND: Garcia and Miguel.

SA GEREL: Garcia and Miguel. So--so these folks are people around you all?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes.

SA GEREL: Do you categorize them as suspicious or not suspicious?

CSSN COPELAND: They're not suspicious.

SA GEREL: Okay. All right. Just kind of people you work with?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: All right. Any suspicious people?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like I said, it's limited in. Like, from my point of view.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I don't really know anybody around V/ A. R., you know, that's, like, aggressive or somebody that could hate V/ A. R..

SA GEREL: Okay. The--the--the girl with--with the bike helmet, do you know her name?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: You know, even. Like, a nickname, or, like, do you know anything about her at all?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I believe she is a civilian.

SA GEREL: A civilian.

CSSN COPELAND: I--I don't know who she is, so.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, I remember Gillespie telling me, like, his little portion on it, and then, when V/ A. R. came over and she was talking about it. That's--that's the only thing that I know about it.

SA GEREL: Okay. How does V/ A. R., how--how does V/ A. R. feel about that girl?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, she didn't really know the female, so she was just, like, categorizing her as a bitch?

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, she was, like, "Yeah, I can't believe he's trying to get my helmet for something. Like, for a bitch."

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: I was just, like, I mean, at the end of the day, that's how men are sometimes.

SA GEREL: Did--did--did you ever hear V/ A. R. talk about getting. Like, pestered by anybody? Like, blown up or, like, tons of messages or anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so. Nah. She's never mentioned anything like that. I mean, as far as her phone, she was on the phone with her ex from Texas.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's the only person I talked to, and then, from there, she was, like, just calling.

SA GEREL: So, it brings another curiosity about the Texas ex. Like, what--what the world prompted her to call him that night?

CSSN COPELAND: She was basically saying, like, you know, like everybody has their person they go to.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And I guess that was her person that she goes to when things happen to her. You know, somebody she needs to talk to.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's what she said. She was, like, basically. Like, she's going to call--she was, like, "Copeland," she was, like, "This is my ex from Texas." And she was, like, basically. Like, that's her right-hand man.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, sounds like she wasn't mad at him.

CSSN COPELAND: No. No.

SA GEREL: Oh, okay. Cool. Okay. So, she was kind of calming down and talking through her frustrations.

CSSN COPELAND: Venting, venting to him, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. I got it. All right. Well, I appreciate it. I-- I got sidetracked on a bunch of specific questions, so sorry about that.

CSSN COPELAND: You're fine.

SA GEREL: All right, so I think I'm going to have him start kind of talking more about those--the--the the weekend. But before I do that, did you have any questions about the stuff we've covered so far?

SA MANN: Just with, I guess, V/ A. R., like what was your guys, the extent of your--how would you. Like, describe your relationship? Like, what'd you guys?

CSSN COPELAND: We were just work people, like people that work together.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. That's literally what I would describe it.

SA MANN: Oh. Do you guys ever get into. Like, the maybe want to date, hookup, connect scene?

CSSN COPELAND: Not even--not even thought about that.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: All right. I was curious, kind of what--how you guys were inter-weaved. Like, friends, dating, relationship. Kind of just, we hook up because can. Whatever it is.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, she knows that, and I wouldn't do nothing with her. At the end of the day. Like, we work together.

SA MANN: Why's that?

CSSN COPELAND: Huh?

SA MANN: Why's that?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, me personally, I had a bad experience with a CS, and after that, like I--I told myself I can't get with a CS. Like, they're cool to hang out with, but physically dating with CS, I can't do that shit no more.

SA MANN: Can you tell me a little about that?

CSSN COPELAND: So, there was a female that was on the DDG that I'm on now.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And we were talking for a little bit, and we started taking it a little more serious. And there it came to a time where she had a seizure on the barge. So, as soon as I got off work, I went and picked her up. And I was on my way home, and my--my tire blew up on the highway, and my rim cracked.

So, I called my homeboy to come pick me up, and I took--I called the towing company to tow the car to the nearest shop where I can get--get my tire fixed.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, basically, I was asking, do they have a spare tire? And they were saying they don't have spare tires. And--and able, for me to get a tire for my rim, I would have to have, like, a good rim because my rim split.

SA MANN: Right.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I was, like, fuck. So, my homebody took me to the junk yard. We went to the junk yard. I picked up a spare tire from there, and I called the dealership, I got my car from, and--and he gave me a number for a welder, and he welded the rim together, and then, from there, I ended up buying a tire from there, and I got it all fixed, same day and everything. Cool. And she was with--she was with us the--the whole time.

So, I get home, and she came home with me, and I laid down on the couch, like I fell asleep. And, you know, she's. Like, she wants--obviously wants attention. She's. Like, "Can you talk to me for a little bit?" This, that, and the third? And I was, like--I was, like, "Can you give me, like, just, like, 15 minutes? Like I'm--I'm tired as fuck. Like, you've seen everything I just did today."

So, she was like--like, "All right, cool." And, so, she sat down. I wake up and she's talking shit on the phone with her sister about me. So, I was, like, "All right, cool. Like, you are--are just going to sit here and be disrespectful in my face. You can leave." She was, like, "All right, fuck you, then."

She left, realized she had nowhere to go, so she's sitting outside my door, banging on my door for, like, eight hours. I just told her, I was, like, "Goodnight. Like, you chose to leave. I'm not opening the door. And you left and did what you did. You blew up, projected, and did what you did. I'm not coming to open the door."

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, she's talking about she's going to go get the RA to come open my door. This, that, and the third. I'm just, like, I just kept saying, "Goodnight, goodnight, goodnight." And it came about. Like, five, six o'clock. My roommate was going to go get breakfast, and she pushed my roommate out the way and bombarded my room with a knife in her hand.

SA MANN: Jeez.

CSSN COPELAND: She broke everything. Like, all my electronics in my room. She fucking destroyed my room. She tried to stab me. There was a whole shit show. And then, from there. I think it was, like, almost a week straight, she slashed my tires every day, and every day I had to fucking fix that shit.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: On top of that, coming to work. So, on that part, it was a whole shit show. And after that, I'm. Like, I--I can't fuck with a CS no more.

SA GEREL: What's that girl's name?

CSSN COPELAND: V/S.R.

SA GEREL: V/S.R. Okay. She's on the barge?

CSSN COPELAND: No, not no more. They took her off the barge because she--she had a seizure, so.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: She's in some command on base.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. Yeah. It sounds. Like, yeah, it didn't sound good. Did she catch any charges from that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so.

SA GEREL: Did you tell anybody?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I mean, they had the MAs involved. I talked to NCIS on the, not this building, but it's a building, it was the precinct. That's what it was. They took me to the precinct.

SA GEREL: Oh, gotcha.

SA MANN: On base.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. And I talked to a detective from there.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. Did she pay you back or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: Not that I--not yet. I--I don't know how that----

SA MANN: How long ago was it?
CSSN COPELAND: This was a couple months ago.
SA MANN: Okay. Yeah.
SA GEREL: All right.
SA MANN: Yeah, I guess obviously that's a rough lesson to learn, but expensive one.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: But--but it is just kind of a, not, I guess for lack of better. Like, picking up things at work just didn't make sense anymore. Like, just try to keep work and life like that.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: Personal life a little separate from a relationship perspective.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. I mean, on top of that, you know, when I was on the carrier, I talked to people, and I also talked to. Like, you know. Like, the higher-ups, first classes, and they always said never date a CS. At the end of the day----
SA MANN: Okay. So, what--how would you describe then the relationship you have with V/ A. R.? Like, what would you guys say you are?
CSSN COPELAND: Just friends. I mean, we work together. Cool. You know, if we, you know, do something outside of work or, you know, like sometimes we go eat or just find something fun to do. Go bowling or something.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, that's what we did last time. Before this time, we hung out. It was me and two other CS's, but they weren't on our ship and----

SA MANN: This past weekend, or the----

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no. Not this past weekend. It was months ago.

SA MANN: Oh, okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, when I first--when I got back from deployment.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: And, she--we went out and, my homeboy picked--no, my homegirl picked me up and my homeboy that I previously met that-- that day, we all went out and we went to Dirty Buffalo and then, we went to Dave and Buster's. And there's been another time I think we went out and we were watching a football game, too.

So, it's been a couple times we hung out previous to her coming over, so we just work together. I do the same with everybody I work with. Like, if y'all want to pop out, do something for the weekend or something, just go find something chill to do, we can always do that.

SA MANN: Okay. Did you guys ever hook up at any point?

CSSN COPELAND: Never. Not one point.

SA MANN: Oh, would you?

CSSN COPELAND: No. I mean, I already told you, fucking with a CS--

--

SA MANN: No, I mean, like, CS aside. Like, did you, like--she a pretty girl. You're, like, "Hey, this is----"

CSSN COPELAND: I don't really look at her like that.

SA MANN: No. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: So, I think I said this at the beginning, but just to kind of reiterate it, when you're talked to by people like us, police or authorities. Like, there's always going to be a little temptation to make sure you're, like, "Oh shit, this is kind of rough. I--I feel like I need to make sure I do--do what I can to protect myself." That's very normal, very natural.

So, with that being said, though. Like, particularly Tyler and I as polygraph examiners, when we talk to you today, we--we may use a lot of what we talk about if--when you come back, right? I love that you want to come back because I think that's a good way you can help yourself to relieve some of this stress.

So, but it's really crucially important that we get. Like, the best truth. The truth is the truth. Right? It is what it is.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: But sometimes when you get talked to by multiple people. Like, it's very normal for you to remember different things, to have things you want to add some clarifications. That's just normal stuff.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: If you--I'd like to encourage you to do that with us today. So, if there's something that you know, you said before, and you're, like, "I know I said that, but I kind of wish I could have said it a little differently," you can. All right? You can say it differently.

We want--we want to help you the best way we can, and that's only we can do is working with the full truth.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, like, if there's something that might come in and feel like they may get mad about that, or it may come across as making me, like, dishonest, whatever, I don't want you to worry about that. It's--it's me asking you to be very strong and courageous to trust us like that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: But I'm only saying that because I'm an old dude and I talk to a lot of folks, and then--and that I'm also a human. So, like, I get that instinct to be cautious and careful with what you say. Because you--you don't want to get any further trouble. I get

it. You just have to trust us to know that we aren't worried about you, we're worried about her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, there might be some things that you could add more details to, and I just really encourage you to do that.

CSSN COPELAND: As far as what?

SA GEREL: Well, particularly about what we're going to get into, which is, like, I'd like you to walk us through. Like, the--the weekend. So, from--from the night that you all made arrangements to make the tacos and salsa----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: ----kind of start there and then, give us. Like, the best absolute account of--of what happened between then and when she went missing.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: So, because again, like we're seeing some things that we--we think could be important, but some of them may not even know it's important yet.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: But because you spent a lot of time with her around then you prob--you almost a hundred percent know things that will help us find her.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So, that's why we're--we're going through it multiple times. You did a good job last time, but I'd like you just to have that--that comfort. Like, if you need to add or change a few of those details, please do.

CSSN COPELAND: Because everything I said from the last time they talked to me is pretty much the same.

SA GEREL: Okay. And--and--and what--what I'd like--we--we have this thing that we do and--and we call it a timeline. And--and it comes in a little different, but it's very helpful because of the way the human brain works. It--it's part of a--a method that we call scientific interviewing. Sometimes it's helpful, sometimes it's not. But it--it, I think in this case you really might be able to find some more details that could help the case.

So, all it is--is we'll put a piece of paper right here. We'll get. Like, a beginning of the--the timeframe register and then the end of it. And we'd like you--did you bring sticky notes?

SA MANN: I think they're still in the car. We can find some here.

SA GEREL: Okay.

SA MANN: I'll see if I can. S

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. Thank you. I'll keep explaining it.

[SA Mann departed the room at timestamp 1:05:00.]

SA GEREL: And--and so, how we do it is you just get these little yellow sticky notes and--and on the paper. Like, we'd like you to write. Like, the memory you have and put it on the timeline. Like, where you think it goes in order.

And then, it doesn't have to be. Like, from, it doesn't have to be. Like, any particular way. Just as you think of stuff. Like, as you think of it, write it, put it down, and then go to the next thing. "Okay, I remember this." Write it down. Put it down where you think it goes in order, and--and just do that which will allow us to get the--a good picture of kind of how you remember the--the timeframe, with her that worked out.

CSSN COPELAND: So, like, I'm writing or, like, writing words.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: Or I'm drawing,

SA GEREL: No, not drawing. Just words.

CSSN COPELAND: Oh.

SA GEREL: So, like, you know, I don't want to give too many examples because it's actually good for you to--to--to use your own words and thoughts. But as an example. Like, if you want to have--like, if you have a memory about the grocery store. Like, Food Lion or whatever it is, and--and then, put a Food Lion. And then, you see what I mean? And--and then, you can get--be as descriptive as you want, or you can be as general like that as you want. You can put "grocery store."

And then, just kind of put it in the order of things are, and then, that'll help us to kind of probably develop some other questions that you can help us with.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: Is that cool?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: He'll back with that in a second. I'll go and your space ready.

[SA Mann entered the room at timestamp 1:06:22.]

SA MANN: All right. We got a few. We can probably find some more if we need to, for now.

SA GEREL: Nice. Good work.

SA MANN: I mean, it's not a ton, but we can hunt out some more. I'm sure that was just a quick ask.

You getting--you get a ride over here?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: You have a car? I know you said. Like, you had one, but you do you still got it.

CSSN COPELAND: Nah. It's fucked up.

SA MANN: Oh. What's wrong now?

CSSN COPELAND: The head gasket.

SA GEREL: Oh, so it's not just a fixed tire anymore, huh? Okay. So, how you been getting around normally now?

CSSN COPELAND: Either my roommate drops me off, and my home boy will text me home.

SA MANN: Okay. Have you been driving at all?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA MANN: No? Okay. Do you have access to a car you can even drive?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I mean, like, my roommate, you know, sometimes my roommate, he'll let me drive his car if I need to go grab something to eat, or sometimes he'll take me there.

SA MANN: What's he got?

CSSN COPELAND: He drives a Jeep.

SA MANN: Okay. I--I might have a marker. No, I don't. All right.

SA GEREL: All right. So, kind of already explained to him the general idea. Let's kind of consider this the beginning of our timeframe. And when--when did you have that evening? Do you know when you were preparing the salsa?

CSSN COPELAND: Can you say that again?

SA GEREL: Yeah. When--when did you--what day did you----

SA MANN: When you were making tacos.

SA GEREL: Yeah, when were you making tacos?
CSSN COPELAND: Thursday. I believe it was Wednesday transitioning to Thursday.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, Wednesday. I don't know if you think of it this way, but do you think of it in terms of. Like, calendar dates? Do you remember what date that was? If you don't, that's okay.
CSSN COPELAND: No.
SA GEREL: Okay. So--so, let's just go ahead and call that Wednesday. All right. And then, as many details as you can provide from Wednesday through----
SA MANN: Let's say the entirety of that week?
SA GEREL: Yeah. The entire weekend. So, we'll--we'll cut the weekend off, like----
SA MANN: Monday morning.
SA GEREL: ----Monday morning. All right. So, Wednesday through Monday.
SA MANN: You went to work Monday after?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I went to work Sunday as well, so.
SA MANN: Okay. Gotcha.
CSSN COPELAND: Well, I just--I didn't work Monday or Sunday, but I had to check in.
SA MANN: Right.
CSSN COPELAND: I was still being marked UA.

SA GEREL: Okay. And, if you need more space, we'll make it, and we'll get more of these if you need it, but you can go ahead and get started, and, to--have the thought, put down something that helps us know what that thought is and just place it wherever you feel like you can go send into the week. Okay?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like, for instance. Like, the whole weekend. Like, I ain't do shit.

SA GEREL: I know.

CSSN COPELAND: I just stayed home, so.

SA GEREL: So, I know this might feel like Why do they even care about all that? Every little detail is--is important. I mean, some stuff that we may don't know, stuff that you don't know.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: So--so again, as much as you can put in there.

SA MANN: Sometimes memory, too, like you--you and V/ A. R. could have had a thousand conversations that weekend and then, there'll be something that just by writing this down, you go, "Oh man, I remember she mentioned whatever." And that'll help us find some directionality. So, we're just--I know it seems kind of goofy. We're. Like, "Hey, do all this." But it--it is truly--the brain is a powerhouse. Right?

It's a machine doing all kinds of things. This will help maybe pull up some of those things that we just don't feel are pertinent.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: So, that's why we're asking. It's not--I know that you're probably. Like, what in the world are these guys doing? But we're trying to help that brain find those little things that could help us pivot to figure out where she's at.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like, for instance, me, like, I'm not, like, the type of person to--I don't know. Because. Like, when I talk---
-
SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]
CSSN COPELAND: ----that's what brings back memories. Like, me writing things down because I'm not, like, really the type of person--I don't like reading. I don't like books.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: I'm. Like, more about outgoing person. Like, outdoors, like doing all this, like, it is cool, but it's, like, I don't think that'll refresh my memory.
SA MANN: How about this? If you talk it and we write it, and then, we'll just figure out where it goes timewise? Does that work for you?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, that's fine. I mean, I don't have--have a problem writing either, but I'm just letting you know that.
SA GEREL: Yeah. Let's let him give it a go. I--I mean, I appreciate you sharing that----

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I'm willing to do it.
SA GEREL: ----and--and we--we've got no--we've got nothing to lose about trying this.
CSSN COPELAND: Okay.
SA GEREL: So--so it may--it may help with your memory, it may not, but--but it--it is a good attempt and we thank you for giving it a go.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah.
SA MANN: And if you want, if it's easier, we can stick this on the wall, and you can write it out. I don't know. Whatever you----
CSSN COPELAND: It's fine.
SA MANN: Okay. Whatever will help you.
SA GEREL: Yeah. I'll get out of your way. So, let me go run and try to find some more of this.
SA MANN: Yeah.
SA GEREL: Where is it at in the car, by the way, just in case it as a last ditch effort.
SA MANN: They probably just floating around the truck somewhere, but----
SA GEREL: Okay.
SA MANN: Then, we'll make that--I just tossed them in there, so I-- I don't even know if they--actually, let me see if I have a-- sometimes I throw a sticky pad in here. Or not that one. This one.

That'll work.

SA GEREL: Oh, that's good. Yeah. That's good. Perfect.

SA MANN: I forgot I had that in there. See, using it on me. Little memory keys. Right? We can even do it for this.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: A little big. But it's all right.

While you're doing this, too, is there something we can get you to eat? Snacks or something? Just kind of power. I know you brought some in your hat like that jerky.

CSSN COPELAND: No, I--I'm fine.

SA MANN: All right.

CSSN COPELAND: I didn't even know that was in my pocket.

SA MANN: Oh, well, there you go. Surprise.

SA GEREL: And, in this room, I can also offer you an apple and crackers, Captain's wafers.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm fine.

So, like, when you say, like, Wednesday through Monday. Like, this is what happened each day?

SA GEREL: Yeah. However, really want to kind of tackle it. But you--you can--yes, please. Just as you think through those several days, of--of your--of your memories, just put them down as you--as you recall. And it does not have to be in order. So, you can, if you think of something that happened Saturday, "Man, this happened right there."

SA MANN: So, it's easier. You can use these. They just--I don't know if that'll help, but I--I don't know if the stickers all messed up on those.

CSSN COPELAND: I--I just--yeah. Yeah. It is just, like, it's staggered weirdly.

SA MANN: Oh, okay. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

SA GEREL: I am sure that's not a rat.

SA MANN: Old buildings. If it makes you feel any better, this place probably isn't much better than a barge, and we're stuck here, so. SA GEREL: Hey, Copeland, you're doing a great job. We're going to give you the room for a minute, just to give you a little privacy. Here's your other pad if you if you run out the stickies. You can use these, too, okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Okay. Thank you.

SA GEREL: We'll come check on you in a few minutes. All right?

CSSN COPELAND: All right. Thank you. You mind if I--you mind just handing me the beef jerky stick?

SA GEREL: Of course, yeah. You--you want an apple or the Captain's wafers.

SA MANN: No, no. We can get you. Like, chips, crackers, whatever.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm good. Thank you.

[SA Mann and SA Gerel departed the room at timestamp 1:19:40.]

[SA Mann and SA Gerel entered the room at timestamp 1:45:20.]

SA GEREL: Hey Copeland. All right. Looks like you did some good work here. Work here. How you doing?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm doing all right.

SA GEREL: Okay. Good. I'm going to let you put your head down. How you feeling?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm tired.

SA GEREL: So, you said you didn't get any--you didn't get any sleep at all last night? Like, did--did you try?

CSSN COPELAND: I sleep--I mean, on top of that, I have a roommate, so he's the game screaming so.

SA GEREL: Oh, man.

CSSN COPELAND: He doesn't--he doesn't like--so his schedule is a lot easier.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: He literally stays up gaming the whole night.

SA MANN: And you have to listen to it.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. So, he usually gets off the game around. Like, when he has to go to work.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, he goes to work and then sleeps the entire day.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, he stays up all night screaming, and I don't think I closed my eyes--it was maybe around. Like, three, four o'clock.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: When I actually got into the bed, because I was setting up the whole entire time for my uniform.

SA GEREL: Yeah, uniform. Did you touch sleep at least and catch a few--few moments?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay. All right.

SA MANN: Yeah. So, good work. It looks like. Talk--talk us through. What do--do you--what do you got here?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, from the start to finish, is everything got correlated each day of?

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: I believe the first through the third one is Wednesday.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, from the third to the fourth one is Thursday to Friday. And then, from there, each--I believe I have each day on.

SA GEREL: Okay. What's that one say? Cleanup and something V/ A. R. helped?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. She helped me clean up, and then she left.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, this is, do you--you remember about this, like what time or approximately?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't.

SA GEREL: Like, morning, midday, afternoon.

CSSN COPELAND: I think it was sometime in the morning.

SA GEREL: Okay. What day was that?

CSSN COPELAND: Thursday.

SA MANN: About--so it was the night after you guys had hung out?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Okay. Can you--do you need more paper or space or anything? I don't want to limit it.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's pretty much. Like, everything that I could. Like, just write down like that. I mean, I--I obviously. Like, I was just keeping it. Like, limited. But as long as you have questions, I'll answer them.

SA GEREL: Oh, okay. Yeah. Yeah. Yeah. So--so if you thank you for that, it's really good detail. I really appreciate you doing that. So, any other details you can add to the phone calls that she started having? Like, that--that Wednesday night, CSSN COPELAND: I think the first phone call started off with her calling her--her ex from Texas.

SA GEREL: When--when--when that happened, how was she--was she I--I--what was her--what was her emotional state. Like, when she started calling her?

CSSN COPELAND: She was fine. Like, before she even started talking. Like, she was, she was, like, checking in on him, seeing how he was doing, and then, from there, that's when she told me to come over and meet him, and she was basically saying, like, we kind of looked the same.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, we have, like, the same body build, complexion--like, skin complexion. And she was saying, like, if I--if I was to get to know him. Like, would be. Like, good friends or whatever.

SA GEREL: So, she said, come over and meet him. Like, was it FaceTime or something like that?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. They were----

SA GEREL: Okay. So, you saw him on the phone?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: All right.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, from there. Like, I was, like, "What's good bro?" And he was, like, "What's good?" And then, I just introduced myself, and she introduced me to him. And he kept--we kept it pretty cordial and then, from there, that's when they started talking.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, help me understand a little before that, you said that she uses her ex as kind of. Like, her--her main go to. I might have misunderstood, but I--I was kind of under the impression she--she was upset before that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. That's when we started talking about Gil.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like in his incident. Like, that's when we first started talking about it, and she was, like, "No fucking way." You know, and just talking. She was, like, "I got a call, so and so," whatever her ex's name is.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And then, that's when she was, like, "Oh, this is my ex from Texas." And then, she hopped on FaceTime, and then, from there, she was, like, "Come over so you can meet him." And that's when I met him.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, the--the Gil stuff, how--how long would that conversation with Gil happen before that FaceTime with the ex?

CSSN COPELAND: Probably. Like, seven minutes.

SA GEREL: Okay. Before that seven minutes, how was she acting?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, she was cool. Like, we were listening to music, and then, from there, she was teaching me how to make the tacos. Like, it was, like, corn--corn tacos.
SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]
CSSN COPELAND: Once she put oil in a pan.
SA GEREL: Nice.
CSSN COPELAND: And she would let the, like, the tortilla like--like when it started softening and then, I would fold it in half.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: And then, from there, I would put it on a plate, and then, I would put cheese in there, the taco meat, and then, whatever condiments I wanted, and then, the salsa.
SA GEREL: Okay. Were they good?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It was good. The salsa, that shit was spicy as fuck though. When you eat it. Like, it is good.
SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]
SA MANN: It hurts later. Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. And then, like--like a couple of minutes later, you start feeling in your stomach, and that shit--that shit will hurt.
SA GEREL: Did she make it. Like, from scratch?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Oh, nice. All right. So, before that, she was acting cool. Sometimes, when someone goes from cool to not cool, something triggered it. Do you--do you know what triggered the cool to not cool?

CSSN COPELAND: The bike helmet. Like, when she was talking about the bike helmet, that's what triggered it.

SA GEREL: So, she heard--did--well, tell me about that bike helmet. How did she--how did the bike helmet come up?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know. She was, I guess, texting Gil or some shit, and she had mentioned something, and she was, like, "You want to hear something crazy?" I was, like, "What's up?" And then, that's when she started talking about the Gil thing. And I was, like--I was, like--well, I was, like, "I'm not really going to get y'all situation, but that's crazy. Because he had told me today about such and such."

And that's when I told her about the--the conversation that I had with him on the mess decks about the female that had his bike or that drove on his bike. And she was, like, that's--that, like, she was, like, "That's fucking crazy."

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And she was, like, "Come look at this. And she was, like, showing me the text of when he was asking for the bike helmet back and shit. And then, from there, I'm guessing she just put two and two together.

SA GEREL: Oh. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And that's what caused her blow up about the bike helmet.

SA GEREL: Okay. Gotcha. All right. And so, after that phone call with the ex, what--how did the night go from there?

CSSN COPELAND: I was just cooling and I was just sitting on the couch, just listening to music while she's over there just calling everybody. Just left and right, just calling people. And then, I remember my roommate had walked in, and he walked in because he--I believe he came from the airport, from leave or some shit.

SA GEREL: Is it your actual roommate?

CSSN COPELAND: Oh, no, no, no. It's the people from across the room. So, inside the room, there's four people per room.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: But not four people per room, but it's four people in the room. SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: But two people per--per room.

SA GEREL: Gotcha. So, you can----

CSSN COPELAND: It was the dude that lives across.

SA GEREL: You know their names?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know his name. I think it's like--his name is, fuck, fuck, fuck. I think it's, like, something Cruz. I think his last name is Cruz.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And he's--he's Mexican. And. Like, he walked in, he is like--he's. Like, "Yo, everything good?" He's like--he looked at her, he is, like, "She good?" I was, like, "Bro, just--just let her have a moment." I'm just sitting on the couch, just cooling. And he was, like, "All right, bro." He's. Like, "if something pop off or you need me, just come knock on the door. I was, like, "All right, cool."

From there, she just kept making other phone calls and shit, and I told her, "I--I--I'm going to just go ahead to sleep. So, if you--if you want to go to sleep, then go ahead," and from there, that's when I went to sleep. By the time I woke up, she was in the bed, and that's when Chief was on the door.

So, I thought it was my roommate. Because sometimes when I close the door or if the door closes, my roommate either knocks or he fiddles with the handle.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: So, I thought it was him. So, I was, like, "Hold on." And I opened the door, and it's my Chief and he's. Like, "What's going on?" And I was, like, "Morning, Chief." And then, obviously, I see it's daylight, so I'm. Like, "Fuck." And he was, like, "Yeah." He was, like, "Having a late start, huh? I was, like, "Yes, Chief," and then, from there, he just told me to clean up and then, find a way to work. He's. Like, "Do I got a way to work?" I was, like, "Yeah. Obviously, when my roommate gets here, he can take me."

But by the time my roommate got home, they were off work. So, that's when the bullshit on my behalf started. And I thought we had a blind turnover because last week we had a--a 96, so I was working that weekend. And how it worked, I would--the processes is if I was working, then I would--I would have to come in at 4:30. And if I wasn't. Like, a regular turnover.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: Like, for instance, today I came in at 7:30 for turnover.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: So, I thought I didn't have to come in Friday. Cool. They didn't really say nothing. And then, Saturday hits, and they tell me I'm UA. I'm not, you know, me being a junior Sailor, not knowing the full details about being marked UA, so I'm not thinking it's a big deal. I was just, like, all right, cool. Like, they'll just see me Monday.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And I'll explain what the fuck happened over the weekend. And then, Sunday hits, that's when more bullshit happens. You know, they had the MAs come get me out of my--my room, and they're basically asking me, like, I'm being marked UA. My command is looking for me and so on. So, I was, like, "All right, cool."

Then, after they left, I called my Chief, and I was, like, "Yo, Chief." I was, like, "Obviously, this is getting out of hand. You know, you guys marking UA and whatnot, whatnot." And my Chief was basically--he, you know, I'm not going to say because you know it, it's him and it's me, but he was telling me, "Go in Monday, because it--it is not really going to make a difference or whatever." But he was, like, "If you want to go in today, you--you know, it's your choice."

So, I was, like, "Yeah, I already got my uniform and shit on, so--so I'll just go in and, you know, see whatever they--they can do. Like, you know. And he was, like, "All right." But he was basically telling me, like, I didn't have to go in. Like he said, I still could waited until Monday, but----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----it would've made shit worse from--from what they said. But, you know, I went in, checked in with the CDO. The CDO was, like, yeah, my parents had called, and she called the command and she called the base. She was worried because I didn't answer her call. So, so. I was, like, "Yeah, I talked to her." She wasn't-- you know, she put belt to ass on me, so.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: From there, they made me do a urinalysis, and then, from urinalysis, I went back home. Well, after I had left, I--I went to Chipotle. It was me and my two roommates that's across the room.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And they took me to Chick-fil-A. We went to Chick-fil-A. We all got something to eat, went back home, ate, and then, the morning comes, I wake up, you know, a little early, and I'm trying to book a Uber, trying to book a Z-trip. Nothing's popping up. Because obviously the--the Truman just got back. So----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----I'm guessing it's hella busy. So, I called--I called Chief Parker, and I was, like, "Morning, Chief." He's. Like, what's going on?" And I was, like, "Do you--you think it's possible--" I was, like, "Do you think, you know, you can give me a ride? Because I tried booking so, and so, and it's not working." But that's when I was, like, "I think it's just because the Truman's back."

So, he was, like, "Yeah." He was, like, "I'm almost at work." But he was, like, "You're fine, I'll come grab you." So, he came and grabbed me, and then, from there, I went to work. Chain of Command was just asking. Like, why was I UA, why I--I didn't answer calls and shit. And then, after that, finished work and then, I--I went home.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: And then as the days went by, that's when everything started getting serious. Like NCIS, and everybody started talking to me.

SA GEREL: Yeah. When did you start thinking that--that--that V/ A. R. might be part of that? Like, when did you, when did--did you start ever thinking about her as far as the UA thing?

CSSN COPELAND: When I got to work and they basically told me that the both of us has been marked UA.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, is that the first time that that came to mind?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: All right. All right, so let's back up a little bit. On the--the night. So, you guys--Wednesday tonight, you guys are chilling. You watch her go through some stuff. You stayed calm. You--you room roommate comes in and--and says, "Everything cool?" And you're, like, "Yeah." He's. Like, "Let me know if you need help." Was that uncommon? Did he ever have that kind of comment to you before? Like, where he is asking you if, like, you know, the girl's okay or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I mean, at the end of the day. Like, he walked in and saw somebody crying.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like, if you were--I'm not saying like----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----you know, theoretically if you were, you know, my roommate and you walk in to see somebody, you know, just sitting there crying, you would ask is everything----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----okay?

SA GEREL: Is everything okay? No, I--I gotcha. All right. Was there--tell me about when she stopped crying. Was there a timeframe when she calmed down?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, yeah. Afterwards, when I told her. Like, "I'm about to. Like, go to sleep. I was, like, "It's getting late as fuck." I was, like, "I work." And--and she was, like, "Yeah, you're right." And from there, she had just sat down, and I was just, like, "If you need something, then I would just be in bed. Like, you come grab me."

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, around that time, like, she was still crying, but she was also, like, you know, I just told her. Like, "You--you got to chill. Because you know, I got people in the room."

SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: "And if you start making--like, you start getting louder and--and shit, obviously like they're going to wake up."
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: I was, like, "Just, like, if you need to go outside, go ahead." Cool. And I was, like, from there, "I'm go to sleep." And she was, like, "All right." And that's when I went to sleep.
SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. And what--what happened after you went to sleep with her? Or what else happened? Did she stay in the same place, or did she move, or what--what happened there?
CSSN COPELAND: She stayed--she went to bed and then, when I woke up, that's when Chief was knocking on the door.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: And then, from there, he was just asking. Like, I need to get to work and shit.
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: That's when I told him. Like, "I'll get to work," but obviously, my roommate coming late as fuck, I couldn't, so.
SA GEREL: Gotcha. Gotcha. So--so we've heard, and read some accounts of like when--when you were first talked to by NCIS and kind of how you shared that stuff. And we watched the--the video of that--where the video, you talking to them this last time, which is more detailed.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]
SA GEREL: And then, this is very helpful too. So, a couple things, and this is normal, so don't worry, but there's a couple things that are just a little different in that. And so, we're trying to understand why. So--so one of the things that is a little different, and some of this is also compared to some of the people are saying that they saw. Some of your roommates and things like that.

But what--we have reason to think that somebody claims they saw you and her in the common room, at least in some portion of being unclothed. Help us understand that.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's what the female had said to me. She said my Chief walked in and saw both of us. Like, with no clothes on. And I was, like, that's not true because obviously my Chief knocked on the door.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And he was--he was, like, knocking on the door and shit and playing with the handle. I thought it was my roommate. I opened the door and I had a full conversation with him.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And--and like I was telling you, that's when the other detective. Like, that's when she, like--I felt like she was, like, antagonizing me. Like that's when she started playing her role, and she's sitting there. Like, basically trying to make it seem like I'm lying or some shit. "Oh, so you're just going to sit here and actually call your Chief a liar?"

SA GEREL: Okay.

SA MANN: Well, I think maybe that could have been a misconception, too. Like that could have come from a roommate, not Chief, like somebody that was seeing you guys. Because my understanding, the first time you talked to everybody, you said you--you guys had been drinking that night?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. She--she had, you know, a couple shots and then, I had about two shots of the buzz ball.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: From there, I was chilling.

SA MANN: Okay. What'd you guys do that night, though? Like, did you party hang out? Like, you're getting late into the hours?

CSSN COPELAND: We were just listening music and she was making her phone calls and shit and whoever she was on the phone with. As far as me, I told her. Like, "I'm--I'm chilling, I'm cooling. Because I--I got work," and she understood. I have work. Like, I mean, at the end of the day, we both work together. We're both CS's. Like, they know the fucking hours we work.

SA MANN: Well, why--I mean, I guess it's kind of. Like, that brings up what--a question of them. Like, why would somebody say that you two are partially or completely unclothed, laying on the floor in the living room area?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know who would've said that, but as far as when I woke up, when my Chief walked into the room, we were both----

SA MANN: I think you guys were in bed, obviously. Yeah. But, like, prior to that, any time throughout the night, were you guys out in the common area?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. We were in the common area the whole--pretty much the whole night until I basically told her I--I was going to sleep.

SA MANN: Did you guys ever take your clothes off?

CSSN COPELAND: I never did. I mean, I know----

SA MANN: Did she?

CSSN COPELAND: ---when I was in my room, I changed my clothes. I know she didn't either.

SA MANN: Okay. What was she--was she clothed when she was in bed with you, and no clothes?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. When she was in bed, she took her clothes off.

SA MANN: Okay. And. Like, what does that mean? Like everything? Did she have undergarments on. Like, bras and underwear?

CSSN COPELAND: No, she just took her top off, and she had her pants and everything on and her underwear. When I woke up, I just had my shirt--I just had my pants on, shirt off, because that's usually how I sleep. You can ask my roommate. It's either I sleep with--in my underwear, and just nothing. Well, just my underwear, or sometimes I'll sleep like with a tank top, shorts.

But for the respect of me having a female on my bed, I had shorts on, so.

SA GEREL: This might be a dumb question. It is a dumb question, but I'm going to ask it anyway. Was your roommate there? Like---

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: He was in the room that whole night?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: Okay. His name's Sean. Is that right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, when she got in bed with you, did you know she got in bed with you?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah, I was dead asleep, and I didn't know until, obviously, I woke up and Chief was knocking on the door, and that's when I opened the door and, you know, we had our conversation.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. That's, I--I appreciate you sharing that. And then, that's you--you know--you you--you--you know probably why some of this might be suspicious to people.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: You--you have a bit of a reputation as far as being a ladies' man. Like you--you girls like you. I don't know if that's true or not, but----

CSSN COPELAND: I just be chilling, man.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: If something happens, you know, sometimes it happens, man.

SA GEREL: Well, you--you know, you live your life----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----and then, the--the best you can and--and no criticism or judgment, and then, even maybe a jealousy on that. But--but, this is kind of the reputation you have. So--so with that perspective and to have, like, a--an attractive female who hops in bed with you, I think some people would presume that if you had a chance to have sex with her, you might would do that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Most people probably would. If, you know, fully consensual and stuff like that.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: So, I don't know if that's something that you'd be comfortable talking about, or maybe you've been uncomfortable talking about that. I actually do feel like you or--or have a--a--a gentleman side of you too. So, you don't want to kiss and tell kind of stuff. And--and I respect that.

But again, it's a detail that if there's something like that that happened a bit more, it might make more sense. And--and if we have a--a person and not your Chief, but a person says that they saw you both unclothed in the common room and then, the Chief finds you unclothed in the bed, it kind of just becomes a little more understandable.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: It definitely doesn't mean anything more than you guys had consensual sex. You--you know, as far as that goes. But--but it would help us to understand that a little more. Is there--is there more you want to share about that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's as far as it went. I told her I was going to sleep and shit, and that's pretty much how it went. Obviously, when I woke up, Chief came in, told me, just make sure when I get to work, I--I get to work and shit. From there, I was, like, "All right, cool.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

SA MANN: Did Chief say anything to her?

CSSN COPELAND: He, obviously, he was, like, "Is V/ A. R. in there?" And I moved out the way I was, like, "Yeah, she's right there." He saw her laying down and then, he was, like, "All right, cool. Just make sure, you know, she gets home and then you get to work." He was just mainly worried about. Like, for me, getting to work. Because, obviously, I was supposed to be there at a certain time.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And I'm not there. And then, obviously, I didn't go in the rest of the day, so now I'm being marked UA.

SA MANN: Gotcha. So, again, I know the--the sex piece is always a fun conversation. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Like, I surely want to go talk to NCIS about all my sexcapades.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: But, you know, it's not like we want to ask you, we have to. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: Like--like we're trying to let you have a private life, too. But it is important just to make sure, if something happened between you two sexually, that we're aware of that because that does explain things.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: So, and like I said, I know, you know, people have said you've got a little--little bit of game in the tank, so it sounds like you do all right, but----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: ----all that said, you know, if she happened to be one of them. Like, you know, it--it one way or another don't matter whether you did--didn't, but we just want to make sure we have the--
--
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA MANN: ----factual status of it. Aside from that, so I kind of want to start working, I think we both do, towards like what now. Right? So, Chief's there. You're, like, well, I guess, I'm just, like, at this point, like you said, not knowing what you don't know, you're, like, "Does it matter if I go to work today or the next day? I--trouble's trouble."

So, Chief leaves. Walk us through the rest of that morning.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Chief left, and then, after that, she woke up. I was, like, "You just want to help me clean, so obviously. Like, I can get to work." She was, like, "Yeah, cool." So, she started helping me clean, and then, from there, I cleaned up my room and shit.

Picked up. Like, my shoes and shit. Put them up--put them up, and then, from there, she left. I was, like, "If you need something, just call or text me." Cool. Got you. She left, and then I called my roommate and I'm asking him. Like, "What time are you getting off?" And he was telling me he doesn't know yet because my--with his squadron, their shit is, it's a little different. Like, they have a day schedule, night schedule. Like, day schedule comes in at a certain time, leaves at a certain time. Night schedule--I don't know what time, but night schedule, and I don't know what schedule he was on.

So, by the time he got home, I just called Chief around dinner time when he told me to come in, I was, like, "I'm--I'm still waiting on my roommate." And he was, like, "All right, cool." So, I just sat down and I went to sleep until he got there. By the--the time he got there, I looked at the time I was, like, "Fuck." I was just, like, well, I'll just go in Monday and obviously tell them what happened.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: I didn't know, like if you don't show up to work one day, you have to, you know, go the next day and be. Like, I'm here.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I just--I was just, like, fuck it. I went to sleep and then, the weekend proceeds, and then, obviously, Sunday or Saturday, they tell me I'm UA. And then, Sunday the MAs come through and shit, and then, from there I go to the--the barge and then--go to the CDO and shit. Tell him, "I'm--I'm here."

And then, Monday hits the next thing that we both were UA, and I was, like, bro, what the fuck? And then, now that's all this.

SA MANN: Yeah. How--how was she when you left, or I'm sorry, when she left, how--how was she acting?
CSSN COPELAND: She was good. Like, she was just like acting normal and shit. Like, how she usually does when she's at work or, like, you know, energetic and shit. And then, she--she was just, like, "Cool. If you need something, just call or text me, or some shit." And she was, like, "All right, bye." And then from there, I finished touching up. Like, putting the dishes in the dishwasher, and that's when I called my roommate asked him. Like, what time's he getting off and shit.
SA GEREL: Okay. How did she feel about the Chief seeing her in your bed?
CSSN COPELAND: At the time she was asleep, so--so I don't really think she cared that much. I mean, she--when she woke up and shit, I was, like, "Chief was in here," and she was, like, "All right." And I was, like, "Yeah. So, I got to start getting ready for work."
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, obviously, I don't think she cared that much.
SA GEREL: All right. I don't know the rules for your barracks. Is that something that's allowed?
CSSN COPELAND: What females?
SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. You can have females in your room.
SA GEREL: All right. So, the fact that she's in your bed is not just an instant problem, it's a, you know--it's allowed is what you're saying?
Did you think the Chief was upset by that or should have--have been upset? Not should have been. But was he upset?
CSSN COPELAND: I don't think so. He was just telling me, like, make sure I get to work and shit.
SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. And how did she feel, or did she make any comment at all about the fact that she--she was in bed with you?
CSSN COPELAND: No. She didn't say anything. She just woke up and shit. But by the time she woke up. Like, I was already up like--like cleaning my room and shit because Chief just walked in.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, did--did you ever feel like interested in asking her what that was about? Like, why she just climbed in bed with you?
CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, that's not--not the first time I slept with a female or had a female. Like, in my bed.
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: There's been times where I had hella people in my room and, you know.
SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: Like, they want to sleep on the bed, all right, cool. And this was a female, she just want to sleep on it. Cool. Like, you go to sleep on the floor, you know. I--I usually sleep on the bed, I'll sleep on the floor, vice versa. Like, this is not the first female that I've had in my room.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I've had many people. Like, groups of people in my room, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay. Yeah. No, thank you for tolerating those questions. You--you--you, as I said, you know, kind of why they might be suspicious to some people.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And I know they're not easy question to answer, but it--it helped us to kind of get a better sense for that. All right. Now we're--we're also taking a little bit of a look at what--at least they thought they heard you say the first time they talked to you, which was not the time you came here, as far as when she left.

So--so, it feels. Like, I think you said, you drove her back to her barracks.

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no. I don't--I don't--I believe I could have said that too, but I was thinking I didn't obtain my roommate's car because my roommate always was at work, so,

SA GEREL: Okay. Help--help me understand that. So, like, we definitely seem to have, like a strong perspective of what it was now. So, help me understand the difference here. Like, why you said that, that first time versus what you're saying now.

CSSN COPELAND: After I actually. Like, taking the time to actually process what happened as things got more serious, obviously, I had to get my story and timeline straight. So, obviously, my roommate didn't have his car.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Or I didn't have my roommate's car because he was at work.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: Obviously, when I knocked on the door, he was not in his room. He was gone, so.

SA GEREL: All right. All right. Okay. Is there any part of you that feels like that could have happened?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, you--okay. Gotcha. So, you just had more time, and I don't want to put words in your mouth, but I'm just trying to make sure I'm understanding you right. So--so you're saying that you had time to think about it? Think about your story and timeline, and that's when you realized you didn't drive her?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Because my roommate wasn't home and I was, like, "Okay, why did I say I took her home? Obviously, if my roommate's not home."

SA GEREL: Okay. All right.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, obviously, when I come in, I switched it up and you guys are going to think it's switched, but at the same time----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I didn't have my roommate's car, so.

SA GEREL: Yeah. No, again. You're reasonable. And you can kind of see why that might seem suspicious, but you're answering it and you're talking about it, so I appreciate that. I mean, sometimes that happens right when we remember something a little differently.

So, it is--it is a very important detail, in terms of, because that is the last moments, right, that you remember from her.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: So--so that's always going to be an important topic when someone goes missing. What's the last thing we can figure out as far as someone sees her or talked to her? Like, that's why I keep asking how is she--how was she acting? All right.

SA MANN: I think kind of fast forwarding from that, so that--when's the last time you actually like eyes on her?

CSSN COPELAND: When she was leaving. Obviously, I was, like, "I'm getting ready for work and shit."
SA GEREL: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: And she walked out the door. I was just telling her before she left. Like, "If you need something, just call, text, and shit."
SA GEREL: Did she say anything about what she was doing when she left? Was there a conversation at all?
CSSN COPELAND: No. It was just, "Have a good day and shit." Like, you guys, all the people I hang out with, too. Like, if I'm leaving and shit, like I--I said the same thing. In the case you my boy, if you need something, just call, text me. Safety and if you need something. Like, I got you.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, can you kind of, then--just so she leaves. Can we start just kind of walking through your day a little bit, then? Like, step by step? And if you mess something up, miss something, go back, rewind, and add it in there because this is a great start. Right?

But now we want to kind of start filling in just to see maybe there's something that you're going to recall, remember that'll help point us in the right direction. So, like, she departs, what comes next for you that day?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I finished cleaning, like I said. I was putting. Like, the rest of the dishes that was out into the dishwasher. Just wiping the counters and shit. Vacuuming, sweeping, and then, from there, I was waiting for my roommate.

SA GEREL: What'd you do while you waited?

CSSN COPELAND: I was just watching TV and then, from there, I laid down and then, by the time I woke up, I was, like, "Fuck." Because it was too fucking late. But I called my Chief around dinner time and I--I told him. Like, "I'm still waiting for my roommate." So, he was, like, all right, whenever he gets there, just let me know, whatever."

SA GEREL: What do--do you mean you say you. Like, woke up? Like, took a nap or?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, yeah.

SA GEREL: Not the--this isn't referring back to the morning. I just want to make sure I--I--I'm not confusing.

CSSN COPELAND: Oh, yeah. But yeah, I was just telling him. Like, I was waiting for my roommate----

SA GEREL: Just past time.

CSSN COPELAND: ----yeah. For the time waiting, I just went to sleep.

SA GEREL: Okay. And that was on the couch, you said?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. By the time--no, no, no. It was in my room. Like on my bed.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: By the time he got back, it was too late.

SA MANN: What time was that?

CSSN COPELAND: I don't know.

SA MANN: Just----

CSSN COPELAND: Like, by the time I woke up, it was--dinner was done.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And by the time, like, dinner starts. Like, our chain of command leaves, so I already knew before----

SA MANN: Are you talking about. Like, on the ship, like when you guys would be preparing dinner?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. Like, but the barge, so.

SA MANN: Or the barge, okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I called him to verify. I was telling him. Like, "I don't think I'm going to make it." I--I told him I was just waiting for my roommate, and he said, "Whenever he gets there, just show face."

SA MANN: What time does dinner room for you guys on the barge?

CSSN COPELAND: 15 and. Like, 1530. And it ends around 17. So, we usually get off around, depending on how fast we clean, like 1730, 1745.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. So, by the time I woke up, it was--it was--dinner was done.

SA GEREL: It was after that. Sometime after 5:30 that night. Conceivably?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Okay. Was your roommate back at that point?

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure. I just woke up late.

SA GEREL: Gotcha.

W2: And then, from there, I was just, like, it's no need to argue or nothing, shit. And I was just, like, "Fuck it." And I was, like, when Monday comes, I'll just explain to. Like, what happened. But, obviously, I couldn't because I was freaking UA.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: They waited to tell me Saturday

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So----

SA MANN: So, what then. Like, you wake up, it's too late to go to work. What do you do with your Friday night?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I just stayed home, like in the building. I was, like, going to the--the lounge and shit. Just chilling on my phone, on TikTok and shit. Because I'm--I'm telling you. Like, my roommate is one--one hard person to deal with.

Like, it's--it's--it is like sad, like how certain people live, and he's just one of those people that is just like--like you worried for. It's, like, when I first checked into the room, I think. Like, that first week I slept on the couch.

SA GEREL: Why's that?

CSSN COPELAND: Because he just--the way he lives is filthy.

SA GEREL: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: He uses the bathroom, doesn't flush the toilet. He's never taken a shower ever since I've been there. The only time he's taken a shower was the first day that I entered the room, and I--I don't even think he took a shower. He just had the water running. He gets off work as soon as he gets off work, he takes off his clothes in the bathroom, and puts on the same pair of clothes he's been wearing for I don't even know how long.

He doesn't wash his clothes. He doesn't clean anything. He just keeps using. Like, for instance, I'll go to the store or some shit. I'll buy some food, or I'll buy like cups of shit. He doesn't ask to use it. All right. It's, like, you know, it's a couple things. A couple, you know, I'm not going to argue. You know? Cool. I'm going to just let him do him.

So, it's just, like, every day I walk in and it's, like, I go in the room and the room just fucking stinks. Like, every--someone I'm going to fucking Walmart getting hella Febreze, hella. Like, shit filter out the room and his fucking stink is overpowering that shit.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I was just, like, bro, I don't know what to do. So--so I just fucking sleep on the couch. Or sometimes I'll just go on the--the lounge or I'll have, like, my homeboys come pick me up and go out. Like, pretty much every weekend we're--we're outside or some shit.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Or they would just come over and we'll chill.

SA GEREL: So, do you go out that weekend as well then?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah, I stayed home. Like some days, like----

SA MANN: On Friday, Saturday, obviously Sunday, you went to work?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. But this weekend I stayed in. I wasn't trying to go outside. I--I remember last weekend I touched out for a little bit, but I mainly stayed inside at my homeboy's crib.

SA MANN: Where is that?

CSSN COPELAND: The PPV off base. So, we just stayed there pretty much the whole weekend, just chilling.
SA MANN: Is--when you say PPV, I know that's, like, the private, but is it, is he in like--like a legitimate house-house or is he in kind of an apartment set up? Like, what's his----
CSSN COPELAND: It's just like my barracks.
SA GEREL: Oh, same thing, just off base.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: Okay. And that's where you were, what, Saturday?
CSSN COPELAND: No, I'm saying, like, the--not this last week.
SA MANN: Oh, the weekend before. Okay. Well, what about that weekend? Like, that Saturday?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. That whole weekend, I stayed in the building. While I was just chilling. Like, in the lounge room or some shit, like on TikTok and Instagram, and then, when Sunday hit and I was taking a shit, that's when the MAs came and they basically told me, like, I'm UA and I need to report to my command. But the whole weekend I literally stayed home.
SA MANN: So, who can kind of help us account for that time? Seeing you in the building, talking to you, interacting with you?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, one, I mean, whatever MAs were there, I'm not sure what MAs were there.
SA MANN: I know Sunday, but I mean, like, Friday, Saturday.

CSSN COPELAND: You got Miss Mary, the front desk.
SA GEREL: Okay. She's there on the weekends as well.
CSSN COPELAND: I'm not sure about the weekends. I--I mean, obviously, the Truman got back, so I'm guessing she had to come in because people needed barracks, but usually she's there Monday through Friday, and sometimes over the weekend. I don't know really how their schedule works.
SA MANN: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: Like, I remember Chief was saying, I know they have like--like eight hour shifts and shit. That's. Like, their duty days or whatever, so.
SA GEREL: Did she see you? Did you talk to her?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. We physically--we physically talked.
SA GEREL: When was that?
CSSN COPELAND: I believe it was, like, almost every day of the week. I remember she walked in, and I was sitting there, and she was, like--she was, like, "Are you in this building?" I was, like, I was, like, "Yes, ma'am." I started smiling and she was, like--she was, like, "What room are you in?" I was, like, "335." And she started laughing. She was, like, "Oh." She was, like, "What are you doing?" I was, like, "I--I'm just chilling." And she already knows my story about my roommate. So, she already knows. Like, I don't really associate. Like, how my roommate lives. So, like, if it gets to a certain point or too bad, I just leave the room or I just stay on the couch.

SA GEREL: You guys, when did you have that conversation with her? I believe that was Friday or Saturday. It was one of the two. And then, I remember when I was taking the shit, I remember she tried to open the door. I was out by the lounge, and she opened the--she tried to open the door, and I was, like, I'm--I'm here using the-- the restroom. And she was like--like, "Who's that?" And I--I said, "Copeland." And she was, like, "Oh, okay." And she--she kept walking. I believe that was--that was Sunday. So, I'm pretty sure she can account for me--seeing me during the weekends.

SA MANN: Okay. And where did you. Like, did you not go out and get food? Anything?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I got hella food in the house.

SA MANN: Gotcha.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I rarely go out to eat. I got hella food at the house.

SA MANN: Did anyone have a conversation with you about V/A.R. at any point that weekend?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I don't think so. Rather than when Chief and them text me saying that I need to report to the ship. Rather than that, you know, I had other people text me, like asking if I was good. I answered my phone. Like most people know. Like, especially my chain of command, when I'm off, I'm off. I--I don't associate work and all that shit.

So, when I--especially, you know, you can talk to CS2 about that too. Like, because even with the incident with the female trying to stab me and shit, and when--when they were calling me and shit, I don't answer my phone for them. Like, I don't really, I don't really like my chain of command. Like, my second classes, they're cool, but when it comes to my first class, I don't fuck with my first class.

So, like, even when my first class texts, I don't text him. So, yeah.

SA MANN: Okay. So, Friday was just filled with TikTok and Instagram.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Same with Saturday and then Sunday as well. That's literally how my whole weekend was. I was just stayed at home in the barracks. And then, obviously, Sunday, that's when the MA's came. So, a little halfway through my day, I was----

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: ----getting ready to leave.

SA GEREL: So, what's something you think that you can tell us that's going to help us figure out where V/ A. R. 's at?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I got no clue. I mean, obviously, you guys are, I've done everything you could so far. You've questioned me. You fucking destroyed my whole fucking room. Damn near three days consecutive. And you guys got all my shit and so it's, like, at this point I--I--I got nothing else to offer. I--I don't know.

SA MANN: I think the biggest, obviously, you know. Like, gap points are the ones that we got to fill in. Right? So, like--like I said, just logically speaking through this to you to try and give you the best idea of what we've got to accomplish, it's a lot of time, but you just being on your own. Right?

And I'm not saying that you're making that up. Maybe you we're just hanging out in the lounge the whole time, but it leaves a lot of open doors. Right? Because, you know, so maybe somebody could see you for a minute or an hour. You know, there's some other things I think that are maybe important to that conversation that we want to have.

But ultimately, as we sit here right now, so you know, you look at Thursday morning when you guys wake up and it's Chief's there. Like, "Hey man, get to work." There's the entirety of Thursday, entirety of Friday, entirety Saturday, and partial of it a Sunday where it's tough to account for where you are. Right?

Because there's nothing, maybe other than a person at some point, maybe seeing you. So, we really want you to kind of think and go back and say, "Hey, where was I? Who was there? What--what helps lock in your version of what's happened?" which we want to be the truthful one. And--and we want to be able to verify that that helps. Right?

When you tell us something and we can go bounce it off something else, we go, great. That's what happened.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like I'm saying, I mean, miss Mary obviously, try this lady, she saw me. I remember--I can't recall if this was Saturday or Sunday, but I remember when I was sitting in the lounge, there was a--there was a white male that walked in. He offered me a bag of chips. I was, like, "Oh, I'm good." But they made him come into the lounge because they were waxing the floor.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

CSSN COPELAND: So, he tried to leave a couple times and they kept telling to come back and tell they're done waxing the floor. So, I had another encounterment with another male inside the lounge.

SA MANN: What day was that?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I said it was either Saturday or Sunday.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: bI couldn't recall which--which day it was. They also had hella--hella workers up there as well. So, they were waxing the floor. They obviously saw me. They--they told the both of us that we can leave now and then, I was, like, cool. I just walked down to my room.

SA MANN: Okay. Walking this back a little bit, too, because you know, it's--it's not completely off the table. Right? But generally if somebody, and--and, you know, I'm not saying this happened, but if somebody were to harm themselves or just say, "Hey, I'm going to go off the radar, like I'm going to disappear," there's signs, right? It's hard to, especially for, you know, 20-year-old kid, 21-year-old girl, whatever she is at the--at this point, to really do all that without somebody kind of having some stamp. She's so, you know, just like you, it's that social media, you're always ingrained, you're on there.

So, it's--it's rare that somebody would just gone, right? Like without a trace. So, that's why we're asking a lot of these, probably to you, ambiguous, some kind of odd questions. It's because it's a, you know, there always a time for something to break from the norm, but more common is somebody ends up given some indicators, given some signs.

Something to provide a reason for, this is why I'm going to go do this, or this is why I'm going to disappear. This is why I feel like I need to go harm myself, or whatever it may be, if that's what happened. And I--I think at this point, you know, I know you have a special spot in your heart for family, and obviously that's what's eaten away at you a lot today.

But having now seen, you know, V/A.R.'s mom and just the--the--the immense amount of pain that she seems to be in, having no idea, if nothing else, I think we all owe her just the best time talking through this, so we can to try and make sure that we're not missing any small stone to turnover.

Because for that hope that she has. Right? Like--like we're going to sit here and--and say, we--we need to do everything we can to try and find this girl.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: And, you know, that may unfortunately come down to alive or not.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: But, it gives a sense of closure, and I think that family piece is really going to be the motivator. Because, especially, you know, I can imagine if that happened to you, your mom was worried, but it was just a--a simple baby UA, but they still know where you are. And you guys, you alluded to that conversation happened.

And so, think about her mom now and how long has it been, you know, we're talking over a week and not having a single word of your daughter. You used to talk to her every day. Like, that's--that's tough. So, I know that family thing hits, and that's why we're just probably, it feels like bludgeon in you with a lot of questions that seem repetitive or redundant, but we're just trying to spark something.

Maybe it comes out a different way. Maybe you've got some detail that was buried before that it circles back. You're, like, "Oh, you know what?" And that's what we really want to do with you. That's what these kind of tools are for. That's why we do it. Because it's bigger than you. Bigger than me, bigger than him. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA MANN: You know, like let's say this was nefarious. Crime piece aside, if you could say something or do something that matters at this point. Like, that matters, but finding her matters more, right? So, I think that's--that's everybody's goal here. And I know you sort of said earlier. You have your own aspirations for---

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----what's with her. But, you know, if you were able to send her a message now and maybe move the--move the needle or get her back or figure out where she was, what--what do you think you could say in that area that would help?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, not much. I mean, shit. Like I said, when she left, I told her if she needs something, just call or text me. I mean, I text her after Chief had said--after Chief had notified me that we both were UA. And I text, I was, like, "Bro. Like, you good? Like they marked fricking, both of us UA."

And--and at first I was, like, mad because I was, like, what the fuck?

SA GEREL: What do you mean?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, I was mad because I was, like, "Why the fuck did like Chief Mark, both of us UA?" At that point, I was pissed. Honestly, I was more pissed at Chief. But at the end of the day. Like, I can't argue. At the end of the day, like----

SA GEREL: So, you sent her that text?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I was just, like, I--I text her. I was saying--I was, like, "Bro, is you good? Like, they're freaking marking us both UA."

SA MANN: What'd she say to that?

CSSN COPELAND: She didn't say anything.

SA MANN: Could you tell if she--she read it?

CSSN COPELAND: Hm?

SA MANN: You know, like you get the little things where it says hey, like if somebody read this or didn't read it?

CSSN COPELAND: No. Her shit was on Do Not Disturb.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: So, I was just, like, all right, cool. And then, from there, that's when the days proceeded. And then, they ended up taking my phone and shit.

SA MANN: You say her hers was on Do Not Disturb. What do you mean? Like, the phone, the--like, entire. Like, you can see that on the message?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It says phone--her number was silenced.

SA MANN: Oh. So, you send somebody that text, it'll tell you. Like, they're not getting it.

CSSN COPELAND: No, it'll tell you. Like, for instance. Like, my phone stays on Do Not Disturb. And through the settings, you can either have it to allow you to have your phone. Like, show up. Like, on Do Not Disturb.

SA MANN: Right.

CSSN COPELAND: Or sometimes you could just receive the messages and it isn't. Like, you know, notify them back and your phone will not---

SA MANN: Oh, so you're saying her setting was set, so when you sent it----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----you immediately knew?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. When I sent on the message at the bottom, it was saying her--her shit was silences.

SA MANN: Okay. Did you ever go back and look and see if she read it?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I just texted. I mean, at the end of the day, if somebody sends me a text and if you reply, you reply. If you don't----

SA MANN: No, I got it. You can't follow up on everything.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: All right.

SA GEREL: In terms of those phone settings, how do you keep your phone settings? I think you just said a little bit. You--you have yours on Do Not Disturb?

CSSN COPELAND: My phone stays on Do Not Disturb 24-7.

SA GEREL: Do you share your location with your--with your people?

CSSN COPELAND: Nah, I mean, like the group of people I used to hang out with, I would turn my settings. Like, I would share my location just for like going out and shit. So, we know where each other are. Like--like, for instance. Like, we'll go somewhere and then, we'll regroup or like go to a party.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: We go here just seeing what--what options are happening or, like, what's going on tonight, and then, we regroup and shit.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, it sounds like that's a setting you turn on, turn off depending on the circumstances.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like, there's a female I talked to and my--my location stay on for her, but most of the--the time before that my location home was off.
SA MANN: Who's, who's that?
CSSN COPELAND: A female back at home.
SA MANN: Okay.
SA GEREL: Yeah. So, one of the things that we may have reason to understand is that your location settings turned off over the weekend, and it helps--help me understand that, like, why over the weekend you would've turned off your location sharing?
CSSN COPELAND: Because I mean, obviously, one thing about me is I don't like people getting in my business. I remember that somebody in the group chat said something of my location. Like, they stalked me and shit. I was, like, bro, so I turned that shit off.
SA MANN: When did they say that?
CSSN COPELAND: It was in a group chat, like, bro on the group chat.
SA MANN: Yeah. Yeah. But I mean, when did somebody say something about your location in the chat that made you turn it off?
CSSN COPELAND: During the weekend. Like, if I'm at home, why do they look at my location? Like, cool. I mean, it could have came to the crib or some shit or texted me, like, I'm on the way to the crib. All right, cool.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: But if you're just watching. Like, target watching where I'm at, that's--I find that a little suspect.

SA GEREL: Yeah. That's not--that's not comfortable.

SA MANN: Oh, yeah. So, do you remember doing that, though? This weekend?

Okay. All right.

CSSN COPELAND: Location was on for like one--one or two people.

SA MANN: The whole weekend.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. It was, like, because we were out, so they had my location. It was, like, two people. Because we were hanging out with some people at my homeboy's crib, and I kept my location on. But that was not--not this previous weekend, but the weekend before that, like, when we were out and then, obviously, sometimes--usually I would turn it off. Or sometimes. Like, certain people, I share my location just for 24 hours, or sometimes I'll keep it indefinitely, or however you say that shit.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, eventually, I'll turn that shit off.

SA MANN: But the girl from back home always on.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Like, ours is different. So, she has me on Life 360.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: And then, on Snapchat. Like those--they just have my number. SA MANN: Do you still have Life 360 on there?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: And so, obviously that--you'd have to go and. Like, turn that off in the app separate to----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: ----kill it. So, would she--like, would that be on throughout that weekend? So, when they look at that phone data specifically, they're going to see. Like, here I am.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Yeah. That's why we're asking. It's very helpful. So, if we have people that can say, yeah, we saw Copeland here, here, here throughout the weekend. Of course, the helps a lot.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: And we're working on that. The phone is great too because you know, if it--it'll show where it's at, so they'll able to see where the phone's at, which is also very helpful. That's why we're asking.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I gotcha.

SA GEREL: But we're--we're trying to help you the best we can on-- on those details. It sounds like sometimes you're not super good with names, so if you--if you could think of any other names like that. You said you--you ran into one white dude over the weekend who gave you a bag of chips. He--he offered.

CSSN COPELAND: He didn't give----

SA GEREL: Offered. Okay. Anything else you can tell us about that instance? That would be very helpful.

CSSN COPELAND: Shit, I've never seen the dude a day in my life, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. Did he seem like a young guy? Like a----

CSSN COPELAND: He looked like--yeah, he looked like he was young. Like, anywhere from out of high school to, I'd say, like, 20 to 21.

SA GEREL: Like, a Sailor is what you----okay. So, you've never seen him before?

CSSN COPELAND: No.

SA GEREL: So, what prompted him to offer you chips? Did you say anything in conversation or?

CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, the--they told him to go in there and then he walked in there and he was, like, "What's up?" I said, "What's good?" And then he sat down. He was just on his phone. And then he tried to leave, and he came back, and you could tell he was, like, catching an attitude. And I was, like, "You good?" He was, like, "Nah, they keep fucking turning me around," because he's trying to get to his room.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: But they keep turning him around. He was, like, "I almost slipped by, but he saw him in the corner."

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I was, like, "Oh shit, bro." I started laughing. He was, like, "You want a bag of chips?" I was, like, "What--what kind of chips do you have?" And he started naming all the shit he had in there. I was, like, "Nah, I'm good." I was, like, "I--I usually like to eat hot. Like, hot chips and shit."

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: He was, like, "Okay." I was, like, "Yeah." And from there, I think he tried to leave like one more time. They turned him around and then, after that, they allowed us to leave.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. In--in terms of your phone, and again, just to make sure you've, you've tested your memory as much as you can. If--if we were at see Ping in any other parts of Tidewater. Like, in another city over the weekend, any--any way we can--you can help us understand that?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, like I said, the location and shit has been on for, on Life 360, so I'm sure you can look through the app and see----

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: ----where, what's been the whole weekend.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: As far as, like, my settings for Apple and shit, I don't know how that works for--I don't know how that shit works.

SA GEREL: But if it. Like, showed up like in Hampton or Suffolk or something, or downtown Norfolk. Like, did--did any--any chances you could remember. Like, being in a different place?

CSSN COPELAND: I've been home the whole weekend.

SA GEREL: Okay. I know you're trying hard to remember. I just wanted to give you a chance to give your thoughts on it.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm not really thinking, I just know.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I was home the whole weekend.

SA GEREL: Okay.

SA MANN: Okay.

SA GEREL: Did you loan your phone to anybody?

CSSN COPELAND: Hmm.

SA GEREL: Did--did you loan your phone to anybody? Anybody have your phone but you?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I just had it.

SA GEREL: Okay.

SA MANN: Was there any time you were. Like, away from your phone for a period of time?
CSSN COPELAND: No. Like, usually my phone stays with me.
SA MANN: Was there any break of that usual, like, that weekend where you maybe left it in your room for a while? Like, had to go charge it because it died, or you went and did something else?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, I mean, sometimes if it dies, then it just die, and then, whenever I get to charge it, then I charge it. I'm not, like, the type of person that's, like, "Oh, I need my phone." You know, if I don't have it, I don't have it.

But, like, I mean, sometimes there's, like, people I need to call or some shit, and I'll text him and shit. And other than that, I'm not like a type of person that's, like, "Oh, I'm going to die if I don't have my phone, so."

SA GEREL: All right. Do you have--do you have more than one phone? Did they understand that right?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I told them I had another phone, but it's broke. That's why I had bought a--sold the phone that I have now. The black one?
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: That's my phone. I had one before that, and it broke. So, through my AT&T, I basically got another phone through my insurance.

SA GEREL: Okay. And they were basically saying, like, I got 31 days to turn it in or else, basically, I got to charge my next bill.
SA MANN: When--when did it break the other phone?
CSSN COPELAND: A couple months ago.
SA GEREL: Okay. So, a while ago?
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Yeah. It was a while ago.
SA GEREL: What--what happened to it? How did it break?
CSSN COPELAND: I dropped it. I mean, obviously, I don't have a case on my phone, so I dropped it and that's it. The whole front and the back----
SA MANN: That's a bad day.
CSSN COPELAND: ----completely shattered.
SA GEREL: That is a bad day.
CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.
SA GEREL: All right. Do you have more before I do a quick little transition?
SA MANN: No, I'm good.
SA GEREL: I want to make sure that we do take good care of your time and respectful like we talked about. So, you've been super cooperative and helpful, and we appreciate that.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: How are are you feeling?
CSSN COPELAND: I'm fine.

SA GEREL: Okay. You need anything from us? You need more water or more food? You need a bathroom break?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. Do you mind if I use the restroom?

SA GEREL: Of course. Let's take care of that. And then, we'll want to make sure it's cleared out? We have little game plan after that. And then, we'll get--we'll get you to the next thing. Any questions for me?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, you're doing okay. Now, as far as, like, I--I know you were a little low asleep and just kind of stressed out. Do you feel like you're able to hear things, make decisions, recall things properly? Do you do you feel like you're--in your--like able to be as you normally are?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Okay. Okay. So, tell--tell me if that changes. Okay. I--I want to talk to Copeland, you know, who's fully attentive and remembering and thinking. I--I don't want any other version where you're just, like, ah, you know, I don't feel good enough to actually talk or think about this stuff. Your mental health important to me.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Who do you talk to when you feel like you need a little talking to? Like, you need a boost.

CSSN COPELAND: My homeboy's name's JJ, like the CS I work with you.
SA GEREL: You talked to JJ?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, that's my--my dude to go to.
SA GEREL: How about family, friends, anything like that?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean----
SA GEREL: Well, yeah, JJ's your friend. But any family or, like, parents or?
CSSN COPELAND: Like, family wise I go to my mom.
SA GEREL: All right.
SA MANN: Yeah. You're good. The door's just locked on this.
SA GEREL: That's okay.
SA GEREL: Run around and get her her open.
[SA Mann, SA Gerel, and CSSN Copeland departed the room at timestamp 2:43:40.]
[SA Mann, SA Gerel, and CSSN Copeland entered the room at timestamp 2:45:17.]
SA MANN: Need anything?
CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
SA MANN: I know, you know, there's a lot that we're talking through and going through. Our best interest at this point is your best interest in that we want to try to give you a chance to rule some things out, too. So, I think we've got some other steps that we want to talk through here shortly about how we can get some things from you that'll help us do that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: So, we're going to walk you through what that entails, probably as well.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Yeah. For sure. And again, thank you for helping us as much as you can.

W Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: So, we're trying to get a couple of things, not that we need them right now, but we might need them pretty quickly in the future. One of those, when we start looking for, like DNA and things like that, we got to be able to exclude people that would naturally have DNA in certain places.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Do you mind giving us some of your DNA?

CSSN COPELAND: What do you--you mean by that?

SA GEREL: Just get a swab of your mouth. They have it on--on samples in case they need to compare anything.

CSSN COPELAND: When.

SA GEREL: Like, right now. Yeah. So, it is a simple process. So, if you said, "Yeah, I'm cool with that," the other agent would come in and take a little swab, get inside of your mouth, and then we have it for the case as it calls.

CSSN COPELAND: As far as my DNA for what?

SA MANN: So, it just rules you out. Right? Like, if so, if they find some DNA and they're, like, hey, we don't know whose this is. Like say there's a--a drop of blood, a tear or something, and we want to know, "Hey, was she here?" Well, if it's yours, we don't have your DNA that to run it against, right? So, we'll know it's yours. If it's hers, we--she's not here. Right? We can't get hers. So, we can at least say, "Hey, it isn't his, maybe it's hers," or something like that. So, it gives us just an idea of are we looking at the right places to try and find her?

CSSN COPELAND: All right.

SA GEREL: You cool with that?

SA MANN: That's sound good. I mean, it's just basically it's like--like a big Q-tip, but they just----

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: It doesn't hurt anything.

SA MANN: No. It's just a cotton swab.

SA GEREL: It's even less intrusive than like the COVID test if you've had any of those.

SA MANN: Yeah. We're not shoving things into your brain to make sure you don't got COVID.

SA GEREL: So, okay. Well, here's that form. So, this is--it's called Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure. All it is is they're getting it for the main concept of it if they have to look or compare things, in the search for V/ A. R.. Okay?

So, the thing that you're actually getting is--is DNA, and it's in that swab. Feel free to review of it if you're good with that, just give me a good signature right here.

CSSN COPELAND: I'm signing where?

SA GEREL: Right here. You got any questions about it?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. I'll give this to the--the lady and then, she'll be here to go grab that.

SA MANN: So, she's coming in. She's going to wear a mask. She's going to be like up in your junk. So, not that she's sick or anything, but just to make sure you

CSSN COPELAND: You want me to sit or stand?

SA: No, you're fine. You can just sit--sit right there.

SA MANN: It's just a long Q-tip.

SA: Yeah. I'm just going to get your cheek cells in there. So, shouldn't hurt at all, but if I do, just let me know. I'm just going to do basically four swabs total. Just two and two.

Okay. This open mouth. I'm just going to get all the corners here.

SA MANN: Two down. Got a little cotton mouth like now.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Got water. Wash that down once you're done. Don't take a sip quite yet.

SA GEREL: Yeah, when she's done. Do you need more?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, I got a little bit in there.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah, just get that cotton out of the mouth.

SA: But still not as bad as the dentist, I feel like.

SA MANN: Oh, no, it's not. We were talking COVID test like I disappears into your brain right there.

SA: Yep.

SA MANN: I--I think I literally----

SA: Perfect. Thank you.

SA MANN: [Affirmative response.]

SA: Do you have the time--what time it is?

SA MANN: It is 1133.

SA: 1133. Thank you.

SA MANN: Yes, ma'am.

SA: Perfect. Thank you.

SA MANN: All right.

CSSN COPELAND: All good, sir?

SA GEREL: Hold tight.

SA MANN: You got water out? No, I--I mean, technically yes, whenever you want. You can always say no. But, if you're willing to hang out for a little bit, I think we're want talk through a couple things, or if your good with that.

CSSN COPELAND: That's fine.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. So, 1130 since you can't see time. So, what--what questions you got for us?

CSSN COPELAND: Nothing.

SA GEREL: Okay. We've covered some--some similar stuff you've already talked about, a couple of new things, and sometimes that will prompt a question or, like, if you--you want some clarification on what we know about what's happening? Anything like that?

CSSN COPELAND: Not really.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. I appreciate that. I just want to, as I mentioned to you, make sure you--you know, that we're trying to be good hosts. So, I don't want to just bombard you with questions about giving you chance to talk a little bit, too. Free--free talk.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: What I think would be good if we have a few of the other agents that are involved in the case. It'd probably be good for Tyler and I to walk out and just kind of get our--our--our heads together as to make sure we've answered all the questions we can with you today.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA GEREL: I--I think we getting real, real close. Do you have anything you want to ask him about before we do that?
SA MANN: No. I mean did were--were you hanging on to something there? Because I feel like there's kind of that pause, like, "Oh, maybe." Like you--you got anything that's sort of resonating?
CSSN COPELAND: [Negative response.]
SA MANN: Okay.
CSSN COPELAND: I--I was just thinking, like, do I got any questions for y'all? I don't--there's not really much. At the end of the day, y'all are doing your jobs, so.
SA MANN: Okay.
SA GEREL: Yeah. We appreciate it much.
SA MANN: Perfect.
SA GEREL: Well, no, just thank you for understanding that. I mean, I hope even though it is part of us doing our jobs, hopefully you--you believe and feel that we treated you good. Certainly tried to, and you certainly treated us good. So, thank you for that.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir. All right, well, give us a few minutes. You--you want some water while you're waiting on this?
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, please.
SA GEREL: I don't think it'll be too long. I mean, I think it's probably going to be----

SA MANN: Yeah, we'll get you some water.

SA GEREL: Yeah. Fifteen minutes or so, we're moving on to----

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, please.

SA GEREL: You want a minute or more food? Did you eat your beef stick?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay.

[SA Mann and SA Gerel departed the room at timestamp 2:53:20.]

[SA Gerel entered the room at timestamp 2:55:18.]

SA GEREL: Okay. I got you another water. Yeah, we only have a couple more questions. And so, your car is jacked up. Is that right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: Where's it at?

CSSN COPELAND: It's not my car, it's my homeboy's car, but I'm sure he has it now.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: It was the--the head gasket was fucked up, but my car is totaled and so----

SA GEREL: Okay. The one that you consider your car, the totaled one?

CSSN COPELAND: No, my car, like, my actual car is totaled, so.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, it's like just gone.

CSSN COPELAND: Gone, yeah.

SA GEREL: All right. How do you get around without your--your car?

CSSN COPELAND: Either my roommate takes me to work, and the days my roommate doesn't take me to work, then I have somebody within my ship come and pick me up.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

[SA Mann entered the room at timestamp 2:53:20.]

SA MANN: Come on in.

SA GEREL: So, Sean, your roommate takes you around?

CSSN COPELAND: No, no, no.

SA MANN: In case you want that.

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you. Not Sean. The African guy.

SA GEREL: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: With the car.

SA GEREL: Oh, okay. You ride with him a lot. Any other cars that you frequently use? Like, if you're just trying to go to the store or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: Like, whenever I need to go to the store or some shit, I--I use my roommate, like, I ask him. You know? Do you think you can take me to the store? Or can I use your car to go to the store?

SA GEREL: Okay. What kind of car does he drive?

CSSN COPELAND: A white Jeep.

SA GEREL: Okay. All right. And then any other cars that you've been driving, like, in the last couple months?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: All right. What, you mentioned the traffic thing? Is that right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA GEREL: What--what kind of car were you involved with in the traffic thing?

CSSN COPELAND: A Dodge Challenger, and that was all the way back in February.

SA GEREL: Yeah. That is while back. What--what happened with that? I know I'm--it is nothing to do with what we're talking about, but I'm just curious what happened.

CSSN COPELAND: I was speeding.

SA GEREL: Okay. You got a--you got a public defender?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I mean, I clearly can't talk to her because I don't have my phone.

SA GEREL: So, now people don't normally get public defenders for, like, a speeding, like did, were you drinking or anything?

CSSN COPELAND: No, I got what I got--it was a reckless driving.

SA GEREL: Oh, reckless.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I was going 118 in a 55.

SA GEREL: What?

SA MANN: Cruising.
SA GEREL: All right, well that's none of my business, but I hope that turns out okay for you. Well, can you borrow a friend's phone to call that attorney?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I don't, I--I, me personally, I don't know. Because I don't have--like, the attorney she called a couple of weeks ago.
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: And I told her, I was, like, "Yeah, I'm at work right now." And she was, like, "Oh, I'm sorry. And she was asking me, like, "What's a good time?" And I was, like, "You can call the next day because I'm off."
SA GEREL: Yeah.
CSSN COPELAND: And she was, like, "All right." I've never heard from her again.
SA GEREL: Yeah. They can be hard to get a hold of. Well, I encourage you to keep trying. Again, none of my business, but yeah. Keep trying. Ship phone, base phone, barracks phone. Whatever you can find.
But what questions do you have for us?
CSSN COPELAND: Nothing as of right now.
SA GEREL: And thank you for--for talking to us today. I'm going to give you last thoughts. I hope that we can talk again. I hope that we can get--get a chance to interact with you a day that you're feeling better, maybe a little less stressed, and maybe consider the polygraph.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: It is one of the few things out there that can say, like, "I didn't do it, and let me help you prove it." Like, that's one of the few things that actually does that.

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: So, again, like you're going to have people that are, you know, until--until we find her, you're going to have people that are speculating and saying stuff. You know the truth in your heart. You don't let them bother you anymore than it's going to bother you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: But you might be able to tell them one day, like, "I'm telling you, I--I didn't do it, plus I passed my polygraph." You know, that means a lot to some people. So, just kind of keep that in mind. And then, we are here for you. So, you can even, let--do you have contact information for NCIS? Do you have anybody's contact number from here?

CSSN COPELAND: I have the--the male that I talked to. Not the male, I think it was just the female.

SA GEREL: The shorter one.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Okay. Yeah. So, you can call her and you can say, whatever you want to say, but if you change your mind and say, like, "I'm ready, let them know that I'll take it." We will get to you soon as we can after you make that call, and we might check back in with you if it's okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA GEREL: Just to see how you're feeling about whether you feel like you could be ready to do that. Obviously, if we find her, then--then that might not be--we may have to never do that. But if--while the--while the--the search is on, it could be very, you know, again, probably help you in people looking.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Any questions about that?

CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.

SA GEREL: All right. Thank you for thinking about it. I--I really appreciate that.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: Tyler, you got anything?

SA MANN: I--I don't think so. I mean, if you hear something, let somebody know.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: Like I--I guess, you know, I'd be remiss if I--I didn't ask, like, what would you--what--what do you want to, what do you think the perfect outcome here is?

CSSN COPELAND: Shit, I don't--I don't know. As much as you guys knows, that's as much as I know. So, I--I----

SA MANN: Oh no, but I mean, like, take all that off the table. How--how do you want to see this end?

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, hopefully y'all find her and she's okay.

SA MANN: Yeah.

CSSN COPELAND: I mean, that's the only thing that everybody's worried about right now. Because obviously nobody knows where her whereabouts are right now, so.

SA MANN: Sure. So, that's part of the--the reason we ask you to keep doing your part to make that happen. Right?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: So, you know, if you hear something small, large, anywhere between, tell somebody, please.

CSSN COPELAND: Okay.

SA MANN: Okay.

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA MANN: All right. Otherwise, I think you've got some things to tend this afternoon, unfortunately, but yeah. Good luck with that.

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

SA MANN: If you will give us some time to coordinate, you--somebody dropped you off here?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. My--I believe my lieutenant's out there.

SA MANN: Oh, is he still here?

CSSN COPELAND: I--I hope so, shit.

SA MANN: We have a phone, I think, if he's not. So we'll--let--give us a few minutes to get a hold of him. Are you good? Just hanging tight for a few minutes here?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah.

SA MANN: Okay. I mean, if you want to put your head down, take a nap. Like, we can, I'll get this out of the way.

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

SA MANN: Put it up here. All right. So, feel free to jump over there if you want to put your head down or something, but catch up on some of that sleep you've been missing.

SA GEREL: Yeah.

SA MANN: We'll be right back. Thank you.

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah, no problem.

[SA Mann and SA Gerel departed the room at timestamp 3:01:38.]

CSSN COPELAND: All right.

SA GEREL: That all right?

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

SA GEREL: No problem.

[SA Mann entered the room at timestamp 3:02:27.]
SA MANN: You're good, man. I'm just going to hang in here.
CSSN COPELAND: Is he out there or here, or is he on his way?
SA MANN: No, we just called him, though, so he should be on his way. I think they--we asked them to give him a ring before we came in, I know that. But we'll, I'm going to pull this so I can just make sure, because I need my phone. Hey man, what's happening? So, just give me a second.
CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.
SA MANN: I'll be back with you here shortly. Okay?
CSSN COPELAND: Okay.
[SA Mann departed the room at timestamp 3:02:49.]
[SA Mann and SA Gerel entered the room at timestamp 3:04:16.]
SA GEREL: All right. Your lieutenant's here. All right, last--last--last call. Any questions? You got anything we can help you with?
CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
SA GEREL: How you feeling? I know other than what we already talked about. How you feeling?
CSSN COPELAND: I mean, I mean, I'm just going with the flow. Just trying---- SA GEREL: Okay. So, you seem like you're under a little bit of stress, but you seem like you got it together. You seem strong.

But I--I--I've been along before and I--I don't want to make any assumptions. So, you know, I--I care about your mental health.

Do you have any worries that you would--any worries about hurting yourself or anybody else?

CSSN COPELAND: Not nobody else. I mean, after that day, I feel like I'm straight. I mean, I'm holding it together, but----

SA GEREL: Okay. And you said you had no worries about anybody else. How about yourself?

CSSN COPELAND: Yeah. I'm fine.

SA GEREL: Okay. So, you you--you may or may not know, but, like, your command's got access to resources, like, if you need to talk. Like, I was asking you earlier who you talked to when you get--need to get stuff off your mind. Don't keep stuff bottled in. You know, if you need to go talk to a chaplain or a counselor, there's nothing wrong with that.

You--you--you've been through some things that would cause anybody to feel a certain kind of way. So, like, don't--don't be hero. You can talk to people if you need to. Okay?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: But you good?

CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

SA GEREL: You strong?

CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]

SA GEREL: All right. Let's go.

CSSN COPELAND: Huh?

SA MANN: I said, let's get you on out of here. Got that water?

CSSN COPELAND: Thank you.

SA MANN: So, cover with all your stuff should be there. Make sure it's all there before you walk out.

[SA Mann, SA Gerel, and CSSN Copeland departed the room at timestamp 3:05:58.]

SA MANN: Concluded at 1148. Command--member released to command.

[End of interview.]

U N I T E D S T A T E S v. JERMIAH COPELAND CSSN / E-3 U.S. NAVY	AFFIDAVIT OF SPECIAL AGENT JESSICA GOKEY 3 September 2025

I, Jessica Gokey, being first duly sworn state:

1. I am a Special Agent with the Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) assigned to the NCIS Resident Agency Norfolk, VA and have been employed with NCIS since March 2022. During my tenure as a Special Agent, I have completed approximately 900 hours of instruction at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC) in Glynco, GA, where I attended the Special Agent Basic Training Integrated Program (SABTI). I was provided instruction on investigations, federal law, and other various practice issues for investigators. I completed 40 hours of advanced family and sexual violence training. I am a member of the Military Criminal Investigative Organization Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force. I have attended the National Criminal Justice Training Center's Internet Crimes Against Children certification course and additional training through ICAC for an approximate total of 90 hours. I spent eight (8) years as an active duty member of the United States Navy, where I was a Master-at-Arms (MA). As a MA, I was a first responder to base incidents, misdemeanor crimes, and traffic accidents. During my tenure as a MA, I was employed with the Criminal Investigation Division (CID) where I worked various cases to include Domestic Violence cases, simple assaults, and other misdemeanor crimes. I have a Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice from Fort Hays State University, Hays, KS.

2. As a federal agent, I am authorized to investigate violations of law of the United States and to execute warrants issued under the authority of the United States.

3. On May 30, 2025, NCIS was notified of a missing person's report for [redacted], USN, DDG-95. NCIS was also notified that the last person to be seen with her, CSSN Jermiah COPELAND, USN, was in an unauthorized absence status and was also missing.

4. On June 1, 2025, COPELAND was located within his barracks room onboard Naval Station Norfolk, however, [redacted] was still missing.

5. During an interview on June 3, 2025, COPELAND advised that an Apple Watch and iPhone that were located during a search of his barracks room at the X-2 barracks onboard Naval Station Norfolk were his. COPELAND explained neither device worked. NCIS did not seize either device and left them in his custody.

6. On June 3, 2025, COPELAND gave a separate iPhone 15 to investigators after signing a PASS.

7. On June 6, 2025, COPELAND was placed in a restricted status aboard the barge for DDG-95. COPELAND was advised to bring his toiletries and belongings to the ship. COPELAND remained on restriction until a later arrest and pre-trial confinement beginning on June 9, 2025.

8. On June 10, 2025, NCIS executed a CASS for COPELAND's berthing onboard the barge associated with DDG-95 that he lived in while on restriction. NCIS was able to locate and seize the Apple Watch. However, the second iPhone found on the June 3, 2025 search of COPELAND's barracks was not present.

9. The second iPhone was not located after additional searches of COPELAND's barracks room. It remains lost.

I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct.

UNITED STATES v. JERMIAH COPELAND CSSN/ E-3 USN	R.C.M. 701(a) DISCLOSURE

On 5 September 2025, CDR Lauren Mayo and LT Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, interviewed CS2 Rezan Taylor, USN, in the presence of Ms. Marie Reddish at Building A-50. The following is a summary of the interaction and is not intended to be verbatim:

CS2 Taylor described a call he received from CSSN S.R. on 11 April 2025 at 0604. He stated the call was approximately 10 minutes long. During the call he overheard CSSN S.R. arguing with CSSN Copeland. CS2 Taylor heard CSSN S.R. state that CSSN Copeland had placed his hands on her and CSSN Copeland was stating that V/ S. R. had a knife. CS2 Taylor advised V/ S. R. to leave and at 0654 she texted him that she had left. CS2 Taylor provided phone screenshots of these events.

CS3 Taylor learned later that CSSN S.R. had left and returned to CSSN Copeland's barracks, but he was not sure if the time she called him was the first or second time she was at CSSN Copeland's barracks room.

CS2 Taylor stated that he interacted with CSSN S.R. on a daily basis and based on his interactions found her to be a truthful person. He could not opine on her reputation for truthfulness among the crew.

CS2 Taylor advised that FCC Brad Parker, USN, was an interim Chief in the supply division. CS2 Taylor stated that FCC Parker was a dirt bag who failed to take initiative and did not do much.

CS2 Taylor advised he had spoken previously with CSSN Copeland about a speeding allegation.

CS2 Taylor also advised that on 9 June 25, while CSSN Copeland was on restriction, CS2 Taylor asked CSSN Copeland what happened between him and CS3 A.R. CS2 Taylor stated that CSSN Copeland advised CS3 A.R. was at his barracks room, they had been drinking alcohol, and the two began making out. CSSN Copeland then stated that CS3 A.R. wanted it to go further, but he stopped it. CS2 Taylor provided that he doubted CSSN Copeland was mature enough to have stopped the encounter at that point, but did not press him further. CS2 Taylor stated that he got the impression from CSSN Copeland that this all occurred in CSSN Copeland's bed. CS2 Taylor also provided that CSSN Copeland told him that CS3 A.R. left on her own the next morning. CS2 Taylor thought that was odd, because others had told him that CSSN Copeland had told them that he dropped her off at her barracks.

CS2 Taylor provided that CS3 A.R. was a great person who was very special. She was a great worker with a bubbly, strong personality. CS2 Taylor thought it was odd that she was with CSSN Copeland that night as there was no indication of a preexisiting relationship – other than professional.

A separate investigative action of this conversation will not be documented by NCIS.

On 29 July 2025, CAPT Derek Butler, JAGC, USN, CDR Lauren Mayo, JAGC, USN, and LT Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, interviewed Dr. Lameira, in the presence of LN1 Kathleen Vanetti, USN, Mr. Rob Robinson, Norfolk ME, and Dr. Wendy Gunther, Assistant Chief Medical Examiner. The following is a summary of the interaction and is not intended to be verbatim:

Dr. Lameira reported that due to the level of decomposition of, and post-mortem insect activity on, the body of V/A.R., no definitive cause of death could be discerned. Dr. Lameira was able to rule out stomping, stabbing, shooting, and a drug overdose as possible causes of death. She specified that the toxicology test only tested for specific drugs, but the lab was likely able to have additional testing done for specific prescriptions being taken by V/A.R upon request. Additionally, the toxicology report showed a BAC of .083 at the time of death.

Dr. Lameira noted that there was not enough remaining soft tissue on the body to indicate or rule out asphyxia as a cause of death. The only noted broken bones were ribs #2-5, which would not be consistent with attempts at CPR. There was not enough tissue left in the neck area to indicate whether there was any blood pooling in that area. The fallopian tubes and uterus were unremarkable with no indications of a pregnancy. There were no indications of any chronic conditions that would lead to a natural death and Dr. Lameira opined it would be unlikely for someone V/A.R.'s age to suffer a natural death.

It was explained that the alcohol ethenyl level, generally considered the BAC, could have been elevated by insect activity that creates yeast. No results had come back on the buccal and anal swabs that were conducted during the autopsy, and vaginal swabs were not conducted due to the lack of soft tissue resulting from decomposition and insect activity. Dr. Lameira explained that insect activity and decomposition generally begin in body openings (eyes, ears, mouth, nose, etc.) and areas where skin is pressed together (buttocks, below breasts, arms crossed, etc.). She opined that the folded position of the body in the duffel bag created the skin-to-skin pressure points on the chest that became areas of accelerated decomposition, in comparison to the other areas of the torso.

When asked, Dr. Lameira stated that there was not enough soft tissue on the body to determine whether there were any injuries to the body that would have been bleeding before death. Dr. Lameira explained that up to a liter of "purge" can be expelled post-mortem through the nose and mouth and appears red in color. "Purge" was explained as the fluid in the lungs and surrounding tissue that leaks out of the nose and mouth post-mortem, and can become further dislodged from the body if the body is moved.

When asked, Dr. Lameira stated that rigor mortis sets in within about 12 hours after death and opined that the body was likely placed into the duffel bag prior to the onset of rigor mortis. Dr. Lameira concured with Dr. Gunter that it was not unusual for people to mistake dead bodies for living people.

Good Morning Dr. Gunther,

I am just following up on this. Was there a result for the escitalopram?

Thank you!

Well, it's going to take the lab quite a while to do the escitalopram, particularly since Dr. Lameira pointed out to me that we don't have blood, just liver and muscle. I'm not sure the expensive, fast lab (NMS) will even do naproxen on liver and muscle; I think they only work on blood. So you're looking at 60 days if you want to wait for the escitalopram.

If you don't, then there is a much shorter timeline; I'll leave it up to Dr. Lameira to estimate it for you.

We can definitely ask for escitalopram, and if we have to we can send out for naproxen, but we can't do Cefpodoxime, the antibiotic.

I kind of think naproxen isn't indicated; if it's going to kill you, it does it by internal bleeding, and that wasn't part of the findings, right, Dr. Lameira?

How about if we ask our lab for escitalopram, and if it's positive, we don't do naproxen? If it's negative, the expense of outside lab can do naproxen within a couple of weeks.

Good Afternoon Dr. Lameira and Dr. Gunther,

Thank you so much for taking the time to meet with us on Tuesday. I apologize for the delay in getting back to you, but it took some time for us to track down the specific prescriptions we'd like to have the sample tested for (if that has not already been done). They are:

- Escitalopram/Lexapro
- Cefpodoxime
- Naproxen

Thank you!

Nemanja Rodic, M.D., PhD.
Board Certified Pathologist

Significant condition(s):

(a) Habit-forming substances detected in bodily fluids

- ☐ Natural
- ☐ Accident
- ☐ Suicide
- ☐ Homicide
- ☒ Could Not Be Determined

An autopsy was performed on the body of V/A.R. on the 28th day of June, 2025.

CONSENT FOR AUTOPSY

Consented and reviewed by Dr. Nemanja RODIC. Consenter was, Esmeralda CASTLE. The relationship of the individual, providing consent for autopsy, to the decedent is mother. Type of autopsy was complete, including brain.

PRIOR POSTMORTEM PROCEDURES

Following macroscopic examination there was NO EVIDENCE of organ donation. Following macroscopic examination there was EVIDENCE of prior autopsy.

EXTERNAL EXAMINATION

The body was that of a well-developed & well-nourished female. The body weighed about 120 pounds, was 4 feet 5 inches in height, and appeared compatible with the reported age of PII years [calculated body mass index 20.6(1)]. There were no personal effects identified. The body was cold. The body was in state of late decomposition marked by skin discoloration, desquamation, and skeletonization. Rigor and lividity designation deferred. The scalp hair was black. The eye examination deferred. The nose examination deferred. The lips examination deferred. Some upper and lower teeth were present with good dental hygiene. Dentures were not present. The skin was free of any significant abrasions, bruises, lacerations, lymphadenopathy, or burns. Examination of the neck revealed no evidence of injury. No injury of the ribs or sternum was evident externally; negative for deformity and increased anterior-posterior diameter. The abdomen was grossly unremarkable. The extremities were grossly unremarkable. Leg circumference 10 cm from medial malleolus were, 20 cm on the right, and 20 cm on the left. Negative for pitting edema. The fingernails examination deferred. Negative for palpable lymph nodes. Negative for joint deformity, abnormal mobility, and non-therapeutic punctures or needles track marks. The external genitalia were those of a normal adult female. The posterior torso was without note; negative for sacral decubitus ulcer. Negative for tenting of skin. Negative for sunken eyes.

EVIDENCE OF THERAPY:

ID band with decedent name and case number (T-246-25 T2025-00840) were identified on patient body bag and bilateral lower extremities. Negative for nasogastric tube, central venous line, intravenous line, PEG tube, endotracheal tube, and Foley catheter.

INTERNAL EXAMINATION

BODY CAVITIES:

The body was re-opened by the usual Y-shaped thoraco-abdominal incision and the chest plate was removed. No adhesions nor abnormal collections of fluid were present in any of the body cavities. The subcutaneous fat layer of the abdominal wall was less than 1" thick. There were no abnormalities of the omentum and mesenteries. There was no internal evidence of blunt force or penetrating injury to the thoraco-abdominal region.

CENTRAL NERVOUS SYSTEM

The head was normocephalic. External examination revealed no grossly identifiable or palpable lesions. Negative for dry surface of the galea. The dura showed no lesions. The leptomeninges showed no lesions. The cerebral hemispheres were symmetrical and showed no lesions. The brain base showed no lesions. The cerebellum showed no lesions. The brainstem showed no lesions. The superior spinal cord showed no lesions. The eyes were not submitted for microscopic examination.

NECK:

Examination of the soft tissues of the neck, including strap muscles, thyroid gland and large vessels revealed no grossly identifiable or palpable lesions. Negative for trauma of the gingiva, lips, or oral mucosa.

CARDIOVASCULAR SYSTEM:

The epicardial fat was mild. The coronary ostia were normally positioned. The foramen ovale was closed. The coronary arteries arose normally, followed the usual distribution and were free of grossly identifiable or palpable atherosclerosis of the right coronary artery, left common/main coronary artery, left anterior descending artery, and circumflex artery. The chambers, valves, leaflets, and chordae tendinae exhibited the usual size-position relationship and were unremarkable. The myocardium was red-brown, firm and unremarkable; the atrial and ventricular septa were intact; negative for infarcts/lesions of the myocardium. The endocardium was smooth and thin; negative endocardial hemorrhages and endocardial discoloration. The aorta was fairly elastic and of even caliber throughout with its major branches distributed normally, followed the usual course and were widely patent. Negative for significant abdominal/thoracic aorta atherosclerosis. Negative for tortuosity or widening of the thoracic segment. Negative for dilation of the lower abdominal segment. Negative for aortic aneurysm. The venae cavae and their major tributaries returned to the heart in the usual distribution and were free of thrombi. No focal endocardial, valvular, and myocardial lesions were seen.

RESPIRATORY SYSTEM:

Scant secretions were found in the lower bronchial and upper respiratory passages. The mucosa has pink-tan postmortem discoloration. The upper airway was clear of debris and foreign material; the mucosal surfaces were smooth, yellow-tan and unremarkable. The pleural surfaces were smooth, glistening, well-expanded, and unremarkable bilaterally. Lungs were atelectatic and subcrepitant. The pulmonary parenchyma was red-purple in color, congested, and edematous. There was dependent congestion and postmortem softening. Serial sectioning was negative for grossly identifiable and palpable lesions/scarring. The pulmonary arteries were normally developed The bronchi were patent with no grossly identifiable or palpable lesions. The lungs were cut fresh.

LIVER & BILIARY SYSTEM:

The hepatic capsule was smooth, glistening and intact, covering dark red-brown parenchyma with minimal congestion. Serial sectioning revealed no grossly identifiable or palpable lesions. The extrahepatic biliary tree was patent, without evidence of calculi. The gallbladder was present and showed thin wall, velvety mucosa, and no calculi. The portal vein, hepatic arteries, and hepatic veins were patent.

ALIMENTARY TRACT:

The mucosa was pink-tan with normal mucosal folds. No tablets or capsules could be discerned in the stomach or the stomach contents. No residual medications were identified. The external and in situ appearance of the small intestine and colon were grossly and palpably unremarkable. The small intestine and colon were opened along the anti-mesenteric border to reveal soft liquid fecal material in the small bowel and soft semi-formed, thick green stool in the colon. The small bowel showed usual caliber, tan pink shiny serosa, and tan circumferential mucosa; negative for grossly identifiable and palpable lesions. The vermiform appendix was grossly and palpably unremarkable. The large bowel showed usual caliber, tan pink shiny serosa, and tan peri-circumferential mucosa; negative for grossly identifiable and palpable lesions. The distal large bowel contents were stool. The superior mesenteric artery was free of grossly identifiable and palpable atherosclerosis. The pancreas occupied a normal position, had a normal pink-tan lobulated parenchyma, and the ducts were patent, not ectatic. No parenchymal calcifications; negative for necrosis or trauma.

GENITOURINARY SYSTEM:

The red-brown surface of renal capsules were rough and uneven to touch. The ureters were patent. The renal arteries showed no grossly identifiable or palpable atherosclerosis. The cortices were sharply delineated from the medullary pyramids, which were red-purple to tan and unremarkable. The calyces, pelves and ureters were unremarkable. The urinary bladder contained minimal urine; the mucosa was gray-tan and grossly unremarkable.

LYMPHORETICULOENDOTHELIAL SYSTEM:

The spleen had a smooth, intact capsule covering red-purple, moderately firm parenchyma; the lymphoid follicles were unremarkable. Serial sectioning was negative for grossly identifiable or palpable lesions. The regional lymph nodes appeared normal. The bone marrow was dark red. The lymph nodes were not enlarged. The thymus was not identified.

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM:

The thyroid was symmetrical in appearance and sectioning revealed no grossly identifiable or palpable lesions. The breast tissue was sectioned in the usual manner and contained small amount of white fibrous tissue; negative for significant abnormality.

MUSCULOSKELETAL SYSTEM:

The diaphragm was intact. Skeletal muscles were red-brown and firm. The calvarium was intact. The vertebral columns showed normal curvature. The ribs were negative for fractures. The vertebral bodies were negative for fractures. No bone or joint abnormalities were noted.

AUTOPSY PROCEDURES AND ANCILLARY TESTING

The approach to autopsy dissection was M. Letulle's Technique (en bloc from tongue to rectum). There were not special dissections performed. Tissue retained in stock jars until signout. Additional samples taken as follows, homogenized viscera. Ancillary testing, toxicology.

HISTOLOGIC SECTIONS (2&3):

HISTOLOGIC SECTIONS (2&3)

Trimmed from larger formalin-fixed blocks:

MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION

CARDIOVASCULAR SYSTEM: Sections showed cardiac parenchyma and stroma free of significant interstitial-type fibrosis and nuclear & cytoplasmic hypertrophy, acute & chronic inflammation, hemorrhage, and necrosis. Sections of coronary arteries were free of significant cholesterol clefts and dystrophic calcifications within narrowed vascular walls. Sections of aorta were free of significant cholesterol clefts deposits. Negative for malignant cells.

RESPIRATORY SYSTEM: Bilateral sections of pulmonary parenchyma and stroma notable were free of significant congestion, variably sized & increased alveolar spaces, acute inflammation, chronic inflammation, fibrosis, hemorrhage, and hemosiderin-laden macrophages. Polarization and refraction failed to reveal polarizable and refractile materials, respectively. Sections of hilar lymph nodes showed benign primary follicles. Sections of larynx were denuded, but free of significant acute and chronic inflammation. Negative for malignant cells.

LIVER & BILIARY SYSTEM: Sections showed hepatic parenchyma and stroma free of significant acute & chronic inflammation, macrosteatosis, glycogenated nuclei, and fibrosis. Negative for malignant cells.

GENITOURINARY SYSTEM: Sections showed bilateral renal parenchyma and stroma notable for medial hypertrophy of medium sized vessels and interstitial/subcapsular lymphocytic inflammation, but free of significant basement membrane thickening, hyaline change, thyroidization, and interstitial fibrosis. Section of urinary bladder were denuded, but free of significant acute and chronic inflammation. Sections of genitourinary tract were histologically unremarkable. Polarization and refraction failed to reveal polarizable and refractile materials, respectively. Negative for malignant cells.

ALIMENTARY TRACT: Sections showed histologically unremarkable pancreatobilliary and tubular gastrointestinal tract. Negative for malignant cells.

RETICULOENDOTHELIAL SYSTEM: Sections showed histologically unremarkable parenchyma and stroma, free of significant acute and chronic inflammation. Negative for malignant cells.

INTEGUMENTARY SYSTEM: Sections showed histologically unremarkable parenchyma and stroma. Negative for malignant cells.

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM: Sections showed histologically unremarkable parenchyma and stroma. Negative for adrenal hemorrhage. Negative for malignant cells.

MEDICAL RECORDS REVIEW

Accompanying medical information collected from pre-autopsy verbal report by _Esmeralda CASTLE, the mother of the decedent, was notable for following medical findings:

Past Medical History: negative for suicidal attempts; equivocal for prior past suicidal ideation (10/2024);

Surgical Procedures: none;

Medical Laboratory: antemortem COVID-19 negative test.

Additional Notes: Clinical symptoms/signs, not in acute distress (5/28/2025-5/29/2025), asymptomatic (interim). The decedent did not receive blood transfusions or lived in Europe prior to death. The decedent was vaccinated against COVID-19 prior to death. The decedent had been consuming alcoholic beverages (wine and liquor)/tobacco (vaped) prior to death. The decedent had not been consuming illegal habit-forming drugs prior to death. The decedent did not have history of cancer prior to death. External and macroscopic images taken for posterity. Examination limited by autolysis and tissue preservation. Preliminary diagnosis called to and confirmed by Esmeralda CASTLE on 7/3/2025 at 1615. See accompanying Axis 3327991 report. Final diagnosis called to and confirmed by family friend on 8/1/2025 at 1615.

OPINION:

Based collectively on my autopsy findings herein as well as my review of the accompanying submitted medical information, in the case of this PII-year-old female, V/ A. R., the manner of death is deferred (1,4-6,&9). I reserve the right to amend my opinion(s) upon the receipt of additional material (7).

Comment: "The following statement applies to tests, i.e. to dye(s), chemical solution stains, and Class I IHC reagents and kits. Dye(s), chemical solution stains are defined in the Code of Federal Regulations as "mixtures of synthetic or natural dyes or nondye chemicals in solutions used in staining cells and tissues for diagnostic histopathology, cytopathology, or hematology" (see 21 C.F.R. § 864.1850). This definition encompasses many of the common materials found in a conventional histopathology laboratory, such as routine hematoxylin and eosin stains, as well as special stains like trichrome, iron, and Grocott-Gömöri's methenamine silver, among others, and are considered Class I devices subject to general controls. Class I IHC reagents and kits are defined as those that "provide the pathologist with adjunctive diagnostic information that may be incorporated into the pathologist's report, but that is not ordinarily reported to the clinician as an independent finding," noting that "these IHC's are used after the primary diagnosis of tumor (neoplasm) has been made by conventional histopathology using nonimmunologic histochemical stains, such as hematoxylin and eosin" (see 21 C.F.R. § 864.1860). The 1998 final rule further describes these as "adjunctive tests [to conventional histopathologic diagnostic examination] and presenting a low risk to public health."37 An example of a Class I IHC specifically mentioned in the IHC reagents and kit regulation is keratin (see 21 C.F.R. § 864.1860). Many other Class I IHC reagents and kits can be found by searching for the "NJT" product code on the FDA establishment registration and device listing database.47 These IVDs are exempt from premarket notification/510(k) submission, although they are still subject to FDA general controls and QS/CGMP requirements. Most IHC stains used by anatomic pathologists are considered diagnostic markers and therefore are categorized as Class I by the FDA. The tests herein have not been cleared or approved for the specific use by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. FDA does not require this test to go through premarket FDA review. These tests are used for clinical purposes. It should not be regarded as investigational or for research. This laboratory is certified under the Clinical Laboratory Improvement Amendments 1988 (CLIA) as qualified to perform high complexity clinical laboratory testing. All stains and tests are performed with general controls, i.e. positive and negative control reactions as necessary, and all controls show appropriate reactivity. However, stains and tests have not been validated on decalcified tissues. Results should be interpreted with caution given the likelihood of false negativity on decalcified specimens. Certain tests utilize Class I Analyte-Specific Reagents (ASR); these tests are developed, and their performance characteristics determined by this laboratory. ASRs used in this laboratory have been established and verified for accuracy and precision.(8)"

But again Please remember that what I like to do in order for the due diligence we observe is that after the military final autopsy document becomes available ask miss missus cancelled to submit it to our secure Dropbox shared folder and then send us an e-mail at sometime in the two-minute whenever the report is available maybe like 10 weeks from now or 16 weeks from now whenever OK and then I will review that and then either then or correct the report as needed OK so the so microscopic examination of multiple sections on this case showed no evidence of any blunt force trauma so that's something I think was important to rule in or out the toxicology studies were pertinently positive and there was a significant level of ethanol or alcohol there was detected and I think that is a significant finding now this upon microscopic examination on the organ systems there's no other changes either on microscope events or inflammation infection or cancer of any kind so I think the major other cause of that has been have been formally ruled out so this substance is detected in the bodily fluid I think is significant in the quantity and quality of it and I think that's something that informs the cause of death in this case um so in other words you know from our end we don't see any evidence of foul play as far as UM trauma to the remains and I think this is again let me just I'm careful what kind of language I'm using here I think this is suggestive of an accidental ingestion OK now um again what I'd like to do in order for all of the due diligence be observed is that once the the military is available I will review that material and then appropriately if I identify any additional diagnostic features that can help better classify the findings will attend the mandatory OK do you do you have any questions for me from your end yes so a couple questions um does the the findings or are there any other pending tests that that need to be deducted or awaiting results that will impact your final report the due diligence worked that I wanted to perform from our end is available is completed and but when and if the final autopsy documents from the first examination becomes available I'll be very happy to review that and again because you may be sometime in the future like a month two months maybe even six months depending on how complex this is on there and um whatever that is I just asked you and the family yeah we we did I I wanted to check we did open the Dropbox folder OK their e-mail maybe I should actually add you let me just add you on on that e-mail as well because you are you know the point of contact here and and then once you do that because it may be again sometime in the future just please drop me an e-mail OK and say something like hey doctor Aldrich dismiss cancel or miss poor yeah you're missus amber esmeralda I'm ibra so esmeralda is is miss castle and then my name is Debra I'm her colleague from law school yes her friend got it OK so let me see here then please just send me an e-mail that way I can see that it's in the archive that's the only problem with the Dropbox automatically not familiar it's there and then within about a week or two I will schedule us for follow up or attended or amend their correct report as needed OK the second question that I had was are any of the tests are able to indicate or any of the anything that you were able to see and able to show whether there was any strangulation or any type of of anything of that nature I took very meticulous examination both externally of the remains and systematic microscopic examination to rule out even some small or difficult to detect ecchymosis or petechiae or other force or signs of one force trauma and I look very carefully there there's none so I and considered it formally ruled that out OK so sometimes by external examination you cannot see the you know the evidence of trauma but but this way that I performed it there's just simply no way of missing it because I'm looking at singular cells at that level right and if there's any kind of level of of change in I'm I'm I'm able to see it now there is that there has been formally considered and ruled out so I will add you to the to do a Dropbox share folder and let's then be communication whenever the report becomes available OK and once that report comes out we'll as well as I'll call her as me I'm sorry we'll miss castle get a copy of of your findings or will or will she get a copy of this additional report after I just feel like she's going to ask him no I'm gonna explain this to thank you so we're going to release our report automatically this is our standard operating procedure we're gonna release our reported automatically to to to her to Monday morning OK and then electronically and then they will mail her a hard copy those are typically dashed that same went Friday OK perfect and then once we reviewed the additional material we will follow the same sequence OK we'll release the report basically as if it's a new report one thing we have you know that's confirmed so that's fine but to confirm the address should we mail her report to [redacted] yes that's it OK wonderful thank you so much and lesbian communication then the first report OK thank you so much thank you bye bye

On 22 October 2025, LT Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN interviewed Dr. Nemanja Rodic in the presence of LN2 Jocelyn M Gomez, USN. The following is a summary of the interaction and is not intended to be verbatim:

Dr. Rodic stated that when his office received the body to conduct an autopsy, the remains were contained in a clear bag. Inside of that bag was a pool of colored fluid with a strong odor. It was Dr. Rodic's opinion that this fluid was an alcohol-based preservative or other embalming fluid that contained a dilute of alcohol deformaline. Dr. Rodic was not sure exactly how the military or mortuary service would have packaged or preserved the remains prior to his examination or what chemicals specifically were used.

Dr. Rodic explained that this fluid was undoubtedly what caused the high level of alcohol found in the remains of the deceased. The results were too high to be clinically relevant, indicating that the fluid is what caused the high result.

Dr. Rodic did not see an indication of blunt force trauma or sharp force trauma on the remains, although the autopsy was not extremely thorough. Dr. Rodic also explained that the remains were also decomposed.

When asked if the findings were consistent with asphyxiation, Dr. Rodic explained it was possible or probable. He explained that natural causes were a dubious suggestion given the age and purported fitness of the deceased. He believed it was likely one of three mechanisms of death: (1) asphyxiation; (2) blunt force trauma for which any evidence had decomposed; or (3) termination of life due to ingestion of alcohol. Dr. Rodic clarified that he had no significant evidence to suggest intoxication from alcohol was the cause of death because the numbers he had recorded were incorrectly inflated by the fluid in the bag. As such, without additional evidence he could not say if that was a probable cause of death.

Mr. Dempsey,

It is my real that I did not consider designating strangulation as possible/probable mechanics/mode of death in this case. It is my recall that I deferred from designating manner of death herein, because my examination was limited by prior autopsy, prior embalming, lack of any documents in writing for review, and marked tissue degeneration/loss prior to the autopsy. For example, some parts of both acral and truncal soft tissue and bones were absent at the time of my examination.

With respect,
Dr. Rodic

Subject: Follow-Up Questions - US v. Copeland
Good Afternoon Dr. Rodic,

The victim's family provided us with a rough transcript of a phone call you had with them back when you reported your findings (attached). I do not have a recording, just this transcript. This has raised a couple of questions I attribute to poor automated transcription. I know we spoke previously and addressed these, but I want to run them to ground just to be sure:

1. Were the findings consistent with strangulation as a potential cause of death?

2. At one point, the transcript says that "foul play" related to "trauma" can be ruled out. Is that correct? If so, what do you mean by that?

Thank you! I am also happy to discuss on the phone if preferred. Please just let me know a time that works for you.

Very Respectfully,

Christopher B. Dempsey

I am commissioned by the Island County Sheriff's Office to enforce the laws of the State of Washington and the County of Island. On May 3, 2022 I was working as the Detective Sergeant with the Island County Sheriff's Office, in the Major Crimes Unit. This investigation occurred in Island County.

NARRATIVE:

On May 3, 2022, I was contacted by telephone by Oak Harbor Police Department Officer Scelzi who was assigned as the School Resource Office in Oak Harbor. I know Officer Scelzi to be a fully certified law enforcement officer for the aforementioned agency. Officer Scelzi advised me that there was an incident involving a 16 year old female, K.M.B. (DOB [redacted]) and two male students, J.T.C. (DOB [redacted]), a 17 year old male and B.D.G. (DOB [redacted]), a 16 year old male. Officer Scelzi told me that the boys had sex with K.M.B. at a residence somewhere in Island County and that there was a video of it circulating at the school. I told Officer Scelzi I would make arrangements to interview K.M.B. and she did not need to be interviewed at the school.

Officer Scelzi attempted to contact one of the boys at my request to voluntarily get his cell phone but he declined.

At approximately 1730 hours K.M.B. came in to the Island County Sheriff's Office in Coupeville so I could interview K.M.B.

Since K.M.B. was sixteen years old I reviewed the child forensic ground rules with her appropriate for a teenager of her age and also read her the Island County Sheriff's Office Taped Statement Form. The interview was conducted in the interview room in the Detective's Office which is audio and video recorded.

K.M.B. told me that she lived on a farm on Sonic Lane in Oak Harbor, Washington. She told me that she lived with her parents and 12 year old sister and they had animals at the house. K.M.B. said she was a sophomore at Oak Harbor High School and participated in volleyball and wrestling and also liked to play video games.

I asked K.M.B. to tell me about what why she had come in to speak with me. K.M.B. told me that she had sex with two boys and one of them took a video of her without her consent and showed the video to other people at the school the video.

K.M.B. told me that J.T.C. and B.D.G. were the two boys and that B.D.G. was her best friend. K.M.B. said that on April 22, 2022, she had Facetimed (Facetime is an Apple Iphone video call application), B.D.G. and at the time the two boys were at McDonald's getting food. The boys offered to get her food if she gave them "head" implying she gave each of them a blow job. K.M.B. said she jokingly agreed but then said you guys know I can't do that, I'm a virgin and they knew she was not like that. She thought that the back and forth banter was just joking.

K.M.B. said that J.T.C. and B.D.G. came out to her house and she showed them around and they went into a room her family calls the game room which is upstairs and down the hallway away from where her sister and her friends were. K.M.B. said that at the time her parents were out in the barn.

K.M.B. said she sat on the couch and asked J.T.C. and B.D.G if they wanted to play video games or watch or turn on some music or just sit and eat food and talk. K.M.B. said the boys just looked at her and then said, "Well you said you were going to give us head." K.M.B. said she told them both that they knew she couldn't do that, told them she did not know how and told them she wasn't going to do it. K.M.B. said she couldn't remember which one did it but one of the boys pulled out a condom and said they could do that. K.M.B said the three of them went back and forth and she told both of them she was a virgin and she wanted to save herself. K.M.B. said that J.T.C. told her that they had come out all this way to bring her food and kept pushing her until she said she consented and told them it was fine and to just get it over with. K.M.B. said she would rather just let them do their thing because she just thought it was easier.

K.M.B. said that they discussed what they were going to do and she would say no and then they would talk about doing something else. K.M.B. said she agreed to start by just kissing B.D.G. and while she was doing that J.T.C. took off her pants and started "fingering" her. K.M.B. said she had been wearing sweat pants and t-shirt with no underwear underneath her sweat pants. K.M.B. said that after that J.T.C. was "hard" (indicating he had an erection) and he wanted to kiss and told her to just get on top of him and she said she did and she was not wearing her pants but still had her shirt on, and had sex with J.T.C. for a very short period of time and then got off of him and said she was done. K.M.B. clarified that sex was J.T.C.'s penis was inside of her vagina and he had been wearing a condom.

K. M. B. said when she stopped having sex with J. T. C., J. T. C. told her that she should "get on all fours this time" and suck B. D. G.'s dick while he (J. T. C.) has sex with her from behind and K. M. B. told him no. K. M. B. said that J. T. C. was pulling on her hips telling her to "come on" and she refused and J. T. C. finally backed off and quit asking and sat down on the bean bag chair next to the couch.

K. M. B. said she laid down on the couch and B. D. G. got on top of her and they had sex and she could not really see J. T. C. but apparently J. T. C. was sitting out of her view on the bean bag video recording her having sex with B. D. G. K. M. B. said B. D. G. was wearing a condom when they had sex. K. M. B. said at first B. D. G. couldn't "get hard" so she waited for him too before they had sex but they only had sex for 3 to 5 minutes before they heard a noise and stopped.

I asked K. M. B. when she found out about the video and she said it was the following week.

K. M. B. said that the sex acts with both J. T. C. and B. D. G. was consensual but the video recording was not.

K. M. B. said that her friends, "Byron" and "Selena" had seen the video and J. T. C. and B. D. G. offered to show it to "Cadence" and "Derek" but as far as she knew they had not seen the video and she had not seen the video herself.

K. M. B. said she had texted with B. D. G. to not say anything about what they did and to deny it if anyone asks.

K. M. B. said the video was described to her as B. D. G. being on top of her and they were having sex and you can see her legs but not her face.

K. M. B. said she thought both B. D. G. and J. T. C. had iPhones and had told me that J. T. C. had sent the video to B. D. G. so they both had it.

On May 4, 2022, I spoke with Office Scelzi on the phone and she advised she had received written statements from K. M. B., B. D. G., J. T. C., and a female named L. L. (DOB Unknown at this time), and a female named B. L. (DOB Unknown at this time).

The first written statement from K. M. B. was in line with what she told me in our interview.

In the written statement by B. D. G., he admits that both he and J. T. C. went to McDonald's and then went to K. M. B.'s house and both he and J. T. C. had sex with K. M. B. There is a handwritten note at the bottom of the statement that is in black ink rather than the blue ink the rest of the statement is written in that says, "[B] stated there is a video that [J] took & he sent it to him."

In the written statement by J. T. C. he admits to going to McDonald's and then going to K. M. B.'s house and that both he and B. D. G. had sex with K. M. B. Again there is a note written in black ink rather than the blue ink the note was written in that states, "[J] admitted to taking a video of B. G. and K. B. Stated he deleted it."

In the written statement by L. L. she writes that during the fire drill on May 2nd, K. M. B. had told her about having sexual intercourse with a different boy and about being slapped and that boy forcing himself on top of her. It goes on to say that J. T. C. and B. D. G. had brought K. M. B. food and manipulated her into doing felling obligated to do something with them and she agreed to do something sexual and that J.T.C. had video recorded B.D.G. and K.M.B. having sex.

The last statement by B.L. says that K.M.B. had been raped but is saying that she wasn't to protect J.T.C. and B.D.G. because they were her best friends. The statement says that K.M.B. was pressured in to having sex with both boys at the same time and one of the boys made a video recording of it and they both had a copy and B.D.G. had B.D.G. had been showing people the video, sending it to people and bragging about it. The statement says B.D.G. has lots of girls nude photographs on his phone and that he has shown people including her (B.L.) the pictures. B.L. goes on to write that four hours later another boy went to K.M.B.'s house and had sex with her. B.L. wrote that K.M.B. has been called by J.T.C. and B.D.G. asking her to cover for them so they were lying about what they had done to K.M.B.

See Officer Scelzi's police report and the attached documents from Oak Harbor High School for details.

On May 6, 2022, I applied for and was granted two search warrants for the cell phones of B.D.G. (SW 2022 00000055) and J.T.C. (SW 2022 00000056) in Island County Superior Court.

On May 6, 2022, I met J.T.C. in the School Resource Officer Office at the Oak Harbor High School with Officer Scelzi, Island County Detective's Wallace and Mirabal. J.T.C. said he did not have his phone, his mother had taken it away. He allowed Detective's Wallace and Mirabal search the bags he had with him and stated he did not have a locker at school. The phone was not located and no questions were asked of J.T.C. during the contact.

At approximately 1413 hours ICSO Det. Walker and I met with B.D.G. and his mother, Amber Gallmeyer ([redacted]), at their residence [redacted]. The contact was audio and video recorded using my department issued Axon body camera, see the recording for details of the contact.

I showed Gallmeyer the search warrant for B.D.G.'s cell phone and she told him to go and get it, which he did. B.D.G. gave me the phone and provided me the code without asking him for it. I provided them a copy of the search warrant and I explained I could not talk to them any further but would answer any questions they had if I could. This concluded the contact.

At approximately 1830 hours I contacted J.T.C.'s mother, Rochell Brown (DOB [redacted]), at their residence, [redacted] The contact was audio and video recorded on my department issued Axon body camera, see the recording for details of the contact.

Brown told me that she told J.T.C. to put his phone on her dresser yesterday when she found out about the investigation from him and now J.T.C. did not know where the phone was at. Brown said she thought the phone was on her dresser but he only put the phone case on her dresser and she thought it was the phone itself. I had previously spoken with Brown that afternoon before going to meet with her at the house and she told me that the phone had been taken away but she was unable to meet with me when I made the call because she was in the hospital off island. Brown was 9 month pregnant at the time I made contact with her.

Brown said she did not know if her son was hiding the phone, J.T.C. told her that he had "misplaced" it.

I asked Brown how much of this story she knew. Brown said that yesterday J.T.C.

came and told her that J.T.C. and his friend B.D.G. went to a girls house, and the girls mom and dad were there, and the boys had brought the girl McDonald's (food). Brown said first J.T.C. made out with the girl and then B.D.G. slept with the girl and it was recorded and that is what she knew. I told her that was generally the story but J.T.C. was more involved than that.

Brown said the school did not contact her about any of this and I told her that is why I called her. I showed her the search warrant and the crime that was being investigated, Disclosing Intimate Images. I explained the search warrant was just for the phone and she said she tore the house apart looking for it and could not find it and her son says he does not know where it is. Brown said he sent the video to B.D.G. so B.D.G. should have the video.

I provided Brown my card and asked her to call me if she located the phone and she said she would.

On May 6, I applied for and was granted SW 2022 00000058, in Island County Superior Court for the analysis of B.D.G.'s cell phone. ICSO Det. Wallace processed the cell phone for me and provided me the forensic download for review.

Upon review of the contents of the phone I did not locate the video of B.D.G. and K.M.B. The forensic report will be forthcoming once fully completed.

At this time I am forwarding this case the Island County Juvenile Prosecutor for charges against B[PII] D. G[PII] ([PII]) for Disclosing Intimate Images, RCW 9A.86.010, for showing the images to other students at Oak Harbor High School.

I am also forwarding this case to the Island County Juvenile Prosecutor for charges against Jeremiah T. Copeland ([PII]) for Disclosing Intimate Images, RCW 9A.86.010, for sharing the video with other students; Voyeurism, RCW 9A.44.115, for taking the video unbeknownst to B.D.G. and K.M.B.; Tampering with Evidence, RCW 9A.72.150, for disposing of his cell phone after being contacted by the Oak Harbor High School staff about this case.

I certify (or declare) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of Washington that the foregoing is true and correct. Certified electronically per RCW 5.50.030 and 5.50.050.

I am a law enforcement officer with the Island County Sheriff's Office and I have electronically prepared and submitted this statement to a court or prosecutor from and electronic device that is owned, issued, or maintained by a criminal justice agency.

Date: 5/10/2022

I am commissioned by the Sheriff of Island County to enforce the laws of the State of Washington and County of Island. At the time of this investigation I was working as a Detective, assigned to the investigations division.

On 5/4/2022, Detective Sgt. Peabody advised he had a warrant he wanted help serving. Detective Mirabal and I went out to [redacted] PII [redacted] PII, the last known residence associated with the suspect in the search warrant, but no one answered the door. During this time my body worn camera was active. It was later determined that the suspect no longer lived at that address.

On 5/5/2022, I assisted Detective Sgt. Peabody in serving another search warrant for this case. I accompanied Detective Sgt. Peabody out to [redacted] PII [redacted] PII [redacted] where we served the search warrant and seized a cell phone. I remained on scene as a cover officer. My body worn camera was not activated during this contact.

This ended my involvement in this case.

I certify (or declare) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of Washington that the foregoing is true and correct.

Island County Sheriff's Office Supplemental Narrative

Detective: Wallace #1067

Case Number: 22-I06902

Date: May 12, 2022

I am commissioned by the Sheriff of Island County to enforce the laws of the state of Washington and the County of Island. At the time of this incident I was working as a Detective for the investigations division of the Island County Sheriff's Office. I am certified by the Department of Treasury/Homeland Security as a Seized Computer Evidence Recovery Specialist (S.C.E.R.S.), the Department of Homeland Security as a Mobile Device Investigator, the Cellebrite Corporation as a Physical Analyst, and the Paraben Corporation as a Handheld Examiner (PDA, cell/mobile phone and Hybrid devices). I am also trained by the Teeltechnologies Corporation to conduct Advanced BGA Chip-off Forensics and Advanced JTAG Mobile Forensics.

On May 9, 2022, I was contacted by Detective Sgt. PEABBODY who requested that I assist with this investigation by extracting data from two Apple iPhones stored in the Island County Sheriff's Office evidence system (item numbers 22-I00326 and 22-I00327).

Item 22-I00327 is an Apple iPhone 12 (model A2172) belonging to the victim KMB. A signed written permission to search for the device was also provided. The device was powered on and in "airplane" mode when I received it. There was no passcode on the device.

Following established protocols and procedures I conducted an "advanced logical" download using Cellebrite UFED 4PC version 7.54.0.444. Once the data was extracted I uploaded it into Cellebrite Physical Analyzer version 7.55.0.21 for processing and review.

The device is an Apple iPhone model A2172, serial number G6TDW4S50DY0, running iOS version 15.4.1. It is associated with the iCloud account k[redacted]@icloud.com and is assigned MSISDN (cellphone number) [redacted]-8959. It is set to the Pacific Time zone and showed the correct date and time.

Once the data was processed I generated a reader report for and provided it to PEABODY to review for items of evidentiary value to his investigation. Since this is a voluntary download of the victim's phone, once PEABODY reviews the report and recovers anything of evidentiary value, the original download will be deleted. The device was provided to PEABODY for return to the victim's family.

Item 22-I00327 is an Apple iPhone belonging to BDG. PEABODY requested and was granted Island County Superior court search warrant 2022 0000058 on May 6, 2022 authorizing the download and examination of the data on the device.

On May 9, 2022, I retrieved the device from evidence to begin the download process. The device was powered on, locked with a PIN code and in airplane mode. Using the PIN provided by PEABODY I unlocked the device. Following established protocols and procedures I conducted an "advanced logical" download using Cellebrite UFED 4PC version 7.54.0.444. Once the data was extracted I uploaded it into Cellebrite Physical Analyzer version 7.55.0.21 for processing and review.

The device is an Apple iPhone model A2484, serial number NQDMXRK42X, running iOS version 15.4.1. It is associated with the iCloud account B[MINOR PII].g[MINOR]@icloud.com and is assigned MSISDN (cellphone number) [PII]4669. It is set to the Pacific Time zone and showed the correct date and time.

Once the data was processed, at PEABODY's request I recovered the Snapchat.com user name for BDG ([redacted] from the stored application account information and submitted a preservation request via e-mail to Snapchat.com for the account. I generated a reader report for the device and provided it to PEABODY to review for items of evidentiary value to his investigation. The preservation request and e-mail were uploaded to evidence.com.

Oak Harbor Police Department Officers Report

Officer: S. Ricci
Case/Incident Number: 22-O06199

On 06/26/2022 at 1951 hours, I responded, via phone, to a sex offense related complaint. The reporting party, Monica Lopez stated her 15 year old daughter, L[redacted], told her on Saturday (06/25/2022) that on Thursday (06/23/2022), a boy named Jeremiah Copeland, was making advances towards her. Jeremiah is 17 years old. Monica told me L[redacted] said Jeremiah had groped her and tried to kiss her. Monica stated she would have to talk with her daughter about moving forward with an official investigation because she was currently on the fence about it. Monica informed me she would let me know by the evening of 06/27/2022. I provided her with my contact information. It was agreed upon that if I did not hear back from her by then, her daughter had made the decision to not move forward.

On 06/27/2022, I saw an email from Monica stating her daughter would like to move forward. We agreed to meet at their residence, located at [redacted].

On arrival, I made contact with Monica. I activated my BWC and informed her the interaction would be audio and video recorded. Monica gave me permission to enter her residence where I met L[redacted]. I also advised L[redacted] the interaction would be audio and video recorded. We sat at the dining room table as L[redacted] told me what happened.

L[redacted] stated, on Thursday (06/23/2022), she was at a close family friend's house, Stephanie Johnson, whom she referred to as her aunt. She was there roughly between 1630-2245 hours. Stephanie lives at [redacted]. L[redacted] said she was there hanging out for the evening. Stephanie was not present; however, Stephanie's two kids and her boyfriend, Juan Izaguirre, were there. Stephanie's oldest son, B[redacted] D[redacted] (no other information provided), is around L[redacted]'s age. L[redacted] refers to B[redacted] as her cousin. B[redacted] is also friends with Jeremiah. All three of them attend(ed) Oak Harbor High School. Per L[redacted], Jeremiah lives at [redacted], with his mom and siblings. L[redacted] stated she and Jeremiah used to date between 2020-2021. L[redacted] said they no longer date and are not romantically involved.

L[redacted] stated Jeremiah was invited over by B[redacted]. She continued saying throughout the evening, Jeremiah would try to get close to her or get her attention but she would ignore him and/or walk away. L[redacted] said sometime after dinner, L[redacted] found herself in the living room alone with Jeremiah. She said B[redacted] had gone up to his room for a bit to be alone. L[redacted] said she was laying down on the couch on her side when Jeremiah came over and stood next to her. She said she tried to ignore him and pretend like she was tired and trying to sleep. She said Jeremiah leaned over her and began trying to kiss her. She said she felt his hand slide between her legs and begin to grope her "private area." L[redacted] said she was wearing shorts and a t-shirt. L[redacted] said she kept moving his hand away. She stated she told him "no." She said she felt disgusted. She told me she didn't want him to touch her and "didn't want it." She told me she didn't like him like that. She said she knew he could tell she didn't him to touch her.

During this, L[redacted] said Jeremiah told her his mom said he needed to go back home. L[redacted] said Jeremiah was stalling because she knew, without him saying it, he wanted her to get up and walk him home. L[PII - Minor] said, in the past, when they dated, she would walk with him or walk him to the door. L[PII - Minor] said she didn't want to do that. L[PII - Minor] said after Jeremiah continued to keep touching her, even after her many attempts to stop him, she felt the easiest and quickest way for this to end was to walk him to the front door so he could leave. L[PII - Minor] said she "finally gave in" by getting up and walking him to the door. She said at the door, he put his arms around her to hug her, but she refused to give him a hug back. She said she stood there motionless with her hands down by her side. She said Jeremiah then kissed her on the lips. She said she didn't kiss back and didn't have a desire to do so. She said he continued to try and kiss her more. She said she didn't feel like she could get away and wanted to do whatever she had to do to get him to leave. She said at one point, she even kissed him back and told him to leave already.

L[PII - Minor] said B[PII - Minor] happened to walk back downstairs during this time and walked out with Jeremiah. L[PII - Minor] said she didn't think B[PII - Minor] saw anything that happened.

While recounting what happened, L[PII - Minor] appeared upset and irritated with Jeremiah's behavior and what he had been doing. She also used words, such as "ewww" and "disgusted." L[PII - Minor] made it clear she did not like Jeremiah and she did not want to be around him, let alone to be alone with him.

L[PII - Minor] completed a written and signed statement form regarding the above. L[PII - Minor]'s written statement reflects the above with one addition. While at the door with Jeremiah, L[PII - Minor] stated Jeremiah told her "don't pretend to be sick" while he was trying to kiss her, indicating L[PII - Minor] was using that as an excuse to not kiss Jeremiah back.

Prior to ending the contact, I left Monica and L[PII - Minor] with a business card, which held the case number.

Please forward to detectives for further investigation and interviews.

End of report.

I certify (or declare) under penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of Washington that the foregoing is true and correct.

I am a law enforcement officer with the Oak Harbor Police Department, and I have electronically prepared and submitted this statement to a court or prosecutor from an electronic device that is owned, issued, or maintained by a criminal justice agency.

Oak Harbor Police Department Officers Report

Officer: A. SCELZI 4028
Case/Incident Number:

22-o06199

On the 29th of June 2022, I was assigned this case.

On the 30th of June 2022, I contacted Monica Lopez (DOB: PII) by phone. I confirmed her daughter L[redacted] L[redacted] (DOB: PII) was willing to do a forensic interview.

On the 11th of July 2022, L[redacted] arrived for her interview with Child Forensic Interviewer Ms. Long, which I attended via Zoom.

L[redacted] said she was inappropriately touched without her consent. L[redacted] said on a Thursday (06/23/2022) at around 1300 her brother dropped her off at her mom's best friend's house, who she also calls her aunt and who was identified as Stephanie Johnson (DOB: PII). L[redacted] remembered the number of the house being "PII." L[redacted] said Stephanie's boyfriend Juan "Izzy" Izaguirre (DOB: PII) and her sons B[redacted], C[redacted], J[redacted], and A[redacted] were at the house. L[redacted] said they were all hanging out in the backyard when Jeremiah Copeland (DOB: PII) messaged her on SnapChat asking if he should come over. L[redacted] remembered not really giving him an answer. L[redacted] said Jeremiah lives at the house across the street. Jeremiah was playing basketball and waved to B[redacted], who asked him to come over and then they played a game. L[redacted] said she was not supposed be around Jeremiah because of something in the past.

L[redacted] explained she and Jeremiah dated in the Summer of 2020 and they dated on and off until Fall of 2021. L[redacted] said Jeremiah was toxic and he would cheat on her. L[redacted] said they really only hung out when she went over to Stephanie's house. L[redacted] said they did not have a sexual relationship. She explained that at the end of Summer 2021 the relationship ended when she went to a sport event, saw him with a girl, took a picture of them, sent it to him and blocked him on everything. L[redacted] said she added him on SnapChat a week before the current incident because he was interacting with her on social media. She explained she decided to add him because she was bored and got out of a relationship a month prior. L[redacted] said, "I'm just going to do whatever I want basically, like add whoever I want, talk to whatever I want, kind-type of like mindset with like boys." L[redacted] said her messages to him were mad at first and Jeremiah wanted to apologize for the past. L[redacted] confirmed she did not feel like they were back together.

L[redacted] said during the time they were hanging out, B[redacted] was on the phone and B[redacted] went away from the area where L[redacted] and Jeremiah sitting. L[redacted] said she could tell he was talking to his mom because of the tone he was using. L[redacted] could hear B[redacted] say, "I don't know he just came over. He is just hanging out here with L[redacted]." Then L[redacted] received an imessage from her mother asking why Jeremiah was there because she is not supposed to be around him and told her to not give Jeremiah the intention that she wanted to be friends again. L[redacted] explained that there was an incident where Jeremiah recorded a sexual encounter with another girl without consent and as a result L[redacted] wasn't supposed to be around him.

L[redacted] said they were all hanging out and nothing was really happening and they went into the second living room after being outside. L[PII - Minor] explained the "littlest" kids were playing a game. L[PII - Minor] said she was sitting on the floor and Jeremiah was sitting behind her playing the game. Right after that, they had dinner that Izzy made, L[PII - Minor] laid down on the couch, and then they went upstairs where B[PII - Minor] was and the little kids were screaming. Jeremiah also went upstairs. Izzy told them that Stephanie doesn't want them upstairs so they came back downstairs. L[PII - Minor] laid back down on the couch. Everyone was there for a little bit but then B[PII - Minor] left and Izzy went into his room.

L[PII - Minor] explained the "littlest" kids were on the loveseat couch watching a movie and she was on the long couch with Jeremiah next to her. L[PII - Minor] said Jeremiah put his hands on her thighs and knees and she demonstrated a "petting" motion. L[PII - Minor] said she would push them way. L[PII - Minor] said she was "kind of grossed out" and she knew what he had done in the past so she wasn't comfortable with it. L[PII - Minor] said that he didn't really say anything but he does a grin that is "evil." L[PII - Minor] then messaged her brother telling him to come get her. L[PII - Minor] said she then laid down facing the pillows on the couch with her body balled up with her knees up against her because she was tired. L[PII - Minor] said that Jeremiah still had his hand on her thigh. Jeremiah then said he had to leave and she said "bye." Jeremiah told her to walk him to the door and she said no and said she didn't want to because she knows where that goes. She stated when they dated he would have her walk him to the door to kiss and hug him goodbye. Jeremiah then came behind her and crouched over her. Jeremiah begged her to walk him to the door. As Jeremiah was begging L[PII - Minor], he touched her over her shorts between her thighs from behind her. L[PII - Minor] explained through hand gestures and verbally that the part of her body Jeremiah touched is the front part of her vagina, outer lip, near where you pee. L[PII - Minor] said doctors would say vagina but she views the vagina as the whole not the top area and calls this her "private area." L[PII - Minor] said when his hand was on her "private area" his hand would rub and his other hand was probably on top of the couch. L[PII - Minor] said she continued to lay there. L[PII - Minor] said about four times she moved his hand off her and she demonstrated grabbing his hand and moving it way. L[PII - Minor] said she felt shocked and grossed out. She advised she said "stop" and he kept doing it so she decided to walk him to the door. L[PII - Minor] said that if she did not walk Jeremiah to the door he would go further with it and continue to be more into it and could have lead somewhere else and she explained maybe he would try to go "inside."

L[PII - Minor] walked Jeremiah to the door and said, "okay bye." Jeremiah wouldn't leave and he said, "oh you're not so slick." Then Jeremiah hugged her and she kept her hands at her side not hugging him at all and he kissed her and she did not kiss back at all. L[PII - Minor] said that he kept kissing her on her lips and so she kissed him back once so he would leave, but he didn't leave and was still holding onto her. L[PII - Minor] said he had his arms over her so she couldn't get out of that in that moment. L[PII - Minor] told him that her brother was almost there and her family doesn't really like him and so he needed to go. Jeremiah said that is because of all the stuff L[PII - Minor] has told them about him. L[PII - Minor] replied by asking him, "the stuff I tell them or the stuff you do because last time I checked..." and then she walked away but Jeremiah had a grip on her hand. B[PII - Minor] came down the stairs and that is when Jeremiah let go of her hand. Then she went to go sit back in the living room. Jeremiah left after B[PII - Minor] said bye to Jeremiah. L[PII - Minor] said she waited on the couch until her brother came.

L[PII - Minor] advised she went home around 2100. L[PII - Minor] said she didn't really think anything about it because she thought it was okay. She messaged Jeremiah on SnapChat and told him she didn't like that he tried to kiss her when she didn't want to or hug her when she told him not to. She expressed how he touched her without her consent and how she didn't understand how he didn't get the hint she didn't want that when she was pushing him away and saying stop. L[PII - Minor] advised she blocked him that night. L[PII - Minor] said she does not have the SnapChat messages with Jeremiah because she un-added him.

L[PII - Minor] said her mother got home late that night. L[PII - Minor] told her mother and she was "not really freaking out about it..." L[PII - Minor]'s mother asked her what she wanted to do about it and L[PII - Minor] replied, "nothing really..." and explained, "I still thought that it was okay basically cause I didn't really think anything about it." Then she went to bed.

The next day her father called her and was crying and telling her he was sorry he couldn't protect her. Her father kept telling her it was not okay and people like that need to know it is not okay. L[PII - Minor] said that she realized she wanted to do something about it.

On the 26th of July 2022, I contacted Stephanie and set up and interview for the 1st of August 2022 at 1000 with her oldest son B[PII - Minor] D[PII - Minor] (DOB: [PII - Minor]) who may have witnessed the incident. I also contacted Monica by phone and kept her updated on where I was at with the case.

On the 1st of August 2022, I interviewed Stephanie's son B[PII - Minor] at the Oak Harbor Police Department. B[PII - Minor] advised he was here to talk about something that happened to a family friend in the summer about a week after school ended. B[PII - Minor] said L[PII - Minor] L[PII - Minor] told him Jeremiah Copeland forced a kiss on her. B[PII - Minor] said I[PII - Minor] was over at his house. Then later B[PII - Minor] mentioned how Jeremiah was at the basketball courts, but then joined them at his house and they were all hanging out in the backyard. L[PII - Minor] came outside to watch and "time flew by." B[PII - Minor], Jeremiah, and L[PII - Minor] walked in the house and put on the movie Rush Hour 2. B[PII - Minor] said he went to get snacks out of the pantry and saw L[PII - Minor] on the couch laying down. Jeremiah had his left hand on L[PII - Minor]'s right shoulder and was leaning over her and his right hand leaning on the couch arm rest. L[PII - Minor] was on her left side and Jeremiah was leaning over. B[PII - Minor] said he didn't think anything of it because of the "giggling." They watched a majority of the movie, only twenty-five minutes were left. B[PII - Minor] said during the movie Jeremiah moved and began to sit on L[PII - Minor]'s legs. L[PII - Minor] was going through TicTok and they were all laughing. B[PII - Minor] said everything seemed fine but now looking back seemed slightly uncomfortable. B[PII - Minor] said that L[PII - Minor] was laughing and smiling but then sometimes seemed out of it by starring off into the screen and didn't respond to prompts. B[PII - Minor] described L[PII - Minor] as "smiling but with worried eyebrows." B[PII - Minor] said that L[PII - Minor] was "scooching" away from Jeremiah. B[PII - Minor] said that his brothers C[PII - Minor] and A[PII - Minor] were upstairs, C[PII - Minor] kept going up and down, but J[PII - Minor] was in front of the Xbox. B[PII - Minor] went upstairs because he was bored and thirty minutes later Jeremiah went upstairs and said goodbye. B[PII - Minor] walked downstairs and opened the door and Jeremiah left. B[PII - Minor] did not mention seeing Jeremiah holding L[PII - Minor]'s hand.

On the 27th of October 2022, I contacted Rochelle Brown the mother of Jeremiah. She stated after she talked to me the first time her son said the mom's boyfriend (Izzy) was there and was present the whole time. Rochelle knows the girl from going over to the neighbor's house, but didn't know her name. Rochelle said that she knows the girl was talking to her son and sending nudes over SnapChat unprovoked and she is friends with K[PII - Minor] who was involved in the other situation with Jeremiah.

On the 31st of October 2022, I interviewed Jeremiah at his residence with his mother present. I asked Jeremiah to tell me what happened between him and L[PII - Minor] L[PII - Minor] about a week after school ended this summer. Jeremiah explained that he went over to Stephanie's house. Jeremiah explained he has a good relationship with B[PII - Minor] and can go over and walk in. Jeremiah said at one point a movie was on. Jeremiah said B[PII - Minor] and the rest of Stephanie's kids where there. He said he was on the couch with L[PII - Minor]. Jeremiah said at one point his head may have been on her shoulders and her leg was over his thighs. I asked if this was usual when they hung out and he said sometimes, but it didn't go farther than that. I asked if anything else physical happened. Jeremiah said he didn't think so on the couch. Jeremiah said they were eating and after they ate and he pushed his dishes into the sink, he asked L[PII - Minor] if she wanted to walk him to the door and she replied, "I guess." Jeremiah said when they were at the door he hugged her and went in for a kiss and she moved out of the way and that was it. Jeremiah said they were texting and she was "leading him on" and he went in for a kiss and then she acted weird about it. When I asked if anyone else was around, Jeremiah mentioned that he believes C[PII - Minor] was in the first living room on the couch.

I asked Jeremiah if L[PII - Minor] contacted him after and he said yes but it was on SnapChat and he did not have the messages because she blocked him. Jeremiah said he remembers her texting him and that she mentioned how she didn't want him to kiss her. Jeremiah responded to me by saying nonchalantly, "oh okay, like just alright." Jeremiah confirmed he and L[PII - Minor] used to "talk" and that they did not have a sexual relationship but that she would send him nudes.

Jeremiah explained they were no longer "talking" but she added him on SnapChat and messaged him saying, "I know what you and B[PII - Minor] did to K[PII - Minor]," accusing him referring to the incident with K[PII - Minor] B[PII - Minor] and B[PII - Minor] G[PII - Minor]. Jeremiah said that he got over it and he interpreted their relationship as good. Jeremiah said that after L[PII - Minor] re-added him on SnapChat she was sending him unsolicited nude photographs and telling him that she wanted to be "fucked," but advised he did not have those messages. I asked Jeremiah why he thought L[PII - Minor] was sending him nudes and he said he was not sure and probably that she was horny. I asked Jeremiah why someone would say something non-consensual happened on the couch. Jeremiah said L[PII - Minor] is friends with K[PII - Minor] and it might have been a "set up."

At this time I am closing this case due to lack of physical evidence or independent witnesses

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN JAELEN OWENS, USN

1. As background, on 26Jul24 NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75) was notified by MA1 Ronald CORTESELLI, USN, CVN 75, of an unrestricted reported of sexual assault aboard the ship that occurred on 23Jul24 at approximately 0200 hours. MA1 CORTESELLI reported [redacted]V/C.R.[redacted], USN, CVN 75, reported CSSN Jermiah Taylor COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, grabbed her vulva, breasts, and buttocks over the clothing while applying pressure to her neck so that it was difficult for her to breathe. During the course of the investigation, CSSN Jaelen OWENS, USN, CVN 75, was identified as having information in reference to the investigation.

2. On 16Aug24 at approximately 1430 hours, CSSN OWENS was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) and MAC Adam NORMAN, USN, CVN 75, aboard the CVN 75, while at sea in compartment 02-88-4-Q.

3. CSSN OWENS stated he was approached by S/COPELAND approximately two (2) months prior to the interview date, and S/COPELAND related CSSN Fernando CUESTABRAVO, USN, CVN 75, had "put a case on" him (S/COPELAND) for an incident with CSSN CUESTABRAVO's girlfriend. CSSN OWENS stated S/COPELAND did not elaborate and CSSN OWENS did not ask any further questions. CSSN OWENS related S/COPELAND advised him not to speak with CSSN CUESTABRAVO any longer because CSSN CUESTABRAVO "snitched" on him. In the past, CSSN OWENS stated S/COPELAND told him CSSN CUESTABRAVO's girlfriend was "feeling on" S/COPELAND and "leading him on." CSSN OWENS could not recall the name of CSSN CUESTABRAVO's girlfriend but stated CSSN CUESTABRAVO was always around her.

4. CSSN OWENS stated following that interaction, he was approached by CSSN CUESTABRAVO disclosed to CSSN OWENS that S/COPELAND had smacked his girlfriend's buttocks and "sexually harassed" her.

Interpreting Call Detail Records

T-Mobile produces Call Detail Records (CDR), either with or without location information, in an Excel file containing multiple rows. The file includes both voice and message transactions. Each row represents one transaction on the T-Mobile network. Not all rows appear on every report. Some fields only appear in reports with location information.

Calls to 911 and calls made while roaming do not appear on this report.

T-Mobile generally retains details of all network-originated voice transactions for 24 months. As of February 2020, T-Mobile retains the metadata for certain types of 4G/LTE based text messages (SMSc and RCS) for only 22 months. If your records contain details older than 22 months from the date of production, these messages may not appear on the report.

Calls to Voicemail - Entries with outgoing calls to 8056377249 or numbers ending in 9999 indicate incoming calls forwarded (out) to the voicemail system. Calls forwarded to voicemail can also be identified using the Service Code column. The associated incoming call may or may not be captured. Entries with outgoing calls to 8056377243 = 805-MESSAGE indicate voicemail retrieval.

Timestamp - Please remember that T-Mobile systems natively use Coordinated Universal Time (UTC). Accordingly, the timestamps on these transactions appear as 00:00:01 to 23:59:59 UTC. T-Mobile is unable to convert these records to a different time zone. If you require records not captured in this response, please submit a new legal request that includes a description of records with the date/time adjusted for UTC.

Please note that T-Mobile network usage records may include 15- and 16-digit variants of an IMEI number. The first 14 digits are a conclusive match to the target IMEI.

Archived Records - If your legal request sought records older than 24 months, responsive records may include archived bill images. The timestamps on archive bill images vary depending on the legacy network for the subscriber and the type of transaction (i.e. voice, SMS). Due to these variations, and the static nature of the reprints, T-Mobile is not able to convert transactions on bill images to a particular time zone.

Set forth below are tips to help you understand data/information that is unique to the CDR_Quantum 5G report:

The retention of the CDR_Quantum records is nine months.

Both LTE and 5G usage will appear on the CDR_Quantum 5G report.

The duration times differ between a record appearing on the CDR_Mediations and CDR_Quantum reports because the information provided is sourced from various T-Mobile data collections. The CDR_Mediations source measures the duration based on the device's activity from start to finish. The CDR_Quantum source measures duration based on network activity.

Set forth below are tips to help you understand data/information that is unique to the Splunk SMS report:

This Supplemental Response includes the content of certain messages retained in connection with T-Mobile's Scam/Spam prevention efforts. The retention period for these messages is approximately 30 days. This retention period is subject to change based on business needs.

T-Mobile produces Scam/Spam message content in an Excel file containing four columns

- Date/Time Sent (PST) – Reflected in Pacific Standard Time. (T-Mobile is unable to convert these records into a different time zone. If you require records not captured in this response, please submit a new legal request that includes an adjusted date/time).
- Sending MSISDN – Telephone number of the sender.
- Recipient MSISDN – Telephone number of the intended recipient.
- Message content – Body of the message sent.

The messages produced consist of messages that were "sent". T-Mobile does not store data that would indicate whether the messages in the report were actually delivered.

Below is a description of columns that may be present in the report you received.

A NOTE ON AZIMUTH: The azimuth listed is the center compass degree facing of the identified sector of the tower. Generally, a tower's coverage is circular and divided into three equal pieces (each 120 degrees wide). Due north is 0, due south is 180. However, not every tower is aligned with the first sector starting at 0. Using the listed azimuth, rough direction from the tower can be calculated for a call. The center degree of the sector's facing is indicated in this field. For example, if a facing has a listed orientation of 90, the center of the coverage is pointed at 90 degrees, but the sector will cover traffic from roughly 60 degrees on either side (thus 30 to 150 degrees in this example).

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
[redacted]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF S/COPELAND

1. As background, on 26Jul24 NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75) was notified by MA1 Ronald CORTESELLI, USN, CVN 75, of an unrestricted reported of sexual assault aboard the ship that occurred on 23Jul24 at approximately 0200 hours. MA1 CORTESELLI reported [redacted], USN, CVN 75, reported CSSN Jermiah Taylor COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, grabbed her vulva, breasts, and buttocks over the clothing while applying pressure to her neck so that it was difficult for her to breathe.

2. On 16Aug24 at approximately 2130 hours, S/COPELAND was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) and MAC Adam NORMAN, USN, CVN 75, aboard CVN 75, while at sea in compartment 02-88-4-Q.

3. The interview was audio and video recorded in its entirety utilizing the CaseCracker system. This report serves as a synopsis of the interview and does not necessarily describe the information in the order in which it was discussed. For a verbatim account, please refer to the digital recording; Enclosure (A) pertains.

4. Prior to being interviewed, S/COPELAND was advised of, and waived, his Article 31b Rights utilizing a Military Rights Waiver form; Enclosure (B) pertains.

5. S/COPELAND stated he and [redacted] saw each other on the mess decks at night on approximately 23Jul24, and went to speak in the area of the fantail aboard the ship. S/COPELAND denied he messaged [redacted] to coordinate the meeting. S/COPELAND stated [redacted] wanted to talk about her boyfriend CSSN Fernando CUESTABRAVO, USN, CVN 75. S/COPELAND stated [redacted] disclosed CSSN CUESTABRAVO does not treat her well and cheating on her, and she asked for his advice concerning their relationship.

6. S/COPELAND recalled the two were "flirting," but emphatically denied he was romantically or sexually interested in [redacted]. S/COPELAND stated while they were talking, he was sitting in a chair and she was sitting on the deck. S/COPELAND asked her why she was sitting on the ground and told her to sit with him in his chair. S/COPELAND stated she put her hand up so he could help her up, and he attempted to pick her up by her arms without touching any other part of her body. Following the contact S/COPELAND recalled giving [redacted] a hug and related [redacted] hugged him back. S/COPELAND stated he got close to [redacted] with his face close to her face, but denied trying to kiss her. S/COPELAND stated after talking for approximately an hour, the two left the fantail and went to their berthings separately. S/COPELAND denied touching V/C.R. anywhere else on her body.

7. When asked directly if S/COPELAND strangled V/C.R., S/COPELAND stated "oh okay yeah I have but it wasn't in like a weird way," and stated he put one hand around her neck without applying any pressure after she pinched his arm. When asked directly if S/COPELAND ever told V/C.R. he heard she liked to be choked, S/COPELAND admitted he did. S/COPELAND continued to deny applying pressure to V/C.R.' neck, touching her intimate areas, or attempting to kiss her. S/COPELAND directly denied ever telling V/C.R. she should have sex with him to "get back" at CSSN CUESTABRAVO.

8. S/COPELAND opined V/C.R. falsely reported the incident as a sexual assault because CSSN CUESTABRAVO wanted to "get back at" S/COPELAND for talking to V/C.R..

9. At the conclusion of the interview, circa 2300, S/COPELAND was turned over to command representative CSC James MUGWE, USN, USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75).

DNA Report

USACIL: 25-ATL-00931
Request: 0007_0003

To SPECIAL AGENT IN CHARGE
NFFO NCIS NORFOLK FIELD OFFICE
1329 BELLINGER BLVD
BLDG U-40
Norfolk, VA 23511

Date of Report: 09 December 2025
Agency Case Number: 01JUN25-NFNF-00237
Service: DNA

RESULTS OF EXAMINATION

The following results are opinions and interpretations formed using accepted scientific and professional practices. Only those exhibits below were examined for this report. Selection of the item(s) and the examination(s) conducted were based on the information available at the time of the request. If the investigative needs change, please contact USACIL at USACILCM@army.mil or 404-469-5150.

1. This report references the previous DNA Reports dated:

   10 June 2025
   05 August 2025
   15 August 2025
   20 October 2025.

2. No blood was identified on the following Exhibits:

   Exhibit 89 (Apple watch/COPELAND)
   Exhibit 90.1 (flat sheet/SCENE-COPELAND DESK)
   Exhibit 91.1 (mattress cover/SCENE-COPELAND BED)
   Exhibit 91.2 (fitted sheet/SCENE-COPELAND BED).

3. No stains indicative of blood were observed on Exhibit 91.3 (blanket/SCENE-COPELAND BED) or Exhibit 92 (mattress cover/SCENE-MONAGHAN BED).

4. Trace evidence was collected and preserved from Exhibit 91.2 by a trained individual resulting in Exhibit 91.2.1. Trace evidence, including but not limited to hairs, fibers, and other miscellaneous debris, may be present within the collected material.

5. DNA extraction procedures were performed on the following:

   Exhibit 89.1 (swab of Apple watch/COPELAND)
   Exhibit 90.1 (stain 2 flat sheet/SCENE-COPELAND DESK)
   Exhibit 90.1 (stain 4 flat sheet/SCENE-COPELAND DESK).

6. A DNA mixture was detected from the swab of Apple watch/COPELAND.

ANAB ANSI National Accreditation Board ACCREDITED ISO/IEC 17025 FORENSIC TESTING LABORATORY

This report may not be reproduced except in full without written permission of the laboratory.

Controlled by: USACIL
Controlled by: CIDD-CIL
CUI Category: LEI/PRVCY
Limited Dissemination Control: FEDCON
POC: Records Custodian, 404-469-5150

a. The mixture is interpreted as originating from three individuals.

b. Assuming COPELAND, V/ A. R. is included as a contributor to the mixture.

c. This mixed DNA profile is at least 1.0 quintillion times more likely if it originated from COPELAND, V/ A. R. and an unknown individual than if it originated from COPELAND and two unknown individuals.

d. The remaining partial minor contributor cannot be conclusively interpreted due to an insufficient amount of DNA detected.

e. CALISSE, GILLESPIE, GORDILLOCRUZ, MONAGHAN, RICH and WILLIAMS are excluded from the interpretable results from this mixture.

7. No DNA profile foreign to COPELAND was detected from stain 2 flat sheet/SCENE-COPELAND DESK or stain 4 flat sheet/SCENE-COPELAND DESK.

8. No DNA profiles were eligible for submission to CODIS (Combined DNA Index System).

TECHNICAL NOTES

1. DNA profiles were detected using PCR (polymerase chain reaction) technology on twenty-one autosomal STR (short tandem repeat) loci, two Y-chromosome loci (DYS391, Y-indel) and a gender identification locus from the Applied Biosystems GlobalFiler kit.

2. The autosomal STR statistical calculations in this report were generated using STRmix™ software which calculates a fully continuous probabilistic likelihood ratio (LR). Unless otherwise noted, the most conservative LR was reported using the lower bound 99% credible interval from unrelated individuals in the U.S. Caucasian, Black, and Hispanic population groups. The population allele frequencies were obtained from the NIST 1036 U.S. Population Dataset.

A likelihood ratio is a measure of the strength of support that particular findings give to one proposition against a stated alternative, given certain conditioning information. For these reported likelihood ratios, the propositions and conditioning information were based on data from these results and current case circumstances. If any aspects of the case should change or new information is provided regarding these propositions and conditioning information, then the evaluation of these results to include the likelihood ratio may change. This will be the subject of a separate report.

The reported statistical calculation for an association will be capped at 1.0 quintillion. The actual calculated value may be higher, but not less than this number, which is equivalent to the laboratory's minimum statistical threshold.

This report may not be reproduced except in full without written permission of the laboratory.

All information related to this matter is controlled unclassified information (law enforcement sensitive) and should be restricted. Any premature release of case-sensitive information could jeopardize the investigation and affect successful prosecution . This information is protected by the Privacy Act. By law and regulation, it may not be disclosed to any person or organization outside the Department of Defense without the individual's authorization and prior approval of the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Division.

DISPOSITION OF EVIDENCE

Unless otherwise noted, evidence received in this case will be returned according to laboratory policy. Items may have been altered to take samples required for examination or to recover materials from the item. If recovered evidence was collected and preserved during laboratory examinations, the material is being returned with the item from which it originated.

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF EXPERT CONSULTANTS 22 DECEMBER 2025

1. Statement of the Case.

The charge and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed four motions seeking the production of an expert consultant in Pathology,[1] an expert Mitigation Specialist,[2] an expert consultant in memory and human reaction,[3] and an expert in sexual sadistic behavior,[4] respectively. The Government responded with a single filing on 5 December 2025[5] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 10 December 2025.

2. Burden.

As the moving party, the defense bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence.[6]

[1] Appellate Exhibit (AE) X.
[2] AE XIV.
[3] AE XXIV.
[4] AE XXVI.
[5] AE IX.
[6] Rule for Court Martial (R.C.M.) 905(c).

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

Facts Related to Production of Expert Consultant in Pathology

a. On 9 June 2025, the remains of CS3 A.R. were found in a secluded area of Norfolk. An autopsy was performed on 10 June 2025 by Dr. Fernanda Lameira of the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner.

b. Also on 9 June 2025, CSSN Jermiah Copeland entered pretrial confinement upon being suspected of numerous violations of the UCMJ, including sexual assault and the premeditated murder of CSSN A.R.

c. The autopsy performed by Dr. Lameira resulted in an "undetermined" cause of death. Dr. Lameira has been identified as a Government witness for trial. She testify regarding her medical findings and the conduct of the autopsy.

e. A second private autopsy was performed by Dr. Nemanja Rodic on 28 June 2025. This autopsy concludes the manner of death is "deferred."

f. On 24 October 2025, the Defense requested the assistance of Dr. Priya Banerjee as an expert consultant prior to, and for trial. Dr. Banerjee indicated she could be of assistance in the matter and that her schedule would allow her participation. She also noted that she is already in the federal payment system and has worked with the military before.

g. On 5 November 2025, the Government responded to the Defense request, acknowledging that the assistance of a forensic pathologist was necessary for the Defense, but denied Dr. Banerjee because her fees of $850 per hour "far exceed" a reasonable hourly rate. The Manual of the Judge Advocate General (JAGMAN) section 0146(l) authorizes compensation for experts in line with compensation paid to experts by U.S. Attorneys. The presumptive rate for a medical doctor is between $275 and $400/hour. The Government indicated that they would "assist Defense in finding and adequate substitute for this expert."

h. On 14 November 2025, defense counsel reached out to the Government to determine, among other things, if the Government had identified an adequate substitute for Dr. Banerjee. In response to the request the Government sent a list a forensic pathologists and some limited contact information. The list provided by the Government did not identify any fee structures, resumes, or availability for the proposed substitutes.

i. At the hearing on the motion, the Government conceded that the defense was entitled to an expert consultant in Pathology. The Court ordered the Government to provide an adequate substitute, complete with resume/curriculum vitae, fee structure, and their dates of availability to the defense by 19 December 2025.

j. On 19 December 2025, Government counsel notified the defense and the court that they had identified an adequate substitute, Dr. Matshes.

Facts Related to Production of an Expert Mitigation Specialist

k. The maximum punishment for the violation of Article 118 on its own is life without the possibility of parole. The mandatory minimum for a violation of the charged violation of Article 118 is life with the possibility of parole.

l. On 22 October 2025, the defense submitted a request to the Office of Special Trial Counsel for an expert mitigation specialist. On 5 November 2025, the trial counsel responded to the request denying the request.

Facts Related to Production of an Expert Consultant in Memory and Human Reaction

m. The Accused and CSSN S.S. were both assigned to the USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS and were on a port call in Oslo, Norway on 4 November 2024 and were consuming alcohol together at Heidi's Bier Bar.

n. There are differing accounts from Sailors regarding CSSN S.S.'s level of intoxication, as well as the amount of alcohol consumed by CSSN S.S. Some relay that she seemed very drunk, while others did not believe she appeared overly intoxicated.

o. CSSN J. K. relayed to investigators that she had seen a video of sexual interactions between the Accused and CSSN S.S. on the night it occurred, yet later in the same night CSSN S.S. and the Accused had continued to drink and hang out together before returning to the ship.

p. The Government alleges that the Accused followed CSSN S.S. into a bathroom and proceeded to penetrate her vagina with his penis. CSSN S.S. has no memory of these events, however, other witnesses recalled CSSN S.S. and the Accused enter the bathroom together. CSSN S.S. alleges that her friends later informed her that the Accused had shown them a video of himself and CSSN S.S. having sexual intercourse in the bathroom of Heidi's Bier Bar.

q. One witness informed NCIS agents investigating the allegations that she had seen CSSN S.S. in the same restroom after the incident and she was applying lip gloss and did not exhibit symptoms of being overly intoxicated.

r. CSSN S.S. informed investigators that she did not remember the sexual intercourse, but the following morning she felt "cramps" and her vagina was "swollen."

s. Upon investigation into the unauthorized absence of CS3 A.R. in May and June of 2025, NCIS determined that CS3 A.R. was seen with the Accused on the last morning anyone saw her.

t. FCC Brad Parker saw CS3 A.R. with the Accused on the morning of 29 May 2025 and the Accused's suite mates saw CS3 A.R. with the Accused around 0600 on the morning of 29 May 2025.

u. On 9 June 2025, the remains of CS3 A.R. were located by investigators and a subsequent autopsy resulted in an "undetermined" cause of death.

v. On 24 October 2025, the Defense requested the assistance of Dr. Reagan Wetherill as an expert consultant in forensic psychology, specifically, the psychology surrounding a person's fight or flight response and the effect of alcohol on memory. On 7 November 2025, the Government denied the request, in part, because the defense failed to articulate why their other approved forensic psychologist, Dr. Nameeta Sahni, could not provide the same assistance.

Facts Related to Production of an Expert Consultant in Sexual Sadistic Behavior

w. On 23 July 2024, while onboard USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN 75), ABHAN C.R. and the Accused decided to hang after out and went to the fantail of the ship. While on the fantail, the two carried on a causal conversation until eventually talking about ABHAN C.R.'s boyfriend and her romantic life. The Accused suggested to ABHAN C.R. that she should engage in sexual activity with him to upset her boyfriend, but ABHAN C.R. declined.

x. ABHAN C.R. alleges that the Accused told her he heard that she liked to choked and then strangled her.

y. The medical examiner who conducted CS3 A.R.'s autopsy could not eliminate strangulation as a possible cause of death.

z. On 24 October 2025, the defense submitted a request to the Office of Special Trial counsel to Dr. Jamie Dickson, Psy.D., a sexual sadistic behavior expert, as a consultant and potential witness. The Defense seeks Dr. Dickson to educate members about the normality of strangulation or choking in a sexual manner and to assist with presenting an alternative theory to the Government's claim that the Accused committed the premeditated murder of CS3 A.R.

aa. On 7 November 2025, the trial counsel denied the request.

ab. Additional facts necessary to resolve the issues are included below.

4. Statement of Law.

Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 703(d)(2) provides when the "employment of a Defense expert consultant is considered necessary" the Defense may request government funding for that expert "in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary concerned." Indeed, the requirement that the government provide for expert consultation stems from the Due Process demand that an accused be given the "basic tools" necessary to present a Defense.[7] An accused has a right to the assistance of an expert upon a showing of necessity.[8] In order to determine necessity, courts apply a two-pronged test: "[T]he accused has the burden of establishing that a reasonable probability exists that (1) an expert would be of assistance to the defense and (2) that denial of expert assistance would result in a fundamentally unfair trial."[9] The first prong of that test is demonstrated by satisfying three conditions:

> First, why the expert assistance is needed. Second, what would the expert assistance accomplish for the accused. Third, why is the defense counsel unable to gather and present the evidence that the expert assistant would be able to develop.[10]

The defense is required to show more than a mere possibility of assistance.[11]

With regard to the second prong, a trial is considered fundamentally unfair where the government's actions are "so outrageous that due process principles would absolutely bar the government from invoking judicial processes to obtain a conviction."[12] One factor courts use to determine if a trial would be fundamentally unfair is whether the content of the expert's knowledge is central to the government's case. Where scientific analysis is the "linchpin" of the government's case, the C.A.A.F. held in United States v. McAllister that the denial of an expert by the military judge constitutes an abuse of discretion.[13] On the other hand, where the content of the expert's expertise does not constitute the "linchpin" of the government's case, military courts have readily distinguished McAllister.[14]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

a. Expert Consultant in Pathology

During oral argument on the motion, the Government conceded that the defense was entitled to an expert Pathologist, but rejected the specific expert sought by the defense citing that expert's fee schedule. The court ordered the Government to provide an adequate substitute and on 19 December 2025, the government complied with the court's order and provided the defense with a government funded Pathologist. The Accused is not "entitled to a specific expert of his own choosing."[15] Accordingly, the defense motion for a production of an expert consultant in Pathology is GRANTED and the Government has provided Dr. Matshes; the defense request to compel production of Dr. Banerjee as a defense expert consultant is hereby DENIED.[16]

b. Mitigation Specialist.

The defense argues that employment of a mitigation specialist, specifically Ms. LaValva, is necessary because Ms. LaValva brings years of experience working on criminal sentencing cases and an understanding of mitigating factors and how best to present those to the fact finder. While the defense counsel acknowledge they are experienced litigators, they are not positioned to conduct the in-depth background analysis to present the most effective sentencing case. Given the fact that the Accused faces a potential sentence of confinement without the possibility of parole, the defense avers that employment of Ms. LaValva will "help focus the defense team to areas which may provide the best mitigation evidence[.]"[17] In support of their argument, the defense cites United States v. Kreutzer, where the Army Court of Criminal Appeals found that a military judge abused his discretion in denying a defense request for a mitigation specialist.[18]

Kreutzer, however, is easily distinguishable. First, Kreutzer, was a capital case where the finality of a death sentence requires a "corresponding difference in the reliability in the determination that death is an appropriate sentence."[19] Second, the Kreutzer court recognized that the Accused had critical mental health issues that defense was unable to fully present at trial. Here, there is no suggestion or evidence that the Accused is suffering from a mental defect or disease.

The defense team consists of three experienced defense counsel, including the Deputy Director of the Defense Counsel Assistance Program, a defense litigation support specialist, and a government approved expert consultant in recidivism analysis, Dr. Nameeta Sahni. Dr. Sahni is a forensic psychologist specializing in psychosexual evaluation, sex offender rehabilitation, and recidivism and can assist the defense counsel is presenting a case in mitigation should the Accused be convicted. In addition, gathering and presenting mitigation evidence is a core competency for defense counsel, and the defense has not presented any evidence that this case or this Accused is so unique that expert assistance is required. True enough, the Accused is facing significant charges and significant punishment. The defense correctly points out that should the Accused be convicted of premeditated murder, he faces a maximum punishment of life without the possibility of parole. However, the minimum punishment following such a conviction is life with the possibility of parole. Given that the only discretion the military judge has in sentencing the Accused following a conviction for premeditated murder is a decision with respect to whether to authorize the possibility of parole on the mandatory life sentence, the defense has failed to meet their burden to show why they cannot present the evidence without the mitigation specialist they seek.

Finally, while certainly the addition of Ms. LaValva to the defense team might prove beneficial, that is not the standard. Rather, the defense must show that the denial of her assistance would lead to a fundamentally unfair trial. Given the experience level of the defense counsel and the resources at their disposable, the defense is unable to meet their burden. Accordingly, the defense request to compel production of Ms. LaValva as a defense expert consultant is hereby DENIED.

c. Expert Consultant in Memory and Human Reaction.

With respect to the defense request to employ Dr. Wetherill as an expert on human memory and reaction, the defense argues that expertise is required to assist the defense specifically with respect to Charge I, Specification 3 alleging that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S. when she was incapable of consenting because she was impaired by alcohol; and with respect to the sole Specification of Charge VII, which alleges that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

CSSN S.S. does not remember any sexual encounter with the Accused and may have been "blacked out." Witnesses describe her interactions with the Accused and provide additional details about CSSN S.S. on the night in question that she does not remember. As a result, the defense seeks to employ Dr. Wetherill to fully understand and appreciate the effect of alcohol on CSSN S.S.'s ability to create and retain memories, as well as her ability to perform executive and motor functioning.

With respect to the Dr. Wetherill's expertise in "fight or flight" the defense contends that she can assist the defense understand alternate theories of death and subsequent responses that the Accused might have had which can then explain the attendant extenuating circumstances.

In order to prove that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S. the Government must prove not only that CSSN S.S. was incapable of consenting, but that the Accused reasonable should have known that CSSN S.S. was incapable of consenting. Witnesses saw CSSN S.S. interacting with others at the bar on the night of the alleged sexual assault and CSSN S.S. does not have memories of all those interactions. Thus, her interactions with the Accused and her lack of memory of those interactions, is critical evidence for the defense to explore. An expert in the field of human memory and the effects of alcohol on memory will help the defense understand whether the Accused's perceptions of CSSN S.S. were reasonable. Simply put, whether CSSN S.S. was capable of consenting, and whether or not the Accused should have known that, are "linchpins" in the government's case and Dr. Wetherill's assistance in explaining how alcohol effects memory are necessarily scientific in nature and beyond the expertise of even diligent counsel.

Likewise, Dr. Wetherill's expertise is necessary to assist the defense understand the Accused's psyche and explain why he may have reacted in the manner he's alleged to have acted and taken the actions he's alleged to have taken in the wake of CS3 A.R.'s disappearance. Accordingly, the defense has satisfied their burden and the motion to compel production of Dr. Wetherill as an expert in memory and human reaction is hereby GRANTED.

d. Expert Consultant in Sexual Sadistic Behavior.

The defense contends that employment of Dr. Jamie Dickson, as an expert consultant in Sexual Sadistic Behavior is necessary because the circumstances surrounding the incident with ABHAN C.R. indicate that she "liked to be strangled in a sexual manner[,]"[20] and to defend against a Government theory that the Accused strangled CS3 A.R. Specifically, with respect to the murder charge, the defense claims Dr. Dickson is necessary to assist the defense in developing and presenting an alternative theory to the Government's claim that the Accused committed the premeditated murder of CS3 A.R; that Dr. Dickson can explain that strangulation as a sexual kink is normal and that there is a possibility of unintentional deaths during sex.

In response, the Government argues that there is simply no evidentiary basis for this sexual-behavior expertise; that there is no evidence that any of the Accused's alleged victims had any predilection for sexual choking.

First, the court agrees that there has been no evidence that either ABHAN C.R. or CS3 A.R. liked to be choked or otherwise engaged in any sort of sado-masochistic behavior. The defense's theory relies solely on the Accused's statement to ABHAN C.R. that he heard she liked to be choked. That the Accused would make that statement, however, says something about his own sexual interests. This becomes more important when coupled with the other evidence the Government seeks to introduce in this case. The Accused is charged with strangling ABHAN C.R. at or near the same time he is alleged to have committed an aggravated sexual contact against her; and he is charged with strangling an intimate partner, CSSN S.R. Further, the last time anyone saw CS3 A.R., she was laying partially naked with the Accused, and the Government's stated theory is that the Accused strangled CS3 A.R. Given the Accused's statement to ABHAN C.R. and his history of strangling female love interests,[21] the defense has met their burden to show that production of Dr. Dickson as a defense expert in sadistic sexual behavior is necessary. Accordingly, the motion defense motion with respect to Dr. Dickson is hereby GRANTED.

[20] AE XXVI at 3.
[21] Notably, the Government seeks to introduce evidence pursuant to Military Rule of Evidence 404(b) that the Accused strangled ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.R. to prove a common scheme, motive, and intent to strangle CS3 A.R. See AE XIX at 1-2.

6. Ruling.

The Defense Motion to Compel Production of Expert Consultants, as detailed herein, is hereby GRANTED in part, and DENIED in part.

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION TO DISMISS (FAILURE TO STATE AN OFFENSE) 8 JANUARY 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed a motion to dismiss Charge VII and its sole specification alleging it failed to state an offense.[1] The Government responded on 5 December 2025[2] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 10 December 2025.

2. Burden.

The Defense, as the moving party, bears the burden to prove facts necessary to resolve the motion by a preponderance of the evidence.[3]

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

[1] Appellate Exhibit (AE) XXXVIII.
[2] AE L.
[3] Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 905(c).

a. In Charge VII and the sole specification thereunder, CSSN Copeland is charged with violating Article 118 (Premeditated Murder):

> In that Culinary Specialist Seaman Jermiah T. Copeland, U.S. Navy, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95), on active duty, did, at or near Norfolk, Virginia, on or about 29 May 2025, with premeditation, murder CS3 A.R., U.S. Navy, by means of an act of the Accused.

b. On 15 October 2025, the defense requested a bill of particulars.

c. On 5 November 2025, the government provided a response to the defense's request explaining that it "is not required to prove a specific act caused CS3 A.R's death." But the Government did outline that it intended to "present evidence that CS3 A.R.'s death was consistent with strangulation by the Accused," including evidence as separately detailed and noticed under M.R.E. 404(b).

d. The remains of CS3 A.R. were extremely decayed upon recovery after her body was found in the woods after she had missing for several days. A conclusive manner of murder has not been identified.

4. Statement of Law.

The military is a notice pleading jurisdiction.[4] Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 307(c)(3) states that a specification must "allege[ ] every element of the charged offense expressly or by necessary implication." A charge is sufficient if it "contains the elements of the offense charged and fairly informs a defendant of the charge against which he must defend" and "enables him to plead an acquittal or conviction in bar of future prosecutions for the same offense."[5] Therefore, a specification must: (1) allege every element of the charged offense expressly or by necessary implication; and (2) protect the accused from double jeopardy.[6]

"It is axiomatic that in determining the scope of a statute, [courts] look first to its language."[7] Although the President "has the power to prescribe regulations for trial procedures, including modes of proof, for cases arising under the UCMJ," that power does not extend to Part IV of the Manual for Courts-Martial (M.C.M.) and thus courts are not bound by the President's interpretation of the elements of substantive offenses.[8] "However, when the President's narrowing construction of a statute does not contradict the express language of a statute, it is entitled to some deference, and [courts] will not normally disturb that construction."[9]

Article 118(1) of the Uniform Code of Military Justice (U.C.M.J.) states: "Any person subject to this chapter who, without justification or excuse, unlawfully kills a human being, when such person has a premeditated design to kill is guilty of murder[.]"[10] In paragraph 56(b)(1) of the M.C.M., the President prescribed the following elements for premeditated murder:

(a) That a certain named or described person is dead;
(b) That the death resulted from the act or omission of the accused;
(c) That the killing was unlawful; and
(d) That, at the time of the killing, the accused had a premeditated design to kill.

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

The defense argues that the sole specification of Charge VII fails to state an offense because the specification fails to allege what specific act by the Accused caused CS3 A.R.'s death. Failing to identify the specific act, the defense argues, deprives the Accused of his Constitutionally required notice. In support of this argument, the defense relies on United States v. Richard, an opinion from the United States Coast Guard Court of Criminal Appeals.[11] In that case, Petty Officer Richard was charged with intentional murder but convicted by the members of the lesser included offense of involuntary manslaughter, after the military judge instructed the members that "involuntary manslaughter was a lesser included offense of the intentional murder specification and required proof that [the victim's] death resulted from the act of the accused by asphyxia."[12] The court held that simply alleging "by asphyxia" failed to provide the Accused proper notice because "asphyxia" describes a medical cause of death and "not what, if any, act or omission by another human actor may have brought that about."[13] In short, a person could die from asphyxia totally unrelated to any act or omission done by another person. Accordingly, the Coast Guard court held that the specification failed to state an offense because it did not allege any act or omission on the part of that Accused.

The defense argument is unpersuasive. Put simply, the statutory elements of premeditated murder in this case are that the Accused 1) without justification or excuse; 2) unlawfully killed CS3 A.R.; and 3) when he had a premeditated design to kill. The Sole Specification of Charge VII alleges each of those elements.

But even applying the descriptive elements provided by the President, which includes as an element that the death resulted from an act or omission of the Accused, the defense argument still fails. First, the specification at issue here is markedly different than the one in Richard. Unlike the specification in Richard, the Sole Specification of Charge VII does, in fact, allege by necessary implication that CS3 A.R.'s death resulted from the act of the Accused; specifically alleging that the Accused murdered her "by means of an act of the Accused." Thus, it alleges that the Accused committed an act, even if it doesn't allege any specific act. It is, nonetheless, sufficient to fairly inform him of the charge against him and to protect him against double jeopardy. Indeed, our superior court has upheld an intentional murder conviction against a legal sufficiency argument where the specification alleged only that the murder was done by an "unknown act of unlawful force or violence."[14] In United States v. Elmore, the Navy-Marine Corps Court of Military Review held that the Government was not required to prove any specific act, and in Elmore's case could not do so because his victim's body was never found. Rather, the court recognized the principle of corpus delicti which required the Government prove that the alleged victim was dead, and that the death was the result of "some criminal agency."[15] Accordingly his conviction for intentional murder by some "unknown act of unlawful force or violence" was legally sufficient.[16]

Elmore is instructive. Although it dealt specifically with a post-conviction legal sufficiency challenge, the court's analysis is applicable here. Although CS3 A.R's body was recovered, no conclusive cause of death can be ascertained because of the significant decay to her remains at the time she was found. As a result, the Government is unable to definitively allege a specific act of the Accused. But, as was the case in Elmore, the Government will attempt to prove the elements of corpus delecti – that CS3 A.R. is dead and that her death was the result of some criminal agency on the part of the Accused.

Finally, to require that the Government allege any more than they are doing here would require the Government to know with some degree of certainty what specific act caused a murder victim's death. Such a requirement would preclude prosecution in cases where no body was ever found, such as Elmore, or when no cause of death can be definitively ascertained. Here, the Government has alleged, either expressly or by necessary implication, each element of premeditated murder; there is no requirement that any specific act need be alleged.

6. Ruling.

The Defense Motion to Dismiss, as detailed herein, is hereby DENIED.

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION TO EXCLUDE EVIDENCE PURSUANT TO MILITARY RULE OF EVIDENCE 413 14 JANUARY 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed a motion[1] to exclude evidence cited in the Government's notice pursuant to Military Rule of Evidence (Mil. R. Evid.) 413, specifically that "[i]n June 2022, the Accused touched L.L.'s vulva and kissed her without consent despite her repeatedly removing his hand and telling him 'stop' and 'no.'"[2]

The Government responded on 5 December 2025[3] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 10 December 2025.

2. Burden.

As the proponent of the evidence, the burden of proof and persuasion rests on the Government; the standard as to any factual issue necessary to resolve this motion is to a preponderance of the evidence.[4]

[1] Appellate Exhibit (AE) XVIII.
[2] AE XIX at 15.
[3] AE LX
[4] Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 905(c).

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

a. The Accused is charged with committing an aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R. on or about 24 July 2024 and with sexually assaulting Ms. Y.J on or about 25 May 2025.

b. On 5 November 2025, the Government provided notices pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 413 seeking to admit evidence that in June 2022, while he was 17 years-old and in high school, the Accused touched L.L. on her vulva with his hand, without her consent.

c. The Accused went to high school in Oak Harbor, Washington. In June 2022, L.L. was 15 years-old and went to the same high school as the Accused. The two previously dated.

d. L.L. was at the home of Stephanie Johnson, her mother's best friend, with several other individuals including Ms. Johnson's boyfriend and her four sons. While there, she says that the Accused made advances and tried to kiss her and touch her "private area." She moved his hand away and said no. No one else in the house saw anything and there is no indication that she reported anything to the adults in the house.

e. On 11 July 2022, L.L. was the subject of a child forensic interview regarding these allegations. During the forensic interview L.L. stated that she was not supposed to be hanging out with the Accused but her mother found out he was at the same house with her and texted her, reminding her that she was not supposed to be with the Accused.

f. The police interviewed Ms. Johnson's oldest son, who was in the house at the time of this alleged assault. According to this individual, while the Accused and L.L. were on the couch together, the two were giggling and everything seemed fine.

g. Additional facts necessary to resolve the motion are included below.

4. Statement of Law.

Military Rule of Evidence (Mil R. Evid.) 413(a) provides that in a court-martial proceeding for a sexual offense, the military judge may admit evidence that the accused committed any other sexual offense. The evidence may be considered on any matter to which it is relevant.

Although the appellate courts have noted that "inherent in [Mil. R. Evid.] 413 is a general presumption in favor of admission[,]" they have also emphasized that the presumption may be overcome, and that the Constitution requires a "thorough balancing test" under Mil. R. Evid. 403.[5] In United States v. Berry, the Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) instructed, that in order to admit evidence pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 413, three threshold requirements must be met.[6] First, the accused must be charged with an offense of sexual assault; second, "[t]he evidence proffered is evidence of the defendant's commission of another offense of . . . sexual assault"; and third, the evidence is relevant under Mil. R. Evid. 401 and 402.[7] Importantly, to meet the second requirement, the military judge must conclude that the members "could find by [a] preponderance of the evidence that the offenses occurred[.]"[8] Once these initial tests have been satisfied, the court must carefully apply the Mil. R. Evid. 403 balancing test, under which the testimony may be excluded if its "probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice, confusion of the issues, or misleading the members."

[5] United States v. Berry, 61 M.J. 91, 95 (C.A.A.F. 2005) (internal citations omitted).

With respect to the first and second requirements under Berry, a "sexual offense" means an offense punishable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ), or a crime under federal or state law involving: (1) an offense punishable under Article 120, UCMJ; (2) conduct prohibited by 18 U.S.C. chapter 109A; (3) contact, without consent, between any part of the Accused's body, or an object held or controlled by the accused, and another person's genitals or anus; (4) contact, without consent, between the Accused's genitals or anus and any part of another person's body; (5) contact with the aim of deriving sexual pleasure or gratification from inflicting death, bodily injury, or physical pain on another person; or a state law any of these methods; and (6) an attempt or conspiracy to engage in the previously described conduct.[9] Importantly, to meet the second requirement, the military judge must conclude that the members "could find by [a] preponderance of the evidence that the offenses occurred[.]"[10]

Regarding Berry's third requirement, relevant evidence is "evidence having any tendency to make the existence of any fact that is of consequence to the determination of the action more probable or less probable than it would be without the evidence;" and "the fact is of consequence in determining the action."[11] Likewise, "[i]rrelevant evidence is not admissible."[12] Indeed, "[r]elevancy has two components: (1) probative value, the relationship between the evidence and the proposition it is offered to prove; and (2) materiality, the relationship between the proposition the evidence is offered to prove and the facts at issue in the case."[13] Evidence of other sexual offenses is relevant to show propensity in sexual offense cases.[14]

Once these initial tests have been satisfied, the court must carefully apply the Mil. R. Evid. 403 balancing test, under which the testimony may be excluded if its "probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice, confusion of the issues, or misleading the members." "The importance of a careful balancing arises from the potential for undue prejudice that is inevitably present when dealing with propensity evidence."[15]

The Berry court reiterated and expanded on the non-exhaustive list of factors provided in United States v. Wright that a military judge should consider in conducting the balancing test under Mil. R. Evid. 403.[16] Those factors include: "the strength of the proof of the prior act; the probative weight of the evidence; the potential to present less prejudicial evidence; the possible distraction of the fact-finder; the time needed to prove the prior conduct; the temporal proximity of the prior event; the frequency of the acts; the presence of any intervening circumstances; and the relationship between the parties."[17]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

The defense seeks to bar the government from admitting evidence that while in high school in June 2022, the Accused touched L.L.'s vulva with his hand without her consent.[18] The first of Mil. R. Evid. 413's threshold factors is easily met, as the Accused is charged with violating Article 120, UCMJ, by sexually assaulting ABHAN C.R and Ms. Y.J.[19] The second factor is closer. Although the Government alleges that the Accused committed another sexual offense in that he touched L.L.'s vulva with his hand—a potential "sexual offense" under Mil. R. Evid. 413(d)(3)—the evidence is less clear that he did so without the consent of L.L. Thus, there is a question whether the members could find by a preponderance of the evidence that the Accused did touch L.L.'s vulva without her consent. But even assuming that second threshold requirement is met, after the weighing the Wright factors in conducting the Mil. R. Evid. 403 balancing test, the court concludes that the evidence is inadmissible under Mil. R. Evid. 413.

First, the strength of proof of the prior act—the alleged nonconsensual touching of L.L.'s vulva—is relatively weak and based entirely on L.L.'s statements. As noted above, in analyzing this factor, the "prior act" includes not simply the alleged touching or contact, but the lack of consent alleged. In other words, proof that the Accused and L.L. engaged in some sort of sexual activity is not enough. Rather the evidence must also show the requisite mens rea and lack of consent on the part of L.L. Although there were other individuals in the house during the alleged assault, they had left the room before the alleged incident and cannot corroborate the underlying allegation. Witnesses did, however, see L.L. and the Accused interacting prior to the alleged assault and one described them sitting together and L.L giggling.

Second, there is great risk that introduction of this prior allegation of another sexual offense will distract the fact-finder and require significant time to prove. At a minimum, L.L. and the other witnesses who saw her and the Accused interact just prior to the alleged incident will be required to testify. Even if the Government chooses not to call the witnesses who saw L.L. and the Accused interact, the defense certainly could. In addition, there was a prior relationship between L.L. and the Accused. The full extent of the relationship between the two would likely be explored, including their prior dating history, and their subsequent interactions. In short, the Government will necessarily have to put on a trial within a trial to prove the allegations raised by L.L. and their nonconsensual nature.

[18] In their response to the defense motion, the Government withdrew its notice to introduce kissing L.L. without consent as direct evidence under Mil. R. Evid. 413, but seeks its admission as res gestae of the sexual contact that occurred. See AE LX at 34.
[19] The Accused is also charged with sexually assaulting CSSN S.S., but the Government's Mil. R. Evid. 413 notice specifically seeks admission of the evidence related to L.L. as relevant for the allegations involving ABHAN C.R. and Ms. Y.J. See AE XIX at 18.

There is also no relationship between L.L. and either ABHAN C.R. or Ms. Y.J. and their alleged assaults did not take place in temporal proximity to each other. L.L. was a 15 year-old high school student who was allegedly assaulted at the home of her mother's best friend where she was socializing with other teenagers. ABHAN C.R. was a Sailor who was allegedly assaulted onboard a U.S. warship more than two years later after the Accused had enlisted in the Navy. Likewise, Ms. Y.J was an adult who was socializing with two Sailors in the Accused's barracks room onboard Naval Station Norfolk, nearly three years after the alleged assault on L.L. The fact that L.L. was only 15 years old at the time of the alleged assault also weighs heavily in favor of excluding the evidence. Allegations of sexual assault against a minor child are markedly different than allegations of sexual assault against an adult and could tend to enflame the trier of fact and unfairly prejudice the Accused.

Weighing the Wright factors together, the court concludes that the probative value of evidence of Accused's alleged pre-service assault of L.L. is substantially outweighed by the dangers of unfair prejudice as describe above.

6. Ruling.

The Defense Motion to Exclude Evidence pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 413, as detailed herein, is hereby GRANTED.

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION TO DISMISS WITH PREJUDICE FOR LACK OF SPEEDY TRIAL PURSUANT TO ARTICLE 10, SIXTH AMENDMENT & R.C.M. 707 VIOLATIONS 21 JAN 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed a motion to dismiss all charges and specifications, alleging a violation of the Accused's rights to a speedy trial under Sixth Amendment of the Constitution, Article 10, Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ), and Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 707.[1] The Government responded on 5 December 2025[2] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 10 December 2025.

2. Burden.

Once defense raises the issue, Government has burden of persuasion to show no denial of speedy trial.[3] "Under Article 10 [UCMJ], the Government has the burden to show that the prosecution moved forward with reasonable diligence in response to a motion to dismiss."[4]

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

a. The Accused is charged with violations of Articles 107, 118, 120, 120c, 128, 128b, and 131b. The allegations involve five different named victims spanning two different commands and involving numerous percipient witnesses. The allegations include a charge of premeditated murder where the cause and manner of death cannot be conclusively determined because of the decomposition of the body, and as a result there is significant digital and forensic evidence requiring review and expert analysis.

b. On 9 June 2025, the Accused was placed into pretrial confinement at Naval Consolidated Brig Chesapeake where he was placed in a maximum confinee status.

c. The seven-day Initial Review Officer hearing was held on 16 June 2025, and the Accused was ordered to remain in pretrial confinement.

d. That same day, 16 June 2025, the Defense demanded speedy trial.

e. On 1 July 2025, the Government submitted a request for excludable delay from 10 June 2025 through 25 July 2025. The request detailed outstanding steps including "receipt and analysis of digital evidence, forensic analysis of multiple pieces of physical evidence, a report of the autopsy of the victim's body, and interviews of several witnesses."[5] The defense objected on the same day and the request was approved by the Convening Authority on 9 July 2025.

f. On 25 July 2025, the Defense demanded speedy trial for a second time. The Government neither acknowledged nor responded to this request.

g. On 8 August 2025, a second request for excludable delay was submitted for the period of 25 July 2025 through 15 August 2025. This request provided specific details on why the excludable delay was being requested, stating:

> First, as to the allegation of murder, outstanding steps include receipt of the final reports of investigation, forensic analysis of multiple pieces of physical evidence, a report of the autopsy of the victim's body, a finalized toxicology report, and interviews of several witnesses. The Government is also waiting on returns from various providers relating to UCMJ Article 30a matters, and it is unclear when those results will be in the Government's possession. Second, regarding the sexual assault allegations, NCIS recently acquired information concerning pre-service incidents and a fifth post-service allegation, which may provide evidence regarding the current charges, or could constitute further charges. NCIS requires time to pursue these leads by interviewing witnesses, gathering court documents, and reviewing digital evidence.[6]

h. The Defense objected to this request on 11 August 2025, and the Convening Authority granted the request on 27 August 2025.

i. On 22 August 2025, the Government preferred charges in this case.

j. On 3 September 2025, the defense was notified that the Article 32 preliminary hearing would take place on 18 September 2025 and Defense received initial discovery on 12 September 2025.

k. The charges were referred on 1 October 2025 and served on the Accused on 3 October 2025. The Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025.

l. When initially discussing dates for a joint Trial Management Order, the Defense declined the trial counsel's requested February trial dates. Instead, the defense counsel responded, "I was thinking trial in May/June/July. I seriously doubt we can get all the experts we will need ready by February. Also, I am not available 18-20 February. Is the government available mid-June?"[7]

m. Between the time the Accused was placed into pretrial confinement on 9 June 2025 and the date of arraignment on 9 October 2025, government agents and trial counsel worked nearly every day on the Accused's case:

i. On 10 Jun 2025 NCIS interviewed thirteen witnesses as part of its investigation in this case. NCIS executed a Command Authorized Search and Seizure (CASS) for the berthing onboard DDG-95 and their associated barge for the personal belongings of the accused, as well as for his barracks room.

ii. On 11 Jun 2025 NCIS did the following case actions: submitted a 2703(d) Court Order to Uber for a victim's account; submitted a subpoena to Navy Federal Credit Union for the accused's account; received the supplemental checks of the Defense Biometric Identification System; executed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for the search of the barracks room of HT3 Michael Gillispie, USN.

iii. Also on 11 June 2025, trial counsel conducted a VWAP interview with CS3 A.R.'s mother.

iv. On 12 June 2025, NCIS submitted a second subpoena for the NFCU account belonging to the victim (which was previously submitted on 11 June 2025).

v. On 13 June 2025, NCIS interviewed three witnesses, obtained a PASS for screenshots associated with a group chat in which the Accused was reported to have discussed the victim's death, and obtained Ring camera footage from 2820 Cary Ave., Norfolk, VA 23504 from a civilian witness. NCIS also executed an additional command authorized search of the accused's barracks room.

vi. On 14 June 2025, NCIS received the results of an 18 USC 2703(d) order served to Apple for the Accused's account.

vii. On 16 June 2025, an investigatory subpoena to Cash App was submitted to NCIS and NCIS conducted a Scene Observation Document for a vehicle.

viii. On 17 June 2025, NCIS served the Cash App subpoena, received the results of a 2703(d) Court Order for the T-Mobile and Apple accounts belonging to the deceased victim, and obtained drone footage from Norfolk Police Department (NPD) for the area where CS3 A.R. was located. Also on 17 June, the trial counsel met with Special Agent Martinez to discuss pending investigatory steps.

ix. On 20 June 2025, trial counsel contacted other victims in the case, specifically, CSSN S.S. and CSSN S.R. Trial counsel attempted to contact ABHAN C.R. but did not get a response.

x. On 24 June 2025, witness interview recordings were submitted to the trial counsel via NCIS and the trial counsel began reviewing these recordings. NCIS also received the results from a Search Warrant served on the AT&T account belonging to the Accused and NCIS interviewed an individual who reported that she was sexually assaulted by the Accused.

xi. On 25 June 2025, the trial counsel obtained and reviewed jail calls.

xii. On 27 June 2025, NCIS published its first interim ROI for CS3 A.R.

xiii. On 28 June 2025, an autopsy of CS3 A.R. was conducted by Dr. Nemanja Rodic, M.D.; PhD., Pathologist.

xiv. On 30 June 2025, NCIS reported that it was waiting on completion and receipt of USACIL DNA reports, a forensic report of the Accused's cellular phone, an interview of CSSN S.R., review of gate security footage, and the autopsy report.

xv. On 1 July 2025, trial counsel received the initial ROI and reviewed it. NCIS received DFAS records for the Accused and CS3 A.R., obtained a copy of the Accused's barracks sign-in book, reviewed the Accused's and CS3 A.R.'s OMPF files, and visited an address located on a box in the Accused's barracks.

xvi. On 2 July 2025, USACIL estimated that it would likely take 30-45 days to finalize its DNA analysis. Its division chief created a priority list of evidence to ensure timely review and coordinated weekly meetings with the trial counsel and its team. The trial counsel visited an evidence facility to ascertain the scope of evidence collection, processing, and testing.

xvii. On 8 July 2025, trial counsel conducted a crime scene visit of a stairwell and building and attended NCIS roundtable sync. NCIS published an ROI for allegations involving ABHAN C.R., and drafted an interim ROI for publication for CSSN S.S.

xviii. On 10 July 2025, the trial counsel received video interview evidence and began reviewing them. NCIS interviewed a witness and published an interim ROI for CS3 A.R.

xix. On 11 July 2025, the trial counsel received the Accused's cell phone extraction and additional jail calls and began reviewing them.

xx. On 14 July 2025, the trial counsel noted that the phone extraction shows that the Accused paused his vehicle at a specific location on the route from Naval Station Norfolk to where CS3 A.R.'s body was found. The trial counsel highlighted this to NCIS to investigate.

xxi. On 16 July 2025, NCIS searched 2409 Bowdens Ferry Rd, Norfolk, VA, which was determined to be a location the Accused had driven by. A pair of black shorts, black pants, and miscellaneous items were located. NCIS requested security footage from FR8 House Coffee, located at 2330 Bowdens Ferry RD, Norfolk, VA.

xxii. On 17 July 2025, trace evidence reports were received from USACIL; USACIL also received additional carpet and fingernail swabs. Those items were in-processed and delivered to examiners for analysis. An additional search of CSSN Copeland's barracks room was executed: items were seized and photographs were taken.

xxiii. On 22 July 2025, the trial counsel received a list of seized evidence and reviewed additional witness interviews and asked NCIS for contact information for the Norfolk Medical Examiner and Tennessee Body Farm. In addition, a trace evidence evaluation report and a latent print report was released by USACIL. USACIL estimated that its DNA report remained pending completion, estimated completion by mid-August. NCIS completed its report of evidence collected from the Accused's barracks room and completed its report for the Collection FARO 3D Laser Scan Data of 2856 Cary Avenue, Norfolk, VA. NCIS also received the results from a 2703(d) Court Order for a T-Mobile account.

xxiv. On 23 July 2025, trial counsel organized a meeting with the Norfolk Medical Examiner. NCIS reviewed the footage obtained from Gate 2 of Naval Station Norfolk.

xxv. On 24 July, trial counsel separately met with DOJ and NCIS to discuss steps ahead. NCIS obtained the security camera footage from IP Configure for FR8 House Coffee located at 2330 Bowdens Ferry RD, Norfolk, VA 23508.

xxvi. On 25 July 2025, trial counsel received additional brig calls and began reviewing them.
NCIS interviewed two witnesses and published an interim ROI for CS3 A.R.

xxvii. On 27 July 2025, trial counsel conducted legal research, identifying in-part the specificity needed to charge a murder act.

xxviii. On 29 July 2025, trial counsel met with the Norfolk Medical Examiner's office about this case. NCIS reviewed financial records of the Accused and determined that he may have stopped and purchased food from a McDonald's located on Hampton Blvd, Norfolk, VA, shortly after returning from the location where CS3 A.R.'s body was ultimately found. NCIS also received and reviewed a warrant from Google for CSSN Copeland's account. Trial counsel drafted a CASS and iCloud warrant.

xxix. On 30 July 2025, trial counsel finalized review of the current brig calls received on 25 Jul 2025, and conducted introductory interviews with witnesses in the CSSN S.S. case. The trial counsel also conducted additional legal research and USACIL estimated completion of the DNA report by 15 August.

xxx. On 31 July 2025, OSTC East was briefed on the status of the Copeland investigation and discussed preparing charges. The trial counsel also researched the voluntary intoxication defense as it relates to Article 118, UCMJ and NCIS obtained two Oak Harbor Police Reports via a request through their public records.

xxxi. On 1 August 2025, the secondary autopsy report was signed by Dr. Rodic and NCIS completed its report for processing a vehicle belonging to a witness.

xxxii. On 5 August 2025, a CASS was submitted to an NCIS agent for review.

xxxiii. On 6 August 2025, an iCloud warrant was submitted to the military judge and then to Apple, Inc. Trial counsel finalized an updated CASS for the Accused's phone and analyzed the USACIL reports and prepared questions for USACIL. NCIS received and reviewed the Outlook accounts from DDG-95 for the Accused and CS3 A.R. and published and interim ROI for CS3 A.R.

xxxiv. On 7 August 2025, trial counsel requested a subpoena from a military judge under R.C.M. 309 for Oak Harbor Records.

xxxv. On 8 August 2025, trial counsel prepared for discovery disclosures by burning discs and NCIS received a DNA report from USACIL.

xxxvi. On 11 August 2025, trial counsel received and reviewed a warrant return from Google, requested the military judge sign warrants to Meta and AT&T, and drafted charges.

xxxvii. On 12 August 2025, trial counsel received the final draft digital forensic examination report, but it was still pending peer review. NCIS completed the Results of Findings for a laptop seized from a witness.

xxxviii. On 13 August 2025, trial counsel contacted a potential insect/entomology expert witness, met with USACIL about the pending DNA report, and submitted to the military judge a draft warrant to Sony.

xxxix. On 14 August 2025, trial counsel submitted a warrant for Meta, Inc. for review.

xl. On 15 August 2025, a military judge signed a subpoena to Reddit and the trial counsel forwarded it to NCIS. The Norfolk Medical Examiner reported that its test for escitalopram will take an additional 60 days. NCIS received a second DNA report from USACIL and forwarded them to trial counsel. Trial counsel continued review of brig calls.

xli. on 18 August 2025, NCIS executed an updated CASS for the Accused's phone.

xlii. On 19 August 2025, NCIS received and reviewed an incident report pertaining to the Accused from Virginia's Island County Sheriff's Office Incident.

xliii. On 21 August 2025, trial counsel drafted a CASS to search for additional carpet squares.

xliv. On 22 August 2025, trial counsel concluded discussions about charging decisions which began on 20 August 202, and preferred charges. NCIS conducted a second search of the personal belongings of the Accused which were located onboard DDG-95. Additional items were seized as evidence. NCIS also received and reviewed a warrant from AT&T for the Accused's cellphone.

xlv. On 25 August 2025, three T-Mobile warrants were drafted and forwarded to NCIS for review. The summary court-martial convening authority received the charges and NCIS attempted to interview civilian witnesses.

xlvi. On 26 August 2025, a military judge signed an Equifax subpoena, which was forwarded to NCIS. NCIS executed an additional search of the Accused's barracks room, seizing more carpet squares. NCIS found presumptive blood underneath a couch in common area and interviewed a witness.

xlvii. On 27 August 2025, NCIS received the iCloud warrant results from Apple and forwarded them for review by a digital forensics expert. The Government requested appointment of a PHO for the Article 32 hearing.

xlviii. On 28 August 2025, NCIS received the subpoena results from Reddit, giving an email address for a person who is believed to be a victim.

xlix. On 2 September 2025, the Preliminary Hearing Officer confirmed an Article 32 hearing scheduled for 18 September 2025.

l. On 3 September 2025, NCIS received and reviewed the subpoena results from Equifax, showing that the Accused only had one bank account.

li. On 4 September 2025, NCIS received the final Autopsy results from the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner (OCME), received the Certificate of Analysis from 14 July 2025 showing the results from testing for Ethanol, received the Certificate of Analysis from 10 Jun 25 for the fingerprint card belonging to CS3 A.R., and drafted an interim ROI for publication for CSSN S.S.

lii. On 5 September 2025, trial counsel had initial interviews with ET3 Daniel Rich, USN and HT3 Michael Gillespie, USN.

liii. On 8 September 2025, NCIS received the results from Meta for the account of the Accused and drafted an interim ROI for publication for CSSN S.R.

liv. On 10 September 2025, NCIS received the results from an independent Autopsy performed on CS3 A.R. and provided a report of examination to OSTC for the Article 32 hearing.

lv. On 11 September 2025, NCIS reviewed the footage from the X2 Micro Market.

lvi. On 15 September 2025, NCIS received USACIL report 25-ATL-00931 which tested the envelope which contained suspected Psilocybin[8] which was located in the Accused's barracks room.

lvii. On 16 September 2025, NCIS published an interim ROI for CS3 A.R.

lviii. On 17 September 2025, trial counsel spoke with ABHAN C.R. and provided an update on the case. Trial counsel also received updated brig calls through 17 September 2025.

lix. On 18 September 2025, an Article 32 Preliminary Hearing was conducted.

lx. On 19 September 2025, additional matters were submitted to the Preliminary Hearing Officer.

lxi. On 22 September 2025, trial counsel inquired about status of 3D scanning model of crime scenes.

lxii. On 26 September 2025, trial counsel continued to review brig calls and received additional calls through 26 September.

lxiii. On 28 September 2025, the Preliminary Hearing Officer submitted his report.

lxiv. On 30 September 2025, a latent print report was received from USACIL.

lxv. On 1 October 2025, charges were referred to general court-martial.

lxvi. On 3 October 2025, the Accused was served a copy of the referred charges, and the Government moved to docket the case. In addition, a trace evidence report was received from USACIL.

[8] Psilocybin is colloquially called mushrooms.

lxvii. On 7 October 2025, trial counsel submitted joint proposed Trial Management Order with prospective trial dates of 3-13 June 2025.

lxviii. On 8 October 2025, trial counsel received brig call logs through 8 October and began reviewing. In addition, the military judge signed a Trial Management Order (TMO)[9] reflecting dates agreed to by the parties and setting trial for 3-26 June 2026.

lxix. On 9 October 2025, the Accused was arraigned and requested to defer the entry of pleas and forum selection until 1 May 2026, as noted in the TMO.

n. The final DNA report confirming the presence of CS3 A.R.'s blood at the crime scene was not received until 20 October 2025 and the final digital forensics report was not received until 24 November 2025. The Government asserts that several substantial investigative steps remain at this time, including substantive witness interviews, processing of additional forensic evidence, and analysis of digital evidence.

o. Additional facts necessary to resolve the motion are included below.

4. Statement of Law.

In the military justice system, an accused's right to a speedy trial flows from various sources, including the Sixth Amendment, Article 10, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 707 of the Manual for Courts-Martial.[10] "These various provisions provide a cohesive and sometimes overlapping framework for the protection of an accused's speedy trial rights."[11]

A. R.C.M. 707

R.C.M. 707(a) provides that an "accused shall be brought to trial within 120 days after . . . [t]he imposition of restraint[.]" For purposes of the rule, an accused is "brought to trial" when he is arraigned on the charges.[12] Failure to comply with the rule results in dismissal of the affected charges.[13] "Thus, the duty imposed on the Government by R.C.M. 707 is to arraign an accused within 120 days of . . . pretrial confinement, or face dismissal of the charges. The duty is no more and no less, and is satisfied once an accused is arraigned."[14]

Prior to referral of charges, the convening authority may grant requests for delay; any such time excluded by the convening authority shall be excluded when determining whether the 120-day period has run.[15] In providing examples of reasonable bases to grant delay, the discussion of R.C.M. 707 includes the "time to enable counsel to prepare for trial in complex cases" and "time to secure the availability of . . . evidence."[16] Consequently, the "decision to grant or deny a reasonable delay is a matter within the sole discretion of the convening authority…"[17] Finally, "[i]f the issue of speedy trial under R.C.M. 707 is raised before the military judge at trial, the issue is . . . whether the decision of the officer granting the delay was an abuse of discretion."[18]

B. Sixth Amendment and Article 10, UCMJ

The Sixth Amendment states, "[i]n all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial …."[19] In the military, Sixth Amendment speedy trial protections are triggered upon preferral of charges or the imposition of pretrial restraint."[20]

Article 10, UCMJ, commands that when a service member is placed in pretrial confinement, "immediate steps shall be taken . . . to try him or to dismiss the charges and release him."[21] Unlike speedy trial claims made pursuant to R.C.M. 707, "[t]he Article 10 duty imposed on the Government immediately to try an accused who is placed in pretrial confinement does not terminate simply because the accused is arraigned."[22] But, "by the time an accused is arraigned, a change in the speedy-trial landscape has taken place . . . because after arraignment, 'the power of the military judge to process the case increases, and the power of the [Government] to affect the case decreases.'"[23] Consequently, after the Accused is arraigned, "significant responsibility for ensuring the accused's court-martial proceeds with reasonable dispatch rests with the military judge" and it is the military judge who "has the power and responsibility to force the Government to proceed with its case if justice so requires."[24]

"Article 10 creates a more exacting speedy trial demand than does the Sixth Amendment."[25] The procedural framework for analyzing Article 10 issues, however, is derived from the Sixth Amendment test set forth by the Supreme Court in Barker v. Wingo.[26] Courts look at four factors in examining the circumstances surrounding alleged Sixth Amendment and Article 10 violations: "(1) the length of the delay; (2) the reasons for the delay; (3) whether the appellant made a demand for a speedy trial; and (4) prejudice to the appellant."[27]

Applying this legal framework, courts recognize that none of the four factors has any "talismanic power"; rather, courts must "weigh all the factors collectively before deciding whether a defendant's right to a speedy trial has been violated."[28] Indeed, none of the four Barker factors alone are a "necessary or sufficient condition to the finding of a deprivation of the right of speedy trial."[29] Rather, the court must resolve whether the Government "could readily have gone to trial . . . but negligently or spitefully chose not to."[30] The proceedings should be viewed as a whole, with "[t]he essential ingredient [being] orderly expedition and not mere speed."[31] Thus, "[t]he touch stone … is not constant motion, but reasonable diligence in bringing the charges to trial. Brief periods of inactivity in an otherwise active prosecution are not unreasonable or oppressive."[32]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

The defense makes two distinct arguments related to the Accused's right to a speedy trial, related to both R.C.M. 707 and Article 10, UCMJ/Sixth Amendment. The court examines each in turn.

A. R.C.M. 707

The defense contends that the Convening Authority abused his discretion in granting two different periods of excludable delay prior to referral of charges. The first period excluded delay between 10 June 2025 and 25 July 2025 and the second period extended that delay until 15 August 2025. All told, the convening authority granted 67 days of excludable delay. The defense argues that the convening authority abused his discretion because the government claimed in their request that investigations remained ongoing that were not, in fact, ongoing and had already concluded. Specifically, the defense submits that the allegations involving ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.S. had already been conducted and were in trial counsel's possession. As for the second request, the defense avers that the Government did not provide the convening authority with any information about what had been completed since their previous request and he simply rubber stamped the additional delay.

The defense's argument is unpersuasive. In each instance the Government sought delay to allow time for counsel to prepare for a very complex trial and to secure the availability of evidence. Their requests to the convening authority for delay were based on investigative actions, the need to review evidence, and were made in anticipation of receiving additional critical evidence. The Government specifically requested their first period of excludable delay only 22 days after CS3 A.R.'s body was found and sought delay in order to receive and analyze digital evidence, conduct a forensic analysis of physical evidence, and receive the autopsy report for CS3 A.R. The second request was similar; there the Government sought delay because there were still outstanding investigatory steps, such as forensic analysis of physical evidence, a finalized toxicology report, and interviews with several witnesses. Indeed, the numerous investigative steps taken by the government during the period of granted delay, as detailed above, reflect the sort of preparation contemplated by grants of excludable delay pursuant to R.C.M. 70(c). Moreover, the convening authority determined that the requests were reasonable in both length and rationale, and there is no evidence to suggest that he acted unreasonably with respect to granting the delay or to the amount of delay granted.

Accordingly, the court finds that the convening authority did not abuse his discretion in granting the 67 days of excludable delay. With the delay excluded, the Accused was arraigned on day 46 and his rights under R.C.M. 707 were not violated.

B. Article 10/Sixth Amendment

1. Length of the delay

The length of delay constitutes a triggering mechanism under Article 10, UCMJ.[33] By the time the Accused's trial on the merits begins, he will have spent 360 days in pretrial confinement.[34] That number is sufficient to trigger analysis of the remaining Barker factors.

2. Reasons for the delay

The defense argues that "[b]ased on the facts and circumstances surrounding the investigation and the fact all investigations were substantially complete by mid-July of 2025, the logical determination is that the Government sought time to justify this foreseeable motion, not because the delay was necessary."[35] The defense also seeks to minimize their concurrence with the dates proposed in the Trial Management Order by arguing that they would have sought a shorter time period between arraignment and trial had the government provided discovery sooner that they did, contending that the delay in discovery essentially forced them to acquiesce to the current trial dates. As a threshold matter, the court finds that the Government did not unreasonably delay discovery.

Next, as noted above, the Government has moved with reasonable diligence in bringing the case to trial. From the time the Accused was placed into pretrial confinement until his arraignment, the Government has documented near daily activity in moving the case forward. Following arraignment, the landscape has changed, and the military judge has a much greater role in moving the proceedings forward as justice required. Here, the defense rejected trial dates in February that were proposed by the trial counsel and suggested and then agreed to trial dates in June 2026. The defense counsel cannot now vaguely reference delayed discovery as the cause of their "acquiescence." Rather, as the Navy Marine Corps Court of Criminal Appeals has pointed out the Accused "'cannot be responsible for or agreeable to delay and then turn around and demand dismissal for that same delay . . . The right to speedy trial is a shield, not a sword.'"[36]

Beyond the fact that the defense expressly agreed to the dates and milestones provided in the Trial Management Order, the court otherwise finds them inherently reasonable given the [34] Although the defense argues that the 123 days it took to arraign the Accused was itself facially unreasonable, the court notes that for Article 10 purposes, the Government's duty does not terminate at arraignment but continues until commencement of trial on the merits. complexity of the case, the number of witnesses and experts consultants required and approved, and the staggering amount of digital and forensic evidence. In short, this Barker factor weighs heavily in favor of the Government.

3. Demand for speedy trial

The appellant made two pre-referral demands for speedy trial but also rejected the trial counsel's proposed February 2026 trial dates and requested and received trial dates in June 2026. At arraignment, the defense deferred the entry of pleas and forum selection until 1 May 2026 and made no other requests for speedy trial. In short, the Accused got exactly the speedy trial he asked for.

To the extent the defense asserts that the delay from imposition of pretrial confinement to arraignment was unreasonable, the court again disagrees, and as noted above finds both that the Accused was brought to trial within 120 days as is required by R.C.M. 707 and that the Government acted with reasonable diligence during that timeframe.

This Barker factor heavily weighs in favor of the Government.

4. Prejudice to the appellant

"Prejudice . . . should be assessed in the light of the interests of defendants which the speedy trial right was designed to protect."[37] The court therefore examines the question of prejudice in light of three important interests the Supreme Court identified in Barker: (1) to prevent oppressive pretrial incarceration; (2) to minimize anxiety and concern; and (3) to limit the possibility that the defense will be impaired.[38] "Of these, the most serious is the last, because the inability of a defendant adequately to prepare his case skews the fairness of the entire system."[39]

The defense contends that the Accused's pretrial confinement is oppressive because he is placed in maximum custody that impairs his ability to meet with his defense counsel, and therefore, impairs his ability to prepare for trial. Notably, the defense has filed a motion pursuant to Article 13, UCMJ seeking relief from oppressive treatment in pretrial confinement.[40]

The Government counters that the Accused's conditions of confinement are not unduly harsh, and his classification as a maximum custody prisoner furthers a legitimate Government interest in ensuring prisoner safety and discipline. The Government further argues that there is no impact on the Accused's ability to prepare his defense, because, despite his maximum security status, he does in fact have the ability to meet privately with counsel and to have privileged conversations with them. And, the Government points out, despite the defense's protestations regarding the Accused's maximum security status, it was the defense counsel that requested later trial dates than the Government.

The court agrees with the Government. Whatever treatment the Accused has received in the Brig based on his status as a maximum security prisoner has not hampered his ability to prepare for trial and thus has not prejudiced him in a way that would vitiate his rights under Article 10 or the Sixth Amendment. He has the ability to receive phone calls and correspondence from his attorneys, and to meet with them in private (albeit behind glass) and have privileged communications. Accordingly, this Barker factor weighs in favor of the Government.

Having analyzed the Barker factors, the court concludes that the Accused's Sixth Amendment and Article 10 Speedy trial rights have not been violated.

6. Ruling.

The Defense Motion to Dismiss, as detailed herein, is hereby DENIED.

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTIONS TO SUPPRESS SEARCH AND SEIZURE OF PHONE/ 3 AND 6 JUNE 2025 STATEMENTS/ 3 JUNE 2025 SEARCH OF BARRACKS ROOM 27 JANUARY 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed three motions seeking suppression of 1) all evidence obtained and derived from the 4 June 2025 search of the Accused's cellular phone;[1] 2) the Accused's statements made during his 3 June 2025 and 6 June 2025 NCIS interviews;[2] and 3) all evidence obtained and derived from the search of the Accused's barracks room on 3 June 2025 – namely the blood found in his room and closet.[3] The Government responded with a single filing on 5 December 2025[4] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 10 December 2025.

2. Burden.

"[T]he prosecution has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the evidence was not obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure" or that some valid exception applies.[5] The prosecution must prove consent for a search by clear and convincing evidence.[6] With respect to statements of the Accused, the prosecution has the burden of establishing the admissibility of the statement.[7] The military judge must find by a preponderance of the evidence that the Accused's statement was made voluntarily before the statement may be admitted into evidence.[8]

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

Initial Investigative Steps

a. CSSN Copeland is charged, inter alia, with committing premeditated murder of CS3 A.R., in violation of Article 118, UCMJ.

b. On 31 May 2025, NCIS was contacted by the Norfolk Police Department (NPD) regarding a missing person report filed by ET3 Daniel Rich, USN, regarding his ex-girlfriend, CS3 A.R, USN.

c. ET3 Rich advised NPD that CS3 A.R. had not been seen or heard from since 29 May 2025 when she was last seen with the Accused. NPD contacted CS3 A.R.'s command, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95) and was informed by the command that CS3 A.R. was in an unauthorized absence (UA) status and the ship had been unable to contact her.

d. After receiving this report from NPD, NCIS confirmed with the command that both CS3 A.R. and the Accused were in an UA status.

e. On 31 May 2025, NCIS interviewed ET3 Rich. ET3 Rich stated that he last spoke to CS3 A.R. around 0230 on 29 May 25 via phone during which she was crying and asked for help. After the call, ET3 Rich was able to trace CS3 A.R.'s phone to Willis Manor, X-2 Barracks located on board Naval Station Norfolk, but only until 0430 at which time it appeared to have powered down.

f. On 1 June 2025 at approximately 1341, the Accused was located in his barracks room on board Naval Station Norfolk after his mother called base security requesting a welfare check on her son.

g. Also on 1 June 2025, NCIS contacted CS3 A.R.'s mother who indicated she had not spoken with her daughter in about a week, but received an unanswered Facetime call on 18 May 2025. NCIS opened a missing-person investigation on CS3 A.R.

h. That same day, NCIS searched CS3 A.R.'s barracks room, and interviewed her roommate. NCIS did not observe any signs of foul play in her barracks room, and the roommate indicated she had not seen CS3 A.R. in several days.

[7] Mil. R. Evid. 304(f)(6).
[8] Mil. R. Evid. 304(f)(7).

i. NCIS interviewed ET3 Rich again on 1 June 2025. ET3 Rich explained his relationship with CS3 A.R., that they had broken up about a month ago, and that he and another ex-boyfriend, HT3 Michael Gillespie, USN, attempted to search for CS3 A.R. in the early morning hours of 29 May 2025 after he received the frantic call from her.

j. Also on 1 June 2025, NCIS interviewed FCC Brad Parker, USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95). Chief Parker was the Accused's and CS3 A.R.'s chief. He told NCIS he went to the Accused's barracks room on the morning of 29 May 2025 and when he arrived the Accused opened the barracks room door and appeared groggy. He also told investigators that he saw CS3 A.R. who was in the Accused's barracks room bed, that she acknowledged him, rolled over, and appeared to go back to sleep. Chief Parker told the Accused to tend to CS3 A.R. and then come into work. According to FCC Parker, the Accused told him CS3 A.R. was having some personal issues and she came to the Accused's room to discuss.

k. On 1 June 2025, NCIS interviewed the Accused in the lounge of his barracks building regarding the whereabouts of CS3 A.R. During this interview, NCIS did not provide him any Article 31(b) rights advisement. The Accused told NCIS:

i. That he and CS3 A.R. were co-workers and they texted back and forth on 28 May 2025 to discuss meeting up and making tacos and the recipes and ingredients for tacos.

ii. CS3 A.R. came to his barracks that night and the two made tacos and drank alcohol.

iii. CS3 A.R. became increasingly more emotional as the night went on and the two spoke about her romantic relationships.

iv. CS3 A.R. confided in him regarding her relationship with an ex-boyfriend, HT3 Gillespie and a recent argument the two had over a motorcycle helmet.

v. One of his roommates came into the barracks common area where the two were sitting to check on CS3 A.R. because she appeared to be upset.

vi. CS3 A.R. spent the night in his room and the two did not engage in sexual intercourse.

vii. They were awoken by their chief, FCC Parker, around 0900 on 29 May 2025.

viii. The last time he saw CS3 A.R. was when he borrowed his roommate's car and returned CS3 A.R. to her barracks room around 1000 on 29 May 2025.

l. Between 2-3 June 2025, NCIS interviewed the Accused's roommate, YN3 Sean Monaghan, and his two suitemates, AR John Calisse and PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz, with whom he shared the common areas of his barracks room. Each of the three suitemates told NCIS that when they got up to leave for work early on 29 May 2025, they observed the Accused and an unknown female, who was topless and had her breasts exposed, lying next to each other, asleep in the common area of their barracks. Each of the three roommates also denied letting the Accused borrow a car on the morning of 29 May 2025.

m. On 3 June 2024 at 1949, CAPT Matthew Schlarmann, Commanding Officer, Naval Station Norfolk, signed a Command Authorization for Search and Seizure (CASS) authorizing a search of the Accused's barracks room since it was the last known location where CS3 A.R. was seen. The CASS specifically authorized a search of X2 Barracks room 335B Rack A and the common area of the barracks room. The CASS was issued in connection with the ongoing investigation into CS3 A.R.'s Article 86 offense and authorized agents to search for and seize 1) bed linens, sheets, towels, blankets, pillows that appear to have used or were recently used; 2) used condoms and condom wrappers; 3) any clothing appearing to belong to a female; 4) items containing or could reasonable contain DNA, blood or other bodily fluids and trace biological evidence; and 5) other evidence, instrumentalities or fruits of the alleged offense.

n. On 3 June 2025, NCIS executed the CASS on the Accused's barracks room. NCIS Agents, led by Special Agent Jessica Gokey, the Case Agent, entered the room and conducted a routine safety sweep. The Accused and his roommates were placed in handcuffs and restrained as the agents secured the room and conducted a basic weapons search. During the safety search, an iPhone 15 was found on the Accused and was seized by Special Agent Gokey.

o. Special Agent Gokey testified at the Article 39(a), UCMJ hearing that she seized the phone based on probable cause. She explained that based on her knowledge and training, she knew that iPhones track a user's location and the Accused had made an apparent false statement about his location – that he borrowed a roommate's vehicle to take CS3 A.R. back to her barracks room. Likewise, the Accused indicated that he texted back and forth with CS3 A.R. on the day she came to his barracks room and the iPhone would have a record of their communications.

p. Once the room was determined to be safe, an NCIS forensic team conducted an initial walk through of Room 335 and while on scene, AR Calisse, the Accused's roommate, signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for Willis Manor X-2 Room 335.

3 June Search of Accused's Barracks Room

q. NCIS used dogs who were trained to find electronic storage and cadavers as part of the search of the Accused's room.

r. At approximately 2234, NCIS searched Room 335 Side B Rack A and Common Area utilizing the cadaver dog. The dog alerted to a grey backpack located on the Accused's side of suite B at 2241, but this was not given any serious weight as these dogs can alert to any body odor, including sweat.

s. At 2346, NCIS utilized a Hemastix, to test for the presence of blood on a sticker found stuck to the floor of the Accused's closet which was brown in color. The sticker tested presumptive positive for the presence of blood.

t. At 0005, NCIS utilized a Hemastix, to test for the presence of blood on the Accused's bathroom sink. The sample tested presumptive positive for the presence of blood.

u. From 0000-0116, NCIS utilized Bluestar, a chemical reagent used to test for the presence of blood. The reaction occurs when Bluestar interacts with the heme component of blood producing a blue luminescence. Bluestar illuminated the presence of blood on the Accused's vanity and sink, and in the Accused's closet, where it formed a linear trail that gradually faded as it extended between the Accused's bedroom and the common living area.

v. At 0138, NCIS ceased the search of the barracks room and released the scene to the Accused, who had been returned from the NCIS Field Office following an interrogation with Special Agent Gokey and Special Agent Bea Duffy.

3 June 2025 NCIS Interrogation

w. While the search of the Accused's barracks room was underway, the Accused was interviewed at the Norfolk NCIS Field Office on board Naval Station Norfolk at approximately at 2113 on 3 June 2025.

x. Prior to the interrogation, the Accused acknowledged that he had eaten and was provided several bags of snacks and water. He was told he could request a break at any time.

y. The Accused was interrogated by two NCIS Special Agents, SA Gokey and SA Duffy. After collecting biographical information, NCIS the Accused his Article 31(b), UCMJ rights, advising him that he was suspected of violating Article 86, UCMJ (unauthorized absence), and Article 107 (false official statement).

z. At 2147, the Accused waived his rights and agreed to speak to NCIS.

aa. At approximately 1 hour and 22 minutes into the interrogation, the NCIS Agents paused the interview. The agents asked the Accused if he needed anything or if he'd like to use the restroom. He declined both offers. The break lasted for approximately 43 minutes. As soon as the agents left the room, the Accused rested his head on his arms while laying it on the desk, and he proceeded to fall asleep and started snoring.

ab. The NCIS Agents came back into the room, waking the Accused, and started discussing a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) to search his cell phone. The Accused agreed to permit the search of his phone and provided the agents with his pass code. The following exchange took place:

> SA: "So, I would like then to look at your phone and place you in the room, and that could potentially maybe help you with your command. Like, we could pitch it to him like, 'Hey, man, he didn't go to work, but it's not like he was fucking missing or gone or whatever.' Right?
> SA: "You would be cool with that?"
> Copeland: "Yeah."

NCIS then reads the PASS to the Accused, and the Accused asks whether his phone will be returned to him because he'd like to call his mother. NCIS agents agree to help facilitate the call with his mother. The following conversation then occurred:

> SA: "Ok. Do you want to call her right now. Ok. Do you want to go ahead and sign that, and then I will . . . ?"
> Copeland: "can I wait first?"
> SA: "Yea, sure, absolutely."

ac. Approximately 2 hours and 36 minutes into the interview, the Accused is offered a second break. This break lasted approximately 22 minutes. After the NCIS agents left the interrogation room, the Accused once again laid his head on his arms that were lying on the desk, and he fell asleep and started snoring.

ad. When the agents returned, they asked the Accused about signing a second PASS, dated 4 June 2025. The 4 June PASS did not list his cell phone like the first one that NCIS presented to him for signing, but instead, listed his "backpack, barracks room, and electronic devices."

ae. The Accused questioned the agents about whether he was able to revoke consent to search any of the things listed in the 4 June 2025 PASS after signing. Once the agent answered his question, the Accused signed that 4 June 2025 PASS authorizing the search of his "backpack, barracks room, and electronic devices."

af. Immediately after he signed the 4 June 2025 PASS, the Accused declined to sign the 3 June PASS that provided consent to search his iPhone 15 Pro Max. The following conversation occurred:

> SA: "Ok. And then I wanted to revisit the one we talked about with your phone, are you still Ok with that?"
> Copeland: "No, I'm just, can we do this [ ] I'm just tryna go home."
> SA: "Understood, OK. Alright. So let's make some moves to do that. And we will make those [ ], and . . . we will be right back."

ag. The interview was then terminated, but SA Duffy returned a few minutes later and asking the Accused, "I didn't give you my phone in order to call your mom. You want to do that?" The Accused responded, "I'll just wait" and asked how much longer it would take to leave.

ah. In total, the duration of the Accused's time in the interview room was approximately 3 hours and 17 min, ending at 0030 EDT.

ai. Following his return to his barracks room after the interrogation, and as NCIS was wrapping up the search of his barracks room, the Accused asked for his phone back; SA Duffy advised he could not have it as it had been seized.

Search of the Accused's Iphone 15

aj. On 4 June 2025, an NCIS Digital Forensic Examiner (DFE) conducted a digital forensic acquisition of the Accused's iPhone 15 Pro Max. The DFE obtained a full file system extraction of the phone.

ak. At 0743 on 5 June 2025, CAPT Schlarmann, signed a CASS authorizing a search of the digital contents of the Accused's seized iPhone 15 Pro Max.

al. Between 5 June 2025 and 9 June 2025, an NCIS DFE conducted a digital forensic examination of a seized iPhone 15 belonging to the Accused. That search did not commence until after the CASS was signed.

am. On 9 June 25, the DFE located and extracted two image files during the examination of the iPhone 15 belonging to the Accused. The image files appear to be screenshots of an Apple maps App with the street name "Cary Ave" visible in the image and a marked location in a wooded area near the Cary Ave location. A blue circle in the images appears to be the location of the user of the iPhone 15 belonging to the Accused when the screenshot was taken and appears to be near a house on Cary Avenue The device also appears to be in Airplane mode and time of day is 05:15 according to the visible image.

an. A subsequent search of the area identified in the screenshot images by NCIS utilizing a cadaver dog, led to the discovery of CS3 A.R.'s remains inside a black bag located off a path behind a row of townhomes.

6 June 2025 NCIS Interrogation

ao. On 6 June 2025 at approximately 0842, NCIS brought the Accused back to their offices to conduct another interview regarding CS3 A.R.'s disappearance.

ap. NCIS asked the Accused to take a polygraph examination, explaining that "if this goes well and they say, 'Hey, like we don't have to worry about him anymore. He's not on our, you know, interesting list of people anymore, not the most interesting man in the world.' Like, we can sort of put you on the back burner. That invasiveness will likely decrease a significant amount."[9] The agent later put it more succinctly, "[s]o, what we'd like to do is, although you're not specifically suspected of causing harm to her----we'd like to make sure you didn't." [10]

aq. NCIS agents then advise the Accused of his rights under Article 31(b) and let him know that he was suspected of making a false official statement and knowledge of the possible death of CS3 A.R. Agents also told the Accused he was in control of the interview and could stop at any time. The Accused indicated he didn't have any questions about his rights and waived his rights and agreed to talk to the Agents.

[9] AE XXXIII at 11.
[10] AE XXXIII at 14.

ar. After advising the Accused of his rights, the first questions asked by the NCIS agents focused on the possibility that CS3 A.R. was dead:

> SA: Okay. All right, so--so let me just make sure you kind of see it from their perspective and--and our--and our perspective. You--you--you--I think you've already acknowledged this, but, so the big fear is that Angie may be--may be dead.
> CSSN COPELAND: [Affirmative response.]
> SA: Okay. Did you do that?
> CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
> SA: Okay. I know they already asked you that, and you said no.
> CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
> SA: Do you--do you know where she's at?
> CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
> SA: Did you help anybody to abduct her or kill her or anything like that?
> CSSN COPELAND: No, sir.
> SA: That's the focus today.
> CSSN COPELAND: Yes, sir.

as. The Accused declined the polygraph examination but continued with the interview.

Additional Investigative steps at. On 4 June 2025, NCIS obtained a 2703(d) Order for T-Mobile Records pertaining to CS3 A.R. and CSSN Copeland's cellular phone accounts, respectively.

i. Both orders included a request for device location, historical location information, mobility of cell location and wireline information.

ii. The mobility records for the Accused's account showed that he contacted CS3 A.R. on 1 June 2025 a total of 5 times between 1902 and 1904.

au. On 4 June 2025, NCIS coordinated with Newport News Police Department Criminal Intelligence Unit to conduct License Plate Reader (LPR) queries on two vehicles the Accused had been known to borrow.

i. The White Jeep Liberty belonging to AR Calisse was captured at Hampton Blvd and W 25the Street at 0440 on 2 June 2025.

ii. AR Calisse told investigators that the Accused borrowed his Jeep on the night of 1 June, but did not return to base with it until 2 June making AR Calisse late for work.

av. On 4 June 2025, at approximately 1315, NCIS conducted a scene examination in the hallway and stairwell closest to the Accused's barracks room - Room 335 on the third floor of the X-2 Barracks.

i. Multiple areas of reddish brown staining were observed in the stairwell between levels 1 and 3.

ii. NCIS collected samples of the reddish brown stains for later analysis. No presumptive testing was done during the collection.

aw. Also on 5 June, the Government obtained a Search Warrant for the Accused's AT&T account requesting, among other items, Call/Text/Data Detail records and specialized location data for CSSN Copeland's cell phone.

ax. At 1230 on 5 June 2025, NCIS conducted a canvas of the X-2 Building. Upon arrival, the Barracks Manager, Ms. Mary Benson, explained to NCIS that she observed what appeared to be blood down the hallway of the first floor. NCIS observed at the end of the hallway near the door a small dropping of a reddish brown substance. Ms. Benson stated the floors had been mopped between 29 or 30 May, but not since. Samples were collected.

ay. On 9 June 25, YN3 Monaghan, the Accused's roommate was interviewed by NCIS a second time.

i. He told investigators that he returned from leave on 28 May 25 around 1900 and the Accused arrived to their barracks room around 2200. YN3 Monaghan had watch early on 29 May, so he was already half asleep. However, YN3 Monaghan remembers seeing a lighter skinned female with short hair with the Accused.

ii. YN3 Monahan woke up around 0500 on 29 May 2025 and noticed there was no one else in his bedroom. When he exited his bedroom and entered the common area around 0640, he observed the Accused asleep on the living floor in his underwear with a girl that YN3 Monaghan did not recognize.

iii. YN3 Monaghan left for work and returned around 1300. When he returned, no one was in the barracks room. He next saw the Accused in their barracks room around 2000. Over the course of 30 May – 1 June 2025, YN3 Monaghan observed the Accused leaving their barracks room very early in the morning and returning late in the evening.

az. On 10 June 2025, USACIL DNA results indicated that the blood found in the Accused's closet was a mixture originating from two individuals – both the Accused and CS3 A.R.'s DNA profile were included as contributors to this mixture. The reddish-brown substance found in the stairwell also matched CS3 A.R.'s DNA.

ba. Additional facts necessary to resolve the issues are included below.

4. Statement of Law.

a. Searches and seizures

The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States provides: "[t]he right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized." [11] The protections from unreasonable searches under the Fourth Amendment are applicable to servicemembers.[12] Indeed, a military search authorization "must be based upon probable cause."[13] "Probable cause to search exists when there is a reasonable belief that the person, property, or evidence sought is located in the place or on the person searched."[14] "Probable cause relies on a common-sense decision whether, given all the circumstances there is a fair probability that contraband will be found."[15] "It is not a technical standard, but rather is based on the factual and practical considerations of everyday life on which reasonable and prudent [persons], not legal technicians, act."[16] Thus, "[p]robable cause requires more than bare suspicion, but something less than a preponderance of the evidence."[17] As the Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (C.A.A.F.) stated in United States v. Nieto:

> [I]n order for there to be probable cause, a sufficient nexus must be shown to exist between the alleged crime and the specific item to be seized. The question of nexus focuses on whether there was a fair probability that contraband or evidence of a crime will be found in a particular place. A nexus may be inferred from the facts and circumstances of a particular case, including the type of crime, the nature of the items sought, and reasonable inferences about where evidence is likely to be kept. [18]

Moreover, search authorizations must "describe the things to be seized with sufficient particularity to prevent a general exploratory rummaging in a person's belongings."[19] As the Supreme Court explained, "[b]y limiting the authorization to search to the specific areas and things for which there is probable cause to search, the [particularity] requirement ensures that the search will be carefully tailored to its justifications, and will not take on the character of the wide-ranging exploratory searches the Framers intended to prohibit."[20]

Data stored within a cell phone fall within the protections of the Fourth Amendment.[21] Accordingly, "cell phones may not be searched without probable cause and a warrant unless the search and seizure falls within one of the recognized exceptions to the warrant requirement."[22] But, cell phones also "present 'distinct issues,' and '[t]he prohibition of general searches is not to be confused with a demand for precise ex ante knowledge of the location and content of evidence.'"[23] So, "given the dangers of too narrowly limiting where investigators can go, such searches may be properly limited to evidence of specific [] crimes or specific types of material without necessarily requiring particular search methods and protocols."[24]

The C.A.A.F. has also recognized "that the digital contents of a cell phone and the physical cell phone itself are distinct with respect to legal questions such as admissibility, search, and seizure."[25] In order to effectuate a seizure of the digital contents of a cell phone, it is not enough for law enforcement officials "to simply take possession of the physical evidence containing the media" but must take "additional steps to protect it from unauthorized remote manipulation or destruction, whether by moving or copying the digital content to a secure location or by some other means."[26]

i. Warrantless Searches

Searches conducted pursuant to a warrant or search authorization based on probable cause are presumptively reasonable whereas warrantless searches are "presumptively unreasonable unless they fall within a few specifically established and well-delineated exceptions."[27] Military Rule of Evidence 314 identifies those well-delineated exceptions and the searches that do not require probable cause. Specifically, Mil. R. Evid. 314(e)(1) states that "[e]vidence of a search conducted without probable cause is admissible if conducted with lawful consent." Military Rule of Evidence 314(e)(3), discusses the scope of consent and provides that "[c]onsent may . . . be withdrawn at any time."

Likewise, Mil. R. Evid. 314(g)(1) provides that evidence is admissible if "seized in a search of a person who has been lawfully apprehended or if seized as a result of a reasonable protective sweep." Indeed, the Supreme Court has long recognized "the right on the part of the Government, always recognized under English and American law, to search the person of the accused when legally arrested to discover and seize the fruits or evidence of crime."[28]

Searches incident to apprehension are "full" searches and they are not invalidated by even a substantial delay between the apprehension and the search.[29] As the Supreme Court has explained:

> Once the accused is lawfully arrested and is in custody, the effects in his possession at the place of detention that were subject to search at the time and place of his arrest may lawfully be searched and seized without a warrant even though a substantial period of time has elapsed between the arrest and the subsequent administrative processing, on the one hand, and the taking of the property for use as evidence, on the other. . . . "While the legal arrest of a person should not destroy the privacy of his premises, it does—for at least a reasonable time and to a reasonable extent—take his own privacy out of the realm of protection from police interest in weapons, means of escape, and evidence."[30]

With respect to modern cell phones, however, the Supreme Court distinguished the physical cell phone from its digital contents. Arresting officers could certainly search the person arrested in order to "remove weapons" and to "seize any evidence on the arrestee's person in order to prevent its concealment or destruction."[31] But the digital contents of a cell phone do not pose a danger to arresting officers and officers can secure the cell phone to "prevent destruction of evidence while seeking a warrant."[32] Consequently, the Court held that while a cell phone is not "immune from search" a "warrant is generally required before such a search, even when a cell phone is seized incident to arrest."[33]

ii. Seizure

"A seizure of property occurs when there is some meaningful interference with an individual's possessory interests in that property."[34] Indeed, "[a] seizure requires law enforcement agents to exercise a fair degree of dominion and control over the property."[35]

In United States v. Strong,[36] the C.A.A.F. reinforced this definition of "seizure" in the context of Article 131e, UCMJ.[37] There Strong was charged with inter alia one specification of preventing an authorized seizure of property after she remotely reset her Apple iPhone to the original factory settings, after law enforcement agents had already seized the phone. The remote factory resetting effectively deleted the digital content on the phone. The C.A.A.F. affirmed Strong's conviction despite her argument that the conduct was beyond the reach of the statute since, by its terms, the statute did not apply to evidence that had already been seized. Although they agreed that Article 131e, UCMJ, only applies before a seizure is complete, the C.A.A.F. determined that the seizure was not, in fact, complete because "the seizure of [Strong's] iPhone did not constitute seizure of the digital content of the iPhone."[38] Applying the definition of "seizure" from above, the court concluded that because Strong easily manipulated the digital contents of her phone remotely, the law enforcement agents had not yet established a "fair degree of dominion and control over the digital content."[39]

The court explained that it was no longer enough for law enforcement personnel to simply take possession of the physical device containing the media in order to effectuate a seizure of that digital media; rather:

b. Exclusionary Rule and Exceptions

"The exclusionary rule is a judicially created remedy for violations of the Fourth Amendment."[41] Suppression of evidence obtained through an unlawful search "is not an automatic consequence of a Fourth Amendment violation" but rather "turns on the applicability of specific exceptions as well as the gravity of government overreach and the deterrent effect" of excluding the evidence.[42] Indeed, the exclusionary rule "applies to evidence directly obtained through violation of the Fourth Amendment as well as evidence that is the indirect product or fruit of unlawful police activity."[43]

One such exception to the exclusionary Rule is the doctrine of inevitable discovery. "The doctrine of inevitable discovery allows for the admission of illegally obtained evidence when the government 'demonstrates by a preponderance of the evidence that when the illegality occurred, the government agents possessed, or were actively pursuing, evidence or leads that would have inevitably led to the discovery of the evidence in a lawful manner.'"[44] Military Rule of Evidence 311(c)(2) codifies the inevitable discovery doctrine as follows: "Evidence that was obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure may be used when the evidence would have been obtained even if such unlawful search or seizure had not been made."

"Mere speculation and conjecture as to the inevitable discovery of the evidence is not sufficient when applying this exception."[45] Rather, the exception only applies "when the routine procedures of a law enforcement agency would inevitably find the same evidence."[46]

The doctrine of inevitable discovery also applies "where it is reasonable to conclude officers would have obtained a valid authorization had they known their actions were unlawful."[47] In United States v. Eppes, the Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) applied the inevitable discovery doctrine after concluding the search of Eppes' bag was unlawful.[48] In [48] Id. at 348.

Eppes the affidavit in support of the search authorization specifically stated it was submitted in support of a search of Eppes' person, his personal bags, and his personally owned vehicle.[49] The search authorization returned from the military magistrate only authorized the search of Eppes' person and his personally owned vehicle. The agent who swore the affidavit also drafted the search authorization.[50] In upholding the doctrine of inevitable discovery, the court concluded that "it seems incongruous" that the agent would include the bags in the affidavit but not the search authorization, and it was likely that the bag's omission from the authorization was simply a scrivener's error.[51] The court further explained that had the agent realized the discrepancy in omitting the bag from the search authorization, he would have obtained written authorization from the magistrate to search the bags.[52]

Another exception to the exclusionary rule, the Good Faith Exception, is codified in Mil. R. Evid. 311(c)(3), it reads:

> Evidence that was obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure may be used if:
>
> (A) the search or seizure resulted from an authorization to search, seize, or apprehend issued by an individual competent to issue the authorization under Mil. R. Evid. 315(d) or from a search warrant or arrest warrant issued by competent civilian authority, or from such an authorization or warrant issued by an individual whom the officials seeking and executing the authorization or warrant reasonably and with good faith believed was competent to issue the authorization or warrant;
>
> (B) the individual issuing the authorization or warrant had a substantial basis for determining the existence of probable cause or the officials seeking and executing the authorization or warrant reasonably and with good faith believed that the individual issuing the authorization or warrant had a substantial basis for determining the existence of probable cause; and
> (C) the officials seeking and executing the authorization or warrant reasonably and with good faith relied on the issuance of the authorization or warrant. Good faith is to be determined using an objective standard.[53]

A substantial basis exists when, under the totality of the circumstances, "there is a fair probability that evidence of a crime will be found at the identified location."[54] The "good-faith inquiry is confined to the objectively ascertainable question whether a reasonably well trained officer would have known that the search was illegal in light of all of the circumstances."[55]

c. Statements by the Accused

The Fifth Amendment protects an individual from being compelled to be a witness against himself.[56] In Miranda v. Arizona, the Supreme Court adopted a set of prophylactic measures to protect a suspect's Fifth Amendment right from the "inherently compelling pressures" of custodial interrogation.[57] The Court observed that custodial interrogations involved psychological pressures "which work to undermine the individual's will to resist and to compel him to speak where he would not otherwise do so freely."[58] Consequently, the Court ruled that "the prosecution may not use statements, whether exculpatory or inculpatory, stemming from a custodial interrogation of the defendant unless it demonstrates the use of procedural safeguards effective to secure the privilege against self-incrimination."[59] Thus, prior to questioning, the person in custody must be warned of the right to remain silent, that any statement made can be used against him, and that he has the right to have an attorney present.[60]

Rights advisements are required in the military community to avoid impairment of the constitutional guarantee against self-incrimination.[61] This requirement is embodied in Article 31(b), UCMJ which provides,

> No person subject to this chapter may interrogate, or request any statement from an accused or a person suspected of an offense without first informing him of the nature of the accusation and advising him that he does not have to make any statement regarding the offense of which he is accused or suspected and that any statement made by him may be used as evidence against him in a trial by court-martial.

Statements are deemed involuntary if obtained "in violation of the self-incrimination privilege or Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution, Article 31, or through the use of coercion, unlawful influence, or unlawful inducement."[62] A criminal defendant's involuntary statement is inadmissible at trial.[63]

Whether a statement is involuntary depends on the "the totality of all the surrounding circumstances—both the characteristics of the accused and the details of the interrogation."[64] In examining the totality of the circumstances, "the necessary inquiry is whether the confession is the product of an essentially free and unconstrained choice by its maker," as opposed to the product of someone whose "will was overborne and his capacity for self-determination critically impaired . . . ."[65] Factors to be considered when examining the circumstances of the interrogation include "the lack of any advice to the accused of his constitutional rights, the length of detention, the repeated and prolonged nature of the questioning, and the use of physical punishment such as the deprivation of food or sleep."[66] Conversely, when considering the personal characteristics of the accused, courts should factor "into account . . . the youth of the accused, his lack of education, or his low intelligence."[67] "The fact that a suspect chooses to speak after being informed of his rights, is of course, highly probative."[68]

Article 31(b), UCMJ warnings are required when "(1) a person subject to the UCMJ, (2) interrogates or requests any statement, (3) from an accused or person suspected of an offense, and (4) the statements regard the offense of which the person questioned is accused or suspected."[69] "Whether a person is a suspect is an objective question that is answered by considering all the facts and circumstances at the time of the interview to determine whether the . . . questioner believed or reasonably should have believed that the servicemember committed an offense."[70] "At times it can also be appropriate to consider the subjective view, looking at what the investigator, in fact, believed, and deciding if the investigator considered the interrogated person to be a suspect[,] but "[d]esignating someone a suspect for Article 31(b), UCMJ, purposes requires more than merely a hunch."[71]

"The purpose of informing a suspect or accused of the nature of the accusation is to orient him to the transaction or incident in which he is allegedly involved. It is not necessary to spell out the details of his connection with the matter under inquiry with technical nicety."[72] Indeed, the "precision and expertise of an attorney in informing the accused of the nature of the accusation under Article 31 is not required."[73]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

a. Search of the Accused's IPhone Pro Max 15

The defense contends that the search of the Accused's iPhone was unlawful and that the evidence obtained and derived from that search – including the digital contents of the phone – should be suppressed because the Accused did not consent to the search, that even if he did consent to the search, he validly revoked that consent, and that any subsequent CASS was too late because the Government had already completed the initial extraction of the digital data from the phone. The court disagrees for three reasons.

First, the court finds that the Accused consented to the search of his iPhone 15 Pro Max after it was seized during his apprehension as NCIS agents were executing a CASS on his barracks room. The Accused's failure to sign a PASS did not amount to a revocation of consent to search, and to the extent his request for the return of his phone at the end of the night was a revocation, it revoked only the Accused's consent to the phone's seizure – but the phone was not seized based on the Accused's consent. Second, even if the Accused validly revoked consent to search his phone, the search was conducted pursuant to a CASS signed on 5 June 2025. Third, even if the search and seizure of the phone was unlawful, the digital evidence found on the phone would have been inevitably discovered.

Before providing additional analyses on each of the reasons, it is important as a threshold matter to highlight the distinction between seizure of the phone and the search of its digital content. The defense argument often conflates the two yet search and seizure are "two separate concepts" and "consent to one . . . is not consent to the other; similarly, revoking consent to one does not of itself revoke consent to the other."[74] Here, the court finds that the Accused's cell phone was validly seized by NCIS during his apprehension.[75] Alternatively, NCIS had authority to seize the phone during their safety sweep of the Accused's barracks when they entered to execute the CASS. NCIS agents restrained the Accused and his roommates and searched them to ensure their safety. SA Gokey testified that she seized the phone because she believed she had probable cause. Indeed, at the time of the seizure NCIS had already interviewed the Accused on 1 June 2025. During that interview, he told NCIS that he and CS3 A.R. had been texting back and forth on 28 May 2025. He also told NCIS that he had borrowed a car from one of his roommates to take her back to her barracks room on the morning of 29 May 2025 but follow up interviews with the Accused's roommates did not corroborate that story; rather each one of them denied letting the Accused borrow a car that morning. As SA Gokey testified, she was aware that iPhones typically track a user's location. Because the Accused gave an apparent false account of his whereabouts on the morning that CS3 A.R. was last seen by anyone, and because the iPhone would provide a record of the texts the Accused exchanged with CS3 A.R. in the hours leading up to her disappearance, the iPhone's relevance was immediately apparent. The court finds that NCIS lawfully seized the Accused's iPhone. The court now turns to the search of the phone.

i. The Accused Consented to the Search of his iPhone

During the Accused's 3 June 2025 interview with NCIS, when he was asked by Special Agent Gokey it was ok if she looked at his phone, i.e., whether he'd be "cool with that", the Accused responded "yeah" and proceeded to provide agents with the pass code that unlocked his device. Had the Accused declined to provide consent he need only have refused to provide the passcode. The Accused indicated that he understood the purpose of the search and that could revoke consent at any time. At no point during the interview did the Accused express any refusal to permit the search. In evaluating the totality of the circumstances, the accused's affirmative response to NCIS' request to look at his phone followed by the Accused providing his secure pass code, and the iPhone's make and model to the special agents, evidences voluntary consent to the search of the phone.

The court also finds that the Accused's failure to sign the PASS did not amount to a revocation of his previous oral grant of consent. First, "it is clear . . . that a refusal to execute a written consent form subsequent to a voluntary oral consent does not act as an effective withdrawal of the prior oral consent."[76] When the Accused was first asked about signing the PASS it was after he had already told SA Gokey she could look at his phone and after he had already provided NCIS with the pass code to unlock the phone. The clear context of the ensuing conversation was that the Accused was concerned about the logistics of calling his mother and was not seeking to revoke his prior consent. The Accused never told agents they could not search his phone, never told the agents to stop and to give him back his phone, and never expressed anything approximating withdrawal of consent. Later when approached again about signing the PASS at the end of the interview, where the Accused again declined to sign, it was after he had just signed another PASS granting NCIS authority to search his backpack, barracks and electronic devices. Again, his refusal to sign does not indicate a revocation of his prior oral consent – he again does not tell agents to stop or to give him his phone back or to not search his phone – rather, taken in context, it reflects the fact the Accused was frustrated because he had just signed a search authorization and was ready to go home. Upon refusing to sign the PASS when asked a second time the Accused told NCIS, "No, I'm just, can we do this [ ] I'm just tryna go home." And just minutes later when asked if he'd like to call his mother, the Accused responded that he'd just wait and asked how much longer until they were able to leave. The clear import of this entire conversation is that the Accused was ready to be done with the interview and did not want to drag it on my continuing to fill out paperwork, especially after he had just filled out paperwork. But what his words and actions do not do is revoke the oral consent he gave SA Gokey for NCIS to search his phone.

Finally, the defense contends that Accused's request to have his phone returned once he was escorted back to his barracks room amounted to a revocation of his consent to search. Even if this question amounted to revocation of the Accused's consent, it affects only the seizure of the phone and not the search. The C.A.A.F. analyzed a similar situation in United States v. Eugene.[77] In that case, Eugene's wife turned over Eugene's cell phone to law enforcement personnel after she discovered what she believed to be contraband images and messages. Eugene had left the phone with his wife while he was on a field exercise. A routine search of the phone did not reveal anything of evidentiary value and four days after it was turned over, Eugene was interviewed and asked for his phone to be returned. Law enforcement denied his request and did a more thorough search several months later and found several items of evidentiary value that were later used against Eugene at his court-martial. The C.A.A.F. affirmed Eugene's conviction and the trial judge's denial of his motion to suppress the evidence found during the search, reasoning that Eugene's request for the return of his phone "implicated the seizure of the phone and not the search."[78] The C.A.A.F. pointed out that Eugene "never told [the law enforcement officials] not to search his cell phone or that he refused consent to search his cell phone[,]" instead, Eugene merely "asked . . . if he could have his cell phone back, most likely so he could continue to use it."[79]

Here, like the accused in Eugene, and assuming the Accused asked for his phone back so that he could call his mother, at most he was revoking consent to seize and not consent to search. But as noted previously, the Accused's cell phone was not seized based upon his consent, but was seized incident to his apprehension, or alternatively as part of a safety sweep prior to executing the CASS upon his barracks room. Accordingly, the Accused never revoked consent to search his phone.

ii. The Search of the iPhone was Conducted Pursuant to a CASS

Regardless of whether the Accused consented to the search of his phone or not, the actual search of the digital media contained on his phone was done pursuant to a CASS signed by the installation commander. In their motion, the defense does not contest the validity of this CASS but argues that the actual search of the phone was done prior to the CASS. This argument misapprehends the nature of the search for digital evidence.

As our superior courts have made clear, the physical phone and the digital contents of the phone are "distinct with respect to legal questions such as admissibility, search, and seizure."[80] On 4 June 2025, when an NCIS DFE obtained a full file system extraction of the Accused's iPhone, he was making a copy of the digital content of the iPhone. This act is a logical extension of the seizure of the iPhone and not a search of the contents of the digital media. As the C.A.A.F. made clear in Strong, simply seizing a physical phone does "not constitute seizure of the digital content of the iPhone."[81] Rather, to properly seize the digital media of a cellular phone and to, therefore, "exercise a fair degree of dominion and control over the property[,]"[82] NCIS "had to take additional steps to protect it from unauthorized remote manipulation or destruction" by "moving or copying the digital content to a secure location[.]"[83] That's exactly what happened here.

Only after the CASS was signed on 5 June 2025, did NCIS begin their search of the digital contents of the Accused's cell phone, ultimately leading to the evidence the defense now seeks to suppress. Because the full file system digital extraction was not a search of the contents of the digital media but was merely a step necessary to seize the digital media, and a valid CASS was executed prior to the search, the search was not unlawful.

iii. Doctrine of Inevitable Discovery Applies

Even if the search and seizure of the Accused's iPhone 15 Pro Max was unlawful and violated the Fourth Amendment, the evidence obtained and derived from the illegal search would still not be excluded because it would have been inevitably discovered.[84]

Indeed, even if the Accused's iPhone had never been seized, and independent of the Accused's 3 or 6 June 2025 NCIS interrogations, NCIS were taking investigatory steps that would have ultimately led to seizure and then a search of the Accused's iPhone 15 Pro Max. On 4 June 2025, NCIS obtained an Order pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 2703(d) for T-Mobile Records pertaining to both CS3 A.R. and the Accused's cell phone accounts. Those records would provide device locations and reveal that the Accused contacted CS3 A.R. a total of 5 times between 1902 and 1904 on 1 June 2025 – after she had been missing for over two days. Also on 4 June 2025, LPR queries on the two vehicles the Accused had been known to borrow revealed that one of those vehicles belonging to AR Calisse was captured on Hampton Blvd in Norfolk in the early morning hours of 2 June 2025. AR Calisse told investigators that the Accused borrowed his car on the night of 1 June but did not return to base with it until 2 June making AR Calisse late for work. This evidence suggests that the Accused contacted CS3 A.R. via his cell phone after she had been reporting missing and more than two days after anyone had seen her, and then mere hours later had driven off-base in a borrowed car to an unknown location. This evidence alone would have made the Accused's cell phone extremely relevant and given NCIS probable cause to seek a CASS.

NCIS also conducted a scene examination in the hallway and stairwell closest to the Accused's barracks room in the X-2 Barracks on 4 June 2025. Multiple areas of reddish brown staining were observed in the stairwell. Subsequent DNA testing revealed that the reddish-brown substance matched CS3 A.R's DNA. Likewise, the suspected blood found in the Accused's closet during the search of his barracks room indicated that the blood found was a mixture originating from two individuals – both the Accused and CS3 A.R.'s DNA profile were included as contributors to this mixture. Again these forensic findings coupled with the knowledge that the Accused and CS3 A.R. were texting back and forth on 28 May 2025 (at the very least) would have given NCIS probable cause to search the Accused's iPhone since it was capable of storing communications between him and CS3 A.R., as well as photographs, and geolocation data related to CS3 A.R.'s disappearance.

In sum, the Government has "demonstrate[d] by a preponderance of the evidence that [if an] illegality occurred, the government agents possessed, or were actively pursuing, evidence or leads that would have inevitably led to the discovery of the evidence in a lawful manner."[85]

b. Search of the Accused's Barracks Room

The defense's argument for suppression of evidence obtained during the search of the Accused's barracks room is three-fold. First, the CASS was overboard and without particularity [84] In their motion to suppress, the defense does not mention the Inevitable Discovery doctrine.

[85] Eppes, 77 M.J. at 347 (internal quotation marks, citations, and alterations omitted).

because it permitted a "limitless search of anything and everything[;]"[86] second, the blood found on the floor of the Accused's room and closet were found outside the scope of the CASS; and third, the CASS was not supported by probable cause.

Regarding the defense's overbreadth argument, the CASS was issued to investigate CS3 A.R's alleged unauthorized absence. The supporting affidavit for the CASS details CS3 A.R.'s last known movements and communications and indicate she was with the Accused in his barracks room on the night of 28 May 2025 and into the early morning hours of 29 May 2025. The Accused's roommates saw an unknown female in some state of undress lying asleep with the Accused on the floor in the common area of their shared barracks room. FCC Parker saw the Accused and CS3 A.R. on the morning of 29 May 2025 at approximately 0900 and she was in the Accused's bed. Given the nature of the evidence available to NCIS and the fact that they were searching for a missing person, the CASS authorized NCIS to search for traces of CS3 A.R.; including specifically, "items containing or could contain [DNA], blood or other bodily fluids and trace biological evidence" and "[o]ther evidence, instrumentalities or fruits of the alleged offense."[87] It is the search for these items that defense contends turns the search into a limitless void rendering the CASS invalid. The defense argues that by allowing such a general search, the CASS fails C.A.A.F.'s requirement that there be some affirmative limitation to the scope of the search. Indeed, the Supreme Court has explained that the particularity requirement of the Fourth Amendment is a defining aspect of search and seizure law:

> The manifest purpose of this particularity requirement was to prevent general searches. By limiting the authorization to search to the specific areas and things for which there is probable cause to search, the requirement ensures that the search will be carefully tailored to its justifications, and will not take on the character of the wide-ranging exploratory searches the Framers intended to prohibit.[88]

But the defense argument fails, because the CASS does limit the search to only the Accused's barracks room, specifically Barracks X-2, Room 335B and the common area, and to only evidence related to CS3 A.R.'s disappearance and alleged Unauthorized Absence. Searching for potential biological evidence such as blood or DNA in the last place where a person believed to be the missing person was seen is a logical step when seeking evidence related to a missing or UA individual. The Accused's barracks room was the last place a woman believed to be CS3 A.R. was seen, so it was reasonable to search for trace evidence of her presence there.

With respect to the scope of the search, the defense suggests that searching the Barracks room floor, including the closet floor, was outside the scope of the search, especially given the fact that the NCIS used dogs, Bluestar reagent, and blacklights. This argument is without merit. The CASS authorized a search of the barracks room. The floor and closet (even a locked closet) are part of the barracks room and are certainly places where law enforcement agents might find items they were authorized to seize.[89] After all, a person in a UA status may hide in the closet. Likewise, the CASS does not, and need not, identify the means by which law enforcement agents might search the area they are authorized to search and the agents were well within their authority to employ the various tools at their disposal to conduct the search.

[86] AE XL at 7.
[87] AE LIX at 34.
[88] Maryland v. Garrison, 480 U.S. 79, 84 (1987).

Next, the court has no issue finding probable cause for the search of the Accused's barracks room. While the defense attempts to recast the search as a quest for evidence related to the Accused's alleged unauthorized absence and then points out at the time the CASS was signed, the Accused was not UA, this is an inaccurate understanding of the facts surrounding the issuance of the CASS. The CASS was issued to search for evidence related to CS3 A.R.'s UA. To be constitutionally valid, a search authorization can only be issued "when, based on the totality of the circumstances, a common-sense judgment would lead to the conclusion that there is a fair probability that evidence of a crime will be found at the identified location."[90] Here, based on the totality of circumstances and common sense, there was a fair probability that evidence of CS3 A.R.'s disappearance or UA would be found in the last place she was seen – the Accused's barracks room.

Even if the CASS was somehow deficient, the Good Faith exception would apply. First, there was a search authorization issued by a person with authority to issue it, the Commanding Officer (CO) of Naval Station Norfolk was authorized to issue search authorizations for barracks facilities on his installation, and Barracks X-2 is onboard Naval Station Norfolk. Second, the CO had a substantial basis for determining the existence of probable cause existed because under the totality of the circumstances, there was a fair probability that evidence of CS3 A.R.'s UA would be found where she was last seen. And finally, the NCIS search team reasonably and in good faith relied on the issuance of the authorization. In short, Special Agent Gokey presented a proper affidavit to the CO, and her team relied on it; she would not have known that the search was illegal in light of all of the circumstances.

Finally, the inevitable discovery doctrine applies to the search of the Accused's barracks room. First, contemporaneous with the ongoing search, the Accused Copeland signed a PASS for the search of his barracks room during his 3 June interview. That fact alone would have led to the discovery of the evidence obtained during the NCIS search of his barracks room. Moreover, other independent, contemporaneously developing evidence would have produced probable cause for a valid search authorization of the Accused's barracks room. On 1 June 2025 during his initial interview with NCIS, the Accused voluntarily told law enforcement that he had been texting the victim on 28 May 2025, and during his 3 June 2025 NCIS interrogation he indicated he texted her on 1 June 2025 letting her know they were marked UA. Independent of those statements, on 4 June 2025, a 2703(d) order from AT&T confirmed that the Accused contacted CS3 A.R.'s phone multiple times on the evening of 1 June 2025. Also on 3 June, investigators learned that the Accused borrowed his roommate's car overnight, with license-plate-reader data [89] The agents were authorized to seize: 1. Bed linens, sheets, towels, blankets, pillows that appear to have used or were used recently; 2. Used condoms and condom wrappers; 3. Any clothing appearing to belong to a female; 4. Items containing or could reasonably contain DNA, blood or other bodily fluids and trace biological evidence; 5 Black rimmed glasses; and 6. Other evidence instrumentalities or fruits of the alleged offense. See AE 59 at 161.

placing the vehicle on Hampton Boulevard outside Naval Station Norfolk heading to an unknown location mere hours after the Accused had been texting CS3 A.R.'s phone. Most significantly, law enforcement discovered blood in the hallway and stairwell immediately outside the barracks room—locations requiring no search authorization—and subsequent testing confirmed the blood belonged to CS3 A.R.. These facts, taken together, would have inevitably led to the issuance of a search authorization for the barracks room and the contested evidence would have been lawfully discovered regardless of any alleged defect in the initial search or search authorization.

c. Statements made by the Accused during his 3 and 6 June 2025 NCIS Interviews

i. 3 June 2025 NCIS Interview

The defense contends that the statements made by the Accused during his 3 June 2025 interview were made in violation of his rights under the Fifth Amendment and Article 31(b), UCMJ and must be suppressed. First the defense argues that the NCIS agents failed to notify the Accused of all charges they suspected him of committing. Second, the defense argues that because the interview took place late at night and because the Accused was tired, his statements were not voluntary.

First, the Accused was notified that he was suspected of violating Article 86, Unauthorized Absence, and Article 107, False Official Statement. At the time of his 3 June 2025 interview, CS3 A.R. had only been missing five days and there was no direct evidence she was deceased or that the Accused had any role in her possible death. At the time of the interview, the interviewing agents were not aware that blood was found in the Accused's barracks room and were certainly not aware that that blood would later be tested and confirm the presence of CS3 A.R.'s DNA. Rather, NCIS was conducting a missing person investigation and were concerned, based on their interviews with ET3 Rich, HT3 Gillespie, and CS3 A.R.'s mother, about CS3 A.R.'s mental health and well-being. As Special Agent Gokey testified, she had no reason to believe "that something terrible had happened to [CS3 A.R.]" when she sat down to interview the Accused on 3 June 2025 and that she was just trying to find CS3 A.R. Accordingly, Special Agent Gokey warned the Accused based on the crimes she did suspect him of, UA and providing a false official statement, based on a discrepancy between his statement on 1 June 2025 that he had borrowed a roommate's car to take CS3 A.R. back to her barracks room, and his roommates denying that they had let him borrow a car. In short, Special Agent Gokey did not advise the Accused that he was suspected of murder because she did not believe that the Accused committed murder, and that belief was entirely reasonable given the facts known to NCIS at the time.

Next, the court finds that based upon the totality of circumstances, the Accused's statements to NCIS during his 3 June 2025 interview were voluntary. Although the interview began late in the evening, prior to arriving at NCIS, the Accused was relaxing in his barracks room, playing video games and watching TV. Once he arrived at NCIS Field Office he was taken to an interrogation room where he was asked if he had eaten anything and given snacks and a drink. He was properly advised of his Article 31(b) rights by Special Agent Gokey, stated he understood them and signed the written warning. Throughout the three-hour interview there were several breaks, and although during the longer breaks the Accused appeared to sleep or take naps, he was alert and was able to cogently and confidently answer questions when asked and demonstrated full capacity to understand the situation, the rights he had been advised of, and the consequences of speaking with investigators. Notably, when the Accused wanted to decline participation, as when he declined to sign the PASS for his iPhone, he did. Under these circumstances and considering both his personal characteristics and the conditions of the interview, the totality of the evidence demonstrates that his statements were voluntary. The government has carried their burden to demonstrate that the statements were made voluntarily and are admissible.

ii. 6 June 2025 NCIS Interview

The defense's argument here is similar to their 3 June argument. First, that agents failed to advise the Accused that he was suspected of murder, despite the fact that blood was found in his closet and on his bathroom sink; and second, that his statements on 6 June were not voluntary because the Accused made it clear to NCIS that his mental health was rapidly deteriorating and he did not want to be answering questions.

Again, the courts finds these arguments unpersuasive. Prior to interrogating the Accused, NCIS agents provided him with his Article 31(b) rights advisement and advised him that he was suspected of making false official statements and the knowledge of the possible death of CS3 A.R. At the time of this interview, CS3 A.R.'s body had still not been found and there was no DNA analysis that linked any blood found in the Accused's barracks room to anyone. After all, it is altogether unsurprising that trace amounts of blood might be found in someone's sink, or in someone's closet where clothes and shoes are stored, or even in other locations in a barracks room where individual's live and carry on their daily activities. It is a "long leap" from the presence of blood in places where blood is routinely found and some inconsistent statements about your own whereabouts to murder.[91] Again, whether a person is suspected of an offense is an objective question and given the facts known to NCIS at this time, it was entirely reasonable to not consider the Accused a murder suspect. And the NCIS Agents here did not, in fact, consider him a murder suspect and told him so. When offering the Accused a polygraph exam, the NCIS agent specifically told the Accused that he was not "suspected of causing harm to [CS3 A.R.]" but the polygraph would "make sure you didn't."[92]

Nonetheless, recognizing that by 6 June 2025, CS3 A.R. had been missing for eight days and significant investigative steps had failed to find her, NCIS did advise the Accused that he was suspected of having knowledge of her possible death. Advising a suspect that law enforcement believes he may have knowledge of a person's death is not a peripheral or ambiguous statement; it alerts any reasonable person that investigators are exploring the circumstances surrounding that person's disappearance, possible demise, and the suspect's potential involvement in or awareness of those circumstances. In practical effect, such an advisement directs the Accused to the same factual core that underlies an Article 118 inquiry—the events leading to the victim's disappearance, the Accused's last known interactions with her, and whether he played any role in or has information about her death. Again, "[t]he purpose of informing a suspect or accused of the nature of the accusation is to orient him to the transaction or incident in which he is allegedly involved[; i]t is not necessary to spell out the details of his connection with the matter under inquiry with technical nicety."[93] The "precision and expertise of an attorney in informing the accused of the nature of the accusation under Article 31 is not required[,]"[94] and the agent's warning in this case certainly informed the Accused of the nature of the accusation and oriented him to the gravity and nature of the suspected misconduct.

[91] Metz, 84 M.J. at 427.
[92] AE XXXIII at 14.

Finally, the court concludes that the 6 June 2025 statements by the Accused were voluntary. At the beginning of the interview, Agents told the Accused that he was in full control of the process and emphasized that he could terminate the interview at any time. Indeed, when asked whether he would submit to a polygraph exam, the Accused asked questions and ultimately declined to participate in a polygraph exam but agreed to continue talking with the NCIS agents. That the Accused was able to ask informed questions about and then affirmatively decline participation in polygraph exam evidences his ability to refuse to cooperate with law enforcement when he chooses to. That he then continued his interview with NCIS convinces the court that the statements he made were voluntary.

6. Ruling.

The Defense Motions to Suppress evidence obtained and derived from the search of the Accused's iPhone 15 Pro Max, and his barracks room, as well as the Defense Motion to Suppress the statements the Accused made during his 3 and 6 June 2025 NCIS interviews, as detailed herein, are hereby DENIED.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

i. Any other information that could be used to identify a specific person other than the accused.

*If the report of preliminary hearing or record of trial contains exhibits, proceedings, or other materials ordered sealed by the preliminary hearing officer or military judge, counsel for the Government, the court reporter, or trial counsel shall cause such materials to be sealed to prevent unauthorized examination or disclosure, pursuant to R.C.M. 1113. Sealed material shall be properly marked, individually placed in separate envelopes with a copy of the preliminary hearing officer or military judge sealing order affixed to it, and inserted at the appropriate place in the record of trial. Do not duplicate sealed material to include it in any copy of the record of trial. Instead, insert a copy of the sealing order in lieu of any sealed material, in any copies of the record of trial.

DIVIDERS ARE NOT NECESSARY TO SEPARATE EACH SECTION. IF USED, THEY CAN BE PAPER RATHER THAN CARD STOCK. IF A PARTICULAR COMPONENT IS NOT APPLICABLE IN THE RECORD OF TRIAL, SUCH AS AN ARTICLE 32 HEARING, EXHIBITS NOT ADMITTED, POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND VACATION HEARINGS, DO NOT INSERT A DIVIDER OR PLACEHOLDER.

FRONT AND BACK COVER MUST BE ON BLUE CARDS STOCK AND LABELED WITH GUM LABELS.

Binding. Each volume of a record of trial should be no more than 1.5 inches thick and bound at the top with metal or plastic fasteners. DO NOT interlace or "piggy-back" prong fasteners to create an oversized volume. DO NOT place hole punches where it covers up the evidence or language in the transcript. When it becomes necessary to assemble the record of trial in more than one volume, the volumes will be numbered consecutively, on the front cover, as illustrated below:

Volume 1 of 4 (Pages 1-250)
Volume 2 of 4 (Pages 251-400)
Volume 3 of 4 (Pages 401-652)
Volume 4 of 4 (Pages 653-901 and Exhibits)

Make the first volume of a multi-volume record an inch thick or smaller to allow for inclusion of post-trial documents. Limit subsequent volumes to 1.5 inches, unless dividing them requires assembling an additional volume smaller than a half inch.

Label the upper right-hand corner or the Preparation and Certification of Record of Trial Form (enclosure (8)) to reflect which copy it is, i.e., "ORIGINAL," "ACCUSED," "REVIEW" etc.

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION IN LIMINE TO EXCLUDE EVIDENCE PURSUANT TO MIL. R. EVID. 404(b) 28 JANUARY 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed a motion to exclude evidence of prior crimes, wrongs, or other acts of the accused that the Government indicated it intended to introduce at trial.[1] The Government responded on 5 December 2025[2] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 10 December 2025.

2. Burden.

As the proponent of the evidence, the Government bears the burden of proof to establish any factual matters regarding the admissibility of any evidence offered pursuant to Military Rule of Evidence (Mil. R. Evid.) 404(b) by a preponderance of the evidence.[3]

[1] Appellate Exhibit (AE) VIII.

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

Facts Related to Charged Misconduct

a. On 26 July 2024, NCIS was notified of an alleged aggravated sexual contact and abusive sexual contact perpetrated upon ABHAN C.R. by the Accused. The alleged conduct occurred on 23 July 2024 at 0200 aboard the USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75).

b. On 23 July 2024, ABHAN C.R. was with her boyfriend on the mess decks of USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN 75). After he left to go to bed, the Accused sent Snapchat messages to ABHAN C.R. seeking to speak with her about her relationship with her boyfriend. ABHAN C.R. agreed. The two went to the fantail where the Accused told ABHAN C.R. that her boyfriend was not treating her properly and that she should date him instead. ABHAN C.R. declined.

c. Next, ABHAN C.R. alleges that after discussing her relationship, the Accused began to pretend to arrest her. The Accused forced ABHAN C.R.'s hands behind her back and grabbed her vulva over the clothing. According to ABHAN C.R., she punched the Accused in the stomach and in response, the Accused stated he heard that ABHAN C.R. liked to be choked and applied pressure to her neck with a hand, restricting her breathing. ABHAN C.R. pushed the Accused's hand away, but he kept replacing it and applying pressure. The Accused simultaneously kissed her on the lips and grabbed her breasts, buttocks, and vulva over the clothing. After about a minute, the Accused stopped and ABHAN C.R. advised she was going to bed and left the Accused on the fantail. ABHAN C.R. reported the incident to her boyfriend and filed a formal report on 26 July 2024. ABHAN C.R.'s boyfriend described observing bruising on ABHAN C.R. after the incident.

d. ABHAN C.R.'s complaint forms the basis for Charge 1, Specifications 1 and 2; and the sole Specification of Charge II.

e. On 6 November 2024, NCIS was notified of an alleged sexual assault aboard the USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN-75) that had occurred on 4 November 2024 at a port call in Oslo, Norway. CSSN S.S. alleged that the Accused was the perpetrator.

f. On the evening of 4 November 2024, the Accused arrived at a bar and began to hang out with CSSN S.S. and others during a liberty call in Oslo, Norway. CSSN S.S. was extremely intoxicated and could not recall the events of the evening. The next day, several individuals approached her and told her that the Accused had shown them a video he recorded on his phone of him having sex with her in the bathroom of the bar the night prior. CSSN S.S. was described as bent over and the Accused was penetrating her vagina from behind with his penis. CSSN S.S. did not recall this occurring and confronted the Accused via text and over the phone. The Accused denied having sex with her or recording the encounter and stated that CSSN S.S. was trying to ruin his life and that he was going kill himself.

g. After he was accused of sexual assault by CSSN S.S., the Accused went on liberty with CSSN Kaulise Cousins, USN. The Accused told CSSN Cousins about the allegations, that his "life was over," refused to return to the ship, and tried to kill himself by walking in front of approximately three trains until security from the ship finally retrieved him.

h. After a report was made on 6 November 2024 by CSSN S.S., a search of the Accused was conducted to obtain his cell phone. The Accused advised he did not have the phone and had given it to CSSN Cousins. CSSN Cousins was questioned about the phone immediately after and he denied that the Accused had provided him with his phone at any point. Subsequent searches of CSSN Cousins, the Accused's berthing, rack, and locker spaces failed to recover the phone.

i. In an 18 November 2024, interview with NCIS, the Accused admitted to having consensual sex with CSSN S.S. In this interview, the Accused repeated that he had given his phone to CSSN Cousins before stating his phone had fallen out of pocket, shattered, and was lost.

j. In a subsequent interview with NCIS on 20 December 2024, the Accused stated that he obtained a new phone while in a port call in Marseille, France and provided NCIS with digital evidence he was able to access via iCloud. Despite showing videos from that night to NCIS, the Accused said he no longer had access to the video he took of his sexual encounter with CSSN S.S.

k. CSSN S.S.'s complaint forms the basis of Charge I, Specification 4; Charge III, Specifications 1 and 2; and Charge IV, Specification 1.

l. On 11 April 2025, CS3 S.R. notified Naval Station Norfolk Security forces that she was assaulted by the Accused, specifically alleging that he had "choked" her.

m. On 11 April 2025, CSSN S.R. was dating the Accused and was on his barracks room couch with him while he was asleep. According to CSSN S.R., she learned that the Accused was also dating someone else and then woke the Accused up and confronted him. When she sought to leave, the Accused pushed her down on the couch and strangled her with both hands for about ten seconds.

n. CSSN S.R.'s allegations form the basis for Charge V, Specifications 1 and 2.

o. On 31 May 2025, NCIS was notified that CS3 A.R. was a missing person and they began their investigation into her whereabouts. According to several witnesses, CS3 A.R. was last seen with the Accused.

p. On 28 May 2025, CS3 A.R. left work in the morning, shopped at Target with a friend, and later went to the barracks room of the Accused to cook tacos. CS3 A.R. arrived at the Accused's barracks room on the evening of 28 May 2025 onboard Naval Station Norfolk.

q. At 2322 on 28 May 2025, CS3 A.R. sent a text message to an ex-boyfriend, HT3 Michael Gillispie, USN that read "Fuck you." CS3 A.R. did not respond to HT3 Gillispie after that message, despite numerous attempts by HT3 Gillispie to contact her.

r. At 0214 on 29 May 2025, CS3 A.R. called an ex-boyfriend, ET3 Daniel Rich, USN. ET3 Rich explained that CS3 A.R. was "freaking out" and requesting to be picked up "ASAP." According to ET3 Rich, CS3 A.R. was frantic and crying and just kept repeating that she needed to be picked up as soon as possible. ET3 Rich explained that during the call with CS3 A.R., a frantic male voice came on the phone and asked how far away he was, to which ET3 Rich replied he was 10-15 minutes away. The phone was handed back to CS3 A.R., and ET3 Rich told her he was on his way, and the call ended. CS3 A.R. always shared her location with ET3 Rich, but ET3 Rich did not know who she was with or what room she was in exactly.

s. When ET3 Rich passed through the gate entering Naval Station Norfolk at approximately 0228, he called CS3 A.R. repeatedly, but she did not answer her phone. ET3 Rich then notified base police of the situation and connected with HT3 Gillispie to help search for CS3 A.R. Despite hours of searching, CS3 A.R. was not located. Her phone stopped pinging at 0456 on 29 May 2025, indicating it was dead or turned off.

t. The Accused's barracks room was comprised of a common area flanked on either side by two bedrooms, with each bedroom containing two roommates. The Accused shared a room with YN3 Sean Monoghan, USN. The other bedroom was occupied by PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz, USN, and AR John Calisse, USN. AR Calisse reported hearing karaoke between the Accused and an unknown female around 0200 on 29 May 2025, but did not investigate.

u. PSSN Gordillocruz arrived back to the barracks room at approximately 0400 on 29 May 2025. He advised that all of the lights were off and he did not see anyone at that time. At around 0500, YN3 Monoghan got up to go to work and he realized that no one was in the Accused's bed. He departed his bedroom at approximately 0640 and saw the Accused on the floor of the living room asleep with a girl he did not recognize, both in a state of undress. Between 0530 and 0645, both PSSN Gordillocruz and AR Calisse departed their room. They observed a female laying nearly fully naked with her breasts exposed on the floor of the common area with CSSN Copeland laying naked face up with his head on her torso or thigh. AR Calisse was surprised they did not wake up when they entered the room. YN3 Monoghan asked the Accused later if they were naked and the Accused laughed it off and said they were in underwear.

v. At 0852, FCC Bradley Parker, USN, arrived at the Accused's barracks to determine why he was not at work on the ship. At the time, FCC Parker was aware the CS3 A.R. was also missing and was seeking help the night prior from ET3 Rich. FCC Parker said that the Accused appeared to have just woken up when he answered the door. FCC Parker told the Accused to come to work, but the Accused told FCC Parker he was not alone and indicated he was with CS3 A.R. FCC Parker observed CS3 A.R. on the Accused's bed wrapped in a blanket with her feet exposed. FCC Parker and the Accused then spoke in the common area and he told him to ensure that CS3 A.R. was taken care of and to come to work. FCC Parker left after only being present for a few minutes.

w. The Accused told FCC Parker that CS3 A.R. had come over after calling him looking for someone to talk to, but she forgot her phone when he picked her up. He also told FCC Parker they fell asleep watching movies and that his alarm did not go off because his phone had died overnight.

x. The Accused next spoke with FCC Parker at 1241 on 29 May 2025 and advised that he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks. Despite repeated notifications to come to the ship over the weekend, the Accused did not do so.

y. On the afternoon of 1 June 2025, base police searched the Accused's barracks for the Accused and located him in a bathroom near a lounge and advised him to report to work, which he did later that same day. After returning to his barracks at around 2100 on 1 June 2025, the Accused asked to borrow AR Calisse's car, a white Jeep, and AR Calisse agreed and gave him the vehicle's keys.

z. At approximately 0418 on 2 June 2025, the Accused's Iphone 15 Pro Max left base and traveled south down Hampton Boulevard. The user of the Iphone 15 Pro Max searched for Parks and Trails while it traveled. At approximately 0436-0440, the Accused's Iphone 15 Pro Max was located in a parking lot near a wooded area, and AR Calisse's jeep was photographed on a street camera at 0440 in the same area as the Iphone 15 Pro Max.

aa. At 0447, the Iphone 15 Pro Max user marked a location on Apple Maps and looked for directions to that location. At 0448, the Iphone 15 Pro Max was placed in Airplane mode and taken off Airplane mode at approximately 0516. During the time the Iphone 15 Pro Max was in Airplane mode, the phone recorded health data indicating that between 0500 and 0515, the phone was near the area of 2852 Cary Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia. The Iphone 15 Pro Max user took a screenshot of the pinned location in the wooded area near 2852 Cary Avenue.

ab. On 9 June, investigators went to the location near 2852 Cary Avenue that had been marked in the Iphone 15 Pro Max and discovered the remains of CS3 A.R. in a black bag. A search of the Accused's barracks room revealed the presence of CS3 A.R.'s blood in the Accused's closet and in the stairwell leading to the barracks parking lot.

ac. The Accused spoke with NCIS on 1 June, 3 June and 6 June 2025. On 1 June, he told NCIS that he and CS3 A.R. slept in his bed on the night of 28 May 2025/early morning of 29 May 2025, that they did not have sex, and was awoken by FCC Parker later that morning. He also told NCIS that he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks room later that morning. On 3 June, the Accused told investigators he never said he dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks and that CS3 A.R. had left under her own power. He also denied knowing that CS3 A.R. had called ET3 Rich.

ad. Two autopsies were conducted in this case and neither reached a conclusive cause of death because of the decomposition of CS3 A.R.'s remains. Based on their observations, blunt force trauma, stabbing, shooting, death by natural causes, and overdose could effectively be ruled out, although the second pathologist stated that evidence of blunt force trauma may have simply decomposed. Both medical examiners opined that death by asphyxiation, such as by strangulation or suffocation, was possible.

ae. The investigation in CS3 A.R.'s death led to the Charge IV, Specifications 2 and 3; Charge VI, Specification 1 and 2; and the sole Specification of Charge VII.

af. On 24 June 2025, NCIS searched the Accused's phone and located a phone number they believed belonged to a minor "based off inferences" related to the content of the messages. When NCIS called the number, they determined Y.J. was not a minor, though they asked her what she knew about the Accused. Y.J. stated that the Accused had sexually assaulted her in his barracks room in April or May 2025.

ag. According to Y.J., on 25 May 2025, she was at the Accused's barracks room with two other Sailors – LSSA Omeri Smoot and AEAN Jdyn Bradford. When the Accused arrived, he pulled Y.J. into his room and asked Y.J. to perform oral sex. Y.J. told investigators that she refused because she was tired, but that the Accused then penetrated her vagina without her consent, despite her telling him to stop. The other two Sailors could hear him telling her to stop and entered the room to break them up before one the Sailors took Y.J. home.

ah. Y.J.'s allegations form the basis for Specification 4 of Charge I.

Facts Related to Uncharged Misconduct

ai. In May 2022, when the Accused was in high school, a fellow student accused him of unlawfully recording a sexual encounter between them with his phone. Investigators obtained a warrant for the Accused's phone after he admitted to recording it, but the Accused advised his mother had taken his phone away preventing him from giving it to investigators. The Accused's mother advised that she told the Accused to put his phone on her dresser but found out he had only put the case for his phone there instead. The Accused then advised he had misplaced the phone. The phone was never recovered.

aj. In June 2022, L.L. alleged that the Accused was at her home and they were sitting on the couch together. She alleges that the Accused pressured her to hug and kissed her without her consent.[4] The Accused told investigators that he was with L.L. on the couch but denied touching her inappropriately and denied kissing L.L. without consent, only that he attempted to kiss her. The Accused also told investigators that L.L. had sent him nude photographs and messages asking to be "fucked," but when asked, the Accused advised he did not have those messages.

ak. Additional facts necessary to resolve the issue are contained below.

4. Statement of Law.

Evidence is relevant if it has any tendency to make a fact of consequence in determining the action more or less probable than it would be without the evidence.[5] Relevant evidence is generally admissible absent some other rule to the contrary.[6] Relevant evidence may be excluded where its probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of, among other things, causing unfair prejudice, confusing the issues, or misleading the members.[7]

Res gestae evidence is evidence of "the events at issue, or other events contemporaneous with them."[8] Such evidence is intrinsic to the alleged offense or offenses because it is "inexorably intertwined with the alleged offense itself . . . [and] becomes part of the res gestae of the offense."[9] Res gestae evidence allows the parties to present the full picture to the finder of fact to avoid confusion and gaps in the narrative.[10]

Extrinsic evidence of other crimes, wrongs, or acts is not admissible to prove a person's character to show the person acted in conformity with that aspect of his or her character on a particular occasion.[11] However, Military Rule of Evidence (Mil. R. Evid.) 404(b) provides that such evidence may be admitted for another non-character purpose, such as proving motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, identity, knowledge, absence of mistake, or lack of accident.[12] Mil. R. Evid. 404(b) "is a rule of inclusion rather than exclusion" and "permits admission of relevant evidence of other crimes or acts unless the evidence tends to prove only criminal disposition."[13] "The test for admissibility of uncharged acts is 'whether the evidence of the misconduct is offered for some purpose other than to demonstrate the accused's predisposition to crime and thereby to suggest that the fact finder infer that he is guilty, as charged, because he is predisposed to commit similar offenses.'"[14]

To introduce evidence of a "motive," the Government must show that the act evidenced "an emotional need in that person which could have incited or stimulated that person to do that act in satisfaction of that emotion."[15] The prior acts must be the type which reasonably could be viewed as "the expression and effect of the existing internal emotion."[16] Moreover, this same motive must be shown to have existed in appellant at the time of the subsequently charged acts.[17]

Intent evidence asks whether the Accused's "state of mind in the commission of both the charged and uncharged acts was sufficiently similar to make the evidence of the prior acts relevant on the intent element of the charged offenses."[18] In short, "[w]here evidence of other crimes is offered to prove intent, the relevancy of the other crime is derived from the accused's possession of the same state of mind in the commission of both crimes."[19]

To be relevant as evidence of a common plan or scheme, the other acts must be sufficiently similar to, or intertwined with, the charged acts such that: (1) "the uncharged acts . . . establish a 'plan' of which the charged act is an additional manifestation," or (2) the uncharged acts are evidence that the Accused had devised some system or method of committing the charged acts.[20] In contrast, if the uncharged acts and the charged acts "merely share some common elements," then the uncharged acts do not establish a common plan or scheme.[21] Additionally, the common plan or scheme must make a fact of consequence to the action more probable or less probable that without the evidence of the common plan or scheme, in other words the plan or scheme itself must be relevant.[22]

In United States v. Cook, the CAAF concluded that one of the other purposes for which uncharged misconduct may be admissible is evidence of consciousness of guilt.[23] Evidence of consciousness of guilt is "an acceptable form of circumstantial evidence used to show 'awareness of an accused that he or she has engaged in blameworthy conduct.'"[24] "By contrast, propensity evidence is a generally impermissible form of character evidence in which members 'prove a person's character in order to show that on a particular occasion the person acted in accordance with the character.'"[25]

Military courts apply a three-prong analysis from United States v. Reynolds to determine whether evidence may be admissible under M.R.E. 404(b):

(1) Does the evidence reasonably support a finding by the court members that the accused committed the other crime, wrong, or act?

(2) What fact of consequence is made more probable or less probable by the existence of this evidence?

(3) Is the probative value substantially outweighed by one of the following dangers: unfair prejudice, confusing the issues, misleading the members, undue delay, wasting time, or needlessly presenting cumulative evidence?[26]

To be admissible the evidence at issue must fulfill all three prongs.[27] "The first and second prongs address the logical relevance of the evidence."[28] "The third prong ensures that the evidence is legally, as well as logically, relevant."[29] When analyzing the last prong – legal relevance under Mil. R. Evid. 403 – military courts should consider the following factors:

(1) the strength of the proof of the prior act;

(2) the probative weight of the evidence;

(3) the potential to present less prejudicial evidence;

(4) the possible distraction of the fact-finder;

(5) the time needed to prove the prior conduct;

(6) the temporal proximity of the prior event;

(7) the frequency of the acts;

(8) the presence of any intervening circumstances; and

(9) the relationship between the parties.[30]

Although Reynolds dealt with the admissibility of uncharged misconduct, in United States v. Tanksley, the CAAF applied Reynolds when the government sought to use evidence of charged misconduct to prove intent for another charged offense.[31] Indeed, "evidence may be admissible for some purposes but not for others."[32] Thus, the question is "whether the evidence of the misconduct is offered for some purpose other than to demonstrate the accused's predisposition to crime and thereby to suggest that the factfinder infer that he is guilty, as charged, because he is predisposed to commit similar offenses."[33]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

The Government notice pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 404(b) identifies eight broad categories of evidence, each with several distinct pieces of evidence, they seek to admit under the rule.[34] Much of the evidence the Government seeks to admit pursuant to Mil. R. Evid 404(b) is, however, already admissible as res gestae evidence for the offenses charged. The defense conceded this point in their motion and at oral argument. Nonetheless, "evidence may be admissible for some purposes but not for others."[35] So, the Government seeks admission of the evidence not only as res gestae but as "other crimes, wrongs, or acts" evidence and seeks an instruction from the court authorizing the members to consider the evidence to prove motive, intent, knowledge, lack of mistake or accident, and a common plan or scheme for other charged offenses. But because the evidence is already admissible and will presumably be presented in the Government's case in chief, the court defers ruling on the evidence's use for Mil. R. Evid. 404(b) purposes until the evidence is admitted before the trier of fact and there is a more complete picture of the state of the evidence.

This ruling, therefore, concerns only the uncharged conduct the Government seeks to admit under Mil. R. Evid. 404(b) or as res gestae.

The Government seeks to admit three items of evidence related to his pre-service conduct as a high school student.

First, the Government offers evidence that in May 2022, the Accused hid his cell phone and then made misleading statements to investigators about the location of his cell phone after a fellow student accused him of unlawfully recording a sexual encounter between them with his phone. The Accused's phone was never found. The Government argues that evidence that the Accused hid his cell phone in high school is admissible to prove a common scheme and lack of accident for the obstruction of justice specifications related to hiding his cell phone, and as consciousness of guilt for the sexual assault of CSSN S.S., the indecent recording and broadcasting specifications, the obstruction of justice specifications, the false official statement specifications, and premeditated murder. In addition, the Government avers that the Accused's statements to investigators that his mother had taken his phone and later that he had misplaced his phone are admissible to show a common scheme and consciousness of guilt for the sexual assault and contact charges, the strangulation charge, the indecent recording and broadcasting charges, the obstruction of justice charges, the false official statement charges, and the premeditated murder charge. The Government also contends this evidence is admissible to show the Accused's intent for the false official statement specifications.

Second, the Government seeks to admit evidence that in June 2022, the Accused again made misleading statements to investigators after a fellow high school student, L.L., accused him of touching her vulva without her consent while they sat on a couch together and that he pressured her to hug him and kissed her without her consent. The Accused told investigators that he did sit on the couch with L.L. but denied any inappropriate touching and denied kissing L.L., stating that he only attempted to. The Accused also told investigators that L.L. sent him nude photos and messages asking to have sex with him but could not produce those messages for investigators. The Government argues the statements to police were half-truths and are admissible to show a common scheme and consciousness of guilt for the sexual assault and contact charges, the strangulation charge, the indecent recording and broadcasting charges, the obstruction of justice charges, the false official statement charges, and the premeditated murder charge. As before, the Government also contends this evidence is admissible to show the Accused's intent for the false official statement specifications.

Finally, the Government seeks to introduce evidence that during the alleged assault of L.L. discussed above, the Accused made an "evil grin." This evidence, the Government contends, is admissible to prove that the Accused's motive, intent, and identity with respect to the strangulation offense alleged in Charge V, Specification 1 where CSSN S.R. described the Accused as smiling while he strangled her.

With respect to the pre-service allegations involving L.L., the court has already ruled that her allegation of sexual assault was inadmissible pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 413.[36] As the court noted in conducting its Mil. R. Evid. 403 balancing test and applying the Berry factors, the strength of proof of the prior allegation of sexual assault was relatively weak and based entirely on L.L.'s statements. Further, the court determined that there was a great risk that introduction of L.L.'s allegations would distract the factfinder and take significant time to prove. The same is true with regards to the allegations that the Accused kissed L.L., made an "evil grin", and misled investigators about his interactions with L.L. Again, there is no relationship between L.L. or any of the other alleged victims in this case and the pre-service conduct did not take place in temporal proximity with the charged offenses. Accordingly, the defense request to exclude evidence related to L.L. is granted.

The same analysis also holds true for the pre-service allegation that the Accused hid and then misled investigators about the whereabouts of his phone. First, with respect to his alleged hiding of his phone, there is evidence by which the members could reasonably find that the Accused hid his phone. Likewise, the uncharged act is evidence that the Accused had devised some system or method of committing the charged acts and that it was not merely an accident that he lost his phone on the two charged occasions. But, here too, the evidence fails the Mil. R. Evid. 403 balancing test. Applying the Berry factors, the probative value of the evidence is low and relies solely on the absence of evidence; i.e. that the cell phone went missing. That the phone was never recovered is not in dispute; that the Accused, who was 17-years old at the time, actually hid it is based only upon circumstantial evidence. Importantly, in order for the Government to bring in this evidence and prove the Accused actually hid his phone and was lying about its whereabouts, the Government would necessarily have to introduce the underlying events allegedly captured on the missing cell phone; i.e. to show why the Accused would even consider hiding his phone. Those details involve a consensual sexual encounter between three high school students. Even if the Government chooses not to go into the details of the sexual encounter allegedly captured on the Accused's cell phone, the defense would certainly be entitled to explore those facts and a distracting trial within a would ensue. In short, the probative value of evidence that the Accused hid his cell phone following an alleged nonconsensual recording of a consensual sexual encounter that occurred in April 2022 is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice and wasting time.

With respect to admission of this evidence as consciousness of guilt for the several charged offenses the Government provides notice for, the court concludes that the Government has failed to meet the second Reynolds factor. Specifically, evidence that the Accused hid his cell phone and lied to police about it as a high school student in 2022 does not make his consciousness of guilt for crimes committed as a servicemember in 2024 more probable. Accordingly, the defense request to exclude this evidence is granted.

b. Other Acts Evidence Related to the Charged Offenses and Res Gestae Evidence

i. CSSN S.S.

The Government also seeks to introduce several statements and acts by the Accused as consciousness of guilt evidence pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 404(b). Specifically, with respect to the offenses involving CSSN S.S., the Government seeks to introduce text messages between the Accused and CSSN S.S. the day after the sexual assault alleged in Charge I, Specification 3, wherein the Accused threatened to kill himself.

The Government also seeks to introduce evidence that later that same day, while on liberty, and after consuming alcohol, the Accused told his liberty buddy, CSSN Cousins, that he was going to kill himself because there was no point in living and refused to return to the ship. The Accused walked in front of three trains before Shore Patrol arrived and escorted him back to the ship

The Government argues that the Accused's extreme reaction to an allegation of sexual assault is admissible to establish motive, intent, and lack of accident for the premeditated murder charge as well as consciousness of guilt for Charge I, Specification 3, as well as the indecent recording and broadcasting specifications related to CSSN S.S., as alleged in Charge III, Specifications 1 and 2, respectively.

This evidence related to CSSN S.S. is arguably res gestae and intrinsic to the charged offenses of sexual assault and indecent recording/broadcasting. "An act that is intrinsic to the charged crime is not subject to the limitations of Mil. R. Evid. 404(b)."[37] Here, the Accused's text messages are in response to his alleged victim confronting him about the crimes for which he is charged. His answers reflect his response and are his interpretation and his account of what transpired between the two the previous night. In short, his text messages reflect his version of the events at issue and his reactions to her allegations. They are res gestae of the charged offenses of sexual assault, indecent recording and indecent broadcasting as alleged in Charge I, Specification 3, and Charge III, Specifications 1 and 2, respectively.

The Accused's later threats to kill himself to his liberty buddy, CSSN Cousins, and his attempts to commit suicide by standing in front of trains are more removed in time from the alleged sexual assault and are not in direct response to questions about the alleged assault. But they, nevertheless, are intertwined with the allegations from the night before. It is not unreasonable that CSSN S.S.'s statements to the Accused stating or implying he had engaged in criminal misconduct would weigh on the Accused's mind a mere one day later such that his statements and actions with CSSN Cousins relate back to this allegation. Just like the text messages, his statements and actions in direct response to being accused of sexual assault are inexorably linked to the alleged sexual assault and provide the members with a full picture of what transpired.

Alternatively, even if not intrinsic to the charged offenses and after applying the Reynolds factors, the court finds that the evidence is admissible as evidence of consciousness of guilt for Charge I, Specification 3, and Charge III, Specifications 1 and 2. First, the evidence reasonably supports a finding by the court members that the accused texted CSSN S.S. that he was going to kill himself and that he told CSSN Cousins that he was going to kill himself and then tried to stand in front of approximately three trains. The Government can produce the text messages and CSSN S.S. can testify to their authenticity. Likewise, CSSN Cousins can testify to his interactions and observations of the Accused, as can other short patrol personnel. Next, the Accused's statements that he was going to kill himself and his attempts to stand in front of a train after being confronted by CSSN S.S. about his actions the previous night is circumstantial evidence that shows the Accused is aware "that he . . . has engaged in blameworthy conduct."[38] Finally, after applying the Mil. R. Evid. 403 balancing test, and the Berry factors, the court concludes that the probative value of the evidence is not substantially outweighed by the dangers of unfair prejudice.

[37] United States v. Felix, 2019 CCA LEXIS 258, *16-17 (N-M. Ct. Crim. App. June 19, 2019) (citing United States v. McGill, 815 F.3d 846, 879, 421 U.S. App. D.C. 280 (D.C. Cir. 2016) (per curiam) (construing Federal Rule of Evidence 404(b)).

The strength of proof and probative weight of the evidence is strong. The text messages were recovered by NCIS from CSSN S.S.'s phone and reveal that they were sent the day following the alleged sexual assault and contain near contemporaneous discussions between the Accused and his alleged victim. The text messages sent by the Accused were part of a text exchange where CSSN S.S. inquired about what happened the night before and confronts the Accused about what she had heard from others…specifically that he was telling people he had sex with her and was showing them a recording of it. In his responses, the Accused denies doing anything wrong, states that he didn't do anything to her, and accuses her of trying to ruin his life. He tells CSSN S.S. that she is trying to get him in trouble over a lie and that he's going to kill himself. Likewise, the Accused's statements to his Liberty buddy reflect that the Accused knew he was going to face disciplinary or investigative action following CSSN S.S.'s allegations, and that there was "no point in living."[39]

There is no potential for less prejudicial evidence as these text messages are the only interactions between the Accused and CSSN S.S. following the alleged assault and the Accused's interactions with CSSN Cousins and attempts at standing in front of trains is directly related to the accusations made by CSSN S.S. There is little worry of distracting the fact finder as the text messages can be introduced through CSSN S.S. and are already intertwined with her testimony. The same is true with respect to CSSN Cousins' testimony, as his testimony is directly related to the Accused's actions the day following the alleged assault on CSSN S.S, so it will take little additional time to present.

In sum, the evidence is admissible as either res gestae of Charge 1, Specification III, and Charge III, Specifications 1 and 2, or, alternatively, as evidence of consciousness of guilt for these specifications. Because the court has determined that the evidence is already admissible, the court will defer ruling on whether the evidence is also admissible to establish motive, intent, and lack of accident for the premeditated murder specification, until after presentation of evidence at trial and the state of evidence surrounding the premediated murder specification is clearer.

ii. CS3 A.R.

Finally, the Government seeks to introduce several statements and acts of the Accused in the days following CS3 A.R.'s disappearance. The Government avers that these actions by the Accused are res gestae of the murder, false official statements, and obstruction of justice specifications related to CS3 A.R. The Government provided notice pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 404(b) that the evidence was also admissible as consciousness of guilt evidence for these offenses out of an abundance of caution. The court agrees and concludes the following evidence is admissible as res gestae:

(1) The Accused stayed in various barracks lounges from 29 May 2025-1 June 2025. When security from the ship came to find him on 1 June 2025, he was found in the bathroom on the fifth floor of his barracks. The Accused's roommate also stated that the Accused was leaving very early and returning very late over that weekend, which was highly unusual for him.

(2) During the period of 29 May 2025 to 1 June 2025, the Accused was in an unauthorized absence status and was repeatedly notified that he needed to check-in but never did. Despite dozens of inquiries as to his whereabouts from both his ship and his friends that the Accused viewed on his phone, the Accused generally did not answer his phone or respond to text messages from 29 May 2025 until 1 June 2025.

(3) The Accused encouraged his roommate to leave the room.

(4) The Accused placed his phone in Airplane mode at 04:48:08 on 2 June 2025 when he drove to a pinned location, where CS3 A.R.'s body was later found, and turned it off at 05:16:13 when he left the site.

(5) At 1311 on 29 May 2025, the Accused searched for a trip to "Bermuda." In the days following CS3 A.R.'s disappearance, the Accused searched online for "virginia airport" on 3 and 10 June 2025 and "norfolk airport" on 3 June 2025.

(6) During the investigation into CS3 A.R.'s disappearance, the Accused made various statements, including: 1) that he dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks on 29 May 2025; 2) that he did not know where CS3 A.R. was; 3) that the iPhone found in his room on 3 June 2025 did not work; 4) that CS3 A.R. did not call anyone for a ride from his barracks room on 29 May 2025; 5) that CS3 A.R. was on the phone with her ex-boyfriend from Texas on 29 May 2025; 6) that CS3 A.R. had wanted to go further sexually when they were together on 29 May 2025, but he declined; and 7) that he slept with CS3 A.R. in his bed that night.

(7) The Accused told his roommate nothing sexual occurred between himself and CS3 A.R. on 29 May 2025, in contrast to what he told CS3 Taylor and despite them being in a state of undress together on the floor of the common area that morning.

(8) The Accused hid and/or destroyed his second iPhone prior to going to the brig on 9 June 2025.

(9) The Accused turned off location services on his phone on 29 May 2025, including Life360 which had been on constantly for approximately one year and shared with another person.

(10) The Accused called and texted CS3 A.R. on 1 June 2025 asking where she was and notifying her of her UA status.

All of this evidence reflects the Accused's statements and actions in the hours and days following CS3 A.R.'s alleged murder and leading up to the alleged obstruction of justice where the Accused is charged with concealing CS3 A.R.'s body. They are closely intertwined with the alleged murder, false statements, and obstruction because they show not only direct evidence of those crimes, but the Accused's attempts to cover up the murder, and to prepare to conceal CS3 A.R.'s body. This evidence allows the Government to present the full picture to the finder of fact to avoid confusion and gaps in the narrative and is intrinsic to the charged offenses related to CS3 A.R.

6. Ruling.

The Defense Motion in Limine to Exclude Evidence Pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 404(b), as detailed herein, is hereby DEFERRED, in part, GRANTED, in part, and DENIED in part.

So ordered this 28th day of January, 2026.

GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION FOR APPROPRIATE RELIEF (SEVER CHARGES) 28 JANUARY 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed a motion to sever the charges related to the investigation into and death of CS3 A.R. from the remainder of the charges, which involved other alleged victims. Specifically, the Defense seeks to sever Charge IV (Obstruction of Justice), Specifications 2 and 3, Charge VI (False Official Statement), Specification 1 and 2; and Charge VII (Premeditated Murder); from the remainder of the charges.[1] The Government responded on 5 December 2025[2] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 10 December 2025.

2. Burden.

Pursuant to RCM 905(c) and 906(b)(10), the Defense, as the moving party, bears the burden to establish that a manifest injustice will result from the continued joint trial of charges. The burden of proof on any factual issues the resolution of which are necessary to decide the motion is by a preponderance of the evidence.[3]

[1] Appellate Exhibit (AE) XXXVI.
[2] AE XLIV.
[3] Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 905(c).

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

a. On 26 July 2024, NCIS was notified of an alleged aggravated sexual contact and abusive sexual contact perpetrated upon ABHAN C.R. by the Accused. The alleged conduct occurred on 23 July 2024 at 0200 aboard the USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75).

b. On 23 July 2024, ABHAN C.R. was with her boyfriend on the mess decks of USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN 75). After he left to go to bed, the Accused sent Snapchat messages to ABHAN C.R. seeking to speak with her about her relationship with her boyfriend. ABHAN C.R. agreed. The two went to the fantail and the Accused told ABHAN C.R. that her boyfriend was not treating her properly and that she should date him instead. ABHAN C.R. declined.

c. Next, ABHAN C.R. alleges that after discussing her relationship, the Accused began to pretend to arrest her. The Accused forced ABHAN C.R.'s hands behind her back and grabbed her vulva over the clothing. According to ABHAN C.R., she punched the Accused in the stomach and in response, the Accused stated he heard that ABHAN C.R. liked to be choked and applied pressure to her neck with a hand, restricting her breathing. ABHAN C.R. pushed the Accused's hand away, but he kept replacing it and applying pressure. The Accused simultaneously kissed her on the lips and grabbed her breasts, buttocks, and vulva over the clothing. After about a minute, the Accused stopped and ABHAN C.R. advised she was going to bed and left the Accused on the fantail. ABHAN C.R. reported the incident to her boyfriend and filed a formal report on 26 July 2024. ABHAN C.R.'s boyfriend described observing bruising on ABHAN C.R. after the incident.

d. ABHAN C.R.'s complaint forms the basis for Charge 1, Specifications 1 and 2; and the sole Specification of Charge II.

e. On 6 November 2024, NCIS was notified of an alleged sexual assault aboard the USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN-75) that had occurred on 4 November 2024 at a port call in Oslo, Norway. CSSN S.S. alleged that the Accused was the perpetrator.

f. On the evening of 4 November 2024, the Accused arrived at a bar and began to hang out with CSSN S.S. and others during a liberty call in Oslo, Norway. CSSN S.S. was extremely intoxicated and could not recall the events of the evening. The next day, several individuals approached her and told her that the Accused had shown them a video he recorded on his phone of him having sex with her in the bathroom of the bar the night prior. CSSN S.S. was described as bent over and the Accused was penetrating her vagina from behind with his penis. CSSN S.S. did not recall this occurring and confronted the Accused over the phone, who denied having sex with her or recording the encounter.

g. After he was accused of sexual assault by CSSN S.S., the Accused stated his "life was over," refused to return to the ship, and tried to kill himself by walking in front of approximately three trains until security from the ship finally retrieved him.

h. After a report was made on 6 November 2024 by CSSN S.S., a search of the Accused was conducted to obtain his cell phone. The Accused advised he did not have the phone and had given it to CSSN Kaulise Cousins, USN. CSSN Cousins was questioned about the phone immediately after and he denied that the Accused had provided him with his phone at any point. Subsequent searches of CSSN Cousins, the Accused's berthing, rack, and locker spaces failed to recover the phone.

i. In an 18 November 2024, interview with NCIS, the Accused admitted to having consensual sex with CSSN S.S. In this interview, the Accused repeated that he had given his phone to CSSN Cousins before stating his phone had fallen out of pocket, shattered, and was lost.

j. In a subsequent interview with NCIS on 20 December 2024, the Accused stated that he obtained a new phone while in a port call in Marseille, France and provided NCIS with digital evidence he was able to access via iCloud. Despite showing videos from that night to NCIS, the Accused said he no longer had access to the video he took of his sexual encounter with CSSN S.S.

k. CSSN S.S.'s complaint forms the basis of Charge I, Specification 4; Charge III, Specifications 1 and 2; and Charge IV, Specification 1.

l. On 11 April 2025, CS3 S.R. notified Naval Station Norfolk Security forces that she was assaulted by the Accused, specifically alleging that he had "choked" her.

m. On 11 April 2025, CSSN S.R. was dating the Accused and was on his barracks room couch with him while he was asleep. According to CSSN S.R., she learned that the Accused was also dating someone else and then woke the Accused up and confronted him. When she sought to leave, the Accused pushed her down on the couch and strangled her with both hands for about ten seconds.

n. CSSN S.R.'s allegations form the basis for Charge V, Specifications 1 and 2.

o. On 31 May 2025, NCIS was notified that CS3 A.R. was a missing person and they began their investigation into her whereabouts. According to several witnesses, CS3 A.R. was last seen with the Accused.

p. On 28 May 2025, CS3 A.R. left work in the morning, shopped at Target with a friend, and later went to the barracks room of the Accused to cook tacos. CS3 A.R. arrived at the Accused's barracks room on the evening of 28 May 2025 onboard Naval Station Norfolk.

q. At 2322 on 28 May 2025, CS3 A.R. sent a text message to an ex-boyfriend, HT3 Michael Gillispie, USN, that read "Fuck you." CS3 A.R. did not respond to HT3 Gillispie after that message, despite numerous attempts by HT3 Gillispie to contact her.

r. At 0214 on 29 May 2025, CS3 A.R. called an ex-boyfriend, ET3 Daniel Rich, USN. ET3 Rich explained that CS3 A.R. was "freaking out" and requesting to be picked up "ASAP." According to ET3 Rich, CS3 A.R. was frantic and crying and just kept repeating that she needed to be picked up as soon as possible. ET3 Rich explained that during the call with CS3 A.R., a frantic male voice came on the phone and asked how far away he was, to which ET3 Rich replied he was 10-15 minutes away. The phone was handed back to CS3 A.R., and ET3 Rich told her he was on his way, and the call ended. CS3 A.R. always shared her location with ET3 Rich, but ET3 Rich did not know who she was with or what room she was in exactly.

s. When ET3 Rich passed through the gate entering Naval Station Norfolk at approximately 0228, he called CS3 A.R. repeatedly, but she did not answer her phone. ET3 Rich then notified base police of the situation and connected with HT3 Gillispie to help search for CS3 A.R. Despite hours of searching, CS3 A.R. was not located. Her phone stopped pinging at 0456 on 29 May 2025, indicating it was dead or turned off.

t. The Accused's barracks room was comprised of a common area flanked on either side by two bedrooms, with each bedroom containing two roommates. The Accused shared a room with YN3 Sean Monoghan, USN. The other bedroom was occupied by PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz, USN, and AR John Calisse, USN. AR Calisse reported hearing karaoke between the Accused and an unknown female around 0200 on 29 May 2025 but did not investigate.

u. PSSN Gordillocruz arrived back to the barracks room at approximately 0400 on 29 May 2025. He advised that all of the lights were off and he did not see anyone at that time. At around 0500, YN3 Monoghan got up to go to work and he realized that no one was in the Accused's bed. He departed his bedroom at approximately 0640 and saw the Accused on the floor of the living room asleep with a girl he did not recognize, both in a state of undress. Between 0530 and 0645, both PSSN Gordillocruz and AR Calisse departed their room. They observed a female laying nearly fully naked with her breasts exposed on the floor of the common area with CSSN Copeland laying naked face up with his head on her torso or thigh. AR Calisse was surprised they did not wake up when they entered the room. YN3 Monoghan asked the Accused later if they were naked and the Accused laughed it off and said they were in underwear.

v. At 0852, FCC Bradley Parker, USN, arrived at the Accused's barracks room to determine why he was not at work on the ship. At the time, FCC Parker was aware the CS3 A.R. was also missing and was seeking help the night prior from ET3 Rich. FCC Parker said that the Accused appeared to have just woken up when he answered the door. FCC Parker told the Accused to come to work, but the Accused told FCC Parker he was not alone and indicated he was with CS3 A.R. FCC Parker observed CS3 A.R. on the Accused's bed wrapped in a blanket with her feet exposed. FCC Parker and the Accused then spoke in the common area and he told him to ensure that CS3 A.R. was taken care of and to come to work. FCC Parker left after only being present for a few minutes.

w. The Accused told FCC Parker that CS3 A.R. had come over after calling him looking for someone to talk to, but she forgot her phone when he picked her up. He also told FCC Parker they fell asleep watching movies and that his alarm did not go off because his phone had died overnight.

x. The Accused next spoke with FCC Parker at 1241 on 29 May 2025 and advised that he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks. Despite repeated notifications to come to the ship over the weekend, the Accused did not do so.

y. On the afternoon of 1 June 2025, base police searched the Accused's barracks for the Accused and located him in a bathroom near a lounge and advised him to report to work, which he did later that same day. After returning to his barracks at around 2100 on 1 June 2025, the Accused asked to borrow AR Calisse's car, a white Jeep, and AR Calisse agreed and gave him the vehicle's keys.

z. At approximately 0418 on 2 June 2025, the Accused's Iphone 15 Pro Max left base and traveled south down Hampton Boulevard. The user of the Iphone 15 Pro Max searched for Parks and Trails while is traveled. At approximately 0436-0440, the Accused's Iphone 15 Pro Max was located in a parking lot near a wooded area, and AR Calisse's jeep was photographed on a street camera at 0440 in the same area as the Iphone 15 Pro Max.

aa. At 0447, the Iphone 15 Pro Max user marked a location on Apple Maps and looked for directions to that location. At 0448, the Iphone 15 Pro Max was placed in Airplane mode and taken off Airplane mode at approximately 0516. During the time the Iphone 15 Pro Max was in Airplane mode, the phone recorded health data indicating that between 0500 and 0515, the phone was near the area of 2852 Cary Avenue, Norfolk, Virginia. The Iphone 15 Pro Max user took a screenshot of the pinned location in the wooded area near 2852 Cary Avenue.

ab. On 9 June, investigators went to the location near 2852 Cary Avenue that had been marked in the Iphone 15 Pro Max and discovered the remains of CS3 A.R. in a black bag. A search of the Accused's barracks room revealed the presence of CS3 A.R.'s blood in the Accused's closet and in the stairwell leading to the barracks parking lot.

ac. The Accused spoke with NCIS on 1 June, 3 June and 6 June 2025. On 1 June, he advised he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks room. On 3 June, the Accused told investigators he never said that, and that CS3 A.R. had left under her own power. He also denied knowing that CS3 A.R. had called ET3 Rich.

ad. Two autopsies were conducted in this case and neither reached a conclusive cause of death because of the decomposition of CS3 A.R.'s remains. Based on their observations, blunt force trauma, stabbing, shooting, death by natural causes, and overdose could effectively be ruled out, although the second pathologist stated that evidence of blunt force trauma may have simply decomposed. Both medical examiners opined that death by asphyxiation, such as by strangulation or suffocation, was possible.

ae. The investigation in CS3 A.R.'s death led to the Charge IV, Specifications 2 and 3; Charge VI, Specification 1 and 2; and the sole Specification of Charge VII.

af. On 24 June 2025, NCIS searched the Accused's phone and located a phone number they believed belonged to a minor "based off inferences" related to the content of the messages. When NCIS called the number, they determined Y.J. was not a minor, though they asked her what she knew about the Accused. Y.J. stated that the Accused had sexually assaulted her in his barracks room in April or May 2025.

ag. According to Y.J., on 25 May 2025, she was at the Accused's barracks room with two other Sailors – LSSA Omeri Smoot and AEAN Jdyn Bradford. When the Accused arrived, he pulled Y.J. into his room and asked Y.J. to perform oral sex. Y.J. told investigators that she refused because she was tired, but that the Accused then penetrated her vagina without her consent, despite her telling him to stop. The other two Sailors could hear him telling her to stop and entered the room to break them up before one the Sailors took Y.J. home.

ah. Y.J.'s allegations form the basis for Specification 4 of Charge I.

ai. Additional facts necessary to resolve the issue are contained below.

4. Statement of Law.

A referral authority has discretion to refer two or more offenses against an accused to the same court-martial for trial, whether the offenses are serious or minor offenses, or both, regardless of whether the offenses are connected.[4] Offenses may be severed by the court, but only to prevent manifest injustice.[5] Appellate courts review a military judge's denial of a severance motion for an abuse of discretion.[6] An abuse of discretion will be found only "where the defendant is able to show that the denial of a severance caused him actual prejudice in that it prevented him from receiving a fair trial; it is not enough that separate trials may have provided him with a better opportunity for an acquittal."[7]

Historically, courts have been concerned with preventing impermissible spillover in various ways from the proof of one offense into the trial of another offense.[8] The Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) considers three factors to determine whether a military judge has failed to prevent a manifest injustice when denying a motion to sever: (1) whether evidence of one offense would be admissible in the trial of the other offense; (2) whether the military judge gave a limiting instruction to keep the evidence of the offenses separate; and (3) whether the findings reflect an impermissible cross-over.[9] Severance may be required to ensure the Accused receives a fair trial, but a better opportunity for an acquittal at separate trials is not enough to cause a manifest injustice.[10] "No single factor, or the absence of a single factor, controls the ultimate conclusion of whether manifest injustice has been avoided."[11]

In making a ruling on this issue the military judge has discretionary power to sever the trial of certain offenses to avoid a manifest injustice, but even if severance is not necessary the military judge may take other preventative measures.[12] These measures include instructing the members to consider the offenses separately and bifurcating the presentation of evidence by the Government to avoid the risk of impermissible spillover.[13] Indeed, courts recognize that properly tailored members' instructions will considerably reduce the danger of prejudice.[14]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

Severance of the charges related to CS3 A.R. is not necessary to prevent manifest injustice and is not warranted.

Applying the first Southworth factor, the defense correctly notes that evidence of one charged offense cannot be used to prove another charged offense or to prove the Accused's general predisposition. And this court will not permit the Government to use any of the charged conduct as propensity evidence for other charged conduct in the case. But, depending upon how the testimony and other evidence is produced at trial, there is likely some evidence of charged conduct the defense seeks to sever that is also admissible pursuant to Military Rule of Evidence (Mil. R. Evid.) 404(b) to prove some of the allegations involving CS3 A.R.[15] Even assuming however, that none of the evidence related to any of the other victims is admissible with respect to the offenses involving CS3 A.R., the other Southworth factors do not weigh in favor of severance.

With respect to Southworth factors (2) and (3), these are necessarily retrospective and are viewed through the lens of an appellate court reviewing the trial court's decision. That said, they provide guidance for the trial court to use in ameliorating the risk of manifest injustice. First, this court shall craft an appropriate "spillover" instruction prohibiting the members from considering evidence used by the Government to prove one offense as evidence of any other offense. Members are presumed to follow the instructions they are given unless evidence exists to the contrary.[16] The court will provide this spillover instruction prior to the Government's presentation of evidence and at the conclusion of the evidence, to ensure that the members understand their duty to hold the Government to its burden of proof with regard to each charge and specification.

Second, the court will require that the Government compartmentalize the presentation of their case in chief by each alleged victim; that is, to address the charges and specifications related to each victim separately, even if it means any individual witness is called more than once during the Government's case. The court is confident that diligence during trial, including the use of limiting instructions and the compartmentalization of the Government's case, can and will ensure there is no improper spillover between the allegations. Consequently, the court finds Southworth factors (2) and (3) weigh against granting the motion.

Because the court finds no manifest injustice in referring all of the charges and specifications to same court-martial for trial, the motion to sever is denied.

---

[15] The court has deferred ruling on much of the charged conduct the Government seeks to introduce for Mil. R. Evid. 404(b) purposes, and which the defense seeks to exclude. See AE VIII. The evidence is, of course, already admissible at trial as res gestae of the charged misconduct. The court has deferred ruling until the evidence is presented in the Government's case in chief to determine whether the evidence might also be admissible under Mil. R. Evid. 404(b) to prove the other charged offenses. See AE LXX.

UNITED STATES v. COPELAND, JERMIAH CSSN/ E-3 U.S. NAVY	DEFENSE MOTION FOR APPROPRIATE RELEIF (Merge Unreasonably Multiplied Charges) 18 February 2026

MOTION

Pursuant to Rules for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 906(b)(12), the defense moves this Court to merge for findings, or in the alternative for sentencing, Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V, as they encompass the same conduct and are, therefore, unreasonably multiplied.

BURDEN

As the moving party, the defense bears the burden to prove facts necessary to resolve the motion by a preponderance of evidence. R.C.M. 905(c).

FACTS

1. In specification 1 of Charge V, preferred on 22 August 2025, the government alleges a violation of Article 128b, Uniform Code of military justice (UCMJ), (Domestic Violence - Strangulation):

> In that Culinary Specialist Jermiah T. Copeland, U.S. Navy, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95), on active duty, did, at or near Norfolk, Virginia, on or about 11 April 2025, commit an assault upon CSSN S.R., U.S. Navy, the dating partner of the accused, by unlawfully strangling her with his hands. (Charge Sheet).

2. In specification 2 of Charge V, preferred on 22 August 2025, the government alleges a violation of Article 128b, Uniform Code of military justice (UCMJ), (Domestic Violence - Strangulation):

> In that Culinary Specialist Jermiah T. Copeland, U.S. Navy, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95), on active duty, did, at or near Norfolk, Virginia, on or about 11 April 2025, commit an assault upon CSSN S.R., U.S. Navy, the dating partner of the accused, by unlawfully pushing her with his hands. (Charge Sheet).

LAW

Unlike multiplicity, which is grounded in Double Jeopardy and involves statutory interpretation, the prohibition on unreasonable multiplication protects against prosecutorial overreach based on a fundamental fairness.

3. "What is substantially one transaction should not be made the basis for an unreasonable multiplication of charges against one person."[1] This prohibition against unreasonable multiplication of charges "has long provided courts-martial and reviewing authorities with a traditional legal standard—reasonableness—to address the consequences of an abuse of prosecutorial discretion in the context of the unique aspects of the military justice system."[2]

4. A military judge must "exercise sound judgment to ensure that imaginative prosecutors do not needlessly 'pile on' charges against a military accused."[3] In service of this obligation, a trial court considers four-factors in testing whether charges are unreasonably multiplied:

1) Is each charge and specification aimed at distinctly separate criminal acts?
2) Does the number of charges and specifications misrepresent or exaggerate the accused's criminality?
3) Does the number of charges and specifications unfairly increase the accused's punitive exposure?
4) Is there evidence of prosecutorial overreaching or abuse in the drafting of the charges?[4]

5. These factors are not exhaustive and are not the only factors the court may consider. [5]Further, the defense is not required to satisfy every factor for the court to determine that the charges were unreasonably multiplied—a single factor can be enough.[6]

[6] Id.

A military judge has wide discretion to remedy unreasonable multiplications of charges, including merging the specifications or dismissal.

6. When charges are unreasonably multiplied, the military judge has wide latitude to craft a remedy, including dismissing offenses, merging them for findings, or merging offenses only for sentencing.[7]

ARGUMENT

Relief from these unreasonably multiplied charges is warranted because the four trial-level Quiroz factors weigh in favor of the defense.

7. This Court would not promote fairness if it allowed Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V to proceed to members on findings.

Each Specification is aimed at the same act or course of conduct.

The conduct in both Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V arise from the same alleged conduct involving the same alleged interaction with CSSN S.R. on 11 April 2026 – the same course of conduct. An accused should not be separately convicted for what amounts to a single, brief, uninterrupted attack involving multiple alleged offensive touchings "united in time, circumstance, and impulse."[8] The unit of prosecution for the type of ongoing assault, like the one alleged in Charge V, is the number of times it alleged that CSSN Copeland assaulted CSSN S.R., not the number of individual blows. Here, there was one alleged victim and one alleged interaction.

The number of specifications exaggerates the accused's criminality.

8. The government unfairly exaggerates CSSN Copeland's criminality by suggesting to the fact finder that he committed multiple offenses, vice a single transaction – there was one interaction with CSSN S.R., not two. The specifications as charged distort the alleged conduct by turning what is essentially one act of alleged assault into multiple separate stages, each presenting as an independent crime, making it appear as if CSSN Copeland committed more or multiple crimes. By doing so, the government is inflating and exaggerating the level of criminality.

[7] United States v. Thomas, 74 M.J. 563, 568 (N-M. Ct. Crim. App. 2014) (citing Campbell, 71 M.J. at 25) (concluding military judge had discretion to not dismiss or merge specifications for findings but to merge them for sentencing).

[8] United States v. Porath, No. 202400223, *12-13 (N-M Ct. Crim. App. Nov. 24, 2025) (citing United States v. Rushing, 11 M.J. 95, 98 (C.M.A. 1981)).

Though the charges do not necessarily involve evidence of prosecutorial abuse, the charging scheme is still unreasonable.

9. The charging scheme is indicative of prosecutorial overreach. Often the defense does not have evidence of prosecutorial overreach or abuse and must therefore rely on circumstantial evidence. Here, the government is attempting to break down a single alleged criminal act into multiple steps or stages, instead of recognizing it as one continuous assault. This tactic is akin to the proverbial "blow-by-blow" charging scheme highlighted as overreach under Quiroz. This has the unfair and unreasonable effect of giving the government multiple attempts and opportunities for a second and third conviction, when they should only have one. The factors weigh in favor of defense.

Merging Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V prior to findings is the appropriate remedy.

10. This Court may remedy unreasonably multiplied charges at the findings stage by merging all offenses into one.[9] Merger prior to findings is appropriate in this case as there is no factual or reasonable distinction between the specifications and has the potential to substitute quantity for quality to the fact-finder.[10] "Despite numerous developments in the law concerning multiplicity and UMC over the years, this remains true: 'When Congress enacted Article 128, it did not intend that, in a single altercation between two people, each blow might be separately charged as an assault.'"[11] Therefore, Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V should be merged.

RELIEF REQUESTED

11. Pursuant to R.C.M. 906(b)(12), the defense moves this Court to merge for findings Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V, or in the alternative, merge Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V for sentencing.

EVIDENCE & HEARING

12. Unless the government concedes the motion or this Court grants the relief on the basis of pleadings alone, the defense requests a hearing to present evidence and argument on this matter.

UNITED STATES v. JERMIAH COPELAND CSSN, E-3 USN	DEFENSE MOTION TO RECONSIDER (Def MTC Expert Consultant in Forensic Pathology) 18 Feb 26

MOTION

Pursuant to R.C.M. 905(f), 906(b)(7) and R.C.M. 703(d), the Defense moves this Court to reconsider its previous ruling denying the production of Dr. Priya Banerjee as an expert forensic pathologist consultant for the Defense, and after reconsideration, to compel her production for both pre-trial preparations and trial participation. The motion to consider is based upon new evidence, that is, the unavailability of the "adequate substitute" provided by the Government.

SUMMARY

CSSN Jermiah Copeland is alleged to have committed the premeditated murder of CS3 A.R., among other alleged violations of the UCMJ. The production of Dr. Banerjee was litigated at an earlier Article 39(a) session and the military judge directed the Government to provide an "adequate substitute." The Government provided Dr. Evan Matshes, however, Dr. Matshes is NOT available for the scheduled trial dates. His unavailability alone makes him an inadequate substitute and forms the basis for this motion to reconsider. However, this motion also outlines other legitimate reasons why Dr. Matshes is NOT an adequate substitute for this case. The Defense asks this Court to compel Dr. Banerjee's participation for both pre-trial and trial consultation.

FACTS

1. On 9 June 2025, the remains of CS3 A.R. were found in a secluded area of Norfolk. An autopsy was performed on 10 June 2025 by Dr. Fernanda Lameira of the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner.[1]

2. On 9 June 2025, CSSN Jermiah Copeland was ordered into pretrial confinement upon being suspected of the premeditated murder of CS3 A.R.[2]

[1] AE 25 at 17-23; AE 11 at 2-3.
[2] Confinement Order

3. The autopsy performed by Dr. Lameira resulted in an "undetermined" cause of death.[3] Despite subsequent investigation, the manner of death remains "undetermined" as of this filing.

4. Dr. Lameira has been identified as a Government witness for trial. She will testify - relying on her training, experience, and specialized education - to her medical findings and the conduct of the autopsy.[4]

5. A second private autopsy was performed by Dr. Nemanja Rodic on 28 June 2025. This autopsy concludes the manner of death is "deferred."[5] Importantly, Dr. Rodic did not see any evidence of foul play, nor did he note any signs commonly associated with strangulation, he "considered it formally ruled [ ] out."[6]

6. The Government interviewed Dr. Rodic on 22 October 2025.[7]

7. Dr. Rodic' participation at trial was compelled by the Defense and granted by this Court on 22 December 2025.[8]

8. On 24 October 2025, in accordance with the TMO, the Defense requested the assistance of Dr. Priya Banerjee as an expert consultant for pre-trial preparations and trial consultation.[9] Within this request the Defense articulates all relevant and required information necessary to secure funding for this expert.

9. Prior to making the request, Dr. Banerjee was generally briefed on the case to determine if she could be of assistance in the matter and whether her schedule would allow her participation. She noted that she is already in the federal payment system and has worked with the military before.[10]

10. On 5 November 2025, the Government responded to the Defense request, acknowledging that the assistance of a forensic pathologist was necessary for the Defense.[11]

11. However, the Government's response states that the named expert's fees "far exceed" a reasonable hourly rate, and the "government will assist Defense in finding and adequate substitute for this expert."[12]

12. After filing a motion to compel expert production and pursuant to this Court's direction, the Government identified Dr. Evan Matshes as an "adequate substitute" for the defense. Importantly he is not a government employee, instead he is a civilian expert in the field of forensic pathology.[13]

13. On 19 December 2025, Dr. Matshes was positively endorsed by the special trial counsel at a rate of $600 per hour for 30 hours of pre-trial consultation. This exceeds what the Government has stated as the maximum permissible rate of $400 per hour for this type of expert.[14]

14. The 19 December 2025 endorsement from special trial counsel does not include any funding for trial participation. Instead directing the defense to submit an additional request when participation is deemed necessary.

15. The same day, 19 December 2025, Dr. Priya Banerjee notified the defense that she could conduct pre-trial consultation for a discounted rate of $600 per hour. The Defense promptly notified special trial counsel of this fact the same day.[15]

16. On 21 December 2025, special trial counsel stated that they were unwilling to endorse Dr. Banerjee's participation even at the discounted rate. The cited reasons were that 1) the Government had complied with this Court's directive to find a substitute for the defense and 2) Dr. Banerjee's rate for trial participation was too excessive.[16] The TCs cited no authority permitting them to place an arbitrary fee limitation on the defense's expert.

17. On 22 December 2025, the military judge held the following, "The court ordered the Government to provide an adequate substitute and on 19 December 2025, the government complied with the court's order and provided the defense with a government funded pathologist."[17]

18. On 22 December 2025, CNRMA reached out to special trial counsel looking for a fee schedule and a CAGE code for Dr. Matshes.[18]

19. On 28 January 2026, the Defense spoke with Dr. Matshes regarding his availability for trial. He noted that he has a scheduling conflict, he would see if he could resolve it, and that he preferred to shift CSSN Copeland's trial dates out of June in order for him to participate.[19]

20. Also on 28 January 2026, the Defense was made aware that CNRMA still did not have a CAGE code for Dr. Matshes in order for a contract to be finalized. The same day the Defense reached out to Dr. Matshes' office received the information and passed along to CNRMA.[20]

21. On 29 January 2026, the Defense received a signed contract for Dr. Matshes to begin working on 30 hours of pre-trial consultation, trial participation is not included.[21]

22. On 5 February 2026, Dr. Matshes confirmed that he was NOT available for the scheduled trial dates in June.[22]

23. On 6 February, after being notified by the Defense that Dr. Matshes was not available, NAAG (Dr. Matshes' practice group) notified the Defense that they were "assigning" Dr. Lew to the case instead of Dr. Matshes.[23]

24. Dr. Lew's participation pre-trial and at trial appears to have been compelled by subpoena, presumably issued by trial counsel, though the Defense has not been provided any discovery related to this.

25. The Defense has received no discovery indicating that CNRMA ever directed special trial counsel to seek an adequate substitute for the Defense. Nor has any discovery related to the reasons considered by CNRMA, to the extent there were any, for why Dr. Banerjee should not be employed for the defense for the exact same pre-trial fee schedule as Dr. Matshes, or someone from his company.

26. Neither Dr. Matshes nor Dr. Lew are included on the list of "possible adequate substitutes" provided to the Defense on 14 November 2025.[24]

27. As the Defense has conducted due diligence in reviewing the provided list to try to resolve this issue, some of the proffered adequate substitutes have provided important feedback; one expert has not taken DOD cases for "several years" and was curious as to where his name came from, while others have hourly rates ($750/hr and $8000/day) comparable to the expert the defense has requested in this case.

28. The Defense submitted a request directly to CNRMA on 10 February 2026 seeking the employment of Dr. Banerjee. In response the Defense was provided a letter from the convening authority dated 3 December denying an expert request. As of this filing, a subsequent request remains pending with CNRMA for the employment of Dr. Banerjee.

29. To date, the Defense has never received any materials or indication that CNRMA directed special trial counsel to find an adequate GOVERNMENT substitute based solely on expense. The issue of expense appears to have been unilaterally derived by the special trial counsel in this case and is directly in contradiction of the Rules for Court Martial.

30. Dr. Banerjee remains prepared to assist the Defense, she remains available for the ordered trial dates, is registered within federal payment systems, and is in regular contact with the Defense regarding status updates.

BURDEN

31. As the moving party, the defense bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence.[25]

LAW

32. The right to be represented by counsel who is reasonably effective in investigating, preparing and presenting a defense is a fundamental pillar of American jurisprudence. The Supreme Court has recognized that the Sixth Amendment right to counsel mandates the provision of adequate resources, to include experts, in order to present an effective defense. As a matter of military due process, service members are entitled to expert assistance when necessary for an adequate defense, without regard to indigency.[26] The right to supplement the defense team with expert assistance and witnesses is based on Article 46, UCMJ, Military Rule of Evidence 706, and R.C.M. 703(d). Because the military accused does not have available to him the relatively unlimited assets of the military justice machine, courts have placed the resources of the Federal Government at his or her disposal in order to pay for expert assistance and guarantee an effective defense team.

33. The right to expert assistance attaches when the defense demonstrates that such assistance is necessary.[27] "An accused is entitled to expert assistance provided by the Government if he can demonstrate necessity."[28] The "mere possibility of assistance from a requested expert" is not sufficient to prevail on the request for expert assistance.[29] Instead, "[t]he accused has the burden of establishing that a reasonable probability exists that (1) an expert would be of assistance to the defense and (2) that denial of expert assistance would result in a fundamentally unfair trial."[30] To satisfy the first prong of this test, the Defense must show, "(1) why the expert is necessary; (2) what the expert would accomplish for the accused; and (3) why defense counsel is unable to gather and present the evidence that the expert would be able to develop."[31]

34. In United States v. Warner, the Court of Criminal Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) commented that "Article 46 is a clear statement of congressional intent against government exploitation of its opportunity to obtain an expert vastly superior to the defense's."[32] The playing field at trial is rendered even more uneven when the government benefits from scientific evidence and expert testimony while the defense is wholly denied a necessary expert to prepare for and respond to the government's expert.[33]

35. An accused may request any particular expert, including a government expert. If [the accused] is entitled to an expert, the government must provide the named expert or a suitable substitute.[34]

ARGUMENT

The participation of a forensic pathologist for the Defense is absolutely necessary to prepare an adequate defense for CSSN Copeland.

The Government conceded, and this Court agreed, that the Defense requires the assistance of a forensic pathologist to adequately defend CSSN Copeland. This Court instructed the Government to provide an adequate substitute for the Defense in response to the Defense Motion to Compel Expert Consultant filed on 26 November 2025. The necessity of a defense expert in this field is not in dispute.

This is the second filing on the same matter which is largely undisputed. The Defense has yet to be able to begin working with a forensic pathologist in a case that will rely heavily on medical and scientific evidence. The Government has already had the ability to consult and work with their expert for more than seven months as of this filing. Dr. Matshes is not available for the trial dates and is therefore, not an adequate substitute for the Defense.

Trial is swiftly approaching and for the Defense to make beneficial use of an expert consultant, one that everyone recognizes is necessary for a fair trial, Dr. Banerjee is the correct option- she is ready to begin working, she has discounted her pre-trial consultation rate, and she remains available for the ordered trial dates.

The Government cites cost as the sole impediment to the employment of the Defense requested expert Dr. Banerjee. However, the identified substitutes, both civilian forensic pathology experts, exceeds the Government's arbitrary "maximum rate" proffered to this Court by $200 per hour. Dr. Banerjee has agreed to align her hourly fee for pre-trial consultation with that positively endorsed by the Government, and her participation should be compelled.

As of this filing, almost half of the Trial Management Order dates have passed, United States v. CSSN Jermiah Copeland is less than six months from trial, and the Defense remains unable to begin working with an expert in forensic pathology. The Government must prove CSSN Copeland committed "an act" that caused the death of CS3 A.R. While the Government intends to rely on a theory of strangulation, based upon other wholly unrelated acts vice any physical evidence, the medical and scientific evidence in this case will be in dispute. Currently slated for trial are two medical doctors who both could not determine a manner of death, but do not necessarily agree on all of their findings. That is the current posture of the case, and the Defense [33] United States v. Lee, 64 M.J. 213, 218 (C.A.A.F. 2006).

[34] United States v. Reyes, 80 M.J. 218, 227(C.A.A.F. 2020)(citing United States v Short, 50 M.J. 370, 372 (C.A.A.F. 1999).

cannot begin to develop alternative theories of defense or test the Government's purported evidence in the absence of an expert in this field.

The Defense requested the assistance of Dr. Banerjee, an expert witness who has previously worked on numerous military cases and is currently enrolled in the federal payment system. The sole reason the Government cites to the court and the Defense for disapproving the Defense requested witness was her fees. Importantly, the Government could not find a substitute for the fee range cited in their response to the Defense Motion to Compel Expert Consultant. Instead, the Government attempted to provide two individuals, who are both not adequate substitutes, at a rate higher than their own purported maximum. This positive endorsement provided by special trial counsel for Dr. Matshes was only for 30 hours of pre-trial consultation and did not include any funding for trial participation. Dr. Banerjee graciously agreed to reduce her fee for pre-trial consultation to $600 per hour and is ready to begin working with the Defense. This concession was not acceptable to the special trial counsel, who despite not asking for trial funding for Dr. Matshes, maintains that Dr. Banerjee's trial rate will be too expensive. There is no indication that this concern arises with the convening authority in this case and appears to originate solely from those who are prosecuting the case against CSSN Copeland.

The Defense must be allowed to begin preparing its case and a forensic pathologist is a key component of the team. The initial Defense motion filed on 26 November 2025 asked for Court to compel an expert for pre-trial and trial participation. This Court instructed the Government to identify an adequate substitute. The Defense remains without an "adequate substitute, or any, expert consultant who available for the scheduled trial dates. Importantly, the longer this process is allowed to stagnate increases the chances for necessary amendments to the trial management order, all the while the Defense has twice requested speedy trial[35] and CSSN Copeland remains in "maximum custody" status at the brig. Therefore, this Court must compel the production of Dr. Banerjee for pre-trial consultation and trial participation as requested in the Defense's previous filing.

Dr. Matshes and Dr. Lew are not adequate substitutes for Dr. Banerjee.

If this Court feels that the "adequate substitute," who is not available to support the scheduled trial dates, meets the Government's obligation to provide the Defense an adequate substitute, the following sections articulate why there is a great distinction between Dr. Banerjee and Dr. Matshes and Dr. Lew; they are not adequate substitutes.[36] From the outset a cursory, [35] The Defense recognizes that the scheduled trial dates were agreed upon by all parties but contends this was matter of necessity and not a decision that forfeits the accused's right to trial in a timely manner.

[36] The defense request is specific to the production of an expert consultant and not, as of yet, for an expert witness. Should the Defense need to make that motion it would become imperative to compare the qualifications of the government's expert and the "adequate substitute." That is not the question currently facing this Court in this motion to reconsider. Importantly, the Defense has received no discovery materials related to the employment of any Government expert. While Dr. Lameira has been identified as a Government witness, the Defense has only received a single RCM 701 disclosure from July 2025, and is waiting on a response to a defense request asking for her C.V. However, an open-source search of this doctor, like Dr. Banerjee, does not reveal any public controversy surrounding her professional career.

open source search of Dr. Evan Matshes and Dr. Lew reveals that both have been embroiled in multiple controversies both in the United States and Canada.[37] For Dr. Matshes, some of those cases may have resolved, ultimately, in his favor, though that does not remove the shadow cast upon his work, nor necessarily limit areas for cross examination at trial. Dr. Matshes himself acknowledges that the controversies surrounding his career have been the subject of cross examination.[38] While it may not preclude his qualification as an expert, his credibility was (and would be in this case) called into question if he ultimately was required to testify.

Dr. Lew suffers the same deficiency. Her professional work has been called into question as have the reliability of her conclusions.[39] Dr. Lameira for the Government, and Dr. Banerjee for the defense do not suffer this same deficiency. When an accused requests a particular expert witness, their qualifications when compared to any substitute witness may then be relevant given the fact that the witness' credibility is typically at issue.[40]

The sole premise of the Government's employment of Dr. Matshes and Dr. Lew is simply that they cost less to employ than Dr. Banerjee. This reasoning does not explain how individuals who have been shrouded in controversy throughout their careers, are necessarily an adequate substitute for one of the premier forensic pathologists in the country whose work is impeccable and above reproach.

In a situation where medical and scientific evidence will be the subject of scrutiny, testimony, and challenge, it strains credulity that Dr. Matshes or Dr. Lew, who are both selected for the Defense by the Government, will be said to be above reproach. As this Court is aware this case has garnered much media attention and any reporter worth their salt will not have difficulty connecting and pointing out the controversy that surrounds either of these doctors. Same too with members of the panel. If they were to conduct a quick search, recognizing that this Court will admonish them not to, Dr. Matshes' and Dr. Lew's professional careers would be highlighted through a series of news headlines which are less than favorable. These are not fanciful speculations, but distinct possibilities that could call the fairness of CSSN Copeland's trial into question.

[40] United States v. Axe, 80 M.J. 578 (N-M. Ct. Crim. App. 2020).

If Dr. Matshes or Dr. Lew were deemed adequate and they ultimately testified at trial in support of CSSN Copeland, surely the Government would not abdicate their role and responsibility to adequately cross-examine these experts. When viewed from the eyes of member of the public there does not even seem to be the appearance of fairness for CSSN Copeland. CAAF has held "[c]ourts-martial must not only be just, they must be perceived as just. The requirement of Article 46, UCMJ, for equal access to witnesses and evidence secures that just result and enhances the perception of fairness in military justice."[41]

The Defense selects a professional to work with, the Government disapproves it and provides an expert of their own choosing. At which time the Government's selection then consults about the Government's evidence, and then on cross-examination at trial the Government delves into the controversy surrounding their professional career. That is the prospect facing CSSN Copeland. His case will receive abundant media scrutiny and commentary in a city that supports the largest naval base in the world. It cannot be perceived as just that his request for an expert was denied solely because it was "too expensive" when he is on trial with the rest of his natural life at stake.

In Warner, CAAF dealt with an issue similar to what is presented in this case. There the Government retained an expert in "shaken baby syndrome."[42] In fact, he was the preeminent practitioner in this field within the Air Force.[43] The Government provided an adequate substitute to the Defense, a credentialed provider but whose specialization was in adolescents, arguably less useful in a case about "shaken baby syndrome."[44] In Warner CAAF held "[t]he military judge's erroneous denial of the defense motion for a more qualified expert consultant left the defense without the adequate tools to analyze and possibly challenge or rebut that opinion," which required overturning the findings and sentence.[45]

In addition to the myriad differences in perceived credibility, Dr. Matshes' work appears to have a much narrower focus than that of Dr. Banerjee.[46] Specifically, Dr. Matshes focuses in pediatric forensic pathology (though he has been qualified in other areas) and this is indicated by his most recent work and publications focusing on pediatrics.[47] Similarly, Dr. Lew has produced a majority of her written work, proceedings, and abstracts with Dr. Matshes on issues related to pediatrics.[48] Importantly, her most recent consultant work was in 2018- and all of her consultant work appears to be solely as a forensic pathology consultant for Government agencies, her CV makes no mention of ever working for the Defense.[49] Dr. Banerjee is a recognized educator, preeminent forensic pathologist, and works frequently in the arena of autopsies, decomposition, [46] The rationale that follows also figures in to a calculus between the Government's expert, Dr. Lameira and Dr. Matshes and Dr. Lew. Dr. Lameira does not appear to have any controversy surrounding her career and no Brady or other derogatory information has been provided by the Government in discovery. This suggests that a comparison of those experts would result in the conclusion that Dr. Lameira and Dr. Banerjee are, in fact, comparable experts.

1. Pursuant to Section 0145(a)(7)(b) under reference (c), Special Trial Counsel has determined that employment of a defense expert in forensic pathology is necessary. Special Trial Counsel does not endorse the Defense's requested expert – Dr. Banjeree. Instead, Special Trial Counsel has obtained an adequate substitute, Dr. Evan Matshes. His CV and fee schedule are attached.

2. Accordingly, I respectfully request CNRMA execute funding for 30 hours of evidence review and consultation ($18,000) for Dr. Matshes. If Defense requires Dr. Matshes' services for trial based on their consultation, Defense should send a separate request articulating the necessity.

3. As evidenced in enclosure (3), Dr. Matshes is qualified for this appointment with specialized experience. The Government is unable to obtain an adequate government substitute for the Defense in this area.

Encl: (1) Dr. Banerjee CV
(2) Dr. Banerjee Fee Schedule

1. Pursuant to references (a) through (h), CSSN Jermiah Copeland, through counsel, requests the government to appoint Dr. Priya Banerjee as a forensic pathology expert consultant to the defense team to assist in the preparation of its case, in accordance with Uniform Code of Military Justice (U.C.M.J.), Article 46; Rule for Courts-Martial (R.C.M.) 703; United States v. Ford, 51 M.J. 445 (C.A.A.F. 1999) and United States v. Toledo, 25 M.J. 270 (C.M.A. 1987). CSSN Copeland further requests that the forensic pathologist be designated as a member of the defense team bound by the attorney-client privilege, in accordance with Military Rule of Evidence (M.R.E.) 502(a) and other applicable federal laws and regulations.

2. Law. Under the Sixth Amendment, CSSN Copeland has the right to the effective assistance of counsel and the right to present a defense. In order to adequately represent CSSN Copeland, he requires more than the advocacy skills of his attorney. This includes "the right to present a defense by means of confrontation, cross-examination and going forward with a presentation of its own evidence." United States v. Allen, 31 M.J. 572. The right to present evidence "necessarily includes the right to prepare." Id. As stated above, military due process consequently "entitles a service member to the assistance of an expert when necessary to the preparation of an adequate defense." Id. (quoting United States v. Garries, 22 M.J. 288 (C.M.A. 1986)). Congress guaranteed, through the UCMJ, that the parties to a court-martial "shall have equal opportunity to obtain witnesses and other evidence." Article 46, U.C.M.J. Under this scheme, service members are entitled to expert assistance when such assistance is necessary in mounting an adequate defense. Ake v. Oklahoma, 470 U.S. 68, 76-83 (1985) (holding, when necessary, due process requires appointment of a government expert). Importantly, the entitlement for an accused to expert assistance "is not limited to actual expert testimony at trial." United States v.

Lee, 64 M.J. 213, 217 (C.A.A.F. 2006).

To avail himself or herself of this right, an accused—through defense counsel—must submit a request for an expert to the convening authority, supported by "a statement of reasons why the employment of the expert is necessary." R.C.M. 703(d). Both references (b) and (c) provide the structure for evaluating requests for expert consultants and witnesses.

The Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces has held that RCM 703(d) authorizes employment of experts to assist the defense at government expense when they are relevant and necessary. The Court established a three-prong test to determine the necessity of a requested expert:

1. Why is the expert needed;
2. What would the expert accomplish for the defense; and
3. Why is the defense unable to gather and present the evidence that the expert assistant would be able to develop?

3. Factual Background. CSSN Copeland is charged with the premeditated murder of CSSN A.R., among a myriad of other charges. During the ensuing investigation into the death of CSSN A.R., the Government performed medical tests and examinations on the deceased, resulting in scientific and medical reports regarding the evidence. The Government has secured the assistance of an expert, Dr. Fernanda Lemeira and will surely be using Dr. Lemeira's skill, knowledge, experience and expertise in the Government's case against CSSN Copeland. CSSN Copeland requires the assistance of Dr. Banerjee to meet and test the evidence that will be presented against him in order to ensure a full and fair trial on the merits.

4. Why an Expert is needed and What the Expert would accomplish for the defense?

At trial the Government will necessarily present medical evidence and scientific testimony as evidence against CSSN Copeland. The Defense must be afforded the opportunity prepare for, meet, and counter the Government's evidence. Dr. Banerjee will assist the Defense in analyzing evidence and reports, the techniques and procedures used, and the testimony of the Government's witnesses.

Dr. Banerjee will provide the Defense with expert opinions and assessments of the evidence that are constitutionally required to confront the Government's evidence in defense of CSSN Copeland. She has skills, education, training, and experience that the attorneys for CSSN Copeland cannot hope to attain- even through diligent effort- prior to trial. Her assistance is essential and required for a full and fair trial.

The evidence provided in discovery indicates that the cause of death for CSSN A.R. remains "undetermined." The nature of this assessment indicates that the Government will be pursuing a theory that, though cause of death is undetermined, CSSN Copeland was responsible for her death. Dr. Banerjee's training, education and experience will help the defense team probe alternate theories of death, different possible causes of death, and counter the evidence presented by the Government's experts. These are not hypothetical results of this expert's work on the case- they are actual tangible assistance directly related to the Defense's theory of the case.

Dr. Banerjee's assistance will be required and utilized throughout litigation of pretrial legal and evidentiary issues as well as during trial on the merits. Her assistance, and its necessity to the Defense team cannot be understated.

5. Why counsel cannot perform such duties. The rapid growth in forensic science techniques at trial may make cases more complex than general practitioners can handle on their own. United States v. McAllister, 55 M.J. 270, 275 (2001); United States v. Warner, 62 M.J. 114, 118 (C.A.A.F. 2005). No member of the defense is an expert in the field of forensic pathology. Although counsel have and will continue to diligently research these areas, they cannot realistically be expected to attain the level of competency required to challenge and evaluate a Government's experts or challenge and evaluate the Government's evidence. Without the ability to consult with its own expert, the Defense would not be able to adequately represent CSSN Copeland within the meaning of the Sixth Amendment or the UCMJ.

6. Adequate government substitute. The Defense is not aware of an acceptable governmental substitute that has comparable qualifications, education or experience to that of Dr. Banerjee.

7. Cost. Enclosure (2) is Dr. Banerjee's fee schedule. Her rate for professional consulting is $850 per hour and trial participation rate of $10,000 per day. We have estimated that she will need 30 hours for pre-trial consultancy at a cost of $25,500.00, and trial participation for 22 days at a cost of $220,000.00. The defense requests a total authorization of $245,500.00, not including travel expenses to be reimbursed in accordance with the Joint Travel Regulations. Dr. Banerjee is currently available for the scheduled trial dates and is already enrolled within the federal payment system.

8. The Defense requests that the expert consultant be viewed as a member of the Defense team such that all communications between the expert consultant and the accused and his counsel will be viewed as confidential. The Defense further requests that the Government not have any conversations or other interaction with the requested expert consultant in relation to this case except for any administrative communications in securing their assistance for the Defense. The Defense understands this limitation may be removed if the defense eventually desires to have the expert testify in the case.

9. Dr. Banerjee's assistance is relevant and necessary to providing CSSN Copeland with an adequate defense to the charges. Should you have any questions or require any additional information, please contact me at `todd.m.mihill.mil@us.navy.mil` or 571-369-8409.

Chris,

I'm not doubting you, but he may be confused. He informed us that he hadn't spoken with anyone about this case. I will let you know when I hear back from him.

Good Afternoon Todd –

Thanks for bringing that to our attention. Prior to recommending him, we confirmed with him that he would be available for trial. Obviously, things can change, but that is frustrating. Once he gets back to you, please let us know and we can go from there.

V/r,

Chris

LCDR Dempsey,

I have provided the remaining necessary info to CNRMA in order for Dr. Matshes to be approved to work with us. However, I didn't want to surprise you with this tomorrow morning, but he cannot confirm he is available for the trial dates (I'm waiting to hear back when he will know for sure) and he also stated his preference to move the trial dates to accommodate his participation.

I don't think either party wants to shift these trial dates.

I just wanted to put it on your radar before it comes up with the military judge tomorrow.

Standing by to discuss your alternate thoughts. It doesn't make sense for us to work with someone who cannot be available for our trial dates.

Very Respectfully,

LCDR Mihill,

That is not what the Court ordered. You specifically requested that the Government find a substitute expert on your behalf and the Court ordered that be done as a result. We have complied. Dr. Matshes was previously appointed as a forensic pathologist in the western circuit and has all that he needs to quickly contract with the Government.

Prior to the Court's ruling, we were under the impression that your expert was unwilling to reduce her rate as you had ample notice and opportunity to provide us with that information. After the court's order, we provided you an additional opportunity to speak with Dr. Banerjee about reducing her fee (although we were not required to) and did again on Friday. Her fee of $10,000/day is far from insignificant. The difference from Dr. Matshes is $115,000 in this case.

If she is able to match Dr. Matshes rate, please let us know. Thank you.

V/r,

LCDR Dempsey

LCDR Dempsey,

I have no idea at this point. We need to begin working, pre-trial consultation, with Dr. Banerjee. You all have endorsed 30 hours at $600/hr. Dr. Banerjee has agreed to that rate for pre-trial consultation.

Additionally, a quick search of Dr. Matshes demonstrates that he is the subject of multiple controversial issues and has some opinions that do not necessarily represent the broader field of forensic pathology.

We need to at least conduct our pre-trial consultation before we will be positioned to ask Dr. Banerjee to take half of her normal rate. A rate that she has been approved for in other courts martial.

Please let me know if you need additional information.

Very Respectfully,

Good Afternoon Defense,

Dr. Matshes charges $600/hour, but only $5,000/day for trial. Would Dr. Banerjee come down from her listed $10,000/day to meet that number? Thanks.

Good Afternoon Government,

After receiving your endorsement we spoke to Dr. Banerjee who agreed to work at $600/hr pretrial. Since $600/hr was the apparent rate for Dr. Matshes I presume this will alleviate the issue and you'll endorse Dr. Banerjee for the Defense? Happy to discuss.

Hi Todd,

Thanks for reaching out and for the detailed questions. Please see below:

- I am not yet able to confirm availability for June 3–26, pending resolution of current scheduling conflicts. Once those are resolved, I'll provide an update. If trial delay is an option, that is preferable over June.
- I have previously been qualified as an expert in military courts, including cases involving serious charges such as murder and sexual assault. I have worked for both prosecution and defense at various points.
- Pediatric forensic pathology remains a central focus, but my practice and expertise also cover general forensic pathology and adult cases. I am an expert in sexual assault, women's health, gynecologic pathology, and because I trained in and practice gynecology, rape and sexual battery remains a major focus of my practice.
- I have not seen any media coverage about this case.
- Past allegations and related media coverage have not impeded my expert qualification. I have been cross-examined on these matters in the past, but the outcomes have not restricted my ability to serve as an expert. The ultimate outcome of the spurious reviews and complaints is that my work is of high quality and reliable.
- Updated CV is attached.
- I have not had any discussions about the facts of this case with Special Trial Counsel or anyone else.

I am happy to speak with you at any time.

Let me know if there are additional materials or questions you'd like me to consider.

We have an agency level investigator we have authorized for CUI DOD work — Investigator Buckley is CC'd to this email to assist with meeting coordinations, evidence review, etc.

Subject: US v. Copeland

Good Afternoon Dr. Matshes,

LCDR Amanda Serfess, LCDR Clifton Morgan, and myself represent CSSN Jermiah Copeland in court martial proceedings currently pending in Norfolk, VA. The Special Trial Counsel recently provided us your information as an "adequate substitute" for participation in the trial of our client, CSSN Jermiah Copeland. While we have been waiting to receive a contract in order to work with you, we don't yet have that to pass along. However, the trial is approaching and we have yet to be able to begin much substantive work with a forensic pathologist.

A couple of preliminary questions immediately stand out for me, and I am not certain the Government has asked you any of these questions as we have not been provided any discovery of communications or emails they may have had with you. Some of them may seem blunt, but they do need to be asked before we begin working together.

1. Are you currently available from 3-26 June 2026 to support the defense of CSSN Jermiah Copeland?

2. The case involves allegations of premeditated murder and sexual assault. Have you previously been qualified as an expert in military courts to work on this type of case? If so, how long ago was that and did you work for the prosecution or the defense?
3. I note from a quick review of the CV the government provided that your work and research tends to be in pediatric forensic pathology, is that still your central area of focus?
4. Have you seen any media coverage of this case? For reference, the deceased in this case is named A[redacted] R[redacted].
5. A cursory open-source search also revealed some information about past issues/allegations which have ultimately resolved in your favor, have any of those allegations, news stories, or subsequent litigation impeded your ability to be qualified as an expert? And if it did not impede your ability to be qualified, did those allegations result in any areas of cross examination at resulting trials?
6. Could you please provide an updated CV for me and let me know if you have had any discussions about the facts of this case with Special Trial Counsel or anyone else?
7. Is there a good day/time when we can discuss the case? Recognizing, of course, that we cannot pay you anything for your time until a formal contract is in place with the US Government.

My apologies for the barrage of questions from the outset, but, as I mentioned, the trial is coming and we need to ensure we make the most efficient use of time. Thanks for your consideration and I look forward to speaking with you.

Very Respectfully,

Todd M. Mihill

Subject: RE: 2025-1719 - United States v. Jermiah Copeland

Hello An,

I was under the impression the Government was working to establish this contract. Has anyone reached out to you the get the CAGE Code for Dr. Matshes in order for him to participate?

The documents you sent me are not ones that I can sign in order to obligate funds on behalf of the Navy and they must go through Commander Navy Region Mid-Atlantic (CNRMA).

If you could provide me the CAGE code and email address or contact information for Dr. Matshes I would greatly appreciate. I can then start helping to make the necessary connections.

Very Respectfully,

Todd M. Mihill

Good afternoon,

I am reaching out to inquire about your availability to serve as an expert consultant for the defense in a Navy court-martial. The accused in the case is charged with, among other charges, murder. Trial is scheduled for 3 – 26 June 2026 on board Naval Station Norfolk in Norfolk, Virginia. Although I am the prosecutor assigned to this matter, the court has directed me to assist in identifying a potential defense consultant.

If you are interested, I am happy to answer any questions you might have. Also, if available, please send a current CV and fee schedule. Thank you!

Hi everyone,

Sorry for the delays. It's been a heavy few weeks.

We have tried everything to make me available during that period in June. Unfortunately, there are too many complications to commit. This pains me.

If there is a chance you can move the trial to July or August, I'll be all over it for you. If not, I do hope to have the chance to serve you again in the future.

Hello Amanda,

This would be in person participation, in Norfolk, Virginia.

As we are the defense I cannot guarantee when he would be called upon to testify or when he will be assisting in the cross examination of government witnesses.

That said he would need to be available for the duration of the trial dates, perhaps exclusive of 3 and 4 June.

Morning Lieutenant Mihill,

Let me take a look at Dr Matshes schedule with him as June is quite impacted with trials.

I have a couple of questions first, will this be in person in VA, one or two days?

I know you mentioned June 3-26th would he be closer to beginning of trial or end

Good Morning,

I am following up on confirmation as to whether Dr. Matshes is available for the trial dates in this case; 3-26 June 2026. If someone could please let me know that would be much appreciated. Unfortunately, if he is not available for the trial dates any pre-trial consultation would not be beneficial. Thanks for your consideration.

Subject: [Non-DoD Source] Re: NAAG CASE 2025-1719 Expert Consultation Inquiry - Navy Court-Martial (Norfolk, Virginia)

Good afternoon,

In speaking with Dr. Matshes, we are going to assign Dr Emma Lew to this trial I have attached her CV. I think you will be thrilled to have her as a high profile pathologist.

She can be the consulting expert and/or testifying expert on this case. She can commit to June 7-27th to be in court. If you decide to also use Dr. Matshes as testifying expert he would only be available very end of trial 24th-25th.

I hope you find this solution to your satisfaction. We appreciate you choosing NAAG and do enjoy working with you.

I would still suggest sending a subpoena over for Dr Emma Lew please.

Thank you

Good afternoon,

Thank you for reaching out. I'm interested in assisting with this matter. We are established DOD contractors and happy to serve.

- I'll need to review the case details and confirm there are no conflicts. Please send any available information for a preliminary review — I will ask Investigator Buckley at my agency to call you to complete the conflict check over the phone.
- My CV and DOD rate sheet are attached.

I look forward to the chance to work together,

Subject: Expert Consultation Inquiry - Navy Court-Martial (Norfolk, Virginia)

Good afternoon,

I am reaching out to inquire about your availability to serve as an expert consultant for the defense in a Navy court-martial. The accused in the case is charged with, among other charges, murder. Trial is scheduled for 3 – 26 June 2026 on board Naval Station Norfolk in Norfolk, Virginia. Although I am the prosecutor assigned to this matter, the court has directed me to assist in identifying a potential defense consultant.

If you are interested, I am happy to answer any questions you might have. Also, if available, please send a current CV and fee schedule. Thank you!

NAVY-MARINE CORPS TRIAL JUDICIARY
CENTRAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL

UNITED STATES v. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/ E-3 U.S. NAVY	DEFENSE MOTION TO SUPPRESS (THE SEARCH OF CSSN COPELAND'S CELLPHONE (CASS)) 18 February 2026

MOTION

Pursuant to the Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution, Military Rule of Evidence (M.R.E.) 311, and Rule for Courts-Martial (R.C.M.) 905(b)(3), the Defense respectfully moves this Court to suppress all evidence obtained and derived from the unlawful search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone pursuant to the 5 June 2025 Command Authorization for Search and Seizure (CASS).

SUMMARY

On 3 June 2025, NCIS agents seized CSSN Copeland's cellphone after placing him in handcuffs to conduct a search of his barracks room pursuant to a CASS. During an interview with CSSN Copeland the agents attempted to get CSSN Copeland's permission to search his cellphone. After initially consenting to the agents searching his phone, he later revoked consent during that same interview. The agents exercised dominion and control of his cellphone by placing it into airplane mode. Afterward, NCIS completed a digital extraction of CSSN Copeland's phone and later got a CASS. Specifically, this CASS purported to authorize the search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone for evidence of Articles 86 and 107, UCMJ. This CASS was invalid as it was overly broad without particularity. If there was any particularity, there was no probable cause at the time to believe that CSSN Copeland's cellphone contained evidence of violations of Articles 86 or 107, UCMJ. Therefore, this court should suppress all evidence derived from the search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone.

GOOD CAUSE

The Government preferred charges in this cause on 22 August 2025. The Government did not discover the 5 June 2025 CASS at issue until 21 November 2025, which was attached to the Digital Forensic Examiner (DFE) report, which was only 5 days prior to the initial motions deadline. This was not enough time, considering the number of other motions the Defense raised, to form a proper analysis of the issues surrounding the CASS. Additionally, a "particularized objection" is required to preserve suppression issues and keep them from being waived. United States v. Blackburn, 80 M.J. 205, 209-10 (C.A.A.F. 2020). The interest of justice and preservation of CSSN Copeland's constitutional rights favor this Court ruling on the issues raised in this motion.

BURDEN

"[T]he prosecution has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the evidence was not obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure" or that some valid exception applies. MIL. R. EVID. 311(d)(5)(A).

FACTS

1. CSSN Copeland was marked unauthorized absent (UA) for 29 May 2025 to 1 June 2025. CS3 A.R. did not go to work 30 May 2025 to 1 June 2025; although, she was scheduled to do so. (Enclosure A).

2. On 1 June 2025, NCIS interviewed CS3 A.R.'s mother and she told NCIS that her daughter has attempted suicide and suffers from mental illnesses that require medication. (Enclosure B).

3. On 1 June 2025, NCIS interviewed CSSN Copeland. (Enclosure C).

4. On 3 June 2025, NCIS went to CSSN Copeland's barracks room to execute a CASS. After conducting a safety check CSSN Copeland's cellphone was seized, and CSSN Copeland was taken to NCIS to be interrogated. (Special Agent Jessica Gokey Art. 39a Testimony of 10 Dec 25).

5. Although NCIS claimed to have probable cause to search CSSN Copeland's phone prior to seizing it, NCIS agents did not seek or obtain a search authorization for CSSN Copeland's cellphone before taking it. (Id).

6. At the beginning of the interrogation, NCIS agents provided CSSN Copeland his Article 31b rights, notifying him that he is suspected of committing only unauthorized absence and false official statement, in violation of Articles 86 and 107, UCMJ. (Enclosure D).

7. During the interrogation, NCIS agents asked CSSN Copeland permission to search his cellphone. Initially, CSSN Copeland agreed and provided the agents the passcode to his phone. (Id).

8. The NCIS agents tested the passcode to ensure it worked and placed CSSN Copeland's phone into airplane mode. (Special Agent Jessica Gokey Art. 39a Testimony of 10 Dec. 25).

9. Later in the interrogation, CSSN Copeland revoked his consent to search his cellphone. After being asked if he was still good with the permissive authorization (consent) to search his phone, CSSN Copeland shook his no, and verbally stated no. (AE XXIX: Enclosure B - CD of CSSN Copeland's Recorded Interview of 3 Jun 25).

10. CSSN Copeland also asked for his phone back after being dropped off back at his barracks room. (Special Agent Bernadette Duffy Art. 39a Testimony of 10 Dec 25).

11. During the interrogation, CSSN Copeland admitted to reaching out to CS3 A.R. several times after she went missing. However, none of those attempts at communication were successful. (Enclosure D).

12. On 21 November 2025, the Government discovered the Digital Forensic Examiner (DFE) report, which was created from the search of CSSN Copeland's phone that details the following:

a. On 04Jun25, Digital Forensic Examiner (DFE) Samuel BUSH, NCIS Digital Forensics Norfolk, VA, conducted a digital forensic acquisition of a seized iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND maintained on NCIS evidence custody log number NFFO 13Y9L Item XUQP3 pursuant to a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) executed by S/COPELAND, dated 04Jun25.

b. Between 05Jun25 and 09Jun25, DFE DAVISON conducted a digital forensic examination of a seized iPhone 15 Pro Max belonging to S/COPELAND maintained on NCIS evidence custody log number NFFO 13Y9L Item XUQP3 pursuant to a Command Authorization for Search and Seizure (CASS) executed by Capt Matthew SCHLARMAN, NAS Norfolk, VA, dated 05Jun25. (Enclosure F).

13. On 5 June 2025, NCIS obtained a CASS for CSSN Copeland's cellphone. According, to the affidavit, NCIS claimed to only be investigating violations of Articles 86 and 107, UCMJ. (Enclosure A).

14. Regarding unauthorized absence, the affidavit alleged that CSSN Copeland failed to report to work and was marked unauthorized absence for the period of 29 May through 1 June 2025. (Id).

15. For false official statement, the affidavit stated that during an interview on 1 June 2025, CSSN Copeland reported that he and a roommate dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks. However, during a subsequent interview on 3 June 2025, he stated that he never left the building and that CS3 A.R. may have taken an Uber or Z-Trip. (Id).

16. The affidavit noted that CS3 A.R.'s whereabouts were unknown, but her cellphone last pinged in Suffolk, VA on 31 May 2025. (Id).

17. NCIS' coordination with local law enforcement to get location data on vehicles CSSN Copeland was known to drive and interviews with people with knowledge of CSSN Copeland's whereabouts all indicated that he remained within the vicinity of Norfolk, VA, which is where he lived and worked. (Enclosures G, H, I).

18. Despite the NCIS agent's years of law enforcement experience, the affidavit did not allege that CSSN Copeland used his cellphone to facilitate unauthorized absence, to make false official statements, or to communicate any false information. (Enclosure A).

19. The affidavit did not identify, with reasonable belief or even suspicion, any specific communication, digital record, or application believed to contain evidence of the alleged offenses. (Id).

20. Based solely on the affidavit and attachments, the Commanding Officer authorized the search and seizure of CSSN Copeland's cellphone.

LAW

The Fourth Amendment's Purpose

The Fourth Amendment states, "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated, and no Warrants shall issue, but upon probable cause, supported by Oath or affirmation, and particularly describing the place to be searched, and the persons or things to be seized." US CONST. amend. IV. The "purpose of the Fourth Amendment was to prevent the use of 'governmental force' to search a man's house, his person, his papers or his effects and to prevent their seizure against his will." Love v. United States, 170 F.2d 32, 33 (4th Cir. 1948), cert. denied, 336 U.S. 912 (1949). The Fourth Amendment was "the founding generation's response to the reviled 'general warrants' of the colonial era, which allowed British officers to rummage through homes in an unrestrained search for evidence of criminal activity." Riley v. California, 573 U.S. 373, 403 (2014).

The military rules of evidence have codified the bulk of the Fourth Amendment precedent in M.R.E. 311, 314, and 315. Under M.R.E. 311, absent certain exceptions, "evidence obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure made by a person acting in a government capacity is inadmissible against the accused." Under M.R.E. 315, probable cause is required for "evidence obtained from reasonable searches conducted pursuant to a search warrant or search authorization. Under M.R.E. 314, several types of searches which do not require probable cause are outlined, including consent searches.

Reasonable Expectation of Privacy

The Fourth Amendment "protects people, not places,"[1] and this protection includes people's expectations of privacy that "society is prepared to recognize as reasonable." Carpenter, at 2213 (2018) (quoting Smith v. Maryland, 442 U. S.735, 740 (1979).

Modern cellular phones are comparable to "minicomputers" which contain information touching "nearly every aspect" of a person's life "from the mundane to the intimate." Riley, at 393, 395. Even when the Government has the right to seize a cellular phone (as in a search incident to lawful arrest), a warrant is required to search the phone. Id. at 403. When it comes to seizing a cellular phone, a seizure of digital evidence is complete "when the digital content is in the exclusive control of authorized personnel, secure from unauthorized manipulation or destruction." United States v. Strong, 85 M.J. 58, 60-62 (C.A.A.F. 2024) (finding the seizure of digital evidence had not occurred when agents attempted to put the accused's cellphone into airplane mode but was unsuccessful, and the accused was able to remotely reset her cellphone.).

Probable cause determination

Where an expectation of privacy exists the Fourth Amendment requires a warrant or, in the military, a search authorization. Mil. R. Evid. 311. An authorizing Commander (in place of an unbiased magistrate) must be able to determine from the face of the search authorization application and attached affidavits or relied upon oaths, that there is a "fair probability that … evidence of a crime will be found in a particular place." Illinois v. Gates, 462 U.S. 213, 238 (1983). To be constitutionally valid, a search authorization can only be issued "when, based on the totality of the circumstances, a common-sense judgment would lead to the conclusion that there is a fair probability that evidence of a crime will be found at the identified location." United States v. Perkins, 78 M.J. 550, 553 (N-M Ct. Crim. App. 2018). Normally searches pursuant to prior authorization are given deference, but upon review of a Commander's search authorization, a military judge "may conclude that the commander's probable cause determination "reflected an improper analysis of the totality of the circumstances." Id.

A commander must make an independent determination of probable cause and "his action cannot be a mere ratification of the bare conclusions of others." Id. Bare conclusions include conclusory allegations and factually unsupported statements by the affiant that the search is likely to yield evidence or fruits of crime. Gates, 462 U.S. at 239. Probable cause for searching a particular place exists in an affidavit only when the affidavit sets forth facts constituting a substantial basis for finding a fair probability that first, a crime has been committed, and second, the particular place may contain the fruits, instrumentalities or evidence of the crime committed. See id. at 236, 238-239.

Probable cause requires a sufficient nexus between the alleged crime and the item to be seized. United States v. Nieto, 76 M.J. 101, 106 (C.A.A.F. 2017) (citing United States v. Rogers, 67 M.J. 162, 166 (C.A.A.F. 2009). The question of nexus focuses on whether there was a fair probability that contraband or evidence of a crime will be found in a particular place. Id. (citing United States v. Clayton, 68 M.J. 419, 424 (C.A.A.F. 2010)). Such a nexus "may be inferred from the facts and circumstances of a particular case, including the type of crime, the nature of the items sought, and reasonable inferences about where evidence is likely to be kept." Nieto, 76 M.J. at 106 (internal quotation marks omitted) (citations omitted).

Particularity Requirement: General Searches Prohibited

When warrants are issued upon probable cause, the Fourth Amendment, by its terms, requires particularity in the warrant—not in the supporting documents.[2] The "manifest purpose of [the] particularity requirement was to prevent general searches." United States v. Richards, 76 M.J. 365, 369 (C.A.A.F. 2017) cert. denied, 138 S. Ct. 2701 (2018) (citing Maryland v. Garrison, 480 U.S. 79, 84 (1987)). "The Fourth Amendment requires that a search warrant describe the things to be seized with sufficient particularity to prevent a general exploratory rummaging in a person's belongings." Richards, 76 M.J. at 369 (C.A.A.F. 2017) (quoting United States v. Carey, 172 F.3d 1268, 1272 (10th Cir. 1999)).

Exclusionary Rule as the Remedy for Unlawful Searches and Seizures

"Evidence obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure made by a person acting in a governmental capacity is inadmissible" if there is a timely motion to suppress, the accused had a reasonable expectation of privacy in the property searched, and "exclusion of the evidence results in appreciable deterrence of future unlawful searches or seizures and the benefits of such deterrence outweigh the costs to the justice system." Mil. R. Evid. 311(a). There are exceptions to this rule, including the inevitable discovery doctrine and the good-faith doctrine. See Mil. R. Evid. 311(c)(2), (3).

Inevitable Discovery

M.R.E. 311 codifies the inevitable discovery exception to the exclusionary rule as follows: "Evidence that was obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure may be used when the evidence would have been obtained even if such unlawful search or seizure had not been made." Mil. R. Evid. 311(c)(2). The inevitable discovery doctrine does not apply unless the government establishes by a preponderance of the evidence "that when the illegality occurred, the government agents possessed, or were actively pursuing, evidence or leads that would have inevitably led to the discovery of the evidence in a lawful manner." United States v. Eppes, 77 M.J. 339, 347 (C.A.A.F. 2018) (quoting United States v. Wicks, 73 M.J. 93, 103 (C.A.A.F. 2014)).

Good Faith Exception

The Good Faith Exception, codified in M.R.E. 311(c)(3), reads:

> Evidence that was obtained as a result of an unlawful search or seizure may be used if:

(A) the search or seizure resulted from an authorization to search, seize, or apprehend issued by an individual competent to issue the authorization under Mil. R. Evid. 315(d) or from a search warrant or arrest warrant issued by competent civilian authority, or from such an authorization or warrant issued by an individual whom the officials seeking and executing the authorization or warrant reasonably and with good faith believed was competent to issue the authorization or warrant;

(B) the individual issuing the authorization or warrant had a substantial basis for determining the existence of probable cause or the officials seeking and executing the authorization or warrant reasonably and with good faith believed that the individual issuing the authorization or warrant had a substantial basis for determining the existence of probable cause; and

(C) the officials seeking and executing the authorization or warrant reasonably and with good faith relied on the issuance of the authorization or warrant. Good faith is to be determined using an objective standard.[53]

The "good-faith inquiry is confined to the objectively ascertainable question whether a reasonably well trained officer would have known that the search was illegal in light of all of the circumstances." Herring v. United States, 555 U.S. 135, 145 (2009) (quoting United States v. Leon, 468 U.S. 897 (1984) (internal quotation marks omitted). Hernandez*, 81 M.J. 432, 440 (C.A.A.F. 2020) (citing Leon, 468 U.S. at 914, 923-24.

Fruit of the Poisonous Tree Doctrine

"Evidence derivative of an unlawful search, seizure, or interrogation is commonly referred to as the 'fruit of the poisonous tree' and is generally not admissible at trial." United States v. Conklin, 63 M.J. 333, 334 (C.A.A.F. 2006).

ARGUMENT

I. The search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone should be suppressed because his rights under the Fourth Amendment and the Military Rules of Evidence were violated.

All evidence obtained and derived from the search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone should be suppressed because the search violated CSSN Copeland's rights under the Fourth Amendment and the Military Rules of Evidence for two reasons: (1) the CASS was invalid for lack of particularity; and (2) the CASS was not supported by probable cause. As such, the exclusionary rule is necessary to deter the unreasonable investigative practices used in this case.

i. The CASS lacked particularity and effectively authorized a general search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone.

The 5 June 2025 CASS to search CSSN Copeland's cellphone lacked particularity and, therefore, was an unconstitutional general search limitless in scope by any measure. The Supreme Court has made clear that particularity is required on the face of the warrant, or the warrant must properly incorporate the supporting documents.[3] Here, the alleged crimes the CASS sought to obtain evidence of involves violations of Articles 86 and 107, UCMJ. Both offenses involve actions of CSSN Copeland's perceived misconduct that occurred within a finite time period: 29 May 2025 through, at the most, 3 June 2025. However, the CASS for CSSN Copeland's cellphone provides no temporal limitations at all. While a few of the items to be seized purports to be "pertaining to the Subject Offense(s)," some of the listed "items" open the search of CSSN Copeland's phone to an unknown amount of data, information and time. For example, the affidavit sought to obtain "[c]ontextual information necessary to understand the evidence . . . ." There is no explanation of what the NCIS agent considers contextual information, no locations of where they anticipate this contextual information being located, or how far back in time the agents anticipate could lead to obtaining this "contextual information." The NCIS agent's affidavit effectively sought, and the CASS authorized a review of years of digital data within CSSN Copeland's phone in an effort to investigate a four day unauthorized absence period and alleged inconsistent statements made in two interviews completed in just two days. It also give the agents unbridled discretion to determine what is "contextual." Failure of the CASS to limit a digital search to a relevant timeframe is indicative of how facially overbroad the CASS is, and it is precisely the type of general search authorization the Fourth Amendment was designed to prohibit. Therefore, the CASS is facially and constitutionally deficient.[4]

ii. There was no probable cause to search CSSN Copeland's cellphone, as no logical nexus existed between the phone and the suspected offenses of Articles 86 and 107, UCMJ.

There was no probable cause to support the 5 June 2025 CASS to search CSSN Copeland's cellphone for evidence of Article 86 or Article 107. First, at the time the CASS was signed, CSSN Copeland was not absent without leave and no one suspected him of being absent. He was in NCIS custody. Even if the Article 86 violation NCIS referenced in its CASS for CSSN Copeland's phone solely pertained to CS3 A.R., which was not stated, there was nothing to suggest or indicate a probability that evidence of CS3 A.R.'s whereabouts would be inside CSSN Copeland's cellphone. In the affidavit, NCIS stated that CS3 A.R.'s cellphone last pinged at a location in Suffolk, VA, which is nowhere close to where NCIS knew CSSN Copeland was or had been. Furthermore, there was no indication that CSSN Copeland and CS3 A.R. had been in communication with each other by phone; call or text. Sure CSSN Copeland mentioned reaching out to CS3 A.R. to ask if she was okay. However, many people were because CS3 A.R.

[3] Groh v. Ramirez, 540 U.S. 551, 557 (2004); United States v. McGrew, 122 F.3d 847, 849-50 (9th Cir. 1997).

[4] See Ramirez, 540 U.S. at 557 (2004); see also Massachusetts v. Sheppard, 468 U.S. 981, 988 n.5 (1984); United States v. Stefonek, 179 F.3d 1030, 1033 (7th Cir. 1999).

was missing and had not been heard from at that time. (Enclosures J, K). At no point did NCIS have reason to believe CS3 A.R. communicated back to CSSN Copeland. The fact CSSN Copeland called to check on her, does not establish probable cause to believe there is evidence of CS3 A.R.'s ongoing Article 86 violation on CSSN Copeland's cellphone.

Second, there was also nothing to suggest evidence of Article 107 would be on his phone either. At the time, NCIS believed CSSN Copeland may not have been completely truthful about every statement he made during his previous interviews. However, there is no evidence that any of the suspected lies pertained to digital evidence or electronic communications that would be present on CSSN Copeland's cellphone. Based on their investigation, NCIS agents knew CSSN Copeland was truthful about CS3 A.R. visiting his barracks room the night before she was last seen. He was truthful about the fact she called and texted her ex-boyfriend from her cellphone the night CS3 A.R. was in his barracks room. He was also truthful about the fact that CS3 A.R. stayed the night at his barracks room and was there when his Chief came to his room the next morning. The suspected false statements all pertained to what happened after his Chief left his barracks room when it came to CS3 A.R.'s movements and whereabouts. However, there was no nexus to suggest evidence of those potential false statements would probably be on CSSN Copeland's phone.

The CASS is void of any factual allegations that provide a logical, particularized nexus between CSSN Copeland's cellphone and the suspected offenses. Even if NCIS had probable cause to suspect CSSN Copeland of committing Articles 86 and 107, that does not equate to probable cause to search CSSN Copeland's phone. See Nieto, 76 M.J. at 106. The information provided by the NCIS agent does not establish that CSSN Copeland used his cellphone to facilitate his or CS3 A.R.'s unauthorized absence. It fails to indicate whether any false statements were communicated via CSSN Copeland's cellphone or whether the phone was used to fabricate evidence. There was no factual basis tying digital evidence to unauthorized absence or false official statement, simply conclusory assertions that there was probable cause to believe evidence of both alleged offenses were present on his phone. Generalized assumptions that people use phones are insufficient, and speculation does not replace nexus. See id. at 106-07. Both are what the NCIS agents did in this case.

The boilerplate and inaccurate language within the NCIS agent's affidavit calls into question the determination and reliability of the agent's assertions. When even discussing CSSN Copeland's cellphone, the agent stated:

> f. As discussed in this Affidavit, your Affiant has reason to believe that one or more digital devices will be found during the search. The passcode or password that would unlock the DEVICES subject to search under this warrant currently is not known to law enforcement. Thus, law enforcement personnel may not otherwise be able to

Devices and digital data are two separate things. Although the agent claimed "digital devices will be found during search," the device being searched pursuant to this CASS was already seized. Additionally, the agent's affidavit stated that CSSN Copeland's "passcode or password . . . [was] not known to law enforcement." However, that is categorically false. CSSN Copeland gave the agent that wrote this affidavit the passcode to his phone during his 3 June 2025 interview prior to him revoking his consent for them to search his cellphone. The agent also verified the passcode was correct before making this false assertion.

II. All evidence obtained and derived from NCIS's search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone should be excluded because it is necessary to deter the unreasonable investigative practices.

Exclusion of the evidence discovered in this case from CSSN Copeland's phone is warranted. The exclusionary rule is fundamentally a balancing test between the benefits of deterring Fourth Amendment violations and the costs to the justice system associated with the suppression of evidence. In this case, the benefits of deterring the violations of CSSN Copeland's Fourth Amendment rights far outweigh the costs to the justice system. Furthermore, excluding the evidence obtained from CSSN Copeland's phone would ensure the protection of the justice system by deterring unconstitutional law enforcement practices, and attempts to deceive, which is the driving purpose of why the exclusionary rule was created.

i. The Government cannot prove that the unlawfully obtained property would have been inevitably discovered in a lawful manner.[56]

Based on the lawful evidence NCIS possessed or was actively pursuing at the time this CASS was signed, lawful discovery of the digital data and information within CSSN Copeland's phone would not be inevitable. First, NCIS obtained a 2703(d) Order for T-Mobile Records pertaining to CS3 A.R. and CSSN Copeland's AT&T cellular phone accounts. (Enclosure E). The records showed that CSSN Copeland attempted to contact CS3 A.R. 5 times on 1 June 2025. However, CSSN Copeland already told NCIS he tried reaching out to CS3 A.R. to see if she was okay. There is no evidence that any of those attempts at contact were successful, and thus, does not establish probable cause for a search of his cellphone. Second in their affidavit, NCIS stated that CS3 A.R.'s cellphone pinged in Suffolk, VA. There was no evidence that CSSN Copeland visited Suffolk, VA such that they would have been able to establish contact. In fact, NCIS' coordination with local police and CSSN Copeland's roommate captured CSSN Copeland's potential whereabouts in the vicinity of Norfolk, VA – the place he is stationed and works. Again, the only thing NCIS suspected at this time, according to them, were violations of Articles 86 and 107. There was nothing NCIS had or was in the process of obtaining lawfully that would sufficiently provide a nexus between those offenses and CSSN Copeland's phone.

[5] Initial unlawful search conducted on 4 June 2025 when the DFE conducted a full file system extraction of CSSN Copeland's cellphone "pursuant to a PASS" after CSSN Copeland had already revoked his consent to search his phone. Unlike in Strong where the agents were unsuccessful in placing the accused's phone in airplane mode, the agents in this case were successful in placing CSSN Copeland's phone in airplane mode the day it was seized on 3 June 2025. Thus, by the time the DFE extracted CSSN Copeland's phone of all its digital content and data, NCIS had already established dominion and control of CSSN Copeland's phone, and its digital content. No additional extraction was necessary to accomplish that prior to obtaining authorization to search it. See Defense Motion to Suppress the search of CSSN Copeland's phone pursuant to a PASS.

[6] Defense Motion to Suppress search of CSSN Copeland's barracks room pursuant to a CASS.

ii. The Good Faith exception does not apply in this case.

The good faith exception does not apply to the facts of this case for two reasons. First, it is objectively unreasonable for the NCIS agents, especially one with as many years of experience in law enforcement as the agent who obtained the CASS in this case, to believe the CASS was properly supported by probable cause. The agent was unable to articulate any logical connection between the alleged offenses and CSSN Copeland's cellphone, beyond mere conclusory statements, assumptions, and speculations. Second, even assuming the agent did reasonably believe there was probable cause, she failed to articulate it within the affidavit the CASS relied upon. There was nothing stated about what evidence the agent believed she would find on CSSN Copeland's phone. If anything, it was a laundry list of items and data the agent wanted to search with no end in mind or particularity stated, which is indicative of the phishing expedition the agents intended to engage in with the search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone. As such, the CASS was facially deficient.

RELIEF REQUESTED

Pursuant to the Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution, M.R.E. 311, and R.C.M. 905(b)(3), the Defense respectfully moves this Court to suppress all evidence obtained and derived from the unlawful search of CSSN Copeland's cellphone pursuant to the 5 June 2025 CASS.

NAVAL CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIVE SERVICE

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

VS.

CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

1. I, Jessica Gokey, am a Special Agent with the Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) assigned to the NCIS Resident Agency Norfolk, VA and have been employed with NCIS since March 2022. During my tenure as a Special Agent, I have completed approximately 900 hours of instruction at the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC) in Glynco, GA, where I attended the Special Agent Basic Training Integrated Program (SABTI). I was provided instruction on investigations, federal law, and other various practice issues for investigators. I am a member of the Military Criminal Investigative Organization Internet Crimes Against Children Task Force. I have attended the National Criminal Justice Training Center's Internet Crimes Against Children certification course and additional training through ICAC for an approximate total of 90 hours. I spent eight (8) years as an active duty member of the United States Navy, where I was a Master-at-Arms (MA). As a MA, I was a first responder to base incidents, misdemeanor crimes, and traffic accidents. During my tenure as a MA, I was employed with the Criminal Investigation Division (CID) where I worked various cases to include Domestic Violence cases, simple assaults, and other misdemeanor crimes. I have a Bachelor of Science in Criminal Justice from Fort Hays State University, Hays, KS.

2. The following facts and information are known to your Affiant based upon information gained from the conduct of this investigation, witness observations, training and experience, and/or through information relayed through other law enforcement officers.

3. This affidavit is submitted in support of an application for a Command Authorization for Search and Seizure to review the cellphone belonging to CSSN Jermiah COPELAND as annotated in Attachment A.

4. Since this affidavit is being submitted for the limited purpose of securing a Command Authorization for Search and Seizure, your Affiant has not included each and every fact known concerning this investigation. Your Affiant has set forth the facts believed necessary to establish probable cause to believe that evidence of violations of Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ) Article 86 (Unauthorized Absence) and Article 107 (False Official Statement)

FACTS AND CIRCUMSTANCES ESTABLISHING PROBABLE CAUSE

1. This United States is investigating violations of Article 86 (Unauthorized Absence) and Article 107 (False Official Statements).

2. On May 28, 2025, CSSN [redacted] was known to be in the barracks room located at [redacted] located onboard Naval Station Norfolk, who is occupied by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND.

3. On 01 June 2025, COPELAND was interviewed by NCIS. According to COPELAND, [redacted] came to his barracks room to have dinner and have a couple drinks.

4. COPELAND stated [redacted] called an "ex-boyfriend from Texas" and was confronting the person about returning personal items. COPELAND stated, [redacted] became emotional and began to cry.

5. COPELAND stated the relationship with [redacted] was platonic and he is a friend from work and no sexual acts have happened between them.

6. During an interview with PSSN Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, who is a roommate of COPELAND, at approximately 0645 on 29 May 2025, GORDILLOCRUZ stated he was leaving for work and saw his roommate, later clarified to be COPELAND and an unknown female on the floor naked.

7. GORDILLOCRUZ stated the female looked to have darker skin, and black curly hair. He could see [redacted] breasts and could see COPELAND's head resting on [redacted] stomach area. GORDILLOCRUZ stated he could not see if [redacted] was wearing anything below COPELAND's head. GORDILLOCRUZ stated COPELAND was also naked but his back was facing upwards.

8. GORDILLOCRUZ stated he could tell [redacted] was breathing by her chest moving up and down. GORDILLOCRUZ stated, he had never seen the female before and has not seen her since.

9. COPELAND stated, he was late for work on the morning of 29 May 2025 and FCC Brad PARKER knocked on his door to say COPELAND was going to be labeled as Unauthorized Absence (UA). FCC PARKER stated COPELAND and [redacted] were in a state of undress and [redacted] waved and rolled over into a blanket. FCC PARKER told COPELAND to report to work and left the barracks room.

10. COPELAND continued explaining, the two of them got dressed and a roommate took him and [redacted] to [redacted] residence located at Miller Hall onboard Naval Station Norfolk at approximately 1000.

11. COPELAND's movements are unknown after dropping [redacted] off at Miller Hall. However, we know after speaking with Command, COPELAND was marked UA for the days of 29-31 May 2025 and on 01 June 2025.

12. On 02 June 2025, NCIS spoke to FCC PARKER to verify [redacted] work schedule. FCC PARKER stated [redacted] was scheduled to work day shift Friday,

May 30, 2025 - Sunday, June 1, 2025 with a report time of 0500-0530 hours. FCC PARKER stated V/A.R. failed to report all three (3) days.

13. NCIS interviewed all remaining roommates of COPELAND who stated they did not give a ride to COPELAND and V/A.R. on the morning of 29 May 2025.

14. The whereabouts of V/A.R. are still unknown. Her cellphone last pinged on 31 May 2025 for last known location. The last known was approximately Latitude 36.896558 Longitude -76.435536, which appears to be located in Suffolk, VA.

15. Additionally, NCIS spoke with her mother in Texas and she conveyed V/A.R. has attempted suicide in the past and suffers from depression, for which she is prescribed medication. Emergency Room's, psychology departments, morgues, and jails were all negative for her presence when called.

16. On 03 June 2025, NCIS executed a Command Authorized Search and Seizure on the barracks room belonging to COPELAND. During the search, a pair of black rimmed glasses were located within the residence. It was unknown at the time, V/A.R. was known to wear black rimmed glasses.

17. On 03 June 2028, NCIS conducted a follow-up interview with COPELAND who stated he remained in his barracks room and the common space lounges within X-2. COPELAND stated he never left the X-2 building during his period of unauthorized absence.

18. COPELAND also stated, contrary to his 01 June 2025 interview, that neither he nor his roommate dropped V/A.R. off at her barracks on the morning of 29 May 2025. COPELAND stated he believed V/A.R. had taken an Uber or Z-Trip back to her barracks.

BIOMETRIC ACCESS TO DEVICES

19. This warrant permits law enforcement to compel CSSN Jermiah COPELAND to unlock any DEVICES requiring biometric access subject to seizure pursuant to this warrant. The grounds for this request are as follows:

a. I know from my training and experience, as well as from information found in publicly available materials published by device manufacturers, that many electronic devices, particularly newer mobile devices and laptops, offer their users the ability to unlock the device through biometric features in lieu of a numeric or alphanumeric passcode or password. These biometric features include fingerprint scanners, facial recognition features and iris recognition features. Some devices offer a combination of these biometric features, and the user of such devices can select which features they would like to utilize.

b. If a device is equipped with a fingerprint scanner, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device through his or her fingerprints. For example, Apple offers a feature called "Touch ID," which allows a user to register up to five fingerprints that can unlock a device. Once a fingerprint is registered, a user can unlock the device by pressing the relevant finger to the device's Touch ID sensor, which is found in the round button (often referred to as the "home" button) located at the bottom center of the front of the device. The fingerprint sensors found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Touch ID.

c. If a device is equipped with a facial-recognition feature, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device through his or her face. For example, this feature is available on certain Android devices and is called "Trusted Face." During the Trusted Face registration process, the user holds the device in front of his or her face. The device's front-facing camera then analyzes and records data based on the user's facial characteristics. The device can then be unlocked if the front-facing camera detects a face with characteristics that match those of the registered face. Facial recognition features found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Trusted Face.

d. If a device is equipped with an iris-recognition feature, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device with his or her irises. For example, on certain Microsoft devices, this feature is called "Windows Hello." During the Windows Hello registration, a user registers his or her irises by holding the device in front of his or her face. The device then directs an infrared light toward the user's face and activates an infrared-sensitive camera to record data based on patterns within the user's irises. The device can then be unlocked if the infrared-sensitive camera detects the registered irises. Iris-recognition features found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Windows Hello.

e. In my training and experience, users of electronic devices often enable the aforementioned biometric features because they are considered to be a more convenient way to unlock a device than by entering a numeric or alphanumeric passcode or password. Moreover, in some instances, biometric features are considered to be a more secure way to protect a device's contents. This is particularly true when the users of a device are engaged in criminal activities and thus have a heightened concern about securing the contents of a device.

f. As discussed in this Affidavit, your Affiant has reason to believe that one or more digital devices will be found during the search. The passcode or password that would unlock the DEVICES subject to search under this warrant currently is not known to law enforcement. Thus, law enforcement personnel may not otherwise be able to access the data contained within the DEVICES, making the use of biometric features necessary to the execution of the search authorized by this warrant.

g. I also know from my training and experience, as well as from information found in publicly available materials including those published by device manufacturers, that biometric features will not unlock a device in some circumstances even if such features are enabled. This can occur when a device has been restarted, inactive, or has not been unlocked for a certain period of time. For example, Apple devices cannot be unlocked using Touch ID when: (1) more than 48 hours has elapsed since the device was last unlocked; or, (2) when the device has not been unlocked using a fingerprint for 8 hours and the passcode or password has not been entered in the last 6 days. Similarly, certain Android devices cannot be unlocked with Trusted Face if the device has remained inactive for four hours. Biometric features from other brands carry similar restrictions. Thus, in the event law enforcement personnel encounter a locked device equipped with biometric features, the opportunity to unlock the device through a biometric feature may exist for only a short time.

h. Due to the foregoing, if law enforcement personnel encounter any DEVICES that are subject to seizure pursuant to this warrant and may be unlocked using one of the aforementioned biometric features, this warrant permits law enforcement personnel to: (1) press or swipe the fingers (including thumbs) of COPELAND to the fingerprint scanner of the DEVICE; (2) hold the DEVICE in front of the face of COPELAND and activate the facial recognition feature; and/or (3) hold the DEVICE in front of the face of COPELAND and activate the iris recognition feature, for the purpose of attempting to unlock the DEVICE in order to search the contents as authorized by this warrant. In pressing or swiping a person's thumb or finger onto a device and in holding a device in front of a person's face, law enforcement may not use excessive force, as defined in Graham v. Connor, 490 U.S. 386 (1989); specifically, law enforcement may use no more than objectively reasonable force in light of the facts and circumstances confronting them.

Further, law enforcement may compel the use of the biometric features described above if: (1) the procedure is carried out with dispatch and in the immediate vicinity of the premises to be searched, and if, at the time of compulsion, the government has (2) reasonable suspicion that the suspect has committed a criminal act that is the subject matter of the warrant; and (3) reasonable suspicion that the individual's biometric features will unlock the device, that is, for example, because there is a reasonable suspicion to believe that the individual is the user of the device. The proposed warrant does not authorize law enforcement to require that resident's state or otherwise provide the password or any other means that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICE. Moreover, the proposed warrant does not authorize law enforcement to ask residents to identify the specific biometric characteristics (including the unique finger(s) or other physical features) that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICE.

CONCLUSION

20. Based upon the information, your Affiant asserts there is probable cause to believe the cellphone belonging to COPELAND may constitute evidence of Article 86 (Absence without leave) and Article 107 (False Official Statements) of the UCMJ.

21. Your affiant respectfully requests a CASS be issued, authorizing NCIS Agents, forensic examiners tasked by NCIS, and other law enforcement entities and their forensic components to search and retain evidence as described above.

ATTACHMENT A: PLACES TO BE SEARCHED

This Command Authorized Search and Seizure (CASS) applies to the information associated with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND and his cellular telephone identified as an iPhone, dark in color, which was located on COPELAND's person when seized. Located at the Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) Norfolk Field Office Evidence Facility, 1650 Gilbert Street, Norfolk, VA 23511.

ATTACHMENT B: PARTICULAR ITEMS TO BE SEIZED

The following materials, which constitute evidence of the commission of a criminal offense, contraband, the fruits of crime, or property designed or intended for use or which is or has been used as the means of committing a criminal offense, namely violations of the Uniform Code of Military Justice Article 86 (Unauthorized Absence) and Article 107 (False Official Statement).

1. Cellular Telephone or storage media used as a means to commit the violations described above, to include the TARGET DEVICE(S).
2. The telephone number, ESN number, serial number, SIM card number, or any other device identification number associated with and or contained in the device (s).
3. Contextual information necessary to understand the evidence described in this CASS.
4. For any cellular telephone or storage medium whose seizure is otherwise authorized by this CASS, and any cellular telephone or storage medium that contains or in which are stored records or information that is otherwise called for by this warrant, to include the TARGET DEVICE(S) (hereinafter, "CELLULAR TELEPHONE"):
5. Evidence of who used, owned, or controlled the CELLULAR TELEPHONE at the time the things described in this CASS were created, edited, or deleted, such as logs, registry entries, configuration files, saved user names and passwords, documents, browsing history, user profiles, email, email contacts, "chat," instant messaging logs, photographs, and correspondence;

6. Evidence indicating how and when the cellular telephone was accessed or used to determine the chronological context of cellular telephone access, use, and events relating to the crime(s) under investigation and to the cellular telephone user;
7. Evidence indicating the cellular telephone user's knowledge and/or intent as it relates to the crime(s) under investigation;
8. Evidence of live and deleted historical navigation data tracks, routes, and waypoints, GPS fixes, favorites, past journeys, trip logs, and user entered data, Latitude, Longitude, and Altitude coordinates, and related dates and times pertaining to Subject Offense(s);
9. Evidence of live and deleted logs, records, documents, and other items that may constitute evidence, contraband, fruits, and/or instrumentalities of violations of crimes, pertaining to Subject Offense(s);
10. Evidence of live and deleted contact lists, call logs, text messages and multimedia messages (SMS and MMS messages), e-mails, chats, video conference communication data, contact information, installed application information including their content and any other information which can be used to identify potentially associated persons pertaining to Subject Offense(s);
11. Evidence of the attachment to the CELLULAR TELEPHONE of other storage devices or similar containers for electronic evidence;
12. Evidence of programs (and associated data) that are designed to eliminate data from the CELLULAR TELEPHONE;
13. Passwords, encryption keys, and other access devices that may be necessary to access the CELLULAR TELEPHONE;

14. Documentation and manuals that may be necessary to access the CELLULAR TELEPHONE or to conduct a forensic examination of the CELLULAR TELEPHONE;
15. Records of or information about Internet Protocol addresses used by the CELLULAR TELEPHONE;
16. Records of or information about the CELLULAR TELEPHONE's Internet activity, including firewall logs, caches, browser history and cookies, "bookmarked" or "favorite" web pages, search terms that the user entered into any Internet search engine, and records of user-typed web addresses; and
17. Contextual information necessary to understand the evidence described in this attachment.
18. The term "cellular telephone" includes all types of electronic, magnetic, optical, electrochemical, or other high speed data processing devices performing logical, arithmetic, or storage functions, including desktop cellular telephones, notebook cellular telephones, mobile phones, tablets, server cellular telephones, and network hardware.
19. This CASS does not authorize law enforcement personnel to compel any other individuals found at the SUBECT PREMISES to provide biometric features, as described in the preceding paragraph, to access or otherwise unlock any DEVICE. Further, this warrant does not authorize law enforcement personnel to require that resident's state or otherwise provide the password or any other means that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICES, including by identifying the specific biometric characteristics (including the unique finger(s) or other physical features) that may be used to unlock or access the DEVICES.

20. This CASS authorizes a review of electronic storage media and electronically stored information seized or copied pursuant to this CASS in order to locate evidence, fruits, and instrumentalities described in this warrant. The review of this electronic data may be conducted by any government personnel assisting in the investigation, who may include, in addition to law enforcement officers and agents, attorneys for the government, attorney support staff, and technical experts. Pursuant to this warrant, NCIS may deliver a complete copy of the seized or copied electronic data to the custody and control of attorneys for the government and their support staff for their independent review.

[redacted] PII

RESULTS OF CONTACT WITH ESMERALDA CASTLE, CIV

1. On 01JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) made initial contact with Esmeralda CASTLE, CIV, mother of CSSN A[redacted] R[redacted] (V/R[redacted], USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95) in regard to her daughter's missing status.

2. This contact was conducted via cellphone and not recorded.

3. RA attempted to contact CASTLE two times via phone call and followed up with a text message, with no response. After speaking with ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, DDG-95 and learning he was in contact with CASTLE, RA instructed ET3 RICH to ask CASTLE to call RA.

4. RA asked CASTLE when the last time she spoke with V/R[redacted] and CASTLE stated she had not spoken with V/R[redacted] in approximately a week, however, V/R[redacted] did attempt a Facetime call Wednesday 28MAY25, but CASTLE did not answer. CASTLE stated V/R[redacted] most likely called her younger sister after she did not answer, but CASTLE was not certain. RA gathered contact information for the 3 siblings of V/R[redacted] to contact.

5. RA asked CASTLE if she had access to V/R[redacted] banking records, which CASTLE stated she did not.

6. RA asked CASTLE if she would be concerned about V/R[redacted]'s mental health or concerned V/R[redacted] may commit suicide, which CASTLE stated she did not think V/R[redacted] would have committed suicide. However, CASTLE did disclose V/R[redacted] had gone into mental health treatment sometime in the last year for inpatient treatment. RA followed up asking if CASTLE knew the reasoning for the inpatient treatment, which CASTLE responded, V/R[redacted] was under a lot of pressure at work due to them being short staffed and V/R[redacted] was also having problems with sexual harassment onboard DDG-95. RA followed up asking if CASTLE knew who was sexually harassing V/R[redacted], which CASTLE stated an older white male.

7. RA asked CASTLE what, if anything had she been told about V/R[redacted] missing. CASTLE stated she had been contacted by ET3 RICH, and he was concerned about V/R[redacted] missing and to "not trust the command." RA asked CASTLE to explain further about not trusting the command. CASTLE stated ET3 RICH said they had lied to CASTLE and V/R[redacted] was not found in a room, and she had not returned to work on Friday. CASTLE continued saying she called the Quarterdeck of DDG-95 and spoke to a Chief PARKER, who was identified as FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG-95. CASTLE stated FCC PARKER told her V/R[redacted] was located and words to the effect of the situation being dramatized or blown out of proportion. CASTLE explained she told FCC PARKER it was very unlike V/R[redacted] to miss work as she was terrified of missing work.

8. RA asked CASTLE if she knew where V/R[redacted] might be or where she may have gone, which CASTLE could not provide any further information into where V/R[redacted] may have gone. RA explained to CASTLE that NCIS would be conducting an investigation into V/R[redacted];s missing status and would contact her immediately with any significant updates. No further information was gathered from this interview.

RESULTS OF INITIAL INTERVIEW OF CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

1. On 01Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Jessica GOKEY interviewed CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95) regarding his knowledge of the whereabouts of V/[redacted]. The interview took place in the lounge area on third floor of building X2, Willis Manor, located on Naval Station Norfolk (NOB), and was not recorded.

2. As background, V/[redacted] and S/COPELAND were placed into a Unauthorized Absence (UA) status subsequent to 29May25, after failing to report to work. On 01Jun25, after speaking with S/COPELAND's mother, NCIS and S/COPELAND's mother contacted Naval Station Norfolk (NOB) Base Police to conduct a follow-up health and welfare check on both S/COPELAND and V/[redacted]. The Naval Station Norfolk Watch Commander advised NOB Security Forces located S/COPELAND in his barracks rooms in Willis Manor, Room 335. NCIS was advised that Security Forces received no answer at V/[redacted] door when they knocked on her barracks room located on NOB, Miller Hall, Room 1083.

3. During his interview, S/COPELAND described his relationship with V/[redacted] as co-workers. S/COPELAND stated he texted with V/[redacted] on Wednesday, 28May25 to discuss recipes and ingredients for tacos. S/COPELAND stated V/[redacted] came over to his barracks room, made tacos and they both consumed alcohol. S/COPELAND explained V/[redacted] gradually became more upset as the night progressed and they spoke about her current and past romantic relationships. S/COPELAND stated V/[redacted] spoke on the phone to two (2) ex-boyfriends, both of which were confrontational calls. One call was with an ex-boyfriend he still believed was located in Texas (NFI) and the other call was with HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG 95.

4. S/COPELAND explained V/[redacted] and HT3 GILLESPIE argued over returning a motorcycle helmet and that HT3 GILLESPIE wanted it back. S/COPELAND said V/[redacted] explained her relationship with HT3 GILLESPIE was toxic and described her most recent ex-boyfriend, ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, DDG 95, as at first being a sweetheart and then he wasn't. S/COPELAND said ET3 RICH and HT3 GILLESPIE do not get along, that they have issues with each other, and opined it was due to their relationships with V/[redacted] S/COPELAND said HT3 GILLESPIE has come to the galley on the ship a lot, which sometimes caused issues. S/COPELAND said he did not know of any instances of HT3 GILLESPIE being violent toward V/[redacted] and that HT3 GILLESPIE was more of a topic of conversation than ET3 RICH was during their evening together.

S/COPELAND described his role during the evening as a sounding board for V/ V/A.R.

5. S/COPELAND recalled one of his roommates walked into the barracks suite (common area) and asked if V/ V/A.R. was okay as she was upset, which he (S/COPELAND) responded yes.

6. S/COPELAND explained V/ V/A.R. spent the night in his barracks room and they did not have sexual intercourse. S/COPELAND said he was supposed to work on Thursday 29May25, however, he woke up late as FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG 95, came to his barracks room at approximately 0900 and woke he and V/ V/A.R. S/COPELAND said he misunderstood FCC PARKER and did not report to work. S/COPELAND said he borrow his roommate's vehicle and drove V/ V/A.R. back to her barracks at approximately 1000 hours. S/COPELAND said this was the last time he saw V/ V/A.R.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

1. On 03JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Bernadette DUFFY conducted an interview of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95) in regard to the Unauthorized Absence of CSSN [redacted] (V/[redacted], USN, DDG-95 and himself.

2. This interview was audio and video recorded utilizing Case Cracker. A copy of the recording was subsequently saved to an optical disc and maintained with the case file. This report should not be treated as a verbatim or comprehensive representation of the interview; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. Prior to being interviewed, S/COPELAND was advised of his Article 31(b) Rights by use of Military Suspect's Acknowledgement and Waiver of Rights form for an alleged violation of Article 86 (Absence without Leave) and Article 107 (False Official Statements). S/COPELAND, with full understanding of his rights, elected to waive his right to remain silent; Enclosure (B) pertains.

4. S/COPELAND was asked to recall the events on the night of 28JUN25 and what transpired the following days. S/COPELAND stated he and V/[redacted] were talking about food and making tacos. S/COPELAND continued saying, V/[redacted] was going to come over to his barracks, located at Building X-2, Willis Manor, Room 335, to make salsa and eat dinner. S/COPELAND explained he went to the Food Lion and bought the ingredients to make tacos and then he went back to X-2. S/COPELAND stated he then went and picked V/[redacted] up from her barracks, Miller Hall, and brought her back to his room. COPELAND explained later he utilized his roommates vehicle, later identified as a belonging to AR John CALISSE, USN, VAW-124 and being a white Jeep Compass, to pick up V/[redacted] S/COPELAND stated V/[redacted] was wearing a black shirt, black pants, slip on Uggs, a bracelet, and a hair clip. S/COPELAND stated V/[redacted] was also carrying her purple backpack. S/COPELAND stated he could not recall what time he picked V/[redacted] up but after returning to the room they began to make tacos.

5. S/COPELAND stated after eating, him and V/[redacted] started listening to music and started talking. S/COPELAND explained V/[redacted] began talking about HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG-95, and how she saw him with another girl on his motorcycle and how it had really upset V/[redacted] S/COPELAND stated V/[redacted] then text HT3 GILLESPIE "Fuck you" and then called an ex-boyfriend (NFI) from Texas. S/COPELAND explained he was sitting on the couch, and she was sitting on floor talking to the ex-boyfriend. S/COPELAND continued explaining how when V[redacted] ended the phone call with the ex-boyfriend, she started to call other people (NFI) and talk about how "GILLESPIE's not shit."

6. S/COPELAND explained he did not know much about the relationship between HT3 GILLESPIE and V[redacted], but S/COPELAND did recall V/[redacted] was mad about the amount of money she would spend on HT3 GILLESPIE. S/COPELAND provided the example of HT3 GILLESPIE needed a lawyer and V[redacted] gave him $500.00 to hire one even though HT3 GILLESPIE could have received a public defender. S/COPELAND did not believe HT3 GILLESPIE and V[redacted] were in any physical altercations or abusive relationship. S/COPELAND stated V[redacted] went on a "rampage" and was becoming "agitated." S/COPELAND stated after completing the phone calls V[redacted] was becoming "emotional" and "crying."

7. S/COPELAND stated one of the roommates, "the Mexican" later identified as PSSN Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, USN, Airborne Command and Control Squadron 124 (VAW-124), walked into the common area of the room and asked if V[redacted] was okay. S/COPELAND stated he told PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ, V/[redacted] was fine and PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ proceeded to his room. S/COPELAND stated the night ended and they both went to sleep together in S/COPELAND's bed. S/COPELAND stated they did not have sexual intercourse. After going to sleep, S/COPELAND was awoken by FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG-95, knocking on the door of his bedroom. S/COPELAND said he could not remember what time it was but knew the sun was up. S/COPELAND stated FCC PARKER asked if the person in his bed was V/[redacted], which S/COPELAND replied it was V[redacted]. S/COPELAND explained FCC PARKER told him to get to work and asked if he had a ride, which S/COPELAND stated he told FCC PARKER one of his roommates could give him a ride to work. S/COPELAND admitted though he did not go to work due to "one of his roommates" not coming home. S/COPELAND further explained, him being UA was a big misunderstanding because he had the weekend off and he did not realize if you are marked UA for one day, you are marked UA for the days you remain away from work.

8. S/COPELAND stated he was marked UA Thursday, 29JUN25 until Sunday, 01MAY25 when base security located him within his barracks room. When asked his whereabouts for Friday and Saturday, S/COPELAND responded, he stayed in the barracks both days but would move from lounge to lounge. S/COPELAND stated he mostly hung out in the 5th floor lounge and Ms. Mary (NFI) could vouch for his whereabouts during the time frame.

9. RA asked S/COPELAND about the morning of 29JUN25 and what had transpired after FCC PARKER left the room. S/COPELAND recalled him and V[redacted] woke up and cleaned the kitchen and V/[redacted] left in an Uber, later clarified to be a Z-Trip.

10. RA asked S/COPELAND if he would sign a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his cellphone, S/COPELAND agreed to signing a PASS and provided his passcode, [redacted] PII [redacted]. Prior to signing the PASS, S/COPELAND requested to call his mother, and would not sign the PASS; Enclosure (C) pertains. PA asked S/COPELAND if he would be fine with answering further questions and call his mother later, S/COPELAND agreed.

11. RA had previously informed S/COPELAND NCIS was conducting a Command Authorized Search and Seizure (CASS) in his barracks room and the common area and began to ask questions about S/COPELAND's barracks room and his electronics. S/COPELAND stated he had an iPhone15 in his room and a PlayStation 5 in the common room.

12. RA inquired about V/[redacted]'s electronics to include her iPhone. S/COPELAND stated the only electronic V/[redacted] had with her was her iPhone15. S/COPELAND confirmed the Apple iWatch was also his, which was located in his barracks room.

13. RA asked S/COPELAND if the statement he gave was true and accurate to the best of his knowledge, which S/COPELAND stated this statement was the correct statement. RA then confronted S/COPELAND on the discretions between his previous statement, given on 01JUN25 and the statement he gave during this interview.

14. RA asked S/COPELAND about him and V/[redacted] being naked on the floor by the couch, S/COPELAND denied being on the floor naked with V/[redacted]. S/COPELAND stated he and V/[redacted] fell asleep in his bed, clothed.

15. RA asked S/COPELAND about him changing his story about dropping V/[redacted] off at her barracks, to V/[redacted] leaving on her own after cleaning, to which S/COPELAND stated he did not remember saying he had previously dropped V/[redacted] off at her barracks. RA asked S/COPELAND about how he knew V/[redacted] was taking a Z-Trip from his barracks versus walking from his barracks, and S/COPELAND stated he just assumed V/[redacted] had taken a Z-Trip back to her barracks.

16. RA inquired about S/COPELAND telling FCC PARKER he would wait for his roommate to get home to take S/COPELAND to work. RA asked about S/COPELAND's roommate's work schedule and why he would tell FCC PARKER the roommate would take him to work knowing his roommate does not get home until approximately 1600-1700. S/COPELAND stated he would not ask anyone else to take him to work. S/COPELAND stated he did not know when his roommate would be home due to a squadron's working hours being different from the ships work schedule.

17. PA conducted another PASS for a backpack, barracks room, and

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF AR JOHN CALISSE, USN

1. On 03Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Investigator (PI) John KOWALSKI conducted an interview of AR John CALISSE, USN, Airborne Command & Control Squadron (VAW) 124 regarding his knowledge related to the whereabouts of CSSN [redacted V/A.R.] (V/[redacted V/A.R.] USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).

2. The interview of AR CALISSE was recorded using an audio/visual recording system, and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. AR CALISSE reported on 29May25, while at his barracks Willis Manor, Building X-2, Room 335, on Naval Station Norfolk, at approximately 0200, he heard his suitemate CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, and an unknown female singing karaoke in S/COPELAND's room. AR CALISSE stated he always heard loud music coming from S/COPELAND's room at all times of the night. AR CALISSE did not recall seeing any signs that S/COPELAND was consuming alcohol in the common area. AR CALISSE stated at approximately 1900 on 28May25, S/COPELAND requested to use his white 2014 Jeep Compass to which he obliged. AR CALISSE reported S/COPELAND returned at approximately 2000, knocked on his barracks door, and when he opened the door to obtain the keys, he observed a female in the kitchen area cooking, who he later identified as V/[redacted V/A.R.]

4. AR CALISSE recalled waking up the morning of 29May25, at approximately 0500, to report to work on time. At approximately 0530, AR CALISSE stated he exited his room and upon walking into the common area observed S/COPELAND and an unknown female laying naked in the middle of the common room floor. AR CALISSE stated he observed them on their backs, face up, with their eyes closed. AR CALISSE stated he observed S/COPELAND laying on the thigh of the unknown female. AR CALISSE stated he did not see any clothing belonging to S/COPELAND. AR CALISSE stated he observed the female wearing red pajama pants with flowers, with one pant leg slightly on at the ankle, and her bra pulled down exposing her breast. AR CALISSE reported walking past them in order to leave the room and believed both S/COPELAND and the female to be breathing. AR CALISSE stated when he returned from work at approximately 1700, S/COPELAND and the female were not in the barracks room.

5. AR CALISSE described the female as brown skinned, long brown hair, and with what he believed to be a possible nose piercing. AR CALISSE stated this was his first time seeing the female; however, confirmed it was V/ V/A.R. when showed a photograph.

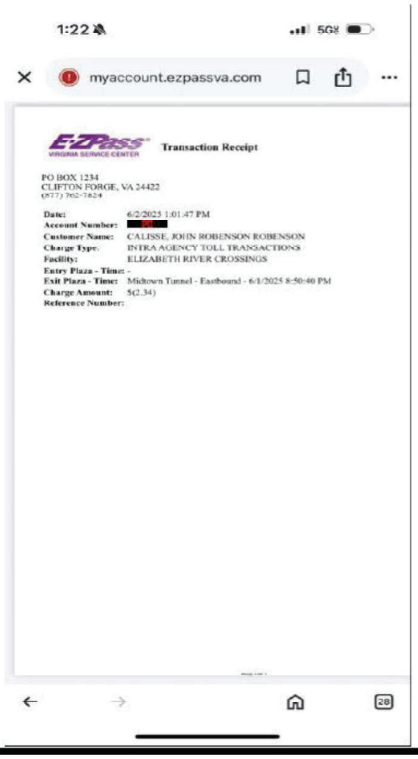
6. AR CALISSE stated he did not see S/COPELAND again until Sunday 01Jun25, at approximately 1400, when he asked him for a ride to report to DDG 95. AR CALISSE agreed to provide transportation to S/COPELAND after returning from Walmart. AR CALISSE stated he transported S/COPELAND along with ISSA Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, USN, VAW 124, at approximately 1700. AR CALISSE stated S/COPELAND was on DDG 95 for approximately one hour while ISSA GORDILLACRUZ and AR CALISSE waited in the parking lot for him to return. AR CALISSE stated when S/COPELAND returned to the vehicle he informed him he was required to do a urinalysis for not reporting to work on 30May25. AR CALISSE stated while driving from DDG 95 back to the barracks they stopped at Chipotle located at 4712 Hampton Blvd, Norfolk, VA 23508, at approximately 1900.

7. AR CALISSE stated when they returned to the barracks, S/COPELAND asked if he could use his car to get something to eat. AR CALISSE allowed S/COPELAND to use his vehicle giving him the key at approximately 2000. AR CALISSE stated when he woke up the next morning and proceeded to go to work, he noticed his car key was not on the kitchen counter where S/COPELAND normally leaves it after borrowing his car. AR CALISSE stated he called S/COPELAND to find out his location and was angry because he caused him to be late for work. AR CALISSE reported meeting S/COPELAND in the X-2 parking lot at approximately 0630 and watched him drive the vehicle into the parking lot. AR CALISSE stated he was unaware of the locations S/COPELAND traveled to while he had his vehicle.



8. During his interview, AR CALISSE signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his Jeep Compass which will be documented under separate cover.

9. At the conclusion of the interview, while returning AR CALISSE to VAW-124, he located EZ Pass transactions and provided screenshots of the charges from 27May25 to 02Jun25 without being requested; Enclosure (B) pertains. AR CALISSE stated the charge on 01Jun25 was his return from the ship; however, all other charges were believed to be accrued by S/COPELAND.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF FCC BRAD PARKER, USN

1. On 03JUN25, Reporting Investigator (RI) and Participating Agent (PA) Caroline ROBINSON interviewed FCC Brad PARKER (FCC PARKER), USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95), regarding his knowledge of the disappearance of CSSN A[redacted] R[redacted] (V/R[redacted]), USN, DDG 95.

2. The interview of FCC PARKER was recorded using an audio/visual recording system and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. The interview of FCC PARKER was recorded using an audio recorder and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (B) pertains.

4. On 03JUN25, FCC PARKER signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) to allow NCIS to obtain screenshots of messages pertaining to the disappearance of V/R[redacted]. Results of PASS will be documented in a separate investigative action.

5. FCC PARKER described the incident as it was reported to him. FCC PARKER stated on 29MAY25 at 0700, he was advised V/R[redacted] was not doing well and began calling friends on the ship. FCC PARKER identified the friends as co-worker, CSSN COPELAND, later identified as CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, ET3 RICH, later identified as ET3 Daniel RICH (ET3 RICH), USN, DDG 95, and "Gillespie", later identified as HT3 Michael GILLESPIE (HT3 GILLESPIE), USN, DDG 95. FCC PARKER clarified S/COPELAND, ET3 RICH, and HT3 GILLESPIE all stated she was seeking help that evening. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND relayed ET3 RICH went to her barracks room, Miller Hall BLDG U-16, she was not there and did not answer her cell phone. FCC PARKER stated he learned S/COPELAND did not show up for the "breakfast shift" at his schedule time (NFI).

6. FCC PARKER stated on the morning of 29MAY25, he went to locate S/COPELAND at his barracks room, Willis Manor, X-2, RM 335B, Bed A, on board Naval Station Norfolk, Norfolk, VA. According to FCC PARKER, S/COPELAND answered the door with groggy eyes, a pair of basketball shorts and the lights in his room were off as if he just woken up. FCC PARKER stated he did not notice

any indications of alcohol use. FCC PARKER indicated he told S/COPELAND they needed to go to work, to which S/COPELAND stated he was not alone. FCC PARKER stated he asked S/COPELAND if it was V/R[redacted] and S/COPELAND confirmed. FCC PARKER stated he recognized V/R[redacted] in S/COPELAND's bed. FCC PARKER clarified V/R[redacted] looked up, dismissively waved, rolled over and went back to sleep. FCC PARKER relayed V/R[redacted] was wrapped in a blanket with only her feet being exposed. FCC PARKER relayed at 0854, he texted LSC Rob JANSON (LSC JANSON), USN, DDG 95, confirming S/COPELAND and V/R[redacted] were in S/COPELAND's room.

7. FCC PARKER stated he told S/COPELAND to step out of the room and into the common area. FCC PARKER relayed he asked if they were ok and if V/R[redacted] was in any imminent danger to which S/COPELAND replied "I do not think so." FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND relayed he went to pick V/R[redacted] up, who was having problems with her boyfriend (NFI) in Texas, and they watched movies. FCC PARKER said he asked S/COPELAND if he had a ride to work, to which S/COPELAND said he did. FCC PARKER stated he departed after he advised S/COPELAND to ensure V/R[redacted] was returned to her room and to get to work. FCC PARKER drew a sketch depicting the layout of S/COPELAND's room; Enclosure (C) pertains.

8. FCC PARKER relayed he was there for approximately five (5) to ten (10) minutes. Additionally, FCC PARKER indicated there was a logbook in the lobby where he signed in and out from. FCC PARKER stated at 1241, S/COPELAND called him stating he dropped off V/R[redacted] at her barracks room and was waiting for his ride. FCC PARKER stated at 1523, he texted S/COPELAND asking why he was still not at work. FCC PARKER relayed at 1636, S/COPELAND texted him saying he was still waiting on a ride to work. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND never showed up at work and he did not hear from him until 01JUN25.

9. FCC PARKER stated on the morning of 30MAY25, V/R[redacted] and S/COPELAND did not show up to work. FCC PARKER conveyed he attempted to locate both of them in their respective rooms but was unsuccessful. FCC PARKER relayed he attempted to call and text V/R[redacted] and S/COPELAND but they did not answer. FCC PARKER stated he spoke with V/R[redacted]'s roommate (NFI) who stated she had not seen V/R[redacted] since the night of 28MAY25. FCC PARKER relayed at 0950, he called LSC JANSON advising V/R[redacted] was not in her room. FCC PARKER advised at 1017, he called and texted S/COPELAND from his barracks room, but he did not answer. FCC PARKER stated he spoke with S/COPELAND's roommate (NFI) who related he was in the room earlier that morning but did not know when S/COPELAND left.

10. FCC PARKER stated on 31MAY25, ET3 RICH filed a missing person report for V/R[redacted]. FCC PARKER did not identify the filing agency. FCC PARKER advised S/COPELAND called him on the afternoon of 01JUN25 about his unauthorized absence (UA) status. FCC PARKER relayed the command called and texted him, to which S/COPELAND stated he does not normally answer his phone when he is not on duty. FCC PARKER relayed he asked S/COPELAND if he had heard from V/R[redacted]. According to FCC PARKER, S/COPELAND stated he had not seen her since he dropped her off the afternoon of 29MAY25.

11. FCC PARKER conveyed on the morning of 29MAY25, V/R[redacted]'s LPO, CS1 HOWELLEL, later identified as CS1 Daryl HOWELLEL, USN, DDG 95, began sending daily texts to her. FCC PARKER stated on 01JUN25, the Commanding Officer, later identified to be CDR Timothy WINTERS, USN, DDG 95, mandated daily checks on V/R[redacted]'s room until she was found. FCC PARKER relayed on the same day, CS2 BRYANT, later identified as CS2 Joshua BRYANT, USN, DDG 95, went to her barracks room and she was not there.

12. FCC PARKER advised on 02JUN25, he went to V/R[redacted]'s barracks room because he was advised she left her phone in her room but was unable to locate it. FCC PARKER relayed the building manager (NFI) let him into the room and he "visually" looked for the her phone. FCC PARKER clarified he did not touch anything in the room. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND did not have a driver's license and is pending reckless driving charges with Virginia Beach Police Department.

13. No further information was obtained.

M/B/NEE3/S/[redacted PII]

RESULTS OF PERMISSIVE AUTHORIZATION FOR SEARCH AND SEIZURE REGARDING HT3 MICHAEL GILLESPIE'S IPHONE

1. On 03JUN25, HT3 Micheal GILLESPIE, USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95) authorized the search of his personally owned Apple iPhone XR, Serial Number # DX3FJFRQKXKN, by signing a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS); Enclosure (A) pertains. Subsequently, on 03JUN25, HT3 GILLISPIE's cellular device was manually reviewed and revealed the following pertinent information:

2. Text Messages:
-Numerous text messages between HT3 GILLESPIE and contact "R[redacted]" with telephone number [redacted PII]0672. The messages beginning on 27MAY25 appear to show plans of HT3 GILLESPIE responding to the residence of "R[redacted]" and retrieving clothing and a helmet. The last message sent from "R[redacted]" is on "Wednesday" at 23:22 hours. HT3 GILLESPIE continues to send numerous texts but receives no response.

3. Phone Calls:
-HT3 GILLESPIE appears to miss a Facetime Audio call from "R[redacted]" on "Wednesday". HT3 GILLESPIE makes numerous calls to "R[redacted]" following the missed call.

4. Video Recorded Interaction
-HT3 GILLESPIE sent a video recorded interaction between him and CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95. HT3 GILLESPIE reported this interaction was recorded without S/COPELAND's knowledge. The video's metadata indicates it was created on 01JUL25 at approximately 2004 hours. In the video, you can see S/COPELAND's nametag. S/COPELAND indicates CSSN A[redacted] R[redacted] (V/R[redacted]), USN, DDG 95 stayed overnight in his room and left the following morning. S/COPELAND stated "chief" walked in his room and instructed S/COPELAND to drop V/R[redacted] off at her room. S/COPELAND advised he dropped her off at her building at approximately 1300 hours, however, she walked towards the front or side of the building. S/COPELAND advised while V/R[redacted] was in his room the night prior, she was "tripping" and described a moment wherein V/R[redacted] called someone she used to talk to in Texas and indicated he did "things" to her and questioned why he did those "things". S/COPELAND stated his roommates were also home in their rooms at the time and he and V/R[redacted] were in the living room. S/COPELAND stated V/R[redacted] consumed alcohol prior to them meeting and he only consumed approximately two (2) cups of "Buzzball". S/COPELAND stated when V/R[redacted] was crying, one of the aforenoted roommates came in and asked if everything was ok.

S/COPELAND advised he didn't answer his phone because it was set to "Do Not Disturb".

5. Internet Searches
-RA reviewed the search history of HT3 GILLESPIE. RA observed the "Private Tab" of the Safari Application. There was no observable search history.

6. A total of 25 digital photograph screenshots and one (1) video depicting an interaction between HT3 GILLESPIE and S/COPELAND was captured via Airdrop. All photographs and videos were placed on a DVD-R; Enclosure (B) pertains. Five (5) photographs were appended to a NCIS Photo Template; Enclosure (C) pertains.

7. Nothing further to report.

GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL

UNITED STATES v. JERMIAH COPELAND CSSN/E-3 USN	GOVERNMENT RESPONSE TO DEFENSE MOTION TO DISMISS FOR UNREASONABLE MULTIPLICATION OF CHARGES 24 FEB 26

MOTION

1. Pursuant to Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 906(b)(12), the Government respectfully requests that this Court grant in part the Defense motion to dismiss. Specifically, the Government does not object to merger for sentencing of Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V.

FACTS

2. CSSN Copeland is charged with domestic violence against CSSN S.R. on 11 April 2025 through both strangulation and violent assault by unlawfully pushing CSSN S.R. with his hands.

3. The Government adopts and incorporates by reference the Government's statement of facts in its Response to Defense's Motion to Exclude Evidence Pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b), paragraph 7.

BURDEN

4. The moving party bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence under R.C.M. 905(c)(1) and the burden of persuasion under R.C.M. 905(c)(2).

LAW

5. The Government adopts the Defense's law on this point and supplements with the following.

6. Both Article 128b (Strangulation) and Article 128b (Violent Offense) are different forms of a violation of Article 128b.[1]

7. The allegation of Article 128b (Strangulation) in this case carries a maximum punishment of 8 years confinement, a dishonorable discharge, and total forfeitures.

8. The allegation of Article 128b (Violent Offense) in this case carries a maximum punishment of a dishonorable discharge, total forfeitures, and 3.5 years confinement.

1. See 10 U.S.C. § 928b.

ARGUMENT

9. Charge V, Specification 1 and Charge V, Specification 2 are aimed at distinct criminal actions and carry different punitive exposure. In this case, they are part of the same course of conduct but highlight two distinct criminal actions. The Accused pushed CSSN S.R. onto a couch and then proceeded to strangle her. The criminality of the Accused's offenses is not exaggerated and these Specifications do not evidence prosecutorial overreach. It is not unreasonable to believe that the members may find guilt on one offense and not the other. As such, application of the factors under United States v. Quiroz[2] should not require merger for findings. However, merger for sentencing is appropriate in this case.

EVIDENCE AND ENCLOSURES

10. The Government offers no evidence or enclosures.

ORAL ARGUMENT

11. The Government requests oral argument on this matter.

RELIEF REQUESTED

12. The Government respectfully requests that this Court grant the Defense motion in part by merging Charge V, Specifications 1 and 2 for sentencing.

U N I T E D S T A T E S v. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	GOVERNMENT RESPONSE TO DEFENSE MOTION TO SUPPRESS 26 February 2026

MOTION

The Government respectfully requests this Court deny the Defense Motion to Suppress the evidence obtained from the search of the Accused's iPhone 15. Defense's Motion is without good cause.

FACTS

1. On or about 8 October 2025 this Court issued a Trial Management Order scheduling four Article 39(a), UCMJ, sessions to litigate pretrial motions.

2. On 21 November 2026, the Defense was provided a copy of the command authorization for search and seizure dated 5 June 2025 for the accused's iPhone 15 as it was appended to a pre-publication digital forensic examiners report.[1]

3. On 26 November 2026, the Defense made a strategic decision and filed eighteen pretrial motions.[2]

4. Of those eighteen motions, three were motions to suppress:

   a. evidence obtained from the accused's barrack's room[3]

   b. statements made by the accused to NCIS[4] and

   c. evidence obtained from the accused's iPhone 15[5].

5. In its motion to suppress evidence obtained from the iPhone 15, the Defense expressly acknowledged the existence of a Command Authorization for Search and Seizure dated 5 June 2025 for CSSN Copeland's iPhone 15.[6]

[1] Appellate Exhibit (AE) LXXVI at 3
[2] AEs XXVII, XXXII, XL
[3] AE XL
[4] AE XXXII
[5] AE XXVIII
[6] AE XXVIII at 3-4.

6. The Government filed written responses to each of the Defense's motions approximately ten calendar days after the motions were filed.[7]

7. Fifteen days after the Defense filed its motions, and approximately twenty days after the Defense received the search authorization, the Court convened an Article 39(a) session to litigate the Defense's motions.

8. At no time prior to the Article 39(a) session or after did the Defense request to delay litigation of the motion to suppress evidence derived from the accused's iPhone 15 or supplement prior the military judge's ruling. Defense did, however, supplement matters related to other motions after the 39(a) hearing.

9. On 27 January 2026, the military judge issued a written ruling denying all three motions to suppress.[8]

10. In that written ruling, the military judge concluded, as a matter of law, that the command authorization for search and seizure (CASS) for the accused's cellular phone was valid.

> "Because the full file system digital extraction was not a search of the contents of the digital media but was merely a step necessary to seize the digital media, and a valid CASS was executed prior to the search, the search was not unlawful."[9]

11. The military judge further concluded that the search of the cellular phone was valid pursuant to a lawful permissive authorization for search and seize (PASS).[10]

12. The military judge additionally concluded that, regardless of the PASS and CASS, the contents of the cellular phone would have been inevitably discovered.[11]

13. Approximately twenty-two days after the military judge issued his written ruling, the Defense filed another motion to suppress seeking to relitigate the suppression of evidence obtained from the accused's iPhone 15, which had previously been litigated and denied by this Court.

14. It its motion, Defense lists several facts that directly contradict the Court's ruling. Facts irrelevant to the specific issue regarding the propriety of the 5 June 2025 CASS for the accused's iPhone 15.[12]

15. To the extent this Court entertains Defense's motion, the Government incorporates by reference the Statement of Facts set forth in the Government's Response to Defense's Motion to Suppress.[13]

[7] AE LVIII
[8] AE LXIX
[9] AE LXIX at 19 (emphasis added)
[10] Id. at 18
[11] Id. at 20
[12] Numerous examples exist throughout AE LXXVI. For example, Defense lists under" Facts": " Later in the interrogation, CSSN Copeland revoked his consent to search his cellphone." The Court found the opposite in AE LXIX. Moreover, the inclusion of this fact also has no bearing on the determination of the validity of the 5 June 25 CASS.

BURDEN OF PROOF

Defense as the moving party bears the burden to establish good cause to file an out of time motion to reconsider.

If this motion is entertained by the Court, the Government bears the burden of proof and persuasion by a preponderance of the evidence. R.C.M. 905(c)

Pursuant to M.R.E. 311(d)(5), the Government bears the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that either (A) the evidence was not obtained as the result of an unlawful search or (B) the evidence obtained from an unlawful search fits into any one of a number of exceptions to the exclusionary rule.

LAW

I. GOOD CAUSE

"Parties seeking reconsideration of a military judge's written ruling or order must file a motion within fourteen (14) days after the ruling or order is filed, unless the court extends the time for good cause shown. A motion to reconsider must be based on:

(a) An intervening change in the controlling law;
(b) The availability of new evidence; or
(c) The need to correct clear error or prevent manifest injustice."[14]

"[It] is not good cause when the defense knew or could have known about the evidence in question prior to the relevant deadline."[15]

II. COMMAND AUTHORIZED SEARCH AND SEIZURE

Evidence obtained from reasonable searches conducted pursuant to a . . . search authorization . . . is admissible at trial when relevant and not otherwise inadmissible[.]"[16] A "search authorization . . . is valid only if issued by an impartial individual" meeting certain qualifications, such as being a "commander . . . who has control over the place where the property or person to be searched is situated or found."[17]

Evidence may be "seized based on a reasonable belief that the property or evidence . . . [contains] evidence of crime[.]"[18] Property may also be temporarily detained while awaiting a search authorization.[19]

"A search authorization, whether for a physical location or for an electronic device, must adhere to the standards of the Fourth Amendment of the Constitution."[20] "The Fourth Amendment requires that a search warrant describe the things to be seized with sufficient particularity to prevent a general exploratory rummaging in a person's belongings."[21]

"Despite the importance of preserving this particularity requirement, considerable support can be found in federal law for the notion of achieving a balance by not overly restricting the ability to search electronic devices."[22] "[I]t is folly for a search warrant to attempt to structure the mechanics of the search and a warrant imposing such limits would unduly restrict legitimate search objectives."[23] "[T]he manner in which a warrant is executed is subject to later judicial review as to its reasonableness.' [24] "Instead of attempting to set out bright line rules for limiting searches of electronic devices, the courts have looked to what is reasonable under the circumstances." [25]Searches conducted pursuant to a search authorization are presumptively reasonable.[26]

"Though a temporal limitation is one possible method of tailoring a search authorization, it is by no means a requirement."[27] In Richards, the accused's commanding officer was provided an affidavit detailing that the accused was known to have had a sexual relationship with a child since April 2011, with sexual communications beginning one year earlier. Id. at 367. The CO signed a CASS authorizing a search for evidence of child sexual abuse communications—without a temporal limitation. Id. at 370. The CAAF looked to both the authorization and its accompanying document to determine if the CASS was sufficiently particularized. Id. Ultimately, the CAAF held that "the authorization allowed for a search of the unallocated space and through potential communications materials that did not have an immediately clear date associated with them." Id. In sum, while the relationship with the child was known to have existed within a certain date range, the CASS was nonetheless reasonably particularized despite not limiting the search to only that date range. Id.

ARGUMENT

I. DEFENSE'S MOTION IS WITHOUT GOOD CAUSE

A. THE DEFENSE FAILED TO FOLLOW PROPER PROCEDURES FOR RECONSIDERATION

To the extent the Defense believed new evidence or additional grounds existed following the Court's ruling, the appropriate procedural mechanism was a timely motion for reconsideration. The deadline for such relief was 10 February. That deadline fell approximately eighty-one days [21] United States v. Carey, 172 F.3d 1268, 1272 (10th Cir. 1999).

[27] Richards, 76 M.J.at 370 (C.A.A.F. 2017)

after the Defense received the search authorization on 21 November—more than sufficient time to investigate, develop, and present any additional arguments or evidence.

Rather than pursue the proper procedural remedy within the required timeframe, the Defense now seeks to relitigate an issue that has already been fully litigated and resolved. This attempt disregards the rules of this Court and attempts to undermine the finality of the Court's prior ruling.

The lawfulness of the evidence obtained from the accused's iPhone 15 was fully litigated during the Article 39(a) session after the Defense had notice of the relevant evidence, an opportunity to be heard, and a full opportunity to present argument. This Court issued a written ruling denying the motions and resolving the validity of the PASS, CASS, and whether the evidence would have been inevitably discovered.

The Defense's present filing does not identify any intervening change in law, newly discovered evidence, or other basis warranting reconsideration. Moreover, the Defense's motion squarely contradicts findings of fact made by this Court in its previous ruling – findings irrelevant to the determination of the validity the 5 June CASS. Defense appears to flatly refuse to accept this Court's ruling. Defense's motion is merely an attempt to counterbalance their dissatisfaction with the outcome of its prior tactical decision. Reconsideration is not intended to provide a second opportunity to litigate issues previously resolved simply because a party is dissatisfied with the result.

B. DEFENSE MADE A TACTICAL DECISION TO FILE EIGHTEEN MOTIONS AND CANNOT NOW CLAIM LACK OF TIME

The Defense's request for reconsideration is the product of its own strategic choices. The Defense elected to file eighteen pretrial motions at the first Article 39(a), session, including three motions to suppress. This was a tactical decision made with full knowledge of the status of discovery. Having chosen to proceed in this manner, the Defense cannot now claim that it lacked adequate time to prepare. Defense received the 5 June CASS for the iPhone 15 approximately five days before its filing deadline and approximately twenty days before the Article 39(a) session. The Defense never sought to defer litigation of that motion to suppress and never asserted that additional time was necessary to prepare. Its present claim of insufficient preparation time arises solely from its own decision to file an extensive number of motions simultaneously. A party may not manufacture time constraints through its own strategic choices and then rely on those self-created circumstances as grounds for relief from an adverse ruling.

C. THIS COURT SHOULD DENY THE DEFENSE'S REQUEST

The Defense made a strategic decision regarding how and when to litigate its suppression motion. Defense had neither the facts, nor the law to succeed regarding a motion to suppress so they employed the only tactical tool left in their arsenal– an attempt to overwhelm the government with an excessive number of pre-trial motions in a short period of time. That tactical decision was unsuccessful. Defense must move on. The interests of judicial efficiency, finality, and adherence to this Court's rules weigh strongly against permitting re-litigation of matters fully and fairly decided. The Defense has demonstrated no legal or factual basis justifying relief, and its request should therefore be denied.

II. IF THIS COURT DOES ENTERTAIN DEFENSE'S UNTIMELY MOTION - THE COURT MUST AGAIN FIND THAT THE 5 JUNE 2025 COMMAND AUTHORIZATION FOR SEARCH AND SEIZURE WAS VALID AND THE EVIDENCE OBTAINED IS ADMISSIBLE

A. THIS COURT HAS ALREADY DETERMINED THAT THE CASS WAS VALID AND THAT THE SEARCH WAS LAWFUL

This Court has already ruled that - among other legal bases- the search of the accused's iPhone 15 was conducted pursuant to a valid CASS. That ruling in its totality resolved the admissibility of the evidence obtained from the accused's iPhone 15. Although the Defense did not, in its initial motion, squarely challenge the CASS on probable cause or particularity grounds, it did move to suppress evidence obtained as a result of the search of the phone. As a result of that filing, the Government bore the burden of establishing that the CASS was lawful. It satisfied that burden. In assessing admissibility in its ruling, the Court necessarily evaluated the validity of the CASS and found the CASS to be an independent basis for admissibility. Indeed, despite the Defense's initial and erroneous argument—that the search of the iPhone 15 was conducted before the CASS was signed—the Court examined the sequence of events, determined that acquisition of the phone's contents constituted a seizure, and found that the ensuing search was conducted pursuant to a valid CASS. The validity of the CASS has been adjudicated and Defense is without legal rule or argument to disturb the Court's prior and final ruling.

B. THE COURT FOUND PROBABLE CAUSE EXISTED TO AUTHORIZE THE SEARCH

Moreover, the arguments advanced by Defense in their untimely motion to suppress have likewise been decided by this Court. By finding the CASS to be valid, the Court necessarily finds that probable cause existed for the issuance of the CASS.

Even if the Court had not already ruled that the CASS was valid, probable cause is clear. First, the accused was the last known person to see the victim alive. He told investigators that he and the victim were merely friends and had not engaged in any sexual activity. That statement was directly contradicted by his roommate, who reported observing the accused and an unidentified female naked on the floor of the accused's barracks room on 29 May 2025. The accused further told investigators that he and his roommate returned the victim to her barracks room at approximately 1000 on 29 May 2025. That account was again disputed by roommates, none of whom corroborated his version of events. After the accused was last seen with the victim, he himself was unaccounted for over the course of several days. During the period in which both the accused and the victim were missing, the victim's cellphone appeared to generate geolocation data placing it in Suffolk, Virginia. When questioned again on 3 June 2025, the accused claimed he never left the barracks. He also contradicted his prior 1 June statement—despite previously asserting that he personally returned the victim to her barracks room, he later stated that he did not take her back and instead believed she left via a rideshare. These evolving accounts, coupled with contradictory witness statements and objective potential geolocation data placing the victim in an area off base, provided strong evidence that the accused was not being truthful about his whereabouts, his knowledge of the victim's disappearance, and whether he continued to be assisting her in her ongoing unauthorized absence.

C. ATTACHMENT B SATISFIES THE PARTICULARITY REQUIREMENT

Attachment B is narrowly tailored and highly particularized, identifying with specificity the categories of data authorized for seizure, including chats, messages, photographs and geolocation information. The items authorized for seizure were directly tied to the investigative objectives. Specifically, the authorized data would assist investigators in determining the accused's location with respect to his own unauthorized absence and in assessing what investigators reasonably believed to be ongoing deception regarding his knowledge of the victim's whereabouts. Given the accused's shifting and inconsistent accounts of what occurred on the morning the victim disappeared—including conflicting statements about how and when the victim left his room—investigators had ample reason to question his credibility. Moreover, investigators could not discount the possibility that the accused was actively assisting the victim in the commission of her unauthorized absence. Under these circumstances, the seizure of geolocation and related digital data was a targeted effort to resolve specific factual disputes central to the investigation.

Defense cites United States v. Richards for the proposition that the particularity requirement prevents general searches.[28] Defense, however, fails to acknowledge that in Richards, the CAAF upheld the trial court's decision to admit evidence obtained with a search authorization that did not explicitly provide temporal boundaries. In Richards, the government obtained a search authorization to investigate alleged violations of a Florida statute regarding "computer pornography; traveling to meet a minor."[29] The affidavit accompanying the search request described a relationship the accused had with a minor that had been ongoing for about seven months.[30] After the search authorization was granted, various electronic devices belonging to the accused was sent to DCFL. The case background information provided to examiners at DCFL included an allegation of sexual abuse of a child from almost two decades prior to the current allegation.[31] Law enforcement requested that DCFL

> "Search SUBJECT's Cell Phones, laptop computers, digital cameras and memory cards for all videos, images and possible online communication. To include, but not limited to the following: any and all information saved or maintained on SUBJECT's cellular telephones, laptop computers or hard drives; all associated SIM cards, components, peripherals or other data, relating to the matter being investigated."[32]

[28] AE LXXVI at 6
[29] Richards at 367
[30] Id.
[31] Id.
[32] Id. at 368

During a search of the media found on one of the accused's electronic devices, the examiner found child pornography.

At the trial level, the accused argued that because the search authorization was without a temporal limitation, the search authorization was overbroad. Both the trial court and the CAAF disagreed. CAAF looked at the crime under investigation and found that the authorization and accompanying affidavit provided context and a timeframe for where investigators could search. CAAF found,

> "Here, the authorization and accompanying affidavit did not give authorities carte blanche to search in areas clearly outside the scope of the crime being investigated. They were entitled to search Appellant's electronic media for any communication that related to his possible violation of the Florida statute in his relationship with AP."[33]

Here, despite no temporal limitation, the CASS is highly particularized as to what it authorizes searching. The CASS facially references the affidavit, and therefore the affidavit is an accompanying document and its relative date range is part of the reasonableness analysis in reviewing the CASS and resulting search. The resulting search in this case is more tailored than in Richards because searching for a specific pin cite to find the victim's and the accused's location is far more a narrowly tailored search pursuant to the limitations of the CASS than looking through unallocated data.

Even setting Richards aside, the Defense's premise fails because the CASS, when read in context, contains a functional temporal limitation. Attachment B authorizes the search of information "which can be used to identify potentially associated persons pertaining to Subject Offense(s)" and repeatedly ties the material sought to "the crime(s) under investigation." The scope of the search is therefore tethered to the specific offenses being investigated. When read together with the affidavit—which defines the investigative timeframe—there is a clear and objective temporal boundary.

While an express temporal limitation is not required as discussed above[34], the Defense further concedes that a timeframe of 29 May through 3 June would have constituted a reasonable temporal limitation in this case.[35] That concession is significant. The most probative evidence—evidence leading to the discovery of the victim's body—was recovered within that very period. Accordingly, even under the Defense's own narrow view of what would have been reasonable, the search at issue falls squarely within a timeframe supported by probable cause. The absence of an explicit date range therefore does not undermine the validity of the CASS or the admissibility of the evidence obtained.

III. THIS COURT ALREADY DETERMINED INEVITABLE DISCOVERY APPLIES

[33] Id. at 370
[34] See Richards at 370 ("Though a temporal limitation is one possible method of tailoring a search authorization, it is by no means a requirement.")
[35] AE LXXVI at 6

This Court has already concluded that the doctrine of inevitable discovery applies and that the Government met its burden. The Defense again fails to meet the requirements for reconsideration. This Court should adhere to its prior ruling and decline to disturb its well-reasoned decision.

IV. FINALITY AND JUDICIAL ECONOMY REQUIRE DENIAL OF THE MOTION

The Court has already determined that the CASS was supported by probable cause and that the resulting search was lawful. The Defense has identified no new facts, no intervening change in law, and no manifest injustice warranting reconsideration. The Court should deny the Defense's motion and decline to revisit its prior ruling.

RELIEF REQUESTED

The Government respectfully requests that the Court deny the Defense's motion to suppress because the Court has already ruled on this issue and the Defense has failed to demonstrate good cause to relitigate the matter.

EVIDENCE

The government incorporates by reference Enclosures 1-45 of AE LVIII and the testimony provided during the ensuing 39(a) session.

ORAL ARGUMENT

The Government requests oral argument in response to any Defense oral argument.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

Arrange and bind the record of trial with allied papers in the sequence indicated below. The court reporter is responsible for certifying the record of trial prior to transmittal for appellate review, in accordance with R.C.M. 1112 and JAG/CNLSCINST 5813.1G.

1. Pages 1 (Cover page) and 2 (Chronology Sheet) of DD Form 490 (enclosure 7).

2. Court reporter certification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

3. Military Judge verification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

4. DD Form 490 (pages 3-6 and any continuation pages if needed) (enclosure 7).

5. Completed Post-Trial Checklist from JAG/CNLSCINST 5814.1G (enclosure 2).

6. Completed Convening Authority's Action Checklist (enclosure 4).

7. Post-Trial Documents.

a. Certificates/Proof of Service of the Certified Record of Trial to the accused and victim, if applicable (enclosure 7).

b. Convening Authority's Action and Entry of Judgment (enclosure 6).

c. Any requests for copies of the court-martial record pursuant to R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A (attach written requests, and any certificates/proof of service, but do not attach the victim's post-trial rights advisement or DD Form 2704).

d. Matters submitted by the accused and/or victim under R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A, or any written waiver of the right to submit such matters. Include all responses to requests here as well.

e. Any deferment request and the action on it (including any request to waive automatic forfeitures under Article 58b).

f. Conditions of suspension and proof of service on probationer under R.C.M. 1107, if any.

g. All clemency recommendations by members or military judge, if any.

h. Statement of Trial Results (enclosure 1).

i. Crime Reporting Information.

j. Accused's request for appellate defense counsel, or waiver/withdrawal of appellate review under R.C.M. 1115, if applicable.

k. All transfer orders, confinement orders, and excess leave orders.

l. Briefs of counsel submitted after trial, if any.

8. Preliminary Hearing.

a. DD Form 457, Preliminary Hearing Officer's Report, pursuant to Article 32, if such hearing was conducted, followed by any other allied papers that accompanied the charges when referred for trial (including any matters submitted under R.C.M. 405(l), unless included elsewhere in the record of trial).*

b. Waiver of Article 32 Hearing (if applicable).

9. Pre-Trial Allied Papers.

a. Convening Order and all amending convening orders.

b. DD Form 458, Charge Sheet (unless included at the point of arraignment in the transcript).

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

c. Congressional inquiries and replies, if any.

d. Advice of staff judge advocate, when prepared pursuant to Article 34 or otherwise.

10. Record of Proceedings.

a. Substantially verbatim recording of court-martial proceedings. Segregate open and closed sessions of the court-martial in accordance with R.C.M. 1113 and the following guidance:*

b. Ensure that each closed session of the court-martial is recorded on a separate DVD marked CLOSED SESSION, placed in its own envelope marked CLOSED SESSION, and sealed.

c. Label all DVD(s) and envelopes with the information on page 1 of this template.

d. Mark all DVDs and envelopes with "1 of X." as necessary (for example, the second DVD of six DVDs and its envelope should be marked, 2 of 6). All DVDs of open sessions may be in one envelope.

e. Mark all DVDs with their beginning and ending timestamps. The timestamps for closed sessions should match those shown on the Index.

f. Verbatim transcript or summarized report prepared in accordance with JAGINST 5814.1G. Include the following:

I. A certificate of correction, if any (including any supplemental certification for additional proceedings).

II. Court reporter and transcriptionist certification of verbatim transcript.

g. Records of former proceedings (Article 30a) and/or trials, (e.g., electronic/digital record of former proceeding, including audio recording and any scanned documentation/transcripts, CD/DVD format).*

11. Prosecution exhibits admitted in evidence.

12. Defense Exhibits admitted in evidence.

13. Appellate Exhibits including but not limited to, proposed instructions, written offers of proof or preliminary evidence (real or documentary), briefs of counsel submitted at trial, request to be tried by military judge alone (if any), the accused election of members under R.C.M. 903 (if any), any statement by convening authority required under R.C.M. 503(a)(2), and the election for sentencing by members in lieu of sentencing by military judge under R.C.M. 1002(b).*

14. Redaction. The following information shall be redacted in accordance with JAGMAN 1059 from the record of trial prior to releasing it to any accused or victim (including any transcript made pursuant to R.C.M. 1114 and attached to the record of trial) unless the information establishes an element of an offense, or is otherwise required:

a. Any recordings of closed sessions, any transcripts of closed sessions, and any sealed exhibits.

b. Names of minor victims, and names of minor witnesses. If an identifier is used, use only the initials.

c. Social Security Numbers.

d. Financial account information.

e. Home addresses.

f. Telephone numbers.

g. Personal e-mail addresses.

h. Dates of birth.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

i. Any other information that could be used to identify a specific person other than the accused.

*If the report of preliminary hearing or record of trial contains exhibits, proceedings, or other materials ordered sealed by the preliminary hearing officer or military judge, counsel for the Government, the court reporter, or trial counsel shall cause such materials to be sealed to prevent unauthorized examination or disclosure, pursuant to R.C.M. 1113. Sealed material shall be properly marked, individually placed in separate envelopes with a copy of the preliminary hearing officer or military judge sealing order affixed to it, and inserted at the appropriate place in the record of trial. Do not duplicate sealed material to include it in any copy of the record of trial. Instead, insert a copy of the sealing order in lieu of any sealed material, in any copies of the record of trial.

DIVIDERS ARE NOT NECESSARY TO SEPARATE EACH SECTION. IF USED, THEY CAN BE PAPER RATHER THAN CARD STOCK. IF A PARTICULAR COMPONENT IS NOT APPLICABLE IN THE RECORD OF TRIAL, SUCH AS AN ARTICLE 32 HEARING, EXHIBITS NOT ADMITTED, POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND VACATION HEARINGS, DO NOT INSERT A DIVIDER OR PLACEHOLDER.

FRONT AND BACK COVER MUST BE ON BLUE CARDS STOCK AND LABELED WITH GUM LABELS.

Binding. Each volume of a record of trial should be no more than 1.5 inches thick and bound at the top with metal or plastic fasteners. DO NOT interlace or "piggy-back" prong fasteners to create an oversized volume. DO NOT place hole punches where it covers up the evidence or language in the transcript. When it becomes necessary to assemble the record of trial in more than one volume, the volumes will be numbered consecutively, on the front cover, as illustrated below:

Volume 1 of 4 (Pages 1-250)
Volume 2 of 4 (Pages 251-400)
Volume 3 of 4 (Pages 401-652)
Volume 4 of 4 (Pages 653-901 and Exhibits)

Make the first volume of a multi-volume record an inch thick or smaller to allow for inclusion of post-trial documents. Limit subsequent volumes to 1.5 inches, unless dividing them requires assembling an additional volume smaller than a half inch.

Label the upper right-hand corner or the Preparation and Certification of Record of Trial Form (enclosure (8)) to reflect which copy it is, i.e., "ORIGINAL," "ACCUSED," "REVIEW" etc.

MOTION

Pursuant to Rule for Courts-Martial (R.C.M.) 703, the Government respectfully requests that the Court deny Defense's Motion to compel that the convening authority authorize funding for Dr. Priya Banerjee.

FACTS

1. On 22 October 2025, Defense requested an expert consultant in pathology.[1]

2. One 5 November 2025, the Government agreed with Defense that an expert pathologist was necessary for Defense, but the Government would not endorse Defense's preferred expert, Dr. Priya Banerjee because her fee schedule far exceeded the rate prescribed by the JAGMAN. The Government instead would provide an adequate substitute for Defense.

3. The Government attempted to find an active-duty pathologist to assist defense.[2]

4. The Government obtained a list of qualified civilian pathologists and forwarded them to Defense in effort to allow Defense to vet some potential adequate substitutes prior to trial. Defense declined to engage with any potential expert other than Dr. Banerjee prior to the 39(a) hearing. [3]

5. On 3 December 2025, the Convening Authority denied Defense's request for Dr. Banerjee and provided a copy to Defense that same day.[4]

6. At an Article 39(a) on 10 December 2025, the Court ordered the government to find an adequate substitute for defense in the field of forensic pathology.

[2] Enclosure (1)
[3] Enclosure (2)
[4] Enclosure (3)

7. Per the Court's order, on 19 December 2025, the Government forwarded Dr. Evan Matshes's CV and fee schedule to the convening authority for funding.[5]

8. Also on 19 December 2025, Defense informed the government that Dr. Banerjee was willing to lower her hourly rate to $600/hour, but would not say if Dr. Banerjee would negotiate her daily trial fee of $10,000 per day.[6]

9. On 22 December 2025, the Court issued a written ruling in regard to Defense's requests for expert consultants and denied Defense's request for Dr. Priya Banerjee noting that the Government had provided an adequate substitute, Dr. Matshes.[7]

10. On 29 January 2026, Dr. Matshes' consulting firm returned a sign consulting agreement to the government.[8]

11. On 5 February 2026, Dr. Matshes consulting firm informed the government they had made a scheduling error and Dr. Matshes would no longer be available for trial. The firm, however, was able to provide a qualified pathologist, Dr. Lew, for the same rate.[9]

12. On 6 February 2026, the government notified defense and the convening authority of the change in experts and provided all parties with Dr. Lew's CV and fee schedule. Dr. Lew's hourly rate is $600 per day and daily in court rate is $5000 per day[10].

13. On 18 February 2026, the Convening Authority approved funding for Dr. Lew's pre-trial consultation with Defense.[11]

14. Dr. Lew is a forensic pathologist with three decades of experience in her field.[12]

BURDEN OF PROOF

15. The Defense, as the moving party, bears the burden of persuasion and the burden of proof on any factual issue, the resolution of which is necessary to decide the motion, by a preponderance of the evidence. R.C.M. 905(c)(1)-(2).

LAW

Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 703(d)(2) provides when the "employment of a Defense expert . consultant is considered necessary" the Defense may request government funding for that expert "in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary concerned." When raised before the military judge, "[t]he military judge shall determine . . . in the case of an expert consultant, whether the assistance is necessary for an adequate Defense."[13]

JAGMAN 0146(l) states," (1) The convening authority will authorize the employment of an expert consultant or witness and will fix the limit of compensation to be paid such expert based on the normal compensation paid by U.S. Attorneys for attendance of a witness of such standing in U.S. courts in the area involved. Information concerning such normal compensation may be obtained from the nearest GCMCA having a judge advocate assigned in other than an additional duty, temporary duty, or temporary additional duty capacity."

Indeed, the requirement that the government provide for expert consultation stems from the Due Process demand that an accused be given the "basic tools" necessary to present a Defense.[14] The right to expert assistance is triggered upon a demonstration of both necessity, and that denial of expert assistance would "result in a fundamentally unfair trial."[15]

"An accused is entitled to expert assistance provided by the Government if he can demonstrate necessity."[16] But the mere possibility of assistance is not sufficient to prevail on the request.[17] Instead, the accused has the burden of establishing "that a reasonable probability exists that (1) an expert would be of assistance to the Defense and (2) that denial of expert assistance would result in a fundamentally unfair trial."[18] "In order to satisfy the first prong of this test… [t]he Defense must show (1) why the expert is necessary; (2) what the expert would accomplish for the accused; and (3) why Defense counsel is unable to gather and present the evidence that the expert would be able to develop."[19]

"An accused is not, however, entitled to a specific expert of his own choosing."[20]

"It is well-established that an indigent is not entitled to all the assistance that a wealthier counterpart might buy, but only to the basic and integral tools." [21] "As long as the Government [is] willing to provide competent assistance at government expense (…) the Government's burden [is] satisfied. The defense [can] either accept such assistance or look to its own resources."[22]

ARGUMENT

I. This Issue Is Settled: The Court Considered the Government's Articulated Basis for Denial, Declined to Order the Defense's Preferred Expert, and Required an Adequate Substitute; the Defense Cannot Now Seek Reconsideration Through an Untimely Filing.

On 22 December 2025, in its Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law, the Court expressly acknowledged that the Government denied the Defense's preferred expert based on her fee schedule and ordered—not that the Defense receive its preferred expert—but that the Government provide an adequate substitute. The Government endeavored to acquire an expert whose fees fell within service regulations and procured an expert consultant whose fees - considering the high likelihood of a defense request for services at trial either as a consultant or witness – fell far below that of the Defense requested expert. As the Court ruled previously when ordering the government to find an adequate substitute on this basis, cost to the government is a permissible reason to deny a Defense requested expert. This issue is settled. Any challenge to the Court's rationale or to the propriety of ordering an adequate substitute was required to be raised within the prescribed period for a motion for reconsideration. That time has expired. Accordingly, the Defense should not be permitted to relitigate this issue.

But even if this Court were to entertain Defense's untimely motion to relitigate this particular matter, the CAAF has spoken on this issue. Defense is not entitled to the most expensive expert money can buy. They are entitled to the "basic… tools" of the area of expertise. In fact, it is likely the leading reason why the government is permitted to substitute a specific expert requested by Defense for another expert – often employed by the government. Here, the government was unable to obtain a government employed expert in forensic pathology and thus, found an expert whose fee schedule was more reasonable. Furthermore, the government has provided an expert whose qualifications far exceed the basic tools required to assist defense. Like CAAF articulated in Ndanyi, Defense can either accept the Government's help or pay for an expert themselves. Defense has the means through Independent Defense Funding to pay for Dr. Banjeree should they choose.

II. The Only Proper Issue Before the Court Is the Adequacy of the Government's Substitute – Dr. Lew—

As a preliminary matter, the Government notes that the Defense's motion continues to reference Dr. Matshes despite having been notified, well in advance of its filing deadline, that Dr. Matshes had been replaced by Dr. Lew due to a scheduling conflict. Any challenge to Dr. Matshes's qualifications is therefore moot, and the Government does not address those arguments.

Dr. Lew is a highly qualified forensic pathologist with more than 33 years of professional experience.[23] She has served as a consultant in forensic pathology for both the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the United States Attorney's Office and previously held the position of Chief Medical Examiner for a major U.S. city. Her training, education, and extensive professional experience plainly establish that she is more than qualified to consult with the Defense.

Rather than meaningfully addressing Dr. Lew's credentials, the Defense merely alludes—without explanation or analysis—to purported concerns regarding her reputation and her area of experience. They offer no substantive challenge to her qualifications and instead appear to invite the Court to engage in a fanciful scenario where members disregard the military judge's instructions and conduct independent internet research. That improper, rogue research would ignore the voluminous number of published articles and even her CourtTV appearances in which Dr. Lew testified as an expert in her field and instead find a regional newspaper article concerning what appears to be a human resources dispute. Further improper research would yield an autopsy, among more than three decades of work, in which a party disagreed with Dr. Lew's findings. This speculative and unsupported argument does not call into question Dr. Lew's qualifications as an expert in the field of forensic pathology. Defense makes no meaningful attack on Dr. Lew's credentials as a forensic pathologist and thus, the motion to compel the production of Dr. Banerjee should be denied.

RELIEF REQUESTED

The Government respectfully requests that the Court deny the Defense's motion to compel expert assistance of Dr. Banerjee as discussed above.

Ma'am,

Copy and thank you. The defense is looking for expert assistance to review the autopsy findings in a case in which the accused is charged with murder. The prosecution is using the Norfolk Medical Examiner who conducted the autopsy as our expert. Do you have any suggestions or recommendations for where else I could find an expert pathologist or other suitable expert for defense? Thank you!

CDR Mayo,

IAW DoD 5154.30, para. 3.3 AFMES can provide consultative services to a prosecution team assuming it has the resources available and depending on the case. However, AFMES pathologists are normally unavailable for nomination or assignment by convening authorities or military judges as defense consultants or members of the defense team because of confidentiality concerns. Just to be sure, you are asking on behalf of the Defense correct? Sometimes a defense team's needs may be satisfied by a medical professional other than a pathologist and they request and receive support from an MTF provider. This would not be prohibited by this provision.

Dr. Thomas,

Good afternoon. We last worked together when I was a defense attorney in Norfolk. I am now a prosecutor with the Navy in Norfolk, Virginia and have been tasked to find an expert for the defense.

Defense counsel has requested assistance in obtaining an expert in the field of pathology in a case currently set for trial in Norfolk in June of 2026. The defendant in this case is charged with among other charges, murder.

Defense is seeking an expert to assist in analyzing evidence and reports, the techniques and procedures used, and the testimony of the Government's witnesses. The autopsy was conducted by the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner in Norfolk. Defense has also requested assistance to probe alternate theories of death, different possible causes of death, and counter the evidence presented.

The case is docketed for 3 - 26 June in Norfolk, Virginia.

If you have availability (or can recommend anyone who might), please let me know. Thank you, and hope you are doing well!

1. Pursuant to Section 0145(a)(7)(b) under reference (c), Special Trial Counsel has determined that employment of a defense expert in forensic pathology is necessary. Special Trial Counsel does not endorse the Defense's requested expert – Dr. Banjeree. Instead, Special Trial Counsel has obtained an adequate substitute, Dr. Evan Matshes. His CV and fee schedule are attached.

2. Accordingly, I respectfully request CNRMA execute funding for 30 hours of evidence review and consultation ($18,000) for Dr. Matshes. If Defense requires Dr. Matshes' services for trial based on their consultation, Defense should send a separate request articulating the necessity.

3. As evidenced in enclosure (3), Dr. Matshes is qualified for this appointment with specialized experience. The Government is unable to obtain an adequate government substitute for the Defense in this area.

4. I can be reached at lauren.a.mayo2.mil@us.navy.mil or at (757)-341-4598.

(j) Ake v. Oklahoma, 470 U.S. 68, 76-83 (1985)

Encl: (1) Dr. Banerjee CV
(2) Dr. Banerjee Fee Schedule

1. Pursuant to references (a) through (h), CSSN Jermiah Copeland, through counsel, requests the government to appoint Dr. Priya Banerjee as a forensic pathology expert consultant to the defense team to assist in the preparation of its case, in accordance with Uniform Code of Military Justice (U.C.M.J.), Article 46; Rule for Courts-Martial (R.C.M.) 703; United States v. Ford, 51 M.J. 445 (C.A.A.F. 1999) and United States v. Toledo, 25 M.J. 270 (C.M.A. 1987). CSSN Copeland further requests that the forensic pathologist be designated as a member of the defense team bound by the attorney-client privilege, in accordance with Military Rule of Evidence (M.R.E.) 502(a) and other applicable federal laws and regulations.

2. Law. Under the Sixth Amendment, CSSN Copeland has the right to the effective assistance of counsel and the right to present a defense. In order to adequately represent CSSN Copeland, he requires more than the advocacy skills of his attorney. This includes "the right to present a defense by means of confrontation, cross-examination and going forward with a presentation of its own evidence." United States v. Allen, 31 M.J. 572. The right to present evidence "necessarily includes the right to prepare." Id. As stated above, military due process consequently "entitles a service member to the assistance of an expert when necessary to the preparation of an adequate defense." Id. (quoting United States v. Garries, 22 M.J. 288 (C.M.A. 1986)). Congress guaranteed, through the UCMJ, that the parties to a court-martial "shall have equal opportunity to obtain witnesses and other evidence." Article 46, U.C.M.J. Under this scheme, service members are entitled to expert assistance when such assistance is necessary in mounting an adequate defense. Ake v. Oklahoma, 470 U.S. 68, 76-83 (1985) (holding, when necessary, due process requires appointment of a government expert). Importantly, the entitlement for an accused to expert assistance "is not limited to actual expert testimony at trial." United States v.

Lee, 64 M.J. 213, 217 (C.A.A.F. 2006).

To avail himself or herself of this right, an accused—through defense counsel—must submit a request for an expert to the convening authority, supported by "a statement of reasons why the employment of the expert is necessary." R.C.M. 703(d). Both references (b) and (c) provide the structure for evaluating requests for expert consultants and witnesses.

The Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces has held that RCM 703(d) authorizes employment of experts to assist the defense at government expense when they are relevant and necessary. The Court established a three-prong test to determine the necessity of a requested expert:

1. Why is the expert needed;
2. What would the expert accomplish for the defense; and
3. Why is the defense unable to gather and present the evidence that the expert assistant would be able to develop?

3. Factual Background. CSSN Copeland is charged with the premeditated murder of CSSN A.R., among a myriad of other charges. During the ensuing investigation into the death of CSSN A.R., the Government performed medical tests and examinations on the deceased, resulting in scientific and medical reports regarding the evidence. The Government has secured the assistance of an expert, Dr. Fernanda Lemeira and will surely be using Dr. Lemeira's skill, knowledge, experience and expertise in the Government's case against CSSN Copeland. CSSN Copeland requires the assistance of Dr. Banerjee to meet and test the evidence that will be presented against him in order to ensure a full and fair trial on the merits.

4. Why an Expert is needed and What the Expert would accomplish for the defense?

At trial the Government will necessarily present medical evidence and scientific testimony as evidence against CSSN Copeland. The Defense must be afforded the opportunity prepare for, meet, and counter the Government's evidence. Dr. Banerjee will assist the Defense in analyzing evidence and reports, the techniques and procedures used, and the testimony of the Government's witnesses.

Dr. Banerjee will provide the Defense with expert opinions and assessments of the evidence that are constitutionally required to confront the Government's evidence in defense of CSSN Copeland. She has skills, education, training, and experience that the attorneys for CSSN Copeland cannot hope to attain- even through diligent effort- prior to trial. Her assistance is essential and required for a full and fair trial.

The evidence provided in discovery indicates that the cause of death for CSSN A.R. remains "undetermined." The nature of this assessment indicates that the Government will be pursuing a theory that, though cause of death is undetermined, CSSN Copeland was responsible for her death. Dr. Banerjee's training, education and experience will help the defense team probe alternate theories of death, different possible causes of death, and counter the evidence presented by the Government's experts. These are not hypothetical results of this expert's work on the case- they are actual tangible assistance directly related to the Defense's theory of the case.

Dr. Banerjee's assistance will be required and utilized throughout litigation of pretrial legal and evidentiary issues as well as during trial on the merits. Her assistance, and its necessity to the Defense team cannot be understated.

5. Why counsel cannot perform such duties. The rapid growth in forensic science techniques at trial may make cases more complex than general practitioners can handle on their own. United States v. McAllister, 55 M.J. 270, 275 (2001); United States v. Warner, 62 M.J. 114, 118 (C.A.A.F. 2005). No member of the defense is an expert in the field of forensic pathology. Although counsel have and will continue to diligently research these areas, they cannot realistically be expected to attain the level of competency required to challenge and evaluate a Government's experts or challenge and evaluate the Government's evidence. Without the ability to consult with its own expert, the Defense would not be able to adequately represent CSSN Copeland within the meaning of the Sixth Amendment or the UCMJ.

6. Adequate government substitute. The Defense is not aware of an acceptable governmental substitute that has comparable qualifications, education or experience to that of Dr. Banerjee.

7. Cost. Enclosure (2) is Dr. Banerjee's fee schedule. Her rate for professional consulting is $850 per hour and trial participation rate of $10,000 per day. We have estimated that she will need 30 hours for pre-trial consultancy at a cost of $25,500.00, and trial participation for 22 days at a cost of $220,000.00. The defense requests a total authorization of $245,500.00, not including travel expenses to be reimbursed in accordance with the Joint Travel Regulations. Dr. Banerjee is currently available for the scheduled trial dates and is already enrolled within the federal payment system.

8. The Defense requests that the expert consultant be viewed as a member of the Defense team such that all communications between the expert consultant and the accused and his counsel will be viewed as confidential. The Defense further requests that the Government not have any conversations or other interaction with the requested expert consultant in relation to this case except for any administrative communications in securing their assistance for the Defense. The Defense understands this limitation may be removed if the defense eventually desires to have the expert testify in the case.

9. Dr. Banerjee's assistance is relevant and necessary to providing CSSN Copeland with an adequate defense to the charges. Should you have any questions or require any additional information, please contact me at `todd.m.mihill.mil@us.navy.mil` or 571-369-8409.

Good afternoon,

In speaking with Dr. Matshes, we are going to assign Dr Emma Lew to this trial I have attached her CV. I think you will be thrilled to have her as a high profile pathologist.

She can be the consulting expert and/or testifying expert on this case. She can commit to June 7-27th to be in court. If you decide to also use Dr. Matshes as testifying expert he would only be available very end of trial 24th-25th.

I hope you find this solution to your satisfaction. We appreciate you choosing NAAG and do enjoy working with you.

I would still suggest sending a subpoena over for Dr Emma Lew please.

Good afternoon,

I am reaching out to inquire about your availability to serve as an expert consultant for the defense in a Navy court-martial. The accused in the case is charged with, among other charges, murder. Trial is scheduled for 3 – 26 June 2026 on board Naval Station Norfolk in Norfolk, Virginia. Although I am the prosecutor assigned to this matter, the court has directed me to assist in identifying a potential defense consultant.

If you are interested, I am happy to answer any questions you might have. Also, if available, please send a current CV and fee schedule. Thank you!

Good afternoon,

Thank you for reaching out. I'm interested in assisting with this matter. We are established DOD contractors and happy to serve.

- I'll need to review the case details and confirm there are no conflicts. Please send any available information for a preliminary review — I will ask Investigator Buckley at my agency to call you to complete the conflict check over the phone.
- My CV and DOD rate sheet are attached.

I look forward to the chance to work together,

Subject: Expert Consultation Inquiry - Navy Court-Martial (Norfolk, Virginia)

Good afternoon,

I am reaching out to inquire about your availability to serve as an expert consultant for the defense in a Navy court-martial. The accused in the case is charged with, among other charges, murder. Trial is scheduled for 3 – 26 June 2026 on board Naval Station Norfolk in Norfolk, Virginia. Although I am the prosecutor assigned to this matter, the court has directed me to assist in identifying a potential defense consultant.

If you are interested, I am happy to answer any questions you might have. Also, if available, please send a current CV and fee schedule. Thank you!

Encl: (1) Dr. Emma Lew CV and Fee Schedule

1. Pursuant to Section 0145(a)(7)(b) under reference (c), Special Trial Counsel has determined that employment of a defense expert in forensic pathology is necessary. Special Trial Counsel does not endorse the Defense's requested expert – Dr. Banjeree. Instead, Special Trial Counsel has obtained an adequate substitute, Dr. Emma Lew. Her CV and fee schedule are attached.

2. Accordingly, I respectfully request CNRMA execute funding for 30 hours of evidence review and consultation ($18,000) and presence at trial at a rate of $5,000/day from 8 June 2026-26 June 2026.

3. As evidenced in enclosure (3), Dr. Lew is qualified for this appointment with specialized experience. The Government is unable to obtain an adequate government substitute for the Defense in this area.

4. I can be reached at lauren.a.mayo2.mil@us.navy.mil or at (757)-341-4598.

CENTRAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION TO RECONSIDER (DEFENSE MOTION TO COMPEL PRODUCTION OF EXPERT PATHOLOGIST) 5 MARCH 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed a motion seeking the production of an expert consultant in Pathology.[1] The Government responded on 5 December 2025[2] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 10 December 2025. During oral argument the Government conceded the need for a defense expert in Pathology and the court directed the Government to provide an adequate substitute. On 19 December 2025, the Government complied with the court's order and provided the defense with a government funded Pathologist. Thereafter, on 22 December 2025, the court issued a written ruling granting the defense motion for an expert in pathology, but denying the motion with respect to the specific Pathologist sought by the defense.[3]

On 18 February 2025, the defense filed a motion to reconsider the court's ruling,[4] and on 26 February 2026, the Government filed a response.[5] The court heard oral argument on the motion to reconsider on 5 March 2026.

[2] AE IX.
[3] AE LXIV.
[4] AE LXXIV.
[5] AE LXXXII.

2. Burden.

As the moving party, the defense bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence.[6]

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

a. On 9 June 2025, the remains of CS3 A.R. were found in a secluded area of Norfolk. An autopsy was performed on 10 June 2025 by Dr. Fernanda Lameira of the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner.

b. Also on 9 June 2025, CSSN Jermiah Copeland entered pretrial confinement upon being suspected of numerous violations of the UCMJ, including sexual assault and the premeditated murder of CSSN A.R.

c. The autopsy performed by Dr. Lameira resulted in an "undetermined" cause of death. Dr. Lameira has been identified as a Government witness for trial. She will testify regarding her medical findings and the conduct of the autopsy.

e. A second private autopsy was performed by Dr. Nemanja Rodic on 28 June 2025. This autopsy concludes the manner of death is "deferred."

f. On 24 October 2025, the Defense requested the assistance of Dr. Priya Banerjee as an expert consultant prior to, and for trial. Dr. Banerjee indicated she could be of assistance in the matter and that her schedule would allow her participation. She also noted that she is already in the federal payment system and has worked with the military before.

g. On 5 November 2025, the Government responded to the Defense request, acknowledging that the assistance of a forensic pathologist was necessary for the Defense, but denied Dr. Banerjee because her fees were excessive. The Government indicated that they would assist the Defense in finding an adequate substitute.

h. After filing a motion to compel expert production and pursuant to this Court's direction, the Government identified Dr. Evan Matshes as an adequate substitute for the defense. Dr. Matshes is not a government employee, but is a civilian expert in the field of forensic pathology.

i. On 19 December 2025, Dr. Matshes was positively endorsed by the special trial counsel at a rate of $600 per hour for 30 hours of pre-trial consultation.

[6] Rule for Court Martial (R.C.M.) 905(c).

j. The same day, 19 December 2025, Dr. Priya Banerjee notified the defense that she could conduct pre-trial consultation for a discounted rate of $600 per hour. The Defense promptly notified special trial counsel of this fact the same day.

k. On 21 December 2025, special trial counsel stated that they were unwilling to endorse Dr. Banerjee's participation even at the discounted rate. The cited reasons were that 1) the Government had complied with this Court's directive to find a substitute for the defense and 2) Dr. Banerjee's rate for trial participation was too excessive.

l. On 22 December 2025, this court granted the defense motion for an expert consultant in Pathology for both pre-trial consultation and consultation at trial. The court denied the defense's motion to compel production of Dr. Banerjee, noting that the Government had provided an adequate substitute.

m. On 22 December 2025, the Convening Authority reached out to special trial counsel looking for a fee schedule and a CAGE code for Dr. Matshes.

n. On 28 January 2026, the Defense spoke with Dr. Matshes regarding his availability for trial. He noted that he had a scheduling conflict, he would see if he could resolve it, and that he preferred to shift the Accused's trial dates out of June in order for him to participate.

o. Also on 28 January 2026, the Defense was made aware that the Convening Authority still did not have a CAGE code for Dr. Matshes in order for a contract to be finalized. The same day the Defense reached out to Dr. Matshes' office, the defense counsel received the information and passed along the information to the Convening Authority.

p. On 29 January 2026, the Defense received a signed contract for Dr. Matshes to begin working on 30 hours of pre-trial consultation. But on 5 February 2026, Dr. Matshes confirmed that he was NOT available for the scheduled trial dates in June, and NAAG (Dr. Matshes' practice group) notified the Government that another Pathologist in their practice group, Dr. Emma Lew, could commit to the trial dates. The practice group attached Dr. Lew's CV in their email response to Government counsel and indicated that she billed at the same rate as Dr. Matshes.

q. On 6 February 2026, the Government notified the defense and the Convening Authority of the change in experts and provided all parties with Dr. Lew's CV and fee schedule. Dr. Lew's hourly rate is $600 per day and daily in court rate is $5000 per day.

r. On 18 February 2026, the Convening Authority approved funding for Dr. Lew's pre-trial consultation with Defense.

s. Dr. Lew is a board certified forensic pathologist with three decades of experience in her field, including nearly five years as the Chief Medical Examiner for Miami-Dade County, Florida. Prior to her service as Chief Medical Examiner, she was Deputy Chief Medical Examiner and Director of Forensic Pathology Services for 15 years. She has been a Voluntary Assistant Professor of Pathology at the University of Miami School of Medicine since 1992 and has published numerous journal articles, proceedings and abstracts.

t. Additional facts necessary to resolve the motion are included below.

4. Statement of Law.

Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 703(d)(2) provides when the "employment of a Defense expert consultant is considered necessary" the Defense may request government funding for that expert "in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary concerned." Indeed, the requirement that the government provide for expert consultation stems from the Due Process demand that an accused be given the "basic tools" necessary to present a Defense.[7] An accused has a right to the assistance of an expert upon a showing of necessity.[8] In order to determine necessity, courts apply a two-pronged test: "[T]he accused has the burden of establishing that a reasonable probability exists that (1) an expert would be of assistance to the defense and (2) that denial of expert assistance would result in a fundamentally unfair trial."[9] The first prong of that test is demonstrated by satisfying three conditions:

> First, why the expert assistance is needed. Second, what would the expert assistance accomplish for the accused. Third, why is the defense counsel unable to gather and present the evidence that the expert assistant would be able to develop.[10]

The defense is required to show more than a mere possibility of assistance.[11] Likewise, "[a]n accused is not . . . entitled to a specific expert of his own choosing."[12] "'All that is required is that competent assistance be made available.'"[13]

With regard to the second prong, a trial is considered fundamentally unfair where the government's actions are "so outrageous that due process principles would absolutely bar the government from invoking judicial processes to obtain a conviction."[14]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

The Government concedes and this court has granted the defense's motion for an expert consultant in Pathology. The defense avers, however, that the court should reconsider its ruling denying a specific Pathologist, Dr. Banerjee, for two reasons. First, the defense contends that the Government denied Dr. Banerjee solely because of costs and yet she has agreed to reduce her pretrial consultation fees to the level the Government has contracted to pay Dr. Lew, their adequate substitute. Second, the defense argues that Dr. Lew is not an adequate substitute.

First, while Dr. Banerjee has agreed to reduce her pretrial fees, there is no evidence that she has agreed to reduce her in-court fees. She currently bills $10,000 per day for in-court consultation compared to $5,000 per day for Dr. Lew. As the court has already granted the defense's request for expert consultation both pretrial and during trial, the significant cost disparity for the respective experts in-court consultation was reasonable for the Convening Authority to consider in providing a substitute for Dr. Banerjee. The defense also contends that there is no evidence that the Convening Authority had concerns about the higher costs, but rather those concerns only arise from the prosecutors. The evidence of record, however, belies such an argument. Government Counsel presented the defense's request for Dr. Banerjee along with her CV and fee schedule to the Convening Authority, along with their recommendation that he deny the request. Likewise, Government counsel provided Dr. Lew's CV and fee schedule to the Convening Authority with a recommendation that he approve it. Absent evidence to the contrary – none of which has been provided to the court – the court presumes regularity and that the Convening Authority acted on the requests in the normal course of business and considered the material provided to him when he made his decisions to deny Dr. Banerjee and approve Dr. Lew.

Second, the court finds that Dr. Lew is an adequate substitute for Dr. Banerjee. In their filing, the defense does not attack Dr. Lew's credentials or experience beyond reference to the fact that she has mostly done work for government agencies and not as a defense consultant. Rather, the defense cites two news articles that are critical of Dr. Lew and argues that their expert must be beyond reproach.[15] The defense contends that members could ignore the military judge's orders and research Dr. Lew and come across these articles and question her credibility. Of course, members are presumed to follow the military judge's instructions,[16] but more importantly these articles reveal at most a human resources issues and a single autopsy in 33 years as a pathologist where one of the parties disagrees with her determination. The defense also argues that it would be unfair for the Government to provide Dr. Lew and then be able to attack her credentials based on these perceived controversies. On this point the court agrees, and the Government is estopped from attacking Dr. Lew's credentials.

Dr. Lew has been board certified as a Pathologist since 1988 and as a Forensic Pathologist since 1992 and she most recently served as the Chief Medical Examiner for a major American metropolitan area. Accordingly, the court finds that Dr. Lew is an adequate substitute

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION FOR APPROPRIATE RELIEF (MERGE UNREASONABLY MULTIPLIED CHARGES) 10 MARCH 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 18 February 20265, the defense filed a motion for appropriate relief asking the court to merge Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V for findings, or, alternatively, for sentencing.[1] The Government responded on 24 February 2026[2] and the court heard oral argument on the motion on 5 March 2026.

2. Burden.

The Defense, as the moving party, bears the burden to prove facts necessary to resolve the motion by a preponderance of the evidence.[3]

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

[1] Appellate Exhibit (AE) LXXII.
[2] AE LXXVIII.
[3] Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 905(c).

a. In Specification 1 of Charge V, preferred on 22 August 2025, the government alleges a violation of Article 128b, Uniform Code of military justice (UCMJ), (Domestic Violence - Strangulation):

> In that Culinary Specialist Jermiah T. Copeland, U.S. Navy, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95), on active duty, did, at or near Norfolk, Virginia, on or about 11 April 2025, commit an assault upon CSSN S.R., U.S. Navy, the dating partner of the accused, by unlawfully strangling her with his hands.

b. In Specification 2 of Charge V, preferred on 22 August 2025, the government alleges a violation of Article 128b, Uniform Code of military justice (UCMJ), (Domestic Violence - Violent Offense):

> In that Culinary Specialist Jermiah T. Copeland, U.S. Navy, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95), on active duty, did, at or near Norfolk, Virginia, on or about 11 April 2025, commit an assault upon CSSN S.R., U.S. Navy, the dating partner of the accused, by unlawfully pushing her with his hands.

c. Additional facts necessary to resolve the motion are included below.

4. Statement of Law.

"What is substantially one transaction should not be made the basis for an unreasonable multiplication of charges against one person."[4] Courts ordinarily decide merger requests at the sentencing phase by considering the Quiroz factors, as well as any other relevant factors."[5] Ultimately, with respect to both the findings and the sentence, "the application of the Quiroz factors involves a reasonableness determination."[6]

The Court of Military Appeals in United States v. Quiroz gave a five-part test to use when evaluating claims of unreasonable multiplication of charges:

1) Did the accused object at trial that there was an unreasonable multiplication of charges and/or specifications?;

2) Is each charge and specification aimed at distinctly separate criminal acts?;

3) Does the number of charges and specifications misrepresent or exaggerate the [accused's] criminality?;

4) Does the number of charges and specifications unfairly increase the [accused's] punitive exposure?; and

[6] Id. (quoting United States v. Anderson, 68 MJ 378, 386 (C.A.A.F 2010)).

5) Is there any evidence of prosecutorial overreaching or abuse in the drafting of the charges?[7]

Acts that are "so united in time, circumstance, and impulse in regard to a single person" may constitute a single offense.[8] When reviewing various charges in a certain case, it should be noted whether the offenses address distinct criminal purposes, in addition to whether they constitute separate and distinct criminal acts.[9]

The concept of unreasonable multiplication of charges may apply differently to findings than to sentencing, and as such, "the nature of the harm requires a remedy that focuses more appropriately on punishment than on findings."[10] Accordingly, the President has directed that "terms of confinement for two or more specifications shall run concurrently . . . [w]hen an accused is found guilty of two or more specifications and the military judge finds that the charges or specifications are unreasonable multiplied[.]"[11]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

The defense argues this court should merge the two specifications under Charge V, both alleging that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. on 11 April 2025, because both specifications allege conduct that occurred during the same interaction between the Accused and CSSN S.R. The defense specifically cites a recent opinion from the Navy-Marine Corps Court of Criminal Appeals (NMCCA) where the court held that a military judge abused his discretion when he failed to merge two domestic violence specifications. In United States v. Porath, the accused was charged with two specifications of violating Article 128b, each by committing a violent offense against his spouse – placing her in a chokehold and unlawfully pushing her.[12] Notably, Porath was charged with placing his spouse in a "choke hold" as the conduct underlying the assault consummated by a battery, he was not charged domestic violence by strangulation. In concluding that the military judge abused his discretion by not merging the specifications for findings, the court reasoned that the accused "should not be separately convicted for what amounts to a single, brief, uninterrupted attack involving multiple offensive touchings united in time, circumstance, and impulse."[13] The court, therefore, held that "multiple convictions for domestic violence stemming from the same altercation, both involving an underlying offense of assault consummated by a battery, were unreasonable in this case."[14]

While defense likens the case at bar to Porath, when analyzing this case through the lens of [13] Id. (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

[14] Id. at 13 (emphasis added).

Quiroz, the distinction becomes clear. First, unlike the specifications at issue in Porath, the two specifications here are aimed at distinct criminal acts. In Porath the accused was charged with two specifications of domestic violence by committing a violent offense; specifically, Porath was charged with two assaults consummated by a battery on his spouse. Here, although the Accused is charged with two specifications of domestic violence, Specification 1 alleges a strangulation – a form of aggravated assault,[15] while Specification 2 alleges an assault consummated by a battery. In short, the Accused is charged with two different forms of domestic violence in violation of Article 128b.

Second, because the specifications are aimed at different harms – including the more serious allegation of strangulation—the charging scheme does not exaggerate the accused's criminality. Indeed, as our sister service court of criminal appeals recognized, "it is difficult to see how, pre-findings, an assault consummated by a battery offense and an aggravated assault could be merged into a coherent specification."[16] Such a merged specification would necessarily "create a facially duplicitous specification, that is, a specification which alleged two separate crimes with separate elements: Article 128b(1), UCMJ (a violent offense), and Article 128b(5), UCMJ (strangulation)"[17] in violation of R.C.M. 307(c)(4) which admonishes that "[e]ach specification shall state only one offense." The impracticality of merging two specifications alleging two different crimes bespeaks the obvious – Specifications 1 and 2 of Charge V are aimed at distinct criminal acts which do not exaggerate the Accused's criminality.

Finally, there is no evidence of prosecutorial overreach. Nor is the charging scheme unreasonable. Indeed, as noted above, the Government is not simply charging an assault "blow-by blow" but are charging two distinct crimes: an aggravated assault by strangulation upon the Accused's intimate partner, CSSN S.R. and an assault consummated by a battery upon her by unlawfully pushing her. Put simply, "[a]ggravated assault is a different offense than an assault consummated by a battery[.]"[18]

With respect to whether the specifications represent an unreasonable multiplication for sentencing, the Government concedes the issue. The appropriate remedy is concurrent sentences.[19]

UNITED STATES v. COPELAND, JERMIAH CSSN/ E-3 U.S. NAVY	DEFENSE MOTION FOR APPROPRIATE RELIEF (PRIVATE MEETING WITH DEFENSE TEAM INCLUDING EXPERTS) 12 March 2026

MOTION

Pursuant to the Sixth Amendment of the United States Constitution and Rule for Courts-Martial (R.C.M.) 906(a) the defense moves this Court to order the government to permit the defense, to include its experts, to meet with CSSN Copeland, in private, in order to prepare for trial or order the release of CSSN Jermiah Copeland from pretrial confinement.

SUMMARY

On 9 June 2025, CSSN Copeland was ordered into pretrial confinement. On 16 June 2025, a 7-day reviewing officer held a hearing and approved continued confinement. That same day, the defense began requesting to confer privately with CSSN Copeland. The trial counsel, the brig, and CSSN Copeland's commanding officer denied those requests. The defense requests that this Court review CSSN Copeland's confinement and find that it interferes with his right to counsel – namely his right to confer privately with his attorneys and defense team – and order that the defense be permitted to meet with CSSN Copeland privately in the same room to have confidential meetings in preparation for trial at least once every two weeks. These meetings can be at the brig, in building A-50, or at another location in Hampton Roads, Virginia. Alternatively, this Court should order the release of CSSN Copeland from pretrial confinement.

BURDEN

As the moving party, the defense bears the burden to prove facts necessary to resolve the motion by a preponderance of evidence. R.C.M. 905(c).

FACTS

1. On 9 June 2025, CSSN Copeland was ordered into confinement. (AE XXIII at 2).

2. CSSN Copeland is confined at the Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston (NCBC) Detachment Chesapeake. He is classified as a maximum status prisoner. This means, he is in his cell alone for at least 22 hours per day. At least one military judge has ruled that this type of confinement is illegal pretrial punishment. (AE VII at 2-14).

3. On 16 June 2025, an Initial Review Officer (IRO) hearing was held at the NCBC, where the defense team met with CSSN Copeland for the first time. That same day, a 7-day reviewing officer approved continued confinement. (Id. at 163-170).

4. Based on CSSN Copeland's status, his defense team cannot have a contact visit with him at the brig. The brig will only allow the defense team to meet with him behind glass. This room makes it difficult, if not impossible, for the attorneys to hear our client and makes it difficult for CSSN Copeland to hear his attorneys. Additionally, communications from outside this room can be heard while inside, which means communications within the room can also be heard. Further, there is no means to review discovery with CSSN Copeland in this room as there are only tiny slots to pass a few sheets of folded paper and no way for CSSN Copeland to review a video or electronic evidence. (Id. at 186; 194).

5. On 16 June 2025, the defense demanded a speedy trial and requested that CSSN Copeland be brought to building A-50 to meet with his defense counsel. (Id. at 180; AE XXIII at 8).

6. On 24 June 2025, after the defense followed up on our initial request, the trial counsel responded to inquire as to why the defense wanted to meet with our client in-person. The defense responded and explained. The same day, the Staff Judge Advocate for the USS JAMES E. WILLIAM's ISIC stated that the command was standing by to assist. However, on 30 June 2025, the trial counsel stated that "the government would not be able to support…." The defense asked the trial counsel for justification as to why the government would not support our request. However, the trial counsel never responded. (AE VII at 174-176).

7. Despite the trial counsel not responding to the defense's request for justification, on 1 July 2025, the trial counsel submitted a request for excludable delay from 10 June 2025 to 25 July 2025. (Enclosure (A): Excludable Delay Request of 1 Jul 25). That same day, the defense objected to that request. (Enclosure (B): Defense Objection to Excludable Delay of 1 Jul 25).

8. On 9 July 2025, the convening authority granted the government request for excludable delay until 25 July 2025. (Enclosure (C): Grant of Excludable Delay ltr of 9 Jul 25).

9. On 25 July 2025, CSSN Copeland again demanded a speedy trial. (AE XXIII at 9). The Office of Special Trial Counsel neither acknowledged nor responded to this request.

10. On 30 July 2025, the defense requested discovery citing Rules 3.4 and 3.8 of the JAG Corps Rules for Professional Responsibility because the defense requires and is entitled to fairness and equal access to discovery. Further, the defense explained that discovery would reduce the risk of prejudicial speedy trial issues if charges were ever preferred in this case. The trial counsel neither acknowledged nor responded to this request. (Enclosure (D): Defense's Initial Discovery Request of 30 Jul 25).

11. Instead, on 8 August 2025, the trial counsel once again requested excludable delay. (Enclosure (E): Second Excludable Delay Request of 8 Aug 25).

12. On 29 July 2025, CSSN Copeland through counsel submitted a formal request for redress to the Commanding Officer, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS to meet with his attorneys in a private, confidential in-person setting. (AE VII at 183).

13. On 7 August 2025, the USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS denied CSSN Copeland's request and later refused to provide any reasoning. (Id. at 191).

14. On 11 August 2025, the defense objected to the second request for excludable delay. (Enclosure (F): Defense Objection to Second Excludable Delay of 11 Aug 25). As of this filing, the convening authority has not responded to the trial counsel's request.

15. On 13 August 2025, CSSN Copeland filed a complaint pursuant to Article 138, UCMJ. (AE VII at 171-193).

16. On 21 August 2025, NCIS was permitted to meet with CSSN Copeland at the brig and have a contact visit. The special agents were allowed to be in a room with CSSN Copeland. Touch him and take a buccal swab, get his fingerprints, and take his photograph. (Proffered testimony from SA Fritzer Philemon).

17. On 22 August 2025, the government preferred charges in this case. On that same day, the defense reached out about scheduling the Article 32 hearing and meeting with our client in preparation for the hearing. (AE VII at 199- 201).

18. On 26 August 2025, the defense filed an application for a pre-referral motion for the court to review CSSN Copeland's pretrial confinement and order the government to stop interfering with CSSN Copeland's right to counsel. On 27 August, the chief trial judge for the central circuit ordered a hearing pursuant to Article 30a. (Enclosure G: Defense MFAR (Review of PTC) of 26 Aug 25).

19. On 23 September 2025, the trial counsel sent the defense an official pre-arraignment plea agreement offer. The details of the plea offer request that CSSN Copeland plea to several specifications, including unpremeditated murder, for a limit on confinement of 46 years. Additionally, the trial counsel requested a proffer with acceptance and for CSSN Copeland to waive any protections afforded by M.R.E. 410. (Enclosure (I): OSTC Plea Offer of 23 Sep 25).

20. On 25 September 2025, in response to the plea offer, the defense requested to meet with our client in-person to discuss the deal. On 29 September 2025, the defense counsel followed up suggesting that we could schedule a time near the arraignment when defense counsel would already be in Norfolk. (AE VII at 202-205).

21. On 30 September 2025, the brig emailed CSSN Copeland's command to inform them that CSSN Copeland had requested an in-person legal visit with his defense team. (Id. at 206).

22. On 1 October 2025, the trial counsel responded to the defense counsel's email. (Id. at 202-205).

23. CSSN Copeland submitted a "510-request" to be temporarily released for a legal meeting. In response, the brig staff emailed the legal officer on the USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS regarding the best dates to accommodate this request (Id. at 206).

24. On 6 October 2025, the Commanding Officer, Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston granted CSSN Copeland an exception to policy to allow contact visits with CSSN Copeland at the Chesapeake Brig. (Id. at 218).

25. On 17 February 2026, the defense reached out to the brig staff to coordinate a meeting between CSSN Copeland and a defense expert. In response the Officer in Charge, Naval Consolidated Brig Detachment Chesapeake informed the defense that due to misconduct, CSSN Copeland lost the "privilege" to meet with members of the defense in a contact room. (Enclosure (J): Email from OIC Det Charleston of 17 Feb 26).

26. The defense contacted the trial counsel to seek assistance or alternative accommodation.

27. On 25 February 2026, the defense followed up with the trial counsel regarding the status of the defense's request. The Brig's OIC responded that "The prisoner is still able to meet with his counsel/defense team, whether in the no-contact booth, or if they conduct a TR and take him to A-50 or wherever." (Enclosure (K): Email from Brig OIC of 25 Feb 26).

28. That same day, the trial counsel responded that they were still waiting for the convening authority and command's response regarding their willingness to accommodate the defense's request. In the email, the trial counsel attached its filing from the Article 30(a) proceeding and informed the defense that the trial counsel's position that it does not see any issue with the brig's policy. (Enclosure (L): Email from Trial Counsel of 25 Feb 26).

29. Both the defense's mitigation specialist and forensic psychologist (recidivism) must meet with CSSN Copeland in an unobstructed environment. (Enclosure (M): Email from Dr. Nameeta Sahni; Enclosure (N): Letter from Daniel LaValva of 18 Feb 26).

30. From 9 through 11 March 2026, the parties attempted to come to a solution outside of the court. (Enclosure (H): Emails between trial counsel, defense counsel, and the brig OIC). As of this filing, the defense has not received a response indicating that our experts can meet with CSSN Copeland in a contact space at either the brig or building A-50 or any other location.

LAW

31. "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right . . . to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defense."[1] Necessarily included in the Sixth Amendment right to counsel is the right of an accused to confer privately with his attorney.[2]

---

[1] U.S. CONST. amend. VI.
[2] United States v. Brooks, 66 M.J. 221, 223 (C.A.A.F. 2008) (citing United States v. Godshalk, 44 M.J. 487, 490 (C.A.A.F. 1996); Geders v. United States, 425 U.S. 80, 88-91 (1976)) (emphasis added).

32. The accused has the right to be represented by counsel during an investigation under Article 32, UCMJ, and before a general or special court-martial.[3] In the military justice system, the right to counsel includes the right to counsel detailed under Article 27, UCMJ. The right to the services of detailed counsel "is substantial, and extends to both the pretrial and the trial proceedings."[4]

33. "The right to be heard would be, in many cases, of little avail if it did not comprehend the right to be heard by counsel…. [A defendant] is unfamiliar with the rules of evidence…. He lacks both the skill and knowledge adequately to prepare his defense, even though he [may] have a perfect one. He requires the guiding hand of counsel at every step in the proceedings against him."[5] Courts have concluded that an order preventing a defendant from consulting his attorney even during an overnight recess infringes upon this substantial right.[6]

34. "A concomitant right is the right to confidential communications between the attorney and client."[7] M.R.E. 502(a) requires confidential communications "for the purpose of facilitating the rendition of professional legal services to the client."

35. "Pretrial confinement is physical restraint, imposed by order of competent authority, depriving a person of freedom pending disposition of offenses."[8] It is "not punishment and shall not be used as such."[9] Moreover, "[a] person should not be confined as a mere matter of convenience or expedience."[10] In fact, "[p]retrial confinement inevitably makes defense of a case more difficult," so "unless there is a need for it, pretrial confinement should be avoided."[11]

36. An accused is presumed innocent until proved guilty, and, therefore, punishment for an alleged offense is prohibited before trial.[12]

37. The Department of the Navy Corrections Manual (SECNAV M-1640.1 of May 2019) permits military judges to make exceptions to brig policies. This includes allowing a confinee in any status (including "MAX" and "MDI") to meet without escorts or restraints.[13]

ARGUMENT

38. A review of CSSN Copeland's pretrial confinement demonstrates that his pretrial status is interfering with his rights to counsel. CSSN Copeland has the right to counsel, included in that right is the right to meet and confer privately with counsel and the defense team and to meet with experts and participate in his own defense. CSSN Copeland is not prohibited from doing so as a punishment for non-violent alleged misconduct regarding disrespect.[14]

39. The defense and CSSN Copeland repeatedly requested to be able to meet in-person privately and have a confidential meeting. Initially, the brig only permitted the defense a "no-contact" visit. This occurs in a room where defense counsel would have to shout and CSSN Copeland would have to shout back through a Plexiglass window.[15] This is unacceptable considering conversations from outside the door can be heard within the room. That is neither private nor in-person. Even according to the Navy's correctional manual "MAX" and "MDI" prisoners must be escorted at all times; however, a military judge may order exceptions.[16] Additionally, CSSN Copeland's command could escort him to another secure location outside of the brig to allow him to meet with counsel and has no problem allowing such a transport to occur.[17] In October, the Commanding Officer of the brig granted an exception to policy allowing for in-person visits with CSSN Copeland.

40. Then, in February 2026, the defense made a request for CSSN Copeland to meet with our experts at the brig and the brig stated that it removed this "privilege" from CSSN Copeland because of some disciplinary infractions. These disciplinary infractions are not for violence, instead they are for alleged disrespect.[18] Now, the government continues to deny the defense's reasonable requests to facilitate a private, confidential meeting with our client. Finally, no brig policy or instruction should interfere with CSSN Copeland's rights to counsel – or his right to confer privately with his attorneys. The government cannot on one hand say that there is a reasonable governmental interest for these policies and then have the brig say that the reason for not allowing CSSN Copeland meaningful participation in his own defense is because of a non-violent alleged infraction of disrespect that has absolutely nothing to do with staff or facility safety.

41. While the phone does allow communication with the client that the defense presumes are confidential, it is not sufficient to prepare for trial or pretrial hearings, now or on a consistent basis. For instance, the defense cannot review discovery with the client over the phone. Further,

---

[14] As of this filing, the defense has not received any documents regarding the alleged misconduct.
[15] As of this filing, CSSN Copeland's defense team consists of three attorneys, three paralegals, and numerous expert consultants. The available space in the "no contact room" consists of enough space for two plastic chairs, enough room for two people, on the attorney side of the window.

[18] After over six months in solitary confinement, unsurprisingly, CSSN Copeland disagreed with brig personnel about his treatment.

if CSSN Copeland desires to testify in his own defense, whether at the preliminary hearing, an Article 39(a), or at trial, his defense counsel could not properly prepare him for that decision or the hearing over the phone. Importantly, as of last week the brig has begun (for the first time in years) enforcing visiting hours for attorneys to meet and work with their clients. Achieving a phone call with CSSN Copeland is contingent on the availability of brig counselors. Frequently the calls must be arranged multiple days in advance; another inhibition on CSSN Copeland's right to counsel when faced with the often unpredictable and unscheduled needs of protracted litigation.

42. This Court must review CSSN Copeland's confinement and find that it interferes with his right to counsel – namely his right to confer privately with his attorneys – and order that the defense be permitted to meet with CSSN Copeland privately in the same room for a confidential meeting in preparation for trial at least once every two weeks. These meetings can be at the brig, in building A-50, or another location in Hampton Roads, Virginia.

43. The defense is not challenging the brig's policy as such policy does not prohibit in-person meetings with CSSN Copeland in a non-contact room. It both permits exception to the policy, including allowing the military judge to grant such an exception, and it allows the command/convening authority to transport CSSN Copeland to another location for an in-person meeting with the defense's experts.

RELIEF REQUESTED

Pursuant to the Sixth Amendment of the United States Constitution and Rule for Courts-Martial (R.C.M.) 906(a) the defense moves this Court to order the government to permit the defense, to include its experts, to meet with CSSN Copeland, in private, in order to prepare for trial or order the release of CSSN Jermiah Copeland from pretrial confinement.

EVIDENCE & HEARING

44. The defense offers the following enclosures as evidence in support of this Motion:

a. Enclosure (A): Excludable Delay Request of 1 Jul 25
b. Enclosure (B): Defense Objection to Excludable Delay of 1 Jul 25
c. Enclosure (C): Grant of Excludable Delay ltr of 9 Jul 25

Subj: GOVERNMENT REQUEST FOR EXCLUDABLE DELAY ICO UNITED STATES V. CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

Ref: (a) R.C.M. 707 (2024 ed.)

1. Pursuant to reference (a), the Government respectfully requests excludable delay for the period beginning on 10 June 2025 through 25 July 2025.

2. On 10 June 2025, CSSN Copeland was placed in pre-trial confinement. Per reference (a), this event requires CSSN Copeland be brought to trial within 120 days of the imposition of restraint. CSSN Copeland is under investigation for violating Uniform Code of Military Justice Article 107 (False official statement), Article 117a (Wrongful broadcast or distribution of intimate visual images), Article 118 (Murder), Article 120 (Rape and sexual assault), Article 128 (Assault), and Article 128b (Domestic Violence). These alleged violations primarily span four separate, complex alleged incidents and investigation remains ongoing into each.

3. Taken alone, any of one of these offenses is extremely complex and several lengthy investigative steps remain. Specific to the allegation of murder, these steps include receipt and analysis of digital evidence, forensic analysis of multiple pieces of physical evidence, a report of the autopsy of the victim's body, and interviews of several witnesses. NCIS and counsel for the Government are working on this case daily to further the investigation and move with reasonable diligence toward trial. Pursuant to reference (a), the Government may receive excludable delay to thoroughly investigate a case and prepare for trial. Therefore, the Government respectfully requests the time beginning on 10 June 2025 through 25 July 2025 be excluded.

4. Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter. If you have any questions about this request, please contact me via e-mail at lauren.a.mayo2.mil@us.navy.mil or via phone at (757) 341-4598.

Subj: OBJECTION TO EXCLUDABLE DELAY REQUEST ICO UNITED STATES V. CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

Ref: (a) U.S. CONST. Amend. VI
(b) Barker v. Wingo, 407 U.S. 514 (1972)
(c) Article 10, U.C.M.J.
(d) R.C.M. 707
(e) Request for excludable delay of 1 Jul 25

Encl: (1) Emails with the special trial counsel
(2) Additional emails with the special trial counsel

1. Per references (a) through (d), CSSN Copeland, through counsel, once again demands a speedy trial or immediate release from pre-trial confinement. Further, CSSN Copeland objects to any excludable delay.

2. CSSN Copeland has been held in pre-trial confinement for 23 days without being charged with a crime. Further, CSSN Copeland has not been provided any discovery, therefore, he is being denied the ability to defend against whatever charges the government might prefer. CSSN Copeland is in a maximum status at the brig and remains in his cell for at least 22 hours per day.[1] His defense is not permitted to have in-person private conversations with him, and the trial counsel has expressed a lack of willingness to assist in solving this issue, as seen in enclosure (1).

3. On 1 July 2024, the trial counsel submitted a letter to you requesting excludable delay from 10 June 2025 to 25 July 2025, as set forth in reference (e).

4. The defense objects to this lengthy excludable delay request. The trial counsel must act with the diligence required when someone is incarcerated – they must take the "immediate steps" required by reference (c). There must be a required higher degree of specificity before granting a request for what amounts to continued pre-trial confinement, and you should request that higher specificity from the trial counsel. Especially in this case where the confinement is so severe and the defense's access to our client has been restricted.[2]

[1] A status that at least one military judge has held is illegal pretrial punishment.

5. Per reference (d), prior to referral, all requests for pre-trial delay, together with supporting reasons, will be submitted to the convening authority for resolution. The discussion section provides further instructions.

> The decision to grant or deny a reasonable delay is a matter within the sole discretion of the convening authority or a military judge. This decision should be based on the facts and circumstances then and there existing. Reasons to grant a delay might include, for example, the need for: time to enable counsel to prepare for trial in complex cases; time to allow examination into the mental capacity of the accused; time to process a member of the reserve component to active duty for disciplinary action; time to complete other proceedings related to the case; time requested by the defense; time to secure the availability of the accused, substantial witnesses, or other evidence; time to obtain appropriate security clearances for access to classified information or time to declassify evidence; or additional time for other good cause….

Here, the trial counsel provided no evidence or documents supporting the reason for the delay. The generalized notion of the need to conduct further investigation does not amount to the specificity required under the Rules. Why does the government need until 25 July 2025? What do they expect will be completed by that date? Based on the enclosures to Commanding Officer's 48/72 hour letter for CSSN Copeland's initial review officer hearing, the Art. 120 investigation started in July 2024 – a year ago. However, according to the trial counsel's request for excludable delay there "several lengthy investigative steps" remaining. You should demand more specificity. Additionally, R.C.M. 707 does not address excludable delay when the accused is in pre-trial confinement.

6. Per reference (c), when accused is ordered into arrest or confinement before trial, immediate steps shall be taken to inform the person of the specific offense of which the person is accused and to try the person or to dismiss the charges and release the person. Immediate steps require more than diligence, it requires immediacy. CSSN Copeland has been in confinement for the last 23 days.

7. CSSN Copeland requests that the government take immediate steps to take him to trial or release him from pre-trial confinement.

8. The defense requests the government to provide the defense with any documents, or communications with NCIS, the name and contact information of all investigators, and a written response to the government's excludable delay request.

LCDR Serfess,

You are more than welcome to address your concerns with the brig or NCIS.

The government cannot support a 2 July meeting in A-50. I've asked the brig if you can use the IRO room - but the brig is unable to accommodate. I suggest you liaise directly with the brig regarding any future visits.

CDR Mayo,

Please find LCDR Morgan and I's notice or representation attached.

Our understanding is the CSSN Copeland's cell was searched and his IRO package was taken from him because according to NCIS he cannot have that documentation. Is there a sealing or protection order in this case? Please let us know why CSSN Copeland cannot review and keep the documents associated with his case. Please let us know what the Government believes CSSN Copeland can have and review in his case. If NCIS has questions about how CSSN Copeland received documents, please have them reach out me and LCDR Morgan.

Please let me know if you need anything from me. Are we good for Wednesday? We have a couple of A/C spaces in the defense that we can use to meet with CSSN Copeland – the same spaces being used today with a client from the brig.

Forwarding defense request below.

I'll also call the brig tomorrow and see if I can help with a contact visit. The room LCDR Serfess is referring to with the glass does require folks to get closer to the glass to talk. I've dealt with it, too. It's doable, but I understand the preference to meet in a different room. I don't have any SA on what RLSO Security will require here though. So - I'll get more information on that as well. MTF.

CDR Mayo,

We need to have a confidential meeting. The brig will not allow us to have a "contact" visit. We can only meet with him in the room with the glass – where we have to yell for him to hear us (not confidential) and frankly we cannot hear him and do want him to have to yell. Building A-50 is where the rest of the defense team is so that seems like the best place. Further, it seems like the least risk of a potential member seeing him in shackles.

Please let me know if you need anything else.

Ref: (a) Your ltr dated 01 Jul 25
(b) LCDR Amanda Serfess, JAGC, USN, Detailed Defense Counsel ltr of 1 Jul 25

1. Pursuant to Rules of Courts-Martial 707, the Government's request for excludable delay, reference (a), from 10 June 2025 to 25 July 2025 is hereby approved. In response to that request, I received reference (b), Defense Counsel's objection to the Government's request.

2. In weighing the Government's request against Defense's objection, I have determined that the Government's request is reasonable in both length and rational based on the Government's stated basis.

3. My point of contact for this matter is Staff Judge Advocate, CDR Beasley-Ledet, JAGC, USN (757) 322-2936, or via email at ronisha.t.beasleyledet.mil@us.navy.mil.

1. The Defense has already submitted two speedy trial requests in relation to the Government's investigation and case into CSSN Jermiah Copeland, USN. CSSN Copeland has been in confinement for over 50 days without charges. First, CSSN Copeland has the right to dispute his pretrial confinement, to do so requires discovery. Second, the professional rules of responsibility require fairness. If the trial counsel has access to discovery, out of fairness, it should be shared with the defense. Finally, providing discovery to the defense will assist in avoiding speedy trial prejudice and permit the defense to be prepared if the government pursues charges in this case. In accordance with references (a) and (b), which govern fairness to opposing parties and Government counsel responsibilities, and references (c) and (d), which govern pretrial confinement and pre-preferral sessions of court, the Defense requests the Government produce for use, inspection, and/or copying the following in the subject case:

a. Evidence

(1) Any evidence that is material to either the issue of guilt or the sentence, regardless of admissibility, that is known to the government or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities, witnesses, or consultants.

(2) Any sworn or signed statements relating to the charged offenses, and any notes derived from those oral statements relating to the charged offenses.

(3) Any books, papers, documents, photographs, tangible objects, media, electronic records, or copies or portions thereof, which are within the possession, custody, or control of the government or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities, and which are relevant to defense preparation or are intended for use by the trial counsel as evidence in the prosecution case-in-chief at trial.

(4) Any results or reports of physical or mental examinations, and of scientific tests or experiments, or copies thereof, which are within the possession, custody, or control of the government or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities, and which are relevant to defense preparation or are intended for use by trial counsel as evidence in the prosecution case-in-chief at trial.

(5) Evidence known to the government that reasonably tends to negate the guilt or reduce the degree of guilt of the Accused on a charged offense, or is otherwise favorable to the Accused under reference (e).

(6) Evidence that adversely affects the credibility of any prosecution witness or evidence.

(7) All evidence or information of any identification of the Accused.

(8) A written list of, and access to, all evidence seized from the person or property of the Accused, or believed to be owned by the Accused, as well as any search warrant, consent form, command authorization or other basis upon which any search was conducted or any evidence was seized.

(9) Notice of the government's intent to offer any out-of-court statement under the residual hearsay exception.

(10) Copies of any diagrams that any witness has used for identification purposes and any notes or writing that any witness has reviewed and indicated was correct or adopted as an accurate statement.

(11) Copies of any subpoena or subpoena duces tecum issued in this case.

b. Investigative Documents, Records, and Procedures.

(1) A complete, legible, color copy, including all attachments, of any investigative report created by any investigative agency or command related to this case, specifically including but not limited to:

(a) All Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) Interim Reports of Investigation;

(b) All memoranda or reports drafted by personnel assigned to USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95) relating to this case; and

(c) All local law enforcement reports addressing the allegations, interactions, complaints, and arrests.

(d) All reports and notifications drafted by the Navy Absentee Collection and Information Center (NACIC) regarding CSSN Copeland and CSSN A.R.

(2) Any agency or law enforcement documents and data, made in connection with this case, including all attachments. This request includes all forms and documents, including witness reliability forms, data sheets, and other relevant documents. This request includes, but is not limited to, the following relevant documentation:

(a) Interview logs;

(b) Interview records;

(c) Source dossier and forms related to any Confidential Informants;

(d) Informants' notes;

(e) Any document detailing the disbursement of any funds in support of the investigation in this case;

(f) Investigative records checks, including NCIC checks, run on any person during the investigation of this case;

(g) Any documents related to searches and seizures;

(h) Internal communications, emails, or other documents used to brief, respond to, and/or request investigative activities related to this case. This request specifically includes any communication between law enforcement and a member of the Accused's command, the convening authority, the staff judge advocate, or any officer directing the investigation;

(i) All records reflecting the chain of custody of any evidence seized and/or tested; and

(j) All personal or business notes, memoranda, and other writings prepared by investigators in the case that are not furnished pursuant to any other provisions of this request.

(3) The names of all government investigators who have participated, or are presently participating, in the investigation of this case, as well as their accreditation, any previous law-enforcement or investigative jobs held, and a statement as to their length of service in such jobs.

(4) Any evidence of the revocation or suspension of the credentials of any investigators involved in this case, or evidence that any investigator was a subject or suspect in an internal affairs investigation.

(5) Notice of any expected forensic or scientific testing that may destroy evidence.

(6) All laboratory reports, expert conclusions or statements, chain of custody documents, forensic notes, and other evidence or documents relied on by government experts in the performance of their services. This includes any laboratory tests, field tests, and reports thereof, including but not limited to DNA, fingerprints, blood samples, handwriting exemplars, and chemical analyses of substances seized, regardless of the results of the tests.

(7) Copies of any inspections by accrediting bodies of any laboratory conducting forensic or scientific testing of evidence in this case.

c. Witnesses.

(1) The full names, locations, and telephone numbers of all individuals interviewed in this case or otherwise used in developing the case against the Accused.

(2) Any evidence from unit personnel files demonstrating any disciplinary actions against a potential government witness.

(3) Any evidence or information of any promises of immunity or leniency made to any potential government witness by trial counsel or military authorities or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities. This includes the contents of any formal or informal pretrial agreement reached with any co-conspirator or potential witness.

(4) The contents of any prior inconsistent statement or any statement that tends to show bias or motive to fabricate made by any potential witness in this case known by the government or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities.

(5) Any evidence that a potential witness consumed alcohol or drugs prior to witnessing the events that give rise to his or her testimony.

(6) Any evidence tending to show that any potential witness's ability to perceive, remember, communicate, or tell the truth is impaired.

(7) Any evidence that any potential witness has been diagnosed as an alcoholic, alcohol abuser, or controlled substance abuser.

(8) Any evidence that any potential witness sought or received mental health treatment, including specifically the mental health treatment records of the complaining witness.

(9) Notice of the government's intention to employ an expert witness or consultant and the name, contact information, and resume for the intended expert witness or consultant. This request includes the government's written request to the Convening Authority as well as the Convening Authority's written response.

(10) All personnel records for law enforcement and potential military witnesses for evidence of adverse performance, bias, or any evidence that would constitute grounds for impeachment.

d. Information and records regarding the Accused.

(1) The contents of all statements, oral or written, made by the Accused that are relevant to the case. This includes statements that are within the control of the government and military law enforcement agents, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities, witnesses, or consultants.

(2) Any records of the Accused's prior civilian or court-martial convictions which the government may offer on the merits for any purpose, including impeachment.

(3) Copies of all documents, including emails, pertaining to any pretrial confinement or restrictions on the liberty of the Accused, including any change in the liberty status of the Accused since the alleged misconduct that forms the basis for the charges in this case.

(4) The Blue Ribbon copy of the Accused's service record book.

(5) Pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 404, 413, or 414, all evidence or information pertaining to any other crimes, wrongs, or acts committed by the Accused that the government may seek to introduce at trial for any purpose, and notice of the government's intent to introduce such evidence.

e. Sentencing.

(1) Evidence known to the government which reasonably tends to mitigate the Accused's responsibility or might lead a fact-finder to adjudge a less severe sentence.

(2) Written material that will be presented by the government at presentencing proceedings, if any.

(3) The names, addresses, and a synopsis of expected testimony for the witnesses the government intends to call at presentencing proceedings, if any.

f. Unlawful Command Influence

(1) In light of reference (i), evidence of any direct communication, whether written or oral, by any senior military leaders—including civilians—which may have influenced the disposition decisions or actions of:

(a) Any officers acting under R.C.M. 305 in this case.

(2) In light of reference (j), evidence of any direct communication, whether written or oral, by any senior military leaders—including civilians—which might influence the post-trial disposition decisions or actions of:

(a) The Staff Judge Advocate under R.C.M. 1106; or

(b) The Convening Authority under Article 60, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 1107.

2. Specific Items Requested. In addition to the above items, these specific items are promptly requested.

a. The defense requests discovery of the following items that are relevant to defense preparation:

(1) Physical access for Defense to visit CSSN Copeland's barracks room in an unaltered state, which is located at X-2 barracks, room 335B.

(2) Any and all surveillance camera footage from X-2 barracks and Miller Hall from 28 May 2025 to 10 June 2025. If there is no surveillance camera footage at either of those two barracks, defense requests surveillance camera footage during the requested timeframe from surrounding buildings that are angled toward those barracks.

(3) The full autopsy report from the autopsy performed on CSSN A.R. on or about 11 June 2025.

(4) The names, contact information, and current commands of CSSN Copeland's and CSSN A.R.'s roommates from their barracks.

(5) All muster reports and liberty logs for the CS Department onboard USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95) from 26 May 2025 to 10 June 2025.

(6) All records of leave chits for CSSN Copeland and CSSN A.R. while stationed onboard USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).

(7) Phone records and call logs for CSSN A.R. from 25 May 2025 to 10 June 2025.

(8) Bank records for CSSN A.R. from 25 May 2025 to 10 June 2025.

(9) Full phone extraction from CSSN A.R. and CSSN Copeland's cellular phones.

(10) Copy of the following documents listed in LT Maddrell's email to CAPT Santicola of 3 June 2025:

a. Initial CMEO report of 17 September 2024;

b. CDRE's disposition and LOI issued of 31 January 2025;

c. "CSSN Appeal" of 12 March 2025;

d. CNSL CMEO Denial letter of 30 May 2025; and

e. UA SITREP for CSSN Copeland and CSSN A.R. of 1 June 2025.

(11) Any and all enclosures, to include media, missing from the investigations previously provided to defense relating to the accused. This request includes enclosures and media from prior charges, acts or wrongs the government anticipates providing notice as M.R.E. 404(b) evidence.

3. The Defense expects that the government will make a diligent effort to comply with this discovery request. As to any particular requested information, the Defense will regard any nonresponse or response without comment as an affirmative assertion by the government that the requested information does not exist. This is a continuing request, and as such, this request includes a request for any information that the government later discovers before, during, or after trial of this case, if any.

4. The Defense requests a response in writing within seven (7) days of service of this request. Please contact us with any questions or concerns you may have. You may reach me at (757) 341-4486 or via email at clifton.e.morgan4.mil@us.navy.mil.

Subj: GOVERNMENT REQUEST FOR EXCLUDABLE DELAY ICO UNITED STATES V. CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

Ref: (a) R.C.M. 707 (2024 ed.)

1. Pursuant to reference (a), the Government respectfully requests excludable delay for the period beginning on 25 July 2025 through 15 August 2025.

2. On 10 June 2025, CSSN Copeland was placed in pre-trial confinement. Per reference (a), this event requires CSSN Copeland be brought to trial within 120 days of the imposition of restraint. On 1 July 2025, the Government requested excludable delay from 10 June 2025 through 25 July 2025. This request was granted 9 July 2025.

3. CSSN Copeland is under investigation for violating Uniform Code of Military Justice Article 107 (False official statement), Article 117a (Wrongful broadcast or distribution of intimate visual images), Article 118 (Murder), Article 120 (Rape and sexual assault), Article 128 (Assault), and Article 128b (Domestic Violence). These alleged violations primarily span four separate, complex alleged incidents and investigation remains ongoing into each.

4. Although NCIS and the Government have exercised all expedience in this case, several lengthy investigative steps remain. First, as to the allegation of murder, outstanding steps include receipt of the final reports of investigation, forensic analysis of multiple pieces of physical evidence, a report of the autopsy of the victim's body, a finalized toxicology report, and interviews of several witnesses. The Government is also waiting on returns from various providers relating to UCMJ Article 30a matters, and it is unclear when those results will be in the Government's possession. Second, regarding the sexual assault allegations, NCIS recently acquired information concerning pre-service incidents and a fifth post-service allegation, which may provide evidence regarding the current charges, or could constitute further charges. NCIS requires time to pursue these leads by interviewing witnesses, gathering court documents, and reviewing digital evidence.

5. Pursuant to reference (a), the Government may receive excludable delay to thoroughly investigate a case and prepare for trial. Accordingly, the Government respectfully requests the time beginning on 25 July 2025 through 15 August 2025 be excluded.

6. Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter. If you have any questions about this request, please contact me via e-mail at patricia.t.cannaday.mil@us.navy.mil or via phone at (757) 341-4509.

(2) Email from USS JAMES E WILLIAMS of 7 Aug 25
(3) Demand for speedy trial of 16 Jun 25
(4) Demand for speedy trial of 25 Jul 25
(5) Request for Discovery of 30 Jul 25

1. Per references (a) through (d), CSSN Copeland, through counsel, objects to any excludable delay and demands a speedy trial or immediate release from pre-trial confinement.

2. CSSN Copeland has been held in pre-trial confinement for 62 days – over two months – without being charged with a crime. Further, CSSN Copeland has not been provided any discovery, despite the defense submitting a formal request to the trial counsel for discovery. Therefore, he is being denied the ability to defend against whatever charges the government might prefer. CSSN Copeland is in a maximum status at the brig and remains in his cell for at least 22 hours per day.[1] His defense is not permitted to have in-person private conversations with him, and the trial counsel has expressed a lack of willingness to assist in solving this issue, as seen in enclosure (1) of reference (f).

3. On 1 July 2024, the trial counsel submitted a letter to you requesting excludable delay from 10 June 2025 to 25 July 2025, as set forth in reference (e). That same day, the defense objected to that request as many of the alleged offenses occurred over year ago and the government failed to state with any specificity why excludable delay was necessary in a case where the accused remains in the most restrictive confinement without proper access to counsel. On 9 July 2025, you granted the government request for excludable delay until 25 July 2025. On 25 July 2025, CSSN Copeland again demanded a speedy trial. The Office of Special Trial Counsel neither acknowledged or responded to this request. On 30 July 2025, the defense requested discovery citing Rules 3.4 and 3.8 of the JAG Corps Rules for professional responsibility because the defense requires and is entitled to fairness and equal access to discovery. Further, discovery would reduce the risk of prejudicial speedy trial issues if charges are ever preferred in this case. The trial counsel neither acknowledged or responded to this request. Instead, on 8 August 2025, the trial counsel once again requested excludable delay.

4. On 29 July 2025, the defense once again requested to meet with CSSN Copeland for an in-person private meeting. On 7 August 2025, the USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS denied CSSN Copeland's request providing no reasoning.

5. The defense again objects to this lengthy excludable delay request. The trial counsel must act with the diligence required when someone is incarcerated – they must take the "immediate steps" required by reference (c). A higher degree of specificity is required before granting a request for what amounts to continued pre-trial confinement, and you should request that higher specificity from the trial counsel. Especially in this case where the confinement is so severe and CSSN Copeland's access to defense counsel has been restricted.

6. Per reference (d), prior to referral, all requests for pre-trial delay, together with supporting reasons, will be submitted to the convening authority for resolution. The discussion section provides further instructions.

> The decision to grant or deny a reasonable delay is a matter within the sole discretion of the convening authority or a military judge. This decision should be based on the facts and circumstances then and there existing. Reasons to grant a delay might include, for example, the need for: time to enable counsel to prepare for trial in complex cases; time to allow examination into the mental capacity of the accused; time to process a member of the reserve component to active duty for disciplinary action; time to complete other proceedings related to the case; time requested by the defense; time to secure the availability of the accused, substantial witnesses, or other evidence; time to obtain appropriate security clearances for access to classified information or time to declassify evidence; or additional time for other good cause….

Here, the trial counsel once again provided no evidence or documents supporting the vague reason for the delay. The generalized notion of the need to "conduct further investigation" does not amount to the specificity required under the Rules. Why does the government require excludable delay until 15 August 2025? What specific actions do they expect to be completed by that date? What has trial counsel and NCIS done between 25 July 2025 and 8 August 2025 to take immediate steps to bring this case to trial? Why are there witnesses who have not been interviewed? The military has no jurisdiction over pre-service misconduct. CSSN Copeland should not linger in maximum confinement while law enforcement investigates civilian charges. You must demand more specificity; you must demand charges. Additionally, R.C.M. 707 does not address excludable delay when the accused is in pre-trial confinement.

6. Per reference (c), when accused is ordered into arrest or confinement before trial, immediate steps shall be taken to inform the person of the specific offense of which the person is accused and to try the person or to dismiss the charges and release the person. Immediate steps require more than diligence, it requires immediacy. CSSN Copeland has been in confinement for the last 62 days.

7. CSSN Copeland requests that the government take immediate steps to take him to trial or release him from pre-trial confinement.

8. The defense requests the government to provide the defense with the requested discovery and a written response to the government's excludable delay request.

9. Please contact me with any questions or concerns you may have at 850-452-5572 or via email at amanda.m.serfess.mil@us.navy.mil

Subj: REQUEST FOR REDRESS ICO CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

Ref: (a) U.S. CONST. amend. VI
(b) R.C.M. 502
(c) Article 138, UCMJ

1. On behalf of CSSN Copeland, the defense respectfully requests to be able to meet with CSSN Copeland in a private room to have a private conversation where he can consult with his attorneys without the risk of being heard by people who are not members of his defense. CSSN Copeland has been in pretrial confinement since 9 June 2025. Based solely on the fact that CSSN Copeland has "Article 118" on his confinement order, he has been placed in a "maximum status." Because CSSN Copeland is in that status, he cannot have a "contact" visit with his attorneys at the brig. This means that his attorneys can only meet with him separated by a plexiglass wall. This room is not soundproof – the brig staff or anyone else can hear from outside the room. Further, because of the plexiglass, it is difficult for CSSN Copeland to hear his attorneys and even more difficult for his attorneys to hear him. This is inadequate to properly represent CSSN Copeland and does not meet the requirements of reference (a).

2. Understanding that you cannot order the brig to have a different policy, you do have the authority to transport CSSN Copeland to a different location so that he can meet with his attorneys. Defense counsel regularly meet with clients who are in pretrial confinement at building A-50 on Naval Station Norfolk. Commands transport pre-trial confinees, including other pretrial confinees who are accused of murder and attempted murder, to consult with their attorneys. A-50 is a secure building, it is the same building where CSSN Copeland will meet with his attorneys should charges in this case ever be pursued. CSSN Copeland simply requests to exercise his constitutional right to counsel, which must include the right to meet and openly discuss his case. The right to counsel includes the right to effective counsel. CSSN Copeland's attorneys cannot be effective if we cannot meet and openly discuss the case with our client. Despite twice demanding a speedy trial, CSSN Copeland has been in pretrial confinement for 50 days without being brought to trial or being able to meet with his attorneys in a private setting. Please allow CSSN Copeland to have a privileged, in-person meeting with his attorneys.

3. If you have any questions, need amplifying information, or need assistance in coordinating the release of CSSN Copeland's personal property, LCDR Amanda Serfess, detailed defense counsel, can be reached at 850-452-5572 or via email at amanda.m.serfess.mil@us.navy.mil.

Subject: Request for Redress CSSN Copeland

CO,

Good afternoon. I, along LCDR Morgan (copied) represent CSSN Copeland. CSSN Copeland has the right to be represented by counsel. To effectuate that right, he needs to able to have a private conversation with his attorneys. We have made the request, but have not received a clear answer on why he cannot meet with his attorneys in-person in a private room. Please find a request for redress ICO CSSN Copeland attached.

I am available to answer any questions.

1. Per references (a) through (d), CSSN Copeland, USN, through counsel, demands a speedy trial or immediate release from pre-trial confinement. On 9 June 2025, CSSN Copeland was placed in pre-trial confinement. As of today, no charges have been preferred. Based solely on the fact that the offense of violating Article 118 appears on the confinement order, CSSN Copeland has been placed in "Maximum" status in the Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston, Detachment Chesapeake. CSSN Copeland spends 22 hours per day in his cell with no other human contact. He is not permitted to have contact visits with his attorneys. As such, CSSN Copeland demands a speedy trial and requests to be brought to trial immediately.

1. The Defense has already submitted two speedy trial requests in relation to the Government's investigation and case into CSSN Jermiah Copeland, USN. CSSN Copeland has been in confinement for over 50 days without charges. First, CSSN Copeland has the right to dispute his pretrial confinement, to do so requires discovery. Second, the professional rules of responsibility require fairness. If the trial counsel has access to discovery, out of fairness, it should be shared with the defense. Finally, providing discovery to the defense will assist in avoiding speedy trial prejudice and permit the defense to be prepared if the government pursues charges in this case. In accordance with references (a) and (b), which govern fairness to opposing parties and Government counsel responsibilities, and references (c) and (d), which govern pretrial confinement and pre-preferral sessions of court, the Defense requests the Government produce for use, inspection, and/or copying the following in the subject case:

a. Evidence

(1) Any evidence that is material to either the issue of guilt or the sentence, regardless of admissibility, that is known to the government or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities, witnesses, or consultants.

(2) Any sworn or signed statements relating to the charged offenses, and any notes derived from those oral statements relating to the charged offenses.

(3) Any books, papers, documents, photographs, tangible objects, media, electronic records, or copies or portions thereof, which are within the possession, custody, or control of the government or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities, and which are relevant to defense preparation or are intended for use by the trial counsel as evidence in the prosecution case-in-chief at trial.

(4) Any results or reports of physical or mental examinations, and of scientific tests or experiments, or copies thereof, which are within the possession, custody, or control of the government or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities, and which are relevant to defense preparation or are intended for use by trial counsel as evidence in the prosecution case-in-chief at trial.

(5) Evidence known to the government that reasonably tends to negate the guilt or reduce the degree of guilt of the Accused on a charged offense, or is otherwise favorable to the Accused under reference (e).

(6) Evidence that adversely affects the credibility of any prosecution witness or evidence.

(7) All evidence or information of any identification of the Accused.

(8) A written list of, and access to, all evidence seized from the person or property of the Accused, or believed to be owned by the Accused, as well as any search warrant, consent form, command authorization or other basis upon which any search was conducted or any evidence was seized.

(9) Notice of the government's intent to offer any out-of-court statement under the residual hearsay exception.

(10) Copies of any diagrams that any witness has used for identification purposes and any notes or writing that any witness has reviewed and indicated was correct or adopted as an accurate statement.

(11) Copies of any subpoena or subpoena duces tecum issued in this case.

b. Investigative Documents, Records, and Procedures.

(1) A complete, legible, color copy, including all attachments, of any investigative report created by any investigative agency or command related to this case, specifically including but not limited to:

(a) All Naval Criminal Investigative Service (NCIS) Interim Reports of Investigation;

(b) All memoranda or reports drafted by personnel assigned to USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95) relating to this case; and

(c) All local law enforcement reports addressing the allegations, interactions, complaints, and arrests.

(d) All reports and notifications drafted by the Navy Absentee Collection and Information Center (NACIC) regarding CSSN Copeland and CSSN A.R.

(2) Any agency or law enforcement documents and data, made in connection with this case, including all attachments. This request includes all forms and documents, including witness reliability forms, data sheets, and other relevant documents. This request includes, but is not limited to, the following relevant documentation:

(a) Interview logs;

(b) Interview records;

(c) Source dossier and forms related to any Confidential Informants;

(d) Informants' notes;

(e) Any document detailing the disbursement of any funds in support of the investigation in this case;

(f) Investigative records checks, including NCIC checks, run on any person during the investigation of this case;

(g) Any documents related to searches and seizures;

(h) Internal communications, emails, or other documents used to brief, respond to, and/or request investigative activities related to this case. This request specifically includes any communication between law enforcement and a member of the Accused's command, the convening authority, the staff judge advocate, or any officer directing the investigation;

(i) All records reflecting the chain of custody of any evidence seized and/or tested; and

(j) All personal or business notes, memoranda, and other writings prepared by investigators in the case that are not furnished pursuant to any other provisions of this request.

(3) The names of all government investigators who have participated, or are presently participating, in the investigation of this case, as well as their accreditation, any previous law-enforcement or investigative jobs held, and a statement as to their length of service in such jobs.

(4) Any evidence of the revocation or suspension of the credentials of any investigators involved in this case, or evidence that any investigator was a subject or suspect in an internal affairs investigation.

(5) Notice of any expected forensic or scientific testing that may destroy evidence.

(6) All laboratory reports, expert conclusions or statements, chain of custody documents, forensic notes, and other evidence or documents relied on by government experts in the performance of their services. This includes any laboratory tests, field tests, and reports thereof, including but not limited to DNA, fingerprints, blood samples, handwriting exemplars, and chemical analyses of substances seized, regardless of the results of the tests.

(7) Copies of any inspections by accrediting bodies of any laboratory conducting forensic or scientific testing of evidence in this case.

c. Witnesses.

(1) The full names, locations, and telephone numbers of all individuals interviewed in this case or otherwise used in developing the case against the Accused.

(2) Any evidence from unit personnel files demonstrating any disciplinary actions against a potential government witness.

(3) Any evidence or information of any promises of immunity or leniency made to any potential government witness by trial counsel or military authorities or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities. This includes the contents of any formal or informal pretrial agreement reached with any co-conspirator or potential witness.

(4) The contents of any prior inconsistent statement or any statement that tends to show bias or motive to fabricate made by any potential witness in this case known by the government or agents thereof, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities.

(5) Any evidence that a potential witness consumed alcohol or drugs prior to witnessing the events that give rise to his or her testimony.

(6) Any evidence tending to show that any potential witness's ability to perceive, remember, communicate, or tell the truth is impaired.

(7) Any evidence that any potential witness has been diagnosed as an alcoholic, alcohol abuser, or controlled substance abuser.

(8) Any evidence that any potential witness sought or received mental health treatment, including specifically the mental health treatment records of the complaining witness.

(9) Notice of the government's intention to employ an expert witness or consultant and the name, contact information, and resume for the intended expert witness or consultant. This request includes the government's written request to the Convening Authority as well as the Convening Authority's written response.

(10) All personnel records for law enforcement and potential military witnesses for evidence of adverse performance, bias, or any evidence that would constitute grounds for impeachment.

d. Information and records regarding the Accused.

(1) The contents of all statements, oral or written, made by the Accused that are relevant to the case. This includes statements that are within the control of the government and military law enforcement agents, including closely aligned civilian authorities or entities, witnesses, or consultants.

(2) Any records of the Accused's prior civilian or court-martial convictions which the government may offer on the merits for any purpose, including impeachment.

(3) Copies of all documents, including emails, pertaining to any pretrial confinement or restrictions on the liberty of the Accused, including any change in the liberty status of the Accused since the alleged misconduct that forms the basis for the charges in this case.

(4) The Blue Ribbon copy of the Accused's service record book.

(5) Pursuant to Mil. R. Evid. 404, 413, or 414, all evidence or information pertaining to any other crimes, wrongs, or acts committed by the Accused that the government may seek to introduce at trial for any purpose, and notice of the government's intent to introduce such evidence.

e. Sentencing.

(1) Evidence known to the government which reasonably tends to mitigate the Accused's responsibility or might lead a fact-finder to adjudge a less severe sentence.

(2) Written material that will be presented by the government at presentencing proceedings, if any.

(3) The names, addresses, and a synopsis of expected testimony for the witnesses the government intends to call at presentencing proceedings, if any.

f. Unlawful Command Influence

(1) In light of reference (i), evidence of any direct communication, whether written or oral, by any senior military leaders—including civilians—which may have influenced the disposition decisions or actions of:

(a) Any officers acting under R.C.M. 305 in this case.

(2) In light of reference (j), evidence of any direct communication, whether written or oral, by any senior military leaders—including civilians—which might influence the post-trial disposition decisions or actions of:

(a) The Staff Judge Advocate under R.C.M. 1106; or

(b) The Convening Authority under Article 60, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 1107.

2. Specific Items Requested. In addition to the above items, these specific items are promptly requested.

a. The defense requests discovery of the following items that are relevant to defense preparation:

(1) Physical access for Defense to visit CSSN Copeland's barracks room in an unaltered state, which is located at X-2 barracks, room 335B.

(2) Any and all surveillance camera footage from X-2 barracks and Miller Hall from 28 May 2025 to 10 June 2025. If there is no surveillance camera footage at either of those two barracks, defense requests surveillance camera footage during the requested timeframe from surrounding buildings that are angled toward those barracks.

(3) The full autopsy report from the autopsy performed on CSSN A.R. on or about 11 June 2025.

(4) The names, contact information, and current commands of CSSN Copeland's and CSSN A.R.'s roommates from their barracks.

(5) All muster reports and liberty logs for the CS Department onboard USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95) from 26 May 2025 to 10 June 2025.

(6) All records of leave chits for CSSN Copeland and CSSN A.R. while stationed onboard USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).

(7) Phone records and call logs for CSSN A.R. from 25 May 2025 to 10 June 2025.

(8) Bank records for CSSN A.R. from 25 May 2025 to 10 June 2025.

(9) Full phone extraction from CSSN A.R. and CSSN Copeland's cellular phones.

(10) Copy of the following documents listed in LT Maddrell's email to CAPT Santicola of 3 June 2025:

a. Initial CMEO report of 17 September 2024;

b. CDRE's disposition and LOI issued of 31 January 2025;

c. "CSSN Appeal" of 12 March 2025;

d. CNSL CMEO Denial letter of 30 May 2025; and

e. UA SITREP for CSSN Copeland and CSSN A.R. of 1 June 2025.

(11) Any and all enclosures, to include media, missing from the investigations previously provided to defense relating to the accused. This request includes enclosures and media from prior charges, acts or wrongs the government anticipates providing notice as M.R.E. 404(b) evidence.

3. The Defense expects that the government will make a diligent effort to comply with this discovery request. As to any particular requested information, the Defense will regard any nonresponse or response without comment as an affirmative assertion by the government that the requested information does not exist. This is a continuing request, and as such, this request includes a request for any information that the government later discovers before, during, or after trial of this case, if any.

4. The Defense requests a response in writing within seven (7) days of service of this request. Please contact us with any questions or concerns you may have. You may reach me at (757) 341-4486 or via email at clifton.e.morgan4.mil@us.navy.mil.

NAVY-MARINE CORPS TRIAL JUDICIARY
CENTRAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

UNITED STATES v. COPELAND, JERMIAH CSSN/ E-3 U.S. NAVY	DEFENSE MOTION FOR APPROPRIATE RELIEF (REVIEW OF PRETRIAL CONFINEMENT AND ORDER GOVERNMENT TO REFRAIN FROM INTERFERING IN CSSN COPELAND'S ATTORNEY CLIENT RELATIONSHIP AND PREPARATION WHILE HE IS IN PRE-TRIAL CONFINEMENT) 26 Aug 2025

MOTION

Pursuant to Article 30a and Rule for Courts-Martial (R.C.M.) 309(b)(6), the defense moves this Court to order the government to permit the defense to meet with CSSN Copeland, in private, in order to prepare for trial – including the Article 32 preliminary hearing – or order the release of CSSN Jermiah Copeland from pretrial confinement.

SUMMARY

On 9 June 2025, CSSN Copeland was ordered into pretrial confinement. On 16 June 2025, a 7-day reviewing officer held a hearing and approved continued confinement. That same day, the defense began requesting to confer privately with CSSN Copeland. The trial counsel, the brig, and CSSN Copeland's commanding officer denied those requests. Pursuant to Article 30a and R.C.M. 309, this Court can review the pretrial confinement of an accused prior to referral. The defense requests that this Court review CSSN Copeland's confinement and find that it interferes with his right to counsel – namely his right to confer privately with his attorneys – and order that the defense be permitted to meet with CSSN Copeland privately in the same room to have confidential meetings in preparation for trial at least once every two weeks. These meetings can be at the brig, in building A-50, or at another location in Hampton Roads, Virginia. Alternatively, this Court should order the release of CSSN Copeland from pretrial confinement.

BURDEN

As the moving party, the defense bears the burden to prove facts necessary to resolve the motion by a preponderance of evidence. R.C.M. 905(c).

FACTS

1. On 9 June 2025, CSSN Copeland was ordered into confinement. (Enclosure (1): Confinement Order of 9 Jun 25).

2. CSSN Copeland is confined at the Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston (NCBC) Detachment Chesapeake. He is classified as a maximum status prisoner. This means, he is in his cell alone for at least 22 hours per day. At least one military judge has ruled that this type of confinement is illegal pretrial punishment. (Enclosure (2): Ruling from U.S. v. DC3 Reimonenq of 14 Mar 25).

3. On 16 June 2025, an Initial Review Officer (IRO) hearing was held at the NCBC, where the defense team met with CSSN Copeland for the first time. That same day, a 7-day reviewing officer approved continued confinement. (Enclosure (3): IRO Memo of 17 Jun 25).

4. Based on CSSN Copeland's status, his defense team cannot have a contact visit with him at the brig. The brig will only allow the defense team to meet with him behind glass. This room makes it difficult, if not impossible, for the attorneys to hear our client and makes it difficult for CSSN Copeland to hear his attorneys. Additionally, communications from outside this room can be heard while inside, which means communications within the room can also be heard. Further, there is no means to review discovery with CSSN Copeland in this room as there are only tiny slots to pass a few sheets of folder paper and no way for CSSN Copeland to review a video or electronic evidence. (Enclosure (4): Complaint Pursuant to Article 138 of 13 Aug 25 w/encls at 16; Enclosure (5): Mrs. Hoffmeister Affidavit).

5. On 16 June 2025, the defense demanded a speedy trial and requested that CSSN Copeland be brought to building A-50 to meet with his defense counsel. (Enclosure (4): Complaint Pursuant to Article 138 of 13 Aug 25 w/encls at 10; Enclosure (6): Demand for Speedy Trial of 16 Jun 25).

6. On 24 June 2025, after the defense followed up on our initial request, the trial counsel responded to inquire as to why the defense wanted to meet with our client in-person. The defense responded and explained. The same day, the Staff Judge Advocate for the USS JAMES E. WILLIAM's ISIC stated that the command was standing by to assist. However, on 30 June 2025, the trial counsel stated that "the government would not be able to support…." The defense asked the trial counsel for justification as to why the government would not support our request. However, the trial counsel never responded. (Enclosure (4): Complaint Pursuant to Article 138 of 13 Aug 25 w/encls at 4-6).

7. Despite the trial counsel not responding to the defense's request for justification, on 1 July 2025, the trial counsel submitted a request for excludable delay from 10 June 2025 to 25 July 2025. (Enclosure (7): Excludable Delay Request of 1 Jul 25). That same day, the defense objected to that request. (Enclosure (8): Defense Objection to Excludable Delay of 1 Jul 25).

8. On 9 July 2025, the convening authority granted the government request for excludable delay until 25 July 2025. (Enclosure (9): Grant of Excludable Delay ltr of 9 Jul 25).

9. On 25 July 2025, CSSN Copeland again demanded a speedy trial. (Enclosure (10): Second Demand for Speedy Trial of 25 Jul 25). The Office of Special Trial Counsel neither acknowledged nor responded to this request.

10. On 30 July 2025, the defense requested discovery citing Rules 3.4 and 3.8 of the JAG Corps Rules for Professional Responsibility because the defense requires and is entitled to fairness and equal access to discovery. Further, the defense explained that discovery would reduce the risk of prejudicial speedy trial issues if charges were ever preferred in this case. The trial counsel neither acknowledged nor responded to this request. (Enclosure (11): Defense's Initial Discovery Request of 30 Jul 25).

11. Instead, on 8 August 2025, the trial counsel once again requested excludable delay. (Enclosure (12): Second Excludable Delay Request of 8 Aug 25).

12. On 29 July 2025, CSSN Copeland through counsel submitted a formal request for redress to the Commanding Officer, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS to meet with his attorneys in a private, confidential in-person setting. (Enclosure (4): Complaint Pursuant to Article 138 of 13 Aug 25 w/encls at 13).

13. On 7 August 2025, the USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS denied CSSN Copeland's request and later refused to provide any reasoning. (Id. at 21).

14. On 11 August 2025, the defense objected to the second request for excludable delay. (Enclosure (13): Defense Objection to Second Excludable Delay of 11 Aug 25). As of this filing, the convening authority has not responded to the trial counsel's request.

15. On 13 August 2025, CSSN Copeland filed a complaint pursuant to Article 138, UCMJ. (Enclosure (4): Complaint Pursuant to Article 138 of 13 Aug 25).

16. As of this filing, no response has been issued to CSSN Copeland.

17. On 21 August 2025, NCIS was permitted to meet with CSSN Copeland at the brig and have a contact visit. The special agents were allowed to be in a room with CSSN Copeland. Touch him and take a buccal swap, get his fingerprints, and take his photograph. (Proffered testimony from SA Fritzer Philemon).

18. On 22 August 2025, the government preferred charges in this case. On that same day, the defense reached out about scheduling the Article 32 hearing and meeting with our client in preparation for the hearing. (Enclosure (14): Emails with the trial counsel of 22 Aug 25).

19. As of this filing, the defense has not been able to coordinate a means to have a private in-person meeting with CSSN Copeland.

LAW

20. "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right . . . to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defense."[1] Necessarily included in the Sixth Amendment right to counsel is the right of an accused to confer privately with his attorney.[2]

21. The accused has the right to be represented by counsel during an investigation under Article 32, UCMJ, and before a general or special court-martial.[3] In the military justice system, the right to counsel includes the right to counsel detailed under Article 27, UCMJ. The right to the services of detailed counsel "is substantial, and extends to both the pretrial and the trial proceedings."[4]

22. "The right to be heard would be, in many cases, of little avail if it did not comprehend the right to be heard by counsel…. [A defendant] is unfamiliar with the rules of evidence…. He lacks both the skill and knowledge adequately to prepare his defense, even though he [may] have a perfect one. He requires the guiding hand of counsel at every step in the proceedings against him."[5] Courts have concluded that an order preventing a defendant from consulting his attorney even during an overnight recess infringes upon this substantial right.[6]

23. "A concomitant right is the right to confidential communications between the attorney and client."[7] M.R.E. 502(a) requires confidential communications "for the purpose of facilitating the rendition of professional legal services to the client."

24. Article 30a of the UCMJ states that "the President shall prescribe regulations for matters relating to proceedings conducted before referral of charges and specifications to court-martial for trial, including the following: … Pre-trial confinement of an accused…."

25. Article 30a was revised to include review of the pretrial confinement of the accused under a provision called "Expansion of pre-referral matters reviewable by military judges and military magistrates in the interest of efficiency in military justice."[8]

26. "A military judge detailed under regulations of the Secretary concerned may conduct proceedings under Article 30a, before referral of charges and specifications to court-martial for trial, and may issue such rulings and orders as necessary to further the purpose of the proceedings. A military judge may issue such orders and rulings only when the matters would be subject to consideration by a military judge in a general or special court-martial."[9]

27. After action by the 7-day reviewing officer under R.C.M. 305(j)(2)(C), a military judge may, upon application of an accused for appropriate relief, review the propriety of pretrial confinement.[10]

28. "Pretrial confinement is physical restraint, imposed by order of competent authority, depriving a person of freedom pending disposition of offenses."[11] It is "not punishment and shall not be used as such."[12] Moreover, "[a] person should not be confined as a mere matter of convenience or expedience."[13] In fact, "[p]retrial confinement inevitably makes defense of a case more difficult," so "unless there is a need for it, pretrial confinement should be avoided."[14]

29. An accused is presumed innocent until proved guilty, and, therefore, punishment for an alleged offense is prohibited before trial.[15]

30. The Department of the Navy Corrections Manual (SECNAV M-1640.1 of May 2019) permits military judges to make exceptions to brig policies. This includes allowing a confinee in any status (including "MAX" and "MDI") to meet without escorts or restraints.[16]

ARGUMENT

31. This Court has the authority to detail a military judge to this proceeding to review the pretrial confinement of the accused. R.C.M. 309 states that a military judge may conduct proceedings pursuant to Article 30a, before referral of charges. R.C.M. 309(a)(6) states that after action by a 7-day reviewing officer, a military judge may review the propriety of pretrial confinement. Propriety means "the quality or state of being proper or suitable."[17] Here, there was action by the 7-day reviewing officer. Therefore, this court may review the quality of CSSN Copeland's confinement and issue remedies "as necessary to further the purpose of the proceedings."[18]

[18] R.C.M. 309(a)(1).

32. Further, it is clear that the expansion of Article 30(a) to ruling on matters relating to the pretrial confinement of the accused was intended to increase "efficiency in military justice." That is evident from the title of the section of the NDAA that included the expansion. Ordering the government to stop interfering with CSSN Copeland's rights to counsel at the prereferral stage will increase efficiency and prevent speedy trial issues and other litigation in the future. This Court should hear this application pursuant to Article 30a, as it is a proper review of the propriety of CSSN Copeland's pretrial confinement.

33. A review of CSSN Copeland's pretrial confinement demonstrates that his pretrial status is interfering with his rights to counsel. CSSN Copeland has the right to counsel, included in that right is the right to meet and confer privately with counsel. CSSN Copeland has been unable to confer privately with his attorneys despite numerous requests.

34. The defense and CSSN Copeland have repeatedly requested to be able to meet in-person privately and have a confidential meeting. The brig will only permit the defense a "no-contact" visit. This occurs in a room where defense counsel would have to shout and CSSN Copeland would have to shout back through a Plexiglass window. This is unacceptable considering conversations from outside the door can be heard within the room. That is neither private nor in-person. Even according to the Navy's correctional manual "MAX" and "MDI" prisoners must be escorted at all times; however, a military judge may order exceptions.[19] Additionally, CSSN Copeland's command could escort him to another secure location outside of the brig to allow him to meet with counsel. However, the government continues to deny the defense's reasonable requests to facilitate a private, confidential meeting with our client. Further, despite these restrictions put in place to keep CSSN Copeland from meeting with his counsel, NCIS has been permitted to be in the same room with him and have contact visits. Finally, no brig policy or instruction can interfere with CSSN Copeland's rights to counsel – or his right to confer privately with his attorneys.

35. While the phone does allow communication with the client that the defense presumes are confidential, it is not sufficient to prepare for trial or pretrial hearings, now or on a consistent basis. For instance, the defense cannot review discovery with the client over the phone. Further, if CSSN Copeland desires to testify in his own defense, whether at the preliminary hearing, an Article 39(a), or at trial, his defense counsel could not properly prepare him for that decision or the hearing over the phone.

36. This Court must review CSSN Copeland's confinement and find that it interferes with his right to counsel – namely his right to confer privately with his attorneys – and order that the defense be permitted to meet with CSSN Copeland privately in the same room for a confidential meeting in preparation for trial at least once every two weeks. These meetings can be at the brig, in building A-50, or another location in Hampton Roads, Virginia.

RELIEF REQUESTED

Pursuant to Article 30a and R.C.M. 309(b)(6), the defense moves this Court to order the government to permit the defense to privately meet with CSSN Copeland in-person in order to prepare for trial, including the Article 32 preliminary hearing, or order the release of CSSN Jermiah Copeland from pretrial confinement. If the government cannot facilitate CSSN Copeland's right to confer with counsel while he is in pretrial confinement, this Court should order CSSN Copeland's release.

EVIDENCE & HEARING

37. The defense requests the production of SA Fritzer Philemon for in person or telephonic testimony at the Article 30a hearing.

38. The defense offers the following enclosures as evidence in support of this Motion:

a. Enclosure (1): Confinement Order of 9 Jun 25
b. Enclosure (2): Ruling from U.S. v. DC3 Reimonenq of 14 Mar 25
c. Enclosure (3): IRO Memo of 17 Jun 25
d. Enclosure (4): Complaint Pursuant to Article 138 of 13 Aug 25 w/encls
e. Enclosure (5): Mrs. Hoffmeister Affidavit
f. Enclosure (6): Demand for speedy trial of 16 Jun 25
g. Enclosure (7): Excludable Delay Request of 1 Jul 25
h. Enclosure (8): Defense Objection to Excludable Delay of 1 Jul 25
i. Enclosure (9): Grant of Excludable Delay ltr of 9 Jul 25
j. Enclosure (10): Second Demand for Speedy Trial of 25 Jul 25
k. Enclosure (11): Defense's Initial Discovery Request of 30 Jul 25
l. Enclosure (12): Second Excludable Delay request of 8 Aug 25
m. Enclosure (13): Defense Objection to Second Excludable Delay of 11 Aug 25
n. Enclosure (14): Emails with the trial counsel of 22 Aug 25

39. Unless the government concedes the motion or this Court grants the relief on the basis of pleadings alone, the defense requests a hearing to present evidence and argument on this matter. The defense is available for an Article 39(a) motions hearing on the following dates: 8-19 September 2025.

Good Morning Sir,

I have spoken with the Defense and they are comfortable with this just being the experts meeting with CSSN Copeland for these evaluations in a contact setting (and not his attorneys). As discussed, these evaluations require a contact setting due to the nature of the examinations. Please let me know if the brig cannot accommodate ASAP, so we can speak with the CA about arranging travel to our building. The military judge has made clear that this meeting needs to happen in a contact setting one way or the other. We are only requesting an exception to the contact policy for these evaluations and not for any other purpose.

To be clear, I understand your concerns for safety and believe they are valid. We will absolutely respect any determination you make. However, we are interested in ensuring this court-martial stays on track and the Accused receives a fair trial, so we need to find the best course to conduct these evaluations in a contact setting.

Thank you, sir!

V/r,

LCDR Dempsey

LCDR Mihill,

The request below is void of details (to include how many people are on this team), which makes it difficult for me to consider granting a second exception to policy. My previous CO assumed the risk and granted an ETP; however, as you know it was rescinded due to the behavior of the prisoner. If it weren't for that, the current CO was fine with letting the approval stand and we wouldn't be having this conversation. I spoke with the CO earlier today and he concurs with my assessment of the situation.

I don't need to know the details that may cross into HIPAA, but "meaningful, face-to-face manner", "tiny room does not foster the trust necessary to meaningfully work and collaborate" are nice to haves, not requirements. The only part that seems to be close to a requirement "falls squarely under the umbrella of privileged information". I don't believe the process/procedure/tests are HIPAA, the results likely are and I certainly don't need to know them. You mentioned defense team and paralegals, who I would not recommend an exception to policy for. The medical evaluation portion could be considered, I just don't know anything about it, or whether it could be conducted in the no contact booth.

Good Morning Government,

Thank you for the positive endorsement. Any tests or processes employed by our experts in preparation of CSSN Copeland's defense would fall squarely under the umbrella of privileged information, I know you can appreciate that.

In consultation with our experts it is clear that in order for them to do their work, they must be able to engage with CSSN Copeland in a meaningful, face-to-face manner. This engagement allows for an unobstructed exchange of information and eliminates any physical barriers between CSSN Copeland and the team that is working on his defense. It is imperative that CSSN Copeland trusts those working in his defense and being forced to converse through glass, in a tiny room does not foster the trust necessary to meaningfully work and collaborate with the defense team and expert consultants on matters central to the defense theory of the case.

I appreciate your consideration.

Good Morning Defense,

We intend to positively endorse your request for this meeting to take place in the PTC room, but to help us explain to the CA/Command/Brig, is there a specific test that would require this to be a contact visit? Beyond simply saying "in-person meetings in order to properly facilitate their work," it would just help to have more specificity.

As you know, we are not the final say on these types of issues. Thanks.

LCDR Dempsey,

These meetings will be with his attorneys, paralegals, and expert consultants. There will likely be more than 4 or 5 individuals present, in addition to CSSN Copeland. Additionally, these meetings will likely last several hours with some folks coming and going during the meetings.

Additionally, the expert consultants have requested in-person meetings in order to properly facilitate their work with CSSN Copeland and to adequately prepare his defense.

Given these logistical concerns and the brig's stated intent to preclude further contact visits, command transport for secure meetings within building A-50 seems the most appropriate course of action. Let me know if you need anything additional to help facilitate.

Good Afternoon IC1 Green,

The Defense counsel for CSSN Copeland are respectfully requesting in person, contact visits with CSSN Copeland from 23-25 March 2026. While we likely will not need all three days, but we would like to have that option available if we need it. We would like to meet with CSSN Copeland in the IRO room, or other contact room, in order to facilitate confidential communications. We will likely be spending several hours with the client on those days.

If this is not feasible, please advise alternate COAs that are agreeable to the brig in order to facilitate this request. Copying CDR Flanagan for his awareness on the request. Thanks, as always, for your help.

Subj: PRE-ARRAIGNMENT PLEA AGREEMENT OFFER ICO UNITED STATES V. CSSN JERMIAH T. COPELAND, USN

Ref: (a) M.R.E. 410
(b) United States v. Kastigar, 406 U.S. 441 (1972)

Encl: (1) Charge Sheet dtd 22 Aug 25

1. The Office of Special Trial Counsel (OSTC) has considered the merits of the case against you, CSSN Jermiah Copeland, USN and the significant impact that immediate acceptance of responsibility would have on all parties involved. In return for that acceptance of responsibility, OSTC offers a plea agreement under the following terms:

2. You will agree to the following:

a. You must plead guilty to the following charges and specifications at a general court-martial: The sole Specification of Charge VIII (Article 118, Pre-meditated Murder), amended to the lesser included offense of Article 118(2) (Unpremeditated Murder), Specification 2 of Charge VII (Article 107, False Official Statement), Specification 2 of Charge V (Article 131b, Obstruction of Justice), Specification 1 of Charge IV (Article 120c, Indecent Recording), Specification 2 of Charge VI (Article 128b, Domestic Violence – Violent Offense), and Charge I, Specification 2, amended by exceptions and substitutions to the lesser included offense of Article 128 (Assault Consummated by Battery).[1]

b. You will voluntarily participate in any sex offender treatment program offered to you, to include truthful admissions of your misconduct required for rehabilitation.

3. In return for your acceptance of responsibility, OSTC would agree to the following sentencing terms:

a. Confinement for a term of 46 years (552 months). This term is calculated based on the following sentences to run consecutively:
   i. 480 months for the sole Specification of Charge VIII,
   ii. 36 months for Specification 2 of Charge VII, and
   iii. 36 months for Specification 2 of Charge V, to run consecutively.*

[1] Except "touch through the clothing, the vulva, breast, and buttocks of ABHAN C.R., U.S. Navy, with CSSN Copeland's body part, to wit: his hands, with an intent to gratify the sexual desire of CSSN Copeland without the consent of ABHAN C.R." and substitute "unlawfully touch the neck of ABHAN C.R. with his hand."

* The remaining Specifications will receive confinement pursuant to the maximum allowable under the relevant military sentencing parameters, to run concurrently.

b. A Dishonorable Discharge,
c. Reduction in rank to E-1,
d. Total forfeitures, and
e. No other lawful punishments

4. The following conditions exist regarding this offer:

a. Prior to the signing of a plea agreement, your counsel will provide OSTC with a written confessional proffer protected by MRE 410 as to the charges and specifications in paragraph 2a above.

b. If the OSTC is satisfied with your counsel's MRE 410 proffer, you will provide OSTC with a signed Stipulation of Fact that is consistent with your counsel's MRE 410 proffer for which you waive United States v. Kastigar and M.R.E. 410 protections as detailed in the footnote below.[2] This paragraph will be deemed complete when both you and OSTC's signature is affixed to the stipulation of fact.

c. Upon successful completion of items 4(a) and 4(b) above, OSTC will provide you with a signed plea agreement with the terms as outlined above.

5. This offer will expire at the start of your arraignment on the Charges and Specifications preferred on 22 August 2025. Acceptance is defined by the submission of the MRE 410 proffer described in para 4a. After arraignment and prior to trial, OSTC will only consider a guilty plea that includes a minimum sentence of life with the possibility of parole, although there is no guarantee such an offer would be accepted. Investigation into your offenses remains ongoing.

[2] This includes an agreement to truthfully and completely detail your involvement in the misconduct identified in para 2a and will allow derivative use of the information provided by you. Should this agreement become void, the government will not offer in evidence in its case-in-chief, or in connection with any sentencing proceeding, your written stipulation of fact subject to the following limitations: The government may use the signed stipulation of fact, as well as any information directly or indirectly derived from the signed stipulation of fact: (1) in cross examination if you testify in any administrative or criminal proceeding; and, (2) to rebut directly or indirectly, any evidence, arguments, statements, and/or representations offered or elicited by you or on your behalf at a trial, sentencing, or any other criminal or administrative proceeding (including but not limited to motions hearing, trial, or sentencing).

All,

The prisoner is still able to meet with his counsel/defense team, whether in the no-contact booth, or if they conduct a TR and take him to A-50 or wherever. With the latter, we would be required to provide an escort/guard from the brig staff in addition to the escorts provided by his command.

The no-contact booths were designed for this exact purpose and exist in every facility that I am aware of.

Good Morning Government,

I wanted to follow up on the below and see where we are at with this request. We need some lead time in order to be able to schedule the necessary folks.

I understand that the brig has restricted CSSN Copeland's "privileges" because of a DR for "disrespect." Our position is that the rights to meet with his counsel/defense team and to prepare his defense, are not "privileges" that can be revoked by the brig OIC or brig policy.

To the extent "safety" is a concern we are happy to help mitigate whatever the perceived threat might be, but not at the expense of being able to meaningfully prepare with our client.

I appreciate your assistance and endorsement in making these meetings happen.

Good Morning Government,

Thank you for the positive endorsement. Any tests or processes employed by our experts in preparation of CSSN Copeland's defense would fall squarely under the umbrella of privileged information, I know you can appreciate that.

In consultation with our experts it is clear that in order for them to do their work, they must be able to engage with CSSN Copeland in a meaningful, face-to-face manner. This engagement allows for an unobstructed exchange of information and eliminates any physical barriers between CSSN Copeland and the team that is working on his defense. It is imperative that CSSN Copeland trusts those working in his defense and being forced to converse through glass, in a tiny room does not foster the trust necessary to meaningfully work and collaborate with the defense team and expert consultants on matters central to the defense theory of the case.

I appreciate your consideration.

Good Morning Defense,

We intend to positively endorse your request for this meeting to take place in the PTC room, but to help us explain to the CA/Command/Brig, is there a specific test that would require this to be a contact visit? Beyond simply saying "in-person meetings in order to properly facilitate their work," it would just help to have more specificity.

As you know, we are not the final say on these types of issues. Thanks.

LCDR Dempsey,

These meetings will be with his attorneys, paralegals, and expert consultants. There will likely be more than 4 or 5 individuals present, in addition to CSSN Copeland. Additionally, these meetings will likely last several hours with some folks coming and going during the meetings.

Additionally, the expert consultants have requested in-person meetings in order to properly facilitate their work with CSSN Copeland and to adequately prepare his defense.

Given these logistical concerns and the brig's stated intent to preclude further contact visits, command transport for secure meetings within building A-50 seems the most appropriate course of action. Let me know if you need anything additional to help facilitate.

Good Afternoon CDR Flanagan and Defense,

OIC, thank you for the response.

Defense, are still waiting to hear from the convening authority on their willingness to accommodate a transfer to A-50. Of course, as outlined in our Article 30a filing on this issue, we do not see any issue with the brig's policies on this matter in light of the Supreme Court's holding in United States v. Turner. I've attached that filing here.

I will follow up with the convening authority and see what I am able to sort out. Thank you!

All,

The prisoner is still able to meet with his counsel/defense team, whether in the no-contact booth, or if they conduct a TR and take him to A-50 or wherever. With the latter, we would be required to provide an escort/guard from the brig staff in addition to the escorts provided by his command.

The no-contact booths were designed for this exact purpose and exist in every facility that I am aware of.

Good Morning Government,

I wanted to follow up on the below and see where we are at with this request. We need some lead time in order to be able to schedule the necessary folks.

I understand that the brig has restricted CSSN Copeland's "privileges" because of a DR for "disrespect." Our position is that the rights to meet with his counsel/defense team and to prepare his defense, are not "privileges" that can be revoked by the brig OIC or brig policy.

To the extent "safety" is a concern we are happy to help mitigate whatever the perceived threat might be, but not at the expense of being able to meaningfully prepare with our client.

I appreciate your assistance and endorsement in making these meetings happen.

Good Morning Government,

Thank you for the positive endorsement. Any tests or processes employed by our experts in preparation of CSSN Copeland's defense would fall squarely under the umbrella of privileged information, I know you can appreciate that.

In consultation with our experts it is clear that in order for them to do their work, they must be able to engage with CSSN Copeland in a meaningful, face-to-face manner. This engagement allows for an unobstructed exchange of information and eliminates any physical barriers between CSSN Copeland and the team that is working on his defense. It is imperative that CSSN Copeland trusts those working in his defense and being forced to converse through glass, in a tiny room does not foster the trust necessary to meaningfully work and collaborate with the defense team and expert consultants on matters central to the defense theory of the case.

I appreciate your consideration.

Good Morning Defense,

We intend to positively endorse your request for this meeting to take place in the PTC room, but to help us explain to the CA/Command/Brig, is there a specific test that would require this to be a contact visit? Beyond simply saying "in-person meetings in order to properly facilitate their work," it would just help to have more specificity.

As you know, we are not the final say on these types of issues. Thanks.

LCDR Dempsey,

These meetings will be with his attorneys, paralegals, and expert consultants. There will likely be more than 4 or 5 individuals present, in addition to CSSN Copeland. Additionally, these meetings will likely last several hours with some folks coming and going during the meetings.

Additionally, the expert consultants have requested in-person meetings in order to properly facilitate their work with CSSN Copeland and to adequately prepare his defense.

Given these logistical concerns and the brig's stated intent to preclude further contact visits, command transport for secure meetings within building A-50 seems the most appropriate course of action. Let me know if you need anything additional to help facilitate.

Good evening all:

Apologies for the delay in reaching out on U.S. v. Copeland. I was waiting to see the status of another matter I have in Norfolk to try and schedule my in-person testing and evaluation of Copeland.

In order for me to be able to fully and thoroughly evaluate him both for mitigation considerations, diagnostic evaluation, and a comprehensive risk assessment, I will need to meet with him in-person without obstruction and with complete privacy to preserve confidentiality that cannot be guaranteed in controlled settings when officers/MPs are present in the room, glass partitions and phone use are required or we are asked to meet in a communal visiting room with other defendant visits occurring or staff easily being able to listen in on the evaluation details.

That said, the evaluation requires both time to engage him in psychological testing (which can take people between 3-7 hours to complete) and to do an exhaustive, multi-hour interview. I'll touch base with you this week to schedule dates/times for the testing and interview and to provide whatever information you need to arrange for these on-site visits.

Best,
Dr. Sahni

RE: CSSN Jermiah Copeland

To Whom it May Concern,

My name is Daniela LaValva and I am a Mitigation Specialist retained by CSSN Copeland's defense counsel. I am reaching out as I am scheduling a visit with CSSN Copeland in late March and have learned that he has lost privileges of contact visits. I would therefore have to meet him with a glass partition between us. Although conducting the evaluation under these conditions is feasible, it is less than ideal and introduces limitations to the clinical process. Therefore, I respectfully request that CSSN Copeland be permitted to meet with me without a barrier, as this would allow for a more accurate, thorough, and clinically appropriate assessment.

I will be traveling from New Jersey to Virginia with the purpose of being able to interview CSSN Copeland in person rather than via a virtual platform. The purpose is to meet him in person to conduct a diagnostic interview that will provide an assessment and mitigation report for his defense team. Meeting with clients in person is important for several reasons; develops trust and rapport, supports comprehensive mental health status evaluation, allows for direct observation of nonverbal behavior, enhances accuracy and validity of clinical information, and promotes dignity. Meeting without a partition conveys respect and reinforces that the interaction is clinical rather than punitive. This aligns with ethical standards emphasizing dignity, respect, and person-centered care, even within correctional environments.

I appreciate that the detention facility must implement sanctions in response to behaviors occurring with the institution, however, not allowing CSSN Copeland to meet with an evaluator without a barrier interferes with his ability to meaningfully participate in the evaluation process and limits the evaluator's ability to conduct a thorough and accurate assessment, thereby adversely impacting his ability to assist in his defense.

Sincerely,

Daniela LaValva, LCSW

U N I T E D S T A T E S v. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	GOVERNMENT RESPONSE TO DEFENSE MOTION FOR APPROPRIATE RELIEF (PRIVATE MEETING WITH DEFENSE TEAM INCLUDING EXPERTS) 16 March 2026

MOTION

The Government respectfully requests this Court deny the Defense Motion For Appropriate Relief because the Defense currently has access to a confidential meeting space with the Accused. With regard to access to experts, since the filing of this motion by Defense, the brig agreed to allow CSSN Copeland a future meeting with two experts, Ms. LaVala and Dr. Sahni, in a contact setting.

FACTS

1. The Accused was ordered into confinement at the Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston Detachment Chesapeake (the brig) on 9 June 2025.[1]

2. The Accused is classified as a MAX prisoner and has been since the start of his confinement.[2] MAX is defined as "[p]risoners requiring special custody supervision because of the high probability of escape or are potentially violent or dangerous, and whose escape would cause concern of a threat to life, property, or national security."[3]

3. The Accused is allowed visitation with his Defense counsel in a no-contact booth.[4] The no-contact booth is only occupied by the attorneys and the Accused, has plexiglass in the middle with slots to pass documents between client and attorney, allows for videos to be seen by the client, and can have white noise machines placed outside of the booth to avoid conversations being overheard by anyone outside of the attorney-client conversation.[5]

4. Twice over the period of time CSSN Copeland has been in pre-trial confinement, the brig has conducted at least 2 tests to ensure that no guard standing outside the Accused's door can hear the conversation inside the no contact room.[6]

5. On 2 October 2025, the Office of Special Trial Counsel made a request to CDR Flanagan for a "narrowly tailored exception" for authorized contact visitations between the Accused and his Defense attorneys.[7] On 6 October 2025, CDR Flanagan approved that request.[8] That exception has since been rescinded.

6. On 13 Mar 2026, in light of information provided by Defense experts regarding the need for a contact visit, the brig has authorized Ms. LaVala and Dr. Sahni to meet with CSSN Copeland in a contact setting.[9]

7. Throughout the Accused's pretrial confinement, it has been possible for private phone calls with attorneys to be accommodated at any time as long as the request is made during business hours (0730-1500).[10]

8. Charges were preferred against the Accused on 22 August 2025.[11] These charges include allegations of premediated murder and violent sexual misconduct.[12] These allegations span five victims in a less than one-year period.[13]

9. Both during and after the commission of the alleged offenses, but before the imposition of pretrial confinement, the Accused searched for options to escape.[14] Specifically, he searched for directions to "Bermuda" on 29 May 2025, the date of the alleged murder, and conducted searches for "norfolk airport" and "virginia airport" in the following days.

10. On 13 December 2025, brig staff observed blood in CSSN Copeland's cell.[15]

11. On 16 December 2025, brig staff observed CSSN Copeland punching the wall with both fists. Brig staff observed blood on the wall of his cell and his blanket.[16]

12. On 25 Dec 25, brig staff observed small amounts of blood throughout CSSN Copeland's cell, clipped fingernails, and cuts on the top of CSSN Copeland's hands.[17]

13. On 7 January 2026, brig staff observed cuts on CSSN Copeland's wrists.[18]

15. On 10 February, CSSN Copeland told brig staff that staff was "making [him] want to kill [himself] soon." When asked if he thought of killing himself that evening, CSSN Copeland replied "Nah, but…soon." Also on 10 February, CSSN Copeland was disrespectful to brig staff. He said things like, "ya'll don't do shit" and "I don't have to tell you shit."[20]

16. For the past few months, CSSN Copeland has been placed on and off prevention of injury status (POI).[21]

17. On 15 February 2026, CSSN Copeland intimated to brig staff that he could create a make shift weapon in his cell and described various ways he could harm himself. Also on 15 February, CSSN Copeland told brig staff that he doesn't feel safe in the brig and "a guy can only take so much" and he "can't take much more of this", "Eventually I'm going to lose it."[22]

18. On 27 Feb 2026, Brig staff observed CSSN Copeland with bloody tissues in his cell and blood smeared on his wall.[23]

BURDEN OF PROOF

In this motion for appropriate relief, the Defense bears the burden of proof by a preponderance of the evidence and the burden of persuasion as the moving party.

LAW

An accused in pretrial confinement is entitled to the appointment of military counsel regardless of status.[24] This right, particularly as it applies to this case, is guaranteed by the Sixth Amendment to the Constitution.[25] reasonably related to legitimate penological interests.'"[26] The Supreme Court held in United States v. Turner that there are four factors to consider when assessing the reasonableness of a prison regulation:

> (1) Whether there is a valid, rational connection between the prison regulation and the legitimate governmental interest put forward to justify it,
>
> (2) whether there are alternative means of exercising the right that remain open to prison inmates,
>
> (3) the impact the asserted constitutional right will have on guards and other inmates, and on the allocation of prison resources, and
>
> (4) the existence of obvious, easy alternatives may be evidence that the regulation is not reasonable, but is an exaggerated response to prison concerns.[27]

All four factors are not always "equally useful nor need be applied with equal value, depending on the circumstances of the case and the regulation that is challenged."[28] This test has been applied in military courts in a variety of cases.[29]

In evaluating the first Turner factor, a court should only strike down a regulation when a logical connection between the regulation and asserted goal does not exist or is "so remote as to render the policy arbitrary or irrational."[30] "[An Accused's] complaint may not be plausible unless it contains specific factual allegations demonstrating why the government's justifications do not have a rational connection to the challenged restrictions."[31]

In considering the second Turner factor, the existence of alternative means to exercise a constitutional right means a regulation is less likely to violate the Constitution.[32] Some deference is owed corrections officials in assessing the validity of a regulation.[33] "Alternatives are interpreted broadly; if a prisoner can still exercise the asserted right in a similar, though not identical way, the prisoner's constitutional rights are preserved."[34]

In assessing the third Turner factor, "the right of the prisoner is weighed against the rights of other prisoners and prison employees, and where 'the right in question can be exercised only at the cost of significantly less liberty and safety for everyone else, guards and other prisoners alike, we should defer to the informed discretion of corrections officials."[35] "Deference to prison administrators is due '[w]hen allocation of resources and the ability of administrators to protect staff and detainees at the facility are at issue.'"[36] Prisons do not need to use the least-restrictive available options.[37] "The Turner analysis . . . does not invalidate a policy just because it restricts one of many forms of legal assistance.:[38]

And last, in reviewing the fourth factor, "if an inmate claimant can point to an alternative that fully accommodates the prisoner's rights at de minims cost to valid penological interests," the regulation may be unreasonable. "[T]he burden is on the inmate 'to point to an alternative that accommodates their rights at de minimis cost to security."[39]

ARGUMENT

Defense asks this Court to intervene in routine brig operations based on speculation, inconvenience, and preference—not evidence. Naval Consolidated Brig Chesapeake's no-contact attorney meeting room has been utilized by numerous Defense counsel without issue and includes multiple safeguards to ensure confidential attorney–client communication. Defense offers no evidence that confidentiality has been compromised, no example of a communication that could be overheard, and no instance in which counsel was unable to meet with the accused. Instead, the motion rests on complaints about logistics: speaking through plexiglass, passing documents through a slot, meeting during established visiting hours, coordinating phone calls, and traveling to the brig to see their client. These are routine conditions of confinement facilities and do not remotely approach a violation of the right to counsel. The Constitution guarantees meaningful access to counsel—not the most convenient arrangement for Defense counsel. Because the brig's procedures provide regular access, ensure confidentiality, and reflect reasonable security measures—particularly in light of the accused's recent misconduct—the motion should be denied.

I. Defense Provides No Evidence that the Brig's No-Contact Room Compromises Attorney–Client Confidentiality

Defense's argument rests entirely on speculation and complaint rather than evidence. Nowhere does the Defense provide any declaration, affidavit, testing, or other evidence demonstrating that the brig's no-contact room allows brig personnel to overhear privileged attorney–client communications. Instead, the Defense merely asserts that the presence of plexiglass requires them to raise their voices. That allegation, even if accepted as true, does not establish that communications are audible to guards standing behind the prisoner's door or that confidentiality is compromised.

As CDR Flanaghan, the Officer in Charge of the Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston Detachment Chesapeake testified to during the 10 December 2025 39(a) session in this case, at least two separate ad hoc tests have been conducted to determine whether conversations occurring inside the no-contact attorney meeting room could be overheard by brig personnel positioned outside the door on the accused's side of the room. On both occasions, personnel standing outside the closed door were unable to hear the conversations taking place inside. These tests were conducted by brig staff as well as the brig's Commanding Officer. Both tests confirmed that conversations within the room could not be overheard by personnel outside the door, further demonstrating that the room preserves the confidentiality of attorney–client communications.

Defense further complains that documents must be passed through a slot and alleges that only a few sheets can be transferred at a time. This complaint reflects preference, not constitutional limitation. Even accepting Defense's description of the slot, this argument again reflects a matter of convenience rather than any meaningful interference with attorney–client communication. Nothing prevents Defense from providing discovery materials to brig staff for delivery to the accused. Defense could easily provide the documents in a folder or packet for the guard to hand directly to the accused through the secure door. Defense does not explain why it has chosen instead to feed documents through the slot sheet by sheet. In any event, photographs of that slot appear to accommodate more than the few sheets alleged by the Defense.[40] Through the slot or not, the accused is able to obtain documentary evidence for review. Regardless, the existence of a minor logistical inconvenience does not rise to the level of a constitutional violation—particularly when obvious alternatives are readily available.

II. The Brig's Visiting Hours and Phone Call Procedures Are Reasonable Administrative Regulations That Do Not Interfere With the Right to Counsel

Defense also complains that the brig enforces standard visiting hours of 0800 to 1500. Confinement facilities necessarily operate within structured schedules to maintain security, staffing, and order. The brig's visiting hours apply generally and are not targeted at this accused or his counsel. Defense offers no evidence that these hours prevent counsel from meaningfully meeting with the accused or preparing for litigation. Indeed, the available seven-hour window each weekday provides substantial opportunity for attorney–client meetings. Defense does not explain why meetings must occur outside these hours or why the available time is insufficient for trial preparation. Additionally, on days when the Court conducts Article 39(a) sessions, Defense counsel have been able to meet with the accused in a no-contact setting for the entirety of the business day. These extended meetings further demonstrate that the accused has had substantial opportunities to consult with counsel.

40. Encl. 10

Defense also complains that arranging phone calls with the accused requires advance coordination with the brig. Defense has not shown that phone access has been denied or that counsel has been unable to speak with the accused when needed. Instead, the complaint appears to be that counsel must plan ahead to coordinate those calls. The right to counsel guarantees access—not immediate, on-demand communication at any time counsel chooses. The brig's procedures allow for confidential phone communication while preserving the orderly operation of the facility. Defense has not demonstrated that these procedures have interfered with the accused's ability to consult with counsel in any meaningful way.

III. The Brig's Decision to Require No-Contact Visits Is a Reasonable Security Measure

Defense ignores the fact that the brig previously granted an exception allowing the accused to have a contact visit with counsel in October. Moreover, the brig is now allowing for an exception to allow for experts to meet in the no contact room to conduct testing. These exceptions demonstrate the brig's willingness to accommodate attorney–client access when circumstances permit. However, the brig has since rescinded an exception to allow no contact visits with defense counsel as the accused has violated brig rules, behaved disrespectfully toward brig staff, and engaged in self-harm. In light of that conduct, it is entirely reasonable for the brig to return the accused to the standard no-contact visitation procedures for routine attorney visits.

IV. Defense's Request that the Brig Transport the Accused to a Location of Counsel's Choosing Is Extraordinary and Unsupported

Perhaps the most striking aspect of the Defense motion is its request that the Court order the command to transport the accused to a location selected by Defense counsel once every two weeks so that counsel may meet with him outside the brig. Such a requirement would impose significant logistical and security burdens on brig staff and would represent an extraordinary intrusion into the management of a confinement facility. More importantly, Defense provides no evidence that such a measure is necessary to protect the accused's right to counsel. The accused already has access to confidential attorney meetings at the brig, access to confidential phone communications, and the ability to receive legal materials. Instead, the requested order appears driven primarily by convenience. Under the current arrangement, Defense counsel must travel to the brig to meet with their client (or talk over the phone). The requested remedy would shift that burden onto brig personnel and require the facility to accommodate counsel's preferred meeting location and schedule. The right to counsel does not require a confinement facility to reorganize its operations to suit counsel's preferences. Absent any showing that the accused cannot meaningfully consult with counsel under existing procedures, there is no basis for the Court to order such an extraordinary measure.

V. Because Defense Has Shown No Violation of the Right to Counsel, the Motion Should Be Denied Defense asks this Court to intervene in the routine administration of a confinement facility based not on evidence of interference with counsel, but on complaints about logistics and convenience. The record demonstrates the opposite of what Defense claims. The brig has provided confidential meeting space, telephone access, reasonable visiting hours, extended meetings on court days, and even previously granted a contact visit exception. When Defense presented information demonstrating that certain expert testing required in-person interaction, the brig evaluated that request and determined it could accommodate expert access on a limited basis.

Nothing in the Defense motion demonstrates that the accused has been unable to consult privately with counsel, review discovery, or participate in his defense. What Defense seeks is not protection of the right to counsel, but a preferred arrangement—one that would require the Court to micromanage brig operations and require brig personnel to transport a confined prisoner outside the facility simply to accommodate counsel's schedule. The right to counsel guarantees meaningful access. It does not guarantee convenience, preferred meeting conditions, or the relocation of a prisoner to suit counsel's preferences. Because the brig's procedures fully protect the accused's ability to consult with counsel while maintaining the security and order of the facility, the Defense motion should be denied in its entirety.

VOLUNTARY STATEMENT

1. Place: KILO-EAST / SPECIAL QUARTERS DAYROOM

2. Date/Time: 13DEC25 073

I, EM2 OSEI DAPAAH, make the following free and voluntary statement to MAC JONES, whom I know to be a command investigator for the Naval Consolidated Brig Chesapeake. I make this statement of my own free will and without any threats or promises extended to me. I fully understand that this statement concerning my knowledge of: SNP COPELAND

At the above date and time I EM2 Osei Dapaah (Escort) and BM2 Baker (Escort) moved prisoner Copeland from KE cell 79 to KE cell 81 as part of the random daily cell inspections. Both BM2 Baker and I entered prisoner Copeland's cell for the inspection and while searching the belongings on his desk, BM2 Baker found an almost finished toilet paper roll covered in spats of dry blood on the shelf above the desk. BM2 Baker found that all sides of the roll were covered in spots of blood with one side being completely covered in blood which he drew my attention to it. During the inspection of the item another piece of the toilet paper fell out of the inner tube of the roll; a stiff strip of the paper completely soaked in dry blood. BM2 Baker took possession of the item and the cell inspection was done at approximately 0739 and moved prisoner Copeland back to KE cell 79. Once secured back SNP Copeland into his cell BM2 Baker asked prisoner Copeland where the blood was from and if he needed to see medical. Prisoner Copeland shook his head saying "No." BM2 Baker then asked him "Do you mind telling me where the blood came from?" Prisoner Copeland then stated "No, its just blood." After which we BM2 Baker and I took the item to the KE dorm control room and placed on a paper towel. The CDO was notified of the finding at approximately 0740.----------

At the above date and time, I, ABE2 Cantu, along with CS2 Ebilane, were conducting daily cell inspections. Upon entering cell K-79, I immediately observed a bloodstained cup at the entrance of the cell, in the right corner, containing what appeared to be approximately one ounce of blood. Next to the cup was a scrunched piece of toilet paper covered in blood.

After noting this, I continued my search and found another balled-up piece of toilet paper, also covered in blood, located on the shelf above SNP's desk. On the desk, I observed a small pile of nail clippings. Below the desk were two additional clipped nails and one drop of blood. I also noted dried blood on SNP's pillowcase, located at the head of his bed. Nothing else noteworthy was found.

I exited the cell at 0817 and proceeded to the bubble, where I notified the CDO, requesting that she bring a camera to document the evidence. At 0820, SNP was transferred to K-61.

At 0829, RSC Wilcox, MA2 Lozano, and I entered the cell to capture photographic evidence. At 0845, MA2 Lozano and I reentered the cell to collect the physical evidence, ensuring all biohazardous materials were gathered for proper disposal.

At 0905, SNP was transferred to the medical interview room for further medical evaluation. At 0906 HMCS Sandi medically evaluated SNP as well as treated his wounds. At 0918, I reentered the SNP's cell to collect the nail clippings, as they were deemed relevant to the incident.

At 0924, SNP was taken to R&R for a strip search to be evaluated for any additional wounds. Moreover, the cell door entrance and drop of blood photographs were later determined to be slightly blurry, so at 0927, FC1 Putnam and I reentered cell K-79 to retake the photos. At 0934, SNP was returned to his cell. End of statement.

ON THE ABOVE DATE AND TIME, I, LS2 BASNIGHT, PRISONER ESCORT, AND OS2 CARLOW WERE SUPERVISING SNP COPELAND'S PERSONAL TIME. AT CELL KW-06, WHEN WE WERE CUFFING SNP, I NOTICED A WET, RED SPOT ON SNP RIGHT HAND. I PROCEEDED WITH CUFFING SNP AND ASKED "DID YOU CUT YOURSELF?" SNP RESPONDED "NO." OS2 CARLOW THEN ASKED "IS THAT A FRESH CUT?" TO WHICH SNP RESPONDED "NO." AT APPROXIMATELY 2210 OS2 CONTACTED THE CDO U/I, ABEI FERRY. ABEI THEN CAME TO KILO WEST AND WAS BRIEFED ON THE SITUATION BY OS2. ABEI THEN SPOKE WITH SNP ABOUT CUTS ON HAND. AFTER SPEAKING WITH SNP, ABEI PROCEEDED TO TAKE PHOTOS OF SNP RIGHT HAND. OS2 RETRIEVED FIRST AID KIT FROM DORM SUPERVISOR DESK, WHICH HAD NO BANDAGES. ABEI THEN WENT TO R&R TO RETRIEVE BANDAGES TO TREAT SNP WOUNDS. I WAS THEN RELIEVED AS ESCORT BY AM2 CHAPMAN.

VOLUNTARY STATEMENT

I, OS2 Carlow, make the following free and voluntary statement to MAC Jones, whom I know to be a command investigator for the Naval Consolidated Brig Chesapeake. I make this statement of my own free will and without any threats or promises extended to me. I fully understand that this statement concerning my knowledge of: Incident with SNP Copeland

On 07Jan2026, at approximately 2203, myself and LS2 Basnight were supervising SNP Copeland's personal time. While LS2 was cuffing him, we noticed a wet, red spot on SNP's right hand. LS2 then asked SNP, "Did you cut yourself?" SNP responded "No." After he was out of his cell, I took another look at his hand and asked, "Is that a fresh cut?" SNP again responded "No." At approximately 2210, I contacted the CDO U/I, ABE1 Ferry, to inform her of the situation. ABE1 then came to Kilo West and examined SNP right hand and proceeded to take pictures for evidence. Once pictures were taken, I went to grab the first aid kit from the Kilo West Supervisor desk and discovered there were no bandages. ABE1 then proceeded to retrieve bandages from R&R. She used the bandages to treat SNP wounds to prevent injury. At approximately 2252, SGT Ricard and ABE1 Ferry searched SNP cell, no contraband was found during the search. After the search, SGT Ricard asked SNP, "What did you use on your hand?" SNP responded, "I didn't use anything."

At the above date and time, I, MA2 Lozano, CDO received a call from BM2 Flores, Special Quarters supervisor, to inform me that while conducting her rounds observed SNP Copeland's cell, he was lying on his rack, wrapped up in his blankets, appeared to be sleeping. When she woke him up, she told him that he was not allowed to sleep or lay down during working hours. She then informed me that SNP Copeland stated that "the CDO gave him permission to lay down". That is why she wanted to confirm with me. He then grabbed his boxes from underneath the rack, made a makeshift bed and laid on top, covered himself in the blanket.
At 1030, I arrived at Kilo-East and I explained to BM2 Flores that I never gave him permission to do that and that I would be the one issuing him a negative (-) on his hard card. I asked MA1 Eck if he could come with me to have him sign it. MA1 and I went up into Special Quarters, MA1 handed me the Rules and Regulations Book, and I grabbed SNP Copeland's Handling letter. As I approached cell KE-78, I saw SNP Copeland was still lying down on top of his boxes, covered in his blankets. I knocked on the door and told SNP Copeland that he is not allowed to be laying down and sleeping during working hours. I then explained to him that just because I said, "You can't be fully covered in your blanket isn't me giving you permission to sleep". I read his handling letter where it said word for word "Make bunk daily after reveille and taps. Sitting on the bunk is authorized between reveille and taps. No laying down unless on personal time" and then I went into the Rules and Regulations Book, to PG. 38, Section 407, under #1. "You shall not lie on your bedding while in uniform (Uniform, shoes/boots)". I informed SNP Copeland that on 27JAN26 he was given a verbal warning for sleeping during the day and this time it would be a negative. He said "this is the only set that is in forcing this", "no other sets care including OIC", and "that he feels targeted because he's the only one being talked to" I explained to him that he's not the only one but it's not his job to worry about everyone else and just to focus on what is going on now, with him and if he wanted to sign is hard card or refuse. SNP Copeland went to grab a pen but turned around very quickly and said, "Show me where the fuck it says I can't lay down on my bed" I asked, "Are you refusing to sign?", he stated "No but show me where the fuck it says that! Where the fuck does it say I can't lay down on the boxes since it isn't his bed." MA1 Eck told him to "watch your language" I then opened the Rules and Regulations book to PG. 10, Section 205, under #1, "Orders given by staff personnel (military or civilian) or written orders are not subject to argument, discussion or negotiation. Orders will be obeyed immediately and without question." Handed him his hard card and he signed. MA1 Eck was about to say something when SNP Copeland then started shouting, "Stop talking to me! I don't want to talk to you no more, just leave me the fuck alone!" I grabbed the hard card and we walked away.

COMPLAINANT: Heggenberger, L./ E-5 / USN

SYNOPSIS: On 10 February 2026 at approximately 1750, DC2 Heggenberger was CDO conducting rounds in Kilo East and was asked by Prisoner Copeland if he could do his personal time later in the evening. It was reported to Heggenberger by his watch standers that Copeland had refused. Heggenberger asked him if he had refused and Copeland replied "No, I want to do it later". Heggenberger went to verify with the watch standers in the bubble and asked ABE2 Cantu what happened? Cantu stated he went to let out Copeland for personal time before dinner, Copeland came to the door, shut it, hit the call button, and stated "Never mind, I want to do it later". Cantu stated "we can't support your personal time now, if you don't want to do it, it will be marked down as a refusal. Cantu stated Copeland acknowledged and still said "Not right now". Heggenberger left the bubble and returned to the SQ area to brief Copeland. Heggenberger stated to Copeland that he was offered personal time and that he changed his mind and decided to remain in his cell. Copeland became aggravated and raised his voice saying, "Why does it even matter if I say later?" "My family is on the West Coast. Yall don't do shit on nights. Yall treat me like shit. Heggenberger stated to Copeland that they still have tasks to do on nights and that he doesn't know what's going on and who it is that treats him poorly. Copeland further stated "I know what yall do. Yall don't do shit. Ive had staff tell me everything that goes on here. Cantu and OS2 Hunter treat me like shit". Heggenberger asked Copeland which staff member had told him about the Brig operations and what did his watch standers do for Copeland to feel that way. Copeland responded "Who are you to ask me that? I don't have to tell you shit. Yall make me want to kill myself soon". Heggenberger asked Copeland "Soon, like tonight?" Copeland replied "Naw, but soon". Heggenberger had BM2 Wells stand by Copelands cell while he contacted the chain of command and medical.

COMPLAINANT STATEMENT: In his statement, Heggenberger stated on 10 February 2026 at approximately 1750, he was CDO conducting rounds in Kilo East and was asked by Prisoner Copeland if he could do his personal time later in the evening. It was reported to Heggenberger by his watch standers that Copeland had refused. Heggenberger stated he asked Copeland if he had refused and Copeland replied "No, I want to do it later". Heggenberger further stated he went to verify with the watch standers in the bubble and asked Cantu what happened? Heggenberger stated Cantu advised him, he went to let out Copeland for personal time before dinner, Copeland came to the door, shut it, hit the call button, and stated "Never mind, I want to do it later". Cantu stated "we can't support your personal time now, if you don't want to do it, it will be marked down as a refusal. Cantu also stated Copeland acknowledged and still said "Not right now". Heggenberger left the bubble and returned to the SQ area to brief Copeland. Heggenberger stated to Copeland that he was offered personal time and that he changed his mind and decided to remain in his cell. Heggenberger stated Copeland became aggravated and raised his voice saying, "Why does it even matter if I say later?" "My family is on the West Coast. Yall don't do shit on nights. Yall treat me like shit. Heggenberger also stated to Copeland that they still have tasks to do on nights and that he doesn't know what's going on and who it is that treats him poorly. Copeland further stated to Heggenberger, "I know what yall do. Yall don't do shit. Ive had staff tell me everything that goes on here. Cantu and OS2 Hunter treat me like shit". Heggenberger stated he asked Copeland which staff member had told him about the Brig operations and what did his watch standers do for Copeland to feel that way. Copeland responded to Heggenberger "Who are you to ask me that? I don't have to tell you shit. Yall make me want to kill myself soon". Heggenberger asked Copeland "Soon, like tonight?" Copeland replied "Naw, but soon". Heggenberger had BM2 Wells stand by Copelands cell while he contacted the chain of command and medical.

WITNESS STATEMENT: On 10 February 2026, at approximately 1732, MAC Jones met with Cantu who provided a sworn written statement. Cantu's statement corroborated with Heggenberger's statement.

WITNESS STATEMENT: On 10 February 2026, at approximately 1750, MAC Jones met with Hunter who provided a sworn written statement. Hunter's statement corroborated Heggenberger's statement.

SUSPECT STATEMENT: On 11 February 2026, at approximately 1200, MAC Jones advised SNP Copeland of his rights (Enclosure 2). SNP acknowledged his rights and provided a verbal statement and pleaded "No Plea" to his charge. In his statement, Copeland stated there was more than just Cantu and Hunter in the bubble on the day of the DR. Copeland further stated the CDO told him he was just a prisoner, never told him he was being disrespectful, and that he was not doing his incentive level 3 due to his actions. Copeland stated he just smiled and said OK to the CDO. Copeland also stated he was asked by Cantu if he was doing his personal time today and he replied yes and asked if he could do it later. Copeland stated he never raised his voice, he just stated the facts about how he felt and towards the end he got agitated. Copeland further stated he did tell the CDO that they make him want to kill himself, but the CDO didn't aske him if he had a plan to harm himself.

INVESTIGATIVE COMMENTS: MAC Jones reviewed camera footage of the interaction between Heggenberger and Copeland via C204. Heggenberger approached Copeland's cell, kneels, and began talking to him as Hunter was completing his rounds on the SQ floor. Heggenberger then proceeds to check on the other prisoners in the SQ area, sign the 509 and then departs. At 1829, Heggenberger returns as Hunter is departing SQ area and appears to ask Hunter to stand by as he talks with Copeland. Heggenberger approaches Copleand cell door with Hunter standing off to the side, as witness to the interaction. Heggenberger remains at Copelands cell door talking to him for six minutes before leaving and Wells arriving. Wells arrives and stands at Copeland cell door watching him for 23 minutes. At 1907, Heggenberger arrives again to talk with Copeland for a few moments then leave. HM2 Siler arrives to check on Copeland.

Investigations recommend the charges Disrespect be forwarded to D&A board for processing.

11. OBSERVATION SUMMARY (Give an in-depth description of the observation; include all necessary information, provide attachment if necessary):

On the above date and time, I, BM1 Anderson, entered through Kilo-Lima and approached Prisoner Copeland's cell. Prisoner had questions regarding his LOP and his POI handling letter. While explaining the differences between the two types of documentation, Prisoner stated that he "does not feel safe here". When Prisoner stated that, I then asked him "who or what makes you feel unsafe?" Prisoner declined to provide any clarity on why he feels unsafe in the facility. Prisoner then stated that he knows "nights doesn't do anything" and he doesn't understand why he cannot recieve what he requests in a more timely manner. I then explained to Prisoner that we are not at his beck and call and we do not have to drop everything the moment he makes a request. After that, Prisoner stated "a guy can only take so much " and I asked him to elaborate. Prisoner then stated "I can't take much more of this. Eventually I'm gonna lose it." Prisoner continued arguing about his privileges and what he is entitled to, claiming that "you don't care about me or my safety". I reassured him that ~~were~~ we do care about his safety, he then had nothing more to say on the matter. I exited Kilo-Lima at 0012. I immediately returned to the Kil-East Control Center and norified DC2 Heggenberger, CDO, of the nature of our conversation.

On the above date and time, I, DC2 Heggenberger, CDO, was in the Special Quarters secure dayroom speaking to Prisoner Copeland about why he was not allowed to have his PMD (Personal Media Device) in his cell due to his POI (Prevention of Injury) status. As I explained to him that the cord of his PMD posed a threat to his safety, he raised his voice to me and said "Why'd you guys put me in this cell then?! It had an outlet! I can make shift a weapon and stick it in the outlet or I can pour water in it and hurt myself too!" I explained to him that his cell change was out of my control and that taking his PMD due to his status was in my control and I was doing my part to enforce the rules properly. He then continued to ask "where does it say I can't have my PMD?!" I then reiterated that due to his status he was not able to have it and showed him two different documents stating why. He began to repeat himself so I disengaged the conversation and exited Kilo-Lima to return to Kilo-East Control Center.

On the above date and time, I MA1 Eck, Special Quarters Supervisor picked up lunch trays from SQ. While picking up prisoner Copeland's tray, I saw bloody toilet tissue on the ledge next to his sink. I asked him if he was okay to which he replied that he was okay. MA1 Eck pointed at the bloody tissue paper and asked "What it was from?" Copeland shrugged in response and MA1 Eck asked "Is that from the wounds on your hands?" Copeland responded with "Yeah." and a head nod up and down. At 1142 the CDO was notified and at 1143 medical arrived to check out his injuries. At 1206 photographs were taken of the tissue and further inspection of the cell showed a bandaid was with the tissue, a blood smear was on his desk, and the space between his bed and desk had blood drops on the ground. Photographs were obtained for each location mentioned. Medical cleaned the blood left in the cell and the tissues were disposed of. ///End Of Statement///

00:29:27 Defense Counsel: Generally, an inmate in maximum custody is not allowed contact visits with their attorneys, correct?

00:29:34 CDR Flanaghan Correct.

00:29:35 Defense Counsel: And the room that we are talking about, the visitation room that they're in is a is a uh essentially. It's a it's an eight by eight cell divided in half, correct?

00:29:46 CDR Flanaghan: I don't know the specific dimensions, but yes, it is a small area divided in half with uh, plexiglass. And slots to slide documents through.

00:29:56 Defense Counsel Have you ever been down there while anybody has been in that room having a conversation, Sir?

00:29:59 CDR Flanaghan: I have not but I have had multiple people to include my, CO, there and test it out.

00:30:08 Defense Counsel: Tell me more about that, Sir.

00:30:11 CDR Flanaghan: Uh, well we had the trial counsel. I don't remember his name, but it was a Captain O6 came down for a tour. We showed him that facility. He went in there with I, believe with our Master Sergeant Gibbons that you referenced earlier. They had a conversation with other members of the trial counsel and my staff outside talking loudly if how they could hear them. They said, no, my CO did the same thing recently last month.

00:36:55 Trial Counsel: And I just want to also circle back to the times when people had tested out the no contact room. Just want to clarify, you said that people could not hear their discussion from outside of the room or inside of the room?

00:37:07 CDR Flanaghan: From outside. We had people…because if we have a max prisoner, go, we're still going to have guards there to make sure nothing is happening that's not supposed to and and though people stood outside where those guards would stand and they could not hear the conversation.

NAVY-MARINE CORPS TRIAL JUDICIARY
CENTRAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION FOR APPROPRIATE RELIEF (PRIVATE MEETING WITH DEFENSE TEAM INCLUDING EXPERTS) 18 MARCH 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 12 March 2026, the defense filed a motion for appropriate relief asking the court to "order the government to permit the defense, to include its experts, to meet with CSSN Copeland, in private, in order to prepare for trial or order the release of CSSN Jermiah Copeland from pretrial confinement."[1] The Government responded on 16 March 2026.[2]

2. Burden.

As the moving party, the defense bears the burden to prove facts necessary to resolve the motion by a preponderance of evidence.[3]

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

[1] Appellate Exhibit (AE) LXXXVIII.
[2] AE XC.
[3] Rule for Court-Martial (R.C.M.) 905(c).

a. On 9 June 2025, the Accused was ordered into pretrial confinement at the Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston (NCBC) Detachment Chesapeake. He is classified as a maximum status prisoner, which means that he is in his cell alone for at least 22 hours per day.

b. The Accused is allowed visitation with his Defense counsel in a no-contact booth. The no-contact booth is only occupied by the attorneys and the Accused, has plexiglass in the middle with slots to pass documents between client and attorney, allows for videos to be seen by the Accused, and can have white noise machines placed outside of the booth to avoid conversations being overheard by anyone outside of the attorney-client conversation.

c. Based on tests conducted by Brig personnel, no one standing outside the no-contact room can hear conversations that are occurring within the room.

d. On 6 October 2025, the Commanding Officer, Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston granted the Accused an exception to policy to allow contact visits between the Accused and his counsel. That exception has since been rescinded.

e. Between December 2025 and February 2026, the Accused engaged in various efforts to harm himself and engaged in disrespectful behavior towards Brig staff.

f. On 17 February 2026, the defense reached out to the brig staff to coordinate a meeting between CSSN Copeland and a defense expert. In response the Officer in Charge, Naval Consolidated Brig Detachment Chesapeake informed the defense that due to misconduct, CSSN Copeland lost the "privilege" to meet with members of the defense in a contact room.

g. Both the defense's mitigation specialist and forensic psychologist (recidivism) must meet with the Accused in an unobstructed environment. On 13 March 2025, in light of information provided by Defense experts regarding the need for a contact visit, the Brig has authorized Ms. LaVala and Dr. Sahni to meet with CSSN Copeland in a contact setting.

h. Additional facts necessary to resolve the motion are included below.

4. Statement of Law.

"In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right . . . to have the Assistance of Counsel for his defense."[4] "Necessarily included in the Sixth Amendment right to counsel is the right of an accused to confer privately with his attorney."[5] "[W]hen a prison regulation impinges on inmates' constitutional rights, the regulation is valid if it is reasonably related to legitimate penological interests."[6] The Supreme Court in Turner laid out a four factor test for courts to use in determining whether a prison restriction is reasonably related to legitimate penological interest:

---

[4] U.S. CONST. amend. VI.
[5] United States v. Brooks, 66 M.J. 221, 223 (C.A.A.F. 2008) (citing United States v. Godshalk, 44 M.J. 487, 490 (C.A.A.F. 1996)).
[6] Turner v. Safley, 482 U.S. 78, 89 (1987).

> (1) Whether there is a valid, rational connection between the prison regulation and the legitimate governmental interest put forward to justify it,
>
> (2) whether there are alternative means of exercising the right that remain open to prison inmates;
>
> (3) the impact the asserted constitutional right will have on guards and other inmates, and on the allocation of prison resources, and
> (4) the existence of obvious, easy alternatives may be evidence that the regulation is not reasonable, but is an exaggerated response to prison concerns.[7]

In Beard v. Banks, the Supreme Court recognized that not all four factors are equally useful nor need be applied with equal value, depending on the circumstances of the case and the regulation that is challenged.[8] The Turner test has been applied in military courts in a variety of cases outside of the Sixth Amendment realm.[9] However, the Second Circuit Court of Appeals dealt with application of a prison policy that restricted contact visits between a pretrial detainee and his defense counsel. In United States v. Loera, the court applied the Turner's four-part test to Loera's Sixth Amendment claims and upheld the district court's ruling which concluded that the defendant was able to assist in his own defense and receive a fair trial.[10]

Loera was placed in a Special Housing Unit (SHU) and given harsh special administrative measures, which included being confined to a windowless cell for 23 hours per day, the light in his cell was always on, he never went outdoors, and he was always alone. Because he was in the SHU, he was not permitted contact visits with his counsel. Rather, meetings with his counsel took place in a divided room, where his attorneys "were separated by a heavy metal door with a narrow rectangular plexiglass window in the top half."[11]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

The defense argues this court should order the Brig to permit contact visits between the Accused and his defense counsel and experts; or alternatively to order the Accused's release from pretrial confinement, because his pretrial status is interfering with his Sixth Amendment right to counsel. The court disagrees.

---

[7] Turner, 482 U.S. 89-90 (cleaned up).
[8] 548 U.S. 521, 126 (2006).
[9] See e.g., United States v. Guinn, No. 20170500, 2021 CCA LEXIS 423 (A. Ct. Crim. App. Aug. 20, 2021) (considering the First Amendment right to familial association); United States v. Frantz, ACM 39657, 2020 CCA LEXIS 404 (A.F. Ct. Crim. App. Nov. 10, 2020) (considering policy restricting contact with son); United States v. Arnold, No. 20180418, 2019 CCA LEXIS 516 (A. Ct. Crim. App. Dec. 17, 2019) (considering a policy against minor visitors); United States v. Green, ACM 36664, 2007 CCA LEXIS 475 (A.F. Ct. Crim. App. Oct. 12, 2007) (considering a policy against sex offenders meeting with minors).
[10] United States v. Loera, 24 F.4th 144, 154 (2nd Cir. 2022).
[11] Id. at 153.

Because the Accused's prayer for relief is predicated on the Sixth Amendment right to counsel, the court applies the four-factor test laid out in Turner, and concludes that the restrictions imposed by the Brig do not infringe upon the Accused's Sixth Amendment rights to counsel.

First, like the harsher restrictions in Loera, the Government demonstrated a sufficient connection between the restrictions placed upon the Accused and the legitimate security and safety concerns the Brig leadership has. The Accused was granted an exception to policy that permitted contact visits, but that exception was rescinded following the Accused's conduct in the Brig. Notably, these restrictions were once again lifted so that the defense experts can meet with the Accused in a contact setting in order to conduct their examinations.

Next, not only are there alternatives means of exercising his rights to counsel, there is no evidence that his rights have been abridged at all. The Accused is able to meet with counsel and have private conversations in person. Although the conversations take place in a divided room, similar to the one described in Loera, the defense has provided no evidence that they cannot effectively communicate with their client; that the contact restrictions have hampered their ability to conduct pretrial investigation or to prepare for any hearing or the trial; or that their conversations are somehow not private or that their confidentiality is compromised.

In sum, the no-contact restrictions placed upon the Accused by the Brig are reasonably related to a legitimate penological objective and do not deprive the Accused of his Sixth Amendment right to counsel.

6. Ruling.

The Defense Motion for Appropriate Relief, as detailed herein, is hereby DENIED.

So ordered this 18th day of March, 2026.

UNITED STATES v. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN/E-3 USN	MOTION TO AMEND THE TRIAL MANAGEMENT ORDER 26 March 2026

NATURE OF MOTION

Pursuant to Central Judicial Circuit Rule of Practice 11.1.1, the Defense respectfully moves this Court to grant its request to amend the Trial Management Order (TMO) with the following dates/milestones:

s. Motions filed: ~~8 APR 26~~ 15 APR 26
t. Responses to motions*: ~~15 APR 26~~ 22 APR 26
u. Article 39(a): ~~23 APR 26~~ 30 APR 26.

DISCUSSION

The Government and Defense are in agreement with the proposed new dates/milestones. Since the signing of the initial TMO dates, one defense counsel had to move a mission essential training to the week of 20-24 April 2026 where he will be TAD to San Diego, California. Another defense counsel has a personal scheduling conflict 23-24 April 2026. Both parties are available on 30 April 2026 for the third Article 39(a) hearing. Due to the defense counsel's recent conflicts, the Defense request the Court amend the TMO milestones with the proposed new dates.

RELIEF REQUESTED

The Defense respectfully requests this Court to amend the Trial Management Order by approving the proposed new dates.

The Defense does not request oral argument.

U N I T E D S T A T E S v. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN / E-3 U.S. NAVY	GOVERNMENT MOTION IN LIMINE 14 APRIL 2026

MOTION

1. The Government respectfully requests this Court find the following sets of evidence admissible under the below-cited rules for the annotated reasons and the evidence in paragraph 2 inadmissible:

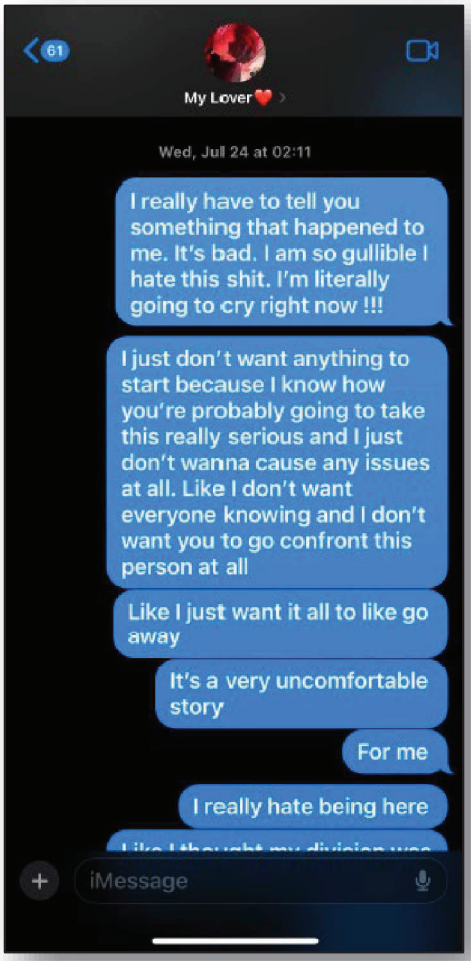
a. Text messages ABHAN C.R. sent to CSSN Cuestabravo immediately after she was assaulted by the Accused and while she was still under the stress of that event. These messages from ABHAN C.R. fall under M.R.E. 803(2) as an exited utterance.

b. Statements made by CSSN S.R. in the presence of CS2 Rezan Taylor, USN and YN3 Sean Monaghan, USN, when she confronted the Accused not long after he assaulted and strangled her. These communications are excited utterances under M.R.E. 803(2).

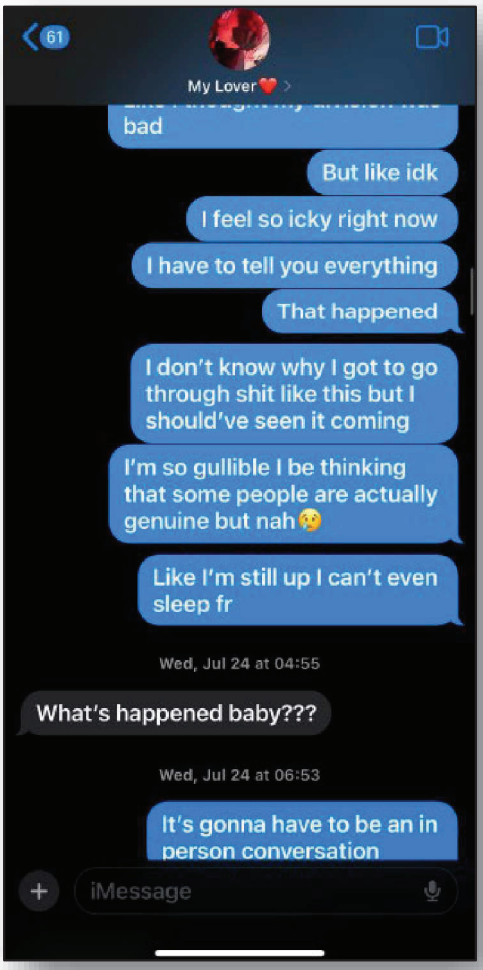
c. Y.J.'s desperate request for the Accused to "stop" sexually assaulting her, or words to that effect, is an excited utterance under M.R.E. 803(2).

d. Text messages of PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz when he arrived back to his barracks room on 29 May 2025 as a present sense impression under M.R.E. 803(1).

e. Various statements of CS3 A.R. The Accused murdered CS3 A.R. to isolate her from outside help and prevent her from being a witness against him. As such, CS3 A.R.'s out-of-court statements are admissible as an exception to the rule against hearsay due to forfeiture by wrongdoing under M.R.E. 804(b)(6).



f. Additionally, CS3 A.R.'s call for help to ET3 Daniel Rich, USN, at 0214 on 29 May 2025 is separately admissible as an exception to the rule against hearsay because it is an excited utterance under M.R.E. 803(2).



2. The Government also requests that this Court deny admission of any evidence of CS3 A.R. having "episodes," struggling with mental health, or other suggestion that she was suicidal as this evidence is not relevant and is nearly entirely inadmissible hearsay.

FACTS

A. ABHAN C.R. texted her boyfriend immediately after the Accused assaulted her.

3. On 24 July 2024, ABHAN C.R. met with the Accused and was violently assaulted by him.[1] ABHAN C.R. reported that this assault occurred at approximately 0200 on 24 July 2024.[2] After she escaped the Accused, ABHAN C.R. texted her boyfriend at 0211 through tears as she laid awake as follows:[3]

1. See. App. Ex. LX, para. 5; Encl. 1.
2. Encl. 1.
3. Encl. 2.

B. CSSN S.R. confronted the Accused after he pushed and strangled her and others heard this confrontation.

4. Around 0400 on 11 April 2025, the Accused pushed and strangled CSSN S.R.[4] CSSN S.R. then departed the barracks room.[5] At approximately 0530, she returned, waited outside, and confronted the Accused in his barracks room in an attempt to collect her things.[6] During at least part of this confrontation, she was on the phone with CS2 Taylor.[7] CS2 Taylor heard CSSN S.R. yelling at the Accused alleging that the Accused placed his hands on her.[8] YN3 Monaghan, who was present in the room during the loud confrontation, also stated that CSSN S.R. alleged that the Accused choked her and put his hands on her.[9]

C. Y.J. pled for the Accused to not continue to sexually assault her and others heard and intervened.

5. On 25 May 2024, the Accused sexually assaulted Y.J.[10] During the assault, Y.J. could be heard through the closed door of CSSN Copeland's barracks room pleading with the Accused to "stop."[11] Y.J.'s plea for him to "stop" was loud enough for the people in the common area to hear and come to her assistance.[12]

D. CS3 A.R. was murdered by the Accused after she made a panicked call to a friend for help. There is no evidence that CS3 A.R. was suicidal or otherwise suffering a mental health crisis.

6. On 29 May 2025, the Accused murdered CS3 A.R. after she made a panicked call for help around 0214 to ET3 Rich.[13] ET3 Rich explained that on the call, CS3 A.R. was "freaking out" and requested to be picked up "ASAP."[14] She was frantic and crying and just kept repeating that she needed to be picked up as soon as possible.[15] ET3 Rich stated she sounded as if she was having a panic attack.[16]

7. CS3 A.R. was never heard from again after that frantic phone call and eyewitness accounts support that she was murdered at or near that time.[17] As outlined in depth in Appellate Exhibit

LX, there are several reasons to believe that the Accused murdered CS3 A.R. to prevent her from obtaining help, getting away from the Accused, and becoming a witness against him.[18] In the recent past, the Accused demonstrated that he could not live with the thought of another accusation of sexual misconduct. After CSSN S.S. accused him of sexual assault in November of 2024, he made multiple attempts to kill himself in Oslo, Norway.[19] Moreover, the Accused has shown a willingness to engage in violent behavior to control women who did not comply with his demands or desires. With both ABHAN C.R. and CSSN S.R., the Accused demonstrated a desire to physically control them, including by strangulation to get what he wants.[20] In addition to Appellate Exhibit LX, the following additional evidentiary developments support that CS3 A.R. was murdered after she made a call for help (and not at a later time), supporting that this murder was motivated by an intent to prevent CS3 A.R. from speaking to anyone:

a. All three roommates provided accounts consistent with observing a dead body and mistaking CS3 A.R. for being asleep on the morning of 29 May 2025. During the early morning hours of 29 May 2025, PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz, USN, was texting with girlfriend in the early morning hours of 29 May 2025 when he arrived back home to his barracks room from a trip:[21]

b. PSSN Gordillocruz provided that when he arrived to the barracks room at approximately 0250, he observed the Accused sitting with CS3 A.R. on the floor by the couch.[22] CS3 A.R. was hunched over with her head hanging down and the Accused looked to be holding her up and preventingher from falling over with his arm around her.[23] PSSN Gordillocruz thought it was strange that they were on the floor and asked the Accused if CS3 A.R. was okay.[24] The Accused told PSSN Gordillocruz to go to his room and waved him off.[25] During this 10-second exchange, CS3 A.R. was described as completely unresponsive.[26]

c. AN John Calisse, USN, provided that when he left his room around 0545, CS3 A.R. was naked on her back with her legs splayed open and the Accused was asleep with his head on her inner thigh.[27] They were laying just a few feet from AN Calisse's bedroom door.[28] AN Calisse stated the Accused stirred when he loudly opened his bedroom door.[29] AN Calisse expressed surprise that CS3 A.R. comparatively did not move at all.[30]

d. YN3 Monaghan provided that when he left at around 0545, CS3 A.R. was turned with her face pressed into the couch, and the Accused was laying behind her with his face near CS3 A.R.'s buttocks.[31] CS3 A.R.'s hair was covering most of her face.[32] YN3 Monaghan did not observe movement from CS3 A.R. or hear her breathing, but did hear snoring from the Accused.[33]

e. When PSSN Gordillocruz departed the barracks room at approximately 0630 for work, the Accused was laying on the torso of CS3 A.R., who was laying on her back naked.[34] PSSN Gordillocruz described them as near the couch and had to jump over them to leave the barracks room.[35] Neither the Accused nor CS3 A.R. responded.[36]

f. Moreover, FCC Parker recently provided that when arrived at approximately 0855 to perform a wellness check on the Accused, he knocked on the door to the Accused's bedroom for a minute before he answered.[37] Despite this repeated knocking, CS3 A.R. lay in bed unmoving covered by a blanket.[38] FCC Parker provided CS3 A.R. did not move, speak, or acknowledge him in any way.[39] The Accused also pressured FCC Parker to leave the room by telling him that CS3 A.R. was not clothed, but was okay and that he would take care of her.[40] FCC Parker trusted the Accused when he told him that CS3 A.R. was simply asleep.[41]

8. Prior to being murdered, CS3 A.R. made several statements relevant to this case. For example:

a. The above-described call for help to ET3 Rich at 0214 on 29 May 2025.

b. CS3 A.R. exchanged messages with CS3 Gladis Garciabarrera, USN, on 28 May 2025 prior to arriving at the Accused's barracks room and while with the Accused that night.[42]

c. At 2322 on 28 May 2025, while with the Accused, CS3 A.R. texted HT3 Michael Gillespie "Fuck you" without context.[43]

9. On 29 October 2025, the Defense requested production of Mr. Junrojel Miguel because he "has had his own experiences and personal knowledge with CS3 A.R. when she experienced 'episodes' and also described having to closely monitor CS3 A.R. to prevent her from overdosing."[44] The Defense also identified a desire to question HT3 Gillispie and ET3 Rich along the same lines.[45] Separately, the Defense indicated a desire to question LSC Robert Janson, USN, about CS3 A.R.'s "mental decline and stress before CS3 A.R. was admitted to NMC Portsmouth and after she returned."[46] The Defense proffered that "[h]is testimony provides context to show the timeline of CS3 A.R.'s mental decline based on what he perceived on [sic] her at work."[47] Similarly, the Defense seeks to question Mr. Brian Teelez Mendez about text messages CS3 A.R. sent regarding "how toxic her division's chain of command was" and tie it to "her overall mental health issues and stress."[48] And finally, the Defense seeks to also question CSSN Gladis Garciabarrera, USN, about her "personal knowledge of CSSN A.R.'s mental health issues/struggles."[49]

LX at 9(i). FCC Parker most recently explained that he observed "movement," but believed the movement could have been light filtering in from the window or something else other than CS3 A.R. BURDEN

11. The proponent of the evidence bears the burden to demonstrate the admissibility of the evidence they seek to admit.[50]

LAW

12. "Evidence is relevant if: (a) it has any tendency to make a fact more or less probable than it would be without the evidence; and (b) the fact is of consequence in determining the action."[51] When evidence offers any amount of probative value, "[t]he military judge may exclude relevant evidence if the probative value is substantially outweighed by a danger of one or more of the following: unfair prejudice, confusing the issues, misleading the members, undue delay, wasting time, or needlessly presenting cumulative evidence."[52]

13. In United States v. Becker, the victim fell from a window and died after landing on the ground below.[53] At issue was whether she had committed suicide or had been pushed.[54] The Navy-Marine Corps Court of Criminal Appeals (NMCCA) held that even in a case of this nature, the probative value of text messages sent months prior which did not directly state that the victim was suicidal were of marginal probative value as they did not "reflect [the victim's] mental state at the time of her death at all."[55]

14. When a statement is made out-of-court by a declarant who "was under the stress of excitement" of a startling event or condition, it is admissible under M.R.E. 803(2) as an exception to the rule against hearsay. "The implicit premise [of the exception] is that a person who reacts to a startling event or condition while under the stress of excitement caused thereby will speak truthfully because of a lack of opportunity to fabricate."[56] To be admissible under this rule, "(1) the statement must be spontaneous, excited, or impulsive rather than the product of reflection and deliberation; (2) the event that prompts the utterance must be startling; and (3) the declarant must be under the stress of excitement caused by the event."[57] Relevant to the third prong, is "the lapse of time between the startling event and the statement, whether the statement was made in response to an inquiry, the age of the declarant, the physical and mental condition of the declarant, the characteristics of the event, and the subject matter of the statement."[58] The time that passes "between a startling event and an utterance, while a factor in determining whether the declarant was under the stress of excitement caused by the event, is not dispositive of that issue."[59] Text messages can qualify as excited utterances.[60] And "the startling event does not have to be the actual crime itself, but rather may be a related occurrence that causes such a reaction."[61] Of note, "M.R.E. 803(2), [excited utterance], in contrast with M.R.E. 803(1), present sense impression, does not contain a corroboration requirement."[62]

15. "A statement describing or explaining an event or condition, made while or immediately after the declarant perceived it" is admissible as an exception to the rule against hearsay as a present sense impression.[63] There must be some indicia of reliability that the event described actually occurred in admitting a present sense impression.[64]

16. Military Rule of Evidence 804(b)(6) allows into evidence "[a] statement offered against a party that wrongfully caused or acquiesced in wrongfully causing the declarant's unavailability as a witness, and did so intending that result" as an exception to the rule against hearsay. For a statement to be admissible under this rule, "(1) the party against whom the statement is offered must have wrongfully caused the declarant's unavailability as a witness, and (2) the party caused the witness' unavailability with the intent to make that witness unavailable, i.e. that the accused intended their conduct to prevent the witness from testifying against them in court."[65]

17. With respect to the second prong, "the party's intent, in causing the declarant's unavailability, need not be motivated solely by the desire to prevent the declarant's would-be testimony, rather, only that it was a motivating factor in the party's decision to take such an action."[66] The Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) has held that there must be some evidence that the accused "was engaged in behaviors intended to isolate the victim from outside help."[67]

ARGUMENT

A. ABHAN C.R.'s text messages to CSSN Cuestabravo were excited utterances made under the stress of the Accused's fresh assault.

18. While still crying and unable to sleep, ABHAN C.R. sent a string of text messages to CSSN Cuestabravo explaining that a startling event had just occurred. These messages are admissible as an excited utterance, as ABHAN C.R. was still under the stress of that startling event: a violent sexual assault. In assessing "the lapse of time between the startling event and the statement, whether the statement was made in response to an inquiry, the age of the declarant, the physical and mental condition of the declarant, the characteristics of the event, and the subject matter of the statement," all factors favor admission. Primarily, the event occurred close in time, the statements were not made in response to an inquiry, the event itself was extremely violating and stress-inducing, and the subject matter of the statements indicate great excitement.

B. CSSN S.R.'s statements when confronting the Accused were excited utterances.

19. CSSN S.R. was pushed and strangled by the Accused. She then left before returning and waited outside of his barracks room for an opportunity to re-enter and gather her belongings. When she did so, she was again confronted by her assailant. She repeatedly accused him of violently assaulting her during the stress and excitement of that interaction. Again, "the lapse of time between the startling event and the statement, whether the statement was made in response to an inquiry, the age of the declarant, the physical and mental condition of the declarant, the characteristics of the event, and the subject matter of the statement," all favor admission of these statements as excited utterances.[68] CSSN S.R. was extremely troubled by what her boyfriend, the Accused, had done to her. It was completely out of character for him and nearly ended her life. While some time passed between the event and the confrontation, CSSN S.R. remained nearby, upset. And when CSSN S.R. confronted the Accused, that confrontation was in and of itself highly stress-inducing and energized. "[T]he startling event does not have to be the actual crime itself, but rather may be a related occurrence that causes such a reaction."[69] As such, CSSN S.R.'s communications during that confrontation should be admitted as excited utterances.

C. Y.J.'s loud and desperate plea for the Accused to stop sexually assaulting her is admissible as an excited utterance.

20. Y.J.'s pleas for the Accused to "stop" as he penetrated her against her will inside his bedroom. Y.J.'s desperate requests were loud and frantic enough for two other Sailors to intervene and rescue her from the Accused. These pleas for help were excited utterances made under the stress of the sexual assault she was experiencing at the hands of the Accused.

D. PSSN Gordillocruz's text messages are admissible as present sense impressions.

68. Donaldson, 58 M.J. at 483.
69. Id. (quoting Loosiah, 129 F. App'x at 438).

21. When PSSN Gordillocruz arrived at his barracks, he texted "I just got home" and "I'm in my room now."[70] These text messages were sent as he arrived at his barracks and later his room. As such, they are statements "describing or explaining an event or condition, made while or immediately after the declarant perceived it" and admissible as present sense impressions.[71]

E. The Accused murdered CS3 A.R. and did so with the intent to prevent her from obtaining help and becoming a witness against him.

22. First, the Accused murdered CS3 A.R. at approximately 0214 on 29 May 2025. She made a call for help at that time and then was never heard from again despite repeated attempts to contact her. CS3 A.R. was later found deceased in the Accused's suitcase in the woods on 9 June 2025 and a mountain of digital and other forensic evidence demonstrates that it was the Accused who placed her there.[72] All three of the Accused's roommates and Chief Parker mistook CS3 A.R. to be sleeping on 29 May 2025, when she was instead already deceased.

23. Second, the Accused murdered CS3 A.R. to prevent her from obtaining help and becoming a witness against him. The Accused was aware of two separate reported allegations of sexual misconduct against him at the time CS3 A.R. came to his barracks and had an extreme suicidal reaction to the second of those allegations.[73] CS3 A.R. was described as naked by all three of the Accused's roommates on the morning of 29 May 2025. And just days later, the Accused advised CS2 Taylor that CS3 A.R. had made a sexual advance towards him, but he had declined and this upset her.[74] Whatever occurred prior to CS3 A.R.'s call to ET3 Rich at 0214 on 29 May 2025, the Accused did not want CS3 A.R. to speak with someone about it and this motivated him to murder her.

24. As such, statements made by CS3 A.R. prior to her death are admissible by the Government as any objection is forfeited by the Accused's wrongdoing.

F. CS3 A.R.'s panicked call to ET3 Rich is alternatively admissible as an excited utterance.

25. When CS3 A.R. called ET3 Rich at 0214 on 29 May 2025, he described her as frantic and "freaking out."[75] She was repeatedly requesting to be picked up as soon as possible. CS3 A.R. was frantic and panicked during the call, demonstrating that she was still under the stress or excitement of whatever event had just occurred. "[T]he lapse of time between the startling event and the statement, whether the statement was made in response to an inquiry, the age of the declarant, the physical and mental condition of the declarant, the characteristics of the event, and the subject matter of the statement" all favor admission here.[76] Moreover, no independent corroboration of the underlying event is needed for admission of an excited utterance.[77]

F. The Defense's unspecific evidence of general mental health issues CS3 A.R. had in the past are not relevant and any minor probative value is substantially outweighed by the risk of unfair prejudice. This evidence is also inadmissible hearsay.

26. There is no evidence that CS3 A.R. committed suicide. As such, any testimony suggesting as much is irrelevant, speculative, and misleading.

27. Primarily, the autopsies in this case determined that CS3 A.R. did not overdose on medication.[78] As such, any evidence suggesting that CS3 A.R. was at risk of overdosing on medication is flatly irrelevant. And beyond the low level of alcohol detected in CS3 A.R.'s remains, the Accused has never indicated that CS3 A.R. was intoxicated.[79] In sum, taking aside the extensive evidence that the Accused murdered CS3 A.R., there is no evidence CS3 A.R. committed suicide, and any testimony suggesting as much is not relevant.

28. Similarly, any testimony that CS3 A.R. had poor "mental health" or otherwise was "struggling" is completely irrelevant and speculative. There is no evidence that CS3 A.R. expressed suicidal ideation at the time she was with the Accused on 28 and 29 May 2025. To the contrary, her spending at Target on 28 May 2025,[80] along with her happy messages to CSSN Garcia-Barrera that evening indicate quite the opposite.[81] As such, any speculation about how CS3 A.R. was feeling is irrelevant and misleading. This includes any "episodes" that CS3 A.R. purportedly experienced, as any evidence about these "episodes" are just as speculative as applied to the facts here. Just as the NMCCA held in Becker—a case where suicidal ideation was hotly contested—this speculative, indirect evidence of suicidal ideation is not relevant.

29. Moreover, even if marginally relevant, Defense is unable to lay a foundation for this evidence. First, each witness which purports knowledge of her mental health lacks qualifications of a mental health provider and thus can only offer improper lay opinions regarding any alleged mental health ailment. Additionally, the basis for those opinions, if any exist, was likely provided by CS3 A.R. and thus the witnesses lack personal knowledge and would rely solely on what CS3 A.R. told them about her mental health. For example, if a witness personally observed an "episode" they could testify as to what they observed, i.e., crying or a distraught look. However, to the extent that CS3 A.R. described to these witnesses what caused these episodes or later described what the episodes depicted, CS3 A.R.'s statements to these witnesses are hearsay. The same reasoning applies to any testimony about her medication or mental health treatment. These witnesses cannot testify to hearsay and no exception exists to allow them to do so.

30. As applied to the specific witnesses the Defense has requested production of, all would provide only inadmissible evidence with respect to this issue based on the Defense's proffer:

a. Mr. Junrojel Miguel, ET3 Daniel Rich, and HT3 Michael Gillispie: Cannot testify to CS3 A.R.'s "episodes" aside from their personal observations of how CS3 A.R. behaved during an "episode." And any input they received from CS3 A.R. is inadmissible hearsay. Even then, there is no evidence to tie CS3 A.R. having an "episode" to what occurred in this case, making this testimony irrelevant. No witness can say CS3 A.R. was suffering from an "episode" during her evening with the Accused. At most, ET3 Rich can provide his recollection of how CS3 A.R. was behaving on her call for help, but he cannot provide lay testimony that this was an "episode." These witnesses also cannot testify about monitoring CS3 A.R.'s medication to ensure she did not overdose. Any statements made to them on this point by CS3 A.R. are inadmissible hearsay and are otherwise irrelevant when applied to what occurred here. Moreover, these witnesses are not medical providers and have no expertise on the dangers of CS3 A.R.'s medication—of which none were found in her remains. Even if this evidence was admissible, there is no link to the facts of what occurred here. By all accounts, CS3 A.R. was not depressed or suicidal on 28 or 29 May 2025 and there is no evidence that she overdosed or otherwise committed suicide

b. LSC Robert Janson: LSC Janson's testimony about CS3 A.R.'s "mental decline" would be complete speculation. LSC Janson also cannot tie these observations to CS3 A.R.'s behavior on 28 or 29 May, making this testimony irrelevant. Of note, while inadmissible hearsay, LSC Janson provided that "[t]here was no suicidal ideation involved" with respect to CS3 A.R.'s issues and tied any issues specifically to her workload.[82] As such, this line of questioning would not even be in good faith.

c. Brian Teelez Mendez: Any messages CS3 A.R. shared with Mr. Mendez are inadmissible hearsay. Moreover, these messages cannot be tied in any relevant manner to suicidal ideation, let alone to the murder that occurred on 29 May 2025.

d. CSSN Gladis Garciabarrera: Any testimony about CS3 A.R.'s "mental health issues/struggles" is again inadmissible hearsay not tethered to CS3 A.R.'s night with the Accused. And, contrary to the Defense's proffer, CSSN Garciabarrera provided that CS3 A.R. was happy that day and never told her she had mental health issues.[83] Any questions suggesting the opposite would be in bad faith.

14. Redaction. The following information shall be redacted in accordance with JAGMAN 1059 from the record of trial prior to releasing it to any accused or victim (including any transcript made pursuant to R.C.M. 1114 and attached to the record of trial) unless the information establishes an element of an offense, or is otherwise required:

a. Any recordings of closed sessions, any transcripts of closed sessions, and any sealed exhibits.

b. Names of minor victims, and names of minor witnesses. If an identifier is used, use only the initials.

c. Social Security Numbers.

d. Financial account information.

e. Home addresses.

f. Telephone numbers.

g. Personal e-mail addresses.

h. Dates of birth.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

i. Any other information that could be used to identify a specific person other than the accused.

*If the report of preliminary hearing or record of trial contains exhibits, proceedings, or other materials ordered sealed by the preliminary hearing officer or military judge, counsel for the Government, the court reporter, or trial counsel shall cause such materials to be sealed to prevent unauthorized examination or disclosure, pursuant to R.C.M. 1113. Sealed material shall be properly marked, individually placed in separate envelopes with a copy of the preliminary hearing officer or military judge sealing order affixed to it, and inserted at the appropriate place in the record of trial. Do not duplicate sealed material to include it in any copy of the record of trial. Instead, insert a copy of the sealing order in lieu of any sealed material, in any copies of the record of trial.

DIVIDERS ARE NOT NECESSARY TO SEPARATE EACH SECTION. IF USED, THEY CAN BE PAPER RATHER THAN CARD STOCK. IF A PARTICULAR COMPONENT IS NOT APPLICABLE IN THE RECORD OF TRIAL, SUCH AS AN ARTICLE 32 HEARING, EXHIBITS NOT ADMITTED, POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND VACATION HEARINGS, DO NOT INSERT A DIVIDER OR PLACEHOLDER.

FRONT AND BACK COVER MUST BE ON BLUE CARDS STOCK AND LABELED WITH GUM LABELS.

Binding. Each volume of a record of trial should be no more than 1.5 inches thick and bound at the top with metal or plastic fasteners. DO NOT interlace or "piggy-back" prong fasteners to create an oversized volume. DO NOT place hole punches where it covers up the evidence or language in the transcript. When it becomes necessary to assemble the record of trial in more than one volume, the volumes will be numbered consecutively, on the front cover, as illustrated below:

Volume 1 of 4 (Pages 1-250)
Volume 2 of 4 (Pages 251-400)
Volume 3 of 4 (Pages 401-652)
Volume 4 of 4 (Pages 653-901 and Exhibits)

Make the first volume of a multi-volume record an inch thick or smaller to allow for inclusion of post-trial documents. Limit subsequent volumes to 1.5 inches, unless dividing them requires assembling an additional volume smaller than a half inch.

Label the upper right-hand corner or the Preparation and Certification of Record of Trial Form (enclosure (8)) to reflect which copy it is, i.e., "ORIGINAL," "ACCUSED," "REVIEW" etc.

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
[redacted]

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF [redacted]

1. As background, on 26Jul24 NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75) was notified by MA1 Ronald CORTESELLI, USN, CVN 75, of an unrestricted reported of sexual assault aboard the ship that occurred on 23Jul24 at approximately 0200 hours. MA1 CORTESELLI reported ABHAN [redacted], USN, CVN 75, reported CSSN Jermiah Taylor COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, grabbed her vulva, breasts, and buttocks over the clothing while applying pressure to her neck so that it was difficult for her to breathe.

2. On 06Aug24 at approximately 2030 hours, [redacted] was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) aboard CVN 75, while at sea in compartment 02-88-4-Q. IT2 Morgan RODRIGUEZ, USN, Uniform Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, was present for the entirety of the interview.

3. The interview was audio and video recorded in its entirety utilizing the CaseCracker system. This report serves as a synopsis of the interview and does not necessarily describe the information in the order in which it was discussed. For a verbatim account, please refer to the digital recording; Enclosure (A) pertains.

4. [redacted] related she is in a relationship with CSSN Fernando CUESTABRAVO, USN, CVN 75, and was in the mess decks with him in the early morning hours of 23Jul24 when he stated he was going to sleep. [redacted] stated after CSSN CUESTABRAVO left, she began receiving SnapChat snaps from S/COPELAND, who stated he was headed to the ship and expressed he wanted to talk to her about CSSN CUESTABRAVO. [redacted] agreed, and stated S/COPELAND arrived and requested the pair go somewhere private to talk.

5. After arriving to the area of the fantail, S/COPELAND told V/[redacted] that CSSN CUESTABRAVO was talking to other women and asserted CSSN CUESTABRAVO was not treating [redacted] the way she should be treated. [redacted] related S/COPELAND suggested SHE engage in a relationship with him (S/COPELAND) to "get back at" CSSN CUESTABRAVO. [redacted] stated she told S/COPELAND she did not "do those types of things." [redacted] recalled discussing her relationship with S/COPELAND for a short period of time before S/COPELAND began to play a "game" with her wherein he pretended to arrest her. [redacted] stated S/COPELAND forced her hands behind her back and grabbed her vulva over the clothing.

6. V/ROGERS related she turned around and punched S/COPELAND in the stomach.

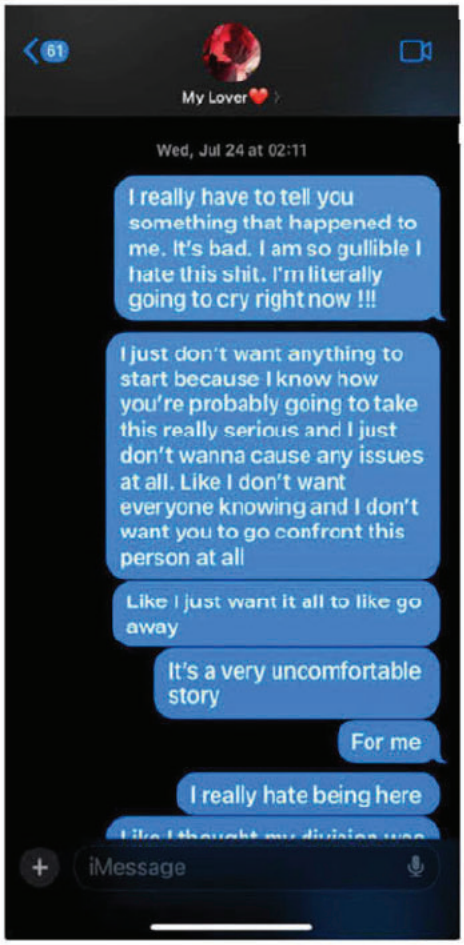
V/C.R. related S/COPLEAND told her he heard she liked to be choked, at which time S/COPELAND applied pressure to her neck with one hand so that it was difficult for V/C.R. to breathe. V/C.R. recalled pushing S/COPELAND's hand away from her throat but that he would immediately replace it and keep applying pressure. While applying pressure to her neck, V/C.R. recalled S/COPELAND kissed her on the lips and grabbed her breasts, buttocks, and vulva over the clothing. V/C.R. related the physical contact lasted approximately a minute before S/COPELAND stopped of his own accord. V/C.R. stated she told S/COPELAND she was going to bed and left the fantail.

7. V/C.R. recalled being unsure if she should tell CSSN CUESTABRAVO because she was worried about his reaction, but texted him about what happened. V/C.R. stated CSSN CUESTABRAVO encouraged her to report the incident. V/C.R. stated she called the Sexual Assault Prevention and Response (SAPR) phone number she found on a poster aboard the ship, and was informed to get in touch with shipboard SAPR personnel. V/C.R. stated she did not know how, so CSSN CUESTABRAVO reported the incident to Security. V/C.R. stated she had bruising on her neck that CSSN CUESTABRAVO observed, but that it was now gone.



8. V/C.R. stated she told her Chief, CSC Gregory SIMMONS, USN, CVN 75, about the incident. V/C.R. related CSSN Jalen OWENS, USN, CVN 75, told CSSN CUESTABRAVO that S/COPELAND told her (CSSN OWENS) that V/C.R. had reported him.

9. V/C.R. provided RA screen shots of the texts she sent to CSSN CUESTABRAVA via Air Drop, and signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) denoting her consent; Enclosure (B) pertains. The screen shots were subsequently placed on an NCIS Photographic Template for inclusion into the case file; Enclosure (C) pertains.

11. At the conclusion of the interview, V/C.R. was provided a DD Form 2701 Victim Witness Assistance Pamphlet (VWAP).

[redacted] PII

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN [redacted] V/S.R. USN

1. On 07JUL25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Jessica GOKEY conducted an interview of CSSN [redacted] V/S.R., USN, Naval Station Norfolk (NAVSTA NORFOLK), VA, at NCISRA Norfolk, VA, regarding her prior relationship with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95).

2. As background, [redacted] V/S.R. was identified as a prior girlfriend of S/COPELAND who may possess information relevant to the investigation.

3. The interview of [redacted] V/S.R. was recorded using an audio/video recording system, and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

4. [redacted] V/S.R. stated she and S/COPELAND began dating circa MAR25, and the relationship lasted for approximately one (1) month. [redacted] V/S.R. stated she met S/COPELAND while assigned to DDG-95, and worked together. According to [redacted] V/S.R., the relationship began as a friendship and developed into a romantic relationship. [redacted] V/S.R. described S/COPELAND initially as "a cool person." [redacted] V/S.R. stated most of their interactions occurred while under the influence of alcohol, as S/COPELAND regularly encouraged drinking. [redacted] V/S.R. reported the relationship ended due to S/COPELAND becoming violent and dishonest about his involvement with his ex-girlfriend, identified as "Dess" (NFI).

5. [redacted] V/S.R. stated on 11APR25, while in S/COPELAND's barracks room, located at Willis Manor building X-2, Room 335, Naval Station Norfolk, VA, she accessed S/COPELAND's phone and discovered messages which indicated S/COPELAND was still in a relationship with his ex-girlfriend. Upon confronting S/COPELAND, [redacted] V/S.R. stated he became "visibly upset". According to [redacted] V/S.R. S/COPELAND pushed her onto the couch and placed both hands around her neck for approximately four to five (4-5) seconds. [redacted] V/S.R. stated while she was being strangled, S/COPELAND smiled and appeared "extremely angry", stated, "it was like he was someone else." [redacted] V/S.R. reported after S/COPELAND released her, she broke his PlayStation 5 out of anger and exited the room. [redacted] V/S.R. stated she attempted to retrieve her belongings but was denied reentry by S/COPELAND. According to [redacted] V/S.R., her personal items were never recovered.

6. V/S.R. stated S/COPELAND's roommate (NFI) falsely reported to the responding law enforcement personnel she attempted to stab S/COPELAND and was the aggressor, despite being the victim. V/S.R. stated when she explained the incident to law enforcement, she was discouraged from reporting the strangulation, as they stated it would "just make the situation worse" (NFI). Following the interview, V/S.R. requested an investigation be initiated for the details she provided to NCIS.

7. At the conclusion of the interview, V/S.R. was provided a Victim Witness Assistance Pamphlet (VWAP).

Subj: GOVERNMENT DISCLOSURE: CONVERSATION WITH YN3 SEAN MONAGHAN, USN.

Ref: (a) R.C.M. 701 (MCM 2024)
(b) Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963)
(c) Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972)
(d) JAGINST 5803.1E (20 Jan 15) Rule 3.8

1. On 9 February 2026, CDR Lauren Mayo, JAGC, USN, LCDR Chris Dempsey, JAGC, USN, and LN1 Kathleen Vanetti, USN, spoke to YN3 Sean Monaghan, USN in person. The following disclosures are provided:

a. Prior to Copeland arriving as a roommate at approximately the end of 2024, YN3 Monaghan had the barracks room to himself.
b. YN3 Monaghan stated that on Wednesday, 28 May 25, he returned to the barracks after driving 5 hours back from New Jersey, where he had been on leave. He had gone to bed early as he had watch the next morning. He is typically a heavy sleeper but had heard his roommate Copeland and an unknown female (V/ A. R.) go in and out of the bedroom several times before he fully fell asleep. There was loud rap music being played in the common room.
c. The next morning, 29 May 25, YN3 left his bedroom at around 0545 and saw Copeland and V/ A. R. on the floor right in front of his bedroom door. YN3 believed Copeland was snoring but he heard no noise from V/A.R. V/A. R. was on her side with her face, it appeared, pressed into the couch. Her hair was covering most of her face. Copeland was lying on his side behind V/A. R., also facing the couch, with his face near V/A. R.'s buttocks (sketch attached). YN3 Monaghan described them as almost spooning.
d. Both Copeland and V/A. R. appeared to be naked and YN3 looked away to be respectful. He noticed clothing over the side of the couch and Copeland's black backpack on a bar stool. YN3 did not recall seeing any other bags, or anything that looked like a female's bag, in the room. He said he did not stop to check if they were breathing.
e. YN3 stated that the common room was quiet; there was no music playing or television on. The lights were off and the shades were pulled mostly down. The bedroom door across from the common room (Calisse and Gordillocruz's door) was open, leading YN3 to think they had both already left for work.
f. There was a half-full Buzzball bottle on the counter and other alcohol containers around the room (possibly Vodka bottle and beers). YN3 assumed that Copeland and V/A. R. were passed out from drinking alcohol.
g. When YN3 returned from watch at approximately 1300, he asked Copeland if he and V/A. R. were naked in the common room that morning. Copeland responded that they were wearing underwear. The common room had been cleaned up with the exception of a sticky spot where the Buzzball had been.

h. When asked about his relationship with Copeland, YN3 stated that he did not have one. He drove Copeland places 2 or 3 times when he needed a ride, but did not socialize with Copeland or the other roommates. YN3 stated that he typically went to work and returned to his room to play video games.
i. Prior to this incident, YN3 Monaghan recalled that Copeland bragged about going UA multiple times and about his ability to call others to make people disappear. YN3 thought that Copeland was trying to portray the image of a gangster.
j. YN3 does not have knowledge of Copeland ever being in YN3's bed. When shown a photo taken on Copeland's phone on the morning of 29May25, YN3 confirmed it appeared to be of his bed.
k. YN3 did not question Copeland about V/A. R.
l. When asked about the air fresheners placed in his bedroom, YN3 Monaghan reported that his Chief had placed one under his bed and one near Copeland's desk when the Chief assisted in cleaning the room. YN3 clarified that his Chief and First Class assisted with his room cleaning because a high-level barracks inspection had been announced that day. YN3 added that Copeland often lit a red Yankee candle on his desk, but could not recall if he had done that that weekend.
m. When asked about the condom wrapper discovered in the bedroom, YN3 Monaghan stated that there was no possibility it was his.
n. YN3 provided that he did not let Copeland borrow his car the weekend of V/ A.R.'s disappearance and YN3 also did not leave the barracks room. When he did return to his car, he was certain it had been parked in a different spot from where he left it. YN3 Monaghan believed he had just confused himself and was paranoid. YN3 left his keys out in the open and it's possible Copeland took his car. YN3 did not notice anything off about his car when he did later drive it.
o. YN3 Monaghan stated that he distinctly remembers the sound of suitcase wheels rolling out of the bedroom, and the door closing, in the early a.m. hours during the time frame of the investigation but could not specifically recall if it was the day before, or just after, the room inspection.
p. Over the weekend that he was UA, YN3 described Copeland as wearing the same clothing each day, which was unusual for him. He described it as a black hoodie with a yellow graphic on the hood that he had up. YN3 described him as skittish and constantly paranoid. The previously mentioned suggestion from Copeland to YN3 to get out and be more social occurred sometime prior to the weekend V/A.R. went missing.
q. The previously mentioned time that Copeland asked YN3 for a ride to the gate at 0400 may not have been during that weekend.
r. YN3 noted that around the time of NCIS's search of the room, the other two roommates mentioned that the night V/ A. R. was there, they had heard weird noises in the common room, like crying and banging. YN3 did not personally hear that.
s. Copeland would sleep with two phones in his bed at night.
t. YN3 Monaghan was then asked about what if anything he had witnessed between CSSN Copeland and V/S.R.

u. YN3 had on a headset and was playing video games while Copeland and V/S.R. were in the common area on the couch. YN3 heard the front door close, but did not hear anything prior to that.
v. Early that morning, around 0640, YN3 left to go get McDonald's. When he opened the door to leave, V/S.R. pushed past him and came into the room. YN3 decided to stay in the room.
w. YN3 did not observe any marks on V/S.R.'s neck, but provided it's possible there were marks because he is unsure how marks might look on dark skin.
x. YN3 stated V/S.R. entered the room with a multitool. YN3 provided a screenshot of the item that V/S.R. had in her hand when she came into the barracks room.
y. V/S.R. placed the multitool down and YN3 grabbed it and put it on his desk for safety.
z. V/S.R. was present in the room for a long time. She was yelling at Copeland, accusing him of choking her and putting his hands on her. Copeland remained calm throughout the encounter and at one point opened his barracks closet. V/S.R. grabbed his PS5 and smashed it on the floor.
aa. Copeland told YN3 that she was crazy and was just someone he was seeing on the ship.

UNITED STATES v. JERMIAH COPELAND CSSN/ E-3 USN	R.C.M. 701(a) DISCLOSURE

On 5 September 2025, CDR Lauren Mayo and LT Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, interviewed CS2 Rezan Taylor, USN, in the presence of Ms. Marie Reddish at Building A-50. The following is a summary of the interaction and is not intended to be verbatim:

CS2 Taylor described a call he received from CSSN S.R. on 11 April 2025 at 0604. He stated the call was approximately 10 minutes long. During the call he overheard CSSN S.R. arguing with CSSN Copeland. CS2 Taylor heard CSSN S.R. state that CSSN Copeland had placed his hands on her and CSSN Copeland was stating that CSSN V/S.R. had a knife. CS2 Taylor advised CSSN V/S.R. to leave and at 0654 she texted him that she had left. CS2 Taylor provided phone screenshots of these events.

CS3 Taylor learned later that CSSN S.R. had left and returned to CSSN Copeland's barracks, but he was not sure if the time she called him was the first or second time she was at CSSN Copeland's barracks room.

CS2 Taylor stated that he interacted with CSSN S.R. on a daily basis and based on his interactions found her to be a truthful person. He could not opine on her reputation for truthfulness among the crew.

CS2 Taylor advised that FCC Brad Parker, USN, was an interim Chief in the supply division. CS2 Taylor stated that FCC Parker was a dirt bag who failed to take initiative and did not do much.

CS2 Taylor advised he had spoken previously with CSSN Copeland about a speeding allegation.

CS2 Taylor also advised that on 9 June 25, while CSSN Copeland was on restriction, CS2 Taylor asked CSSN Copeland what happened between him and CS3 A.R. CS2 Taylor stated that CSSN Copeland advised CS3 A.R. was at his barracks room, they had been drinking alcohol, and the two began making out. CSSN Copeland then stated that CS3 A.R. wanted it to go further, but he stopped it. CS2 Taylor provided that he doubted CSSN Copeland was mature enough to have stopped the encounter at that point, but did not press him further. CS2 Taylor stated that he got the impression from CSSN Copeland that this all occurred in CSSN Copeland's bed. CS2 Taylor also provided that CSSN Copeland told him that CS3 A.R. left on her own the next morning. CS2 Taylor thought that was odd, because others had told him that CSSN Copeland had told them that he dropped her off at her barracks.

CS2 Taylor provided that CS3 A.R. was a great person who was very special. She was a great worker with a bubbly, strong personality. CS2 Taylor thought it was odd that she was with CSSN Copeland that night as there was no indication of a preexisiting relationship – other than professional.

A separate investigative action of this conversation will not be documented by NCIS.

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
[redacted]

INTERIVEW OF [redacted], CIV

1. On 24JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) conducted a cold call in an attempt to identify the owner of the phone number [redacted]", who was thought to have been a minor child engaged in sexual activity with CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). The phone number was found during a review of S/COPELAND's cell phone during a separate investigation.

2. [redacted], CIV, was identified as being a 19 year old dependent who was sexually assaulted by S/COPELAND. [redacted] explained she was not comfortable having a formal interview conducted at that time, however, she would tell RA what happened over the phone.

3. During the phone call, [redacted] stated she knew S/COPELAND and had a one-night stand with him sometime in the beginning of the summer in 2025. [redacted] described S/COPELAND as giving off "weird vibes" and he would constantly ask her to come over.

4. [redacted] explained on the night of the sexual assault, she had been picked up by two other males, Omar (NFI) and Jaden (NFI). After being picked up by them, [redacted] said they drove her back to S/COPELAND's barracks room located on Naval Station Norfolk and they engaged in a consensual 3-way. [redacted] explained S/COPELAND was not present however, he did return to his barracks room sometime between 0500-0600. [redacted] stated the 3-way was over and she was very tired. However, when S/COPELAND arrived at his barracks room, [redacted] said he grabbed her by the arm and pulled her into his room. [redacted] stated S/COPELAND wanted her to give him "head" or oral sex, and [redacted] said she told S/COPELAND "no" and that she was "tired." [redacted] explained S/COPELAND then attempted to penetrate her vagina and she stated it was painful and hurt when S/COPELAND penetrated her. [redacted] said she told S/COPELAND to "stop." [redacted] explained Omar was at the door and could hear her telling S/COPELAND to stop. [redacted] further explained Omar entered the room and was able to get [redacted] out of the situation. [redacted] said she told Omar "thank you" and left the barracks room.

5. V/Y.J. stated she had not spoken to S/COPELAND since the sexual assault occurred but when the "sailor girl" further clarified as CSSN V/A.R. went missing she spoke to Omar and Jaden in person and they had discussed the circumstances around her disappearance. V/Y.J. could not give details as to what they exactly talked about, however, V/Y.J. explained both Omar and Jaden stopped being friends with S/COPELAND due to V/A.R. missing.

6. At the conclusion of the interview, RA asked V/Y.J. if she would be willing to participate in the investigation. V/Y.J. stated she was not sure if she wanted to participate.

1. On 05AUG25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Lisa CARROLL conducted an interview of AEAN Jdyn BRADFORD, USN, USS DWIGHT D EISENHOWER (CVN-69) in regard to the captioned investigation.

2. This interview was audio and video recorded utilizing Case Cracker. A copy of the recording was subsequently saved to an optical disc and maintained with the case file. This report should not be treated as a verbatim or comprehensive representation of the interview; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. AEAN BRADFORD stated LSSA Omeri SMOOT, USN, CVN-69, and [redacted V/Y.J.] [redacted V/Y.J.], CIV were all hanging out in CSSN Jermiah COPELAND's (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG-95) barracks room on 25MAY25. AEAN BRADFORD explained S/COPELAND was not in the barracks room but returned around 0300-0400. AEAN BRADFORD stated when S/COPELAND entered the barracks room he went right to [redacted V/Y.J.] and gave her a hug. AEAN BRADFORD stated the next thing he realized, as he was on a phone call, S/COPELAND and [redacted V/Y.J.] were in S/COPELAND's bedroom and the door was locked. AEAN BRADFORD stated he could hear [redacted V/Y.J.] say "no" and that she was "tired". AEAN BRADFORD explained he and LSSA SMOOT kept telling S/COPELAND to stop, and eventually S/COPELAND opened the door. AEAN BRADFORD observed V/JIMENEZ on the floor of S/COPELAND's room in what was described as someone who may have "rag dolled" onto the floor. AEAN BRADFORD explained [redacted V/Y.J.] did not have a shirt on but did have a bra and pants on. AEAN BRADFORD stated S/COPELAND told everyone to get out of the barracks room due to him having to go to work. AEAN BRADFORD explained he took [redacted V/Y.J.] home and on the way home [redacted V/Y.J.] told him S/COPELAND attempted to make her perform oral sex on S/COPELAND.

4. AEAN BRADFORD expressed his concerns for [redacted V/Y.J.] AEAN BRADFORD further clarified he was not going to let [redacted V/Y.J.] stay there as he was concerned what S/COPELAND might do to her if left alone with her. AEAN BRADFORD stated he never confronted S/COPELAND about the assault and did not speak to him

On 5 September 2025, CDR Lauren Mayo and LT Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, interviewed ET3 Daniel Rich, USN, in the presence of Ms. Marie Rendell and Special Agent Jessica Gokey, NCIS, at RLSO MIDLANT. The following is a summary of the interaction and is not intended to be verbatim:

ET3 Rich received a call from CS3 A.R. at 0214 on 29 May 2025 that woke him up. He stated she sounded was like she was having a panic attack. She was frantic and crying. She kept repeatedly stating that she needed to be picked up as soon as possible. At some point, a male who he later assumed to be CSSN Copeland, took the phone and asked how far away he was. It was not clear if the phone was passed to him or taken from her. ET3 Rich told the male that he would be there in about 10 minutes. The male replied "all right" and CS3 A.R. was then put back on the phone. She continued to be frantic and repeatedly stated she needed to be picked up. She also told ET3 Rich that she loved him. ET3 Rich hung up after telling her he was on the way.

While the male was on the phone with ET3 Rich, his tone was frantic as well, although not as frantic as CS3 A.R.

CS3 A.R. has had panic attacks in ET3 Rich's presence before. ET3 Rich opined that one possible trigger for her panic attacks would be a sexual advance.

ET3 Rich stated he had previously speculated that CS3 A.R. was outside based solely on the location of her phone according to her shared location. He advised he only believed that he heard car noises in the background because of that belief and that the background noise he heard could very well have been something else.

ET3 Rich also advised he had learned only after speaking with CS3 A.R.'s roommate later on that CS3 A.R. had lost her room key. He did not recall CS3 A.R. mentioning anything to him about having lost her room key or being locked out of her room on the phone call. He only recalled her repeatedly stating that she needed to be picked up.

A separate investigative action of this conversation will not be documented by NCIS.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN KAULISE COUSINS, USN

1. As background, on 06Nov24, NCISRU USS HARRY S TRUMAN (CVN 75), was notified by ET2 Courtney EFF, USN, Uniformed Victim Advocate (UVA), CVN 75, of a sexual assault wherein V/S.S., USN, CVN 75, reported she was sexually assaulted by CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, CVN 75, in a bathroom at a bar in Oslo, Norway, during a port call on 04Nov24 at approximately 2200 hours. During the course of the investigation, CSSN KAULISE COUSINS, USN, CVN 75, was indicated as having information in reference to the offense.

2. On 06Nov24 at approximately 1400 hours, CSSN COUSINS was interviewed by Reporting Agent (RA) in the NCIS Office aboard the ship located at 02-88-4-Q. The interview was not recorded.

3. CSSN COUSINS stated he and S/COPELAND are friends, and met in approximately September 2024 when CSSN COUSINS arrived to the ship. CSSN COUSINS stated he was liberty buddies with S/COPELAND on 05Sep24 but not on 04Sep24. CSSN COUSINS recalled he and S/COPELAND were at a bar in Oslo, Norway in the evening hours and recalled S/COPELAND was in a good mood. CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND stated he had sexual intercourse with V/S.S. the night prior and seemed happy about the interaction. CSSN COUSINS recalled S/COPELAND stated V/S.S. had been "kissing on him" and stated he had sex with her in a bathroom at a bar. CSSN COUSINS recalled being happy for his friend, but stated he personally felt badly about it because he knew V/S.S. had a boyfriend on the ship.

4. CSSN COUSINS recalled S/COPELAND left the bar to take a phone call, and when he returned he was very upset saying V/SIMPSON "put a charge on" him and that his life was ruined. CSSN COUSINS related S/COPELAND felt that because he is black, the Command would "fuck him over" and it was going to "fuck up his whole career." CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND stated he was going to kill himself in Oslo because there was no point in living. CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND refused to come back to the ship and left the bar.

5. CSSN COUSINS stated CSC Jonathan GEORGE saw CSSN COUSINS attempting to have S/COPELAND come back to the ship and attempted to help. CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND walked in front of approximately three (3) trains and opined S/COPELAND was attempting to kill himself. CSSN COUSINS recalled Shore Patrol and Security arrived and escorted S/COPELAND back to the ship.

6. When asked directly, CSSN COUSINS stated he never had S/COPELAND's cellular telephone and could not speculate as to why S/COPELAND indicated he did. CSSN COUSINS emphatically denied ever taking S/COPELAND's cellular telephone. CSSN COUSINS stated he last saw S/COPELAND on his phone at approximately 2200 hours speaking to his parents. CSSN COUSINS recalled on the liberty boat, S/COPELAND attempted to go outside and CSSN COUSINS refused to let him. CSSN COUSINS stated S/COPELAND went to the bathroom aboard the ferry and was there the entire ride back to the ship. CSSN COUSINS speculated S/COPELAND got rid of the phone in the bathroom on the liberty boat.

(b) Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963)
(c) Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972)
(d) JAGINST 5803.1E (20 Jan 15) Rule 3.8

1. On 9 February 2026, CDR Lauren Mayo, JAGC, USN, LCDR Chris Dempsey, JAGC, USN, and LN1 Kathleen Vanetti, USN, spoke to PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz, USN in the office of the CSTC. The following disclosures are provided:

a. PSSN Gordillocruz was picked up at the airport at approximately 0223 by his YN1 on 29May25. PSSN Gordillocruz had just returned from leave.
b. PSSN Gordillocruz clarified that he returned to his barracks at 0250 and his room at 0254 on 29May25 and provided text messages to support that timing. When he entered the common room of the PPV, it was quiet and relatively dark. He thinks the television might have gone into energy saving mode with a screen saver that occasionally flashed brighter when the picture changed, but no other lights were on and he did not recall any music playing.
c. When he opened the door, PSSN Gordillocruz stated that he could see V/A. R. and his roommate, Copeland, sitting on the floor near the couch next to each other. V/A. R. was hunched over with her head hanging down and Copeland looked to be holding her up with his arm around her. V/A.R. was on the side of Copeland, closest to PSSN Gordillocruz. PSSN Gordillocruz thought it was odd that they were sitting on the floor instead of the couch and he asked Copeland if V/A.R. was ok. Copeland responded by telling PSSN Gordillocruz to just go to his room, and waved him off. PSSN Gordillocruz provided this encounter lasted about 10 seconds.
d. PSSN Gordillocruz explained that V/A.R. appeared extremely intoxicated based on how she was being held up. He stated he would be shocked if she was sober. PSSN Gordillocruz explained it looked like she would fall over without Copeland having his arm around her.
e. PSSN Gordillocruz stated that V/A.R. was completely unresponsive during this exchange, did not address him, and did not move. PSSN Gordillocruz provided he had forgotten about this part of the night and had gotten confused when discussing this night in the past. When reviewing his phone records, his memory was refreshed as to what had occurred.
f. PSSN Gordillocruz continued into his bedroom and spoke with a friend from back home over the phone. PSSN Gordillocruz believed he took this call in his bathroom so as not to wake up his roommate. Approximately 30 minutes after returning to the PPV, PSSN Gordillocruz returned to the common room to get some water. He believed that V/A. R. and Copeland were laying on the couch at that time, the room was still quiet and the television was still producing the same amount of light as when he first entered the PPV. PSSN Gordillocruz could not provide a description of how Copeland and V/A.R. were laying on the couch and provided it was just a "blur." He returned to his bedroom and went to sleep.

g. After getting a few hours of sleep, PSSN Gordillocruz entered the common room at approximately 0630/0645. His roommate Calisse had already left the barracks room for work. When he opened the door to the common room, he saw V/A. R. lying on her back on the floor and her eyes were closed. He could not be certain that she was completely naked but stated that her breasts were exposed and he did not see clothes from below her knees. Copeland was lying with his head on V/ A. R.'s stomach with his eyes closed. He only took a quick glance, but both appeared to be breathing.
h. The positioning of V/A. R.'s body (as noted in PSSN Gordillocruz's attached sketch) prevented PSSN Gordillocruz from walking out of the room without jumping over V/A. R.'s feet as they were blocking the path to the front door. Neither V/A. R. nor Copeland moved when PSSN Gordillocruz left his bedroom, jumped over her feet, or left the PPV. Gordillocruz circled an area on a different photograph of where their clothes were approximately.
i. PSSN Gordillocruz stated that he did not notice any backpacks or bags in the common room. There was clothing near the couch that PSSN Gordillocruz assumed belonged to V/A. R. and Copeland. There were no signs of injury or blood in the room. The room was light by incoming sunlight and was brighter than when he had returned from leave. PSSN Gordillocruz provided that the TV was still on, but it wasn't playing anything.
j. Upon arriving at work, Calisse asked PSSN Gordillocruz if he had seen the same thing that Calisse had seen when leaving the room. Assuming that Calisse was referring to V/A. R. and Copeland being in a state of undress and asleep on the common room floor, PSSN Gordillocruz agreed because it was not normal for anyone to be in the common room like that. PSSN Gordillocruz stated that he may have mentioned to Calisse that he thought they were breathing, but he does not specifically recall saying it.
k. When PSSN Gordillocruz returned to his PPV around noon, neither V/A. R. nor Copeland were in the common room or Copeland's bedroom. He did not recall seeing Copeland again until Sunday evening when Copeland asked for a ride to the ship because he had been declared UA and needed to check in.
l. Over that weekend, PSSN Gordillocruz recalled the command representatives coming to the PPV looking for Copeland and V/A. R. He reached out to Copeland to see if he knew anything about V/A. R.'s location and Copeland told him that he had texted her but she didn't respond.
m. PSSN Gordillocruz noted that it was not the first time Copeland had brought a woman or other people to the PPV. PSSN Gordillocruz provided that Copeland often played music loud in the barracks room.
n. PSSN Gordillocruz does not know if Copeland had more than one phone. He had not lived in the PPV with Copeland for more than 3 weeks and only had his cell phone number because they ran into each other at a party and exchanged numbers to ensure a safe ride home.

2. The preceding is not a verbatim recitation of any conversation and was not written contemporaneously with any conversation. Subj: GOVERNMENT DISCLOSURE: CONVERSATION WITH AA JOHN CALISSE, USN

Ref: (a) R.C.M. 701 (MCM 2024)
(b) Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963)
(c) Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972)
(d) JAGINST 5803.1E (20 Jan 15) Rule 3.8

1. On 6 February 2026, CDR Lauren Mayo, JAGC, USN, LCDR Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, and LN2 Nicole Orsillo, USN, spoke in person with AA John Calisse, USN. The following disclosures are provided:

2. On 28 May 2025, AA Calisse remembered seeing CSSN Copeland briefly in their shared barracks room and seeing a woman, he now believes to be CS3 V/A.R., with CSSN Copeland, although he did not know who V/A.R. was at the time. Sometime between 1800 and 2000, CSSN Copeland asked AA Calisse if he could borrow AA Calisse's car. AA Calisse said he only saw CS3 V/A.R. and CSSN Copeland because CSSN Copeland returned the car keys to him. After he got his car keys back, AA Calisse did not leave his bedroom until the next morning when he left for work. AA Calisse said when he is at the barracks, he typically stays in his room most of the time and spends that time talking to his family back home in Haiti. He utilizes text, phone calls, and video chat to communicate with his family. AA Calisse had a roommate, PSSA GordilloCruz, and when PSSA GordilloCruz is not in the room, AA Calisse said he uses speaker phone to talk to his family. On the night of 28 May 2025, AA Calisse believes PSSA GordilloCruz was on leave. AA Calisse goes to bed on the early side every night because he gets up early for work. He estimated that he went to bed around 2000 that night.

AA Calisse stated he remembered PSSA GordilloCruz returning early in the morning on 29 May 2025 and believed it was between 0200-0300. When PSSA GordilloCruz returned to the barracks, AA Calisse said he heard loud music playing in the common space in their barracks room, and believed he heard singing, but could not say for certain. AA Calisse was not sure if the light was on in the common area. He believes he fell back to sleep about a minute or two after PSSA GordilloCruz returned. He does not remember what time he initially fell asleep, but thinks it was early because he had to be up for work around 0500 and left for work around 0545.

When AA Calisse walked out of his room to leave for work, he noticed in the common area CS3 Resendiz and CSSN Copeland lying in the middle of the floor. AA Calisse said he had to walk on the furniture because CS3 V/A.R. and CSSN Copeland were blocking the walkway. AA Calisse noticed CSSN Copeland move his head a little bit when AA Calisse opened his bedroom door but said CS3 V/A.R. did not move at all. AA Calisse did notice CS3 V/A.R. lying on her back and said she either had a bra or T-shirt on and said it was pulled up, exposing her breasts. Her pants were pulled down, one pant leg was around her ankle, and her legs were splayed open with her genitals exposed. CSSN Copeland was lying with his head on CS3 V/A.R. inner thigh. AA Calisse said he did not think much of it because he is from a place where everyone minds their own business. AA Calisse did not notice any injuries to CS3 Resendiz's body but said it was dark in the common area.

AA Calisse added that when opening his door it was fairly loud and he thought it was weird that CS3 V/A.R. did not react. AA Calisse was presented with a picture of the common area of his barracks room, and he labeled the photo noting the area where he remembered CS3 V/A.R. and CSSN Copeland lying. He remembers them lying close to his bedroom door.

That morning at work, AA Calisse remembered talking to PSSA GordilloCruz about CSSN Copeland and CS3 V/A.R. lying naked on the floor. He stated both agreed it was disrespectful.

When asked about the general noise level in the barracks room, AA Calisse described that in the past neighbors on the floor complained about how loud the music in their suite frequently was. AA Calisse said CSSN Copeland would regularly play music loudly in the common area.

CSSN Copeland and AA Calisse were not really friends. However, AA Calisse said he would let CSSN Copeland use his car to buy food, and he would occasionally drive CSSN Copeland to work.

Prior to CSSN Copeland's incarceration, they lived together for about three or four months . AA Calisse has not spoken to CSSN Copeland since he has been placed in confinement.

On 1 June 2025, AA Calisse said he was out with another friend buying things for their upcoming underway, and CSSN Copeland asked AA Calisse for a ride to work. When AA Calisse returned to the barracks, he and PSSA GordilloCruz were approached by MAs who were looking for CSSN Copeland. CSSN Copeland told AA Calisse the MAs were looking for him because he did not go to work and told AA Calisse he did not have a ride to work. AA Calisse offered CSSN Copeland a ride to work.

AA Calisse, PSSA GordilloCruz, and CSSN Copeland drove together to CSSN Copeland's command so he could get out of an unauthorized absence status. When CSSN Copeland returned to AA Calisse's car, the three of them went to get food but did not talk about anything in particular. AA Calisse stated he used to give CSSN Copeland rides to work and believes before this incident CSSN Copeland never missed work.

On Friday, 29 May 2025, CSSN Copeland did not borrow AA Calisse's car. On Saturday, 30 May 2025, CSSN Copeland asked to borrow AA Calisse's car, and AA Calisse agreed, but CSSN Copeland never got the keys. On the evening of Sunday, 1 June 2025, CSSN Copeland asked AA Calisse if he could borrow his car again, and this time CSSN Copeland took his keys from AA Calisse. AA Calisse did not see CSSN Copeland leave. AA Calisse then went to bed. The following morning, AA Calisse did not see his keys in the barracks room, and CSSN Copeland returned around 0600 with breakfast. AA Calisse was frustrated because CSSN Copeland knew AA Calisse had to be at work early. CSSN Copeland blamed gate traffic for being late returning the jeep.

There was another roommate in AA Calisse's suite, YN3 Monaghan. YN3 Monaghan and CSSN Copeland shared a room in the suite. AA Calisse said he and YN3 Monaghan did not communicate prior to the incident. After CS3 V/A.R. went missing, AA Calisse asked YN3 Monaghan what was going on. AA Calisse said YN3 Monaghan typically smelled bad.

AA Calisse reiterated music is regularly played loudly in their barracks suite, and when CS3 V/A.R. was over, he thought he heard CSSN Copeland and CS3 V/A.R. singing and could not answer for sure if they were actually yelling at each other. He thought CSSN Copeland had to work the morning CSSN Copeland and CS3 V/A.R. were lying on the floor but did not know his schedule or if he had the day off. AA Calisse did not believe he had plans to drive CSSN Copeland to work that morning. Most of the time, AA Calisse said CSSN Copeland left for work earlier than he did because he worked in Portsmouth, VA, and had to be at work around 0400. He was not sure how CSSN Copeland usually got to work.

In the April timeframe, AA Calisse was not sure if CSSN Copeland was dating another female. AA Calisse had heard MAs were called to their barracks suite before, but believed that was prior to him moving in.

When he was leaving for work the morning CS3 V/A.R. was over, AA Calisse did not notice any odd personal items or items that belonged to people other than the people who lived there.

AA Calisse answered "no" to all Giglio questions.

Subj: GOVERNMENT DISCLOSURE: CONVERSATION WITH FCC BRADLEY PARKER

Ref: (a) R.C.M. 701 (MCM 2024)
(b) Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963)
(c) Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972)
(d) JAGINST 5803.1E (20 Jan 15) Rule 3.8

1. On 8 April 2026, CDR Lauren Mayo, JAGC, USN, LCDR Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, and LN2 Jocelyn Gomez spoke to FCC Brad Parker, USN, in person. The following disclosures are provided:

a) FCC Parker provided that on 28 May 2025 when he arrived at work in the morning, CS1 Howellel told him that CSSN Copeland had not checked into work and had not responded to calls. At quarters that same morning, FCC Parker was made aware that a friend of CS3 A.R. was concerned for her safety after receiving a call from A.R. in distress the night before. FCC Parker advised his leadership he would go up to Norfolk and check on both CSSN Copeland and CS3 A.R.
b) FCC Parker stated that after checking in at the front desk at CSSN Copeland's barracks, he proceeded to his room and knocked on the main door of CSSN Copeland's barracks room only to find that it was locked and no one answered. FCC Parker was familiar with CSSN Copeland's room layout due to prior room inspections and knew that the bedroom was separate from the common area.
c) FCC Parker returned to the front desk and received a key to the room. FCC Parker then returned to the room and opened the common area door with the key. No one was present in the common area and FCC Parker proceeded to CSSN Copeland's bedroom door. CSSN Copeland's bedroom door was locked with a deadbolt, so FCC Parker's key could not open it.
d) FCC Parker knocked repeatedly on CSSN Copeland's door for approximately a minute. FCC Parker was afraid the knocking would wake up CSSN Copeland's roommate if he was also present in the room, so he decided to leave. FCC Parker did not hear anything on the other side of the door. Just as he made the decision to leave, CSSN Copeland answered the door.
e) FCC Parker described CSSN Copeland as groggy. CSSN Copeland advised FCC Parker that he had overslept.
f) FCC Parker said the lights were out in CSSN Copeland's room. FCC Parker said CSSN Copeland had black out curtains, but some dim light was coming through. When CSSN Copeland opened the door, CSSN Copeland was standing in the doorway.
g) FCC Parker observed someone laying in CSSN Copeland's bed and asked CSSN Copeland, jokingly, if that was CS3 A.R. because he was also going to check on her. CSSN Copeland confirmed that it was CS3 A.R. FCC Parker then began to move into the bedroom and at that point CSSN Copeland told FCC Parker that she and he were not dressed. CSSN Copeland was still standing in the doorway.

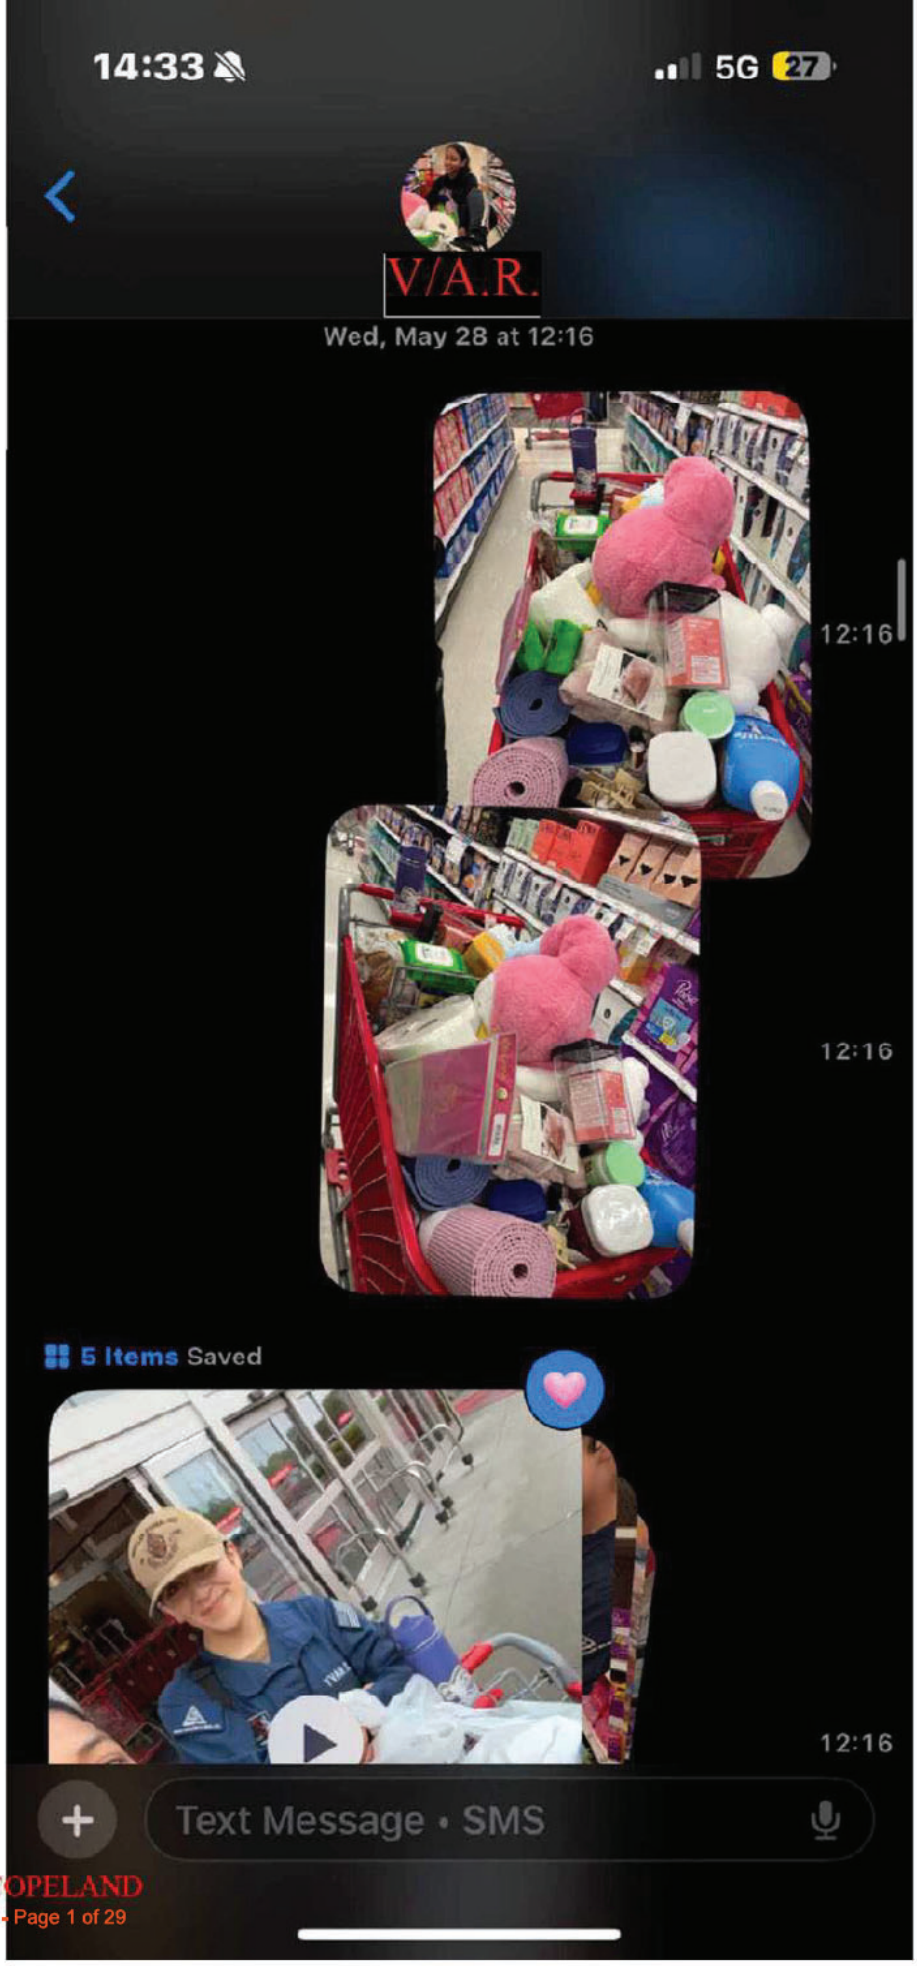
h) In response, FCC Parker stepped back into the common area and CSSN Copeland put clothing on and met him in the common area. CSSN Copeland was apologetic and provided that CS3 A.R. had called him the night before looking for someone to talk with about boy problems. CSSN Copeland advised that CS3 A.R. was up all night talking.

i) FCC Parker provided that he trusted that CSSN Copeland was helping a friend out. CSSN Copeland told FCC Parker that he had a way to get to work and at least access to a car. FCC Parker was aware that CSSN Copeland did not have a license, but believed he still had a vehicle and could drive.

j) FCC Parker stated that when he observed the person in the bed, he assumed that person was sleeping. FCC Parker could not identify that the person was CS3 A.R., but relied on CSSN Copeland's statement that it was her.

k) She was not rolled up in the blanket, but was covered fully by the blanket. FCC Parker saw CS3 A.R.'s hair sticking out of the top of the blanket and may have seen a foot sticking out.

l) FCC Parker stated that CS3 A.R. definitively did not wave, gesture, or speak to him in any manner. FCC Parker advised "movement" drew his attention to the bed in the first place, but could not specify what the movement was. FCC Parker advised he believed the movement could have been light coming in from the window. FCC Parker stated he did not interact with CS3 A.R. in any capacity. CSSN Copeland advised she was still asleep and FCC Parker trusted him.



m) FCC Parker advised that over the weekend, he tried to keep in touch with CSSN Copeland. On 29 May 2025 around 1300, CSSN Copeland advised him that he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks. FCC Parker was notified the next day that CS3 A.R. did not show up to work as expected.

n) FCC Parker and others attempted to contact CSSN Copeland several times over the weekend without success. It was Sunday, 1 June, when CSSN Copeland finally returned to the ship. FCC Parker provided CSSN Copeland told him that he does not answer his phone when not on duty. FCC Parker stated he was with CSSN Copeland in the lead up to his NJP, but did not speak with him much. When he did, CSSN Copeland restated that he had dropped CS3 A.R. off at her barracks and that he did not answer his phone when off duty.

Subj: REQUEST FOR THE PRODUCTION OF WITNESSES ICO UNITED STATES V. CSSN JERMIAH T. COPELAND

Ref: (a) R.C.M. 703
(b) 10 USC § 846
(c) R.C.M 1001

1. Per references (a) through (c), the Defense requests that the government produce the following witnesses:

Witnesses for the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

a. CSSN Jada Knight, USN, Norfolk, VA, Airborne Command & Control Squadron (VAW) 126. CSSN Knight was assigned to USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and at the same bar with S.S. and CSSN Copeland at the time of the alleged incident in Oslo, Norway. CSSN Knight can attest to appearance of CSSN S.S.'s intoxication, or lack thereof, the night of the alleged assault. Additionally, CSSN Knight provided exculpatory evidence to NCIS during her interview off CSSN S.S. drinking with her after the alleged sexual assault happened. Her testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

b. CSSN Kaylee Parks, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75), (573-604-0576). CSSN Parks was assigned to USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and at the same bar with CSSN S.S. and CSSN Copeland at the time of the alleged incident in Oslo, Norway. CSSN Parks saw CSSN S.S. and CSSN Copeland interacting with each other while at the bar. She will testify to seeing CSSN S.S. walk unassisted to the bathroom along with CSSN Copeland and have conversations with people afterwards. CSSN Park is also aware that CSSN S.S. had a boyfriend on board the same ship when the alleged sexual assault happened, which goes to CSSN S.S.'s motive to fabricate. Her testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

c. CS2 Kirsten Click, USN, Norfolk, VA, (VFA-11). CS2 Click was assigned to USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and at the same bar with CSSN S.S. and CSSN Copeland at the time of the alleged incident in Oslo, Norway. CS2 Click saw CSSN S.S. and CSSN Copeland kissing each other's necks and touching all over each other. She observed CSSN S.S. both before and after the alleged sexual assault and can attest to appearance of CSSN S.S.'s intoxicated condition, or lack thereof. She is aware that CSSN S.S. had a boyfriend on board the same ship when the alleged sexual assault happened. Her testimony similar to CSSN Parks and provides a motive for CSSN S.S. to fabricate the allegation. Her testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

d. CS3 Shamel Eaddy, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75). CS3 Eaddy was assigned to USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and was CSSN S.S.'s boyfriend at the time of the alleged incident in Oslo, Norway. CS3 Eaddy was initially approached by CSSN Copeland about the fact that CSSN Copeland had sexual contact with his girlfriend, CSSN S.S., and learned of that fact from CSSN Copeland for the first time. After CS3 Eaddy's conversation with CSSN Copeland, he then confronted CSSN S.S. about the alleged sexual contact she had with CSSN Copeland. His testimony will provide a motive for CSSN S.S. to fabricate the allegation. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

e. CSSN Jaelen Owenskemper, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75), (910-229-9528). CSSN Owenskemper was assigned to USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and at the same bar with CSSN S.S. and CSSN Copeland the night of the alleged incident in Oslo, Norway. CSSN Owenskemper will testify to seeing CSSN S.S. cuddled up with CSSN Copeland at the bar they were at. CSSN Owenskemper's testimony establishes the intimate nature of CSSN S.S.'s interactions with CSSN Copeland the same night of the alleged sexual assault. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

f. CDR Brett Ballard, USN, Norfolk, VA, Helicopter Sea Combat Squadron (HSC-11) ELEVEN. The night after the alleged sexual assault, CDR Ballard was serving as the Senior Shore Patrol representative and went to retrieve CSSN Copeland when he refused to return to the ship after experiencing a mental health decline upon becoming aware that he was being accused of sexually assaulting CSSN S.S. the night before. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

g. CSSA McKenzie Saunders, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) (202-909-0909). CSSA Saunders was assigned to USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and was at the bar with CSSN S.S. at the time of the alleged incident in Oslo, Norway. CSSA Saunders noticed CSSN S.S. in the bathroom where her motor skills worked fine and observed her dancing with CSSN Copeland. Her testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

h. LSCM Ronnie Didier, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75), (757-705-8676). During the time of the alleged allegations, LSCM Didier served onboard USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and was CSSN S.S.'s Department Leading Chief Petty Officer. He supervised the complaining witness and will testify about her character for untruthfulness. This is relevant and necessary as it goes directly to CSSN S.S.'s credibility during the merits phase of the trial.

i. CSCM Aneuric Robles, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75), (757-513-8048). During the time of the alleged allegations, CSCM Robles served onboard USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and was the Master Chief in charge of CSSN S.S.'s entire division. CSSN S.S. serving under his leadership, and he will testify about her character for untruthfulness. This is relevant and necessary as it goes directly to CSSN S.S.'s credibility during the merits phase of the trial.

j. CS3 Raela Spratling, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75), (903-932-9248). During the time of the alleged allegations, ENS White, served onboard USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75). She worked directly with the complaining witness and had enough interactions with her to opine about her character for truthfulness. CS3 Spratling will testify that CSSN S.S. has a character for untruthfulness. This is relevant and necessary as it goes directly to CSSN S.S.'s credibility during the merits phase of the trial.

k. CSSN Kaulise Cousins, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER (CVN-69). CSSN Cousins was assigned to USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN-75) and was CSSN Copeland's liberty buddy the night after the alleged incident in Oslo, Norway. CSSN Cousins stated CSSN Copeland's demeanor when he told him about having sex with CSSN S.S. was happy. However, there was an immediate, drastic decline with CSSN Copeland's mental state when CSSN Copeland stepped away to take a call where he learned that a claim of sexual assault was about to be made against him. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

l. Special Agent Bernadette Duffy, NCIS, Norfolk, VA. SA Duffy interviewed CSSN Copeland twice in reference to the allegations involving CSSN S.S. CSSN Copeland chose to waive his right to remain silent, provided a statement, and also provided SA Duffy text messages sent between him and the alleged victim surrounding the night of the alleged incident. Her testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.S.

Witnesses for the allegations involving CSSN S.R.

m. CS2 Joshua Bryant, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). CS2 Bryant noticed a hickey on CSSN S.R.'s neck just days before the alleged incident where CSSN S.R. claims CSSN Copeland strangled her. CS2 Bryant's testimony provides alternatives reasons for a mark on CSSN S.R.'s neck. As such, his testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.R.

n. Detective S. Gaston, CIV, Norfolk, VA. Det. Gaston was one of the responding officers to the alleged assault involving CSSN S.R. and CSSN Copeland. Furthermore, Det. Gaston interviewed CSSN Copeland and other witnesses, whose interviews were not recorded but provides exculpatory evidence inculpating CSSN S.R. as the offender. Det. Gaston also obtained images of CSSN Copeland's personal property that corroborates CSSN Copeland's statement to police at the scene. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.R.

Witnesses for the allegations involving CSSN A.R.

o. YN3 Sean Monaghan, USN, Norfolk, VA, Airborne Command & Control Squadron (VAW) 124. Monaghan was CSSN Copeland's roommate at the time of the alleged incident between CSSN S.R. and CSSN Copeland. He provides exculpatory evidence that proves CSSN Copeland did not assault CSSN S.R. In fact, Monaghan will provide testimony that CSSN S.R. assaulted CSSN Copeland and damaged his personal property. He also returned to the room the night CS3 A.R. came to their barracks room and saw her alive. He can provide a general description that matches CS3 A.R. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CSSN S.R. and CS3 A.R.

p. FCC Brad Parker, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). FCC Parker went to CSSN Copeland's room the morning after CS3 A.R. spoke with her two ex-boyfriends on the phone and went missing. FCC Parker will testify that he saw CS3 A.R. in CSSN Copeland's bed, and she was alive; she acknowledge his presence, rolled over and went back to sleep in CSSN Copeland's bed. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

q. CSSN Gladis Garcia-Barrera, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). Prior to CS3 A.R. going to CSSN Copeland's room later on 28 May 2025, CSSN Garcia-Barrera was with CS3 A.R. at Target together. CSSN Garcia-Barrera will testify that CS3 A.R. told her she was going to CSSN Copeland's room to make tacos and sent her pictures of the food. This corroborates statements that CSSN Copeland provided to NCIS as well. Additionally, CSSN Garcia-Barrera, as a friend of CS3 A.R., has personal knowledge of CSSN A.R.'s mental health issues/struggles. Her testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

r. AR John Calisse, USN, Norfolk, VA, Airborne Command & Control Squadron (VAW) 124. AR Calisse was CSSN Copeland's suitemate at the time of the alleged death of CS3 A.R. AR Calisse saw CSSN Copeland and CS3 A.R. the morning of 29 May 2025 laying together with CS3 A.R.'s breast exposed. CS3 A.R. stated that he observed them on their back while both appeared to be breathing, right before he left the room to go to work. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

s. PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz, USN, Norfolk, VA, Airborne Command & Control Squadron (VAW) 124. PSSN Gordillocruz, similar to AR Calisse, was CSSN Copeland's suitemate at the time of the alleged death of CS3 A.R. PSSN Gordillocruz also saw CSSN Copeland and CS3 A.R. the morning of 29 May 2025 laying together on the floor in the common area with CS3 A.R.'s breast exposed. PSSN Gordillocruz testimony will corroborate the evidence provided by AR Calisse. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

t. HT3 Michael Gillespie, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). HT3 Gillespie had previously dated CS3 A.R. He has personal knowledge of CSSN A.R.'s history with mental health issues, her emotional state when having "episodes" and her overuse of medications. Additionally, the day CS3 A.R. went missing she had an argument with CS3 A.R. and expressed anger with him via a text message saying "fuck you". His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

u. ET3 Daniel Rich, USN, Norfolk, VA, Mid-Atlantic Regional Calibration Center. ET3 Rich had previously dated CS3 A.R. He has personal knowledge of CSSN A.R.'s history with mental health issues, and her emotional state when having "episodes". Additionally, the day CS3 A.R. went missing she called ET3 Rich asking him to pick her up. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

v. CSSN Junrogel Miguel, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). CSSN Miguel was close friends with CS3 A.R. and worked with her onboard USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). CSSN Miguel has personal knowledge of CSSN A.R.'s relationship with HT3 Gillespie. Furthermore, CSSN Miguel has had his own experiences and personal knowledge with CS3 A.R. when she experienced "episodes" and also described having to closely monitor CS3 A.R. to prevent her from overdosing. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

w. Special Agent Lisa Carroll, NCIS, Norfolk, VA. SA Carroll was one of the agents that completed a search of HT3 Gillespie's barracks. During the search SA Carroll found and documented bottles of pills belonging to CS3 A.R. There will be evidence presented that HT3 Gillespie kept CS3 A.R.'s medications for her because of a potential fear she would overdose, based on her history with mental health issues and suicidal ideations. SA Carroll's testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

x. LSC Robert Janson, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). LSC Janson was CS3 A.R.'s Departmental Leading Chief Petty Officer onboard USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). He can attest to her mental decline and stress before CS3 A.R. was admitted to NMC Portsmouth and after she returned (BS 1016, 1044). His testimony provides context to show the timeline of CS3 A.R.'s mental decline based on what he perceived on her at work. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

y. LCDR Joseph McClelland, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). LT McClelland was the Command Duty Officer onboard USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95) on 28 May – 29 May 2025, which is the night CS3 A.R. went to CSSN Copeland's room and the day she went missing BS 1069. LT McClelland received the reports of CS3 A.R. missing and spoke directly to ET3 Rich about his phone call with CS3 A.R. Depending on what ET3 Rich's testimony will be at trial, LT McClelland will serve a witness that could potentially provide evidence of prior inconsistent statements from ET3 Rich. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

z. Mr. Brian Teelez Mendez, CIV, Mr. Teelez Mendez was contacted by CS3 A.R. just nine (9) days before she went missing. CS3 A.R. contacted Mr. Teelez Mendez through social media where she complained about how toxic her division's chain of command was. Mr. Teelez Mendez provided a copy of these text messages to NCIS when interviewed (BS 1202). When put in context with her overall mental health issues and stress, this shows her negative perspective had not improved. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

aa. PS1 Clarissa Impelidodayoan, USN, Norfolk, VA, Helicopter Sea Combat Squadron (HSC-2) TWO. PS1 Impelidodayoan was one of the Sailors that came to CSSN Copeland's room and cleaned the room on 2 June 2025 to assist CSSN Copeland's suitemate, YN3 Monaghan, prepare for his room inspection (BS 1360). PS1 Impelidodayoan was even on CSSN Copeland's side of the room and stated she didn't see any unusual stains and only described the smell as vomit and alcohol (party room). This contradicts the Government's theory that CSSN Copeland stored a body in his room for days. Her testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

bb. LTJG Sean James, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95). LTJG James is relevant and necessary because he provides evidence of prior inconsistent statements of ET3 Rich, whom he supervises, in relation to when CS3 A.R. went missing. Furthermore, he has personal knowledge of CS3 A.R. and ET3 Rich having a "distressed" phone call close in time to CS3 A.R.'s death. His testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R.

cc. NCC Lorenzo Carter, USN, Norfolk, VA, USS JOHN C. STENNIS (CVN-74). NCC Carter was the other Sailors that came to CSSN Copeland's room and cleaned the room on 2 June 2025 to assist CSSN Copeland's suitemate, YN3 Monaghan, prepare for his room inspection (BS 1364). NCC Carter was also on CSSN Copeland's side of the room, similar to PS1 Impelidodayoan, and he stated that he didn't notice any unusual stains or smells in CSSN Copeland's room. This contradicts the Government's theory that CSSN Copeland stored a body in his room for days. Her testimony is relevant during the merits phase of the trial regarding the allegations involving CS3 A.R. and corroborates PS1 Impelidodayoan's expected testimony.

Witnesses for Sentencing

dd. Ms. Rochell Brown, CIV, Oak Harbor, WA, (425-508-5790). Ms. R. Brown is CSSN Copeland's mother. She will testify positively about CSSN Copeland's character as a father and son. Telephonic testimony is not sufficient, as CSSN Copeland is charged with premeditated murder. If CSSN Copeland is convicted of premeditated murder, he is facing a minimum sentence of life with the possibility of parole and a maximum punishment of life without the possibility of parole. Based on the seriousness of the allegations and punitive exposure, he should be able to have all his witnesses present in-person. Her testimony is relevant during the pre-sentencing phase of trial.

ee. Ms. Kathleen Brown, CIV, Oak Harbor, WA, (206-854-9108). Ms. K. Brown is CSSN Copeland's grandmother. She will testify positively about CSSN Copeland's character as a father and son. Similar to Ms. R. Brown, telephonic testimony is not sufficient, as CSSN Copeland is charged with premeditated murder. If CSSN Copeland is convicted of premeditated murder, he is facing a minimum sentence of life with the possibility of parole and a maximum punishment of life without the possibility of parole. Based on the seriousness of the allegations and punitive exposure, he should be able to have all his witnesses present in-person. Additionally, Ms. K. Brown will be support for Ms. R. Brown. Her testimony is relevant during the pre-sentencing phase of trial.

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
M/B/NEE3/S[redacted]

RESULTS OF INITIAL INTERVIEW OF CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

1. On 01Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Jessica GOKEY interviewed CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95) regarding his knowledge of the whereabouts of V/A.R.. The interview took place in the lounge area on third floor of building X2, Willis Manor, located on Naval Station Norfolk (NOB), and was not recorded.

2. As background, V/A.R. and S/COPELAND were placed into a Unauthorized Absence (UA) status subsequent to 29May25, after failing to report to work. On 01Jun25, after speaking with S/COPELAND's mother, NCIS and S/COPELAND's mother contacted Naval Station Norfolk (NOB) Base Police to conduct a follow-up health and welfare check on both S/COPELAND and V/A.R.. The Naval Station Norfolk Watch Commander advised NOB Security Forces located S/COPELAND in his barracks rooms in Willis Manor, Room 335. NCIS was advised that Security Forces received no answer at V/A.R.'s door when they knocked on her barracks room located on NOB, Miller Hall, Room 1083.

3. During his interview, S/COPELAND described his relationship with V/A.R. as co-workers. S/COPELAND stated he texted with V/A.R. on Wednesday, 28May25 to discuss recipes and ingredients for tacos. S/COPELAND stated V/A.R. came over to his barracks room, made tacos and they both consumed alcohol. S/COPELAND explained V/A.R. gradually became more upset as the night progressed and they spoke about her current and past romantic relationships. S/COPELAND stated V/A.R. spoke on the phone to two (2) ex-boyfriends, both of which were confrontational calls. One call was with an ex-boyfriend he still believed was located in Texas (NFI) and the other call was with HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG 95.

4. S/COPELAND explained V/A.R. and HT3 GILLESPIE argued over returning a motorcycle helmet and that HT3 GILLESPIE wanted it back. S/COPELAND said V/A.R. explained her relationship with HT3 GILLESPIE was toxic and described her most recent ex-boyfriend, ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, DDG 95, as at first being a sweetheart and then he wasn't. S/COPELAND said ET3 RICH and HT3 GILLESPIE do not get along, that they have issues with each other, and opined it was due to their relationships with V/A.R.. S/COPELAND said HT3 GILLESPIE has come to the galley on the ship a lot, which sometimes caused issues. S/COPELAND said he did not know of any instances of HT3 GILLESPIE being violent toward V/A.R. and that HT3 GILLESPIE was more of a topic of conversation than ET3 RICH was during their evening together.

S/COPELAND described his role during the evening as a sounding board for V/A.R.

5. S/COPELAND recalled one of his roommates walked into the barracks suite (common area) and asked if V/A.R. was okay as she was upset. which he (S/COPELAND) responded yes.

6. S/COPELAND explained V/A.R. spent the night in his barracks room and they did not have sexual intercourse. S/COPELAND said he was supposed to work on Thursday 29May25, however, he woke up late as FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG 95, came to his barracks room at approximately 0900 and woke he and V/A.R. S/COPELAND said he misunderstood FCC PARKER and did not report to work. S/COPELAND said he borrow his roommate's vehicle and drove V/A.R. back to her barracks at approximately 1000 hours. S/COPELAND said this was the last time he saw V/A.R.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF CSSN JERMIAH COPELAND, USN

1. On 03JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Bernadette DUFFY conducted an interview of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95) in regard to the Unauthorized Absence of CSSN [redacted V/A.R.], USN, DDG-95 and himself.

2. This interview was audio and video recorded utilizing Case Cracker. A copy of the recording was subsequently saved to an optical disc and maintained with the case file. This report should not be treated as a verbatim or comprehensive representation of the interview; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. Prior to being interviewed, S/COPELAND was advised of his Article 31(b) Rights by use of Military Suspect's Acknowledgement and Waiver of Rights form for an alleged violation of Article 86 (Absence without Leave) and Article 107 (False Official Statements). S/COPELAND, with full understanding of his rights, elected to waive his right to remain silent; Enclosure (B) pertains.

4. S/COPELAND was asked to recall the events on the night of 28JUN25 and what transpired the following days. S/COPELAND stated he and [redacted V/A.R.] were talking about food and making tacos. S/COPELAND continued saying, [redacted V/A.R.] was going to come over to his barracks, located at Building X-2, Willis Manor, Room 335, to make salsa and eat dinner. S/COPELAND explained he went to the Food Lion and bought the ingredients to make tacos and then he went back to X-2. S/COPELAND stated he then went and picked V/RESENDIZ up from her barracks, Miller Hall, and brought her back to his room. COPELAND explained later he utilized his roommates vehicle, later identified as a belonging to AR John CALISSE, USN, VAW-124 and being a white Jeep Compass, to pick up [redacted V/A.R.]. S/COPELAND stated [redacted V/A.R.] was wearing a black shirt, black pants, slip on Uggs, a bracelet, and a hair clip. S/COPELAND stated V/RESENDIZ was also carrying her purple backpack. S/COPELAND stated he could not recall what time he picked [redacted V/A.R.] up but after returning to the room they began to make tacos.

5. S/COPELAND stated after eating, him and [redacted V/A.R.] started listening to music and started talking. S/COPELAND explained [redacted V/A.R.] began talking about HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG-95, and how she saw him with another girl on his motorcycle and how it had really upset [redacted V/A.R.]. S/COPELAND stated [redacted V/A.R.] then text HT3 GILLESPIE "Fuck you" and then called an ex-boyfriend (NFI) from Texas. S/COPELAND explained he was sitting on the couch, and she was sitting on floor talking to the ex-boyfriend. S/COPELAND continued explaining how when V/A.R. ended the phone call with the ex-boyfriend, she started to call other people (NFI) and talk about how "GILLESPIE's not shit."

6. S/COPELAND explained he did not know much about the relationship between HT3 GILLESPIE and V/A.R. but S/COPELAND did recall V/RESENDIZ was mad about the amount of money she would spend on HT3 GILLESPIE. S/COPELAND provided the example of HT3 GILLESPIE needed a lawyer and V/A.R. gave him $500.00 to hire one even though HT3 GILLESPIE could have received a public defender. S/COPELAND did not believe HT3 GILLESPIE and V/A.R. were in any physical altercations or abusive relationship. S/COPELAND stated V/A.R. went on a "rampage" and was becoming "agitated." S/COPELAND stated after completing the phone calls V/A.R. was becoming "emotional" and "crying."

7. S/COPELAND stated one of the roommates, "the Mexican" later identified as PSSN Irbin GORDILLOCRUZ, USN, Airborne Command and Control Squadron 124 (VAW-124), walked into the common area of the room and asked if V/A.R. was okay. S/COPELAND stated he told PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ, V/A.R. was fine and PSSN GORDILLOCRUZ proceeded to his room. S/COPELAND stated the night ended and they both went to sleep together in S/COPELAND's bed. S/COPELAND stated they did not have sexual intercourse. After going to sleep, S/COPELAND was awoken by FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG-95, knocking on the door of his bedroom. S/COPELAND said he could not remember what time it was but knew the sun was up. S/COPELAND stated FCC PARKER asked if the person in his bed was V/RESENDIZ, which S/COPELAND replied it was V/A.R. S/COPELAND explained FCC PARKER told him to get to work and asked if he had a ride, which S/COPELAND stated he told FCC PARKER one of his roommates could give him a ride to work. S/COPELAND admitted though he did not go to work due to "one of his roommates" not coming home. S/COPELAND further explained, him being UA was a big misunderstanding because he had the weekend off and he did not realize if you are marked UA for one day, you are marked UA for the days you remain away from work.

8. S/COPELAND stated he was marked UA Thursday, 29JUN25 until Sunday, 01MAY25 when base security located him within his barracks room. When asked his whereabouts for Friday and Saturday, S/COPELAND responded, he stayed in the barracks both days but would move from lounge to lounge. S/COPELAND stated he mostly hung out in the 5th floor lounge and Ms. Mary (NFI) could vouch for his whereabouts during the time frame.

9. RA asked S/COPELAND about the morning of 29JUN25 and what had transpired after FCC PARKER left the room. S/COPELAND recalled him and V/A.R. woke up and cleaned the kitchen and V/A.R. left in an Uber, later clarified to be a Z-Trip.

10. RA asked S/COPELAND if he would sign a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his cellphone, S/COPELAND agreed to signing a PASS and provided his passcode, 980377. Prior to signing the PASS, S/COPELAND requested to call his mother, and would not sign the PASS; Enclosure (C) pertains. PA asked S/COPELAND if he would be fine with answering further questions and call his mother later, S/COPELAND agreed.

11. RA had previously informed S/COPELAND NCIS was conducting a Command Authorized Search and Seizure (CASS) in his barracks room and the common area and began to ask questions about S/COPELAND's barracks room and his electronics. S/COPELAND stated he had an iPhone15 in his room and a PlayStation 5 in the common room.

12. RA inquired about V/A.R.'s electronics to include her iPhone. S/COPELAND stated the only electronic V/A.R. had with her was her iPhone15. S/COPELAND confirmed the Apple iWatch was also his, which was located in his barracks room.

13. RA asked S/COPELAND if the statement he gave was true and accurate to the best of his knowledge, which S/COPELAND stated this statement was the correct statement. RA then confronted S/COPELAND on the discretions between his previous statement, given on 01JUN25 and the statement he gave during this interview.

14. RA asked S/COPELAND about him and V/A.R. being naked on the floor by the couch, S/COPELAND denied being on the floor naked with V/A.R.. S/COPELAND stated he and V/A.R. fell asleep in his bed, clothed.

15. RA asked S/COPELAND about him changing his story about dropping V/RESENDIZ off at her barracks, to V/RESENDIZ leaving on her own after cleaning, to which S/COPELAND stated he did not remember saying he had previously dropped V/A.R. off at her barracks. RA asked S/COPELAND about how he knew V/A.R. was taking a Z-Trip from his barracks versus walking from his barracks, and S/COPELAND stated he just assumed V/A.R. had taken a Z-Trip back to her barracks.

16. RA inquired about S/COPELAND telling FCC PARKER he would wait for his roommate to get home to take S/COPELAND to work. RA asked about S/COPELAND's roommate's work schedule and why he would tell FCC PARKER the roommate would take him to work knowing his roommate does not get home until approximately 1600-1700. S/COPELAND stated he would not ask anyone else to take him to work. S/COPELAND stated he did not know when his roommate would be home due to a squadron's working hours being different from the ships work schedule.

17. PA conducted another PASS for a backpack, barracks room, and

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF S/COPELAND

1. On 06Jun25, Reporting Investigator (RA) Tyler Mann and Participating Agent (PA) David JARRELL, conducted a second interview of S/COPELAND. As background, S/COPELAND was identified as a person of interest in the disappearance and possible death of V/A.R. as he was the last person known to have seen her prior to her disappearance.

2. On 06Jun25 at 0850, subsequent to the execution of a Military Rights Waiver, appended as Enclosure (A), CCSN Jermiah Taylor COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, was interviewed regarding his knowledge of the possible death of CSSN V/A.R., USN, DDG 95, and previously providing false statements regarding the captioned investigation. Upon waiving his Military Rights, the interview commenced. Additionally, during the interview S/COPELAND provided a handwritten timeline of events from 28May25 through 02Jun25, detailing his whereabouts for that time frame, along with his interactions with V/A.R., Enclosure (B) pertains.

3. On 28May25, S/COPELAND invited V/A.R. to his barracks room to cook dinner. Most of the evening she was communicating on her phone back and forth with a person referred to as Gil (possibly referring to Gillespie), a former boyfriend, whom had given her a bike helmet that he was now asking to be returned. This started an argument between V/A.R. and Gil which made her appear upset according to S/COPELAND. S/COPELAND asked her what the matter was, she provided the story about how Gil was trying to get the helmet back for another girl possibly, and she did not want to give it back. This led to V/A.R. calling another ex-boyfriend, who resides in Texas, to vent to him. V/A.R. made additional phone calls to other friends and family to talk. S/COPELAND was unaware of who all she spoke to that evening. After listening to her story, hanging out and listening to music; S/COPELAND stated he was tired and told V/A.R. he was going to sleep; no exact time was provided for this series of events. He proceeded to go to bed and then awoke the next morning to his Chief, FCC Brad PARKER (FCC PARKER), USN, DDG 95, knocking on his door and V/A.R. in his bed with him. S/COPELAND had on shorts and noted V/A.R. was wearing her pants, but had removed her top to sleep, he further stated they did not engage in any form of sexual activity. Upon opening the door, S/COPELAND was informed he was UA (Unauthorized Absence) and needed to report to work as soon as possible. FCC PARKER then departed and S/COPELAND started cleaning up his room and getting ready to go to work while waiting on his roommate to return to give him a ride. At some point, S/COPELAND noticed V/A.R. woke up and he informed her FCC PARKER had stopped by and he needed to go to work. She began helping him clean up the room and upon finishing, exited the barracks on her own sometime that morning, while S/COPELAND sat on the couch watching TV and eventually fell asleep.

4. As background, during S/COPELAND's initial interview he previously stated he borrowed his roommate's vehicle to drive V/A.R. to her barracks. When questioned regarding his previous statement of borrowing his roommate's vehicle to drive V/A.R., he said he was mistaken before and he could not have done so as his other roommate who owned the Jeep was not home, nor was his vehicle. At this time, S/COPELAND uttered a statement in which he said, "I needed to get my story straight." S/COPELAND related he woke up at around dinner time on 29May25 and realized his roommate was not home and could not take him to work. S/COPELAND stated dinner time on the ship was between approximately 15:00 and 17:30, which he was using as his time of reference. He then called FCC PARKER and told him he would not be at work because he did not have a ride or vehicle available. In addition to FCC PARKER coming to the barracks room the next morning, S/COPELAND stated his roommate, YN3 Sean MONAGHAN (YN3 MONAGHAN), USN, Helicopter Marine Squadron 12 (HM-12), was present during the night when he and V/A.R. were sleeping.

5. S/COPELAND then stated he spent the remainder of the weekend in the barracks going between his room and one of the various lounges in the building. He did not like to remain in his room due to his roommate being unclean and emanating an unpleasant odor. S/COPELAND related the Barracks Manager, Ms. Mary (NFI) saw him in the lounge at various times over the course of the weekend, along with another white male (NFI), who was instructed along with S/COPELAND to stay in the lounge by a crew in the building cleaning or polishing the floors. The white male, who S/COPELAND could not further identify, attempted to leave and return to his room multiple times, but was met by the crew and told to return until they advised he could walk down the hallway. This led to a conversation between S/COPELAND and the unidentified male that ended with S/COPELAND being offered and declining a bag of chips from the man before he left. Ms. Mary interacted with S/COPELAND both in the lounge and while he was using one of the public restrooms, she knocked on the door and he stated he was currently in the facilities using the toilet. These interactions may have happened between Friday and Saturday according to S/COPELAND.

6. In addition to interacting with the above captioned individuals, S/COPELAND stated he did in fact turn off his location services on his cellphone to his friends as one of them had apparently been spying on him via the Apple location services and he did not want to be bothered or hang out with anyone. S/COPELAND did confirm he used the phone application Life 360 and has his location constantly shared, for approximately the past year, with a female (NFI) from back home, who would often check the app to see where S/COPELAND was currently located. S/COPELAND denied leaving the barracks until Sunday. 01Jun25 in the morning when he reported to the shop

Command Duty Officer after being informed by the base Military Police that he was UA. Upon a Master at Arms (MA) knocking on S/COPELAND's door that morning, he reported to the barge where he was order to undergo a urinalysis and was informed that he had officially been marked UA since the past Thursday morning, 28May25. After concluding all required tasks at the barge, S/COPELAND returned to his barracks until the next morning, 02JUN25, when he was ordered to report to work.

7. During the interview, S/COPELAND was questioned as to whether or not he knew V/A.R. 's current location and if he had any part in causing her disappearance or possible death to which he replied in the negative. When further questioned about what S/COPELAND would like the outcome of the investigation to be he made a statement hoping she was found. S/COPELAND expressed concerns with his own mental health at the time of the interview. Prior to the conclusion of the interview, S/COPELAND signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA). Upon signing the PASS, the document was given to SA Lisa CARROLL, NCIS, and DNA samples were obtained from S/COPELAND by SA CARROLL which will be documented in a separate investigative action. Prior to ending the interview S/COPELAND was asked about access to vehicles regarding which, if any vehicles, he had access to use over the past week. S/COPELAND related he did not have access to a vehicle, other than on occasion his roommates Jeep when they were both home from work at the same time. S/COPELAND did not specify the roommate who owns the Jeep other than previously stating they reside in the same room.

8. At 1148 on 06Jun25, S/COPELAND was released to FCC PARKER. An audio recording of this interview was captured and the original SD card containing the interview along with a copy of the audio on a CD/DVD were provided to the case agent for safekeeping with the file.

Ref: (a) R.C.M. 701 (MCM 2024)
(b) Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963)
(c) Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972)
(d) JAGINST 5803.1E (20 Jan 15) Rule 3.8

1. On 27 February 2026, CDR Lauren Mayo, JAGC, USN, LCDR Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, and LN1 Kathleen Vanetti, civilian paralegal, spoke to LSC Robert Janson, USN. The following disclosures are provided:

a. LSC Janson was the departmental LCPO over CSSN Copeland onboard the USS JAMES E WILLIAMS. LSC Janson provided that he believed CSSN Copeland was onboard after a transfer due to a possible sexual harassment case.

b. LSC Janson had been onboard since September 2023. LSC Janson recalled no work issues with CSSN Copeland and said he kept to himself. Outside of work, CSSN Copeland had gotten a speeding ticket and gotten into a scuffle with another CS.

c. LSC Janson said with respect to CS3 A.R., she had no issues at work. LSC Janson said he had a little more interaction with CS3 A.R than with CSSN Copeland. LSC Janson explained that CS3 A.R. was a high performer and she was given significant responsibility as a result. As a result, CS3 A.R. became too stressed with this workload and she took a few days off to decompress. She did this through mental health at NMCP. There was no suicidal ideation involved, just stress, to his knowledge.

d. LSC Janson provided that FCC Parker told him he found both CS3 A.R. and CSSN Copeland in the same room alive. FCC Parker said he opened the door and saw them both there. FCC Parker said they looked exhausted, as if they had been up the whole night. FCC Parker told LSC Janson that CS3 A.R. moved and he had asked CS3 A.R. if she was okay, to which she responded that she was fine. FCC Parker told LSC Janson he did not investigate further.

e. Later that day, CSSN Copeland did not come into work and neither did CS3 A.R. FCC Parker told LSC Janson that CSSN Copeland had a car problem.

f. LSC Janson said FCC Parker was personally fine. FCC Parker was a new Chief. LSC Janson did not believe FCC Parker had a reason to lie and had no opinion on his character for truthfulness.

2. The preceding is not a verbatim recitation of any conversation and was not written contemporaneously with any conversation. The disclosures from the interview conducted by the Government are to reflect new or different information. To the extent the information is duplicative with already discovered information, it is provided as context. This summary does not constitute a statement adopted or approved by the witness and may not reflect the witness's exact words.

(c) Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972)
(d) JAGINST 5803.1E (20 Jan 15) Rule 3.8

1. On 27 February 2026, CDR Lauren Mayo, JAGC, USN, LCDR Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, and LN2 Nicole Orsillo, USN, spoke to CS3 Gladis Garcia-Barrera, USN, in person.

a. CS3 Garcia stated she was on the same Watch Team in the galley as CS3 A.R, and believes she was CS3 A.R's Watch Captain. There were three Culinary Specialists on the Watch Team – CS3 Garcia, CS3 A.R., and another Sailor named Miguel. CS3 Garcia said she met CS3 A.R. in 2024. CS3 Garcia went TAD to another ship, and when she returned back to USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95) she got closer to CS3 A.R.. 28 May 2025, was one of the first times CS3 Garcia hung out with CS3 A.R. outside of work.

b. CSSN Copeland was on the Watch Team that relieved CS3 Garcia's Watch Team. CSSN Copeland's Watch Team consisted of CS3 Bucol, CS3 JeanJacques, and himself.

c. On 28 May 2025, CS3 Garcia and CS3 A.R. ordered an Uber to go to Target. When they were ready to leave Target, CS3 Garcia ordered a ride through Z-Trip. CS3 Garcia was dropped off at her PPV first, and then CS3 A.R. was dropped off. CS3 Garcia said CS3 A.R. was happy that day. CS3 A.R. told CS3 Garcia that CSSN Copeland invited her over to make tacos. CS3 Garcia said she had heard that other Sailors from their ship were also at CSSN Copeland's barracks room but eventually left. She heard that CS3 A.R. stayed at CSSN Copeland's after everyone left. CS3 Garcia said CS3 A.R. invited her over to CSSN Copeland's, but she declined the offer. CSSN Copeland told her he transferred from USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN 75) because his Chief did not like him, but CS3 Garcia said she thought that was weird because that was not a reason to be transferred.

d. CS3 A.R. never told CS3 Garcia she had mental health issues, but CS3 Garcia found out when she got back from being TAD that CS3 A.R. had previously been to NMCP for mental health help. CS3 Garcia said CS3 A.R. would joke about going UA but it was never serious. On 28 May 2025, CS3 A.R. was talking to ET3 Rich, but CS3 Garcia was not sure if they were dating. CS3 Garcia said CS3 A.R. was not romantically interested in CSSN Copeland.

e. The last message CS3 Garcia received from CS3 A.R. was a TikTok video at 1715 on 28 May 2025. CS3 Garcia clarified that the message may have been sent to her earlier than 1715, but when she is asleep. CS3 Garcia puts her phone in airplane mode, so the message may have been sent earlier. CS3 A.R.'s last message to CS3 Garcia on Instagram was at 2244 on 28 May 2025. After the message from 2244, CS3 Garcia never heard from CS3 A.R. again. CS3 Garcia received a phone call the next day from CS3 JeanJacques, HT3 Gillespie, and ET3 Rich asking about CS3 A.R.'s whereabouts, and CS3 Garcia told them CS3 A.R. had been with CSSN Copeland last. CS3 Garcia believed CS3 A.R. must have been sleeping because CS3 Garcia messaged CS3 A.R. around 0500 on 29 May 2025, and it was not like CS3 A.R. to not respond to her.

f. CSSN Copeland was scheduled to return to work the next day but did not. CS3 Garcia said when CSSN Copeland came back to work she completely avoided him. CSSN Copeland was quieter than usual. CS3 Garcia said when CSSN Copeland was asked about CS3 A.R. by others, he did not answer. CS3 Garcia heard CSSN Copeland had a scratch on his face, and believed she heard that from JJ, but did not see for herself if he did have a scratch. Prior to CS3 A.R. going missing, CS3 Garcia said she never spoke to CSSN Copeland, so she was not sure of his demeanor. She said CSSN Copeland had previously been on restriction but was not sure if he was working in the galley at that time.

g. CS3 Garcia said she heard CSSN Copeland had raped and hospitalized another female while he was on USS HARRY S. TRUMAN (CVN 75). Another female by the name of V/S.R. apparently slashed CSSN Copeland's tires. CS3 Garcia said that women do not do things like that unwarranted.

h. CS3 Garcia was not sure if CSSN Copeland had more than one phone. She was aware that CSSN Copeland did not have a drivers license. However, he would drive his friend's Challenger while he was on deployment. CS3 Garcia said that friend's name was LSSN Stallone.

i. CS3 Garcia said she knows FCC Parker, and knows he is the last person to see CS3 A.R. She said she was disappointed in FCC Parker for not bringing CSSN Copeland to work, and for not asking CS3 A.R. if she was okay. CS3 Garcia did not talk to FCC Parker at work and was unsure of his reputation onboard.

j. Another Sailor, GSM3 Delacruz, would talk to CSSN Copeland a lot. CS3 Garcia said she thinks if what happened to CS3 A.R. did not happen to her, then it would have happened to GSM3 Delacruz. CS3 Garcia said once CSSN Copeland apparently put something in GSM3 Delacruz's drink and it caused her to throw up.

k. CS3 Garcia said there was another instance where DCFA Swanger was with CSSN Copeland and he tried to get on top of her while he was intoxicated. Before anything escalated, DFCA Swanger left.

Subj: GOVERNMENT DISCLOSURE: CONVERSATION WITH CS3 GLADIS GARCIA-BARRERA

1. CS3 Garcia shared several images of text messages, receipts and other digital evidence related to this case. Photographs were obtained of the evidence, but after review, it appeared that the transfer was incomplete due to user error. CS3 Garcia was contacted at a later date and provided a complete record of the messages. Copies of both the failed attempt at collection and the completed correct attempt will be provided in discovery.

2. The preceding is not a verbatim recitation of any conversation and was not written contemporaneously with any conversation. NAVY-MARINE CORPS TRIAL JUDICIARY
CENTRAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL

UNITED STATES v. JERMIAH COPELAND CSSN/E-3 U.S. Navy	DEFENSE MOTION IN LIMINE TO EXCLUDE EVIDENCE PURSUANT TO M.R.E. 404(b) 15 April 2026

MOTION

Pursuant to Rule for Court-Martial ("R.C.M.") 906 and Military Rule of Evidence (M.R.E.) 404(b), the defense moves this Court to exclude evidence of prior crimes, wrongs, or other acts of the accused.

BURDEN

As the proponent of the evidence, the government bears the burden of proof to establish any factual matters regarding the admissibility of any evidence offered pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b) by a preponderance of the evidence. R.C.M. 905(c).

FACTS

1. CSSN Copeland is charged with violating Articles 118 (Premeditated Murder), 120 (Sexual Assault and Aggravated Sexual Contact), 128 (Aggravated Assault), 120c (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), 131b (Obstruction of Justice), 128b (Domestic Violence), and 107 (False Official Statement).[1]

2. Trial is scheduled for 3-26 June 2026.[2]

3. On 5 November 2025, the government provided notice of its intent to offer evidence pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b) and M.R.E. 413.[3]

4. The charged offenses occurred entirely between July 2024 and June 2025.[4]

5. CS3 Garcia was friends with CS3 A.R. and hung out with her on 28 May 2025 then never saw her again.

6. On 18 March 2026, the government provided the defense with a R.C.M. 701 disclosure regarding a conversation they had with CS3 Garcia.[5] According to the disclosure, CS3 Garica heard from an unknown source that CSSN Copeland put something in GSM3 Delacruz's drink. CS3 Garica also told the trial counsel that she heard from an unknown source that CSSN Copeland tried to get on top of DCFA Swanger while CSSN Copeland was intoxicated. "Before anything happened, DCFA Swanger left."[6]

7. On 26 March 2026, the government provided the defense with a R.C.M. 701 disclosure regarding a conversation they had with DCFN Swanger.[7] She stated that on 1 May, she invited CSSN Copeland to dinner with her and two other girls. After dinner, CSSN Copeland invited them to his barracks room.

8. DCFN Swanger stated that she, CSSN Copeland, DCFNs Trinity McCray, Flowers, Arnold, and Mr. Addison were present in the room. The group was drinking alcohol. According to DCFN Swanger, CSSN Copeland was more intoxicated than the others. At some point, CSSN Copeland asked her, "Aren't you going to get your birthday kiss?" DCFN Swanger told him words to the effect of "no, let's not, I don't know you, I just invited you to my birthday." CSSN Copeland kept his hands on top of her shoulders and pushed her from the common area into his room. DCFN Swanger got one foot into CSSN Copeland's bedroom and stated she saw CSSN Copeland's roommate in the room with headphones on, but he never said anything or acknowledged them. She believed CSSN Copeland's roommate did not see CSSN Copeland's hands on her shoulders because he was sitting in a corner of their room. DCFN Swanger stated at that moment DCFN McCray saw her being pushed by CSSN Copeland and intervened by stating it was time to go. CSSN Copeland then let go. CSSN Copeland had his hands on her for about 30 seconds. DCFN Swanger stated as they were all leaving, CSSN Copeland started following them to their cars. CSSN Copeland was shirtless and crying. It was approximately 2000 when they left.[8]

9. On 2 April 2026, there was a pretrial conference. On that same day, the trial counsel indicated that it planned to provide notice pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b) regarding the DCFA Swanger allegations.

10. As of this filing, the trial counsel has not provided additional notice pursuant to M.R.E. 404(b).

LAW

11. Military Rule of Evidence (M.R.E.) 404(b)(1) provides that evidence of other crimes, wrongs, or other acts is not admissible to prove a person's character in order to show that on a particular occasion the person acted in accordance with the character.[9] M.R.E. 404 states that the evidence of other crimes, wrongs, or other acts may be admissible to prove motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, knowledge, identity, absence of mistake, or lack of accident.[10] The admissibility of such evidence is also subject to the requirement that its probative value be weighed against danger of unfair prejudice.[11]

12. To determine whether uncharged conduct is admissible evidence under M.R.E. 404(b), a court must determine: (1) whether the evidence reasonably supports a finding by members that the accused committed prior crimes, wrongs, or acts; (2) the fact of consequence that is made more or less probable by the existence of this evidence; and (3) whether the probative value substantially outweighs the danger of unfair prejudice under M.R.E. 403.[12] All three factors must be present for the evidence to be admissible.[13]

13. To be admissible, the evidence must have some independent relevance under M.R.E. 401 and 402.[14] Evidence is relevant if: (a) it has any tendency to make a fact more or less probable than it would be without the evidence, and (b) the fact is of consequence in determining the action.[15] Irrelevant evidence is not admissible.[16]

14. In order to meet the first prong of Reynolds, the government must show by a preponderance of the evidence that the prior crime, wrong, or act occurred.[17] M.R.E. 404(b) does not require the trial judge to determine by a preponderance of the evidence that an act was committed; but the court is required to consider all of the evidence offered and decide whether the jury could reasonably find that act was committed.[18]

15. Under M.R.E. 404(b) evidence should not be admitted if the only purpose for which it is being offered is to show the accused's predisposition to commit the crime.[19] "[G]enerally, use of any characteristic 'profile' as evidence of guilt or innocence in criminal trials is improper."[20] Such evidence is improper because it treads too closely to character evidence offered to show that an accused acted in conformity with that character and, therefore, committed the act in question, evidence prohibited under MRE 404(b).[21] M.R.E. 404(b) prohibits the "propensity inference"– that a person's character (either as a trait, or in the form of specific instances of past conduct) suggests that the person did something because of a propensity to do such things.

ARGUMENT

16. The government failed to provide notice. As such, this evidence should be excluded. CSSN Copeland is in pretrial confinement in a maximum status. He has demanded a speedy trial. Therefore, the government should move expeditiously toward trial. If they have not provided notice by the third motions deadline when they have had knowledge of this information since 18 March 2026, it should be excluded. This Court must guard against propensity evidence being masqueraded as something else. Here, the government has not identified how the evidence will be used in each instance nor how they intend for this Court to be able to adequately instruct members so as to allow a full and fair trial.

17. Trial counsel must state exactly what issue it is trying to prove in order for the court to determine whether the evidence is probative, how probative it is, and whether it should be admitted in light of the other evidence in the case, and the ever-present danger of unfair prejudice. As the Eighth Circuit said in United States v. Hogue,

> In demonstrating the relevance of proffered other acts evidence, the government must articulate precisely the evidentiary hypothesis by which a fact of consequence may be inferred from the evidence of other acts. There must be a clear and logical connection between the alleged earlier offense or misconduct and the case being tried.[22]

Here, the government failed to provide any notice, and the military judge should demand more.[23]

18. The uncharged conduct at issue in this case does not make a fact of consequence more probable and any probative value is outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice. Evidence of a crime, wrong, or other act is not admissible to prove a person's character in order to show that on a particular occasion the person acted in accordance with that character. As such the government should be precluded from admitting any evidence of uncharged misconduct.

19. A fact of consequence is not made more or less probable by the existence of this evidence. The act of touching a person's shoulder and asked about a birthday kiss is not misconduct. It is not relevant to any charge in this case. The government failed to provide notice or articulate how it is relevant to any fact of consequence. Therefore, it should be excluded.

20. The probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice under M.R.E. 403. Because there is no probative value to this evidence, the danger of unfair prejudice is high. The evidence will give the members the impression that CSSN Copeland gets intoxicated and puts his hands on woman. While this is not probative of any fact of consequence, it does run the risk of substantially prejudicing CSSN Copeland by unfairly making him look like a bad person. Admission of this evidence will confuse the issues and create another trial within a trial regarding an ancillary and irrelevant issue. Therefore, it should be excluded.

[23] See e.g., United States v. Harvey, 845 F.2d 760 (8th Cir. 1988).

RELIEF REQUESTED

The defense requests this Court prohibit the government from offering the above uncharged acts under M.R.E. 404(b) as they have failed to articulate any permissible purpose and have not provided any instruction that could remedy the inescapable use of the evidence merely for propensity purposes.

EVIDENCE & ORAL ARGUMENT

The defense offers the following enclosure as evidence in support of this motion:

a. Enclosure (A): Gov't R.C.M. 701 Disclosure of CS3 Garcia-Barrera of 18 Mar 26
b. Enclosure (B): Gov't R.C.M. 701 Disclosure of DCFN Swanger of 26 Mar 26

Unless conceded by the government or granted by the Military Judge based on pleadings alone, the defense requests oral argument on this matter.

Subj: GOVERNMENT DISCLOSURE: CONVERSATION WITH DCFN SAMANTHA SWANGER

Ref: (a) R.C.M. 701 (MCM 2024)
(b) Brady v. Maryland, 373 U.S. 83 (1963)
(c) Giglio v. United States, 405 U.S. 150 (1972)
(d) JAGINST 5803.1E (20 Jan 15) Rule 3.8

1. On 26 March 2026, LCDR Christopher Dempsey, JAGC, USN, and LN2 Jocelyn M. Gomez, USN, spoke to DCFN Samantha Swanger, USN, in person. The following disclosures are provided:

a) DCFN Swanger stated she checked onboard the USS James E. Williams (DDG 95) on 11 April 2025. She stated she was part of the command's INDOC later that month with CSSN Copeland and a few other new sailors that were checking in.

b) DCFN Swanger stated her birthday was on Thursday, 1 May and she was making plans with two other girls to go to the Twisted Crab in Downtown Norfolk to eat to celebrate while they were at INDOC. She stated CSSN Copeland was eavesdropping and asked her if he could come along.

c) DCFN Swanger stated she thought if she invited him it would be a good opportunity to meet new people. She stated she asked CSSN Copeland why he got moved from his old ship and he said it was because of mental health issues. DCFN Swanger did not pry any further and believed this was reasonable. DCFN Swanger invited him to dinner.

d) DCFN Swanger stated after dinner at the Twisted Crab, CSSN Copeland invited her and the others to come over to his barracks and drink alcohol. DCFN Swanger and the others agreed. She stated CSSN Copeland's friend, Mr. Justin Addison, brought some cans of Four Lokos to the barracks. She stated her and her friends had a bad feeling about something but they kept drinking. She stated they were listening to music and she felt comfortable and safe with the people she was with. DCFN Swanger provided that she, CSSN Copeland, DCFN Trinity McCray, Flowers, Arnold, and Mr. Addison were present in the room.

e) DCFN Swanger stated about an hour after they arrived, CSSN Copeland started rubbing his junk on her and DCFN Trinity McCray while they were dancing. CSSN Copeland was also acting very weird while everyone else was calm and enjoying their time. CSSN Copeland had drank about 2 or 3 cans of Four Loko and was overly drunk. The group thought it would be better for him to start drinking water. DCFN McCray and CSSN Copeland went to the vending machines to get water. DCFN Swanger stated DCFN

McCray told her CSSN Copeland started pressing onto her and saying that he knew she wanted to do something with him and DCFN McCray told him something to the effect of "no, I'm gay" and removed herself from the situation.

f) DCFN Swanger stated once they got back to the room, CSSN Copeland laid on the floor. The group decided it was time to go. DCFN Swanger stated everyone was saying bye and as she was saying bye, CSSN Copeland asked for help cleaning up. DCFN Swanger agreed and got a trash bag to help with the trash. After cleaning the living room for about a minute, CSSN Copeland then said he needed help to clean his room, not the living room. DCFN Swanger was confused because the group had not been in his bedroom at all, except to transit to the bathroom. Meanwhile, the group was leaving the common area and was in the hallway with the front door still open as they waited for DCFN Swanger to finish cleaning.

g) DCFN Swanger stated that CSSN Copeland then placed his hands on top of her shoulders and asked her "aren't you going to get your birthday kiss?" DCFN Swanger told him words to the effect of "no, let's not, I don't know you, I just invited you to my birthday." CSSN Copeland kept his hands on top of her shoulders and pushed her from the common area into his room.

h) DCFN Swanger got one foot into CSSN Copeland's bedroom and stated she saw CSSN Copeland's roommate in the room with headphones on, but he never said anything or acknowledged them. She believed CSSN Copeland's roommate did not see CSSN Copeland's hands on her shoulders because he was sitting in a corner of their room. DCFN Swanger stated she felt her fight or flight instinct kick in and she was trying to get away or see if someone outside in the hallway could get her.

i) DCFN Swanger stated at that moment DCFN McCray saw her being pushed by CSSN Copeland and intervened by stating it was time to go. CSSN Copeland then let go. CSSN Copeland had his hands on her for about 30 seconds.

j) DCFN Swanger stated as they were all leaving, CSSN Copeland started following them to their cars. CSSN Copeland was shirtless and crying. It was approximately 2000 when they left.

k) DCFN Swanger stated she did not know what CSSN Copeland was crying about, but GSM3 Aaliyah De La Cruz had told her that CSSN Copeland called her that night and told her he was locked out of his room and asked if she could come over. DCFN Swanger stated GSM3 De La Cruz told her CSSN Copeland told her he was crying because he was upset, saying he was a horrible person for doing what he did to DCFN Swanger in the room and he did not know what to do.

l) DCFN Swanger stated the next day, Friday, CSSN Copeland did not show up to INDOC. She stated she told her HT1 that CSSN Copeland was not present at INDOC.

m) DCFN Swanger stated DCFN McCray later cursed CSSN Copeland out and him what he did that day was unacceptable.

n) DCFN Swanger stated she drank about ¾ of a Four Loko can that Thursday night and that they only drank at CSSN Copeland's barracks (and not at dinner). DFCN Swanger provided she was not overly intoxicated and was instead just was feeling good. CSSN Copeland had drank 2-3 Four Lokos.

o) DCFN Swanger stated she was still living onboard the ship around June 2025. She stated she stayed away from CSSN Copeland when he got back to the ship but there was always that weird feeling when someone leaves the ship and they come back. She stated everyone on board the ship knew about CSSN Copeland's reputation after what he did to DCFN Swanger.

p) DCFN Swanger stated she did not know V/A.R. but she knows that DCFN McCray was an FSA when V/A.R disappeared.

q) DCFN Swanger apologized for not coming forward with this information sooner. DCFN Swanger explained that she didn't want to distract from the efforts to find V/A.R. and prosecute V/A.R.'s case and did not want to get in trouble for drinking alcohol underage. Ultimately, DCFN Swanger decided it was time to come forward.

2. The preceding is not a verbatim recitation of any conversation and was not written contemporaneously with any conversation. The disclosures from the interview conducted by the Government are to reflect new or different information. To the extent the information is duplicative with already discovered information, it is provided as context. b. Convening Authority's Action and Entry of Judgment (enclosure 6).

c. Any requests for copies of the court-martial record pursuant to R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A (attach written requests, and any certificates/proof of service, but do not attach the victim's post-trial rights advisement or DD Form 2704).

d. Matters submitted by the accused and/or victim under R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A, or any written waiver of the right to submit such matters. Include all responses to requests here as well.

e. Any deferment request and the action on it (including any request to waive automatic forfeitures under Article 58b).

f. Conditions of suspension and proof of service on probationer under R.C.M. 1107, if any.

g. All clemency recommendations by members or military judge, if any.

h. Statement of Trial Results (enclosure 1).

i. Crime Reporting Information.

j. Accused's request for appellate defense counsel, or waiver/withdrawal of appellate review under R.C.M. 1115, if applicable.

k. All transfer orders, confinement orders, and excess leave orders.

l. Briefs of counsel submitted after trial, if any.

8. Preliminary Hearing.

a. DD Form 457, Preliminary Hearing Officer's Report, pursuant to Article 32, if such hearing was conducted, followed by any other allied papers that accompanied the charges when referred for trial (including any matters submitted under R.C.M. 405(l), unless included elsewhere in the record of trial).*

b. Waiver of Article 32 Hearing (if applicable).

9. Pre-Trial Allied Papers.

a. Convening Order and all amending convening orders.

b. DD Form 458, Charge Sheet (unless included at the point of arraignment in the transcript).

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

c. Congressional inquiries and replies, if any.

d. Advice of staff judge advocate, when prepared pursuant to Article 34 or otherwise.

10. Record of Proceedings.

a. Substantially verbatim recording of court-martial proceedings. Segregate open and closed sessions of the court-martial in accordance with R.C.M. 1113 and the following guidance:*

b. Ensure that each closed session of the court-martial is recorded on a separate DVD marked CLOSED SESSION, placed in its own envelope marked CLOSED SESSION, and sealed.

c. Label all DVD(s) and envelopes with the information on page 1 of this template.

d. Mark all DVDs and envelopes with "1 of X." as necessary (for example, the second DVD of six DVDs and its envelope should be marked, 2 of 6). All DVDs of open sessions may be in one envelope.

e. Mark all DVDs with their beginning and ending timestamps. The timestamps for closed sessions should match those shown on the Index.

f. Verbatim transcript or summarized report prepared in accordance with JAGINST 5814.1G. Include the following:

I. A certificate of correction, if any (including any supplemental certification for additional proceedings).

II. Court reporter and transcriptionist certification of verbatim transcript.

g. Records of former proceedings (Article 30a) and/or trials, (e.g., electronic/digital record of former proceeding, including audio recording and any scanned documentation/transcripts, CD/DVD format).*

14. Redaction. The following information shall be redacted in accordance with JAGMAN 1059 from the record of trial prior to releasing it to any accused or victim (including any transcript made pursuant to R.C.M. 1114 and attached to the record of trial) unless the information establishes an element of an offense, or is otherwise required:

a. Any recordings of closed sessions, any transcripts of closed sessions, and any sealed exhibits.

b. Names of minor victims, and names of minor witnesses. If an identifier is used, use only the initials.

c. Social Security Numbers.

d. Financial account information.

e. Home addresses.

f. Telephone numbers.

g. Personal e-mail addresses.

h. Dates of birth.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

i. Any other information that could be used to identify a specific person other than the accused.

*If the report of preliminary hearing or record of trial contains exhibits, proceedings, or other materials ordered sealed by the preliminary hearing officer or military judge, counsel for the Government, the court reporter, or trial counsel shall cause such materials to be sealed to prevent unauthorized examination or disclosure, pursuant to R.C.M. 1113. Sealed material shall be properly marked, individually placed in separate envelopes with a copy of the preliminary hearing officer or military judge sealing order affixed to it, and inserted at the appropriate place in the record of trial. Do not duplicate sealed material to include it in any copy of the record of trial. Instead, insert a copy of the sealing order in lieu of any sealed material, in any copies of the record of trial.

DIVIDERS ARE NOT NECESSARY TO SEPARATE EACH SECTION. IF USED, THEY CAN BE PAPER RATHER THAN CARD STOCK. IF A PARTICULAR COMPONENT IS NOT APPLICABLE IN THE RECORD OF TRIAL, SUCH AS AN ARTICLE 32 HEARING, EXHIBITS NOT ADMITTED, POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND VACATION HEARINGS, DO NOT INSERT A DIVIDER OR PLACEHOLDER.

FRONT AND BACK COVER MUST BE ON BLUE CARDS STOCK AND LABELED WITH GUM LABELS.

Binding. Each volume of a record of trial should be no more than 1.5 inches thick and bound at the top with metal or plastic fasteners. DO NOT interlace or "piggy-back" prong fasteners to create an oversized volume. DO NOT place hole punches where it covers up the evidence or language in the transcript. When it becomes necessary to assemble the record of trial in more than one volume, the volumes will be numbered consecutively, on the front cover, as illustrated below:

Volume 1 of 4 (Pages 1-250)
Volume 2 of 4 (Pages 251-400)
Volume 3 of 4 (Pages 401-652)
Volume 4 of 4 (Pages 653-901 and Exhibits)

Make the first volume of a multi-volume record an inch thick or smaller to allow for inclusion of post-trial documents. Limit subsequent volumes to 1.5 inches, unless dividing them requires assembling an additional volume smaller than a half inch.

Label the upper right-hand corner or the Preparation and Certification of Record of Trial Form (enclosure (8)) to reflect which copy it is, i.e., "ORIGINAL," "ACCUSED," "REVIEW" etc.

U N I T E D S T A T E S v. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CSSN / E-3 U.S. NAVY	GOVERNMENT RESPONSE TO DEFENSE MOTION IN LIMINE UNDER M.R.E. 404(b) DATED 15 APRIL 2026 20 APRIL 2026

MOTION

1. The Government does not intend to affirmatively introduce the evidence outlined in the Defense's motion. However, the Defense has indicated a desire to introduce evidence of the Accused's character for peacefulness. Should this occur, the Government reserves its right to introduce rebuttal evidence, including the allegation made by DCFSN Samantha Swanger, USN.

FACTS

2. DCFN Swanger provided that on 1 May 2025—less than a month before the Accused murdered CS3 A.R.—she went out to dinner with a group, including the Accused, to celebrate her birthday.[1] After dinner, the Accused invited her and others back to his barracks room to drink alcohol and continue celebrating and the group agreed.[2] After the group had begun the process of leaving, the Accused was intoxicated and placed his hands on top of DCFN Swanger's shoulders and asked her "aren't you going to get your birthday kiss?"[3] DCFN Swanger told him words to the effect of "no, let's not, I don't know you, I just invited you to my birthday."[4] CSSN Copeland ignored her and kept his hands on top of her shoulders.[5] He then pushed her with his hands on top of her shoulder from the common area into his room before someone else intervened.[6] This encounter lasted about 30 seconds.[7]

7. Def. Encl. B.

3. On 5 March 2026, the Defense requested production of AA Desiclali Ramirez to testify, in part, to the Accused's "character for peacefulness."[8]

BURDEN

4. The proponent of the evidence bears the burden to demonstrate the admissibility of the evidence they seek to admit.[9]

LAW

5. Under M.R.E. 404(a)(2), "[t]he accused may offer evidence of the accused's pertinent trait and, if the evidence is admitted, the prosecution may offer evidence to rebut it."

6. "Evidence is relevant if: (a) it has any tendency to make a fact more or less probable than it would be without the evidence; and (b) the fact is of consequence in determining the action."[10] When evidence offers any amount of probative value, "[t]he military judge may exclude relevant evidence if the probative value is substantially outweighed by a danger of one or more of the following: unfair prejudice, confusing the issues, misleading the members, undue delay, wasting time, or needlessly presenting cumulative evidence."[11]

ARGUMENT

7. The Government does not intend to introduce DCFN Swanger's testimony on the merits under M.R.E. 404(b).

8. However, if the Defense introduces evidence of the Accused's character for peacefulness, the Government intends to offer testimony from DFCN Swanger to rebut that evidence. Just about a month after he assaulted CSSN S.R., a few weeks before he assaulted Y.J., and not even a month before he murdered CS3 A.R., the Accused violently put his hands on DCFN Swanger and pushed her back into his bedroom. The Government would only call DCFN Swanger to support this evidence. This evidence is extremely close in time to a significant portion of the charged misconduct, took place in the Accused's barracks room (the scene of many of the charged offenses), would be brief, is not misleading or confusing, and is of high probative value in rebutting any evidence of the Accused's character for peacefulness. As such, this evidence of violent behavior is relevant to rebut any evidence of the Accused's character for peacefulness and its high probative value outweighs any danger of unfair prejudice.

RELEIF REQUESTED

9. The Government respectfully requests that this Court find the Defense's motion moot, but find that this testimony from DCFN Swanger would be relevant in rebuttal to any evidence of the Accused's character for peacefulness.

NAVY-MARINE CORPS TRIAL JUDICIARY
CENTRAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL

UNITED STATES v. JERMIAH COPELAND CSSN/E-3 U.S. Navy	DEFENSE RESPONSE TO GOVERNMENT MOTION IN LIMINE (PRELIMINARY RULING ON ADMISSIBILITY OF HEARSAY) 22 April 2026

MOTION

The defense moves this Court to deny the government's motion because the issues are either not ripe or the government has failed to meet its burden that the statements at issue are admissible. Further, the defense requests this Court deny the government's motion as to evidence regarding the possibility that CS3 A.R. committed suicide as that would be a complete defense to the charge of premeditated murder.

BURDEN

As the proponent of the evidence and the moving party, the government bears the burden. R.C.M. 905(c).

FACTS

1. CSSN Copeland is charged with violating Articles 118 (Premeditated Murder), 120 (Sexual Assault and Aggravated Sexual Contact), 128 (Aggravated Assault), 120c (Indecent Recording and Broadcasting), 131b (Obstruction of Justice), 128b (Domestic Violence), and 107 (False Official Statement).[1]

2. Trial is scheduled for 3-26 June 2026.[2]

3. CSSN C.R. told NCIS that she was on the mess decks with her boyfriend in the early morning hours of 23 July 2024 when CSSN C.R.'s boyfriend stated that he was going to bed. After her boyfriend left, she received snapchat messages from CSSN Copeland requesting the two go somewhere private to talk. CSSN C.R. agreed and went to the fantail to be in private with CSSN Copeland. During this time, CSSN C.R. alleges the assaults on the charge sheet occurred. On 24 July 2024 at 0211, CSSN C.R. sent some text messages to her boyfriend.[3]

[1] Charge Sheet.
[2] Trial Management Order.
[3] AE XCV at 1-2.

4. On 29 May 2025, in the early morning hours, ET3 Rich received a phone call from CS3 A.R. However, there is no evidence to suggest that CSSN Copeland threatened CS3 A.R. or that she was scared for her life. During the phone call, she did not say anything about CSSN Copeland, she did not say anything about a "startling offense." There was no mention of an assault, sexual assault, attempted sexual assault, or another violence. CS3 A.R. did not say anything about being frightened or threatened. According to two witnesses who were CS3 A.R.'s ex-boyfriends, ET3 Rich and HT3 Gillespie, it was normal for CS3 A.R. to have "an episode" where she would cry and panic.[4]

5. At some point that evening, after that phone call, CS3 A.R. calmed down and went back to CSSN Copeland's room. CSSN Copeland's suitemates saw CS3 A.R. alive and breathing in his room sometime during the morning of 29 May 2025 (between 0530 and 0645).[5]

6. At around 0852, FCC Parker observed CS3 A.R. alive, CS3 A.R. looked up, dismissively waved, rolled over and went back to sleep.[6]

7. Notably, FCC Parker also texted his duty section leader immediately after seeing CS3 A.R. alive.[7] On 2 June 2026, he texted with a NCIS Special Agent that CS3 A.R. was alive and acknowledged him.[8] Only after the intense media attention defense describes and cites in Appellate Exhibit XXII does FCC Parker remember a completely new version of CS3 A.R.

8. The cause and manner of death of CS3 A.R. are undetermined.[9] The defense is unaware of any expert who has opined that suicide can be ruled out as a cause of death. There is not a scintilla of direct evidence that CSSN Copeland murdered CS3 A.R. There is not a scintilla of evidence that CSSN Copeland strangled CS3 A.R.

LAW

Confrontation Clause

9. The Sixth Amendment to the United States Constitution provides, in part: "In all criminal prosecutions, the accused shall enjoy the right . . . to be confronted with the witnesses against him."[10] The Confrontation Clause requires "the declarant to be physically present in the courtroom; physical presence allows the accused to confront the declarant in person, and cross-examine him in front of the trier of fact."[11] The Confrontation Clause's mandate is analogous to the evidentiary hearsay rules: "hearsay is defined as 'a statement, other than one made by the declarant while testifying at the trial or hearing, offered in evidence to prove the truth of the matter asserted.'"[12]

10. The two concepts, constitutional confrontation and evidentiary hearsay, "are generally designed to protect similar values,"[13] and "stem from the same roots."[14] However, "it is quite a different thing to suggest that the overlap is complete and that the Confrontation Clause is nothing more or less than a codification of the rules of hearsay and their exceptions as they existed historically. . . ."[15] Although the "hearsay rules and the Confrontation Clause are generally designed to protect similar values," they do not completely "overlap."[16] Thus, a statement properly admitted under a hearsay exception may violate confrontational rights.[17] Similarly, a violation of the hearsay rules may not infringe upon the Sixth Amendment.[18]

11. In Crawford, the Supreme Court addressed the intersection between hearsay exceptions and the Confrontation Clause, holding "testimonial" statements of witnesses not testifying at trial are admissible "only where the declarant is unavailable, and only where the defendant has had a prior opportunity to cross examine."[19] The Court drew a distinction between testimonial and nontestimonial hearsay: Where nontestimonial hearsay is at issue, it is wholly consistent with the Framers' design to afford the States flexibility in their development of hearsay law . . . . Where testimonial evidence is at issue, however, the Sixth Amendment demands what the common law required: unavailability and a prior opportunity for cross-examination. The term "testimonial" applies at a minimum to prior testimony at a preliminary hearing, before a grand jury, or at a former trial; and to police interrogations.[20]

12. The Supreme Court held in Pointer v. Texas that "there are few subjects, perhaps, upon which this Court and other courts have been more nearly unanimous than in their expressions of belief that the right of confrontation and cross-examination is an essential and fundamental requirement for the kind of fair trial which is this country's constitutional goal."[21] "Indeed, we have expressly declared that to deprive an accused of the right to cross-examine the witnesses against him is a denial of the Fourteenth Amendment's guarantee of due process of law."[22]

Hearsay

13. Hearsay is not admissible unless any of the following provides otherwise: (a) a federal statute applicable in trial by courts-martial or (b) the military rules of evidence.[23]

14. "Hearsay" means a statement that: (1) the declarant does not make while testifying at the current trial or hearing; and (2) a party offers in evidence to prove the truth of the matter asserted in the statement.[24]

15. Out of court statements are presumptively unreliable.[25]

M.R.E. 802(2)—Hearsay, Excited Utterance

16. Excited Utterance is one possible exception to the general rule against hearsay evidence.[26] An excited utterance is "[a] statement relating to a startling event of condition, made while the declarant was under the stress of excitement that it caused."[27] The implicit premise [of the exception] is that a person who reacts 'to a startling event or condition' while 'under the stress of excitement caused' thereby will speak truthfully because of a lack of opportunity to fabricate."[28]

17. For a statement to qualify as an excited utterance: (1) the statement must be "spontaneous, excited or impulsive rather than the product of reflection and deliberation"; (2) the event prompting the utterance must be "startling"; and (3) the declarant must be "under the stress of excitement caused by the event."[29] Several factors inform on the third prong, including: the lapse of time between the startling event and the statement, whether the statement was made in response to an inquiry, age of the declarant, and the physical and mental condition of the declarant.[30]

18. The timing of the "startling event" impacts both the first and third prongs of the Arnold test.[31] Lapse of time is a named third prong factor in Donaldson,[32] and regarding the first Arnold prong, timing impacts whether the statement was spontaneous, excited, or impulsive (the closer in time, the less likely the statement resulted from "careful consideration").[33] Length in time is not dispositive, and the totality of the circumstances governs.[34] As a general proposition, though, where a statement relating to a startling event does not immediately follow that event, there is a strong presumption against admissibility under M.R.E. 803(2)."[35]

Present Sense Impression

19. A present sense impression is an exception to the rule against hearsay. A statement of a present sense impression is one describing or explaining an event of condition, made while or immediately after the declarant perceived it.[36]

Forfeiture by wrongdoing

20. For a statement to qualify under the forfeiture by wrongdoing exception, (1) the party against whom the statement is offered must have wrongfully caused the declarant's unavailability as a witness, and (2) the party caused the witness's unavailability with the intent to make that witness unavailable, i.e., that the accused intended their conduct to prevent the witness from testifying against them in court.[37] With respect to the second prong, the party's intent, in causing the declarant's unavailability, need not be motivated solely by the desire to prevent the declarant's would-be testimony, rather, only that it was a motivating factor in the party's decision to take such an action.[38]

21. Unconfronted testimony will not be admitted without a showing that the accused intended to prevent a witness from testifying. "In cases where the evidence suggested that the defendant had caused a person to be absent but had not done so to prevent the person from testifying--as in the typical murder case involving accusatorial statements by the victim--the testimony [is] excluded unless it was confronted or fell within [another] exception."[39]

M.R.E. 403—Unfair Prejudice

22. Relevant evidence may be excluded if the danger of unfair prejudice substantially outweighs the probative value.[40] The term "unfair prejudice" relates to the "capacity of some concededly relevant evidence to lure the factfinder into declaring guilt on a ground different from proof specific to the offense charged.[41] Unfair prejudice relates to an "undue tendency to suggest decision on an improper basis, commonly, though not necessarily, an emotional one."[42] Unfair prejudice is analyzed regarding the integrity of the trial process, not prejudice to a particular party or witness.[43]

Foundation

23. At trial, the proponent has the burden of establishing an adequate evidentiary foundation.[44] This burden can be met with direct or circumstantial evidence.[45] "The requirement of authentication or identification as a condition precedent to admissibility is satisfied by evidence sufficient to support a finding that the matter in question is what its proponent claims."[46] Evidence may be authenticated through the testimony of a witness with knowledge "that a matter is what it is claimed to be."[47]

Complete Defense

24. In Holmes v. South Carolina, a defendant tried for murder and related crimes sought to present evidence of a third-party's guilt but was prohibited by a state evidentiary rule which prohibited such evidence if the government's forensic evidence was strong.[48] The Supreme Court held that:

> [S]tate and federal rulemakers have broad latitude under the Constitution to establish rules excluding evidence from criminal trials. . . . This latitude, however, has limits. Whether rooted directly in the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment or in the Compulsory Process or Confrontation Clauses of the Sixth Amendment, the Constitution guarantees criminal defendants a meaningful opportunity to present a complete defense. . . . This right is abridged by evidence rules that infring[e] upon a weighty interest of the accused and are arbitrary or disproportionate to the purposes they are designed to serve.

ARGUMENT

25. Text messages ABHAN C.R. sent to CSSN Cuestabravo on 24 July 2024 are not excited utterances.

The government has the burden to demonstrate that the messages to her boyfriend are excited utterances. They must demonstrate that (1) the statement was "spontaneous, excited or impulsive rather than the product of reflection and deliberation;" (2) the event prompting the utterance must be "startling;" and (3) the declarant must be "under the stress of excitement caused by the event."[49] Here, the government has not done so. For one, a plain reading of the text messages suggest that CSSN C.R. deliberated. She typed out messages, maybe in an effort to cover up her rendezvous with CSSN Copeland, after she deliberated for at least enough time to get to her rack (as she discusses her inability to get to sleep). Further, she does not say anything about an assault or violence. She says she cannot believe what happened, she says it is bad, but she says nothing about a "startling offense." The messages on their own do no lay the foundation for an excited utterance and this Court should require more.

26. Statements made by CSSN S.R. in the presence of CS2 Rezan Taylor and YN3 Sean Monaghan when she confronted CSSN Copeland on 11 April 2025 are not excited utterances.

Even by the government's account of the timeline of 11 April 2025, CSSN S.R.'s statements were not made close in time to any startling event. CSSN S.R. alleges that CSSN Copeland assaulted her, then she left the room. Instead of going to get law enforcement or going home, she waited outside CSSN Copeland's room for an hour and half and then made statements. She was not under the stress of the startling event. Further, according to YN3 Monaghan, he tried to leave his room that morning and CSSN S.R. barged back into the room wielding knife before making these statements. The government has not laid the foundation for these statements as excited utterances; therefore, this Court should deny the government's motion until/unless they can lay the foundation.

27. Y.J.'s alleged request for CSSN Copeland to "stop," or words to that effect.

For Y.J.'s statements to be admissible, the government must call Y.J, she must be subject to cross examination, and they must lay the foundation for her statements to fall within a hearsay exception.

28. Text messages of PSSN Irbin Gordillocruz when he arrived back to his barracks room on 29 May 2025. (Present sense impression).

For PSSN Gordillocruz's statements to be admissible, the government must call him, he must be subject to cross examination, and they must lay the foundation for his statements to fall within a hearsay exception.

29. Various statements of CS3 A.R. as an exception to the rule against hearsay due to forfeiture by wrongdoing under M.R.E. 804(b)(6).

The government has not and cannot establish the foundation for the forfeiture by wrongdoing exception. The government's attempts to suggest that CSSN Copeland caused CS3 A.R.'s absence with the intent to prevent her from testifying are mere speculation. Compare this case with United States. v. Becker.[50] In Becker, LT Becker's wife made several previous allegations of domestic violence over the years. There, the government attempted to use the forfeiture by [49] United States v. Arnold, 25 M.J. 129, 132 (C.M.A. 1987) (internal quotation marks omitted) (citations omitted).

[50] 81 M.J. 483 (C.A.A.F. 2021).

wrongdoing exception by asking the court to speculate that because his wife had made previous allegations, LT Becker murdered his wife to prevent her from testifying. The CAAF in Becker held that the trial court did not abuse its discretion in excluding statements from LT Becker's wife because the government failed to meet its burden to demonstrate that the accused waived his right to confrontation by wrongdoing or had forfeited his hearsay objections under M.R.E. 804(b)(6) as the preponderance of the evidence failed to show that the accused intended to prevent the wife's testimony by causing her death.[51]

Here, there is much less evidence to satisfy the government's burden to prove intent. The government alleges a phone call where CS3 A.R. was upset, which was not unusual for CS3 A.R., is enough. In that call, she is alive, she gives the phone to CSSN Copeland, she never states that CSSN Copeland did anything to her, she did not call law enforcement, she called her ex-boyfriend. There is simply nothing about that call that suggests that CSSN Copeland would have had reason to think CS3 A.R. was going to testify against him or that he murdered her with the intent to prevent her testimony. At that time, CSSN Copeland had never had criminal charges preferred against him in any case. Further, the evidence, including the statements from CSSN Copeland's roommates and FCC Parker's very consistent statements prior to 8 April 2026, suggest that CS3 A.R. was alive for hours after that phone call.

30. CS3 A.R.'s statements to ET3 Daniel Rich at 0214 on 29 May 2025 are not excited utterances.

CS3 A.R.'s statements to ET3 Rich do not fall within the excited utterance exception to the rules against hearsay. To be an excited utterance, the government must prove that (1) the statement must be "spontaneous, excited or impulsive rather than the product of reflection and deliberation"; (2) the event prompting the utterance must be "startling"; and (3) the declarant must be "under the stress of excitement caused by the event."[52] Here, the government provides no evidence that there was a "startling" or that CS2 A.R. was under the stress caused by the event. ET3 Rich received a phone call from CS3 A.R. in the early morning hours of 29 May 2025. However, there is no evidence to suggest that CSSN Copeland threatened CS3 A.R. or that she was scared for her life. During the phone call, she did not say anything about CSSN Copeland, she did not say anything about an assault, a sexual assault, or an attempted sexual assault, she did not say anything about being frightened or threatened. According to two witnesses, ET3 Rich and HT3 Gillespie, it was normal for CS3 A.R. to have "an episode" where she would cry and panic.[53] The government states that CS3 A.R. must have been under the stress of "whatever just occurred." The government fails to provide any evidence of that, let alone any evidence that "whatever just occurred" was a startling event. CS3 A.R. was likely having one of her usual "episodes." The plain language of M.R.E. 803(2) requires that the statement relate to a startling event, CS3 A.R. does not mention a startling event; therefore, the government cannot establish that CS3 A.R.'s statements were an excited utterance.

31. This Court should deny the government's request to preclude admission of any evidence of "CS3 A.R. having 'episodes,' struggling with mental health, or other suggestion that she was suicidal" as this request is not ripe at this time. Further, suicide is a complete defense, and the defense must be permitted to present this evidence as long it does so with admissible evidence.[54]

RELIEF REQUESTED

The defense moves this Court to deny the government's motion because the issues are either not ripe or the government has failed to meet its burden that the statements at issue are admissible. Further, the defense requests this Court deny the government's motion as to evidence regarding the possibility that CS3 A.R. committed suicide as that would be a complete defense to the charge of premeditated murder.

S/COPELAND, JERMIAH TAYLOR/SN USN
M/B/NEE3/S/[redacted] PII

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF ET3 DANIEL RICH, USN

1. On 07JUN25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Devin RUIC conducted an interview of ET3 Daniel RICH, USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG-95), regarding the captioned investigation involving CSSN A[redacted] R[redacted] (V/[redacted] USN, DDG-95, and CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG-95.

2. RA recorded the interview of ET3 RICH using an audio/visual recording system, and RA downloaded a digital copy onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. ET3 RICH stated he first met V/[redacted] circa SEP24 when he went "cranking" to assist the Culinary Specialists aboard DDG-95. The term "cranking" was used to describe a temporary duty unrelated to ET3 RICH's traditionally rated duties.

4. ET3 RICH stated V/[redacted] would have days where she had "little panic attacks" and would want to go for a drive to Virginia Beach or to the Norfolk Botanical Gardens. ET3 RICH recalled V/[redacted] would sometimes start having "panic attacks" when they would consume alcohol. V/[redacted] would talk about her father, who was in prison, and would become concerned for her own safety when discussing his future release from prison. ET3 RICH believed V/[redacted] father was in prison because V/[redacted] "reported him," and believed her father had forced her to take drugs and "forced himself" on her. ET3 RICH indicated V/[redacted] claimed her father intended to "find her" upon his release from prison.

5. ET3 RICH stated there are certain "cues" with V/[redacted] that resulted with "panic attacks" in the past. ET3 RICH clarified V/[redacted] often displayed these cues during the "build-up to sex." ET3 RICH stated if V/[redacted] was not "feeling it" and sexual contact continued, V/[redacted] would have a "meltdown." ET3 RICH stated he had an experience with V/[redacted] where she "pushed away" and locked herself in the bathroom. ET3 RICH explained that during this incident, both he and V/[redacted] had still been clothed, but had begun to engage in an intimate act. ET3 RICH recalled having to "talk her down" through a bathroom door in hopes of calming her down. ET3 RICH relayed another incident when they were talking about V/[redacted] father, wherein she ran out of his room, and he looked for her for 30 minutes until she came back.

6. ET3 RICH relayed V/[redacted] was in a relationship with HT3 Michael GILLESPIE, USN, DDG-95, until DEC24. ET3 RICH stated a lot of V/[redacted] belongings were in HT3 GILLESPIE's room while they were dating. After V/[redacted] and HT3 GILLESPIE broke up, ET3 RICH helped V/[redacted] move her stuff out of HT3 GILLESPIE's room. ET3 RICH relayed he started dating V/[redacted] circa DEC24 and believed they broke up circa MAY25. ET3 RICH stated while he was in a relationship with V/[redacted] they would primarily sleep in his room. ET3 RICH stated he and V/[redacted] broke up because she was "going through some stuff" and wanted to "work on herself."

7. ET3 RICH relayed on 29MAY25, he received a call from V/[redacted] at 0214 hours local time and she was "freaking out" and requested a "pick-up ASAP." ET3 RICH remembered V/[redacted] was crying and having a "meltdown." ET3 RICH recalled hearing "car noises" and believed V/[redacted] may have been outside. V/[redacted] passed the phone to another individual who ET3 RICH later "found out" was S/COPELAND. ET3 RICH relayed the person V/[redacted] passed the phone to asked how long it would take for ET3 RICH to arrive, to which ET3 RICH responded he was about ten to fifteen minutes away. ET3 RICH relayed he went through the gate to Norfolk Naval Station at 0228 hours and attempted to call V/[redacted] multiple times, but she did not pick up. ET3 RICH checked V/[redacted] location and saw that it was outside of the "X2 building" near the rounded driveway drop off area located in front of the building. As a note, the X2 building is also identifiable as Willis Manor, a barracks located onboard Norfolk Naval Station at 9712 Virginia Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23511. ET3 RICH stated V/[redacted] was not there, and her phone was not there, and he started "freaking out a little bit." ET3 RICH showed pictures of V/[redacted] to people working at the front desk of X2, not further identified by ET3 RICH, but they were unsure if they recognized seeing her. ET3 RICH checked the front area of X2 to see if he could see her phone in the grass and did not find it. ET3 RICH went back inside X2; the individuals working the front desk suggested he call his command and the local precinct on base to report his concerns.

8. ET3 RICH attempted to call the base police office, but did not receive a response. ET3 RICH drove to base police and notified them of the situation. ET3 RICH estimated he called HT3 GILLESPIE around 0300 hours while he was with base police and HT3 GILLESPIE joined him at X2 around 0430 hours to help look for V/[redacted] ET3 RICH added HT3 GILLESPIE called him earlier on 29MAY25 at 0120 and 0143 hours, but he was asleep and missed the calls. ET3 RICH did not know why HT3 GILLESPIE called him that morning, but presumed it had to do with HT3 GILLESPIE's own concern for V/[redacted] ET3 RICH stated HT3 GILLESPIE was coming off duty from the ship that morning. ET3 RICH remembered he had to end the call with HT3 GILLESPIE because his Command Duty Officer (CDO) was calling him back.

9. ET3 RICH believed V/[redacted] phone died around 0430 hours on 29MAY25

Around 0500 hours, HT3 GILLESPIE stayed at X2 to continue looking for V/[redacted] and ET3 RICH drove to V/[redacted] barracks at Miller Hall, accompanied by two Masters-at-Arms (MAs) and waited for the Resident Advisors (RA) to arrive and unlock her door. ET3 RICH relayed the MAs accessed V/[redacted] room around 0630 hours, but V/[redacted] was not there. ET3 RICH stated the MAs did not permit him to go into her room but he peeked his head in and noticed the room looked like a photo or video of a "Fit Check" V/[redacted] sent to her friend CSSN Gladys GARCIABARRERA, USN, DDG-95 on 28MAY25. ET3 RICH noticed the only thing that appeared missing was her backpack. ET3 RICH remembered HT3 GILLESPIE met him at Miller Hall to assist in searching. ET3 RICH remembered going back to X2 with HT3 GILLESPIE after searching Miller Hall. ET3 RICH estimated he concluded his search and left base to go to work around 0730 hours.

11. ET3 RICH stated HT3 GILLESPIE called him between 0800 and 0900 hours on 29MAY25 and told ET3 RICH he had checked S/COPELAND's room and did not see V/[redacted] and S/COPELAND in the room. ET3 RICH recalled hearing from HT3 GILLESPIE that "the bed was made" and nothing looked "messed up." ET3 RICH believed it was possible HT3 GILLESPIE found out V/[redacted] was with S/COPELAND from CSSN GARCIABARRERA.

12. ET3 RICH recalled there was an "All Hands Call" around 1000 hours on 29MAY25 and remembered a Chief pulled him aside and told him V/[redacted] was found with S/COPELAND in S/COPELAND's room and that he could "relax." ET3 RICH learned FCC Brad PARKER, USN, DDG-95, was the person who found S/COPELAND and V/[redacted] and messaged him via "GroupMe." FCC PARKER told him V/[redacted] was "ok and safe" and affirmed he had seen V/[redacted] that day.

13. ET3 RICH stated he recently attempted to find V/[redacted] location on the morning of 07JUN25 as well as when he was at Naval Medical Center Portsmouth (NMCP) on 06JUN25. ET3 RICH stated ETC Donald ACKLEY, USN, DDG-95 escorted him to NMCP for a Command Referral to Behavioral Health. ET3 RICH relayed he attempted to sign into V/[redacted] Navy Federal Credit Union (NFCU) account and her email account a few times on 03JUN25 or 04JUN25 on his laptop and desktop while at his barracks; ET3 RICH explained he had attempted to login to V/[redacted] accounts using saved passwords, as V/[redacted] previously borrowed and used the laptop. ET3 RICH further explained he had attempted the logins on both the barracks-wide Wi-Fi network, and on his own Wi-Fi network later in his room.

14. ET3 RICH signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure for the collection of his DNA via buccal swabs; Enclosure (B) pertains. ET3 RICH signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure of his MSI brand

15. Subsequent to the completion of this interview, PA accompanied ET3 RICH to his barracks room to facilitate the execution of the signed PASS. During that search, NCIS personnel identified instructional paperwork associated with pregnancy tests in his room. ET3 RICH explained that in approximately MAR25, exact date not recalled, he and V/[redacted] had engaged in unprotected sex after consuming alcohol and afterward ET3 RICH could not recall whether he "pulled out" to avoid ejaculating in V/[redacted] ET3 RICH and V/[redacted] acquired multiple pregnancy tests from a local CVS, located in the vicinity of the Old Dominion University Campus, and waited approximately two weeks before conducting the tests. ET3 RICH reported that the test results were negative, indicating V/[redacted] had not become pregnant from the incident.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF HT3 MICHAEL GILLESPIE, USN

1. On 08Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Investigator (PI) Tyler B. MANN conducted a follow-up interview of HT3 Michael Davontae GILLESPIE, USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95) at NCISRA Norfolk, VA to develop additional information pertaining to the captioned investigation. Prior to initiating the interview, RA and PI identified themselves to HT3 GILLESPIE as a Special Agent and Investigator, respectively.

2. RA recorded this interview using an audio and video recording tool. This report serves as a summary of the interview and should not be treated as a verbatim account of the information discussed. A digital copy of the recorded interview is available on the optical disc appended to this report as Enclosure (A).

3. HT3 GILLESPIE identified himself as a former romantic partner and friend to V/[redacted] HT3 GILLESPIE and V/[redacted] dated for approximately five months in 2024, with their relationship ending in approximately Nov24. HT3 GILLESPIE identified ET3 Daniel David RICH Jr., USN, DDG 95, as the individual who dated V/[redacted] after him. HT3 RICH could not provide information regarding precisely how much time elapsed between the end of his romantic relationship with V/[redacted] and the beginning of her romantic relationship with ET3 RICH but noted that their relationship had also ended prior to V/[redacted] disappearance. HT3 GILLESPIE reported that despite V/[redacted] romantic entanglement with ET3 RICH, he had engaged in intimate acts with her on at least two occasions since the end of their relationship, in or around Feb25 and in May25.

4. HT3 GILLESPIE last interacted with V/[redacted] in person on Wednesday morning, 28May25, at work aboard DDG 95. HT3 GILLESPIE admitted that the conversation with V/[redacted] became contentious, as he raised the topic of V/[redacted] returning a motorcycle helmet he previously gave to her. HT3 GILLESPIE noted there were specific care instructions for motorcycle helmets, and V/[redacted] did not ride independent of their rides together, nor did she own a motorcycle herself. V/[redacted] expressed frustration with HT3 GILLESPIE's request, and HT3 GILLESPIE withdrew the specific request for the helmet but continued to discuss the logistics of retrieving other items belonging to him from V/[redacted] barracks.

5. HT3 GILLESPIE next interacted with V/[redacted] during the late afternoon or evening of Wednesday, 28May25, via telephone. HT3 GILLESPIE reported V/[redacted] called him, and they spoke cordially about how the remainder of her day went. According to HT3 GILLESPIE, V/[redacted] informed him that she had a very good day, and that she had gone to Target with CSSN Gladis GARCIABARRERA, USN, DDG 95 for a shopping trip after work. HT3 GILLESPIE noted that V/[redacted] had communicated with him in this manner while they dated, as she enjoyed having someone to discuss her activities with.

6. HT3 GILLESPIE reported he had duty onboard DDG 95 during the night of 28-29May25, including a specific watch shift in the later hours of the night and early morning. HT3 GILLESPIE reported receiving a text message reading "Fuck you" from V/[redacted] sometime within the 2300-0000 hours timeframe. HT3 GILLESPIE was unsure of the specific time V/[redacted] sent the message, as he only received it upon returning to the upper decks of DDG 95 from conducting watch on the lower levels of the ship where he did not receive cell signal.

7. Upon receiving the message, HT3 GILLESPIE became confused and subsequently concerned about V/[redacted] well-being. The discrepancy between their earlier telephonic conversation and the text message was jarring, and HT3 GILLESPIE became concerned V/[redacted] may be experiencing what he referred to as "an episode." HT3 GILLESPIE elaborated that V/[redacted] suffered from Post-Traumatic Stress (PTS), associated with sexual abuse she suffered from a relative. HT3 GILLESPIE explained obliquely that he and V/[redacted] had dealt with similar traumatic events in the past, and their shared experiences drew them together and helped them support one another. HT3 GILLESPIE began attempting to call and text V/[redacted] multiple times, without success. HT3 GILLESPIE reported that at some point, exact time not recalled, he noticed an iPhone notification indicating V/[redacted] had placed her phone on "Do Not Disturb" mode.

8. Between 0100-0200 hours on 29May25, HT3 GILLESPIE attempted to call ET3 RICH to enlist his assistance in reaching out to V/[redacted] and ensure her safety. HT3 GILLESPIE explained that ET3 RICH would also be aware of the occasional severity of V/[redacted] "episodes" and could take appropriate action while HT3 GILLESPIE was stuck on duty aboard the ship; however, ET3 RICH did not answer HT3 GILLESPIE's phone calls.

9. HT3 GILLESPIE reported that sometime around after 0300 hours, exact time not recalled, he was able to depart duty to begin looking for V/[redacted] himself. HT3 GILLESPIE had historically shared his own location with V/[redacted] via the iPhone's "Find My" application and been able to observe V/[redacted] location, as well. After receiving V/[redacted] text message, HT3 GILLESPIE had opened the "Find My" application, and noted V/[redacted] cell phone was in vicinity of "X2." As a note, X2 is also identifiable as Willis Manor, a barracks located onboard Norfolk Naval Station at 9712 Virginia Avenue, Norfolk, VA 23511. By the time HT3 GILLESPIE departed the ship, he no longer had access to V/[redacted] location but traveled to X2 as her last known location.

10. Upon arriving to the X2 barracks, HT3 GILLESPIE learned from the front desk workers that he was not the only individual who had recently asked about V/[redacted] ET3 RICH had been at X2 earlier. HT3 GILLESPIE and ET3 RICH met at the X2 barracks shortly thereafter to search together. ET3 RICH had enlisted the assistance of Masters-at-Arms (MAs) from base police, and accompanied them to Miller Hall, V/[redacted] assigned barracks, to look for her in her room. HT3 GILLESPIE stayed at X2 and was joined by other MAs to continue searching for V/[redacted] there.

11. HT3 GILLESPIE learned from CSSN GARCIABARRERA, at a time not specifically recalled or reported, that V/[redacted] had intended to spend the evening of 28May25 hanging out with S/COPELAND, a fellow culinary specialist from DDG95. HT3 GILLESPIE indicated that he reported this information to the MAs, who attempted to locate V/[redacted] and S/COPELAND in a room identified by a Resident Assistant (RA), not further identified, as assigned to S/COPELAND. HT3 GILLESPIE accompanied the MAs and an RA to a barracks room located on the second deck of X2 but did not find V/[redacted] or S/COPELAND. HT3 GILLESPIE noted the barracks suite inspected by the MAs and RA was empty, clean, and seemed largely uninhabited. As a note, S/COPELAND's actual barracks room was located on the third deck of the X2 building.

12. HT3 GILLESPIE noted his calls and texts to V/[redacted] cell phone stopped being delivered at approximately 0430 hours on 29May25. HT3 GILLESPIE believed V/[redacted] cell phone battery may have died, or the phone was turned off, at this time. HT3 GILLESPIE had to suspend his search for V/[redacted] sometime between 0600 and 0700 hours, as he had a scheduled dental appointment at approximately 0800 hours. HT3 GILLESPIE provided information to ET3 RICH indicating MAs had entered S/COPELAND's barracks room and failed to find either S/COPELAND or V/[redacted]

13.HT3 GILLESPIE reported having no further contact with V/[redacted] after her phone died. HT3 GILLESPIE, ET3 RICH, and CSSN GARCIABARRERA continued to communicate with one another about her disappearance and were unconvinced by the DDG 95 Command report indicating that V/[redacted] had been found and was safe on 29May25. HT3 GILLESPIE noted that S/COPELAND was the last person seen with V/[redacted] and was therefore the individual that most likely knew what happened to V/[redacted]

14. On Sunday, 01Jun25, HT3 GILLESPIE confronted S/COPELAND aboard DDG 95 and surreptitiously recorded the interaction with his iPhone. HT3 GILLESPIE showed RA and PI the video and provided a copy to PI. In that recorded interaction, S/COPELAND appeared to identify himself as the individual who asked ET3 RICH how long it would take for him to arrive when V/[redacted] called ET3 RICH at 0214 hours on 29May25. S/COPELAND claimed that V/[redacted] stayed with him after that phone call before leaving later that morning. HT3 GILLESPIE challenged S/COPELAND, informing him that he'd entered a room believed to be S/COPELAND's looking for V/[redacted] at which point it becomes clear that HT3 GILLESPIE and the MAs entered a room on the incorrect floor. S/COPELAND then claimed that following a visit to his room by an unidentified "Chief" he had "dropped her off" outside her building. S/COPELAND told HT3 GILLESPIE that she, V/[redacted] "was tripping" and crying while they were together. S/COPELAND also claimed that V/[redacted] had begun consuming alcohol before he arrived, and that all he consumed was a "Buzzball or two."

15. HT3 GILLESPIE signed Permissive Authorizations for Search and Seizure (PASS) for his cell phone, an iPhone XR with serial number DX3FJFRQKXKN, his car, a blue 2004 Ford Mustang with Virginia license plate [redacted PII], his motorcycle, a Kawasaki Z650 with North Carolina license plate [redacted PII]. The signed PASS forms for the execution of those searches are documented in separate reports. HT3 GILLESPIE noted that he had a fellow USN member friend staying with him at his barracks and therefore declined to immediately provide a PASS for his barracks. HT3 GILLESPIE noted he remained willing to permit a search of his barracks at a later time.

16. HT3 GILLESPIE signed a PASS for his Deoxyribonucleic Acid (DNA), via buccal swap, which was executed following his interview; Enclosure (B) pertains. The DNA swabs were collected and placed into evidence under ECD #HA9UT and item #455TC.

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW OF FCC BRAD PARKER, USN

1. On 03JUN25, Reporting Investigator (RI) and Participating Agent (PA) Caroline ROBINSON interviewed FCC Brad PARKER (FCC PARKER), USN, USS JAMES E WILLIAMS (DDG 95), regarding his knowledge of the disappearance of CSSN A[redacted] R[redacted] (V/[redacted]), USN, DDG 95.

2. The interview of FCC PARKER was recorded using an audio/visual recording system and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. The interview of FCC PARKER was recorded using an audio recorder and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Digital Video Disc-Recordable (DVD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (B) pertains.

4. On 03JUN25, FCC PARKER signed a Permissive Authorization for Search and Seizure (PASS) to allow NCIS to obtain screenshots of messages pertaining to the disappearance of V/[redacted] Results of PASS will be documented in a separate investigative action.

5. FCC PARKER described the incident as it was reported to him. FCC PARKER stated on 29MAY25 at 0700, he was advised V/[redacted] was not doing well and began calling friends on the ship. FCC PARKER identified the friends as co-worker, CSSN COPELAND, later identified as CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, ET3 RICH, later identified as ET3 Daniel RICH (ET3 RICH), USN, DDG 95, and "Gillespie", later identified as HT3 Michael GILLESPIE (HT3 GILLESPIE), USN, DDG 95. FCC PARKER clarified S/COPELAND, ET3 RICH, and HT3 GILLESPIE all stated she was seeking help that evening. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND relayed ET3 RICH went to her barracks room, Miller Hall BLDG U-16, she was not there and did not answer her cell phone. FCC PARKER stated he learned S/COPELAND did not show up for the "breakfast shift" at his schedule time (NFI).

6. FCC PARKER stated on the morning of 29MAY25, he went to locate S/COPELAND at his barracks room, Willis Manor, X-2, RM 335B, Bed A, on board Naval Station Norfolk, Norfolk, VA. According to FCC PARKER, S/COPELAND answered the door with groggy eyes, a pair of basketball shorts and the lights in his room were off as if he just woken up. FCC PARKER stated he did not notice

any indications of alcohol use. FCC PARKER indicated he told S/COPELAND they needed to go to work, to which S/COPELAND stated he was not alone. FCC PARKER stated he asked S/COPELAND if it was V/[redacted] and S/COPELAND confirmed. FCC PARKER stated he recognized V/[redacted] in S/COPELAND's bed. FCC PARKER clarified V/[redacted] looked up, dismissively waved, rolled over and went back to sleep. FCC PARKER relayed V/[redacted] was wrapped in a blanket with only her feet being exposed. FCC PARKER relayed at 0854, he texted LSC Rob JANSON (LSC JANSON), USN, DDG 95, confirming S/COPELAND and V/[redacted] were in S/COPELAND's room.

7. FCC PARKER stated he told S/COPELAND to step out of the room and into the common area. FCC PARKER relayed he asked if they were ok and if V/[redacted] was in any imminent danger to which S/COPELAND replied "I do not think so." FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND relayed he went to pick V/[redacted] up, who was having problems with her boyfriend (NFI) in Texas, and they watched movies. FCC PARKER said he asked S/COPELAND if he had a ride to work, to which S/COPELAND said he did. FCC PARKER stated he departed after he advised S/COPELAND to ensure V/[redacted] was returned to her room and to get to work. FCC PARKER drew a sketch depicting the layout of S/COPELAND's room; Enclosure (C) pertains.

8. FCC PARKER relayed he was there for approximately five (5) to ten (10) minutes. Additionally, FCC PARKER indicated there was a logbook in the lobby where he signed in and out from. FCC PARKER stated at 1241, S/COPELAND called him stating he dropped off V/[redacted] at her barracks room and was waiting for his ride. FCC PARKER stated at 1523, he texted S/COPELAND asking why he was still not at work. FCC PARKER relayed at 1636, S/COPELAND texted him saying he was still waiting on a ride to work. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND never showed up at work and he did not hear from him until 01JUN25.

9. FCC PARKER stated on the morning of 30MAY25, V/[redacted] and S/COPELAND did not show up to work. FCC PARKER conveyed he attempted to locate both of them in their respective rooms but was unsuccessful. FCC PARKER relayed he attempted to call and text V/[redacted] and S/COPELAND but they did not answer. FCC PARKER stated he spoke with V/[redacted]s roommate (NFI) who stated she had not seen V/[redacted] since the night of 28MAY25. FCC PARKER relayed at 0950, he called LSC JANSON advising V/[redacted] was not in her room. FCC PARKER advised at 1017, he called and texted S/COPELAND from his barracks room, but he did not answer. FCC PARKER stated he spoke with S/COPELAND's roommate (NFI) who related he was in the room earlier that morning but did not know when S/COPELAND left.

10. FCC PARKER stated on 31MAY25, ET3 RICH filed a missing person report for V/[redacted]. FCC PARKER did not identify the filing agency. FCC PARKER advised S/COPELAND called him on the afternoon of 01JUN25 about his unauthorized absence (UA) status. FCC PARKER relayed the command called and texted him, to which S/COPELAND stated he does not normally answer his phone when he is not on duty. FCC PARKER relayed he asked S/COPELAND if he had heard from V/[redacted] According to FCC PARKER, S/COPELAND stated he had not seen her since he dropped her off the afternoon of 29MAY25.

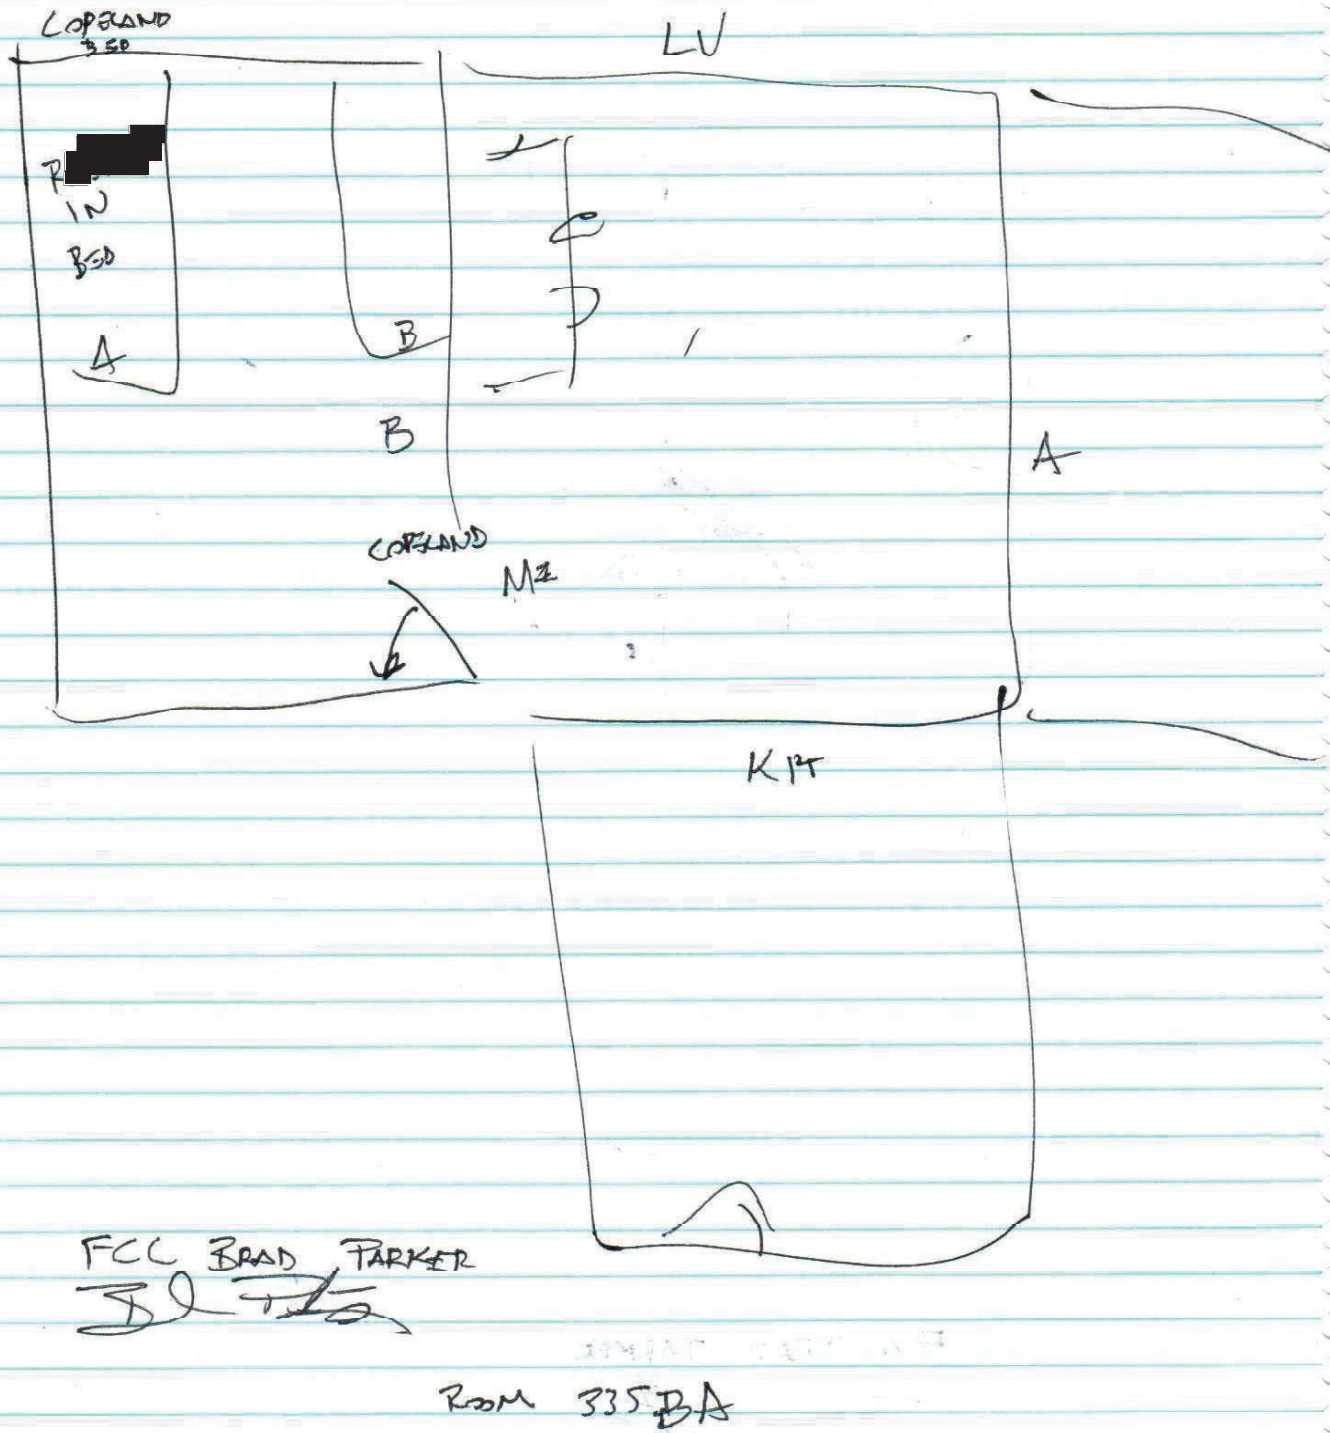
11. FCC PARKER conveyed on the morning of 29MAY25, V/[redacted]'s LPO, CS1 HOWELLEL, later identified as CS1 Daryl HOWELLEL, USN, DDG 95, began sending daily texts to her. FCC PARKER stated on 01JUN25, the Commanding Officer, later identified to be CDR Timothy WINTERS, USN, DDG 95, mandated daily checks on V/[redacted]s room until she was found. FCC PARKER relayed on the same day, CS2 BRYANT, later identified as CS2 Joshua BRYANT, USN, DDG 95, went to her barracks room and she was not there.

12. FCC PARKER advised on 02JUN25, he went to V/[redacted]s barracks room because he was advised she left her phone in her room but was unable to locate it. FCC PARKER relayed the building manager (NFI) let him into the room and he "visually" looked for the her phone. FCC PARKER clarified he did not touch anything in the room. FCC PARKER stated S/COPELAND did not have a driver's license and is pending reckless driving charges with Virginia Beach Police Department.



13. No further information was obtained.

RESULTS OF SECONDARY INTERVIEW OF FCC BRAD PARKER, USN

1. On 05Jun25, Reporting Agent (RA) and Participating Agent (PA) Brandon MOORE conducted a secondary interview with FCC Brad PARKER, USN, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95).

2. The interview of FCC PARKER was recorded using an audio recording device and a digital copy was downloaded onto a Compact Disc-Recordable (CD-R). This document is a summary of the interview and not a verbatim transcription. For full details of the interview, refer to the working copy of the original DVD-R; Enclosure (A) pertains.

3. FCC PARKER stated he became CSSN A[redacted] R[redacted] (V/[redacted] USN, DDG 95, Chief approximately 2 months ago. FCC PARKER relayed he would see V/[redacted] at least 4 times per week.

4. FCC PARKER was shown an image of V/[redacted] FCC PARKER stated the individual in the image was who he knows to be V/[redacted] and was the individual he saw in the bed inside of the room of CSSN Jermiah COPELAND (S/COPELAND), USN, DDG 95, on 29May25. FCC PARKER signed and dated the image; Enclosure (B) pertains.

5. FCC PARKER relayed he believed the following individuals had gone to V/[redacted] room on the specified days:
a. Thursday, 29May25 - FCC PARKER was tasked to go to V/[redacted] room; however, he located her in S/COPELAND's room, so he did not go to V/[redacted] room.
b. Friday, 30May25 - FCC PARKER and CS1 Daryl HOWELL-EL, USN, DDG 95
c. Saturday, 31May25 - No one
d. Sunday, 01Jun25 - CS2 Joshua BRYANT, USN, DDG 95
e. Monday, 02Jun25 - FCC PARKER
f. Tuesday, 03Jun25 - No one
g. Wednesday, 04Jun25 - FCC PARKER
h. Thursday, 05Jun25 - LT Yan LIANG, USN, DDG 95

6. FCC PARKER reported he went to S/COPELAND's room on Friday, 30May25, with CS1 HOWELL-EL. FCC PARKER stated CS2 BRYANT was going to go to S/COPELAND's room on Sunday, 01Jun25; however, he had gotten word that Base Police (NFI) had stopped by S/COPELAND's room and made contact with him.

UNITED STATES v. Jermiah Copeland ~~CSSN/E-3~~ CS3/E-4 CBD 85JUN2C U.S. Navy 3 CBD 85JUN2C	Memorandum of Plea Agreement

AMS JTC

I, ~~CSSN~~ Jermiah Copeland, USN, the accused in the court-martial now pending, in exchange for good consideration, and after thorough consultation with my Defense Counsel, do fully understand and agree to the following terms:

1. I agree to enter pleas as indicated below. I assert that I am, in fact, guilty of the offenses to which I am pleading guilty. I am entering into this agreement freely and voluntarily. No one has threatened or coerced me into entering this agreement.

2. This memorandum sets out the entire agreement between the Special Trial Counsel and me. There are no other written, oral, or implied agreements.

3. I am satisfied with all of my Defense Counsel, LCDR Amanda Serfess, LCDR Clifton Morgan, and LCDR Todd Mihill, in all respects and consider them qualified to represent me at this court-martial.

4. I understand that I may withdraw from this plea agreement for any reason prior to acceptance of this plea agreement by the military judge. I understand that I may also request to withdraw from this plea agreement after its acceptance, but before the sentence is announced if good cause is shown.

5. I understand that per R.C.M. 705(e)(4)(B), the Special Trial Counsel may withdraw from this plea agreement:

a. at any time before my substantial performance of the promises contained in this agreement;

b. upon my failure to fulfill any material promise or condition in the agreement;

c. when inquiry by the military judge discloses a disagreement as to a material term in the agreement; or

~~d. if findings are set aside because a plea of guilty is held improvident on appellate review.~~

6. Future Misconduct

a. I understand that should I commit any misconduct (i.e., any act or omission in violation of the UCMJ which constitutes a material breach of this agreement) after the signing of this plea agreement but before the date of trial, such misconduct may be the basis for the Special Trial Counsel to unilaterally withdraw from the plea agreement, rendering the entire agreement null and void.

b. I further understand that if I commit misconduct after the date of trial, but before the date of the entry of judgment, the Convening Authority may, after first complying with notice and hearing requirements consistent with Article 72, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 1108, vacate the portion of the sentence that was suspended as a result of the Military Judge's or the Special Trial Counsel's recommendation. Should the Convening Authority vacate the suspension of any portion of my sentence based on misconduct occurring after the date of trial but before entry of judgment, I understand any suspended portion of my sentence may be imposed upon me.

c. I also understand that should I commit any misconduct after the date of the entry of judgment, or violate any of the conditions of suspension stated in this agreement during the period in which any part of my sentence is suspended, the Convening Authority may, after complying with the procedures set forth in R.C.M. 1108, vacate any periods of suspension recommended by the Military Judge or the Special Trial Counsel and approved by the Convening Authority. I understand that previously suspended portion of my sentence could be imposed upon me.

7. I understand that if either side withdraws from this agreement, then my offer to plead guilty and enter into this agreement cannot be used against me in any way to prove whether I am guilty or not of the charges alleged against me at this court-martial or in determining an appropriate sentence, except as outlined below in paragraph 8(i).

Remainder of this page intentionally left blank.

5. Agreements by the accused. In exchange for the Special Trial Counsel Convening Authority's agreement, I agree to do the following:

a. Plead as follows:

b. I agree to elect trial by military judge alone, and I waive my right to a trial by members, including enlisted members.

c. I intend to request in presentencing, at government expense, the presence of Rochelle Brown (CSSN Copeland's mother) as a witness. Provided that the Special Trial Counsel agrees to produce this witness, I will not request the production of any additional witnesses at government expense. This provision has not interfered with my selection of witnesses or in presenting a case in extenuation and mitigation. If I have further material to present, I intend to use alternative means to present this material. The government and I also agree to not object to the Court receiving telephonic testimony in lieu of live testimony offered during presentencing. This provision does not preclude objections to the content of the testimony offered.

d. The government and I agree not to object to relevant service record documents, relevant medical or autopsy reports, relevant command investigation materials, relevant Naval Criminal Investigative Service evidentiary material, relevant statements offered by the defense in extenuation and mitigation, or relevant statements offered by the government in aggravation to include written, audio, or videotaped statements or telephonic testimony of any crime victim or relevant witness being offered by either party during presentencing or relevant unsworn testimony by a crime victim who exercises the right to be reasonably heard and is called by the court-martial in accordance with R.C.M. 1001(e) on the basis of foundation, hearsay, lack of confrontation, or authenticity. Each party will provide the other party final witness and exhibit lists covered by this paragraph at least three calendar days prior to the scheduled presentencing proceeding. This provision does not interfere with my ability to present an effective and complete case in extenuation and mitigation.

e. I agree, and am fully prepared, to go to trial and offer to go to trial no later than 8 June 2026. I understand that this agreement will not be deemed to have been breached if the government is unprepared or the judiciary cannot schedule the trial by that date.

f. I agree to waive any administrative discharge board based on any act or omission to which I have plead guilty. I agree that, when the government provides notification of administrative discharge proceedings based on any act or omission to which I have plead guilty, that I will waive my right to an administrative discharge board. If the government provides this notification before my court-martial, I agree to provide my waiver to the government prior to the announcement of the sentence in this case. I understand that any administrative discharge will be characterized in accordance with service regulations and may be under other-than-honorable conditions. I fully understand the nature and purpose of an Administrative Discharge Board and the rights that I would have at such a Board.

g. I understand that by pleading guilty, I waive all motions except 1) those that are non-waivable pursuant to R.C.M. 705(c)(1)(B) and 2) those previously filed pursuant to Article 13, UCMJ and/or R.C.M. 305(l). I agree that my waiver is effective at the time this plea agreement is signed by all parties.

h. The government and I agree to enter into the Stipulation of Fact contained in Annex I to this Agreement for use during the providence inquiry and during the presentencing proceeding. I have reviewed the stipulation completely, I agree the facts therein are true and admissible, and I have no objections.

i. Additionally, if this agreement should become void due to my actions, then I agree to following waiver of my rights pursuant to M.R.E. 410: The government may use the signed stipulation of fact, as well as any information directly or indirectly derived from the signed stipulation of fact: (1) in cross examination if you testify in any administrative or criminal proceeding; and, (2) to rebut directly or indirectly, any evidence, arguments, statements, and/or representations offered or elicited by you or on your behalf at trial, sentencing, or any other criminal or administrative proceeding (including but not limited to motions hearing, trial, or sentencing). If the reason this agreement becomes void is by no fault of my own, the protections established in M.R.E. 410 remain.

j. I agree to meet with Ms. Esmerelda Castle, Article 6b representative and mother of CS3 A.R., after I am found guilty, but before presentencing begins. This meeting will occur in ~~the pretrial confinement (PTC) room on the third floor of~~ building A-50 in Norfolk. The only people that will be in attendance at this meeting will be required brig staff, one of my attorneys, and Ms. Castle. One member of the Special Trial Counsel team may also be present. The media will not be present. Ms. Castle's attorney, Mr. Marshall Griffin will not be present. I understand that I will not be required to make any statement, comment, declaration, nor answer any questions during this meeting.

9. Agreements by the Special Trial Counsel. In exchange for my agreements, the Special Trial Counsel/Convening Authority agrees to do the following:

a. The Special Trial Counsel agrees to withdraw the language, charges, and specifications to which I have pled not guilty in return for my pleas of guilty and following the Military Judge's acceptance of my pleas as set forth above. The Special Trial Counsel agrees that, after the announcement of the sentence by the Military Judge, the withdrawn charges and/or specifications will be dismissed without prejudice to ripen into prejudice upon completion of appellate review where the findings and sentence have been upheld.

~~The remainder of this page was intentionally left blank~~

10. Sentencing Limitations.

The parties agree that the Military Judge may only sentence as follows:

a. Punitive discharge: A dishonorable discharge shall be adjudged.
b. Confinement: Shall be adjudged as set forth in Table A
c. Forfeiture: Total forfeitures shall be adjudged.
d. Fine: No fine will be adjudged.
e. Reduction: Reduction to E-1 shall be adjudged.
f. Other lawful punishments: No other lawful punishments will be adjudged

11. Notification provisions. I have been advised of the following potential consequences of my plea(s) of guilty and resultant convictions:

a. My Defense Counsel has advised me that my guilty pleas to the charges and specifications contained in this agreement may preclude me from the ownership, receipt, or transport of any firearm and ammunition that has been transported in interstate or foreign commerce under 18 U.S.C. § 922(g).

b. My Defense Counsel has advised me that any punitive discharge that is adjudged and ultimately approved in my case may adversely affect my ability to receive Veterans' and all other benefits accrued as a result of my military service.

c. I understand that I may be placed on appellate leave under the provisions of 10 U.S.C. § 876a, Article 76a of the UCMJ, if the sentence, as approved, includes an unsuspended punitive discharge. I understand that an individual placed into an appellate leave status will normally not receive any pay or allowances. I further understand that I may receive pay and/or allowances upon the execution of my discharge after appellate review is complete for the amount of accrued leave I have accumulated.

d. I have been fully advised by my Defense Counsel of, and I fully understand and comprehend the meaning and effect of, my guilty pleas and all attendant effects and consequences, including the possibility that I may be processed for administrative discharge from the U.S. Navy. I understand that nothing in this agreement ensures or promises that administrative separation processing will be disapproved for the misconduct underlying the charges at this court-martial. I understand that Commander, Navy Personnel Command, or any other appropriate separation authority may initiate administrative separation processing based on the misconduct underlying this court-martial. I understand that such an administrative discharge could result in an Other Than Honorable characterization of service, unless otherwise limited by this agreement, even if part or all of the sentence, including a punitive discharge, is suspended or disapproved for any reason. I understand that if I am separated with a characterization Other Than Honorable that I may be deprived of veterans' benefits based upon my current period of active service, and that I may therefore expect to encounter substantial prejudice in civilian life in many situations.

e. My Defense Counsel has advised me that, as a result of my pleas, I may be required to register as a sexual offender in any state in which I am domiciled. I have reviewed DoD Instruction 1325.07 (series) with my counsel and understand that I am entering a plea of guilty to an offense requiring sex offender registration processing within the meaning of Appendix 4 to Enclosure 2 of that instruction. Further, my counsel has advised me that, in accordance with 42 U.S.C. § 14071(d), my information in the offender registry may be accessible by the public.

Uh thanks bye bye bye bye bye Oh my God.

00:01:54 Speaker 3

Hi.

00:01:57 Speaker 2

Happy rose.

00:01:59 Speaker 3

There hello.

00:02:03 Speaker 3

How do you delete it it?

00:02:06 Speaker 2

It's been wonderful how has your day been Heidi rose.

00:02:11 Speaker 3

Uh and then the struggle she's gonna pizza place.

00:02:25 Speaker 2

Where's mom at?

00:02:32 Speaker 2

How how's the school doing?

00:02:36 Speaker 2

That's good that's good.

00:02:45 Speaker 3

Well what with him wearing all day.

00:02:48 Speaker 2

Hey tell them to fill.

00:02:50 Speaker 2

Out.

00:02:51 Speaker 3

Huh.

00:02:52 Speaker 2

Tell them chill out they should not be in.

00:02:53 Speaker 2

The car screaming like that ohh.

00:03:00 Speaker 2

What don't tell him shut up just just tell them for me to lower their voices they're being too loud?

00:03:15 Speaker 3

I.

00:03:17 Speaker 2

Who is this?

00:03:19 Speaker 3

Kyle.

00:03:20 Speaker 2

Oh hey Claire.

00:03:25 Speaker 3

But.

00:03:26 Speaker 2

You need to stop all that winning alright.

00:03:29 Speaker 3

The OK.

00:03:30 Speaker 2

Yeah if you're having a problem you need to address it or tell Gigi what's what's happening OK.

00:03:37 Speaker 2

You don't have to you don't need to keep whining and crying OK if you're having something wrong make sure you tell Gigi tell auntie channel or auntie Olivia OK.

00:03:46 Speaker 3

And.

00:03:47 Speaker 3

Alright bye bye.

00:03:54 Speaker 2

How do you?

00:03:58 Speaker 3

Bye.

00:03:59 Speaker 2

Harry hello yes yes stop crying and stop screaming OK hello.

00:04:09

No.

00:04:14 Speaker 2

Ohg man.

00:04:16 Speaker 3

Oh my God.

00:04:21 Speaker 3

What do you have for me about?

00:04:27 Speaker 3

Whoa.

00:04:31 Speaker 3

Can you stop yelling then costing me he'll stop talking?

00:04:46 Speaker 2

Now I know mom got her hands full.

00:04:50 Speaker 3

Welcome everyday I'm at school we have something new to tell me about them.

00:05:02 Speaker 3

It's everyday one of them are crying or both of them are.

00:05:06 Speaker 2

Yeah no that needs to stop.

00:05:07 Speaker 3

Hey.

00:05:13 Speaker 3

Dot all day long freaking drunk.

00:05:24 Speaker 3

Some weird toilet like what are you gonna do that.

00:05:27 Speaker 2

You said what.

00:05:30 Speaker 3

Getting toilet a toilet.

00:05:37 Speaker 3

Yeah like in my back and watch them hippity bum bum toilet.

00:05:48 Speaker 2

OK no that's that's not fun.

00:05:51 Speaker 3

Toilet there's some little dude with a head in the toilet talking about some his name is Tiffany bum bum toilet.

00:05:58 Speaker 2

Yeah OK then that needs to stop.

00:06:05 Speaker 3

Have you guys watched Kitty bum bum toilet it kept saying I I love KD KD loves from skippy bum bum?

00:06:14 Speaker 3

That but then I told I told Olivia that Google what in the world some chicken bum bum bum guy 's head floating in the toilet and he got a whole rap song yeah and he doesn't care that's why I said absolutely not.

00:06:33 Speaker 2

Yeah.

00:06:35 Speaker 3

No your dad said that no no stop being a problem.

00:06:45 Speaker 3

Don't even know what you're talking about.

00:06:52 Speaker 3

Like this OK OK that's it no no you don't like that song that's creepy.

00:07:05 Speaker 3

Hi stop being a follower.

00:07:09 Speaker 3

You didn't know where like being a follower rise up and be a leader.

00:07:09 Speaker 2

Right.

00:07:16 Speaker 3

It's not Pretty Little Liars little little what you guys say your ABC.

00:07:28 Speaker 2

Yeah they shouldn't even be saying that either like we we used to get our.

00:07:34 Speaker 2

For that.

00:07:35 Speaker 3

Exactly I guess you guys gotta singing those numbers and letters songs and we don't need to hear nothing.

00:07:41 Speaker 3

Else come after them.

00:07:44 Speaker 3

So John got so much attention at 30 years old I mean boy I got some loud.

00:07:56 Speaker 3

You have a lady in the year.

00:08:01 Speaker 3

The lady that has the workshop I just went in there before I went to the pizza place because I don't think the pizza was good what she was talking.

00:08:13 Speaker 3

But then you found out that for she was inviting me to church and then I told her grandpa was my dad.

00:08:22 Speaker 3

And it's just about girl please yeah yeah they probably don't joke about everything and I'm gonna call your dad and he's gonna skip in your toilet if you don't stop.

00:08:42 Speaker 2

Tell them like tell them like you gotta be for real like you're just like you're just saying it and letting them repeat the stuff they.

00:08:48 Speaker 2

Need to stop.

00:08:51 Speaker 3

Hey no more saying that.

00:08:55 Speaker 3

OK.

00:08:55 Speaker 3

Did you hear her?

00:08:57 Speaker 3

No I didn't say that Mama.

00:08:59 Speaker 3

I was saying a BCE.

00:09:04 Speaker 3

OK good.

00:09:04 Speaker 2

Yeah they were coverage.

00:09:06 Speaker 3

Do you think I called that desktop how huge their minds are she knew how to Polish it up real quick?

00:09:15 Speaker 3

There you go you hear louder.

00:09:20 Speaker 3

The sky.

00:09:22 Speaker 3

Yeah that's what you need to be singing.

00:09:25 Speaker 3

And it is something that again you better understand.

00:09:31 Speaker 3

Do you suck it so you guys start singing that again your bedtime that 7?

00:09:43 Speaker 3

Where are you at yeah I'll do each other with that one yeah that's the day I was bought them a bunch of bird book bath and letters?

00:09:55 Speaker 2

Yeah.

00:09:56 Speaker 3

And then the thing with the ABC 's like they're so smart they know all their letters they know their sound.

00:10:06 Speaker 3

They know how to count good.

00:10:09 Speaker 3

Like well at the kindergarten material they look there's some fully resolved.

00:10:13 Speaker 2

That's good.

00:10:16 Speaker 3

Yeah and now we'll just start working on like this site work and writing.

00:10:23 Speaker 2

Yeah they also learn their vowels.

00:10:27 Speaker 2

And they're like no adjectives like that.

00:10:33 Speaker 3

We have that they're very very smart little ones.

00:10:36 Speaker 2

Well that's good.

00:10:40 Speaker 3

Yeah they're about to start doing may name.

00:10:43 Speaker 3

Saying right and then I.

00:10:46 Speaker 3

Found this one thing I think it's called.

00:10:50 Speaker 3

Something breed might be called Reed.

00:10:53 Speaker 3

Is there like those things I had no?

00:10:56 Speaker 3

It's the reading like just read.

00:10:59 Speaker 3

But you download it and it helps them read like little kids kids need to read it.

00:11:05 Speaker 2

Ohh.

00:11:07 Speaker 3

I think it's called weed.

00:11:09 Speaker 3

And the going like $10.00 a month or so the dark whoa I think you have the first flow.

00:11:12 Speaker 3

Yes.

00:11:21 Speaker 3

The hard water that buddy.

00:11:22 Speaker 3

Tired.

00:11:26 Speaker 3

Wait we're going to wait till the phone comes.

00:11:29 Speaker 3

Agenda.

00:11:31 Speaker 2

Well you guys are.

00:11:31 Speaker 2

Home.

GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL
NAVY-MARINE CORPS TRIAL JUDICIARY
CENTRAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

United States of America v. Jermiah Copeland CSSN/E-3 U.S. Navy	Proposed Lesser Included Offense Specification Language 5 June 2026

Pursuant to Rule for Courts-Marial (R.C.M. 910) and the 30 April 2026 plea agreement in this case, the defense provides the following revised specification as the lesser included offense of the sole specification of Charge VII (premeditated murder). The defense requests that this revised specification of the lesser included offense of unpremeditated murder be included in the record as an appellate exhibit.

Charge VII, Specification (unpremeditated murder): In that Culinary Specialist Seaman Jermiah T. Copeland, U.S. Navy, USS JAMES E. WILLIAMS (DDG 95), on active duty, did, at or near Norfolk, Virginia, on or about 29 May 2025, murder CS3 A.R., U.S. Navy, by means of an act of the Accused.

APPELLATE AND POST-TRIAL RIGHTS AND POST-TRIAL ADMINISTRATIVE PROCESSING

Rule for Courts-Martial (R.C.M.) 1010 requires your defense counsel to advise you on your post-trial and appellate rights. You may also request that the military judge explain all or any portion of your appellate rights in open court prior to adjournment of your court-martial.

Access to the Court-Martial Record

Pursuant to R.C.M. 1106(c), upon adjournment of your court-martial, you have the right to request a copy of the recording of all open sessions of the court-martial and a copy of, or access to, the evidence admitted at the court-martial, and a copy of the appellate exhibits. You may request the recording, evidence, and exhibits be provided to you or your counsel. Neither you nor your counsel will be provided access to sealed or classified court-martial material or recordings unless authorized by R.C.M. 1106 or R.C.M. 1113. You may use the materials provided to prepare matters for consideration by the Convening Authority (CA) and in any appeal for which you may be eligible.

Submission of Matters to the Convening Authority

Pursuant to Article 38(c), Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ), and R.C.M. 1106, within 10 calendar days after the announcement of the sentence, you have the right to submit matters to the CA before that officer takes action on your case. If you elect to submit matters, you must do so within 10 calendar days after the announcement of the sentence. The CA may extend this for not more than an additional 20 calendar days for good cause shown. Your defense counsel will normally compile and submit the matters on your behalf in consultation with you. Failure to submit matters within the time prescribed waives the right to submit additional matters later. If a crime victim submits matters for the CA's consideration, you will be given 5 calendar days from receipt of those matters to submit a rebuttal to those matters. You may not seek an extension of time to submit a rebuttal to matters submitted by a crime victim. In either submission, you are prohibited from including matters that relate to the character of a crime victim unless such matters were admitted as evidence at trial.

Possible Action by the Convening Authority

a. The CA has authority to act only in certain cases. For cases involving convictions for offenses committed after 1 January 2019, under Article 60a, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 1109 the CA cannot act on the findings if any of the following applies:

- you have been convicted of a sexual offense listed in Articles 120(a), 120(b) or 120b, UCMJ;

- the authorized maximum confinement for any offense of which you have been convicted exceeds two years, regardless of the court's jurisdictional maximum;
- the adjudged sentence includes a punitive discharge (Dismissal, Bad Conduct Discharge, or Dishonorable Discharge); or
- the adjudged confinement is more than six months.

In those cases, the CA may take action on the sentence only as provided in R.C.M. 1109(c).

b. In all other cases involving convictions for offenses committed after 1 January 2019, the CA may, but is not required to, take action on the findings and sentence and grant clemency within the limits of Articles 60a or 60b, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 1109 or 1110. In those cases, the CA may take:

- no action;
- action on the findings, if allowed by law; or
- action on the sentence, if allowed by law.

c. In any case involving a conviction for an offense committed before 1 January 2019, the CA may take action on either the findings of guilty or sentence adjudged within the limits of Article 60, UCMJ, that was in effect at the time of the earliest offense for which you were convicted. The action to be taken on the findings and sentence may be limited by Article 60, UCMJ, depending on the date of the offense, the type of offense, the maximum punishment of the offense, the recommendation of the trial counsel, the existence of a pretrial agreement, and the punishment awarded. When authorized to act, the CA possesses the sole discretion to approve, disapprove, commute, or suspend the sentence in whole or in part; set aside a finding of guilty; order a rehearing on a finding of guilty; or approve a lesser included offense of a finding of guilty.

d. If the CA has the power to approve, disapprove, commute, or suspend the sentence in whole or in part, set aside a finding of guilty, order a rehearing on a finding of guilty, or approve a lesser included offense of a finding of guilty, that decision is within the sole discretion of the CA. The CA may suspend a sentence in certain cases when recommended by a military judge or by the trial counsel. The CA is not required to review the case for legal errors or factual sufficiency, but may order a rehearing only in the circumstances provided for in Article 60b, UCMJ.

In the post-trial process, the CA and the Military Judge may never increase the severity of the sentence and are not empowered to reverse a finding of not guilty.

APPELLATE AND POST-TRIAL RIGHTS AND POST-TRIAL ADMINISTRATIVE PROCESSING

Entry of Judgment

Pursuant to Article 60c, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 1111, the military judge will complete the Entry of Judgment (EOJ) and attach it to the record of trial. The EOJ reflects the result of your court-martial, including the UCMJ Article and subsection violated, nature and date of the offense, as well as the results of the CA's action. The EOJ will include the final sentence, which will account for any modifications made by the CA during the post-trial review process or any post-trial ruling, order, or other determination by the military judge. The EOJ will also include the total amount of sentence credit, if any, to be applied to a sentence as of the date of the EOJ. The EOJ terminates the court-martial at the trial level, ends any period of deferment, and initiates the post-trial review process. A copy of the EOJ will be provided to you or your defense counsel according to your election below.

Certified Record of Trial

Pursuant to Article 54, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 1112(b), the certified record of trial (ROT) is comprised of an audio recording of all open sessions, all evidence admitted, and all appellate exhibits. A copy of the certified ROT will be assembled and provided to either you or your defense counsel, according to your election below. Recordings and exhibits that are sealed or contain classified materials will not be provided to you. Should you need to review those materials, you or your defense counsel must submit a request pursuant to R.C.M. 1106 or R.C.M. 1113.

Appellate and Post-Trial Review

a. Automatic Review. Pursuant to Article 65(b)(1), UCMJ, if your sentence includes death, dismissal, a punitive discharge or confinement for two years or more, the ROT will be forwarded to the Navy-Marine Corps Court of Criminal Appeals (NMCCA) for review under Article 66(b)(3), UCMJ. The ROT will also be forwarded to an appellate defense counsel who shall be detailed to review your case and, upon your request, represent you before the NMCCA.

b. Direct Appeal Review. Pursuant to Article 65(b)(2), UCMJ, if your case is eligible for direct appeal review under Article 66(b)(1), UCMJ, you may request in writing the representation of appellate defense counsel who will review the ROT and be available to represent you before the NMCCA. Pursuant to Article 66(b)(1)(A), if your sentence is not subject to automatic review, you may file an appeal to have the NMCCA review your case. Under Article 66(b)(1), UCMJ, this appeal must be timely. Article 66(c), UCMJ, provides that an appeal is timely if filed before the later of: (1) the end of the 90-day period beginning on the date you are provided notice of your right to appeal in accordance with Article 65(c)(1), or (2) the date set by the NMCCA by rule or order. With respect to an appeal submitted to the NMCCA for review, the scope of review is limited to the findings and sentence as entered into the record. Upon a specific showing by you that there was a deficiency of proof, the NMCCA may also consider whether the findings are correct in fact. The NMCCA has the authority to set aside findings, set aside the sentence, modify the sentence to a lesser sentence, affirm a lesser-included offense, order or allow additional proceedings, and/or order that the charges be dismissed.

c. Review beyond NMCCA. Pursuant to Article 67(a), UCMJ, after completion of NMCCA review, upon your request or that of the Judge Advocate General (JAG), the Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) may review your case. You may petition the CAAF within 60 days from the earlier of (1) the date you are notified of the NMCCA's decision, or (2) the date on which a copy of the NMCCA decision is deposited in the mail for delivery to you. CAAF review of your petition is discretionary in non-death penalty cases and, if it grants your petition, CAAF may act only with respect to the findings and sentence as entered into judgment and as affirmed or set aside as incorrect in law by the NMCCA. Under Article 67a, UCMJ, you may petition the Supreme Court of the United States following a decision by CAAF.

d. Review by a Judge Advocate. If your case is not subject to automatic review by the NMCCA and you do not seek direct appeal review, a judge advocate will review your case in accordance with Article 65(d), UCMJ. The review is limited to whether the court had jurisdiction over you and the offense; whether the charge and specification stated an offense; and whether the sentence was within the limits prescribed by law. You may also submit written allegations of error for review. Relief recommended by this review is forwarded to the JAG for consideration, who may set aside the findings or sentence, in whole or in part.

e. Waiver of Appellate Review. You may waive your right to appellate review if your case qualifies for automatic review, or you may withdraw your case from appellate review at a later time. This is a significant decision and you should fully understand your appellate rights and the implications of a waiver before you forego appellate review. You have the right to the advice and assistance of counsel in exercising or deciding to waive your appellate rights. This may include the assistance of an appellate defense counsel in coordination with your trial defense counsel. If you submit a waiver or withdraw from the appellate review process or if you do not file an appeal in a direct-appeal case, your case will be reviewed under Article 65(d)(3), UCMJ. The review is limited to whether the court had jurisdiction over you and the offense; whether the charge and specification stated an offense; and whether the sentence was within the limits prescribed by law.

f. Review by the JAG. Under Article 69, UCMJ, within one year after the end of the 90-day period beginning on the date you are provided your appellate rights pursuant to Article 65(c), UCMJ, the JAG may review your application to send your case to the NMCCA. In the event that you submit a waiver or withdrawal of appellate review under Article 61, UCMJ, before being provided notice of these rights, your application must be submitted to the JAG no later than one year after the entry of judgment under Article 60c, UCMJ. The JAG may extend the period of submission, for good cause shown, but may not consider an application submitted more than three years after the end of the applicable submission period. The scope of review is limited to whether your withdrawal or waiver of appellate review was invalid under the law. If the JAG determines that it was invalid, he or she will send your case to the NMCCA for review under Article 66, UCMJ.

Right to Counsel

a. Post-trial Matters. It is your trial defense counsel's responsibility to represent you through the post-trial process. Your trial defense counsel is responsible for examining the Statement of Trial Results, the findings, the sentence, the CA's Action, and the EOJ for errors or legal insufficiency. It is your trial defense counsel's obligation to advise and assist you in preparing and submitting post-trial matters or motions, if applicable, to the military judge before the EOJ, or to correct the EOJ within five days after it is provided to you.

b. Article 65(d), UCMJ. If your case is not subject to automatic review and you do not seek direct appeal review of your case at the NMCCA, your trial defense counsel will continue to represent you through the Article 65(d), UCMJ, review process. Your trial defense counsel will also represent you through a subsequent Article 69, UCMJ, review, subject to such review's limitations discussed above if you elect this additional review.

c. Appellate Defense Counsel. If your case is subject to automatic review by the NMCCA or you seek direct appeal review, you have the right to a military appellate defense counsel to represent you at no cost. Detailed appellate defense counsel represent you on appeals before the NMCCA, the CAAF, and the Supreme Court of the United States.

- Special Power of Attorney. If you wish to be represented by a military appellate defense counsel before the NMCCA, the CAAF, or the Supreme Court you may sign a special power of attorney, which authorizes a detailed military appellate defense counsel to take actions on your behalf during the appellate review process. The original, signed special power of attorney must be notarized and attached to the original record of trial. If you do not sign the special power of attorney now, you do not waive the right to a military appellate defense counsel at a later date.

APPELLATE AND POST-TRIAL RIGHTS AND POST-TRIAL ADMINISTRATIVE PROCESSING

- How to Contact Appellate Defense Counsel. If you qualify for appellate representation and have not been contacted by your military appellate defense attorney 120 days after the conclusion of your trial, you may contact the Navy-Marine Corps Appellate Defense Division at 1-202-685-7290 or 1-800-688-4613. It is your responsibility to affirmatively provide updated contact information to your appellate defense counsel throughout the appellate process. This is critical to ensuring an appellate defense counsel can form the necessary attorney-client relationship and contact you regarding your case.

- Military Appellate Defense Counsel will Contact You. The Navy and Marine Appellate Review Activity (NAMARA) will make reasonable efforts to contact you when your case is ready for appellate review. Should NAMARA be unable to contact you and if you elected not to sign the special power of attorney, the NMCCA will conduct the automatic review of your case under Article 66(b)(3) without input from you. No appellate attorney at NAMARA will be able to appeal the NMCCA's decision to the CAAF unless you authorize an appellate attorney to represent you at that point. For more information on appellate defense counsel visit http://www.jag.navy.mil/organization/code_45.htm.

- Civilian Appellate Defense Counsel. If you wish, you may hire a civilian attorney at no expense to the government to represent you throughout the post-trial and appellate processes.

Petition for New Trial

a. At any time within three years after the date of the EOJ, you may petition for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence or fraud on the court-martial pursuant to Article 73, UCMJ, and R.C.M. 1210.

b. A petition for a new trial on the basis of fraud on the court-martial must demonstrate how the fraud had a substantial contributing effect on a finding of guilty or the sentence adjudged.

c. A petition for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence will only be granted if: (1) the evidence was discovered after the trial; (2) the evidence would not have been discovered by you or your defense counsel during your trial if you or your counsel exercised due diligence; and (3) the newly discovered evidence, if it had been considered by the trial court, in light of all other pertinent evidence, would probably produce a substantially more favorable result for you. You may not submit a petition for a new trial on the basis of newly discovered evidence if you pleaded guilty.

APPELLATE AND POST-TRIAL RIGHTS AND POST-TRIAL ADMINISTRATIVE PROCESSING

Post-Trial Processing and Notifications

a. Effective Date of Sentence. Pursuant to Article 57(a) and R.C.M. 1102(b), automatic and adjudged forfeitures and adjudged reduction in rank, take effect 14 days after the sentence is announced. Automatic reduction in rank takes effect upon EOJ. Pursuant to Article 57(b) and R.C.M. 1103, you may request that the CA defer service of a sentence to confinement, forfeitures, or reduction in rank until the EOJ.

b. Automatic Forfeitures. If the adjudged sentence includes either (1) confinement for more than six months or death, or (2) confinement for any period and a punitive discharge, Article 58b, UCMJ, requires the automatic imposition of forfeiture of all pay and allowances at a general court-martial or 2/3 pay at a special court-martial during the period of confinement. This applies regardless of whether the sentence is suspended. If you have dependents, pursuant to Article 58b(b), you may apply to the CA to waive automatic forfeitures, to be paid to your dependents for a period of up to six months. You must establish an allotment in order for your dependents to receive any waived pay and allowances. If you are held in confinement beyond your End of Active Obligated Service date, you or your dependents will not receive any pay or allowances by operation of law.

c. Automatic Reduction in Pay Grade. Automatic reduction to the lowest enlisted pay grade by operation of Article 58a, UCMJ, will be effected in the Naval service in the following manner:

- For any conviction for an offense committed before 1 January 2019, reduction to the lowest enlisted pay grade will be automatically effected only when the sentence as approved by the CA includes, whether or not suspended, either: (1) a dishonorable or bad-conduct discharge, or (2) confinement in excess of 90 days if the sentence is awarded in days, or in excess of 3 months if the sentence is awarded in months or years. This automatic reduction in rank goes into effect on the date of the convening authority's action.

- Automatic reduction in pay grade is not authorized in any conviction for an offense committed on or after 1 January 2019 and before 28 July 2023.

- For any conviction for an offense committed on or after 28 July 2023, reduction to the lowest enlisted pay grade will be automatically effected for any sentence that includes: (1) a dishonorable or bad-conduct discharge; or (2) confinement in excess of 90 days if the sentence is awarded in days, or in excess of 3 months if the sentence is awarded in months or years. This automatic reduction in rank goes into effect upon EOJ.

d. Vacation of Suspended Sentences. If you commit misconduct after the date of trial but before completing any period of suspension established by your plea agreement or the period of suspension recommended by the military judge or the trial counsel, or if you violate any of the conditions of suspension stated in your plea agreement during this time period, the CA may vacate any periods of suspension in accordance with R.C.M. 1108. If that occurs, any previously suspended portion of your sentence could be imposed upon you.

e. Appellate Leave. If your sentence includes an unsuspended punitive discharge, you may be placed on appellate leave in a no-pay status under the provisions of Article 76a, UCMJ, notwithstanding any provision regarding forfeitures or fines in any plea agreement. A service member placed in an appellate leave status will normally not receive any pay or allowances. Receipt of pay and/or allowances while in an appellate leave status will depend on the amount of accrued leave you have accumulated, request to use, and receive command approval to use, and on the sentence awarded by this court-martial. You will remain a member of the Armed Forces while in an appellate leave status and subject to military jurisdiction.

f. Administrative Separation. As a result of being found guilty, you may be processed for administrative discharge from the United States Navy or United States Marine Corps, as applicable. An administrative discharge could result in an Other-Than-Honorable characterization of service, unless otherwise limited in a plea agreement (as permitted by Service policy), even if part or all of the sentence, including a punitive discharge, is suspended for any reason.

Acknowledgment

By signing the document below, you acknowledge the following: (1) that prior to adjournment of your court-martial, you were provided with the above written advice; (2) that you have read and understand your post-trial and appellate rights; and (3) that you discussed your rights with your defense counsel prior to signing this form.

Who Was Angie

When I think of Angie, I do not first think of courtrooms, investigations, or headlines. I think of my daughter.

Angie was one of those kids who loved to be sandwiched between the couch cushions. She and her sister would turn ordinary moments into adventures, jumping off couches onto piles of cushions and leaping from the top bunk onto Marissa's bed, laughing the entire time. She was playful, affectionate, and full of life.

One of my favorite memories of Angie is from when she was a little girl. She was determined to get my attention. I remember her chest-bumping me and saying, "You're going to get this love. I'm going to give it to you." It was such a simple moment, but I have never forgotten it.

As she grew older, she remained deeply connected to the people she loved while growing into her own person. She answered the call to serve her country and was building a future for herself. She was finding her way in the world, discovering who she wanted to become, and growing into a remarkable young woman.

In the months before Angie died, our relationship was changing and growing. She would always be my daughter, but we were developing a friendship as two adults. We talked more openly, shared more of our lives with each other, and I was getting to know the woman she was becoming. We were building something special together, and I treasured that.

Impact

Angie's death left a wound that reaches far beyond words. The hurt runs deep, and there will always be an ache in my heart. While I continue to move forward each day, her absence is something I feel every day, and it will remain with me for the rest of my life.

No sentence handed down today can bring Angie back. Nothing can restore the conversations we would have had, the memories we would have continued to make, or the future she was building for herself. What this Court can do is recognize that Angie mattered. She was loved. She was valued. She was a daughter, a sister, a friend, a Sailor, and a human being whose life had meaning.

That is who Angie was. And that is how I hope she will be remembered.

Justice

Today, this Court will determine an appropriate sentence, and I respect that process. Accountability matters. Angie mattered. The value of her life deserves to be recognized, and the harm that was done cannot be ignored.

At the same time, this tragedy should not be defined by anger, bitterness, or hatred. Those things cannot heal what has been broken, nor do they honor Angie. While nothing can undo what has been done, I believe every human life still has value.

Mr. Copeland will spend decades in prison. It is my hope that he uses that time to accept responsibility for his actions, to understand the harm they have caused, and to do something meaningful with the life he has been given. I hope he comes to fully understand the weight of what was taken from Angie, from our family, and from all those who loved her.

I seek accountability, not only for the actions that brought us here, but for the decisions and failures that allowed this tragedy to unfold. Accountability is not about punishment alone. It is about truth, leadership, integrity, transparency, and the courage to accept responsibility and do better. Angie deserved those things, and so do all who serve.

The best way to honor Angie is not only to remember her life, but to learn from what happened and better protect those who serve in the future.

I also extend love and compassion to everyone affected by this tragedy, including those who love Mr. Copeland. As a mother, I recognize that there is another mother who is hurting today. While our circumstances are very different, I would not wish this suffering on any parent.

I choose mercy. I choose compassion. I choose forgiveness. Not because what happened to Angie was acceptable, and not because accountability is unnecessary, but because I refuse to allow this tragedy to diminish my capacity to love.

My faith teaches me that justice and mercy can exist together. I believe every person is more than the worst thing they have ever done, and I believe in the possibility of redemption.

I hope that healing will come to all those affected by this tragedy and that, in time, something good may emerge from so much pain.

Statement of Juan P. Resendiz, Jr.

As Angelina's older brother, I want to speak from the heart. Angelina was everything to us—bright, kind, and full of dreams. Losing her has left a hole in our lives that will never fully heal. But we are determined to honor her memory. We'll keep fighting for justice and we'll never stop sharing her story, so others are protected and her light is never forgotten.

NAVY-MARINE CORPS TRIAL JUDICIARY
CENTRAL JUDICIAL CIRCUIT
GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL

UNITED STATES V. JERMIAH T. COPELAND CS3/E-4, USN	RULING – DEFENSE MOTION FOR APPROPRIATE RELIFF (ILLEGAL PRETRIAL PUNISHMENT – ARTICLE 13) 9 JUNE 2026

1. Statement of the Case.

The charges and specifications were referred on 1 October 2025 and the Accused was arraigned on 9 October 2025. The specifications allege, generally: (1) that the Accused committed aggravated sexual contact against ABHAN C.R.; (2) that the Accused sexually assaulted CSSN S.S.; (3) that the Accused sexually assaulted Ms. Y.J.; (4) that the Accused assaulted ABHAN C.R. by strangling her; (5) that the Accused knowingly made a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (6) that the Accused broadcast a recording of the private area of CSSN S.S. without her consent; (7) that the Accused obstructed justice by hiding his cellular phone on two different occasions; (8) that the Accused obstructed justice by concealing a dead body; (9) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by strangling her; (10) that the Accused committed domestic violence against CSSN S.R. by pushing her with his hands; (11) that the Accused made false official statements on both 29 May 2025 and again on 3 June 2025; and (12) that the Accused murdered, with premeditation, CS3 A.R.

On 26 November 2025, the defense filed a motion for appropriate relief seeking confinement credit for illegal pretrial confinement pursuant to Article 13, Uniform Code of Military Justice (UCMJ).[1] The Government responded on 5 December 2025.[2] Following an Article 39(a) hearing held on 10 December 2025, the military judge deferred ruling on the motion. Thereafter, on 21 May 2026, the defense filed a supplement to their motion[3] and the government responded.[4] The court heard oral argument on the motion on 5 June 2026.

2. Burden.

As the moving party, the Defense bears the burden of persuasion and, by a preponderance of the evidence, the burden of proof on any factual issue the resolution of which is necessary to decide the motion.[5]

[4] AE XLVIII(a).
[5] Rule for Court Martial (R.C.M.) 905(b)(1); R.C.M. 905(c)(1).

3. Findings of Fact.

In reaching its findings and conclusions, the Court considered all legal and competent evidence presented by the parties, the reasonable inferences to be drawn therefrom, and resolved all issues of credibility. The Court makes the following findings of fact:

a. On 9 June 2025, the Accused was ordered into pre-trial confinement. Charges were preferred against the Accused on 22 August 2025. These charges include allegations of premediated murder and violent sexual misconduct, and span five victims in a less than one-year period.

b. Both during and after the commission of the alleged offenses, but before the imposition of pretrial confinement, the Accused searched for options to flee justice. Specifically, he searched for directions to "Bermuda" on 29 May 2025, the date of the alleged murder, and conducted searches for "norfolk airport" and "virginia airport" in the following days.

c. Since he was placed in pretrial confinement, the Accused has been confined at the Naval Consolidated Brig Charleston (NCBC) Detachment Chesapeake and has been classified as a "maximum custody" prisoner during his entire pre-trial detention. MAX custody is defined as "[p]risoners requiring special custodial supervision because of the high probability of escape or are potentially violent or dangerous, and whose escape would cause concern of a threat to life, property, or national security."[6]

d. As a "maximum custody" prisoner, the Accused, is held alone in his cell for between 21 and 22 hours per day.

e. Pursuant to Secretary of the Navy and NCBC policies, all pretrial confinees are classified as "maximum custody" for the first week they are at the brig and then, generally, are converted to "Medium-In," or colloquially "general population."

f. While in "maximum custody" guards are required to check in on the inmates every 15 minutes and document their rounds. These inmates do not have contact with one another, they conduct recreation call by themselves, and they eat meals by themselves in their cells.

g. Approximately every 30 days, the Accused's classification was reviewed by a classification and adjustment board (C&A Board). The C&A Board considered a range of factors from SECNAV M-1540.1, such as his behavior at the brig, the Accused's civilian and military record, including the offenses alleged, and the potential length of confinement awarded if found guilty. Based on these factors the C&A Board awards points. The C&A Board also subtracts points for, among other things, completion of treatment programs or groups. Once the points are tabulated, if a certain points threshold for MAX custody is not met, the C&A Board recommends a reduction in classification. The OIC of Naval Consolidated Brig Chesapeake can

[6] AE XLIX at 7 (SECNAV M-1640.1 of 15 May 2019 at 4-5 – 4-6).

"override" the classification status recommendation for an accused in pretrial confinement to increase or decrease their custody classification.

h. On 11 August 2025, the C&A board recommended that the Accused remain in a MAX status but recommended a stepped down status that permitted the Accused to spend an additional hour outside his cell. The "step-down" on 11 August 2025 provided the Accused an additional hour a day outside of his cell to clean and gave the Accused and additional opportunity to prove that his behavior is improving and that re-classification may one day be appropriate.

i. The Accused completed coursework that reduced his point total and on 14 October 2025 the C&A Board recommended the Accused be reclassified to "Medium In" or MDI status. The Brig OIC overrode that recommendation. He also overrode an additional recommendation for a less restrictive status made by the C&A Board on 17 November 2025.

j. During his testimony at the Article 39a, UCMJ, hearing in December 2025, the Brig OIC acknowledged it was unlikely, based solely on the nature of the alleged offenses, that he would ever reclassified the Accused and that he would likely remain in "maximum custody" status until his pending charges have been adjudicated.

k. Between February and April 2026, the Accused engaged in various efforts to harm himself and engaged in disrespectful behavior towards Brig staff.

l. On 26 March 2026, the C&A Board elevated the point total for the Accused based upon these disciplinary issues and below average work performance and recommended that the Accused remain in MAX custody. The same result occurred at the 29 April 2026 C&A Board. Because of these findings, no override of the points system was necessary to maintain the Accused in a MAX custody classification.

m. Additional facts necessary to resolve the motion are included below.

4. Statement of Law.

Article 13, UCMJ, provides in part, "[n]o person, while being held for trial, may be subjected to punishment or penalty other than arrest or confinement upon the charges pending against him, nor shall the arrest or confinement imposed upon him be any more rigorous than the circumstances required to insure his presence."[7] In Howell v. United States, the Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces (CAAF) reiterated their two-prong test for determining whether government action amounts to illegal pretrial punishment:

> The question of whether particular conditions amount to punishment before trial is a matter of intent, which is determined by examining the purposes served by the restriction or condition, and whether such purposes are "reasonably related to a legitimate governmental objective."

[7] 10 U.S.C. § 813.

> In the absence of a showing of intent to punish, a court must look to see if a particular restriction or condition, which may on its face appear to be punishment, is instead but an incident of a legitimate nonpunitive governmental objective.[8]

The "punishment prong" of Article 13, UCMJ focuses on intent, while the "rigorous circumstances" prong focuses on the conditions of the pretrial restraint.[9] Indeed, "[i]rrespective of any intent to punish, Article 13, UCMJ, is violated if the activity at issue serves no legitimate, nonpunitive purpose."[10]

In United States v. Mosby, the CAAF held that placement in pretrial solitary confinement did not warrant additional confinement credit even when the sole reason for that confinement was the Accused's alleged misconduct.[11] There, the accused was in maximum custody following allegations that he had lost his temper and struck and killed his 5-year old son. While in maximum custody, Mosby was confined to an individual cell with "no chance to mingle with the general prison population."[12] The military judge found that the conditions of confinement were not imposed with an intent to punish, were not unduly rigorous, and were reasonably related to legitimate governmental objectives.[13] The CAAF concurred, ruling that beyond introducing evidence that Mosby was placed in solitary confinement base on his charge alone, the defense had not introduced any evidence of an intent to punish.[14]

In United States v. King, the CAAF held that an accused placed into a segregated environment with all the attributes of severe restraint and discipline "without an individualized demonstration of cause in the record, was so excessive as to be punishment and is not justified" simply by the confinement facilities space limitations.[15] In that case, the accused was classified as a maximum security prisoner and was confined to a double occupancy cell with another maximum custody pretrial detainee; he remained in his cell except for appointments and emergencies, ate all meals in his cell, had no library or gym privileges, was not permitted to sleep during duty hours, was required to wear a yellow jumpsuit and shackles when released for appointments, and required two escorts whenever he was moved for appointments.[16] The CAAF found that King's classification as a maximum custody inmate was not "so egregious to give rise to any inference of intent to punish" nor were the conditions of confinement "so excessive as to amount to punishment."[17] However, when King's cell mate was convicted and prison rules prevented co-mingling pre-trial and post-trial, he was placed in 6 foot by 6 foot, windowless, single occupancy cell, typically reserved for inmates with disciplinary problems. The CAAF held that the two-week period King was housed in this cell amounted to punishment because it was an "arbitrary response to the physical limitations" of the confinement facility.[18]

5. Analysis and Conclusions of Law.

The Defense requests three-for-one credit based on the "unduly harsh, inflexible, and arbitrary conditions of pre-trial confinement which far exceed anything required to ensure [the Accused's] continued participation in these proceedings."[19] Defense counsel conceded at oral argument that there is no evidence of intent to the punish the Accused, but rather, the oppressive and unduly harsh conditions of his confinement amount to pretrial punishment. The court disagrees.

Like the accused in Mosby, the Accused was placed and retained in a maximum security status based largely on the charges he is facing. But, here, the Accused's misconduct is more severe than in Mosby. The Accused is charged with murdering a fellow Sailor along with several other violent offenses, including sexual assault and aggravated assault. Additionally, he is charged with nonviolent offenses related to covering up two of the serious offenses with which he is charged. The Accused's status as a maximum custody detainee is reviewed monthly, and the Brig OIC ultimately has discretion to downgrade or maintain the Accused's maximum status. On at least two occasions, the Brig OIC has overridden the recommendation of the C&A Board and kept the Accused in a maximum custody status. Indeed, the Brig OIC testified that he would likely never reduce the Accused's status given the charges and the potential lengthy prison sentence the Accused was facing. But, this assertion does not point to an arbitrary decision as the defense alleges. Rather, it reflects the reasoned judgment of the officer charged with maintaining custody and control of pretrial detainees, ensuring the safety of all pretrial detainees and post-trial prisoners, and ensuring pretrial detainees appear at trial. Unlike the arbitrary decision to place the King accused in a small windowless cell reserved for prisoners with disciplinary issues – without any individualized demonstration of cause, but rather simply based on space limitations at the confinement facility – the Accused here was maintained in a maximum custody status precisely because of an individualized determination made by the Brig OIC, based on the charges alleged, the Accused's potential danger to the safety of others, and the length of the potential sentence the Accused was facing.

Accordingly, the Accused's maximum custody status served the legitimate security and safety concerns of the Brig leadership and was not illegal pretrial punishment.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

Arrange and bind the record of trial with allied papers in the sequence indicated below. The court reporter is responsible for certifying the record of trial prior to transmittal for appellate review, in accordance with R.C.M. 1112 and JAG/CNLSCINST 5813.1G.

1. Pages 1 (Cover page) and 2 (Chronology Sheet) of DD Form 490 (enclosure 7).

2. Court reporter certification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

3. Military Judge verification of Record of Trial (enclosure 8).

4. DD Form 490 (pages 3-6 and any continuation pages if needed) (enclosure 7).

5. Completed Post-Trial Checklist from JAG/CNLSCINST 5814.1G (enclosure 2).

6. Completed Convening Authority's Action Checklist (enclosure 4).

7. Post-Trial Documents.

a. Certificates/Proof of Service of the Certified Record of Trial to the accused and victim, if applicable (enclosure 7).

b. Convening Authority's Action and Entry of Judgment (enclosure 6).

c. Any requests for copies of the court-martial record pursuant to R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A (attach written requests, and any certificates/proof of service, but do not attach the victim's post-trial rights advisement or DD Form 2704).

d. Matters submitted by the accused and/or victim under R.C.M. 1106 or 1106A, or any written waiver of the right to submit such matters. Include all responses to requests here as well.

e. Any deferment request and the action on it (including any request to waive automatic forfeitures under Article 58b).

f. Conditions of suspension and proof of service on probationer under R.C.M. 1107, if any.

g. All clemency recommendations by members or military judge, if any.

h. Statement of Trial Results (enclosure 1).

i. Crime Reporting Information.

j. Accused's request for appellate defense counsel, or waiver/withdrawal of appellate review under R.C.M. 1115, if applicable.

k. All transfer orders, confinement orders, and excess leave orders.

l. Briefs of counsel submitted after trial, if any.

8. Preliminary Hearing.

a. DD Form 457, Preliminary Hearing Officer's Report, pursuant to Article 32, if such hearing was conducted, followed by any other allied papers that accompanied the charges when referred for trial (including any matters submitted under R.C.M. 405(l), unless included elsewhere in the record of trial).*

b. Waiver of Article 32 Hearing (if applicable).

9. Pre-Trial Allied Papers.

a. Convening Order and all amending convening orders.

b. DD Form 458, Charge Sheet (unless included at the point of arraignment in the transcript).

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

c. Congressional inquiries and replies, if any.

d. Advice of staff judge advocate, when prepared pursuant to Article 34 or otherwise.

10. Record of Proceedings.

a. Substantially verbatim recording of court-martial proceedings. Segregate open and closed sessions of the court-martial in accordance with R.C.M. 1113 and the following guidance:*

b. Ensure that each closed session of the court-martial is recorded on a separate DVD marked CLOSED SESSION, placed in its own envelope marked CLOSED SESSION, and sealed.

c. Label all DVD(s) and envelopes with the information on page 1 of this template.

d. Mark all DVDs and envelopes with "1 of X." as necessary (for example, the second DVD of six DVDs and its envelope should be marked, 2 of 6). All DVDs of open sessions may be in one envelope.

e. Mark all DVDs with their beginning and ending timestamps. The timestamps for closed sessions should match those shown on the Index.

f. Verbatim transcript or summarized report prepared in accordance with JAGINST 5814.1G. Include the following:

I. A certificate of correction, if any (including any supplemental certification for additional proceedings).

II. Court reporter and transcriptionist certification of verbatim transcript.

g. Records of former proceedings (Article 30a) and/or trials, (e.g., electronic/digital record of former proceeding, including audio recording and any scanned documentation/transcripts, CD/DVD format).*

11. Prosecution exhibits admitted in evidence.

12. Defense Exhibits admitted in evidence.

13. Appellate Exhibits including but not limited to, proposed instructions, written offers of proof or preliminary evidence (real or documentary), briefs of counsel submitted at trial, request to be tried by military judge alone (if any), the accused election of members under R.C.M. 903 (if any), any statement by convening authority required under R.C.M. 503(a)(2), and the election for sentencing by members in lieu of sentencing by military judge under R.C.M. 1002(b).*

14. Redaction. The following information shall be redacted in accordance with JAGMAN 1059 from the record of trial prior to releasing it to any accused or victim (including any transcript made pursuant to R.C.M. 1114 and attached to the record of trial) unless the information establishes an element of an offense, or is otherwise required:

a. Any recordings of closed sessions, any transcripts of closed sessions, and any sealed exhibits.

b. Names of minor victims, and names of minor witnesses. If an identifier is used, use only the initials.

c. Social Security Numbers.

d. Financial account information.

e. Home addresses.

f. Telephone numbers.

g. Personal e-mail addresses.

h. Dates of birth.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ASSEMBLING THE CERTIFIED RECORD OF TRIAL

i. Any other information that could be used to identify a specific person other than the accused.

*If the report of preliminary hearing or record of trial contains exhibits, proceedings, or other materials ordered sealed by the preliminary hearing officer or military judge, counsel for the Government, the court reporter, or trial counsel shall cause such materials to be sealed to prevent unauthorized examination or disclosure, pursuant to R.C.M. 1113. Sealed material shall be properly marked, individually placed in separate envelopes with a copy of the preliminary hearing officer or military judge sealing order affixed to it, and inserted at the appropriate place in the record of trial. Do not duplicate sealed material to include it in any copy of the record of trial. Instead, insert a copy of the sealing order in lieu of any sealed material, in any copies of the record of trial.

DIVIDERS ARE NOT NECESSARY TO SEPARATE EACH SECTION. IF USED, THEY CAN BE PAPER RATHER THAN CARD STOCK. IF A PARTICULAR COMPONENT IS NOT APPLICABLE IN THE RECORD OF TRIAL, SUCH AS AN ARTICLE 32 HEARING, EXHIBITS NOT ADMITTED, POST-TRIAL PROCEEDINGS AND VACATION HEARINGS, DO NOT INSERT A DIVIDER OR PLACEHOLDER.

FRONT AND BACK COVER MUST BE ON BLUE CARDS STOCK AND LABELED WITH GUM LABELS.

Binding. Each volume of a record of trial should be no more than 1.5 inches thick and bound at the top with metal or plastic fasteners. DO NOT interlace or "piggy-back" prong fasteners to create an oversized volume. DO NOT place hole punches where it covers up the evidence or language in the transcript. When it becomes necessary to assemble the record of trial in more than one volume, the volumes will be numbered consecutively, on the front cover, as illustrated below:

Volume 1 of 4 (Pages 1-250)
Volume 2 of 4 (Pages 251-400)
Volume 3 of 4 (Pages 401-652)
Volume 4 of 4 (Pages 653-901 and Exhibits)

Make the first volume of a multi-volume record an inch thick or smaller to allow for inclusion of post-trial documents. Limit subsequent volumes to 1.5 inches, unless dividing them requires assembling an additional volume smaller than a half inch.

Label the upper right-hand corner or the Preparation and Certification of Record of Trial Form (enclosure (8)) to reflect which copy it is, i.e., "ORIGINAL," "ACCUSED," "REVIEW" etc.
